PREFACE
TO THE FIRST EDITION.

AFTER having so fully in the Title-page indicated to the Purchaser what he is to expect in these Volumes, there is little Need, it is hoped, to bespeak his Favour, by way of Preface; for if the very many imperfect Pieces of Conveyancing that have been, and daily are, published, most of which too are merely trifling, find a ready Sale, surely a Work, like this, comprehending the whole Art, both in Theory and Practice, must meet with a proportionable Reception, and suitable Encouragement.

The Necessity there is for all Those who make Conveyancing their Business, to be thoroughly grounded in its Fundamentals; well read in the various Kinds and Tenures of Estates, and the Opinions, Resolutions, and Determinations of our Courts, in Cases relating thereto; intimately acquainted with the several Ways of Practice; nicely skilled in the peculiar Style and Manner of Drawing; and sufficiently stored with the best Precedents and Forms; is too evident to require inculcating here. From whence else, but a Want of thereof in too many of the Practisers, could spring those, almost numberless Suits, that have from Time to Time filled our Courts of Judicature; to the great Trouble and Detriment of many Purchasers, and the no small Disgrace of a well-governed State? Since, if any Human Affairs can be transacted free from Errors, Uncertainties, and Deceit, undoubtedly that of Conveyancing may, and ought to be.

Such being the End in View, the Editor was unwilling to neglect the Opportunity, which he flattered himself he had, of facilitating to Gentlemen the Progress to and Attainment thereof: For having by him a very large Collection, made by the late industrious and well-well-known Mr. Wood, during his many Years Practice, of Draughts in all the Branches of Conveyancing, settled by the most able Hands, besides several other curious, uncommon, and choice ones, which some worthy Gentlemen of the Law, the Editor's particular Friends, have favoured him with, there was Nothing more wanting to complete the Practic Part of this Work, but to select out of them such as were proper to be retained, and methodizing and disposing the Whole in their natural Order; which hath accordingly been done: And moreover, as well for avoiding Repetitions, and unnecessarily swelling this Work into too great a Bulk, as also for the greater Ease in turning to, upon any particular Occasion, the Deeds, &c. have been, as it were, dissected; and their several component Parts distributed under proper Heads. As for the Theoretic Part of the Work, it was compiled by the late Mr. Salthouse from all the Books of the best Authority and Repute in the Law; and no Care or Pains were spared by him to make the same clear, easy, and useful; and may be safely relied on; all the Particulars having been extracted in the very Words of the respective Authors, or as near thereto as conveniently could be.

" In this new Edition the greatest Care has been taken to preserve
 " the Favour of the Public, by adding References to all the Modern " Books of Authority; also a great Number of curious Manuscript
 " Precedents by Favour of Persons eminent in their Professions."

The Theory of Conveyancing.

Of Conveyancing in general.

SECT. I.

Conveyancing, what.

CONVEYANCING is the Art of transferring whatsoever is alienable, in due Form of Law. Definition of Conveyancing.
The Word Conveyancing is derived from the Latin Conveho, to convey, to carry or send into another place; and by Analogy stands for the making over or transferring Estates, &c. Derivation and Definition of the Name.

Conveyancing is a Noun Substantive, Appellative; and by use is become a Technical Term for (or the Name of) the Art of Conveying or Transferring Estates, &c. from one to another. He who makes it his Business to draw and peruse the Writings or Instruments by which Estates, &c. are conveyed, is called a Conveyancer. Conveyancer, who.

Conveyancing is an Art, because it is a practical Habit, including (besides the Theory of Conveyancing, an Art. the Law relating thereto, the Knowledge of the Facts, and all other requisite Circumstances) a certain Dexterity in making the Deeds or Instruments of Conveyance according to Law.

It is the Art of transferring whatsoever is alienable; for to transfer is to grant, sell, assign or make over; all which Actions, in a legal Sense, can only be of Things alienable. To transfer, what.

And the Act or Deed whereby whatsoever is alienable is conveyed, must be in due Form of Law, i. e. in such Form as the Law requires, as well with Regard to what is conveyed, as to the Parties, the Kinds of Deeds, their constituent Parts, the Manner of executing them, and their Uses and Effects, &c. Due Form.

SECT. II.

What Estates or Things may be conveyed, &c.

As to Estates of Inheritance.

AN Estate in Fee-simple is transmissible in its very Nature, Hale's Anal. §. 30.
1. To the Successor in Bodies Corporate. In this Case the Nature of the Corporation directs the Rule of Succession.
2. To the Heir in the Case of Persons natural, by Descent. Of which vide Chap. 2. §. 2. postea.
3. Or to any other Person, by Alienation. Vide Chap. 2. §. 3.

An Estate in Fee-tail, as to its incidental Qualities, may be considered either,
1. In Relation to the Hereditary Transmission thereof, pursuant to the Rules of Descents. Vide Chap. 2. §. 2.
2. Or in Relation to the Alienation thereof; for regularly, by the Stat. of Westm. 2. De Donis Conditionalibus, it cannot be alienated, so as to bar the Issue, Reversion, or Remainder; but see of Fines and Recoveries post.

As to Estates less than Inheritance.

Hale's Anal.

E States which are less than Inheritance, (as by Leases for Years, &c.) except Tenancy of Will, are transferrable from one to another, unless particularly restrained by Condition or by Limitation.

Hale's Anal.

Customary Estates, or Tenancy by Virge, or by Copy of Court-Roll, may be transferred,
1. By Hereditary Descent. Vide Chap. 2. §. 2.
2. Or by Surrender.

Personal Estates either in Possession or Action may be transferred or acquired, (1.) By Succession, (2.) Devolution, (3.) Prerogative, (4.) Custom, (5.) Judgment and Execution, or (6.) Sale in a Market overt; of which vide Chap. 3.

S E C T. III.

By whom and to whom Estates may be conveyed.

AN Estate cannot be limited to the Party himself, who gives it on a grant at Common Law; but a Man may covenant to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, &c.

A Man cannot by the Rule of Law give himself an Estate in Possession or Remainder, unless perhaps in some Cases by Conclusion. Co. 127. a. 3 Danv. Abr. 158.

If a Man gives to A. for Life, reserving the Reversion to himself for Life, the Remainder over to another, it is a void Reservation of the Reversion to him. 42 Aff. Dubitatur. 3 Danv. 158.

So an Estate cannot be limited to the Heir of the Donor on a Grant. Ibid.

If a Man gives to one for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Donor, it is a void Remainder, because he cannot make his right Heir a Purchaser, without departing with the Fee out of himself, for the Heir and Ancestor are Correlatives and one Thing in the Eye of the Law. Ibid. & 1 Mod. 98, 237.

So if the Gift be to him in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Donor. Co. Lit. 22. b.

A Man cannot lease to one for Life, reserving a Fee-tail to himself, he having a Fee before. 3 Danv. Abr. 158.

So if Tenant in Fee levies a Fine to one for Life, reserving a Tail to himself, it is no good Tail. Ibid.

If one leases for Life, Remainder to the Heirs Male of his own Body; this is a void Remainder, for the Donor cannot make his own right Heir a Purchaser of an Estate-tail, without departing with the whole Fee-simple out of him.

But if one makes a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself for Life, and then to the Heirs Male of his Body, this is a good Estate-tail executed in himself, being raised out of the Estate of the Feoffees which the Feoffor departed with. Co. Lit. 22. b.

So if one covenants to stand seised to the Use of his Heirs Male on the Body of his second Wife, he takes an Estate for Life by Implication, and so it is an Estate-tail executed in himself. Mitford's Case, 2 Lev. 75. Vent. 372. Raym. 228. Mod. 98, 122, 159. 3 Keb. 229, &c.

But if one makes a Lease and Release to the Use of himself for ninety-nine Years, Remainder to Trustees for twenty-five Years, Remainder to the Heirs Male of his own Body; this Limitation to the Heirs Male of, &c. is void, there being no Estate of Freehold limited to support it, and one cannot be implied contrary to the Intent of the Conveyance, and this Estate takes Effect out of the Seisin of the Trustees, and is not like Mitford's Case, where one covenanted to stand seised to the Use of the Heirs of his own Body; and even in that Case Powell said, if there had been an express Estate (I suppose he intended for Years) limited to the Covenantor, it would have been otherwise. Salk. 679.

If one levies a Fine to the Use of his Wife for Life, the Remainder to the Use of his eldest Son, and the Heir Male of his Body, and for Want of such Issue, to Use of his right Heir; this Limitation to Use of his right Heir is meerly void, and he hath a Reversion and not a Remainder in him. Leon. 182.

See more in the 3d Section of the 2d Chapter concerning the Acquisition of real Estates by Purchase.

S E C T. IV.

The different Ways and Means whereby Properties in Estates may be acquired, or conveyed in general.

By Act of Law.

THERE is a various Acquisition of Things by Act of Law according to their several Natures, whether they are of Inheritance, Freeholds or Chattels. Hale's Anal. §. 33.

First, As to Estates of Inheritance the Titles of Acquests therein by Act of Law seem to be of two Kinds, viz.

1. Such as are applicable to all Estates of Inheritance whether in Tail or in Fee-simple; for if in Tail, the Manner of the Limitation directs the Descent; but an Inheritance in Fee-simple is directed by the Rules of Descent.
2. Or such as are applicable only to the Acquest of Estates in Fee-simple; the Acquisition thereof may be (1.) By Prescription or Custom, (2.) Or by Escheat.

Secondly, As to Estates of Freehold, the Acquest by Act of Law of them is only by Entry.

Thirdly, And as to Chattels Real or Personal by Act of Law they may be acquired, (1.) By Succession, (2.) By Devolution, (3.) By Prerogative, (4.) By Custom, (5.) By Judgment and Execution thereupon, (6.) Or by Sale in a Market overt.

By Means of the Party.

A Property in Real Estates may be acquired or transferred by Means of the Party. Hale's Anal. §. 34.

(1.) By Conveyance, (2.) Or by Forfeiture.

Note; These Acquests are by Right or Title, there are also others by Wrong, which are, (1.) To a Freehold, as Abatement, Disseisin, Intrusion, Usurpation; or (2.) To a Chattel, as Ejectment of Farm, or Ejectment of Gard. But these Acquisitions by Wrong do not gain a Property, though they do the Possession.

And a Property in Personal Estates may be acquired or transferred by Means of the Party, Ib. §. 28. three Ways, viz. (1.) By Grant, (2.) By Contract, (3.) And by Assignment.

By a Mix'd Act.

AND Properties in Personal Estates may be acquired by a Mix'd Act, partly by Act of Law, and partly by Act of the Party. And thus Things in Action, as well as in Possession, are transferable two Ways: (1.) By Act of the Party, with Custom Co-operating; thus a Bill of Exchange is assignable. (2.) Or, By Operation of the Law, concurring with the Act, or Default of the Party; as Forfeitures of several Kinds.

C H A P. II.

Of the different Ways of Acquiring, or Conveying Real Estates in particular, and of claiming Titles thereto.

S E C T. I.

(A) Of Entry in general.

AN Entry is where a Man enters personally, or another by his Order, into any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments to which he has a Title of Entry, and takes Possession of them. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Entry. Lil. Conv. 131.

And

- Property by Entry, what it is. And Property gained by Entry, is where a Man finds a Piece of Land that no other possessees, or has Title unto, and he that so finds it enters; this Entry gaineth a Property. Bac. L. Tracts, p. 126.
- Derivation of this Law. This Law seems to be derived from this Text, Terra dedit filiis hominum, which is to be understood to those that will till and manure it, and so make it yield Fruit. Ibid.
- Antiquity. But this Manner of gaining Lands was in the first Days, and is not now of Use in England; for that by the Conquest, all the Lands of this Nation were in the Conqueror's Hands, and appropriated unto him; except Religious and Church Lands, and the Lands in Kent, which by Composition were left to the former Owners, as the Conqueror found them; so that no Man but the Bishopricks, Churches, and the Men of Kent can at this Day make any greater Title than from the Conquest, to any Lands in England; and Lands possessed without any such Title, are in the Crown, and not in him that first enters, as it is by Land left by the Sea; this Land belongs to the King, and not to him that has the Lands next adjoining, which was the ancient Seabanks. This is to be understood of the Inheritance of Lands, viz. that the Inheritance cannot be gained by the first Entry. Bac. L. Tracts, p. 126.
- Titles before and after the Conquest. But an Estate for another Man's Life by our Laws, may at this Day be gotten by Entry: As a Man called A. having Land conveyed unto him for the Life of B. dieth without making any Estate of it, there, whosoever first enters into the Land after the Decease of A. getteth the Property in the Land for the Time of the Continuance of the Estate which was granted to A. for the Life of B. which B. yet liveth, and therefore the said Land cannot revert till B. dies. And to the Heir of A. it cannot go, for that it is not any Estate of Inheritance, but only an Estate for another Man's Life; which is not descendable to the Heir, except he be specially named in the Grant, viz. To him and his Heirs. As for the Executors of A. they cannot have it, for it is not an Estate Testamentary, that it should go to the Executors as Goods and Chattels should; so as in Truth no Man can entitle himself unto those Lands; and therefore the Law preferreth him that first enters, and he is called Occupans, and shall hold it during the Life of B. but must pay the Rent, perform the Conditions, and do no Waste, and he may by Deed assign it to whom he pleases in his Life-time; but if he dies before he assign it over, then it shall go again to whomsoever first entereth and holdeth; and so all the Life of B. so often as it shall happen. Ibid. 126, 127. But see more concerning Occupancy in the Division (D) post.
- Disseisin. Likewise, if any Man does wrongfully enter into another Man's Possession, and put the right Owner of the Freehold and Inheritance from it; he thereby gets the Freehold and Inheritance by Disseisin, and may hold it against all Men, but him that hath Right, and his Heirs, and is called a Disseisor. Bac. L. Tracts, p. 127.
- Abatement. Or if any one dies seised of Lands, and before his Heir does enter, one that has no Right does enter into the Lands, and holds them from the right Heir, he is called an Abator, and is lawful Owner against all Men but the right Heir. Ibid.
- In what Time an Abator, or Disseisor may be sued. And if such Person, Abator or Disseisor (so as the Disseisor has quiet Possession five Years next after the Disseisin) do continue their Possession, and die seised, and the Land descend to his Heir, they have gained the Right to the Possession of the Land against him that hath Right, till he recover it by fit Action real at the Common Law. And if it be not sued for at the Common Law within sixty Years after the Disseisin, or Abatement committed, the right Owner has lost his Right by that Negligence. Bac. L. Tracts 127.
- Where the Heirs of a Bastard shall Inherit. And if a Man has divers Children, and the elder, being a Bastard, does enter into the Land, and enjoyeth it quietly during his Life, and dies thereof so seised, his Heirs shall hold the Land against all the lawful Children, and their Issues. Ibid.
- Note; The Titles, Entry, Occupancy, Disseisin, Abatement, &c. being very extensive and necessary to be known, they are hereafter more particularly treated of.

(B) Entry congeable.

Entry, in what Cases congeable. IF the Conussee of the Statute sues an Extent, by which the Lands of the Conusor are seised into the Hands of the King, the Conussee after a Liberate is sued (but not before) may enter into the Land before the Liberate executed, for this Liberate is a sufficient Warrant for his Entry. 2 Danv. Abr. 785.

After an Extent upon a Statute. After an Extent upon a Statute-Merchant, Staple or Recognisance returned, the Conussee may enter without any Delivery by the Sheriff, by Force of the Liberate. 2 Inst. 678. But by 1 Vent. 41. in an Execution upon a Statute-Merchant there is no need of a Liberate, as there is upon a Statute-Staple, for in Case of a Statute-Staple the Conussee can bring no Ejectment before the Liberate.

A Liberate made to the Sheriff to deliver the Land to himself is void, and an Entry in that Case is void. 2 Danv. Abr. 785.

If the King seises certain Lands, upon which an Ouster le Mayn is sued to the Escheator to deliver this Land to the Party again, he may after enter into the Land before any Execution of the Writ, because there is a Judgment given before that the Hands of the King shall be removed. Ibid.

Upon an Elegit, if the Sheriff takes an Inquisition, though the Sheriff does not deliver the Land to the Party Plaintiff, yet the Plaintiff may enter presently after the Inquisition taken, before the Return thereof to the Court, without any Liberate to him directed. Ibid. 786.

If a Judgment be reversed in a Writ of Error against the Heir of the Recoveror, the Demandant may enter upon him without more, though he be in by Descent, but he cannot upon the Tertenant without a Scire Facias. 3 Danv. Abr. 298, 299.

If a Man recovers in a real Action, and the Tenant dies before Execution; yet the Demandant may enter upon the Heir, because the Record binds his Title: So though it be of Lands in Tail. Ibid. 299. Otherwise in a false or feint Action. Co. Lit. 361. b.

So if a Man recovers in a real Action, though there be two, three or four Descents before his Entry, yet he may enter upon those to whom descended, because the Recovery binds the Blood, and disproves the Title. 3 Danv. Abr. 299.

And if after a Recovery in a real Action, and before Execution, a Stranger enters and dies seised, yet the Recoveror may enter upon his Heir. Ibid.

If a Man recovers in a Writ of Right of Advowson, and after, at an Avoidance, a Stranger presents, yet when the Church is void again, the Recoveror may present. Ibid.

If there be a Recovery in an Ejectment, the Plaintiff may enter and execute his Judgment, and the Assistance of the Sheriff is only to keep the Peace. Far. 66, 69.

He that recovers may as well enter after the Year as within the Year against him, upon whom the Recovery was had. 3 Danv. Abr. 299.

But he cannot enter upon a Stranger to the Recovery after the Year. Ibid.

He cannot enter after a Descent cast. Ibid. and Fitz. Entry Congeable 35. Sed vide supra.

In all Cases where the Writ demands Lands, Rent, or other Thing in certain, the Demandant after Judgment may enter, or distrain before any Seisin delivered to him by the Sheriff. Co. Lit. 34. b.

But in Dower where the Writ demands nothing in certain, the Demandant, after Judgment cannot enter or distrain till Execution sued, upon which the Sheriff delivers the third Part in certain. Ibid.

So where the Wife of one Tenant in Common demands the third Part of a Moiety, she cannot, after Judgment, enter till the Sheriff has delivered her the third Part, though it is thereby reduced to no more Certainty than it was. Ibid.

If one recovers in an Assise, or Assise of Mordantcestor, he may enter and execute the Judgment without being put in Seisin by the View of the Jury. Moor 54. pl. 156. but it was said in this Case, that if he be again disseised, he shall not have a Redisseisin but a Post-Disseisin. Ibid.

An Entry shall be intended to be a good Execution of a Recovery without a Writ of Seisin. T. Jones 20.

There is a Difference between a Feoffment and an Entry; for a Man may make a Feoffment of Lands in another County, and make Livery within the View, although he might enter peaceably to make Livery. Pollex. 47. But a Man cannot make an Entry into the Lands, within the View, where he may actually enter without Fear; for it is one Thing to Invest, and another to Devest. Co. Lit. 252. a. b.

If the Disseisee enters into the Land, and continues in it with the Disseisor, and manures it with him, claiming nothing of his first Estate, yet this is an Entry that will reduce his first Estate. 2 Danv. Abr. 790.

And if he enters and takes the Profits as Lessee, at Will of the Disseisor, or in any Manner, this is an Entry, and reduces his Estate. Ibid.

And if he commands a Stranger to put the Cattle of such Stranger into the Land to feed there, this is an Entry in Law into the Land. Ibid.

If A. Leases to B. for Years, the Remainder to C. in Fee, and A. comes upon the Land to make Livery, and B. to take it, this shall not be said any Entry of B. to vest the actual Possession in him, till Livery made, for then the Remainder would be void, which would be against the Intention of the Parties. Co. Lit. 49. b.

If an Entry is made to a special Purpose, such Entry shall be guided by the Intent, and tied up to that special Purpose: As if it is agreed between Disseisor and Disseisee, that the Disseisee shall release all his Right to the Disseisor upon the Land, and accordingly the Disseisee enters into the Land, and delivers a Release; there this is a good Release; and the Entry of the Disseisee being for this Purpose, does not avoid the Disseisin. Co. Lit. 49. b. Lil. Conv. 131.

But if the Disfeisor makes a Feoffment to the Disfeisee and others, there, though the Disfeisee comes to take the Livery, yet when the Livery is made, the Disfeisee is remitted. Co. Lit. 49. b.

If the Disfeisee comes upon the Land and puts his Foot in, but takes no Profits, but the Disfeisor ousts him, this Entry does not settle any Estate in him (at the Election of the Disfeisee, as it seems) for the Disfeisee may have an Affise of the first Disfeisin. 2 Dav. Abr. 791.

If I have a House and Land adjoining to a Plot of Land in Question between me and another, and I stand upon one Piece of the Stone Wall, which is my own Soil, and put my Hand through a Wall made of Lime and Laths which stands upon the Land in Question, and there deliver a Lease sealed to try the Title, this is a good Entry, though I do not come within the Plot in Question. Ibid.

If a Bastard Eigne after his Father's Death enters, and invites the Mulier Puifne to see the House, Pictures, &c. or to dine, hunt, hawk or sport with him, or the like, upon the Land descended, and the Mulier comes upon the Land accordingly; this is no Interruption of the Possession of the Bastard, because he came by his Consent, so that the coming upon the Land could be no Trespafs. Co. Lit. 245. b. 368. a.

But if the Mulier of his own Head comes upon the Ground, and cuts down a Tree, or digs the Soil, or takes the Profits, these are Interruptions; for rather than the Bastard shall punish him in an Action of Trespafs, these Acts shall amount to an Entry in Law. Ibid. 245. b.

So if a Mulier puts his Beasts into the Grounds, or commands a Stranger to put in his Beasts, these Acts without Words amount to an Entry, for Acts without Words may make an Entry, but Words without an Act, viz. Entry on the Land, &c. cannot. Ibid. See 3 Leon. 144.

If the Disfeisor requests the Disfeisee to go to the Cellar, and see the Antiquity of, &c. this is no Entry to abate an Affise brought by the Disfeisee. Pl. Com. 93.

So if the Disfeisee seeing several cut Wood upon the Land, goes upon the Land and admonishes them at their Peril to desist; this is no Entry to abate his Writ. Ibid. Bulst. 9. 2 Brownl. 231, 239.

Such Entry as will abate a Writ ought to be unto the Thing demanded, and with an Intent to have the Thing demanded. 2 Bulst. 9. 2 Brownl. 231, 235.

Where the Beasts of him that had a Right strayed of their own accord into the Land, and it was held no Entry, vide Leon. 110.

If the Office of Keeper of a Park is granted to one, who is thereof disfeised, and he brings an Affise, and, pending his Affise, enters into the Park, kills a Stag, and takes a Shoulder of it for his Fee, this is no such Entry as to abate his Writ, for that his Entry was not as an Officer ad custodiend', but as a Wrong-doer to kill, &c. Bulst. 4, 8, 9.

If a Man has Common in I. S.'s Lands, between twenty-fifth March and twenty-ninth September, and he brings an Affise for it, and at Christmas puts in his Beasts, this is no Entry to abate his Writ; for it cannot be intended for the same Common. 2 Brownl. 238.

If a Tenant for Life levies a Fine with Proclamations, and he in the Remainder within five Years after the Death of Tenant for Life directs one to deliver a Declaration in Ejectment to the Tenant in Possession, which is done accordingly, yet this is no Entry to avoid the Fine, though it was the Declaration which contained the Lease upon which the Ejectment was brought.

Where an Entry into Part, shall be an Entry for the whole.

If a Disfeisor leases several Parcels of Land to several Men for Years, and after the Disfeisee enters upon one in the Name of all, this is a good Entry for the Whole, because there is but one Tenant to the Precipe, who is the Disfeisor, who is only Tenant of the Freehold. 2 Dav. Abr. 786.

If he leases the several Parcels for Life, the Entry upon one Lessee in the Name of the Whole is good for no more than that Lessee had in his Possession. Co. Lit. 252. b. And. 28. 4 Leon. 8.

But if his Entry was taken away in that one Parcel, and not as to the others, then he gains no Possession in the others, but in that Parcel only. Kelw. 20. b.

Lessee for Years being in a House, let with a Close, the Lessor enters into the Close, and makes Livery; (Lessee being in the House) it is void as well for the Close as the House; for when a House and Land are demised, the House is the Principal, and the Land is the Accessory, and Possession of the House is a good Possession of the Land; for the Tenant cannot be in Possession of every Part of the Land at the same Time: But Possession of the House and some Part of the Land, is a good Possession of the Residue. 2 Rep. 31. b. Moor pl. 397. 2 Roll. Abr. 4. Co. Lit. 48. b. Dyer 18. b. Bro. Tit. Feoffment 66. But Moor 11. contr.

If

If a Man be disseised of two several Acres (though both lie in the same County) by two several Persons, and after enters into one Acre in the Name of both, this is not an Entry into the other Acre, for the Entry of a Man to continue his Freehold or Inheritance must ensue his Action for Recovery of the same, and each Disseisor is a several Tenant of the Freehold; and as he must have several Actions against them for the Recovery of the Land, so his Entry must be several. Co. Lit. 252. b. Kelw. 20. b. And. 28.

Where the Possession is in no Man, but the Freehold in Law is in the Heir who enters, (where the Ancestor died seised) there a general Entry into one Part reduces all into his actual Possession. Co. Lit. 15. b. Lil. Conv. 131. Sed vide Leon. 265.

But if in this Case the Entry be special, viz. that he enters only into that Part and no more, this reduces that Part only into actual Possession. Co. Lit. 15. b.

Where an Entry shall vest or divest an Estate, there must be several Entries (if the Lands are in the Possession of several Persons) into the several Parcels of the Land in the several Tenants or other Persons Possessions. Co. Lit. 15. b. Lil. Conv. 131.

For if the Lord enters into Parcel generally for a Mortmain, or the Feoffor for a Condition broken, or the Disseisee into Parcel, generally such Entry in these and the like Cases shall not vest or divest but for that Parcel. But where a Man dies seised of divers Parcels in Possession, and the Freehold in Law is cast upon the Heir, and the Possession in no Man, there the Entry into Parcel generally (In the Name of all the Lands and Tenements in which he has a Right to enter, within all the Towns of the same County) will vest the actual Possession of the Whole; but if he enters only into that Parcel and no more, (without saying in the Name of the Whole,) there it reduces that Parcel only into actual Possession. Lit. §. 417. Co. Lit. 15. b. 252. b. Hardr. 400. Lil. Conv. 131, 132.

If a Man disseise me of one Acre at one Time, and after at another Time disseise me of another Acre in the same County, in this Case my Entry into one of them in the Name of both is good, for that one Assise lay against him for both Disseisins. Co. Lit. 252. b.

Otherwise if the several Acres lay in several Counties, for then there must be several Actions, and consequently several Entries. Ibid.

Anciently, if a Man had leased several Parcels of Land in a Town, for the Trial of the Title in an Ejectment, he ought to have entered into every Part, and then to have delivered the Lease of all. Win. 50. Godb. 72. Vide Sid. 223.

If I enfeoff a Man of one Acre upon Condition, and at another Time I enfeoff him of another Acre in the same County, upon Condition also, and both Conditions are broken, an Entry into one Acre in the Name of both is not sufficient, but several Entries must be made in respect of the several Conditions. Co. Lit. 252. b.

But an Entry into Part of the Land in the Name of all the Land, subject to one Condition, is good, though the Parcels be several, and in several Towns. Co. Lit. 252. b.

If A. disseises B. of Lands in three Towns, and levies a Fine with Proclamations of the Lands in one Town to C. in Fee, and the Disseisee within five Years enters into the Lands in the other two Towns only (being in the Possession of the Disseisor) in the Name of all the Lands in the three Towns; by this the Estate of the Conusee in the third Town was not divested. 2 Danv. Abr. 787.

If a Rent descends to an Aunt and Niece as Coparceners, and the Aunt has the Niece in Ward, (viz. as Guardian in Socage) and takes the Rent to her own Use, and never claims to the Use of the Niece, yet this Seisin of the Aunt shall be an actual Seisin for the Niece, for in Law the general Seisin of one is in both, and here is not any express Act that her Entry was to her own Use. 2 Danv. Abr. 792.

Where an Entry by one shall serve for another.

If Lands descend to two Coparceners, and a Stranger abates, and after one enters generally into the Land; this shall be an Entry for both, and settle the Possession in both. But if after such Abatement one Coparcener enters into the Whole to her own Use, this shall not settle any Possession in the other, but all the Estate shall be in herself by the special Entry. 2 Danv. Abr. 792, 794.

Where one Parcener after the Death of their Ancestor enters specially, claiming the whole Land, and taking the whole Profits, she gains the Moiety of her Sister by Abatement. Co. Lit. 243. b. 373. b. Dalt. 62.

But where one Parcener is in Possession, and the other enters, and claims all expressly, this will not dispossess her Fellow, for her Possession is over all lawful as well before such Claim as after, so that there is no Possession altered by such Claim, and one Parcener, Jointenant or Tenant in Common, cannot disseise his Fellow but by an actual Ouster. 2 Danv. Abr. 794.

When one Parcener enters generally, and takes the Profits, this shall be accounted in Law the Entry of both, and no Divesting the Moiety of her Sister. Co. Lit. 243. b. 273. b.

And so, where the Husband of one of the Parceners enters. Dalt. 62. Moor 59. pl. 268.

If

If Lands come to two in Common, and one enters into it generally, this shall be an Entry for both. 2 Danv. Abr. 792. A general Entry by one Tenant in Common, is an Entry for all the rest. Carter 176. For a general Entry shall always be taken according to Right, as being under Construction of Law, and therefore ever construed lawful. Moor 868. pl. 1201.

If a Man devised Lands held in Capite by Knights Service to his younger Son, the Devise was void for a third Part, and the Devisee entered generally into the Whole, the Entry was in Law for the eldest also. So if the Devisee after his Entry makes a Lease for Years of the Whole, yet this shall not be any such Explanation of his Entry, but that his Entry shall be said an Entry for both; and so if the Devisee levies a Fine of the Whole. 2 Danv. Abr. 793.

But it is otherwise if a Parcener after such general Entry makes a Feoffment of the Whole with Warranty, for this subsequent Act explains the Entry precedent into the Whole, and by Construction of Law she only was seised of the Whole. Co. Lit. 374. a.

If a Man devises certain Annuities to his four Sons out of certain Lands, and devises further, that if his Heir does not pay the said Annuities, then his said Sons shall have the Land to them and the Survivor of them, and after the said Annuities are not paid, upon which one of the Sons enters generally; this shall be an Entry for all the four Sons, inasmuch as they are Jointenants. 2 Danv. Abr. 793.

In what Cases the Entry of one, to the Use of another, settles the Possession in him without Agreement.

If a Baron enters to the Use of his Feme, where the Entry of the Feme is lawful, this settles the Possession in the Feme presently without any Agreement. 2 Danv. Abr. 787.

And if a Feme enters in the Baron's Name, and he agrees to it afterwards, the Entry is good. Cro. Eliz. 72.

And if a Man enters to the Use of an Infant into Lands where his Entry is lawful, this settles the Possession in him before Agreement by the Infant. 2 Danv. Abr. 787.

So if the Entry be to the Use of one of full Age, where his Entry is lawful, this vests the Possession in him before Agreement. 2 Danv. Abr. 787.

If a Man enters to the Use of one of the Plaintiffs, where his Entry is not lawful, this vests nothing in him before Agreement, because he shall be a Disseisor by the Abatement. 2 Danv. Abr. 788.

So if a Man enters to the Use of an Infant, where his Entry is not lawful, this vests no Possession in the Infant. Ibid.

If a Man disseises me, and I make continual Claim, and after he dies, and this descends to two Coparceners, upon which I enter, by which the Coparcenary is defeated, if after one enters claiming to the Use of herself and Coparcener, yet nothing vests in the other before Agreement, for their Entry is not lawful. 2 Danv. Abr. 788.

So if a Man enters upon two Jointenants, where his Entry is lawful, by which the Jointenancy is defeated, if after one enters to the Use of both, yet nothing vests in the other before Agreement. Ibid.

If two Coparceners have a Right of Action to certain Land, but their Entry is not lawful, and the one enters claiming to the Use of both, yet nothing vests in the other till Agreement. 2 Danv. Abr. 788.

If two Jointenants are disseised, and the Disseisor aliens, and one Jointenant enters upon the Alienee to the Use of both, this settles the Freehold in both. Ibid.

If a Man commands J. S. to enter into certain Lands in his Name, if he hath Right, otherwise not, if he enters accordingly; yet if the Commander hath no Right, no Estate vests in him by this Entry, because his Command was conditional. Ibid.

A Stranger cannot enter upon the Bastard in the Name of the Mulier without his Command, for that the Bastard may gain the Estate, and bar the Mulier. Co. Lit. 245. a.

A Stranger of his own Head cannot enter in the Name of him that hath Right to avoid a Fine. Co. Lit. 245. a. This was grounded upon the Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24. for by that Statute a Fine shall bind, unless avoided by Entry, Claim or Action of him who has Right thereto within the five Years. For though he has a Right of Entry, which naturally by the Common Law might have been reduced into Possession by the Entry of a Stranger in his Name; yet it is not so in case of a Claim to avoid a Fine, because by the Body of the Statute of Fines the Right is bound, unless the Party lays claim within five Years; so that an Election is given to the Party who has Right, whether he will be bound or not, which Election a Stranger, without his Direction, cannot make for him. Moor 457. pl. 630. The Agreement of the Disseisee to the Entry would not perfect it, so as to avoid the Fine. Sed Q. if the Agreement had been within the five Years, for it did not there appear at what Time the Disseisee agreed. Poph. 108.

But in these Cases, if the Mulier agrees to the Entry before the Descent, and he that has Right enters before the five Years are past, the Estate both of the Bastard and of the Conusee shall be avoided by such Entry. Co. Lit. 245. a.

But

But now by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. §. 16. it is enacted, That no Claim, or Entry to be made upon Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, shall be of any Force or Effect to avoid any Fine levied with Proclamations * according to the Form of the Statute in that Case provided in the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, or the Court of Sessions in any of the Counties Palatine, or in the Courts of the Grand Sessions in Wales, of any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or shall be a sufficient Entry or Claim, within the Statute 21 Jac. 1. of Limitations, &c. unless upon such Entry or Claim, an Action shall be commenced within one Year next after making such Entry or Claim, and prosecuted with Effect. * This does not extend to other Fines.

There must be an actual Entry to avoid a Fine, and the Demise cannot be laid on a Day before the Entry. 2 Stra. 1086. Andr. 125. Hardw. 98, 99. 2 Barnard. K. B. 217.

If an Infant makes a Feoffment in Fee, a Stranger of his own Head cannot enter to the Use of the Infant, for the Estate is voidable. Co. Lit. 245. a.

So if a Tenant for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee, a Stranger may enter for a Forfeiture in the Name of him in Reversion, and thereby the Estate shall be vested in him. Ibid.

If a Copyholder in Borough-English surrenders to the Use of his Will, and having three Sons, devises to the middle Son in Fee, upon Condition that he shall pay to his Daughters 20*l.* if the Money is not paid, a Stranger, without the Command of the eldest, cannot enter for him, because he has only a Title of Entry. Cro. Jac. 56, 57. adjudged, where the youngest Son, without the Command of the Daughters and Heirs of the eldest (who was dead), entered, and the Daughters afterwards disaffected.

If a Man disseises another to the Use of Baron and Feme, and they agree to this, the Estate is in both; but if to the Use of a Feme Covert, the Agreement of the Feme without the Husband will not settle the Estate in the Feme, because the Agreement is void, for her Will is transferred to the Baron: But in this Case the Agreement of the Baron will settle the Estate in the Feme, though she is no Disseisress thereby, for the whole Will of the Feme is put in the Baron during the Coverture, and he may agree to the Feoffment made to the Wife. 2 Danv. Abr. 789. What is a good Agreement to settle an Estate, where the Entry is to the Use of another.

If the Baron disseises another to the Use of the Feme, this shall settle the Estate in the Feme; for the Baron upon a Disseisin by another by his Agreement might have settled the Estate in the Feme, and this Disseisin to the Use of the Feme is an Agreement in Law. Ibid.

If a Baron and Feme enter into Land in the Right of the Feme where the Feme has no Right, the Feme is Tenant of the Land thereby. 2 Danv. Abr. 789.

If a Baron seised in the Right of the Feme aliens in Fee; and after disseises the Discontinuee, claiming his first Estate, without saying any Thing of the Feme, this shall vest nothing of the Tenancy in the Feme, because he does not claim by express Words in the Name of the Feme. Ibid.

If a Man enfeoffs Baron and Feme of a Manor, and after the Baron and Feme, by colour of this Feoffment, enter into Lands which are not Parcel of the Manor, but they thought they were, yet the Feme shall gain nothing in the Land by this, but the whole Estate is in the Baron. 22 Aff. 1. 2 Danv. Abr. 790.

If the Guardian enters, and disseises a Man claiming the Freehold to the Use of the Heir, this settles the Freehold in the Heir. 2 Danv. Abr. 790.

If a Man leases Lands for Years to I. S. and delivers the Deed to I. D. to the Use of I. S. and after I. D. enters into the Land to the Use of I. S. without Commandment of I. S. and is ejected, and after I. S. assents thereto, he shall have an Ejectione Firmæ upon the said Ejectment. Ibid.

If a Man is disseised of Lands whereunto a Common is appendant, the Disseisee cannot use the Common till he enters into the Land to which it is appendant, because it might be a Prejudice to the Tenant of the Soil; for if the Disseisee might do it, so might the Disseisor, which would be a double Charge to the Tenant. Co. Lit. 122. b. Of what Things Advantage may be taken without an Entry.

But if a Man is disseised of a Manor to which there is an Advowson appendant, he may present to the Advowson before he enters into the Manor. Ibid.

If a Man seised in Fee of Land bargains and sells it by Deed inrolled, and dies, the Freehold is in the Bargainee before Entry or Claim, viz. a Freehold in Law. 3 Danv. Abr. 163. In what Cases an Estate shall be in a Person without Entry or Claim.

So in case of a Devise. Ibid.

So where Uses are raised by Covenant upon a good Consideration. Co. Lit. 266. b.

And so upon a Bargain and Sale of Lands for Years, the Possession is in the Bargainee before Entry. Danv. Abr. 621.

If the Disseisor dies seised, and the Lands descend to his Son, he has the Freehold in Law in him before any Entry. Lit. §. 448.

If a Fine Sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. or a Fine Sur Conusance de droit tantum, is levied to one, these are Feoffments of Record, and the Conusee has a Freehold in Law (but not the actual Freehold. Cro. Jac. 604.) in him before Entry. Co. Lit. 266. b.

D

Upon

Upon an Exchange, the Parties have neither Freehold in Deed or Law before Entry. Ibid.

So upon a Partition, the Freehold is not removed till Entry. Co. Lit. 266.

If an Estate be conveyed to a Feme Covert, it vests in her presently before any Agreement thereto by the Husband, subject to be divested by his Dissent thereto. Co. Lit. 3. a. 356. b.

If A. disseises one to the Use of B. who knows nothing of it, and B. assents thereto, in this Case A. is Tenant of the Land till Agreement, and after B. is Tenant thereof. Co. Lit. 180. b.

If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Tail, &c. and Tenant in Tail in Possession leases for three Lives, according to the Stat. 32 H. 8. and afterwards dies without Issue, and he in Remainder before any Entry, levies a Fine, it is good; for by the Death of Tenant in Tail without Issue, the Freehold was vested in him in Remainder in Tail. Leon. 268.

If Lessee for Years surrenders, to which the Lessor agrees, the Possession and Interest is in the Lessor without Entry. Hut. 95.

So if the Lessee for Years assigns, the Assignee before Entry, or Waiver of the Possession by Lessee, has an actual Estate in him. 2 Roll. Abr. 495.

If Tenant for Life surrenders to him in Remainder, this will vest the Estate in him before Notice or Agreement thereto, as the Grant of Goods made in the Absence of the Grantee vests the Property, and a Bond made to Obligee in his Absence creates a Lien before Notice. Salk. 618.

By whom and on whom an Entry may be for a Forfeiture. If Lessee for Life aliens for Life, the Remainder over, and Remainder enters after the Death of the Lessee, the first Lessor may enter on him for the Forfeiture; for by Agreement to the Remainder he agreed to the Whole, and so a Party. 3 Danv. Abr. 227.

If the Lessor may enter on the Alienee of his Lessee, or any who is Party to the Forfeiture. Ibid.

So he may enter on the Alienee of the Alienee, or any that has the Land, although he be not Party to the Forfeiture. 3 Danv. Abr. 228.

If Lessee for Life gives in Tail, the Remainder in Fee to another, and afterwards he in Remainder dies, and afterwards the Donee dies without Issue, the Lessor may enter on the Heir of him in Remainder; for by his Entry he agrees to the Disinheritance made by the Alienation. Ibid.

If Tenant for Life gives it in Tail, and the Donee dies, the Lessor may enter on the Donor for the Forfeiture. Ibid.

Where a Tenant for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee, a Stranger may enter for a Forfeiture in the Name of the Reversioner, and thereby the Estate shall be in him. Co. Lit. 245. a.

At what Time an Entry may be for a Forfeiture. If a Lessee for Life aliens in Fee and dies, he in Remainder or Reversion may enter after the Death of the Lessee. 3 Danv. Abr. 228.

If Tenant for Life of an Advowson in Gros levies a Fine come ceo, &c. of it, and before any Claim made by him in Reversion, the Church becomes void; afterwards he in Reversion shall not have Advantage of the Forfeiture as to the present Presentation, because before Election made by him in Reversion, the Estate of the Lessee was not defeated nor destroyed, which Election ought to be by Claim; and then it was a Chattel vested in the Lessee before the Election made by him in Reversion, which cannot be defeated afterwards by the Presentation of him in Reversion. Ibid.

If A. being Tenant for Life, leases to B. for his Life, and B. dies, and A. re-enters; yet the Forfeiture remains, and the first Lessor may enter. Co. Lit. 252. a.

If Tenant for Life suffers a common Recovery, and Execution is thereupon had, yet he in Remainder may enter; for being a Forfeiture, the suing Execution will not prevent him. Hil. 32 Eliz. Co. 14, 15. adjudged; though it appeared the Recovery was suffered before the Statute of 14 Eliz.

Entry for the Breach of a Condition. 1. In what Cases it may be. If a Man leases two Mills, upon Condition that if the Lessee leases them, or assigns either of them to another, it shall be lawful for him to re-enter: If he leases one, the Lessor may enter into both, for the Condition goes to both. 2 Danv. Abr. 121.

If A. leases a Messuage for Years, rendering Rent, with a Condition of Re-entry for Non-payment; and the Lessee assigns his Term in Part to one, and in other Part to another, and in another Part to another, and retains Part himself, and after A. by Fine grants the Reversion of the Whole: If Rent be in Arrear, afterwards the Grantee may enter into all the Messuage; for the Lessee, by Apportionment of the Land, cannot destroy the Condition, as the Lessor may by Grant of Part of the Reversion. Palm. 382.

If there be two Lessees for Years, upon Condition that they, nor either of them, shall not alien without Assent of the Lessor, and they make Partition; and afterwards one aliens without Assent of the Lessor; this is a Forfeiture of the Whole. Cro. El. 163.

If a Feoffment be made upon Condition to enfeoff a Stranger, and the Feoffee does not perform it, the Stranger cannot enter for the Breach of it, because he is a Stranger to the Condition; but in this Case the Feoffor himself may enter for the Condition broke. 2 Danv. Abr. 122.

If the Condition of a Feoffment be to enfeoff J. If the King's Tenant aliens upon Condition, and dies, his Heir in Ward to the King for other Land, the King may enter in the Right of the Heir for the Condition broke. Ibid.

And if such Tenant aliens in Fee upon Condition, and dies, his Heir within Age, the King may enter in the Right of the Heir for the Condition broke. Ibid.

If a Man leases for Years, upon Condition if the Rent be in Arrear, that the Lease shall cease, and after grants over the Reversion; and after the Condition is broke, the Grantee of the Reversion may enter into the Land, for the Lease is determined before Entry, by the Breach of the Condition. Ibid.

If a Man seised of Lands in Right of his Wife makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and dies; and after the Condition is broke, the Heir of the Husband shall enter; for though no Right descended to him, yet the Title of Entry by Force of the Condition, which was created upon the Feoffment, and reserved to the Feoffor and his Heirs, descended. 8 Co. 43. b. 44. a.

A Rent-Charge is not a personal Duty to be demanded of the Person, but upon the Land, and a Distress is both a Demand and a Distress; and the Party may demand it at any Time. Lil. Conv. 137. Where a Demand must be made before Re-entry.

Where a Rent is granted, payable at a certain Day, if it be behind and unpaid, the Grantee shall distrain for it: The Grantee need not demand it at the Day, but at any Time after it is due, which will be sufficient; for the Grantee may demand it when he will, to enable him to distrain. *Co. If the Words of a Lease for Years be, That the Lease should be void, yet the Non-payment is no Avoidance without a Demand and a Re-entry. Lit. Conv. 137.

In case of a Demand of Rent, these Things are to be observed:
First, That though the Rent is behind, yet if the Feoffor or his Heirs do not demand it, he shall never re-enter; for the Land is the principal Debtor, and the Rent issues out of the Land; and in an Assise for the Rent the Land shall be put in View, and if the Land be evicted by a Title Paramount, the Rent is avoided, and after such Eviction the Person of the Feoffee shall not be charged therewith, for the Person of the Feoffee was only charged with the Rent in respect of the Grant out of the Land. Co. Lit. 201. b. And in case of an Entry for a Condition broken on the Non-payment of Rent, you ought to demand but the last Quarter's Rent, and not all the Rent due; for a Default of any one Quarter's Rent (upon Demand) gives a Title of Entry. Lit. Conv. 137.

Secondly, That the Demand must be upon the Land, because the Land is the Debtor, and that is the Place of Demand appointed by Law. If the King makes a Lease for Years, rendering a Rent payable at his Receipt at Westminster, and after the King grants the Reversion to another and his Heirs, the Grantee shall demand the Rent upon the Land, and not at the King's Receipt at Westminster; for as the Law without express Words does appoint the Lessee in the King's Case to pay it at the King's Receipt; so in case of a Subject, the Law appoints the Demand to be on the Land. If there is a House upon the same, the Demand must be at the Fore-door of the House, that being the most notorious Place, and it is no Matter whether any Body be there or no; and although the Door be open, and the Feoffee in his Hall, or other Part of his House, yet the Feoffor need not come any further than the Fore-door. Co. Lit. 201. b. And if the Feoffment was made of a Wood only, the Demand must be made at the Gate of the Wood, or at some Highway leading through the Wood, or other most notorious Place. And if one Place be as notorious as another, the Feoffor has Election to demand it at which he will; and although the Feoffee be in some other Part of the Wood ready to pay the Rent, yet that shall not avail him. Et sic de similibus. Co. Lit. 202. a.

Thirdly, That if the Feoffor demand it on the Ground at a Place which is not most notorious, at the Back-door of a House, &c. and in Pleading the Feoffor alleges a Demand of the Rent generally at the House, the Feoffee may traverse the Demand, and upon the Evidence it shall be found for him, for that is a void Demand. Co. Lit. 202. a.

Fourthly, That if the Rent be reserved to be paid at any Place from the Land, yet it is in Law a Rent, and the Feoffor must demand it at the Place appointed by the Parties, observing that which has been said before concerning the most notorious Place. Co. Lit. 202. a.

Fifthly, That all this is to be understood when the Feoffee is absent; for if the Feoffee comes to the Feoffor at any Place upon any Part of the Ground at the Day of Payment, and offer his Rent, although they be not at the most notorious Place, nor at the last Instant, the Feoffor is bound to receive it, or else he shall not take any Advantage of any Demand of the Rent for that Day. Co. Lit. 202. a.

Sixthly, And that the Place of Demand being now known, it is further to be known what Time the Law has appointed for the same. This partly appears by what has been said; for although the last Time of Demand of the Rent is such a convenient Time before the Sun-setting of the last Day of Payment as the Money may be numbered and received, notwithstanding if the Tender be made to him that is to receive it upon any Part of the Land at any Time of the last Day of Payment, and he refuseth, the Condition is saved for that Time; for by the express Reservation the Money is to be paid on the Day indefinitely, and a convenient Time before the last Instant, is the uttermost Time appointed by Law, to the Intent that then both Parties should meet together, the one to demand and receive, and the other to pay it, so as the one should not prevent the other. But if the Parties meet upon any Part of the Land whatsoever on the same Day, the Tender shall save the Condition for ever for that Time. And if the Reservation of the Rent be at certain Feasts, with Condition, that if it happen the Rent to be behind by the Space of a Week after any Day of Payment, &c. In this Case the Feoffor needs not demand it on the Feast-Day, but the uttermost Time for the Demand is a convenient Time before the last Day of the Week, unless before that the Feoffee meets the Feoffor upon the Land, and tenders the Rent as aforesaid. And if a Rent be granted payable at a certain Day, if it be behind and demanded, that the Grantee shall distrain for it; in this Case the Grantee needs not demand it at the Day;

Day; but if he demand it at any Time after, he shall distrain for it; for the Grantee has Election in this Case to demand it when he will to enable him to distrain. Co. Lit. 202. a.

Regularly it is true that he who enters for a Condition broken shall be seised in his first Estate, or of that Estate which he had at the Time of the Estate made upon Condition; but this fails in many Cases. Co. Lit. 202. a. 2 Danv. Abr. 123.

First, In respect of Impossibility; As if a Man seised of Lands in the Right of his Wife, makes a Feoffment in Fee by Deed indented, upon Condition that the Feoffee should demise the Land to the Feoffor for his Life, &c. the Husband dies, the Condition is broken; in this Case the Heir of the Husband shall enter for the Condition broken, but it is impossible for him to have the Estate that the Feoffor had at the Time of making the Condition: For therein he had but an Estate in Right of his Wife, which by the Coverture was dissolved, and therefore when the Heir has entered for the Condition broken, and defeated the Feoffment, his Estate vanishes, and presently the Estate is vested in the Wife. Co. Lit. 202. a.

How he who enters for a Condition broken shall be said to be in, (1). Of the same Estate.

So if a Man seised of Lands as Heir on the Part of his Mother, makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and dies, the Heir on the Part of the Father, who is Heir at Common Law, shall enter for the Condition broken, but the Heir of the Part of the Mother shall enter upon him, and shall enjoy the Land. Co. Lit. 12. b.

Secondly, In respect of Necessity; As if Cestuy que Use after the Statute of R. 3. and before the Statute of 27 H. 8. had made a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and after had entered for a Condition broken, in this Case he had but an Use where the Feoffment was made, but now he shall be seised of the whole Estate of the Land. So that as in the former Case, the Ancestor had somewhat at the making of the Condition, and the Heir shall have nothing when he has entered for the Condition broken; so in this Case the Feoffor had no Estate or Interest in the Land at the Time of the Condition made, but a bare Use; yet after this Entry for the Condition broken he shall be seised of the whole Estate in the Land, and that also for Necessity; for by the Feoffment in Fee of Cestuy que Use, the whole Estate and Right was vested out of the Feoffees, and therefore of Necessity the Feoffor must gain the whole Estate by his Entry for the Condition broken. Co. Lit. 202. a.

Feoffment of two Acres upon Condition to enter into one; if he enters for Breach thereof, it shall be but into one. 2 Danv. Abr. 123.

Lessee for Life and the Reversioner join in a Feoffment upon Condition, reserved to the Lessee: If he enters for Breach thereof, this shall not defeat the intire Estate. 2 Danv. Abr. 123.

Devise for Life upon Condition, Remainder over (admitting it a good Condition;) the Entry shall defeat the Remainder, though it is not created by Livery, and the Remainder may be without a particular Estate by Devise, for he ought to be in of the same Estate which he had at the Time of the Devise. 2 Danv. Abr. 123.

If a Man leases for Life, the Remainder to another in Fee, reserving a Rent, upon Condition that if the Rent be in Arrear, to enter and retain for all the Life of the Lessee: If he enters for the Condition broke, he shall defeat the Remainder, and shall be seised in Fee. Dubitatur 29 Aff. 17. 2 Danv. Abr. 124.

Tenant in special Tail has Issue, his Wife dies, and he makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition; the Issue dies, the Condition is broke, the Feoffor re-enters; he shall be only Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, though when he made the Feoffment he had an Estate-Tail. Co. Lit. 202. a. b.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, reserving Rent, upon Condition if the Rent be not paid, to re-enter, and hold till satisfied, &c. The Feoffor by his Re-entry gains no Estate of Freehold, but only an Interest by the Agreement of the Parties to take the Profits in Nature of a Distress. Co. Lit. 202. b. 203. a.

E

And

And if a Man makes a Gift in Tail to A. Remainder to A. and his Heirs, upon Condition that he shall not alien: The Condition is good, as to restrain any Discontinuance of the Estate-Tail; but as to the Fee-simple, it is void and repugnant; and therefore some are of Opinion, that this is a good Condition, and that it shall defeat the Alienation for the Estate-Tail only, and leave a Fee-simple in the Alienee. Co. Lit. 224. a.

By special Words the Condition may extend to the particular Estate, or to the Remainder only. Co. Lit. 230. b.

If the Father surrenders Copyhold Lands to the Use of the Son in Fee, upon Condition that he shall perform certain Covenants, and the Son after Admittance surrenders to the Use of A. in Fee, upon Condition that if the Son pays 10*l.* the Surrender shall be void; and the Son pays not the 10*l.* nor performs the Covenants, and the Father enters, and dies seised, and it descends to the Son; yet A. cannot enter upon him, for by the Entry of the Father, both the Surrenders were defeated, and the Son may confess and avoid the Estate of A. Cro. Eliz. 239.

(2) In respect of Collateral Qualities.

A Man being intitled to be Tenant by the Curtesy, makes a Feoffment in Fee on Condition, and enters for the Condition broke, and then his Wife dies, he shall not be Tenant by the Curtesy; for though the Estate given by the Feoffment was conditional, yet his Title to be Tenant by the Curtesy was absolutely extinct by the Feoffment. Co. Lit. 30.

Tenant by Homage Ancestrel makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and enters for the Condition broke, it shall not be holden by Homage Ancestrel again, for the Right of the Prescription and Privy of Estate were interrupted for the Time. (Co. Lit. 202. b.) So if a Copyhold escheats, and the Lord makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, &c. (Ibid. 103. a. 202. b.) For notwithstanding the Entry for the Condition broke the Seignior is extinct, for that was exclusively extinct by the Feoffment. Co. Lit. 30. b.

If a Tenant for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and enters for the Condition broke, he shall be Tenant for Life again, but subject to the Forfeiture; for though the Estate is reduced, yet the Forfeiture is not purged. Co. Lit. 202. b. 252. a.

If the Conusee of a Statute, &c. or he that has Lands till such a Sum levied, surrenders to the Reversioner upon Condition, and after enters for the Condition broke; he shall not hold over after the Extent incurred, or such Time as the Money might have been levied. 4 Co. 82. b.

If a Lessee for Life or Years, upon Condition to have a Fee, if, &c. grants his Estate upon Condition, and after enters for the Condition broke, and performs the first Condition; perhaps the Fee will accrue, for the Possibility was not absolutely destroyed; and when he enters for the Condition broken, he is in of his old Estate. 8 Rep. 75. b.

What Things shall be avoided by Entry for the Condition broke.

If the Baron be infeoffed in Fee, upon Condition for the Non-payment of a certain Rent to re-enter, and after the Baron dies; and after the Condition is broke, and the Feoffor enters upon the Heir for the Breach thereof, the Wife of the Baron shall not be endowed, for her Title is defeated by the Entry for the Condition broke. 2 Danv. Abr. 123.

Where Trustees for Years never entered, but suffered Cestuy que Trust to take the Profits, how the Trustees may assign over this Term.

Where an Estate for Years, raised out of the Lands of Inheritance, is in Trustees, who were never in Possession, but suffered the Cestuy que Trust to receive the Profits during his Life, and the Administrator of Cestuy que Trust (who had no Right to enter) enters and keeps Possession; and the Heirs at Law have prevailed with the surviving Trustee to assign over to a Person in Trust for them, the Term of Years upon Trust, that the Assignee shall perform such Trusts as the same Term is subject to: Now a Bargain and Sale of the Term to the Assignee of the Term (a), will not pass the Estate, unless the same is sealed upon the Land, and to that Purpose, if the Grantor cannot be upon the Land, to deliver the Deed himself, then he must sign and seal (but not deliver) the Deed of Assignment (b), and then make a Letter of Attorney of the same Date, to some Person to enter upon the Land, and take Possession for him, and then being in Possession the Attorney to deliver the Deed upon the Ground, as the Act and Deed of the Grantor.

How to enter into, and take Possession of Lands, and execute a Deed thereupon.

The Manner of the Entry, and taking of Possession, and executing of the Deed, must be as followeth; If there are several Houses, and several Lands in the Possession of several Tenants or Persons, you must make your Entry at every House, and say these Words, I do here enter and take Possession of this House, and the Land therewith used, to the Use of A. B. If

(b) See the Manner of indorsing the Deed in Part II. Tit. Indorsements. But where a Deed was delivered off from the Land, as an Escrow to a Stranger, commanding him to enter upon the Land, and there deliver it as his Deed; it was moved that this was void; for that when it is delivered as an Escrow, and afterwards delivered upon the Land as the Deed of the Disfeisee, that has Relation to the Time of delivering it as an Escrow, at which Time he had but a Right to the Lands, not having entered; but per Anderson C. J. It is a good Lease, for it is not his Deed till the second Delivery. Cro. Eliz. 446, 447.

If there is Land let without the House, then you must enter in at the Gate of the Close, and make your Entry in the Manner aforesaid; and to this Entry you must have two, three or more Witnesses, and leave a Man upon the Ground, to keep the Possession for you, till you are gone; and when you have done the same, and left a Man upon the Ground to keep Possession for you, at every one of the Houses, or Parcels of Land (if in the Possession of the several Persons) but the last House or Parcel of Land that you go to; and when at the last House, or Parcel of Land, when you have made your Entry, you must (viz. the Attorney) say, That by Virtue of the Letter of Attorney (see the Form in the second Part) made to me for that Purpose, I deliver this Writing (you then standing upon the Ground) as the Act and Deed of the Grantor; and then you must make a Memorandum on the Back of the Deed, that (such a Day) by Virtue of a Warrant of Attorney to you made and directed, bearing Date, &c. you did enter into, &c. (put in the Words of the Authority given in the Letter of Attorney) and let the Witnesses set their Names thereto, as Witnesses; when this is done, go to every one of the Places, where you left the several Persons to keep the Possession, and take them away with you; you must take care they do not stir off from the Ground till you fetch them off. Lil. Conv. 136. See Winch. 50. in the Middle of the Folio at the Word, Nota.

(C) Forcible Entry and Detainer.

A Forcible Entry is, when one or more Persons furnished with unusual Weapons, do violently enter the House or Land of another, or do use violent and threatening Words to the Terror of another, and by that Means gain the Possession; or if one or more do enter peaceably, and then forcibly put another out of his Possession, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 3. c. 3.

A Forcible Detainer is, where one or more have entered peaceably, and detain the Possession with Force, with Arms, or with an unusual Number of People, or with Threatnings to defend it, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 3. c. 3.

This was no Crime at Common Law where one had a Title, and Entry was lawful. But now this is made an Offence by Statutes: For,

By Stat. 5 Rich. 2. c. 7. None shall enter into Lands or Tenements, but where Entry is given by Law, and in a peaceable Manner, upon Pain of Imprisonment and Ransom at the King's Will.

Here was no Remedy but upon a general Inquiry in the Quarter-Sessions, or by Indictment or Action. Therefore,

By Stat. 15 Rich. 2. c. 2. When a Forcible Entry is made into Lands, Benefices or Offices of the Church, one or more Justices of the Peace, taking sufficient Power; and going to the Place so kept by Force, and finding any that hold such Places forcibly, may commit the Offender to the next Gaol, there to remain convicted by the Record of the Justice, &c. till he hath made Fine and Ransom to the King. And all People of the County shall be assisting to the Justice, to arrest such Offender, upon Pain of Fine and Imprisonment.

The same Justice may assess the Fine for this Offence.

But neither of these Statutes extended to those that entered peaceably and detained with Force, nor gave any Remedy, if the Parties, who made the Entry with Force, removed before the coming of the Justices; nor did they give the Justices any Power to restore the Party ejected; nor ordained any Penalty against the Sheriff, if he did not obey the Precepts of the Justices, in the Execution of the said Statutes. Wherefore,

By Stat. 8 H. 6. c. 9. Upon Complaint made to the Justices, or one of them, of a Forcible Entry or Detainer, by the Party grieved, they or one of them shall cause the Statute of the 15 Rich. 2. c. 6. to be duly executed at the Costs of the Party grieved.

And when Complaint is made of any such Entry or Detainer to any Justice or Justices, He or They, by Warrant or Precept, shall command the Sheriff to summons a sufficient Jury to enquire of the Force committed; and upon Force found, the Justice or Justices shall cause the Lands, &c. to be re-seised, and shall put the Party disseised in Possession, in the Absence as well as Presence of the Party offending.

The Justices are to restore the Possession, and not to inquire into the Title of either of the Parties.

Provided that this Statute shall not endamage any, where they or their Ancestors have continued their Possessions of the same for three Years.

But if the Disseisee within the three Years makes lawful Claim, this is an Interruption of his Possession.

On an Indictment of Forcible Entry, Execution may be hindered by traversing the Force, or by pleading Possession of three Years. Ld. Raym. 440.

The Plaintiff who has recovered Judgment may enter, pending a Writ of Error, but not by Force. Ld. Raym. 808.

By

By Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 11. There shall be no Restitution upon an Indictment of Forcible Entry or Forcible Detainer, where the Defendant hath been in quiet Possession for three whole Years together next before the Day of such Indictment so found, and his Estate therein not ended; which the Party indicted may alledge for Stay of Restitution; and Restitution is to stay, till that be tried, if the other will traverse the same, &c.

By Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 15. Upon Forcible Entry or Detainer, a Justice, &c. hath Power, upon Indictment found, to give Restitution of Possession to Tenants for Years, by Elegit, Statute Merchant or Staple, Tenant by Copy of Court-Roll, as well as to those that claim Freehold or Inheritance.

So that now a compleat Remedy is given against those who enter with Force, and continue the Possession peaceably; against those who enter peaceably, and detain or hold out with Force, and against those who both enter by Force, and detain by Force.

Dower.
Lease.

Occupancy is a Title by the first Entry, where a Tenant for the Term of another's Life dies whilst he for whose Life the Lease is made is living.

And he who so enters is called an Occupant, because his Title is by his first Occupation.

And after such Entry he is then Tenant pur auter vie, and shall be punished for Waste as such, and be subject to the Payment of the Rent reserved, and he shall hold the Land during the Life of Cestuy que vie. Co. Lit. 41. b.

The Law of Occupancy is founded upon the Law of Nature, viz. Quod Terra manens vacua Occupanti conceditur. So as upon the first coming of Inhabitants into a new Country, he that first enters upon such Part of it, and manures it, gains the Property (as is now used in Cornwall, &c. by the Laws of the Stannaries) so that it is the actual Possession and Manurance of the Land, which was the first Cause of Occupancy, and consequently is only to be gained by actual Entry. Pasch. 18 Car. 2. B. R. Geary v. Bearcroft, Sid. 347.

And the true Ground of Occupancy is, that anciently all Trials of Titles were by real Actions, and therefore he who had the Freehold was one to whom the Law had a special Regard. The ancient Law for many Respects did not allow Leases for above forty Years, till 21 H. 8. c. 15. And another Thing was, there was Reason too that not only he who had right Paramount might know how to try his Action, but that the Lord might know how to avow for his Services (which were considerable Things formerly) he ought to know who was his Tenant, and therefore the Law provided that there should be a Person on whom he should avow. Per Bridgman C. J. in the last mentioned Case. Cart. 65.

Occupancy is only for Necessity, and to avoid a greater Mischief (per Brown J. Cart. 60.) It is to supply a Freehold, (per Holt C. J. Salk. 189.) for should the Freehold continue in Abeyance, no Action could be brought during all that Time, be it ever so long, nor Trial had by him who had Right to recover the Freehold and Inheritance. Per Tirrel J. Cart. 61. Copyhold Estate is in the Lord, and the Tenant has only an Estate at Will. Ld. Raym. 1000.

The Subject and Object of the Occupant are only such Things as are capable of Occupancy, and not the Freehold at all, into which he neither does nor can enter; but the Law casts the Freehold immediately on him who made himself Occupant of the Land or other real Thing whereof he is Occupant, that there may be a Tenant to the Præcipe. Per Vaughan C. J. Hill. 19 & 20 Car. 2. Holden v. Smallbrooke, Vaugh. 195.

If Tenant by the Curtesy, or Tenant in Dower, grant over their Estate, and the Grantee dies during the Life of Cestuy que vie, there shall be an Occupant though the Estate be created by the Law. Co. Lit. 41. b. contra. 2 Roll. Rep. 123.

If Lessee for Life leases to the Lessor in Reversion in Fee, and to the Heirs of his Body for the Life of the Lessee, and after the Lessor dies living the Lessee, the Heir of the Body shall be a special Occupant, for this was not any Surrender. 18 E. 3. 44. b. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (A) pl. 2.

If Tenant for Life surrenders to the Remainder in Tail, who dies during the Life of the Lessee, there shall not be any Occupancy, for by the Surrender the Estates were conjoined. Contra 42 E. 3. 10. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (A) pl. 3.

If Remainder in Fee enters, and be an Occupant, he shall be said an Occupant during the Life of Cestuy que vie. 42 E. 3. 10. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (A) pl. 4.

If a Man leases to two for their Lives, & diutius eorum viventi, and after the Lessees make Partition, and then one dies, yet there shall not be any Occupancy of his Estate; but the Lessor may enter; for the Words (Et diutius eorum viventi) are void, not being more than the Law says, and by the Partition the Jointure is severed. 30 Aff. 8. adjudged. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (A) pl. 5. Same Case cited 4 Rep. 73. b. Borough's Case.

On

On a Lease to I. S. to hold to him and his Assigns for his own Life, and for the Life of A. and B. the Question was, Whether his Estate was determined, because one cannot have a greater Estate of Freehold than his own Life. But the Court held clearly, that it is a good Limitation, and he has an Estate for all their three Lives, for though he himself cannot have an Estate but for his own Life, yet he may have it to grant to another, and the Habendum for their three Lives is a good Limitation, and by his Death the Estate is not determined, but Occupanti conceditur. Pasch. 32 Eliz. B. R. Utty Dale's alias Uvedale's Case. Cro. Eliz. 182.

There shall be no Occupant of an Estate of Tenant by the Curtesy or Dower which are Estates created by Law. Cro. El. 58.

Tenant pur autre vie makes a Lease for Years to commence from his Death, a Stranger Lease enters, though the Stranger is Occupant of the Freehold, yet the Lessee for Years shall enter upon him, and the Lease shall bind the Occupant. Lev. 202, 203.

So if Tenant pur autre vie leases for Years, in Trust for himself for Life, and after in Trust for his Wife for her Life, and the Lessee for Years actually enters, but permits the Baron to enjoy it, who dies, and then the Feme enters, the Feme shall be Occupant, and not the Lessee for Years. Lev. 202.

The Father had an Estate for his own and his two Sons Lives; he assigns it to Trustees to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to his Wife for Life, (if his two Sons live so long) Remainder to the Use of one of the Sons and his Heirs. The Question was, Whether after the Wife's Death it shall result to the Father, or the surviving Trustee shall have it, or the Heir shall be special Occupant. And Bridgman C. J. said, when the Father had an Estate for three Lives, and he conveyed the Land after to the Use of himself for Life, and to his Wife for Life during the Lives of his Sons, &c. why should not all go out of the Father, as in Chudlie's Case. Trin. 17 Car. 2. C. B. Tinker v. Lidcott, Cart. 46.

If Copyhold Tenant pur autre vie dies, there shall be no Occupant, but the Lord shall enter. Salk. 188. Ld. Raym. Rep. 1060. same Case. Noy 47. Salter v. Butler.

A Feme, Tenant for Life of a Copyhold, the Reversion being granted over to B. for Life, Remainder to C. for Life cum acciderit post mortem, sursumrestitutionem vel forisfacturam of the Feme, and after the Baron surrenders to the Use of B. for his Life, to whom the Lord grants it for his Life, and so he is admitted Tenant, and after dies. In this Case C. shall not have it; because his Estate is not to commence till after the Death, Surrender or Forfeiture of the Feme; and the Feme here is alive, and has not made any Surrender or Forfeiture, and the Feme has Right to it by Plaint in Nature of Cui in vita; but the Lord in this Case may retain it in his proper Hands or Disposition during the Life of the Baron, as an Occupant. Roll. Abr. 150, 151. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (C).

If Tenant by the Curtesy grants his Estate to another and his Heirs, and the Grantee dies, his Heir shall be a special Occupant of this Estate. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (F).

The Custom of a Manor was, that every customary Copyhold of that Manor might be granted to three Persons, Habendum to them successive, sicut nominatur, & non aliter. A Surrender was made to I. S. and his Assigns for his own Life, and the Lives of two others. Powel J. seemed to incline that if I. S. had become a Bankrupt, and the Estate assigned, and the Assignee had died, living the Copyholder, the Lord should immediately have the Land; and Powis J. thought that upon the Death of the Copyholder the Estate of the Assignee would determine, though the Cestuy que vies were living. But it was agreed, that if the Grant had been to I. S. for the Lives of B. C. and D. and I. S. had died, the Lord should have the Land again, though against his own Limitation, because there can be no Occupant of a Copyhold Estate without a special Custom; and this would be no Mischief, the Failure being on the Side of the Grantee only. 6 Mod. 63, 68.

Devise of a Copyhold on Condition to pay Money to I. S. if the Condition is broken, I. S. must be admitted, and make an Entry before he can surrender. 2 Ld. Raym. 726.

There cannot be any Occupant of any Thing which lies in Grant, and which cannot pass without Deed, because every Occupant ought to claim by a Que Estate, and aver the Life of Cestuy que vie. Co. Lit. 41. b.

The only Means the Law gives to one to gain an Estate by Occupancy is by Entry, but there cannot be an Entry in an Advowson, Rent, or any other Thing that lies in Grant. Vaugh. 187. Bridgman 94.

But a special Occupant may be of a Rent; as if a Rent be granted to another and his Heirs for the Life of I. S. his Heir after his Death shall have this Rent as special Occupant. In such Case the Heir takes not by Descent, but as Heir Nominatim, and by Limitation only. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant, (D).

F

And

And if an Annuity be granted to another and his Heirs for the Life of I. S. if the Grantee dies during the Life of I. S. his Heir shall have the Annuity. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (D).

Against whom there shall not be an Occupant. There shall not be any Occupant against the King; because Nullum tempus occurrit Regi, and therefore no Man shall gain of the King by Priority of Entry. Co. Lit. 41. b. Neither shall there be any Occupancy of an Estate which a Man has by Letters Patent of the King. 2 Roll. Rep. 123.

Who shall be an Occupant. If Tenant pur auter vie, makes a Lease for Years and dies, the Lessee for Years being in Possession shall be the Occupant, and his Lease is extinct. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (E) pl. 1.

And if he makes a Lease for Years, Remainder for Years, and Tenant for Years enters, and then the Tenant pur auter vie dies, here the Tenant for Years shall be an Occupant, and yet his Term for Years is not drowned by reason of the Mesne Remainder for Years; for in some Cases a Term for Years and a Freehold may well stand together in one and the same Person. 2 Bulst. 12.

And if Lessee pur auter vie leases at Will to a Feme Covert; Lessee pur auter vie dies, her Baron shall be Occupant. Sid. 347.

Lessee at Will shall be Occupant. 2 Roll. Rep. 123. Cro. Jac. 554.

If a Man leases for Years, and after by Covin, to the Intent to extinguish the Lease, makes a Lease to an ancient Man pur auter vie, who dies, it seems the Lessee for Years shall be Occupant. But it seems by reason of the Covin, that his Lease for Years shall be said to be in Esse against the Lessee. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (E) pl. 2.

If Lessee pur auter vie leases for Years, and Lessee for Years makes a Lease at Will, and after Lessee pur auter vie dies, the Lessee at Will being in Possession shall be Occupant, and not the Lessee for Years; but he shall have it in nature of a Reversion, and so the Lease for Years is not extinct. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (E) pl. 3.

And the Lessee at Will needs not make Claim; for he has the Occupation of the Land; and this differs from the Cases where a Man comes casually to the Land, or hawks there; for they are not any Occupancies. 2 Roll. Rep. 123.

The Freehold by Operation of Law is cast upon him; but this he shall hold and enjoy subject unto the Lease for Years; because he cannot have and enjoy this Estate of Freehold but in the same Manner as the Tenant pur auter vie held and enjoyed the same, and he held the same Subject to the Lease for Years; but if there had been no Lease at Will made, then by the Estate of Occupancy falling upon the Termor for Years, the Freehold is presently in him by Operation of Law; and so by this the Term for Years is drowned, extinct and gone. 2 Bulst. 12.

Special. If a Lessee for Life leases to another, and to the Heirs of his Body for Life of the first Lessee; in this Case the Heir of his Body shall be Occupant after his Death. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (G).

And if a Man leases Land to another and his Executors for Life of J. S. and Cestuy que vie dies, the Executor shall be a special Occupant, though it be a Freehold. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (G).

And if a Man grants a Rent to another, his Executors and Assigns, for the Life of J. S. and after the Grantee dies, making an Executor, but no Assignee, the Executor shall not be a special Occupant, because it is a Freehold, which cannot descend to the Executor. Vin. Abr. Tit. Occupant (G).

And if a Grantee pur auter vie of a Rent-Charge, devises it, the Devisee shall have it during the auter vie. Per Gaudy and Fenner. Sed contra per Popham. Noy. 47.

What Actions will lie against an Occupant. An Occupant shall be punished for Waste, because he has the Estate of the Lessee for Life; for the Statute of Gloucester, c. 5. gave an Action of Waste against him who holds in any Manner for Term of Life or for Years; and an Occupant holds for Term of Life. 6 Co. Rep. 37. b. Co. Lit. 44. b.

What an Occupant should plead. If he in Reversion enters after the Occupant, and brings an Action against him, the Occupant ought to plead the Lease to Cestuy que vie, whose Estate he has; but for a Rent or an Estate that lies in Grant, none can plead a Que Estate, but ought to intitle himself by the Grant. Bridgm. 94.

Relief in Equity in Cases of Occupancy. In Chancery, Tupborne v. Gilbie, 5 Car. 1. the Case was thus: A. conveyed Lands to W. R. and W. S. and their Assigns, to the Use of them, their Heirs and Assigns, during the Lives of the said A. and M. his Wife, and the longer Liver of them; Proviso if A. pay to B. (who after died intestate) 120*l.* in Feb. 1628, then the Estate to be void, and A. to re-enter; the 120*l.* was not paid, so as the Estate became forfeited. C. having paid divers Debts for B. the said W. R. and W. S. were ordered to convey their Interest to C. which they did; C. died, leaving D. her Executor, who was settled in the Estate by Order of the Court; but there being no Decree in the Cause, D. exhibited his Bill to have the Estate confirmed to him by Decree. The Court, with Advice of the Judges, and View of Precedents, cedents, whereby in some special Cases the Court has ordered the Possession against an Occupant, did declare, that though in Case of an Occupant upon a general Trust, this Court was doubtful how to decree any Thing upon a Matter of Equity in Opposition to a Ground or Rule of Law; yet this Case differing from a general Trust upon an Estate granted pur auter vie, as the same is a Conditional Estate pur auter vie, granted as a Security or Pledge for a Debt, which not being paid, the Estate by Forfeiture becomes Assets in the Plaintiff's Hands to pay the Debts of B. the Court decreed the Lands absolutely to D. and his Assigns, during the Continuance of the said Estate, for Satisfaction of B.'s Debts, and the Tenants to attorn, Nisi causa; and none was shewn. Chan. Rep. 39, 40.

And in Throgmorton v. Wagstaff, 8 Car. 1. A. being indebted, B. became Surety for him. A. died, B. brought a Bill against A.'s Widow, suggesting that she had sufficient of her Husband's Estate to discharge the Debts, and prayed to have Leases pur auter vies, whereof A. the Testator was seised at the Time of his Death, and on which the Widow entered as an Occupant, to be Assets in Equity. But the Court, in Respect the Plaintiff did not get a Case made of this Point by such a Time, discharged the Defendant of any further Demands from the Plaintiff. Chan. Rep. 59.

In Price v. Evans, 27 Car. 2. a Title under an Occupant set forth by the Plaintiff was demurred to and allowed; because this Court will not countenance nor give any Relief thereto. 2 Chan. Rep. 112.

And in Ragget v. Clark, Pas. 36 Car. 2. A. seised of a Parcel of Land for his own Life, and the Lives of B. and C. prevailed with R. to be bound with him for a Sum of Money; and that R. might raise Money for the Discharge of the said Debt, he permitted R. to enter into the said Lands, and take the Profits thereof for two Years, the said Lands being about 12 l. per Ann. Value; and the said Lands being so in A.'s Possession, A. died, and made E. his Wife his Executrix. E. brought a Bill to have an Account of the Profits, and that the Possession of the Land should be delivered up to her; R. by Plea set forth his Title as Occupant, and it was allowed, and the Bill dismissed. 2 Vent. 364. And it was said for the Defendant in this Cause, that it was not proved, that there was any Deficiency of Assets; but if it had, yet this Occupancy happening before the Statute of Frauds and Perjuries, the Estate was no wise subjected to the Payment of Debts; and of that Opinion was the Lord Keeper, and therefore dismissed the Bill. S. C. 1 Vern. 234.

To prevent Occupancy, it is advisable at the making a Grant, to add these Words, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, during the Life of Cestuy que vie; for then it is descendable to the Heir; or else the Tenant or Grantee (if he has the Estate without the Word Heirs) may assign the Estate over to divers Men and their Heirs, in Trust for him and his Heirs during the Life of Cestuy que vie. Inst. 41. b. 388. a. Wood's Inst. 216.

Thus far concerning Occupancy according to the Common Law and Decrees in Equity; but this Title is much abridged by the Statute of Frauds and Perjuries (29 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 12.) and the Statute to amend the Law concerning common Recoveries, and to amend the Statute of Frauds and Perjuries, so far as the same relates to Estates pur auter vie (14 Geo. 2. c. 20. §. 9.) For by the Statute of Fraud and Perjuries it is enacted, That any Estate pur auter vie shall be deviseable by a Will in Writing, signed by the Party so devising the same, or by some other Person in his Presence, and by his express Directions attested and subscribed in the Presence of the Devisor by three or more Witnesses; and if no such Devise thereof be made, the same shall be chargeable in the Hands of the Heir, if it shall come to him by reason of a special Occupancy, as Assets by Descent, as in Case of Lands in Fee-simple; and in Case there be no special Occupant thereof, it shall go to the Executors or Administrators of the Party that had the Estate thereof by virtue of the Grant, and shall be Assets in their Hands.

And since this Statute, it has been held, That a Title under an Occupant of a Life, for the Lives of B. and C. is good, for the Statute did not take away all Occupancy, but transferred it to Executors; and the Occupant by his Entry on the Land is Executor de son tort; because the Statute made it Assets. Per Holt, C. J. Mich. 2 W. & M. B. R. Bradburn v. Kennerdale, Carth. 166.

And it has been adjudged, that an Heir, Executor, &c. shall be charged on this Statute with the Payment of Debts only, and not Legacies, except devised particularly out of the Estate; and an Estate pur auter vie of an Intestate was not distributable. Mich. 8 W. 3. B. R. 2 Salk. 464.

The Statute of Frauds does not extend to make Estates pur auter vie in Copyhold Lands Assets or deviseable. 2 Ld. Raym. Rep. 998.

But the said Statute of 14 Geo. 2. recites, That Doubts have arisen, where no Devise has been made of such Estates, to whom the Surplus, after the Debts of such deceased Owners are fully satisfied, shall belong; and enacts, that such Estates pur auter vie, in Case there be no special special Occupant thereof, of which no Devise shall have been made, according to the said Act, for Prevention of Frauds and Perjuries, or so much thereof as shall not have been so devised, shall go, be applied and distributed in the same Manner as the personal Estate of the Testator or Intestate.

(A) Of Descents in general.

Descent, its Derivation
tion.

Kinds of Descents.

DESCENTS, comes from the Latin Word Descendere, id est, ex loco superiore in inferiorem movere; and in a legal Understanding it is when Land, &c. after the Death of the Ancestor is cast by Course of Law upon the Heir. Co. Lit. 237. a.

This is the noblest and worthiest Means whereby Lands are derived from one to another, because it is wrought and vested by the Act of Law and Right of Blood, unto the worthiest and next of the Blood and Kindred of the Ancestor; and therefore it has not in the Common Law altogether the same Signification that it has in the Civil Law; for the Civilians call him, Hæredem, qui ex testamento succedit in universum jus testatoris. But by the Common Law he is only Heir which succeeds by Right of Blood. And this agrees well with the Etymology of the Word Heir, to whom the Lands descend, for Hæres dicitur ab hærendo, quia qui hæres est hæret, hoc est, proximus est sanguine illi cujus est Hæres. So as he who is Hæres, sanguinis est hæres, & hæres hæreditatis. Co. Lit. 237. a. b.

All possible hereditary Successions may be distinguished into these three Kinds, viz. either First, In the Descending Line, as from Father to Son or Daughter, Nephew or Niece, i. e. Grandson or Granddaughter. Or,

Secondly, In the Collateral Line, as from Brother to Brother or Sister, and so to Brothers and Sisters Children. Or Thirdly, In an Ascending Line, either direct, as from Son to Father or Grandfather (which is not admitted by the Law of England) or in the Transversal Line, as to the Uncle or Aunt, Great Uncle or Great Aunt, &c. And because this Line is again divided into the Line of the Father, or the Line of the Mother, this transverse ascending Succession is either in the Line of the Father, Grandfather, &c. on the Blood of the Father; or in the Line of the Mother, Grandmother, &c. on the Blood of the Mother; the former are called Agnati, the latter Cognati. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 223.

All which will be best understood by perusing the Scale of Degrees of Parentage and Consanguinity facing this Page.

(B) By the Common Law.

General Rules concerning Descents, or hereditary Successions of Lands in Fee-simple, with Examples, Reasons, Exceptions, Observations, &c.

Rule 1.

In Descents, the Law prefers the worthiest of Blood.

Worthiness of Blood,

Example 1.

1. Males before Females.

In Descents immediate, the Male is preferred before the Female, viz. The Son before the Daughter, the Brother before the Sister, and the Uncle before the Aunt.

Example 2.

2. Descendants from Males

In Descents immediate, the Descendants from Males are preferred before those from Females; and hence it is, that the Daughter of the Eldest Son (in Descent from the Father) is preferred before the Son of the Younger Son; the Daughter of the Eldest Brother, or Uncle, before the Son of the Younger; and the Uncle, nay, the Great Uncle or Grandfather's Brother, before the Uncle of the Mother's Side. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 235.

Rule 2.

Proximity of Blood.

The next of Blood is preferred before the more remote, though equally or more worthy. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 235.

* For the Learning on this Title, see Blackiston's Treatise on the Law of Descents in Fee-simple.

Example 1.

The Sister of the whole Blood, before the Brother of the half Blood. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 236.

Reason.

She is more strictly joined to the Brother of the whole Blood (viz. by Father and Mother) than the half Brother, though otherwise he is the more worthy.

Example 2.

The Son or Daughter, before the Brother or Sister, and they before the Uncle.

Reason.

The Son or Daughter is nearer than the Brother, and the Brother or Sister than the Uncle.

Exception.

Yet the Father or Grandfather, or Mother or Grandmother, in a direct ascending Line shall not immediately succeed the Son or Grandchild: But the Father's Brothers (or Sisters) shall be preferred before the Father; and the Grandfather's Brother (or Sisters) before the Grandfather: Although the Father is nearer of Blood to the Son than the Uncle, or the Brother; for the Brother is of the Blood of the Brother, because both derived from the same Parent, the common Fountain of both their Blood: And therefore the Father is preferred in the Administration of Goods before the Son's Brother of the whole Blood, and a Remainder limited proximo de sanguine of the Son shall vest in the Father before the Uncle.

Rule 3.

No Brother nor Sister of the half Blood shall inherit to his Brother or Sister, but as a Child to his Parents. Bac. L. Tracts 128.

Example 1.

If a Man have two Wives, and by either Wife a Son, the Eldest Son over-living his Father, is to be preferred. Bac. L. Tracts 128.

Example 2.

But if the Eldest Son enters and dies without a Child, the Brother shall not be his Heir, but the Uncle of the Eldest Brother or Sister of the whole Blood. Bac. L. Tracts 128.

Reason.

Because the Younger is only of the half Blood to their Elder Brother. Bac. L. Tracts 128.

Example 3.

Yet if the Elder Brother dies, or has not entered in the Life of the Father, either by such Entry or Conveyance, then the Younger Brother shall inherit the Father's Land, although he be a Child by the second Wife, before any Daughter by the first. Bac. L. Tracts 128.

Rule 4.

The Eldest Son, or Brother or Uncle, excludes the Younger, and shall solely inherit. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238. Bac. L. Tracts 128. Priority of the Birth of Males.

Example 1.

If there be three Brethren, and the Middle Brother purchases Lands in Fee-simple, and dies without Issue, the Elder Brother shall have the Land by Descent and not the Younger, &c. Lit. §. 5.

Example 2.

Also if there be three Brethren, and the Youngest Brother purchases Lands in Fee-simple, and dies without Issue, the Eldest Brother shall have the Land by Descent, and not the Middle. Lit. §. 5.

Reason.

For the Eldest is most worthy of Blood. Lit. §. 5.

Rule 5.

When Females inherit, those of an equal Degree of Nearness shall inherit all together, as Parceners. Bac. L. Tracts 128. Equality of Females.

Reason.

The Law makes them but one Heir to the Ancestor. Bac. L. Tracts 128.

G

All the Daughters, whether by the same or divers Venters, do inherit together to the same Father. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Reason.

Whether they be of the same or divers Venters, they are of the whole Blood to their Father.

All the Sisters by the same Venter do inherit to the Brother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Reason.

Those of the same Venter are of the whole Blood to the Brother, but those of another Venter are only of the half Blood.

Exception to this Rule.

But by a special Custom, Descents to the Females may be otherwise. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238. See Of Descents by Custom, post.

Right by Representation.

All Descendants from such a Person as might have been Heir to another, hold the same Right by Representation as that common Root from whence they are derived. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 236, 237.

Reason.

For they are in the same Right of Worthiness and Proximity of Blood, as their Root that might have been Heir was if he had been living. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 237.

Example 1.

The Son or Grandchild (whether Son or Daughter) of the eldest Son, succeeds before the younger Son. Hale's Hist. Com. Law, 237.

The Son or Grandchild of the eldest Brother, before the youngest Brother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 237.

1. Observation.

And so through all the Degrees of Succession by the Right of Representation, the Right of Proximity is transferred from the Root to the Branches, and gives them the same Preference as the next and worthiest of Blood. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 237.

2. Observation.

This Right transferred by Representation is infinite and unlimited in the Degrees of those that descend from the Represented; for the Son, Grandson, Great Grandson, and so in infinitum enjoy the same Privilege of Representation as those from whom they derive their Pedigree have, whether in Descents lineal or transversal. Hale's Hist. Com. Law, 237.

Example 3.

The Great Grandchild of the eldest Brother (Son or Daughter) shall be preferred before the younger Brother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 237.

Reason.

Though the Female be less worthy than the Male, yet she stands in Right of Representation of the eldest Brother, who was more worthy than the younger.

Example 4.

If a Man have two Daughters, and the elder dies in the Father's Life, leaving six Daughters, and then the Father dies; the younger Daughter shall have an equal Share with the six Daughters. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Reason.

Because they stand in Representation and Stead of their Mother, who could have had but a Moiety. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Rule 7.

The Root of the Descent.

The last actual Seisin in any Ancestor, makes him, as it were, the Root of the Descent equally to many Intents as if he had been a Purchaser. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Observation.

Therefore he that cannot derive his Succession from him that was last actually seized, though he might have derived it from some precedent Ancestor, shall not inherit. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Example 1.

And hence it is, that where Lands descend to the eldest Son from the Father, and the Son enters, and dies without Issue, his Sister of the whole Blood shall inherit as Heir to the Brother, and not the younger Son of the half Blood. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Reason.

Because he cannot be Heir to the Brother of the half Blood. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238.

Example 2.

If the eldest Son had survived the Father, and died before Entry, the youngest Son should inherit as Heir to the Father, and not the Sister. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 238, 239.

Reason.

Because he is Heir to the Father that was last actually seized. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Example 3.

And hence it is, that though the Uncle is preferred before the Father in Descents from the Son; yet if the Uncle enter after the Death of the Son, and die without Issue, the Father shall inherit to the Uncle. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Reason.

And whosoever derives a Title to any Land, must be of the Blood to him that first purchased it. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Therefore if a Son purchases Lands, and dies without Issue, it shall descend to the Heirs of the Part of the Father; and if he has none, then to the Heirs of the Part of the Mother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Reason.

For though the Son has both the Blood of the Father and of the Mother in him, yet he is of the whole Blood of the Mother, and the Consanguinity of the Mother are Consanguinei cognati of the Son. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Example 2.

If Lands descend to the Son from his Father or Mother, they shall go to that Side only from which they came. Bac. L. Tracts 129.

Example 3.

But if the Father purchases Lands, and they descend to the Son, who dies without Issue, and without any Heir of the Part of the Father, it shall not descend in the Line of the Mother, but escheat. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Reason.

For though the Consanguinei of the Mother, are the Consanguinei of the Son, yet they are not of the Consanguinity to the Father, who was the Purchaser. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239.

Example 4.

Yet if there be none of the Blood of the Grandfather, it may resort to the Line of the Grandmother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 239, 240.

Reason.

Because her Consanguinei are as well of the Blood of the Father, as the Mother's Consanguinity is of the Blood of the Son. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 240.

Example 5.

If the Grandfather purchased Lands, which descended to the Father, and from him to the Son; if the Son entered and died without Issue, his Father's Brothers or Sisters, or their Descen-

Descendants; or, for want of them, his Great Grandfather's Brothers or Sisters, or their Descendants; or, for want of them, any of the Consanguinity of the Great Grandfather, or Brothers or Sisters of the Great Grandmother, or their Descendants, may inherit. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 240.

Reason.

For the Consanguinity of the Great Grandmother is the Consanguinity of the Grandfather. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 240.

Observation.

But none of the Line of the Mother or Grandmother, viz. the Grandfather's Wife, shall inherit; for they are not of the Blood of the first Purchaser. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 240.

Note 1.

The same Rule à converfo holds in Purchases in the Line of the Mother or Grandmother, they shall always keep in the same Line that the first Purchaser settled them in, Hale's Hist. Com. Law 240. Vide Example 2. of this Rule.

Note 2.

But it is not necessary, that he who inherits be always Heir to the Purchaser; it is sufficient if he be of his Blood, and Heir to him that was last seised; for if the Father purchases Lands which descended to the Son, who dies without Issue, they shall never descend to the Heir of the Part of the Son's Mother; but if the Son's Grandmother has a Brother, and the Son's Great Grandmother has a Brother, and there are no other Kindred, they shall descend to the Grandmother's Brother; and yet if the Father had died without Issue, his Grandmother's Brother should have been preferred before his Mother's Brother, because the former was Heir of the Part of his Father, though a Female, and the latter was only Heir of the Part of his Mother. But where the Son is once seised, and dies without Issue, his Grandmother's Brother is to him Heir of the Part of his Father, and being nearer than his Great Grandmother's Brother is preferred in the Descent. But this is always intended so long as the Line of Descent is not broken; for if the Son alien these Lands, and then repurchase them again in Fee, now the Rules of Descents are to be observed, as if he were the original Purchaser, and as if it had been in the Line of the Father or Mother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 240, 241.

Rule 9.

Male Root has the Preference.

In all Successions, in the Line descending, transversal or ascending, the Line that is first derived from the Male Root has always the Preference. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 241.

Example in the descending Line.

A. has Issue two Sons, B. and C. B. has Issue a Son and a Daughter, D. and E. D. the Son has Issue a Daughter, F. And E. the Daughter has Issue a Son, G. Neither C. nor any of his Descendants shall inherit so long as there are any Descendants from D. and E. and neither E. the Daughter, nor any of her Descendants shall inherit so long as there are any Descendants from D. the Son, whether they be Male or Female. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 241, 242.

2dly, In the collateral Line.

So in Descents collateral, as Brothers and Sisters, the same Instances as before applied thereto, evidence the same Conclusions. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 242.

Particular Rules of transversal ascending Successions.

Rule 1.

Male Line

If a Son purchases Lands in Fee-simple, and dies without Issue, those of the Male Line ascending usque infinitum shall be preferred in the Descent, according to their Proximity of Degree to the Son. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 242.

Example 1.

The Father's Brothers and Sisters, and their Descendants, shall be preferred before the Brothers of the Grandfather and their Descendants. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 242.

Example 2.

If the Father has no Brothers nor Sisters, the Grandfather's Brothers and their Descendants shall be preferred. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 242.

Example 3.

For want of Grandfather's Brothers, his Sisters and their Descendants shall be preferred before the Brothers of the Great Grandfather. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 242.

Observation.

For although the Father or Grandfather cannot immediately inherit to the Son, yet the Direction of the Descent to the collateral ascending Line, is as much as if the Father or Grandfather had been by Law inheritable; and therefore, as in case the Father had been inheritable, and should have inherited to the Son before the Grandfather, and the Grandfather before the Great Grandfather; and consequently, if the Father had inherited, and died without Issue, his eldest Brother and his Descendants should have inherited before the younger Brother and his Descendants; and if he had no Brothers, but Sisters, the Sisters and their Descendants should have inherited before his Uncles, or the Grandfather's Brother and their Descendants. So though the Father is excluded from inheriting, yet the Descent is directed as it should have been, had the Father inherited, viz. it lets in those first that are in the next Degree to him. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 242, 243.

Rule 2.

The Line of the Part of the Mother shall never inherit as long as there are any, though never so remote, of the Line of the Part of the Father. Hale's Hist. Com. Law, 243. Paternal Line preferable to the Maternal.

Example.

If the Mother has a Brother, yet if the Atavus or Atavia patris, (i. e. Great Great Great Grandfather, or Great Great Great Grandmother of the Father) has a Brother or Sister, he or she shall be preferred, and exclude the Mother's Brother, though he is much nearer. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 243.

Rule 3.

The Male Line of the Part of the Father ascending, shall in æternum exclude the Female Line of the Part of the Father ascending. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 243. Paternal Male Line, before Female Line.

Example.

If a Son purchases Lands, and dies without Issue, the Sister of the Father's Grandfather, or of his Great Grandfather, and so in infinitum, shall be preferred before the Father's Mother's Brother, though the Father's Mother's Brother be a Male, and the Father's Grandfather or Great Grandfather's Sister be a Female, and more remote. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 244. Vide Rule 1.

Reason.

Because she is of the Male Line, which is more worthy than the Female Line, though the Female Line be also of the Blood of the Father. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 244.

Rule 4.

As in the Male Line ascending, the more near is preferred before the more remote; so in the Female Line descending, if it be of the Blood of the Father, the more near is also preferred before the more remote. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 244. Female Line descending.

Example 1.

If a Son purchases Lands, and dies without Issue, and the Father, Grandfather, and Great Grandfather, and so upward, all the Male Line being dead, without any Brother or Sister, or any descending from them; but the Father's Mother has a Sister or Brother, and the Father's Grandmother has a Brother, and the Father's Great Grandmother has a Brother, though all these are of the Blood of the Father; and though the remotest of them shall exclude the Son's Mother's Brother; and though the Great Grandmother's Blood has passed through more Males of the Father's Blood, than the Blood of the Grandmother or Mother of the Father; yet the Father's Mother's Sister shall be preferred before the Father's Grandmother's Brother, or the Great Grandmother's Brother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 244, 245.

Reason.

For they are all in the Female Line, viz. Cognati, (and not Agnati), and the Father's Mother's Sister is the nearest; so she shall have the Preference as well as in the Male Line ascending; the Father's Brother, or his Sister, shall be preferred before the Grandfather's Brother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 245.

But yet in the last Case, where the Son purchases Lands, and dies without Issue, and without any Heir on the Part of the Grandfather, the Lands descend to the Grandmother's Brother or Sister, as Heir on the Part of his Father. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 245.

Example 3.

Yet if the Father had purchased this Land, and died, and it descended to his Son, who died without Issue, the Lands should not have descended to the Father's Mother's Brother or Sister.

Reason.

For the Reasons before given upon the third Rule.

Example 4.

But for want of Brothers or Sisters of the Grandfather's Great Grandfather, and so upwards in the Male ascending Line, it should descend to the Father's Grandmother's Brother or Sister, which is his Heir of the Part of his Father, who should be preferred before the Father's Mother's Brother, who is the Heir of the Part of the Mother of the Purchaser, though the next Heir of the Part of the Father of him that last died seised. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 245.

Example 5.

And therefore, as if the Father that was the Purchaser had died without Issue, the Heirs of the Part of the Father, whether of the Male or Female Line, should have been preferred before the Heirs of the Part of the Mother; so the Son, who stands now in the Place of the Father, and inherits to him primarily in his Father's Line, dying without Issue, the same Devolution and hereditary Succession should have been as if his Father had immediately died without Issue, which should have been to his Grandmother's Brother, as Heir of the Part of the Father, though by the Female Line, and not to his Mother's Brother who was only Heir of the Part of his Mother, and who is not to take till the Father's Line, both Male and Female, be spent. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 245, 246.

Rule 5.

If the Son purchases Lands, and dies without Issue, and it descends to any Heir of the Part of the Father, and then if the Line of the Father (after Entry and Possession) fail, it shall never return to the Line of the Mother, though in the first Instance, or first Descent from the Son, it might have descended to the Heir of the Part of the Mother. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 246.

Reason.

For now by this Descent and Seisin it is lodged in the Father's Line, to whom the Heir of the Part of the Mother can never derive a Title as Heir, but it shall rather escheat.

Observation.

But if the Heir of the Part of the Father had not entered, then that Line had failed, and it might have descended to the Heir of the Part of the Mother, as Heir to the Son, to whom immediately, for want of Heirs of the Part of the Father, it might have descended. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 246, 247.

Rule 6.

And if it had once descended to the Heir of the Part of the Father of the Grandfather's Line, and the Heir had entered; it should never descend to the Heir of the Part of the Father of the Grandmother's Line. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 246.

Reason.

Because the Line of the Grandmother was not of the Blood or Consanguinity of the Line of the Grandmother's Side. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 247.

Rule 7.

If for Default of Heirs of the Purchaser of the Part of the Father, the Lands descend to the Line of the Mother, the Heirs of the Mother of the Part of her Father's Side, shall be preferred in the Succession before her Heirs of the Part of her Mother's Side. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 247.

Reason.

Because they are the more worthy. Hale's Hist. Com. Law 247.

Thus

Thus Lands in Fee-simple will descend by the Common Law, if there is no Settlement to the contrary by Deed or Will, &c.

(C) By Custom.

Descents of Estates in Fee-simple by Custom are in Gavelkind or Borough-English. Gavelkind, i. e. Gave all kind; for by this Custom every Male of equal Degree of Childhood, Brotherhood or Kindred shall inherit equally in like Manner as Daughters (by the Common Law) shall, being Parceners. Co. Lit. 140. a. Bac. L. Traëts 129.

This Signification of the Word Gavelkind is founded on the Nature of the Lands in Point of Descent; but its Derivation and Signification drawn from the Nature of the Services yielded by the Land is best supported by Reason and Authority, i. e. it is derived from the Saxon Word Gafol, or as it is otherwise written Gavel, which signifies Rent, or a customary Performance of husbandry Works; therefore they called the Land which yields this Kind of Service Gavelkind, that is, Land of the Kind that yields Rent. Vide Robinson's Common Law of Kent, p. 1, 2, 3, &c.

All the Lands in England were in Nature of Gavelkind before the Norman Conquest; but as the Normans did not conquer Kent this Custom is still preserved in some Places there. (Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.) And in divers other Parts of England, within divers Manors and Seignories the like Custom is in Force. Co. Lit. 140. a. (Lit. §. 265.) And also such Custom is in North Wales, &c. (Lit. §. 265.) And agreeing with Lit. in this Point see Stat. Walliæ, An. 12 E. 1. Aliter usitatum est in Wallia, quam in Anglia, quoad successionem hereditatis, eo quod hereditas partibilis est inter hæredes masculos, à tempore cujus non extitit memoria partibilis extitit; Dominus Rex non vult quod consuetudo illa abrogetur, sed quod hereditates remaneant partibiles inter consimiles hæredes sicut fieri consuevit, & fiat partitio illius sicut fieri consuevit. Co. Lit. 176. a. And the like Custom is in Ireland; for there the Lands also were in the Nature of Gavelkind; but where by their Brehon Law the Bastards inherited with their legitimate Sons, as to the Bastard that Custom was abolished. Co. Lit. 175. b. 176. a. But this Custom of Gavelkind is in some Places taken away by Statute.

Borough (or Burgh) English is a Custom in many Borough-Towns of England, where the youngest Son, eldest Daughter or youngest, &c. shall inherit. Bac. L. Traëts 129. Wood's Inst. B. 3. c. 3.

If the King purchases Gavelkind Lands, and dies seised, leaving several Sons, the eldest only shall inherit; for the Crown, and the Lands whereof the King is seised Jure Coronæ, are concomitantia. Co. Lit. 15. b. T. Raym. 77. the Opinion in Pl. Com. to the contrary is denied by Twissden; Sid. 138. the Custom is suspended.

A special Custom that Lands in Fee should descend to the younger Son, but Lands in Tail to the elder, is good; per Cur. March 54, 55. So that it shall descend to the youngest Son, if not of the half Blood, and if he be, then to the eldest. Co. Lit. 140. b.

If the Custom of a Copyhold be, That the eldest Daughter shall have the Land, the eldest Aunt shall not have it by the Custom, for she is not within the Custom. Per Cur. Pasch. 8 Jac. C. B. Ratcliffe and Chapman, Godb. 166. 4 Leon. 242. 2 Danv. Abr. 548.

The youngest Brother shall not have Borough-English Land, for he is not within the Custom, Pasch. 8 Jac. C. B. 2 Danv. Abr. 548. and Godb. 166. Same Case; & per Cur. if the Custom be that the youngest Son shall inherit, the youngest Brother shall not inherit by the Custom; and so adjudged in Denton's Case. 4 Leon. 242.

Yet by some Customs the youngest Brother shall inherit, but Consuetudo loci est observanda. Co. Lit. 100. b.

And so the general Custom of Gavelkind Lands extends to Sons only; but by special Custom, when one Brother dies without Issue, all his Brothers may inherit. Co. Lit. 140. a. b.

If a Custom be, that if a Man dies without Heir Male, that his eldest Daughter shall have the Land, and if he has no Daughter, that the eldest Sister shall have the Land, and if he has not a Sister, the eldest Cousin; but if he has an Heir Male, that he shall have it before any of them; and the Tenant of the Land hath several Daughters, but no Heir Male, and the eldest Daughter dies in the Life of the Tenant of the Land, having Issue a Daughter; this Grandchild is within the Custom, and shall have the Land by Descent upon the Death of the Grandfather. Per Cur. Mich. 10 Jac. between Godfrey and Bullock. 2 Danv. Abr. 549.

If Borough-English Lands be let to a Man and his Heirs during the Life of I. S. and the Lessee dies, the youngest Son shall enjoy it; Co. Lit. 110. b. for the Heir taking it as a descendable Freehold, the Custom that runs with the Land guides the Descent to the younger Son. Adjudged in Baxter and Dowdswell, upon a special Verdict; though it was objected, the Heir took only by special Limitation to prevent an Occupancy. 2 Lev. 138.

If the Rent is granted out of Gavelkind Lands, it is of the Nature thereof, and shall descend to all equally. Adjudged Trin. 24 Car. Randall and Writtle, 2 Lev. 87. because the Rent is Part of the Profits of the Land, and issues out thereof. Mod. 96. But adjudged con. in Randal and Roberts, Noy 15. A Trust shall descend accordingly. 2 Roll. Abr. 780. pl. 6.

Rent

If A. be seised of Copyhold Lands in Fee of the Nature of Borough-English Land, and surrenders it into the Hands of the Lord, ea Intentione that he should re-grant it to him and his Wife, and to the Heirs of himself, and the Lord re-grants it accordingly, and there is a Custom, that if any Person be seised in Fee of any such customary Land, and dies so seised, that the Land shall descend after his Death Filio juniori hujusmodi Tenentis customar' sic obeuntis seifiti secundum naturam of Borough-English Land; and after A. having Issue three Sons, dies so seised, and after ten Years after his Death, the youngest Son dies in the Life of his Wife without Issue, it seems the eldest Son shall have this Land as Heir to the youngest, and not the middle Son; for the Custom cannot extend to a collateral Descent, scilicet, to direct the Descent between two Brothers; for this is out of the Custom, and the Custom was once satisfied by the Descent to the youngest, and the Custom fixed the Land in the youngest, and there is an End of the Custom; and when the Custom fails, the Common Law shall guide the Descent; and by this special Custom, this Son, which was the youngest at the Time of the Death of his Father, ought to have the Land, and not any other who should come to be the younger after. Trin. 11 Car. B. R. between Reeve and Malster, it was argued by the Court, and Brampton and Barkley inclined, that the middle Son should have the Land; and Jones and Croke econtra: But they all agreed, if this had not been customary Land, that the eldest would have it as Heir to the Father, inasmuch as this was a Reversion expectant upon an Estate for Life, and no actual Seisin in the youngest: And they differed only in this, whether the Custom should guide in the Descent in the same Manner as in the Course of a Descent at Common Law. And Croke and Jones held, that upon this special Custom, if the Copyholder died seised, having a Son, and his Wife enseint of another Son, who is born after, that he should not have the Land; but Brampton and Barkley econtra. Intratur Hil. 9 Car. Rot. 583. 2 Danv. Abr. 549. Cro. Car. 411. W. Jon. 361, &c.

If the Custom be, that the youngest Son shall inherit, and a Man has Issue two Sons, and the eldest has Issue two Sons, and dies, and after the Lands descend to the youngest Son, who dies without Issue, the eldest Son of the eldest Brother shall have the Land, because the Custom holds not in the transversal Line, but only in the lineal Descent. M. 24 & 25 El. at Hertford Term, resolved per Curiam. Cited, M. 10 Jac. 2 Danv. Abr. 550.

If there be a Custom within the Manor of T. That if the Father dies, leaving no Son, but two or more Daughters, that the eldest Daughter shall have his Land for her Life only, and after her Death it shall descend to the next Heir Male that can derive by Males; and for want of such, that it shall escheat to the Lord; and there is another Custom, that if the Tenant dies, and leaves a Wife, that she shall have it for Life; and a Copyholder of the Manor dies, leaving a Wife and two Daughters, and no Son, and his Wife enters, and the eldest Daughter dies, and after the Wife dies, the second Daughter shall have the Land for Life within the Custom; for though she was not the eldest at the Death of her Father, yet she was so at the Death of her Mother, whose Estate was a Continuance of the Father's Estate, as in case of Free Bench adjudged; and that the Custom was good. *Trin. 15 Car. 2. #### (D) By Statute.

THESE Descents are of Estates in Tail, by Force of the Stat. of Westm. 2. De Donis Conditionalibus made in the thirteenth Year of the Reign of King Edward the First.

Stat. De Donis Conditionalibus.

In the Preamble of the first Chapter of the said Stat. it is observed, as follows, "Concerning Lands given upon Condition," that "where any gives his Land to a Man and his Wife, and the Heirs begotten of the Body of the same Man and his Wife, with such Condition expressed, that if the same Man and his Wife die without Heirs of their Bodies between them begotten, the Land so given should revert to the Giver or his Heirs. In case also where one gives Lands in free Marriage, which Gift has a Condition annexed, tho' it be not expressed in the Deed of Gift; which is this, that if the Husband and Wife die without Heirs of their Bodies begotten, the Land so given shall revert to the Giver or his Heirs. In case also where one gives Land to another, and the Heirs of his Body issuing, it seems very hard, and yet seems to the Givers and their Heirs, that their Will being expressed in the Gift, was heretofore nor yet is observed. In all the Cases aforesaid, after Issue begotten and born between them (to whom the Lands were given under such Condition) heretofore such Feoffees had Power to alien the Land so given, and to disinherit their Issue of the Land, contrary to the Minds of the Givers, and contrary to the Form expressed in the Gift."

" Gift. And further, when the Issue of such Feoffee is failing, the Land so given ought to return to the Giver or his Heir, by Form of the Gift expressed in the Deed, though the Issue (if any were) had died, yet by the Deed and Feoffment of them, to whom the Land was so given upon Condition, the Donors have heretofore been barred of their Reversion, which was directly repugnant to the Form of the Gift."

And by the same Chapter thus enacted,

" Wherefore our Lord the King perceiving how necessary and expedient it should be to provide Remedy in the aforesaid Cases, has ordained, that the Will of the Giver according to the Form in the Deed of Gift, manifestly expressed, shall be from henceforth observed. So that they to whom the Land was given under such Condition shall have no Power to alien the Land so given, but that it shall remain unto the Issue of them to whom it was given after their Death, or shall revert to the Giver or his Heirs, if Issue fail, (whereas there is no Issue at all) or if any Issue be, and fail by Death, or Heir of the Body of such Issue failing: Neither shall the second Husband of any such Woman from henceforth have any Thing in the Land so given upon Condition after the Death of his Wife, by the Law of England, nor the Issue of the second Husband and Wife shall succeed in the Inheritance; but immediately after the Death of the Husband and Wife to whom the Land was so given, it shall come to their Issue, or return to the Giver or his Heir, as before is said."

" And if a Fine be levied hereafter upon such Lands, it shall be void in Law: Neither shall the Heirs, or such as the Reversion belongs unto, though they be of full Age within England, and out of Prison, need to make their Claim."

Littleton (§. 13.) says, that before this Statute all Inheritances were Fee-simple; for all the Gifts which are specified in the Statute were Fee-simple conditional at the Common Law. The Nature of Lands before the Stat.

And Coke (on Lit. p. 19. a.) says, that Fee-simple here is taken in a large Sense, including as well conditional or qualified as absolute, to distinguish them from Estates-Tail since the said Statute.

Before which, if Land had been given to a Man, and to the Heirs Male of his Body, the having of an Issue Female had been no Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 19. a.

But if he had Issue Male and died, and the Issue Male had inherited, yet he had not a Fee-simple absolute, for if he had died without Issue Male, the Donor should have entred as in his Reverter. Co. Lit. 19. a.

By having Issue, the Condition was performed for three Purposes, (1.) To alien. (2.) To forfeit. (3.) To charge with Rent, Common, or the like. Co. Lit. 19. a.

But the Course of Descent was not altered by having Issue, for if the Donee had Issue and died, and the Land had descended to his Issue, yet if that Issue had died (without any Alienation made) without Issue, his collateral Heir should not have inherited, because he was not within the Form of the Gift, viz. Heir of the Body of the Donee. Co. Lit. 19. a.

Lands were given before the Statute in Frank-marriage, and the Donees had Issue and died; and after the Issue died without Issue, it was adjudged that his collateral Issue shall not inherit, but the Donor shall re-enter. So Note, That the Heir in Tail had no Fee-simple absolute, at the Common Law, though there were divers Descents. Co. Lit. 19. a.

If Lands had been given to a Man, and to his Heirs Male of his Body, and he had Issue two Sons, and the eldest had Issue a Daughter, the Daughter was not inheritable to the Fee-simple, but the younger Son per formam Doni. And so if Land had been given at the Common Law to a Man, and the Heirs Female of his Body, and he had Issue a Son and a Daughter, and died, the Daughter should have inherited this Fee-simple at the Common Law; for the said Statute creates no Estate-tail, but of such an Estate as was Fee-simple at the Common Law, and is descendible in such Form as it was at the Common Law. If the Donee in Tail had Issue before the Statute, and the Issue had died without Issue, the Alienation of the Donee at the Common Law, having no Issue at the Time, had not barred the Donor. Co. Lit. 19. a.

If Donee in Tail at the Common Law had aliened before any Issue had, and after had Issue, this Alienation had barred the Issue, because he claimed a Fee-simple; yet if that Issue died without Issue, the Donor might re-enter, for that he aliened before any Issue, at which Time he had no Power to alien to bar the Possibility of the Donor. But if Feme Tenant in Tail had taken Husband, and had Issue, and the Husband and Wife had aliened in Fee by Deed before the Statute, yet the Issue might have had a Formedon in Descender, for the Alienation was not lawful; but otherwise it is, if it had been by Fine. And these Things, though they seem ancient, are necessary to be known, as well for the Knowledge of the Common Law, as for Annuities, and such like Inheritances as cannot be intailed within the said Statute, and therefore remain at the Common Law. Co. Lit. 19. a.

If the King before the said Statute had made a Gift, to a Man, and to the Heirs of his Body begotten, the Donee, post prolem suscitatum, might have aliened as well as in the Case of a common Person. Co. Lit. 19. a.

But if the Donee had no Issue, and before the Statute had aliened with Warranty, and died, and the Warranty had descended upon the King, this should not have bound the King of his Reversion without Assets; but otherwise it was in the Case of a common Person. Of the other Side, if Lands had been given to the King, and to the Heirs of his Body, he could not before Issue have aliened in Fee, but only to have barred his Issue as a common Person might have done, but not have barred the Reversion; for that should have been wrong in the Case of a Subject, and the King's Prerogative cannot alter his Case, nor make it greater than the Donor gave unto him: And it is a Maxim in Law, That the King can do no Wrong. Co. Lit. 19. a. b.

Cause of making the Statute De Donis.

The Cause of making the said Statute, was to preserve the Inheritance in the Blood of them to whom the Gift was made, notwithstanding Attainders of Treason or Felony. Co. Lit. 19. a. 392. b. But see, Of Acquests by Means of Forfeitures, §. 7. of this Chapter. And this Act in History is called Gentilitium municipale; because thereby the Families of many Noblemen and Gentlemen were continued and preserved to their Posterities. Co. Lit. 393.

Inconveniences of it.

But again Coke observes, (Co. Lit. 19. b.) that when all Estates were Fee-simple, then were Purchasers sure of their Purchases, Farmers of their Leases, Creditors of their Debts, the King and Lords had their Escheats, Forfeitures, Wardships and other Profits of their Seignories: And for these and other like Cases, by the Wisdom of the Common Law, all Estates of Inheritance were Fee-simple; and what Contentions and Mischiefs have crept into the Quiet of the Law by these fettered Inheritances, daily Experience teaches us.

But some of these Inconveniences since the Stat. De Donis have been remedied. As to Leases by Tenants in Fee, by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 27. see concerning Leases post. And as to the King's Debts, &c. by Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 39. and 13 El. c. 4. See more hereafter concerning Fines and Recoveries.

But notwithstanding the many Mischiefs and Inconveniences of intailed Estates, and the Statutes before mentioned, and Fines and Recoveries to dock Intails; there are Methods found out to limit Estates by Settlements, that no Law nor Statutes can reach or alter them, except a particular Act of Parliament is made for that Purpose. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1.

What Alienations are restrained by the said Statute.

Tenements, is the only Word which the said Statute of Westminster 2. that created Estates-tail, uses; and it includes not only all corporate Inheritances, but also all Inheritances issuing out of any of those Inheritances, or concerning or annexed to, or exercisable within the same, though they lie not in Tenure; therefore all these may be intailed, as Rents, Estovers, Commons, or other Profits whatsoever granted out of Land; or Uses, Offices, Dignities which concern Lands or certain Places, may be intailed within the said Statute, because all these favour of the Realty. Co. Lit. 19. b. 20. a.

Realities.

But Examples will illustrate and make this Learning clear.

The Writ of Assise was De libero tenemento, and made his Plaint of the Office of the fourth Part of the Serjeant of the Common Place, and the Writ adjudged good. And seeing that a Man has a Freehold, Libertum tenementum, in it, by consequence it may be intailed. Co. Lit. 20. a.

The Office of the Keeping of the Church of our Lady of Lincoln was intailed, and a Farm there brought upon that Gift of the Office by the Issue in Tail. Co. Lit. 20. a.

An Use intailed. Co. Lit. 20. a.

A Nomination to a Benefice intailed. Co. Lit. 20. a.

Also a Name or Dignity may be intailed within the Statute; as Dukes, Marquisses, Earls, Viscounts and Barons, because they are named of some County, Manor, Town or Place. Co. Lit. 20. a.

If Lands be given in Tail, upon Condition, that the Tenant in Tail, nor his Heirs, shall not alien in Fee, nor in Tail, nor for Term of another's Life, but only for their own Lives, &c. such Condition is good. And the Reason is, for that when he makes such Alienation and Discontinuance of the Intail, he does contrary to the Intent of the Donor, for which the Stat. of Westm. 2. c. 1. was made. Lit. §. 362.

And therefore, if a Gift in Tail be made upon Condition, that the Donee, &c. shall not alien, this Condition is good to some Intents, and void to some: For as to all those Alienations which amount to any Discontinuance of the Estate-tail, (as Lit. here speaks) or is against the Stat. of Westm. 2. the Condition is good without Question. But as to a Common Recovery the Condition is void, because this is no Discontinuance, but a Bar, and this Common Recovery is not restrained by the said Statute; and therefore such a Condition is repugnant to the Estate-tail, for it is to be observed that to this Estate-tail there are divers Incidents: First, To be dispunished of Waste. Secondly, That the Wife of the Donee in Tail shall be endowed. Thirdly, That the Husband of a Feme Donee after Issue shall be Tenant by the Curtsey. Fourthly, That the Tenant in Tail may suffer a Common Recovery: And therefore if a Man makes a Gift in Tail, upon Condition to restrain him of any of these Incidents, the Condition is repugnant and void in Law. And it is to be observed, that a Collateral Warranty, or a Lineal with Assets, in respect of the Recompence, is not restrained by the said Statute; no more is the Common Recovery in respect of the intended Recompence. And Lit. with an Intent to exclude a Common Recovery, says, Such Alienation and Discontinuance, joining them together. Co. Lit. 223. b. 224. a.

If a Man before the said Statute had made a Gift to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, upon Condition, that after Issue he should not have Power to sell, that Condition would have been repugnant and void. Pari ratione, after the Statute a Man makes a Gift in Tail, the Law tacite gives him Power to suffer a Common Recovery; therefore to add a Condition that he shall have no Power to suffer a Common Recovery, is repugnant and void. Co. Lit. 224. a.

If a Man makes a Feoffment to a Baron and Feme in Fee, upon Condition that they shall not alien; to some Intent this is good, and to some Intent it is void: For to restrain an Alienation by Feoffment, or Alienation by Deed, it is good, because such an Alienation is tortious and voidable: But to restrain their Alienation by Fine is repugnant and void, because it is lawful and unavoidable. Co. Lit. 224. a.

It is said, that if a Man infeoff an Infant in Fee, upon Condition that he shall not alien, this is good to restrain Alienations during his Minority, but not after his full Age. Co. Lit. 224. a.

It is likewise said, that a Man by Licence may give Land to a Bishop and his Successors, or to an Abbot and his Successors; and add a Condition to it, that they shall not alien without the Consent of their Chapter or Convent, because it was intended a Mortmain, that is, that it should for ever continue in that See or House, for that they had it en antier droit, for religious and good Uses. Co. Lit. 224. a.

Littleton in the before-mentioned Section (362) says, (inter alia) that if Lands be given in Tail, upon Condition, that neither the Tenant in Tail, nor his Heirs, shall alien for Term of another's Life, but only for their own Lives, &c. such Condition is good.

Upon which Coke remarks, (p. 223. b.) That yet if a Man makes a Gift in Tail upon Condition that he shall not make a Lease for his own Life, although the Estate be lawful, yet the Condition is good, because the Reversion is in the Donor.

As if a Man makes a Lease for Life or Years, upon Condition that they shall not grant over their Estate, or let the Land to others, this is good; and yet the Grant or Lease should be lawful. Co. Lit. 223. b.

If a Man makes a Gift in Tail, upon Condition that he shall not make a Lease for three Lives or twenty-one Years, according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. the Condition is good, for the Statute gives him Power to make such Leases which may be restrained by Condition, and by his own Agreement; for this Power is not incident to the Estate, but given to him collaterally by the Act, according to that Rule of Law, Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se introducto. Co. Lit. 223. b.

As to what Remedy the Issue in Tail has, if the Tenant in Tail aliens, vid. Co. Lit. 327. a. b.

But if the Grant of the Inheritance be merely Personal, or to be exercised with Chattels, Personalities, it cannot be intailed. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1.

So a Grant of an Annuity to a Man, and the Heirs of his Body, is void as to the Limitation only. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1.

And so is a Lease for Years to a Man, and the Heirs of his Body. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1. cites 10 Rep. 87. 4 Inst. 87.

For the Chattel cannot be turned into an Inheritance; yet it is commonly assigned in Trust, that the Trustees should permit the Issue in Tail, &c. and to receive the Profits, which is an Intail in Effect. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1. — But if a Lease for Years comes then to be limited in Tail, the Law allows not a present Remainder to be limited thereon: It will allow a future Estate arising upon a Contingency, and to wear out in a short Time. Duke of Norfolk's Case, 3 Chan. Ca. 27.

Copyholds cannot be intailed by the Statute, yet Custom co-operating with the Statute, will Copyholds, make an Estate-tail, if not Custom only; for the Custom might have been before the Statute. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1. cites Inst. 60. a. b. Coke's Compl. Cop. §. 47, 48, 53. 3 Rep. 8. contra, Cro. Car. 42. 2 Saund. 422. 3 Lev. 327.

It is not sufficient Proof of such Custom, that Lands have been granted to many and the Heirs of their Bodies; for that may be a Fee conditional, as it was at Common Law: But

But if a Remainder has been limited and enjoyed, or if the Issues in Tail have avoided the Alienation of the Ancestor, &c. such are good Proofs of an Estate-tail. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1. p. 122.

As Copyholds by Custom may be intailed, they may by like Custom be cut off by Surrender. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 1. p. 122.

(E) By the Jus Coronæ.

UNDERSTAND, that concerning Descents there is a Law, Parcel of the Laws of England, called Jus Coronæ, which differs in many Things from the general Law concerning the Subject: As for Example, The King in any Suit for any Thing that pertains to the Crown shall not shew in certain his Cofinage as a Subject shall do, or as he himself shall do for Things touching his Duchy. Co. Lit. 15. b.

And in the Case of the King, if he has Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Venter, and a Son by another Venter, and purchases Lands, and dies, and the Eldest Son enters and dies without Issue, the Daughter shall not inherit these Lands, nor any other Fee-simple Lands of the Crown, but the Younger Brother shall have them. Co. Lit. 15. b.

Note, That neither possessio fratris does hold of Lands of the Possessions of the Crown, nor half Blood is no Impediment to the Descent of the Lands of the Crown, as it fell out in Experience after the Decease of King Edward the Sixth to Queen Mary, and from Queen Mary to Queen Elizabeth, both which were of the half Blood, and yet inherited not only the Lands which King Edward or Queen Mary purchased, but the ancient Lands, Parcel of the Crown also. Co. Lit. 15. b.

If a Man who is King by Descent of the Part of his Mother, purchases Lands to him and his Heirs, and dies without Issue, this Land shall descend to the Heir of the Part of the Mother; but in the Case of a Subject, the Heir of the Part of the Father shall have them. Co. Lit. 15. b.

So King Henry the Eighth purchased Lands to him and his Heirs, and died, having Issue two Daughters, the Lady Mary and the Lady Elizabeth; after the Decease of King Edward, the Eldest Daughter Queen Mary did inherit only, all his Lands in Fee-simple; for the Eldest Daughter or Sister of a King shall inherit all his Fee-simple Lands. Co. Lit. 15. b.

So it is if the King purchases Lands of the Custom of Gavelkind, and dies, having Issue divers Sons, the Eldest Son only shall inherit those Lands. Co. Lit. 15. b.

And the Reason of all these Cases is, for that the Quality of the Person does in these and many other like Cases alter the Descent, so as all the Lands and Possessions whereof the King is seised in Jure Coronæ, shall secundum jus Coronæ attend upon and follow the Crown; and therefore to whomsoever the Crown descends, those Lands and Possessions descend also; for the Crown and the Lands whereof the King is seised in jure Coronæ, are concomitantia. Co. Lit. 15. b.

If the right Heir of the Crown be attainted of Treason, yet shall the Crown descend to him, and eo instante (without any other Reversal) the Attainder is utterly avoided, as it fell out in the Case of Henry the Seventh. Co. Lit. 16. a.

And if the King purchases Lands to him and his Heirs, he is seised thereof in Jure Coronæ; à fortiori, when he purchases Land to him, his Heirs and Successors. Co. Lit. 16. a.

(F) By what Seisin Descents to the half Blood shall be defeated.

AN Estate-tail may descend to the half Blood, notwithstanding an actual Seisin in the half Blood before, for there he comes in by the Statute De Donis, and so as Heir to the Donee. 37 Aff. 15. adjudged. 32 E. 3. Discent 8. adjudged. 19 E. 2. Quare Impedit 177. 2 Danv. Abr. 560.

But an Estate in Fee shall not descend from him that is actually seised in Demesne of the Estate to his Brother, Sister, or Cousin of the half Blood. 37 Aff. 15. admitted. 40 Aff. 6. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 560.

If J. hath Issue two Sons by several Venters, and dies seised of Socage Land, and the Lord seises the Land to know who shall be his Tenant, and for the Safety of his Rent, and leases it for seven Years for the Sustenance of the Daughters of J. saving his Rent; this shall not make such a Seisin in the Eldest, but that after his Death the second Son shall have the Land. 34 Aff. 10. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 558, 559.

So if the Eldest Son, being an Infant, releases to the Abator after the Death of his Father, this does not make such a Seisin in him, but that it shall descend to the Youngest Son. 34 Aff. 10. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

But

But if the Eldest Son, being an Infant, enters upon the Abator, and makes a Feoffment, this shall bar the Youngest of the half Blood; for the Entry made a Seisin in him. 34 Aff. 10. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

If a Man leases for Life, rendring Rent, and dies; having Issue two Sons by several Venters, and the Eldest Son dies before the Rent-Day, the second Son shall have it as Heir to his Father, because the Eldest had not the actual Possession. 35 Aff. 2. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

But otherways it would have been if the Rent-Day had incurred in the Life of the Eldest, and if he had received the Rent; for this would have made an actual Seisin in him. 35 Aff. 2. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

If the Father makes a Lease for Years, and the Lessee enters and dies, the Eldest Son dies during the Term before Entry or Receipt of Rent, the Younger Son of the half Blood shall not inherit, but the Sister of the whole Blood, because the Possession of the Lessee for Years, is the Possession of the Eldest Son, so as he is actually seised of the Fee-simple, and consequently the Sister of the whole Blood is to be Heir. Co. Lit. 15. a.

If there be a Gift to the Baron and Feme in special Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Baron, and they have Issue, and the Feme dies, and the Baron takes another Feme, and hath Issue and dies, and the Eldest Son enters, and dies without Issue; the second Son of the half Blood shall have the Remainder, because the Eldest was not seised thereof in his Demesne. 37 Aff. 14. adjudged; but there the Reason is given because the Remainder did not commence till after the Gift. 24 Ed. 3. 30. b. 31. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

If Land be given to I. for Life, the Remainder to R. his Son in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of I. and I. dies, and R. enters as Tenant in Tail, and dies without Issue, T. the Son and Heir of I. of the half Blood to R. shall have the Land by Descent, and not the Heirs of R. because R. was never seised of the Fee in Demesne. 39 E. 3 Descents. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

So if a Gift be to another in Tail, the Remainder to his own right Heirs, and after the Donee dies, having Issue a Son by one Venter, and a Son by another, and the Eldest Son enters, and dies without Issue, his Brother of the half Blood shall have the Land by Force of the Remainder as Heir to his Father, because his Brother was not seised of this Estate in Demesne. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

So if the Eldest Son be seised in Tail, with a Remainder or Reversion by Descent to him from his Father in Fee, and dies without Issue, his Brother of the half Blood shall have this Remainder or Reversion by Descent, because his Brother was never seised thereof in Demesne. 32 E. 3. Descent 9. adjudged. 5 E. 3. Descent 14. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

If a Man seised of an Advowson in Gros hath Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Venter, and a Son by another, and dies, and the Eldest Son dies before any Presentation, the Youngest Brother shall have the Advowson, because the Elder never had any Seisin thereof. 3 H. 7. 5. 2 Danv. Abr. 559. Co. Lit. 15. b. S. P.

But if the Eldest had presented, and died without Issue, the Younger Brother should not have had the Advowson, because this Presentation put the Seisin in him. F. N. B. 36. eontra 19 E. 2. Quare Impedit 177. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 559.

If two Daughters by several Venters made Partition of an Advowson in Gros, to present by Turns, and after one dies without Issue, before any Presentation, the other shall have the Advowson, because there was no Seisin thereof. F. N. B. 24. E. 2 Danv. Abr. 560.

But otherwise it would have been if she that had died had presented after the Partition. F. N. B. 34 E. 2. 2 Danv. Abr. 560.

If Lands descend to two Coparceners, and they make Partition, being of the half Blood, and after one dies without Issue, the other shall not have it, because she ought to have it as Heir to her, and not as Heir to the Ancestor. Contra 19 E. 2. Quare Impedit 177. 2 Danv. Abr. 560.

If after the Entry of the Eldest Son, the Wife of the Father is endowed of a third Part, and then the Eldest dies, the Younger of the half Blood shall have the Reversion of the third Part; because the actual Seisin which the Elder Brother got, was by the Endowment defeated. Co. Lit. 15. a.

Otherwise if the Eldest Son, had made a Lease for Life, and the Lessee had endowed the Wife of the Father, Co. Lit. 15. a.

If the Eldest Son has a Reversion expectant upon a Freehold, and he grants it for Life, it shall cause a Possessio fratris. Co. Lit. 19. b.

If a Man devises Lands held by Knight-service to his Wife for Life, and after her Death, the Lands shall remain to the Heirs of the Body of the said Man, and not to the Heirs of the said Wife, because the said Man has a Reversion expectant upon the said Lands, and he grants it for Life, and after her Death, the Lands shall remain to the Heirs of the Body of the said Man, and not to the Heirs of the said Wife. (G) What

(G) What shall be an Impediment of a Descent.

(a) This must be intended without Issue. Dyer 48. pl. 16. Hob. 334. Cro. Car. 435. W. Jon. 34. Vide 1 Sid. 200. and 1 Vent. 415, 416, &c. Hale's Argument.

IF a Man hath Issue two Sons, and the Elder is attainted of Felony, and dies (a) in the Life of the Father, and after the Father dies seised of Lands, this shall descend to the second Son, or to the Daughters of the Father, if he hath no Son, for the Attainder of the Elder Son did not corrupt the Blood between the Younger Son and the Father. Co. Lit. 8. dubitatur. 27 E. 3. 77. b. 2 Danv. Abr. 554.

But if the Eldest Son being attainted of Felony, survives the Father, he shall be an Impediment to his Brother or next Heir to have the Land by Descent from the Father. 26 Aff. 2. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 555. And the Land shall escheat. Co. Lit. 13. a. 1 H. 4. Rotulo Parliamenti, Numero 132. a Petition was preferred, that where the Eldest Son during the Life of his Father is attainted, the next Brother might notwithstanding succeed as Heir to his Father; and to which it was answered by the King, *Let the Common Law run. 2 Danv. If a Man dies seised in Fee leaving Issue only two Daughters, one whereof was attainted of Felony in his Life-time, one Moiety shall descend to the one Daughter and the other Moiety shall escheat. Co. Lit. 163. b.

If a Man hath Issue an Eldest Son, born out of the Allegiance of the King, and after hath Issue a Younger Son born in the Realm, the Youngest Son shall be Heir to the Father, and the Eldest shall not be any Impediment to him, because the Eldest never had any inheritable Blood in him. Co. Lit. 8. a.

If a Man has Issue a Son, and is after attainted of Treason or Felony, and then obtains his Pardon, and has Issue another Son, if the Elder Son die, leaving the Father, the Younger shall inherit, for the Pardon restored the Blood as to all Issue begotten afterwards. Co. Lit. 8. a. 392. a.

But if the Eldest Son survives the Father, the Younger cannot be Heir, because he hath an Elder Brother, which by Possibility might have inherited. Co. Lit. 8. a. 392. a.

If the Heir of the Crown be attainted of Treason, yet shall the Crown descend to him, and eo instante, without other Reversal, the Attainder is utterly avoided, as it fell out in the Case of Hen. 7. Co. Lit. 16. a. 7 Co. 12. a.

But if there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Father is attainted of Treason or Felony, and after is pardoned, and dies, the Son shall not demand the Land as Heir of the Grandfather, (a) for the Bridge is broke, and as the Father himself was barred, so is the Son. Per Bromley and Portman, 2 Danv. Abr. 555.

And so if the Father had been an Alien, because the Son could only inherit Jure Repraesentationis. Sid. 195, 413. Vent. 416, 417, 418, 423.

But if the Grandfather be Tenant in Tail, the Land in such Case will descend to the Son, for the Attainder is no Corruption of Blood as to the Lands intailed. 3 Co. 10. b. 18 Co. 166. a. Per Formam Doni.

(H) In what Cases a Man shall be said to be in by Descent, or by Purchase.

IF a Man devises Lands to one that is his Heir, this is void, and it shall operate by Descent; Hob. Rep. 29. Counden's Case, for where there is not any Alteration of the Estate, by the Devise of the Estate which the Law gives to him, he shall be in by Descent, which by Intendment is more for his Advantage, as to take away an Entry, and for a Warranty, and is the more antient Title. *2 Danv. The Heir takes by Descent Lands devised to him charged without Alteration of the Estate. Ld. Raym. 728.

If a Man devises Lands to his Wife for Life, (so for Years. 2 Leon. 101. 3 Leon. 118. Hob. 30.) the Remainder to I. S. who is his next Heir, in Fee; this is a void Devise to I. S. and he shall be in after the Death of the Devisor by Descent; for the Alteration of the Estate in Reversion, which the Law gives him to a Remainder, which is given by the Devise, is not any Alteration of the Estate in Point of Estate, and therefore he shall be said to be in by Descent, which is the more antient and better Estate, and not by Purchase by way of Remainder. *Mich. 24 Car. When the Ancestor by any Gift or Conveyance takes an Estate of Freehold, and in the same Gift or Conveyance an Estate is limited immediately to his Heirs in Fee or in Tail, there the Words, his Heirs, are Words of Limitation, and not of Purchase, for his Heir shall be in by Descent. Co. Shelly, 104. 40 E. 3. 9. b. 45 E. 3. 19. 17 E. 3. 43. b. 64. Contra, 7 H. 4. 23. b. 2 Danv. Abr. 557.

So it will be if an Estate in Fee or in Tail to his right Heirs, be limited immediately. Co. Shelly, 104. 40 E. 3. 10. Adjudged 11 H. 4. 74. 24 E. 3. 36. 27 E. 3. 87. b. 2 Danv. Abr. 557.

But if a Lease is made to A. and B. and if A. dies before B. the Remainder to the Heirs of A. the Heirs of A. can take only by Purchase, for there was no Possibility that the Freehold and Fee could be conjoined in A. Lit. Rep. 258.

If a Copyholder of Inheritance surrenders it to the Use of another and his Heirs, and he to whom the Surrender is made dies before Admittance; and after the Lord admits his Heir, he shall be said in by Purchase, and not by Descent; for he is in by the Lord, for nothing was in his Father by the Surrender before Admittance. Trin. 40 El. b. Moore's Case. 2 Danv. Abr. 557.

If A. bargains and sells Land to B. in Fee for Money, and after dies before Inrolment of the Deed, and after the Deed is inrolled, his Heir shall be in by Descent; and if it be held in Capite, shall sue Livery if he be of full Age, and shall be in Ward if within Age; for upon the Inrolment it settles in the Bargainee, between the Bargainor and him, ab initio by the Statute of Uses; and the Statute of Inrolments says, that nothing shall pass except it be inrolled; so that if it is inrolled, it vests not by the Statute of Inrolments, but by the Statute of Uses. Hop. Rep. 136. Dimmock's Case. Cro. Jac. 408. Ow. 149, 150.

If A. being Tenant in Tail, has Issue two Sons, and the eldest having Issue a Daughter, dies, leaving his Wife priviment enseint of a Son; and after A. covenants to suffer a Recovery to the Use of himself for Life, the Remainder to C. and D. for twenty-four Years, the Remainder to the Heirs Male of the Body of A. and dies at five in the Morning, and the Recovery passes the same Day, and an Habere facias seisinam is immediately awarded, and in a few Days after executed, and the youngest Son enters, and after the Wife of the eldest is delivered of a Son; he may enter upon the youngest; for the youngest taking what his Ancestor would have done if he had lived, he shall take it by Descent, and not by Purchase. Trin. 23 Eliz. Shelly's Case, Co. 93, 94, &c. adjudged 98. Several Cases put upon the same Reason. And Moor 136. pl. 281. the same Case adjudged; for when the Heir takes that which his Ancestor would have taken if living, he shall take it by Descent, and not by Purchase. And 69. S. C. adjudged.

If a Man having only two Daughters his Heirs, devises his Lands to them and their Heirs; they take as Jointenants, and not as Coparceners, for the Devise giveth it them in another Degree than the Common Law would have given it them, and for the Benefit of the Survivorship between them. Mich. 37 Eliz. 431. per tot. Cur. 2 Danv. Abr. 558. 3 Lev. 127, 128. Owen 65. But

But if the Devise had been to one of them, and her Heirs, she should have taken the whole by Devise, and nothing by Descent, for her Title was intire. Per Dodderidge, Palm. 373. 2 Roll. Rep. 352. and Vide 2 Sid. 79.

If the Devise be to them and their Heirs, equally to be divided between them, Share and Share alike, they are Tenants in Common. 2 Sid. 53, 78, 79. Et vide Godb. 362, 363. 3 Leon. 25, 26. Goulds. 88.

And if a Man devises Land to his Son and Heir apparent, and a Stranger, they are Jointenants for the Benefit of the Stranger. Per Cur. Godb. 94. Owen 65.

If a Man devises Lands to his eldest Son, and his Heirs, paying 20*l.* a-piece to his younger Children, at their Ages of twenty-one Years, and upon Non-payment of the Legacies, devises the Lands to his younger Children, and their Heirs; the eldest Son is in by Descent, and there is no Limitation or Condition annexed to his Estate. Adjudged Hill. 41 Eliz. Hamsworth and Pretty, Moor 644. pl. 891. The first Devise to the eldest Son and his Heirs in Fee being no more than the Law gave him, was void; but the Devise to the younger upon his Non-payment was good by way of future or executory Devise. Same Case Cro. El. 833, 919, 920.

If a Man devises Lands to his eldest Son and Heir, and his Heirs, upon Condition that he shall pay his Debts within a Year, and if he fails, that his Executors shall sell the Lands, and pay his Debts, and dies; the Son hath it as a Purchaser, being tied with a Condition. Adjudged Mich. 5 Car. Gilpin's Case, Cro. Car. 161.

If a Man being seised of Lands on the Part of his Mother, devises them to his Executors for sixteen Years, and after to one who is his Heir a parte materna, he shall take by Descent, for the Descent to the Heir a parte paterna or materna is but a Consequent dependant upon the Nature of the Estate. Trin. 35 Car. 2. between Hedger and Row, 3 Lev. 127. adjudged; though it was objected it was better for him to take by Purchase, for then the Heirs of the Part of the Father might inherit before the Heirs of the Part of the Mother, and so both Heirs would be inheritable.

(I) Of Descents which take away Entries.

DESCENTS which toll Entries are in two Manners, to wit, where the Descent is in Fee, or in Fee-Tail. Lit. §. 385.

(a) That is of such Tenements as be corporeal, and lie in Livery; and not of Inheritances which lie in Grant, for

Descents in Fee which toll Entries are, as if a Man seised of certain Lands or (a) Tenements is by (b) another disseised, and the Disseisor has Issue, and (c) dies seised of such Estate; now the Lands descend to the Issue of the Disseisor by Course of Law. And because the Law casts the Lands or Tenements upon the Issue by Force of the Descent, so as the Issue comes to the Lands by Course of Law, and not by his own Act, the Entry of the Disseisee is taken away, and he is put to sue a Writ of Entry sur Disseisin against the Heir of the Disseisor, to recover the Land. Lit. §. 385. But vide the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 33. post.

Descents of them do not put him who has Right, to an Action: And the Reason of this Diversity is, for that Houses serve for the Habitation of Men, and Lands to be manured for their Sustainance, and therefore the Heir after a Descent shall not be molested or disturbed in them by Entry. Co. Lit. 237. b. (b) The like Law is of an Abatement or Intrusion, and of their Feoffees or Donees, &c. Co. Lit. 237. b. (c) A dying seised is necessary. Co. Lit. 237. b.

Descents in Tail which take away Entries are, as if a Man be disseised, and the Disseisor gives the same Land to another in Tail, and the Tenant in Tail has Issue, and dies of such Estate seised, and the Issue enters, in this Case the Entry of the Disseisee is taken away, and he is put to sue against the Issue of the Tenant in Tail, a Writ of Entry sur Disseisin. Lit. §. 386.

In ancient Time, if the Disseisor had been in long Possession, the Disseisee could not have entered upon him. Likewise the Disseisee could not have entered upon the Feoffee of the Disseisor, if he had continued a Year and a Day in quiet Possession. But the Law is changed in both these Cases, only the dying seised being an Act in Law, does hold at this Day; and this seems to be very ancient, for this was the Law before the Conquest. Co. Lit. 237. b.

One of the Reasons of this ancient Law may be, that the Heir cannot suddenly, by Intendment of Law, know the true State of his Title; and for that many Advantages follow the Possession and Tenant, the Law takes away the Entry of him who would not enter upon the Ancestor, who is presumed to know his Title; and drives him to his Action against the Heir who may be ignorant thereof. Ibid.

At the Common Law, if the Disseisor, Abator or Intruder, had died seised soon after the Wrong done, the Disseisee and his Heirs had been barred of his and their Entry without any Time limited by Law. Co. Lit. 238. a.

But

But now by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 33. Reciting, that whereas divers have entered by Strength, and without Title, &c. it is enacted, that except such Disseisor has been in the peaceable Possession of such Manors, Lands, &c. whereof he shall die seised by the space of five Years next after such Disseisin, &c. without Entry or continual Claim, &c. that there such dying seised, &c. shall not take away the Entry of such Person or Persons, &c.

But after the five Years the Disseisee must make continual Claim. Co. Lit. 238. a.

And it is said, that Abators and Intrudors are out of this Statute, because the Statute is Penal, and extends only to a Disseisor, and that was the most common Mischief. Et ad ea quæ frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur. Co. Lit. 238. a.

The Feoffee of a Disseisor is out of the said Statute, and remains as at the Common Law. Co. Lit. 238. a.

But to a Disseisor the Statute is taken favourably for Advancement of ancient Right; for whether the Disseisin be without Force or with Force, it is within the Statute. Co. Lit. 238. a.

And although the Statute speaks of him that at the Time of such Descent had Title of Entry, &c. or his Heirs, yet the Successors of Bodies Politick or Corporate, so you hold yourself to a Disseisin, are within the Remedy of this Statute; for the Statute extends clearly to the Predecessor, being disseised, and consequently, without naming of his Successor, extends to him, for he is the Person at the Time of such Descent had Title of Entry. Co. Lit. 238. a.

If a Lessee for Life is disseised, and the Disseisor dies seised within five Years, the Lessee for Life may enter; but if he dies before he enters, it is said, that the Entry of him in Reversion is not lawful, because his Entry was not lawful upon the Disseisor at the Time of the Descent, as the Statute speaks. But if the Lessee for Life had died first, and then the Disseisor had died seised, he in the Reversion had been within the Remedy of the Statute, because he had Title of Entry at the Time of the Descent, as the Statute speaks, and so within the expresse Letter of the Statute, although the Disseisin was not immediate to him; and the like is to be said of a Remainder, &c. Co. Lit. 238. a.

If a Disseisor make a Gift in Tail, and the Donee discontinues, and disseises the Discontinuee, and dies seised, the Entry of the Disseisee is not taken away, for the Descent of the Fee-simple is vanished and gone by the Remitter, and the Issue is in by Force of the Estate-Tail, of which the Donee did not die seised. Co. Lit. 238. b. In what Cases.

If a Man be disseised in Time of Peace, and a Descent cast in the Time of War, this will not take away the Entry of the Disseisee. Co. Lit. 249. b.

If a Disseisor takes Husband, has Issue, and dies seised, and after the Husband dies, and the Issue enters, &c. the Disseisee may enter, for that the Issue came not to the Land immediately by Descent after the Death of his Mother, but by the Death of his Father. Lit. §. 394. Where the Descent is immediate. And the Estate of the Tenant by Curtesy commenced by having Issue, and was consummate by the Death of the Wife, so as the Fee and Freehold did not after the Death of the Wife immediately descend to the Heir. Co. Lit. 241. b.

If the Disseisor dies without Heir, his Wife being enseint, and after the Issue is born, and enters into the Land, though he has it by Descent, yet the Entry of the Disseisee is not taken away, because the Issue came not to the Land immediately by Descent. Co. Lit. 241.

If a Man recovers against another that is seised in Fee, and after the Recoverer dies seised, and it descends to his Heir, yet this Descent shall not take away the Entry of the Recoveror, because he had but a Title of the Entry, and the Entry is to execute the Judgment, and so relates to it, being executory against the Heir that is privy to the Judgment, and so relates to it, being executory against the Heir that is privy to the Judgment, that it binds the Blood. *2 Danv. So if the Recovery be against Tenant in Tail that dies seised, this Descent to the Issue shall not take away the Entry of the Recoveror, for the Cause aforesaid. 33 E. 3. Entry Congeable 51. 2 Danv. Abr. 561.

So if I acknowledge the Right to another by Fine, and he grants and renders it to me again, and after dies seised, this Descent shall not take away my Entry, because the Fine was executory; (it seems 33 E. 3. Entry congeable 51. is intended of a Fine come ceo which is executed.) 2 Danv. Abr. 561.

If a Man recovers against A. who after dies, having Issue Bastard eigne and Mulier puisne, and the Bastard enters and dies seised, and this descends to his Issue, this Descent shall not take away the Entry of the Recoveror, for the Continuance of the Bastard hath made him as Heir, and so privy to the Recovery. 5 H. 7. 2. But Quare, the Issue himself cannot bastardize his Father. 2 Danv. Abr. 561.

If a Man recovers Land, and after a Stranger to the Recovery dies seised, yet this shall not take away the Entry of the Recoveror, because it was but a Title, and the Title relates to execute the Recovery of the Judgment. 2 Danv. Abr. 561.

If a Man recovers against another, and enters and sues Execution, and after the Recoveree disseises him, and dies seised, this Descent shall take away the Entry of the Recoveror, for the Recovery was executed, and cannot be returned again; and this is a puisne Title. 2 Danv. Abr. 561. Co. Lit. 238. 3 E. 4. 7. contra. 10 H. 7. 5. b. Fitz. Title 36. Quere 7 H. 7. 15. 5 H. 7. 31. b. Vide Kelw. 46, 170. a. b.

If after Recovery against Tenant for Life he dies, and he in Remainder enters before Execution, and dies seised, the Entry of the Recoveror is not taken away, because he is privy in Estate. Co. Lit. 238. a.

Of what Things a De-
Entry.

If a Copyholder in Fee in facto upon an Admittance dies seised of a Copyhold, and it descends to his Heir, yet it shall not take away the Entry of another that has Right to the Copyhold. Mich. 15 Jac. B. R. between Lee and Browne, agreed per Curiam, upon Evidence at the Bar, 2 Danv. Abr. 561. Same Point adjudged in Gravenor and Ted, 4 Co. 23. Popb. 35. because coming in by Admittance of the Lord, his Occupation can be no Tort to him; and the Estate of which he died seised, by the Common Law, was only an Occupation at Will. Et vide 4 Co. 22. a. *Cro. A Descent of such Things as lie in Grant, as Advowsons, Rents, Commons in Grofs, &c. put not him that has Right, to an Action. Co. Lit. 237. b.

Estates.

Descents which take away Entries, may be of Estates in Fee or in Tail. Lit. §. 385, 386, 388. See before, p. 36.

A dying seised for Term of Life, or for Term of another's Life, does never take away an Entry. Lit. §. 387.

If a Disseisor leases to A. and his Heirs during the Life of J. S. and A. dies, living J. S. this takes not away the Entry of the Dissee, because the Dying seised was of a Freehold only, and Heirs were added to prevent an Occupancy. Co. Lit. 239. a.

But if the Reversioner disseises the Tenant for Life, and dies seised, this Descent shall take away the Entry of the Tenant for Life. Co. Lit. 239. But not of a Stranger. Hob. 323.

If the Disseisor of the King's Tenant for Life dies seised, this takes not away the Entry of the Tenant for Life, because the Disseisor had but an Estate of Freehold during the Life of the Lessee.

If the Disseisor of an Infant dies seised, and after the Infant comes of Age, and the Heir of the Disseisor dies before Entry, though he died not seised of an actual Seisin, but of a Seisin in Law, and in Pleading the second Heir must make himself Heir to the Disseisor, yet this dying seised takes away the Entry of the Dissee.

If a Disseisor leases for Years, and dies seised of the Reversion, the Entry of the Dissee is taken away, because he died seised of the Fee and Freehold.

Otherways if he had leased for Life, &c.

If a Disseisor leases for his own Life, and dies, the Entry of the Dissee is not taken away, for though the Fee and Freehold descends to the Heir of the Disseisor, yet the Disseisor died not seised of the Fee and Freehold. Co. Lit. 239. a. b.

by.

A Descent shall not take away the Entry of an Infant. Lit. §. 402.

Nor of a Feme Covert, where the Wrong was done to her during the Coverture. Lit. §. 403.

But if a Feme Sole is disseised, and then takes Husband, and the Disseisor dies seised, and her Husband dies, she cannot enter, for it shall be accounted her Folly to take such a Husband as would not enter before a Descent.

Otherways if the Woman was under Age when she took Husband. Co. Lit. 246. a. b.

It shall not take away the Entry of one that is Non compos. Lit. §. 405.

Nor of him that is disseised, and a Descent cast while he is in Prison. Lit. §. 436.

So if out of the Realm. Lit. §. 440.

But if disseised while at large, and a Descent is cast during his Imprisonment, it will bind him. Co. Lit. 259. a. Lit. Rep. 88.

So if disseised, being in the Realm, and a Descent is cast while he is out of the Realm. Co. Lit. 261. b.

If being disseised when out of the Realm, he returns into the Realm, and after goes out of the Realm, and then the Disseisor dies, &c. Vide Dyer 143. pl. 57. Quere. Et vide And. 311.

If the Lord of a Manor leases it to one for Life, and a Tenant of the Manor dies without Heir, and a Stranger enters, and dies seised, and the Tenant for Life dies, &c. the Descent binds the Lord; for it was his Folly that he would lease the Manor to one that would not enter. Kelw. 144. per Keble, who said he might have a Writ of Escheat. 2 Danv. Abr. 564.

When

Where such Lessor might make continual Claim, and consequently for want thereof shall be bound by the Descent, vide Co. Lit. 250. b. Et vide W. Jones 324. and of Continual Claim, post. 40.

If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition, and B. is disseised, and the Disseisor dies seised, and the Condition is broke either before or after the Descent, the Entry of A. is not taken away, for the Estate is subject to the Condition into whose Hands soever it comes. Lit. §. 391, 392. The Title of Entry in the Feoffor or Donor, that hath but a Condition (so of a Title of Entry upon a Limitation. Cro. El. 920. Noy 51. Or Power given by Will to sell Lands. Kelw. 40. b.) cannot be taken away by any Descent, because he has no Remedy by Action to recover the Land; and if a Descent should take away his Entry, it should bar him for ever. Co. Lit. 240. a. And the Condition remains in the same Essence it was at the Time of the Creation, and cannot be devested and put out of Possession as Lands, &c. Co. Lit. 240. b.

So he that has Title to enter upon a Mortmain shall not be barred by a Descent, because then he should be without Remedy. Co. Lit. 240. b. 1 Leon. 210.

And if A. devises Lands to B. and dies, and the Heir of A. enters, and dies seised before any Entry made by B. this Descent shall not take away the Entry of B. for if it should take away his Entry, it should bar him of his Right, and leave him utterly without Remedy.

So of him that has Title to enter for Consent to a Ravishment of the Patentee of the King, &c. Co. Lit. 240. b.

But where Lands were devisable by Custom, a Man might have a Writ of Ex gravi querela, without any particular Usage, as incident to the Custom; and a Descent in such Case should have bound the Devisee. Co. Lit. 111. a.

If a Man dies seised of Lands, his Wife being privement enseint of a Son, and a Stranger abates, and dies seised, and after the Son is born, he shall not be bound by the Descent, because at that Time he had no Right to enter. Co. Lit. 245. b.

The Entry of Tenant for Years, Tenant by Statute-Merchant, &c. that have but Chattel, is not taken away by any Descent, for by their Entry upon the Heir they take no Freehold from him. Co. Lit. 249. a.

If a Man having Issue two Sons, dies seised of Lands in Fee-simple, and the younger Son enters by Abatement, hath Issue, and dies seised, the Entry of the Elder, or his Issue, is not taken away, for it shall be presumed the younger entred claiming by the same Title, viz. as Heir to his Father. Lit. §. 396. So though many Descents are cast in his Line, yet may the eldest or his Heirs enter. Co. Lit. 242. b.

And admit that the youngest Son be of the half Blood to his Brother, yet he is of the whole Blood to his Father, and therefore if he enters by Abatement, and dies seised, it shall not bar his elder Brother of his Entry.

But if the youngest Son makes a Feoffment in Fee, and the Feoffee dies seised, that Descent shall take away the Entry of the Elder, because the Privy of Blood fails. Co. Lit. 242. b.

But if the elder Son enters after the Death of his Father, and the younger disseises him, has Issue, and dies seised, the Entry of the Elder is taken away, for entering by Disseisin upon his Brother, it cannot be intended he claimed as Heir to his Father, any more than if a Stranger had disseised the elder Brother. Lit. §. 397.

So if a Stranger abates, and the Younger disseises him, and dies seised, &c.

But if Lands are given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and they have Issue a Daughter, and the Wife dies, and the Husband has Issue a Son by another Wife, and dies, and the Son abates, and dies seised; this Descent takes away the Entry of the Daughter, because they claimed not by one Title. Co. Lit. 242. b.

So if the Father leases for Life, and dies, and the Tenant for Life dies, and the younger Son intrudes, and dies seised; the Entry of the Elder is not taken away.

If for Years, &c. the Possession of the Lessee makes an actual Freehold in the Eldest. Co. Lit. 243.

(K) Where an Entry taken away by Descent shall be revived.

IF a Disseisor makes a Gift in Tail, and the Donee hath Issue, and dies seised without Issue, so as the Estate-tail which descended is spent, the Entry of the Disseisee is revived. Co. Lit. 238. b. But if the Disseisor dies seised, and the Heir of the Disseisor dies without Heir, the Disseisee cannot enter upon the Land by Escheat. Co. Lit. 240. a.

So if the Son disseises one, and enfeoffs the Grandfather, who dies seised, and the Lands descend to the Father, now is the Entry of the Disseisee taken away; but if the Father after dies seised, and the Lands descend to the Son, the Entry of the Disseisee is revived. Co. Lit. 238. b.

So

(a) Comes to the Land again either by Descent or Purchase.
Co. Lit. 242. a.

So if after such Descent cast, the Disseisor (a) takes back an Estate for Life or in Fee, the Disseisee may enter upon him. Co. Lit. 238. b.

Though he takes back but an Estate for Life, yet when the Disseisee enters upon him, he shall devert the Reversion; for the Estate of Freehold is that whereupon a Præcipe lies, and the Entry of the Disseisee is as available in Law as if he had recovered in a Præcipe. Co. Lit. 241. a.

If a Disseisor leases to an Infant for Life, and he is disseised, and a Descent cast, and the Infant enters, the Disseisee may enter upon him. Co. Lit. 238. b.

If after a Descent cast, the Heir of the Disseisor, &c. endows the Wife of the Disseisor of a third Part, the Disseisee may enter into this third Part, for the Wife shall not be in by the Heir, but immediately by her Husband by Title paramount the Descent; and therefore, in Judgment of Law, the Freehold and Possession which the Heir had by the Descent, is taken away by the Endowment. Co. Lit. 241. a.

If after the dying seised of the Disseisor the Disseisee abates, and the Wife of the Disseisor recovers Dower against him by Confession in a Writ of Dower, though the Descent be avoided, yet the Disseisee cannot enter upon the Tenant in Dower, because the Recovery was against himself. Co. Lit. 241. a. But if he had assigned her Dower in pais, some say he should have entered upon her.

If an Infant being a Disseisor aliens in Fee, and the Alienee dies seised, and the Infant enters upon the Heir of the Alienee, the Disseisee may enter upon him; for by the Entry of the Infant the Descent is defeated. Lit. §. 407, 408.

If the Disseisor makes a Feoffment upon Condition, and the Feoffee dies seised, and the Feoffor enters upon the Heir for Breach of the Condition, the Disseisee may enter upon him, because by the Entry of the Disseisor he is utterly defeated. Lit. §. 409.

(L) How a Descent to take away an Entry may be prevented, viz. By continual Claim.

Continual Claim, what.
(a) And yet in some Cases it may be made by him who has Right, and cannot enter.
Co. Lit. 250. b.
(b) This is to be understood in this Manner: That if

CONTINUAL Claim is where a Man has (a) Right and Title to enter into Lands or Tenements whereof another is seised in Fee, or in Fee-tail, if he who has Title to enter makes continual Claim to the Lands or Tenements, before the dying seised of him who holds the Tenements, then although such Tenant dies thereof seised, and the Lands or Tenements descend to his Heirs, (b) yet may he who has made such continual Claim, or his Heir, enter into the Lands or Tenements so descended by reason of the continual Claim made, notwithstanding the Descent. As in Case a Man be disseised, and the Disseisee makes continual Claim to the Tenements in the Life of the Disseisor, although the Disseisor dies seised in Fee, and the Land descend to his Heir, yet the Disseisee may enter upon the Possession of the Heir notwithstanding the Descent. Lit. §. 414.

the Father makes Claim, and the Disseisor dies, and then the Father dies, that his Heir may enter, because the Descent was cast in the Father's Time, and the Right of Entry which the Father gained by his Claim, shall descend to his Heir. But if the Father makes continual Claim, and dies, and the Son makes no continual Claim, and within the Year and Day after the Claim made by the Father, the Disseisor dies, this shall take away the Entry of the Son, for the Descent was cast in his Time, and the Claim made by the Father shall not avail him, who might have claimed himself. Co. Lit. 250. b.

Where to be made.

Where an Entry into Part shall be an Entry into the Whole, vide p. 7.

How.

(a) Every fear is not sufficient, it must concern the Safety of the Person,

If a Man has Title to enter and dares not, for (a) fear of being beat, maimed, or killed, then he may go as near as he dares to the Lands, and by Word claim the same to be his; presently by such Claim he has a Possession and Seisin in the Lands, as well as if he had (b) entred indeed, although he never had Possession or Seisin thereof before. Lit. §. 419.

and not Houses or Goods, for he may recover Damages for them; and it must not be a vain Fear, but such as may befall a constant Man; as if the adverse Party lie in wait in the Way with Weapons or by Words menace, to beat, mayhem or kill him that would enter. Co. Lit. 253. b. (b) This is an Entry in Law, and shall vest the Possession and Seisin in him for his Advantage, but not for his Disadvantage. Co. Lit. 253. b.

When.

(a) The Day on which the Claim is made is to be accounted one.
Co. Lit. 255. a.

If he who occupies the Land die seised in Fee or in Fee-tail within a (a) Year and a Day after such Claim, whereby the Lands descend to his Son as Heir to him, yet he who made the Claim may enter upon the Possession of the Heir, &c. Lit. §. 422.

But if the Father died seised after the Year and the Day, then he who made the Claim could not enter; therefore if he would be sure his Entry should not be taken away by such Descent, &c. he should have made another Claim within a Year and a Day after the making the first Claim, and in like Manner a third Claim, and so on, making a Claim within every Year and Day next after every Claim made, during the Life of his Adversary, and then at what

But this Time of a Year and Day is, since Littleton wrote, altered by the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 33. before mentioned p. 36.

The Lessor upon a Lease for Life or Years may enter to make Claim. Co. Lit. 250. b. Who may make it.
If the Disseisee made continual Claim, and the Disseisor died seised within the Year, his Heir being within Age, and the King by Office was intitled to the Wardship, though the Entry of the Disseisee was not lawful, yet might he make continual Claim to avoid a Descent. Co. Lit. 250. b.

If there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder over, and Tenant for Life makes a Claim, In what Cases the Claim made by one, shall serve for another. and after the Disseisor, or he that is seised, &c. dies seised within the Year, and after the Lessee dies before Entry, yet he in Remainder shall have Advantage of this Claim, because he himself could not have made a Claim, and the Descent shall not bind the Lessee; and therefore shall not bind the Remainder. Lit. §. 416.

So in case of a Reversion. Co. Lit. 252. a.

But it seems in this Case, that if the Lessee for Life makes a Claim, and dies, and after the Disseisor dies seised within the Year, that this Descent shall bind the Remainder, because he might have made a Claim after the Death of the Lessee, and he is not privy to the Claim of the Lessee not coming under him, and the Claim ought to be continuing till the Death, which is not here; Ergo,

If two Joint-tenants are disseised, and one makes Claim, and after the Disseisor dies seised within the Year, it seems this shall not take away the Entry of the other Joint-tenant, but that this Claim by one shall serve for both, because the Entry of one is the Entry of both, and otherwise there would be a Severance of the Jointure, which cannot be by such an Act. Co. Lit. 252. a. 2 Danv. Abr. 562.

But it seems in this Case, that if that Joint-tenant that made a Claim dies, and after the Disseisor dies seised within the Year after the Claim made, that this Descent shall take away the Entry of the Survivor for the Whole; for that though the Claim of one should serve for both during their Lives, by a Consequence to avoid the Severance of the Jointure, yet this Mischief is not in this Case, and the Survivor comes paramount the Claim, and so not privy to it, and so the Claim is determined before the Death of the Disseisor, and as it seems the Claim ought to continue till the dying seised. But Quære this, for it hath been argued for a Point. 2 Danv. Abr. 562.

If the Tenant be disseised, and make continual Claim, and dies without Heir, and after the Disseisor dies seised within the Year, this shall bind the Lord by Escheat, because he comes paramount the Claim, and not in Privy thereof; and he might have made a Claim after the Escheat. 2 Danv. Abr. 562.

If the Baron makes a continual Claim, and dies, and after the Disseisor dies seised within the Year after the Claim, yet it seems the Wife shall be bound, because she is not privy to the Claim, nor comes under it, and she herself might have made a Claim: But quære this. 2 Danv. Abr. 562.

If the Father be disseised, and makes continual Claim, and dies, and after the Disseisor dies seised within the Year after the Claim, yet this shall not bind the Heir of the Father, because he comes in under the Father, and in Privy of Blood and Estate, and therefore he shall have Advantage of the Claim of the Father, without any new Claim by himself. 9 H. 4. 5. Curia. Br. Continual Claim 1. Lit. §. 421. Admit the Claim shall serve for him and his Heirs. Contra 15 Ed. 4. 22. 2 Danv. Abr. 562, 563.

The Claim made by the Father shall never avail him who might have made Claim himself.

Where the Descent is cast in the Time of the Father, the Right of Entry which the Father gained by his Claim descends to his Son. Co. Lit. 250. b.

(M) What Things shall descend to the Heir or Executor.

IF a Nobleman, Knight, Esquire, &c. be buried in a Church, and have his Coat of Armour and Pennons, with his Arms and such other Ensigns of Honour as belong to his Degree or Order, set up in the Church, or if a Gravestone or Tomb be laid or made, &c. for a Monument of him; in this Case although the Freehold of the Church be in the Parson, and these are annexed to the Freehold, yet Parson or any other cannot take them or deface them, but he is subject to an Action to the Heir, and his Heirs, in Honour and Memory of whose Ancestor they were set up. *Mich. 10 Jac. B. Pym's Case. Per Cur. 2 Danv. Abr. 552. Co. Lit. 18. b. (Godb. 199, 200. S. C. and S. P. cited. 12 Co. 104. S. C. and S. In some Places Chattels, as Heirlooms (as the best Bed, Table, Pot, Pan, Cart, and other dead Chattels moveable) go to the Heir, and he may have an Action for them at Common Law, and shall not sue for them in the Ecclesiastical Court, but the Heirloom is due by Custom, and not by the Common Law. And the ancient Jewels of the Crown are Heirlooms, and shall descend to the next Successor, and are not devisable by Testament. Co. Lit. 18. b.

(N) What Person may or may not be Heir to another; and to whom.

1. In General. A Bastard cannot be an Heir, for est nullius Filius. Co. Lit. 8. a. 123. a. Sid. 200. 2 Sid. 52. Noy 162.

Bastard Brothers cannot be Heir one to another. 43 E. 3. 2. b. 2 Danv. Abr. 552.

A Monster which has not the Shape of Mankind, cannot be Heir or inherit any Land, though it be brought forth in Marriage, but although he be deformed in any Part, yet if he has human Shape, he may be Heir. Hii qui contra formam humani generis converso more procreantur, ut si mulier monstrosus, vel prodigiosus enixa, inter liberos non computentur, partus tamen cui natura aliquantulum ampliaverit vel diminuerit, non tamen superabundanter (ut si sex digitos, vel nisi quatuor habuerit) bene debet inter liberos connumerari. Si inutilia natura reddidit, ut si membra tortuosa habuerit, non tamen is partus Monstrosus. Another saith ampliatio seu diminutio Membrorum non nocet. Co. Lit. 7. b. 8. a.

A Man seised of Lands in Fee has Issue an Alien born out of the King's Legiance, he cannot be Heir, propter defectum subjectionis, although he be born within lawful Marriage.

If made a Denizen by the King's Letters Patent, yet he cannot inherit to his Father or any other. Co. Lit. 8. a.

But it is otherwise if he be naturalized by Act of Parliament, for then he is not accounted in Law alienigena, but indigena. Co. Lit. 8. a.

The Denization of two Brothers cannot make them inheritable the one to the other. Sid. 195. Vide Vent. 418, 419.

If a Man be attainted of Treason or Felony, although he be born within Wedlock, he can be Heir to no Man, nor any Man Heir to him, propter delictum; for by the Attainder his Blood is corrupted. And this Corruption of Blood is so high, as it cannot absolutely be salved and restored but by Act of Parliament. Co. Lit. 8. a.

If the Issue in Tail be attainted of Felony, and after his Father dies, he cannot enter into the Lands, in respect of the Corruption of Blood upon the Attainder of himself. Co. Lit. 391. b. 392. a.

But if one attainted is pardoned, the Blood is restored, as to such Issue as are born afterwards. Co. Lit. 8. a. 392. a. But having Respect to those whose Blood was corrupted at the Time of the Attainder, the Pardon removes not the Corruption of Blood either upward or downward. Co. Lit. 392. a.

Ideots, Lepers, Madman, Outlaws in Debt, Trespas, or the like, Persons excommunicated, Men attained in a Præmunire, or convicted of Heresy, may be Heirs. Co. Lit. 8. a.

2. By Matter subsequent. A Bastard may be Heir against a Stranger by Continuance. 43 E. 3. 32. 2 Danv. Abr. 553. Otherwise where the Continuance of the Possession is interrupted by the Mulier. Co. Lit. 245. a.

The Issue of a Bastard Eigne may be Heir against the Mulier or Stranger, by his Father's Continuance of the Possession to his Death. Co. Lit. 243. b. 244. a.

And though the Issue of a Bastard endows the Wife of the Bastard, yet is not the Entry of the Mulier lawful upon Tenant in Dower, for his Right was barred by the Descent. Co. Lit. 244. 8 Co. 101. b.

An Hermaphrodite that is as well Male as Female, shall be Heir either as Male or Female.

If an Alien be made a Denizen, the Issue which he has after shall inherit him, but not the Issue that he has before. Co. Lit. 8. a.

If an Alien has Issue in England two Sons, these Sons are Denizens, and yet the one of them cannot be Heir to the other of them, because there never was any inheritable Blood between between the Father and them, and where the Sons could by no Possibility be Heir to the Father, the one of them shall not be Heir to the other. Co. Lit. 8. a. Vide Palm. 18. Same Point arguendo, con. 2 Sid. 150. Same Point per Glyn C. J. con. In Collingwood and Pais's Case, Lev. 60. same Point cited; and the same Point was in the Exchequer Chamber agreed by seven Judges against three to be otherwise, for that in a Mordancesthor he might make Title as Heir to his Brother, without mentioning his Father. Sid. 198. same Point adjudged by all the Judges in the Exchequer Chamber, except three, this being said to be the same as the principal Point there, viz. where two Sons of an Alien were naturalized, &c.

If a Man has Issue two Sons, and after is attainted of Treason or Felony, and one of the Sons purchases Lands and dies without Issue, the other Brother shall be his Heir, for the Attainder of the Father corrupts the lineal Blood only, and not the collateral Blood between the Brethren, which was vested in them before the Attainder, and each of them by Possibility might have been Heir to the Father. Adjudged Mich. 40 & 41 Eliz. Hobby's Case in Scaccario. Co. Lit. 8. a. 4 Leon. 5. Palm. 19. Vide Noy 158, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 93. Cro. Car. 543. Lit. Rep. 28. 2 Sid. 25, 27. Cro. Jac. 539. Vent. 425.

But some have holden, that if a Man be attainted of Treason or Felony, and after has Issue two Sons, they cannot be Heir one to the other, because they never could be Heir to their Father, nor ever had any inheritable Blood in them. Co. Lit. 8. a. Contra, Sid. 201. and in 2 Sid. 248. the same Point is cited by Newdigate J. and denied, and said, that my Lord Coke confutes himself, fo. 84. where he says, that if Feme Tenant in Chivalry marries an Alien, by whom she has Issue, is inheritable; and yet such Issue cannot have two Bloods in him, his Mother being an Alien. Vide Co. Lit. 84. b. where it is admitted such Issue shall be in Ward to the Lord; which could not be, if not capable of taking by Descent. And in Co. Lit. 12. it is said, that ancient Authors have said, that if a Man be seised of Lands in the Right of his Wife, and attainted of Felony, and after has Issue, this Issue shall not inherit. But for this vide 3 Co. 41. a. b. Noy 159, 166, 168. Lit. Rep. 28. Sid. 200. Vent. 422.

He who is born deaf and dumb, may be Heir to another.

So may he who is born deaf, dumb and blind. Co. Lit. 8. a.

If an Alien has Issue A. born in Flanders, and comes into England, and is made a Denizen, and after has Issue B. and dies, and A. is naturalized by Act of Parliament, and it is thereby enacted, (a) that A. shall be enabled to purchase, inherit and enjoy, as Heir to any Ancestor lineal or collateral, and (b) shall be adjudged a natural Subject of England in every Respect to all Intents and Purposes, and A. after purchases Copyhold Lands, and dies without Issue, B. shall inherit. Adjudged, though objected, that it was enacted, that A. should be Heirs to his Ancestors lineal and collateral; but that it was not said, that they should be Heirs to him; and at the Death of his Father, A. had no inheritable Blood in him. And it was answered, that the Blood was not the Cause of the Disability, but the Place of his Birth, for the Law respects not the Blood where there is no Allegiance. Trin. 17 Jac. Godfrey and Dixon, Cro. Jac. 539. and in Palm. 13, & 14, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 92, &c. 113. S. C. adjudged Godb. 275. S. C. adjournatur. Sid. 201. Vent. 428. cited.

If an Alien has Issue A. B. and C. Aliens, and B. and C. are naturalized, and B. purchases Lands in Fee and dies without Issue, C. may inherit these Lands, for he may make his Title thereto without mentioning his Father. Adjudged per tot. Cur. Hill. 1657. Foster and Ramsey, 2 Sid. 23, 51, 148.

And the same Point was adjudged (seven Judges against three) in Collingwood and Pais, in the Exchequer Chamber, Lev. 55, 59. the Words of the Naturalization being, That they should inherit to any Ancestor lineal or collateral as fully to all Intents and Purposes as if they had been natural-born Subjects; for the Descent between them is immediate, and he may make his Title in a Mordancesthor as Heir to his Brother without mentioning his Father. And the Words of the Act of Parliament, which say he shall be inheritable to any Ancestor, lineal or collateral, are vain; if being descended from an Alien, he cannot have any Ancestor. Sid. 193, 198. same Case adjudged by all the Judges except three, because the Descent between the Brothers is an immediate Descent, and in Case of an immediate Descent, there can be no Impediment but what is between the Parties themselves; though it was argued by the three Judges that held the contrary, that the Blood between the Brothers is communicated by the Parents, and the Impediment arises from the Failure of inheritable Blood in the Fountain. Vide Vent. 413, &c. the Lord Chief Justice Hale's Argument in this Case; and 424. he says, that in a Descent between Brothers the Law only respects the mediate Relation of the Brothers, and not in Respect of their Father; for if the Law took Notice of the Father as a Medium thereof, a Brother by a second Venter might succeed the other Brother, because he is Heir to his Father. Vent. 424. Hard. 224.

If

If a Bastard enters after the Death of the Father, and continues seised for a Year, and after aliens to another, and the Alienee dies seised without any Interruption, yet this dying seised of the Alienee shall not bind the Right of the Mulier, for this is not within the Maxim. 2 Danv. Abr. 550.

If Bastard Eigne dies seised without Issue, and the Lord by Escheat enters, this shall not bar the Mulier, because there is no Descent.

If the Bastard enters, and the Mulier dies, his Wife privement enseint with a Son, the Bastard has Issue, and dies seised, the Son is born, his Right is bound for ever. But if the Bastard dies seised, his Wife enseint with a Son, the Mulier enters, the Son is born, the Issue of the Bastard is barred, for there must not only be a dying seised, but also a Descent to his Issue. Co. Lit. 244. a.

If Bastard Eigne in the Life of his Father has Issue, and dies, and then the Father dies seised, and the Son of the Bastard enters as Heir to his Grandfather, and dies seised, this Descent shall bind the Mulier. Co. Lit. 244. b. 8 Co. 101. b.

If a Man has Issue such a Bastard as aforesaid, and dies, and the Bastard enters and dies seised, and the Land descends to his Issue, the collateral Heir of the Father is bound, as well as where there are two Sons. Co. Lit. 244. a.

If Tenant in Tail has Issue Bastard Eigne and Mulier Puisne and dies, and the Bastard enters, and continues peaceably for his Life, and dies, and this descends to his Issue, this shall bind the Mulier, though this be an Estate-tail.

But it seems the Issue of the Mulier shall not be bound by such Descent; for then this should be a Bar of the Tail by the Act of his Father, which is against the Statute. 2 Danv. Abr. 551.

If there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder over to another, and the Tenant in Tail dies, having Issue Bastard Eigne and Mulier Puisne, and the Bastard enters, and dies seised having Issue, the Descent from the Bastard shall not bind the Right of him in Remainder, but he shall have his Action; for the Continuance of the Possession by the Bastard shall not be prejudicial to him. 2 Danv. Abr. 551.

If the Bastard dies seised, the Mulier being then within Age, it shall bind him. 2 Danv. Abr. 551. Co. Lit. 244. For the Issue of the Bastard, in Judgment of Law, is become lawful Heir, and the Law prefers Legitimation before the Privilege of Infancy. Contra, Bro. Descent 29. & vide 8 Co. 100. b. 101. a. where it is said, that as to an Infant, Non compos, &c. being bound by such Descent, the Opinions have been both ways; but concludes it the better Opinion, that they shall be bound. Vide Plowd. Com. 372.

But Coke (on Lit.) says, the Reason of this Case is, for that Justum non est aliquem post mortem facere Bastardum, qui toto tempore vitæ suæ pro legitimo habebatur. And so it seems to be, that if a Man has Issue a Son being Bastard Eigne, and a Daughter, and the Daughter is married, the Father dies, the Son enters and dies seised, this shall bar the Feme Covert: And the Descent in this Case of Services, Rents, Reversions, expectant upon Estates-tail, or for Life, whereupon Rents are reserved, &c. shall bind the Right of the Mulier, but a Descent of these shall not drive them that have Right to an Action.

So if the Bastard dies seised, and his Issue endows the Wife of the Bastard, yet this is not the Entry of the Mulier lawful upon the Tenant in Dower, for his Right was barred by the Descent. Co. Lit. 244. a.

If the Father leases for Life, or makes a Gift in Tail, rendring Rent, and dies, this shall bar the Mulier. Co. Lit. 15. a.

If a Man has Issue two Daughters, the eldest being a Bastard, and they enter and occupy peaceably as Heirs; now the Law in Favour of Legitimation shall not adjudge the whole Possession in the Mulier, (who then had the only Right) but in both, so as if the Bastard has Issue and dies, her Issue shall inherit. Co. Lit. 244. a.

If a Bastard Eigne enters, and is ousted by the Mulier, and after the Bastard disseises the Mulier, and dies seised, and his Issue enters, the Right of the Mulier is not bound, but he may have a Writ of Entry sur Disseisin, &c. against the Issue of the Bastard, &c. Lit. §. 401.

But if the Mulier enters upon the Bastard, and the Bastard after recovers the Land in an Assise against the Mulier, and after the Bastard dies seised, this shall bar the Mulier, for the Interruption was avoided. Co. Lit. 245. b.

(O) How far the Heir is chargeable for the Act of the Ancestor.

THIS is to be observed in Fee-simple Inheritance, that every Heir having Fee-simple Land or Inheritance, be it by Common Law or by Custom, of either Gavelkind or Borough-English, is chargeable so far forth as the Value thereof extends, with the binding Acts of the Ancestors from whom the Inheritance descendeth; and these Acts are collateral Incum-

Incumbrances, and the Reason of this Charge is, Qui sentit commodum, sentire debet & incommodum sive onus. As for Example, if a Man bind himself and his Heirs in an Obligation, or do covenant by Writing for him and his Heirs, or do grant an Annuity for him and his Heirs, or do make a Warranty of Land, binding him and his Heirs to Warranty: In all these Cases the Law chargeth the Heir after the Death of the Ancestor with this Obligation, Covenant, Annuity and Warranty; yet with these three Cautions: First, that the Party must, by Special Name, bind himself and his Heirs, or covenant, grant and warrant for himself and his Heirs; otherwise the Heir is not to be touched. Secondly, that same Action must be brought against the Heir, whilst the Land or other Inheritance resteth in him unaliened away; for if the Ancestor die, and the Heir, before an Action be brought against him upon those Bonds, Covenants or Warranties, do alien away the Land, then the Heir is clear discharged of the Burden; except the Land was by Fraud conveyed away of Purpose to prevent the Suit intended against him. Thirdly, that no Heir is farther to be charged than the Value of the Land descended unto him from the same Ancestor that made the Instrument of Charge, and that Land also not to be sold outright for the Debt, but to be kept in Extent, and at a yearly Value, until the Debt or Damage be run out. Nevertheless, if an Heir that is sued upon such a Debt of his Ancestor do not deal clearly with the Court when he is sued, that is, if he come not in immediately, and by way of Confession set down the true Quantity of his Inheritance descended, and so submit himself therefore, as the Law requireth, then that Heir that otherwise demeaneth himself shall be charged of his own Lands or Goods, and of his Money, for this Deed of his Ancestor. As for Example; If a Man bind himself and his Heirs in an Obligation of one hundred Pounds, and dieth, leaving but ten Acres of Land to his Heir; if his Heir be sued upon the Bond, and cometh in, and denieth that he hath any Lands by Descent, and it is found against him by the Verdict that he hath ten Acres, this Heir shall be now charged by his false Plea, of his own Lands, Goods and Body, to pay the hundred Pounds, although the ten Acres be not worth ten Pounds. Bac. L. Tracts 129.

Of acquiring real Estates by Purchase.

(A) Purchase, what.

Purchase in Latin is either Acquisitum of the Verb Acquiro, for so it is in the Original Re-Purchase, gister 243. In Terris vel Tenementis quæ viri & mulieres conjunctim acquisiverunt, &c. Derivation. Bracton (lib. 2. fo. 65.) calls it Perquisitum, which is from the Verb Perquirere; and by Glanvil. (lib. 7. c. 1.) it is called Quæstus or Perquisitum. Co. Lit. 3. b. 18. a. b.

A Purchase is the legal Acquisition of an Estate by Deed or Agreement for a valuable Definition. Consideration, or by Gift. It is when one comes to Lands, &c. by Deed or Agreement of Description. the Parties, and cannot be by Descent, because a Descent is an Act in Law, and so is an Escheat, and it is an Attainment to Lands by Right, for such as attain to Lands by Wrong, as Disseisin, Abatement, Intrusion, Usurpation, &c. which are not in Law Purchases, but Injury and Oppression. Co. Lit. 3. b. 18. b.

A Purchase is always intended by Title either for some Consideration, or by Gift, for a Gift is in Law a Purchase. Co. Lit. 18. b.

All Contracts are comprehended under this Word Purchase. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 2. c. 24. For it is not much argued in the Laws of England (as in the Civil Law) what Difference there is betwixt a Contract, Promise, Gift, Loan, or a Pledge, a Bargain, a Covenant, &c. since the Intent of the Law is to have the Effect of the Matters argued, and not the Terms. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

(B) Who are capable or incapable of purchasing or conveying Lands, &c. and what are good Names of Purchase.

Persons capable of purchasing are of two Sorts, (1) Persons natural created by God, as Vid. Shep. J. S. J. N. &c. (2) And Persons incorporate or politick created by the Policy of Man, C. A. §. 8, 9. (and therefore they are called Bodies Politick) and these are of two Sorts, viz. Either Sole, Persons natural. or Aggregate of many: Again Aggregate of many, either of all Persons capable or of one Incorporate. Person capable, and the rest incapable or dead in Law. Co. Lit. 2. a.

N

The

- King. The King may purchase Lands to him and his Heirs, but he is seised thereof in Jure Coronæ. Co. Lit. 15. b. 16. a. 51. a. Vide Of Descents by Jus Coronæ in the last Section, p. 32.
- Some Men have Capacity to purchase, but not Ability to hold. Some Capacity to purchase, and Ability to hold or not to hold, at the Election of them or others. Some Capacity to take and to hold. Some neither Capacity to take nor to hold, and some specially disabled to take some particular Thing. Co. Lit. 2. a.
- Aliens. If an Alien Christian or Infidel purchase Houses, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments to him and his Heirs, although he can have no Heirs, yet he is of a Capacity to take a Fee-simple but not to hold: For upon an Office found, the King shall have it by his Prerogative, of whomsoever the Land is holden. Co. Lit. 2. a. b.
- And so it is if the Alien purchases Land and dies, the Law casts the Freehold and Inheritance upon the King. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- If an Alien purchases an Estate of Freehold in Houses, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, the King upon Office found shall have them. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- If an Alien be made Denizen, and purchases Lands, and dies without Issue, the Lord of the Fee shall have the Escheat, and not the King. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- Aliens Merchants. But as to a Lease for Years, there is a Diversity between a Lease for Years of a House for the Habitation of a Merchant Stranger being an Alien, whose King is in League with ours, and a Lease for Years of Lands, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, and the like; for if he takes a Lease for Years of Lands, Meadows, &c. upon Office found, the King shall have it: But of a House for Habitation he may take a Lease for Years as incident to Commercery, for without Habitation he cannot merchandize or trade; but if he departs or relinquishes the Realm, the King shall have the Lease; so it is if he dies possessed thereof, neither his Executors or Administrators shall have it, but the King, for he had it only for Habitation as necessary to his Trade or Traffick, and not for the Benefit of his Executors or Administrators. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- But if the Alien be no Merchant, then the King shall have the Lease for Years, although it were for his Habitation; and so it is if he be an Alien Enemy. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- Felons. Also if a Man commit Felony, and after purchases Lands, and after is attainted, he has Capacity to purchase but not to hold it, for in that Case the Lord of the Fee shall have the Escheat. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- And if a Man be attainted of Felony, yet he has Capacity to purchase to him and his Heirs, although he can have no Heir; but he cannot hold it; for in that Case the King shall have it by his Prerogative, and not the Lord of the Fee; for a Man attainted has no Capacity to purchase (being a Man civiliter mortuus) but only for the Benefit of the King, no more than an Alienee has. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- Bodies Corporate. If any sole Corporation or Aggregate of many, either Ecclesiastical or Temporal, (for the Words of the Statute are, Si quis religiosus vel alius) purchase Lands or Tenements in Fee, they have Capacity to take, but not to retain (unless they have a sufficient Licence in that Behalf) for within the Year after the Alienation the next Lord of the Fee may enter, and if he does not, then the next immediate Lord, from Time to Time, to have Half a Year; and for Default of all the mesne Lands, then the King to have the Land so aliened for ever, which is to be understood of such Inheritance as may be holden: But of such Inheritances as are not holden, as Villeins, Rent-charges, Commons, and the like, the King shall have them presently by a favourable Interpretation of the Statute. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- An Annuity granted to them is not Mortmain, because it chargeth the Person only. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- Infants. An Infant, without Consent of any other, has Capacity to purchase, for it is intended for his Benefit, and at his full Age he may either agree thereunto, and perfect it, or without any Cause to be alledged, waive or disagree to the Purchase, and so may his Heirs after him, if he agreed not thereunto after his full Age. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- Ideots and Lunatics. A Man of Non-sane Memory may purchase Lands without the Consent of any other, but he himself cannot waive it; but if he dies in his Madness, or after his Memory recovered, without Agreement thereunto, his Heir may waive and disagree to the State, without any Cause shewed. And so of an Ideot. But if a Man of Non-sane Memory recovers his Memory, and agrees to it, it is unavoidable. Co. Lit. 2. b.
- Hermaphrodite. An Hermaphrodite may purchase according to the Sex which prevails. Co. Lit. 3. a.
- Feme Covert. A Feme-Covert cannot take any Thing of the Gift of her Husband, but is of Capacity to purchase of others without the Consent of her Husband, but her Husband may disagree thereto, and devert the whole Estate; but if he neither agrees nor disagrees, the Purchase is good; but after his Death, although her Husband agreed thereto, yet she may, without any Cause to be alledged, waive the same, and so may her Heirs also, if after the Decease of her Husband she herself agreed not thereunto. Co. Lit. 3. a.

A Wife

A Wife (Uxor) is a good Name of Purchase, without a Christian Name; and so it is, if a Christian Name be added and mistaken, as Em for Emeyln, &c. for utile per inutile non vitiatur. Co. Lit. 3. a.

But the Queen, the Consort of the King, is an exempt Person from the King by the Queen Common Law, and is of Ability and Capacity to purchase and grant without the King. fort. Co. Lit. 3. a. 133. a. And is capable of taking Lands or Tenements of the Gift of the King. Co. Lit. 133. a.

The Parishioners or Inhabitants, or probi Homines of Dale, or the Churchwardens, are not Parishioners, capable to purchase Lands, but Goods they are, unless it were in ancient Time when such Grants were allowed. Co. Lit. 3. a. Inhabitants, probi Homines, Churchwardens.

An antient Grant by the Lord to the Commoners in such a Waste, that a Way leading to their Common should not be streightened, was good; but it is otherwise of such a Grant at this Day. Co. Lit. 3. a. Lord and Commoners, &c.

And so in ancient Time a Grant made to a Lord, & hominibus suis tam liberis quam nativis, or the like, was good, but they are not of Capacity to purchase by such a Name at this Day. Co. Lit. 3. a.

But yet at this Day, if the King grant to a Man to have the Goods and Chattels de hominibus suis, or de tenentibus suis or de residentibus infra feodum, &c. it is good, for there they are not Names as Purchasors or Takers but for another Man's Benefit, who has Capacity to purchase or take. Co. Lit. 3. a. King, &c.

And regularly it is requisite, that the Purchasor be named by the Name of Baptism and his Surname, and that special heed be taken to the Name of Baptism, for that a Man cannot have two Names of Baptism as he may have divers Surnames. And yet in some Cases, though the Name of Baptism be mistaken (as in the Case before put of the Wife) the Grant is good. Co. Lit. 3. a. Name and Surname.

So it is if Lands be given to Robert Earl of Pembroke where his Name is John, and so of Titles, an Abbot, &c. for in these and the like Cases there can be but one of that Dignity or Name; and therefore such a Grant is good, although the Name of Baptism be mistaken. Co. Lit. 3. a. Earl, &c.

If by Licence Lands are given to the Dean and Chapter of the Holy and individed Trinity of Norwich, this is good, although the Dean be not named by his proper Name, if there were a Dean at the Time of the Grant, but in pleading he must shew his proper Name. Co. Lit. 3. a. Dean and Chapter.

And so on the other Side, if the Dean and Chapter make a Lease without naming the Dean by his proper Name, the Lease is good, if there were a Dean at the Time of the Lease; but in pleading the proper Name of the Dean must be shewed; and a Grant to a Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty is good, although the Mayor be not named by his proper Name, but in pleading it must be shewed. Co. Lit. 3. a.

If a Man be baptized by the Name of Thomas, and after at his Confirmation by the Bishop he is named John, he may purchase by the Name of his Confirmation; and this was the Case of Sir Francis Gawdy, C. J. of the Common Pleas, whose Name of Baptism was Thomas, and his Name of Confirmation Francis, and that Name of Francis, by the Advice of all the Judges Anno 36 H. 8. he did bear, and after used in all his Purchases and Grants. And this agrees with our ancient Books, where it is holden that a Man may have divers Names at divers Times, but not divers Christian Names. And the Court said, that it may be that a Woman was baptized by the Name of Anable; and forty Years after she was confirmed by the Name of Douce; and then her Name was changed, and afterwards she was to be named Douce, and that all Purchases, &c. made by her by the Name of Baptism before her Confirmation remain good, a Matter not much in Use, nor requisite to be put in Use, but yet necessary to be known. Co. Lit. 3. a. Name changed.

But Purchases are good in many Cases by a known Name, or by a certain Description of the Person without either Surname, or Name of Baptism, as Uxori I. S. as has been said, or primogenito filio, or secundo genito filio, &c. or Natu minimo I. S. or seniori puero, or omnibus filiis, or filiabus I. S. or omnibus liberis seu exitibus of I. S. or the right Heirs of I. S. Co. Lit. 3. a. Known Name or Description of the Person.

A Bastard having gotten a Name by Reputation may purchase, by his reputed or known Name, to him and his Heirs, although he can have no Heir but of his Body. Co. Lit. 3. b.

A Man makes a Lease to B. for Life, Remainder to the Eldest Issue Male of B. and the Heirs Male of his Body. B. has Issue a Bastard Son, he shall not take the Remainder, because in Law he is not his Issue, for qui ex damnato coitu nascuntur inter liberos non computentur. And as Littleton says, a Bastard is quasi nullius filius, and can have no Name of Reputation as soon as he is born. Co. Lit. 3. b.

So it is if a Man makes a Lease for Life to B. the Remainder to the Eldest Issue Male of B. to be begotten of the Body of Jane S. whether the same Issue be legitimate or illegitimate.

gitimate. B. has Issue a Bastard on the Body of Jane S. this Son or Issue shall not take the Remainder, for (as it has been said) by the Name of Issue, if there had been no other Words he could not take, and (as it has been also said) a Bastard cannot take but after he has gained a Nante by Reputation, that he is the Son of B. &c. And therefore he can take no Remainder limited before he is born; but after he is born, and that he has gained by Time and Reputation to be known by the Name of a Son, then a Remainder limited to him by the Name of the Son of his reputed Father is good. But if he cannot take the Remainder by the Name of Issue at the Time when he is born, he shall never take it. And so it seems, and for the same Cause, if after the Birth of the Issue, B. had married Jane S. so as he became Bastard eigne, and had a Possibility to inherit, yet he shall not take the Remainder. Co. Lit. 3. b.

ots, &c. Minors and other reasonable Creatures.
Persons disabled in some
Offices.

Persons deformed, having human Shape, Ideots, Madmen, Lepers, Deaf, Dumb, and Blind, Minors, and all other reasonable Creatures, have Power to purchase and retain Lands or Tenements. Co. Lit. 3. b.

But the Common Law disables some Men to take any Estate in some particular Things: As if an Office either of the Grant of the King or Subject, which concerns the Administration, Proceeding, or Execution of Justice, or the King's Revenue, or the Commonwealth, or the Interest, Benefit, or Safety of the Subject, or the like, if these, or any of them be granted to a Man that is unexpert, and has no Skill and Science to exercise or execute the same, the Grant is merely void, and the Party disabled by Law, and incapable to take the same, pro commodo regis & populi; for only Men of Skill, Knowledge, and Ability to exercise the same are capable of the same to serve the King and his People. Co. Lit. 3. b.

An Infant or Minor is not capable of an Office of Stewardship of the Court of a Manor either in Possession or Reversion. Co. Lit. 3. b.

No Man, though never so skilful and expert, is capable of a judicial Office in Reversion, but must expect until it falls in Possession. Co. Lit. 3. b.

By Statute 3 H. 7. c. 12. 7 E. 6. c. 1. 5 E. 6. c. 16. If any Officers touching the Administration or Execution of Justice, or Clerkship in any Court of Record, or concerning the King's Treasure, Revenue, Account, Customs, Alnage, Auditorship, King's Surveyor, or Keeper of any of his Majesty's Castles, Forts, &c. bargain or sell their Offices or any Deputation of the same, or take any Money or Profit, or any Promise, Covenant, Bond or Assurance, to have any Money or Reward for the same, the Person so bargaining or selling, or who shall take any such Promise, Covenant, Bond or Assurance, shall not only forfeit his Estate, but also every Person so buying, giving or assuring, be adjudged a disabled Person to have or enjoy the same Office or Offices, Deputation or Deputations, &c. and that all such Bargains, Sales, Promises, Covenants and Assurances, as be before specified, shall be void, except as in the said Acts is excepted.

Sir Robert Vernon Knight, being Cofferer of the King's House of the King's Gift, and having the Receipt of a great Sum of Money yearly of the King's Revenue, for a certain Sum of Money bargained and sold the said Office to Sir A. J. and agreed to surrender the same to the King, to the Intent a Grant might be made to Sir A. who surrendered it accordingly; and thereupon Sir A. was by the King's Appointment admitted and sworn Cofferer; and it was resolved by Sir Thomas Egerton Lord Chancellor, the Chief Justice, and others to whom the King referred the same, that the said Office was void by the said Statute, and that Sir A. was disabled to have or take the said Office, and that no Non Obstante could dispense with this Act to enable the said Sir A. for the Reason and Cause beforementioned; and thereupon Sir A. was removed, and Sir Marmaduke Dorrell sworn (by the King's Commandment) in his Place. And Note, that all Promises, Bonds and Assurances, as well on the Part of the Bargainor, as of the Bargainee, are void by the same Act. (Co. Lit. 234. a.) Nulla alia re magis Romana respublica interit, quam quod Magistratus officia venalia erant. Ærod. fo. 353.

Jugurtha going from Rome, said to the City, Vade venalis Civitas mox peritura si emptorem invenias. Salust. Co. Lit. 234. a.

Therefore by the Law of England it is further provided, that no Officer or Minister of the King shall be ordained or made for any Gift or Brokage, Favour or Affection, nor that any which pursueth by him or any other, privily or openly to be in any Manner of Office, shall be put in the same Office or in any other, but that all such Officers shall be made of the best and most lawful Men, and sufficient. A Law worthy to be written in Letters of Gold, but more worthy to be put in due Execution. For certainly never shall Justice be duly administred, but when the Officers and Ministers of Justice be of such Quality, and come to their Places in such Manner as by this Law is required. Co. Lit. 234. a.

Some

Some are capable of certain Things for some special Purpose, but not to use or exercise such Things themselves; as the King is capable of an Office, not to use but to grant, &c. Persons capable of certain Things to special Purposes.

A Monster born within lawful Matrimony, who has not human Shape cannot purchase, much less retain any Thing. Co. Lit. 3. b.

There are several Statutes relating to Estates conveyed by or to Papists, and the Disabilities they are under to take by Purchase, &c. which follow.

By the 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 4. it is enacted, "That from and after the 29th Day of September, which shall be in the Year of our Lord 1700. if any Person educated in the Popish Religion, or professing the same, shall not, within Six Months after he or she shall attain the Age of eighteen Years, take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and also subscribe the Declaration set down and expressed in an Act of Parliament made 30 Car. 2. intituled, An Act for the more effectual preserving the King's Person and Government, by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament, to be by him or her made, repeated or subscribed in the Courts of Chancery or King's Bench, or Quarter-Sessions in the County where such Person shall reside; every such Person shall, in respect of him or herself only, and not to or in respect of any of his or her Heirs or Posterity, be disabled or made incapable to inherit or take by Descent, Devise or Limitation in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments within the Kingdom of England, Dominion of Wales, or Town of Berwick upon Tweed; and that during the Life of such Person, or until he or she do take the said Oaths, and make, repeat and subscribe the said Declaration in Manner as aforesaid, the next of his or her Kindred, which shall be a Protestant, shall have and enjoy the said Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, without being accountable for the Profits by him or her received during such Enjoyment thereof as aforesaid; but in case of any wilful Waste committed on the said Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, by the Person so having or enjoying the same, or any other, by his or her Licence or Authority, the Party disabled, his or her Executors and Administrators, shall and may recover treble Damages for the same against the Person committing such Waste, his or her Executors or Administrators, by Action of Debt in any of his Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster; and that from and after the 10th Day of April 1700. every Papist, or Person making Profession of the Popish Religion, shall be disabled, and is hereby made incapable to purchase, either in his or her own Name, or in the Name of any other Person or Persons to his or her Use, or in Trust for him or her, any Manors, Lands, Profits out of Lands, Tenements, Rents, Terms or Hereditaments, within the Kingdom of England, Dominion of Wales, and Town of Berwick upon Tweed; and that all and singular Estates, Terms, and any other Interests or Profits whatsoever out of Lands, from and after the said 10th Day of April, to be made, suffered or done, to or for the Use or Behoof of any such Person or Persons, or upon any Trust or Confidence mediately or immediately, to or for the Benefit or Relief of any such Person or Persons, shall be utterly void and of none Effect, to all Intents, Constructions and Purposes whatsoever."

By the 3 Geo. 1. cap. 18. Reciting, that some Doubts have arisen upon the Act therein recited, (to wit, An Act passed the Sessions before, intituled, An Act to oblige Papists to register their Names and Real Estates) as also upon one other Act made and passed in the Parliament held in the 11 & 12 W. 3. intituled, An Act for the further preventing the Growth of Popery, and upon another Act made in the 1 Jac. 1. for the due Execution of the Statutes against Jesuits, Seminary Priests, Recusants, and other Acts made against Papists and Popish Recusants touching the Sale of the Real Estates of Persons professing the Popish Religion, or incurring the Disabilities and Incapacities in the said Acts mentioned, it is enacted, "That no Sale for a full and valuable Consideration of any Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or of any Interest therein by any Person or Persons, being reputed Owner or Owners, or in the Possession or Receipt of the Rents or Profits thereof heretofore made, or hereafter to be made, to or for any Protestant Purchaser and Purchasers, and meerly and only for the Benefit of Protestants, shall be avoided or impeached for or by Reason or upon Pretence of any the Disabilities or Incapacities in the said Acts, or any of them contained, incurred, or supposed to be incurred, by any of the Persons making or joining in such Sale, or by any other Person or Persons, from or through whom the Title to such Manors, &c. is or shall be derived, or supposed to be derived, unless before such Sale the Person intituled to take Advantage of such Disability or Incapacity shall have recovered such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, by Reason of such Disability or Incapacity, and have entered such Claim in open Court at the General Sessions of the Peace for the County, City, Riding or Division, wherein such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments lie or arise, and bona fide, "and

“ Provided nevertheless, That whereas it was amongst other Things enacted by the said 11 & 12 W. 3. that from and after the tenth Day of April, which should be in the Year 1700. every Papist, or Person making Profession of the Popish Religion, should be disabled, and was thereby made incapable to purchase, either in his or her own Name, or in the Name of any other Person or Persons to his or her Use, or in Trust for him or her, any Manors, Lands, Profits out of Lands, Tenements, Rents, Terms or Hereditaments, within the Kingdom of England, Dominion of Wales, and Town of Berwick upon Tweed; and that all and singular Estates, Terms, and other Interests or Profits whatsoever out of Lands, from and after the said 10th Day of April to be made, suffered or done, to or for the Use or Behoof of any such Person or Persons, or upon any Trust or Confidence mediately or immediately, to or for the Benefit or Relief of any such Person or Persons, should be utterly void and of no Effect, to all Intents, Constructions and Purposes whatsoever: It is hereby declared and enacted, That the said recited Part of the said Act of Parliament shall not be hereby altered or repealed, but the same shall be and remain in full Force as if this Act had never been made.

“ And it is further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That from and after the 29th of September 1717. no Manner of Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, or any Interest therein, or Rent or Profit thereout, shall pass, alter or change from any Papist, or Person professing the Popish Religion, by any Deed or Will, except such Deed within six Months after the Date, and such Will within six Months after the Death of the Testator, be inrolled in one of the King's Courts of Record at Westminster, or else within the same County or Counties wherein the Manors, Lands and Tenements lie, by the Custos Rotulorum and two Justices of the Peace, and the Clerk of the Peace of the same County or Counties, or two of them at the least, whereof the Clerk of the Peace to be one.

By the 11 Geo. 2. after reciting, “ That whereas Persons professing or educated in the Popish Religion are by divers Acts of Parliament subjected to several Disabilities and Incapacities, which may effect Persons conforming from the Popish to the Protestant Religion; and whereas many Persons have already conformed to the Protestant Religion, and are willing to submit to his Majesty's Government, in as full and ample Manner as any other of his Majesty's Subjects, and others are likewise so to do,” it is enacted, “ That all and every Person or Persons, being reputed Owner or Owners, or in Possession or Receipt of the Rents and Profits of any Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or of any Interest therein, who having been or reputed to be a Papist or Papists, or educated in the Popish Religion, hath or have conformed to, or hereafter shall conform to and profess the Protestant Religion, and hath or have taken or shall take the Oaths of Allegiance, Supremacy and Abjuration; and also subscribed or shall subscribe the Declaration set down and expressed in an Act of Parliament made the 30 Car. 2. intituled, An Act for the more effectual preserving the King's Person and Government, by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament, to be by him, her or them repeated and subscribed in the Courts of Chancery or King's Bench, or Quarter-Sessions of the County where such Person or Persons shall reside, (all which shall be recorded in one of his Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster, or such Quarter-Sessions as aforesaid,) and all and every Person and Persons, being Protestants claiming under such Person or Persons conforming, and performing the Requisites as aforesaid, for their own Benefit, or for the Benefit of any other Protestant or Protestants, and not for the Benefit of any Papist or Papists, shall hold, possess and enjoy all such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, freed and discharged of and from the Disabilities and Incapacities in the said Acts or any of them contained, incurred or supposed to be incurred by such Person or Persons so reputed Owner or Owners, or in Possession or Receipt of the Rents and Profits as aforesaid, or by any other Person or Persons by, from or through whom the Title to such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Interest therein, was or shall be derived or supposed to be derived for such Estate, Right, Title or Interest, as he, she or they had or would have, if no such Disability or Incapacity had been incurred; unless the Person or Persons intituled to take Advantage of such Disability, Incapacity or Defect of Title, hath or have actually and bona fide recovered, or shall hereafter recover such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, by Judgment or Decree in some Action or Suit already commenced, or hereafter to be commenced, six Kalendar Months at least before the making of such Record, and to be prosecuted with due Diligence.”

“ Provided

“ Provided nevertheless, that this Act, or any Thing herein contained, shall not take away or prejudice the Right of any Person or Persons intitled to take Advantage of such Disability or Incapacity, who now is or are in the actual Possession of, or shall have, precedent to the making of such Record, been in quiet Possession of any such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, by the Space of two Kalendar Months. ”

“ Provided always, and it is further enacted, that if any Person or Persons, so conforming, as aforesaid, shall after such Conformity return to or again profess the Popish Religion, every such Person or Persons shall for ever afterwards be disabled from, and be incapable of having or enjoying any Benefit, Privilege or Advantage of this Act, and shall from thenceforth be liable to the same Disabilities, Incapacities and Forfeitures, as if he, she or they had not taken the said Oaths and subscribed the Declaration as aforesaid. ”

“ Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained, shall extend to take away or prejudice the Right of any Person intitled to any Remainder or Reversion in any such Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, in Case such Person shall pursue his or her said Right by some Action or Suit, to be commenced within the Space of twelve Kalendar Months next after the precedent Estate or Estates, on which such Remainder or Reversion depends and is expectant, shall be determined; or within twelve Kalendar Months from and after the 29th of September 1738. if such precedent Estate or Estates be already determined by the Death or Deaths of any Person or Persons whose Deaths have been concealed from or not known to the Person intitled to such Remainder or Reversion, by Reason of their having been buried beyond the Seas, or in a private and clandestine Manner at Home, and shall prosecute such Action or Suit with due Diligence. ”

On the first of these Statutes there have been the following Cases and Resolutions.

Roper v. Radcliffe, Hill. 1713. in Canc. John Roper, Esq; being seised in Fee of several Manors, Lands, &c. by the Indentures of Lease or Release, bearing Date respectively the 17th and 18th of January 1708. granted and conveyed the same to William Constable, Richard Snow and Daniel Hickman, and their Heirs, in Trust to sell the same, and out of the Purchase Money and Rents 'till Sale to pay a Debt of 4000*l.* due to E. and H. W. by Mortgage of the Premises, with Interest, and after Satisfaction thereof, then in Trust for Payment of the Debts mentioned in a Schedule annexed to the Indenture of Release, and the Overplus of the Money so to be raised, to be paid as the said John Roper by any attested Writing or by his Will should appoint; and for want of such Appointment, in Trust for the Benefit of the said John Roper and his Heirs. The fifth of March 1708. the said John Roper made his Will, and after reciting the said Lease and Release, and the Power reserved to him over the Surplus of the said Estate, he bequeathed several pecuniary Legacies to his Relations, and the Residue of all his Real and Personal Estate he gave to William Constable and Thomas Radcliffe, and to Robert Hewet and Daniel Hickman, and to their Heirs and Assigns for ever, and appointed them joint Executors; the first of April 1709. he added a Codicil to his Will, and thereby he gave the further several Legacies therein mentioned, and all the Remainder, whether in Lands or Personal Estate, he gave to his Executors Mr. Radcliffe and Mr. Constable. The said John Roper died soon after; and Mr. Radcliffe and Mr. Constable brought their Bill in Chancery against Edward Roper, Esq; the Heir at Law of the said John Roper, and also against Hickman, Hewett, Snow and others, to have the Trust-Estate sold, and for an Account of the Profits, and after the Debts and Legacies paid, to have the Surplus Money arising by Sale equally divided between the Plaintiffs, according to the said Codicil. The said Edward Roper by his Answer insisted, that as Heir at Law to the Testator he was intitled to all such Real Estate as was undisposed of by him, and that Mr. Radcliffe and Mr. Constable were then, and at the Testator's Decease, Papists, and as such, by 11 & 12 W. 3. were incapable of purchasing any Manors, Lands, Profits out of Lands, &c. The said Hewett and Hickman by their answer insisted, that the Real Estate devised by the said Will ought to be considered as the remaining Part of the Testator's Lands, (after a sufficient Part sold for Payment of Debts and Legacies,) and not as a Personal Estate, and that as so much only ought to be sold as would be sufficient to pay the Debts; and that in Case Mr. Radcliffe and Mr. Constable were incapable of taking them, they as Protestants claimed the said Real Estate, as being the only Devisees capable to take the same; they also insisted, that the Codicil, with Reference to the Devise of the Remainder to the Testator's Lands, did not controul the Devise thereof mentioned in the Will; for that if the Plaintiffs were incapable to take the Lands as Purchasers by the Devise, they were to be esteemed as Persons not in esse, and that the Codicil as to the Lands was void; but if the Plaintiffs were capable, yet such Devise did not give the Remainder of the Premises to them but for their Lives, and that the Reversion in Fee belonged to them the said Hewett and Hickman; and they brought a Cross Bill, insisting thereby on the same Matters; and the Legatees brought a Bill for Payment of the Legacies. The 27th of June 1712. the said Causes came on to be heard before the Lord Chancellor Harcourt, who desired to have the Assistance of the Judges; and

and a Case was made and argued before my Lord Chancellor Parker, Trevor Chief Justice of C. B. Justice Powel and the Master of the Rolls, and after Time taken to consider of the Case, my Lord Chancellor, Trevor Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls and Justice Powel were of Opinion, that the Devise of the Surplus of the Purchase Money (after Debts and Legacies paid) to Mr. Radcliffe and Mr. Constable was good, notwithstanding the said disabling Act; the Surplus Money being a Personal Interest in them, and not made void either by the Words or Intention of that Statute; and as to Hewett and Hickman, my Lord Chancellor was of Opinion, that the first Codicil was a Revocation of the Will, as to the Residue of the Real and Personal Estate. Mr. Roper appealed to the House of Lords, and it was there ordered, before the Appeal was determined, that the Estate should be sold, and all Debts and Legacies paid, which was accordingly done; where afterwards the Lords reversed the Decree, principally for this Reason; that (a) if the Devise of the Residue to the Plaintiffs was good, they would in Equity be intitled to pay off the antecedent Debts and Legacies, and when that was done, keep the Estate; which would be a Means of evading the Statute, and enabling a Papist to take an Estate contrary to the Intention of it. It was also resolved in this Case, that a Devise is a Purchase within the Meaning of this Act. 3 Bac. Abr. 795, 796.

(a) But it seems, that where Lands are devised to or vested in Trustees, to be sold for Payment of particular Sums to several People, some of whom happen to be Papists, that this Act does not prevent such Papists from taking the particular Sums or Legacies intended for them; because they cannot insist upon paying of the other Incumbrances and holding the Estate, as a Person can do to whom the Residue of the Purchase Money is devised. 3 Bac. Abr. 796.

See Mod. 190. The Earl of Derwentwater was Tenant in Tail, with Remainder in Fee to himself, and intending to marry Sir John Webb's Daughter, he by Advice of Counsel suffered a common Recovery without declaring any Uses, it being intended, that he should thereby become Tenant in Fee, and be enabled to make a proper Settlement; accordingly by Indentures of Lease and Release he settled his Estate to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to Trustees for preserving contingent Uses, Remainder in Tail successively to the first and other Sons of the intended Marriage, with Remainders over: The Marriage took Effect, and there was Issue a Son and Daughter. The said Earl was attainted of High Treason on Account of the Preston Rebellion, and was executed; and by an Act made thereupon, all the forfeiting Persons Lands were vested in the Commissioners for the Use of the Publick; and it was expressly provided, that where the forfeiting Person was seised of an Estate Tail at the Time of the Forfeitures, the same should be vested in the Commissioners as an absolute Fee, discharged of all Remainders and Reversions. The Commissioners of Forfeitures, on a Claim exhibited before them in the Name of the said Earl's Son, determined, that the whole Estate was in them on this Foundation, that the Earl continued Tenant in Tail notwithstanding the Recovery, and consequently nothing more than Estate for his own Life past by the Lease and Release; and the Reason they went upon was, that if by suffering a common Recovery he could turn his Estate-tail into a Fee, then he would gain a new Estate by Purchase, which the apprehended he, being a Papist, was disabled to do by the Statute 11 & 12 W. 3. But the Majority of the Judges, upon an Appeal from the Decree of the Commissioners, were of a contrary Opinion, and held, that this was only a new modelling of the Estate, and not a Purchase or Acquisition within the Act; and that the Earl was capable of taking a new Fee at least for the Benefit of his Heirs and Posterity, and that he was capable of settling the same by Lease and Release, and therefore allowed of the Son's Claim.

It was likewise resolved by the Delegates appointed to hear Appeals from the Determinations of the Commissioners for the Estates forfeited in the Year 1716. that a Papist may be a Trustee for a Protestant, notwithstanding the Statute 11 & 12 W. 3. 3 Bac. Abr. 797. 2 Mod. Ca. in. L. and Eq. 172.

Will. Rep. 8. Hill. v. Filkins, Trin. 11 G. 1. Anne Stephenson had two Grandchildren, one the Plaintiff Hill, the other Frances, the Wife of the Defendant Filkins, who was educated by her in the Popish Religion. The Grandmother by her Will made in the Year 1716. devised the Lands in Question to Trustees, in Trust to be sold for the Payment of her Debts and Legacies, and the Residue of the Money arising by such Sale she devised to her said Grandaughter Frances, when she should attain her Age of twenty-one Years, or be married with the Consent of the said Trustees, and soon after died. The said Frances, at the Age of fifteen was married to Filkins according to the Ceremonies and Usage of the Church of Rome, and a Week afterwards by a Minister of the Church of England; at the Age of eighteen she conformed according to the Directions of the Statute; it was held, that she was within the first Clause, and that a Devise to a Papist under the Age of eighteen is good, if he conforms within six Months after he comes to that Age; and the Age of eighteen was a proper Period for them to make their Election, whether they would conform or not; and the Bill exhibited by the Protestant Heir was dismissed with Costs. 3 Bac. Abr. 797. S. C. 2 Mod. Ca. 154. Lucas 481, 536.

Carrick v. Errington, Trin. 9 Geo. 1. in Canc'. J. S. a Papist made a Settlement of his Mofley 8. Estate to Trustees, to the Use of the Trustees and their Heirs, in Trust for A. for Life, Re- 2 Will. Rep. mainders to the said Trustees to preserve contingent Remainders, Remainder to the first and 361. every other Son of A. and for Default of such Issue then in Trust for B. and his Issue. A. 2 Eq. Abr. was a Papist and B. a Protestant; B. exhibited his Bill in Chancery, suggesting that A. was 623. pl. 13. a Papist, and had no Son, and that therefore the Trustees might account to him for the 624. pl. 20. Rents and Profits; he also made the Heir at Law Defendant; and on hearing this Cause be- 625. pl. 21. fore the Lord Macclesfield, and afterwards by the Lord King, they both held, that though 22, 23. the Trust to A. was void, he being a Papist, yet that notwithstanding the legal Estate was still in the Trustees because they were Trustees not only for the Papist, but also for B. the Protestant, and for the Sons of A. who were yet unborn; and as they were Trustees to preserve contingent Remainders for such Sons who might be Protestants, they thought that the Estate should remain in the Trustees for that Purpose; and they held, that the Heir at Law was intitled to receive the Profits during the Life of A. as a Trust undisposed, but that B. the Remainder-man could have no Right till the Death of A. without a Son capable of taking; and this Decree was affirmed in the House of Lords. Ibid. S. C. 2 Mod. Ca. 33.

Marwood v. Dorrel, Hil. 8 Geo. 2. B. R. The Case upon a special Verdict in Ejectment was, Thomas Dorrel had one Brother and four Sisters, and being seised in Fee, by Will 4th December 1703. devised the Lands in Question to Trustees to the Use of them and their Heirs, in Trust for his first and every other Son in Tail Male; and for want of such Issue Remainder to his Brother Arthur for Life, Remainder to his first and every other Son in Tail Male; and for want of such Issue that then the Trustees shall stand and be seised for the sole proper Use and Benefit of such eldest and first Son lawfully begotten or to be begotten of John Dorrel, and shall not be Heir at Law and Inheritor to the said John Dorrel, and the Heirs of his Body; and for Default of such Issue by him, Remainder to the third, fourth, and fifth, and every other Son of the said John Dorrel, and the Heirs of their respective Bodies. The Trustees by a Clause in the Will, were impowered by the Rents and Profits of the Estate, or by Mortgage and Sale, to raise so much Money as would satisfy the Testator's Debts: Thomas and Arthur both died without Issue, John Dorrel is living and has seven Sons; George the Defendant is the second Son; all the Sons of John are Papists, and educated in the Papish Religion, except his younger Son, who is too Young to be said, as yet, to be of any Religion; George Dorrel was under eighteen Years of Age when the Limitation by the Devise fell upon him, but is now above eighteen Years, and hath not taken the Oaths directed by 11 & 12 W. 3. and is married and has now two Sons very young, for whom as well as for his Wife he has made a Settlement of these Lands; the four Sisters of Thomas Dorrel are Lessors of the Plaintiff, as Heirs at Law; and the Question is, Whether George the Son of Arthur, or the Heirs at Law, be intitled to the Lands? For the Plaintiffs, the Heirs at Law, it was urged, First, That George is a Papist, and that Papists who shall refuse, above six Months after they arrive at the Age of Eighteen, to take the Oaths of Allegiance, &c. are by the said Statute expressly disabled from purchasing; and therefore as a Devise is a Purchase, and so held Co. Lit. 18. and by the Lords in the Case of Roper and Radcliffe, consequently George Dorrel takes nothing by it. Secondly, That the Devise was void for Uncertainty, being to such eldest and first Son of J. D. as shall not be Heir at Law to him; but as no one can say who will be Heir to J. D. so it is impossible to say who will not, for nemo est Heres viventis; and he who is to be Heir is not to take, so that none but a Son who will not be Heir can take, for both Descriptions must coincide. Hob. 29. Hardres Chief Justice, in breaking the Case said, Two Objections have been made to the Defendant's Title; First, That the Limitation, under which he claims, is void for the Uncertainty of the Description. Secondly, That supposing the Description to be certain enough, yet by the 11 & 12 W. 3. the Defendant is disabled from taking the Estate, as being a Papist. There seems at present to be a good deal of Weight in the first Objection, and yet it may possibly be reduced to a Certainty, and if so, may be made good; and it seems natural to imagine, that by the Words of the Will the Testator intended the second Son of John Dorrel should take, and the rather, as the Testator has made the next Limitation to the third, fourth, and fifth Sons, &c. of the said John Dorrel; but if the second Son cannot take, yet if the third, &c. Sons are well described, the Daughters of Thomas cannot recover, and at present they seem to be certainly described. As to the second Objection, I think myself bound by the Determination of the House of Lords in the Case of Roper and Radcliffe, that the Word Purchase extends to a Devise, and therefore that a Papist is incapable of taking an Estate by Will; but yet be the Defendant's Title as it will, the Plaintiff must recover on his own Strength, and not on the Weakness of the Defendant's Title; and my greatest Doubt is this, the Devise here is to Trustees to the Use of them and their Heirs, &c. I think this would clearly be a Devise to the Use of the Trustees, though the Clause of raising Money by Rents and Profits was omitted; so here is a Devise to Trustees, in Trust not only for the second Son of John Dorrel, but for all other his Sons now living, one of which is not found to be a Papist; it has been said indeed, that this Devise being for the Benefit of Papists, the Trust itself is void; but the Question is, if the intire Trust should not be for the Benefit of Papists, in the present Case, the youngest Son of John Dorrel may be able to take for ought appears to the contrary; and therefore I think that this latter Part of the Trust being lawful will support the legal Estate in the Trustees; and here he put the Case supra of Carrick v. Errington, and said, that according to the Resolution in this Case, the Lands in Question cannot be in the Heirs at Law, but in the Trustees; because here is a Trust for a Son of John Dorrel, who was not a Papist, as well as for other Children yet unborn, so that the Plaintiffs have no Title to recover in this Action, but have mistaken their Remedy; for if they have any, it seems to be by a Bill in Equity against the Trustees for an Account of the Profits; and it is certain, in the above-mentioned Case, that the Estate could not vest in the Remainder-man, because he being then in by Purchase, it could never be afterwards divested for the Benefit of such Child as A. should happen to have; but he said, that he did not give this as his absolute Opinion, but only to point out the Difficulties which stuck with the Court. It was adjourned, and no farther Proceedings was had therein. 3 Bac. Abr. 798, 799.

Pelham v. Fletcher, Mich. 1729. A Mortgage was made to a Papist, who assigned to a Protestant for a full Consideration; an Ejectment was brought against the Assignee by a subsequent Mortgagee, who recovered by reason of the Disability of the first Mortgagee; all this appeared upon a Bill brought in Chancery; and my Lord Chancellor was of Opinion, that a Mortgage to a Papist is void; but in this Case the Assignment to the Protestant, and the Trial in Ejectment, were both before the 3 Geo. 1. which, were it otherwise, would it seems have made an Alteration. 3 Bac. Abr. 799.

On Lord Dover's Will. In a Case which came on before my Lord King in the Court of Chancery, it appeared, that my Lord Dover was possessed of a long Term for Years, and made his Will, and his Lady, who was a Papist, Executrix thereof. It was resolved by my Lord Chancellor, that notwithstanding the disabling Act 11 & 12 W. 3. the Term vested absolutely in her, and that this was not a Purchase within that Act; and he said, that a Papist may be a Tenant in Dower or by the Curtesy; because in all these Cases it is by Operation of Law, and not by an Act of the Party, that the Estate comes to him. 3 Bac. Abr. 799.

Mallom v. Bringlee, Pas. 1738, in C. B. it hath been adjudged that a Papist may devise to a Protestant; in which Case it was agreed, that where an Ancestor dies seised of an Estate of Inheritance, it descends upon and vests in his Heir (though a Papist) for the Benefit of his Heirs, and that the next Protestant a-kin has only a Right to the Perception of the Profits during the Non-conformity of the Heir. 3 Bac. Abr. 799.

Smith v. Read, Trin. 12 G. 2. Upon the Marriage of Mr. Paine with one Mrs. Gage, Lands in the County of Surry were settled and conveyed to the Use of the Husband and Wife for their Lives, and the Life of the Survivor of them; then to the Use of the first and every other Son in Tail, Remainder to the Right Heirs of the Husband: The Marriage took Effect, but Mr. Paine the Husband died in the Life-time of Mrs. Paine, without leaving Issue; having first devised all his Lands to his Wife and her Heirs. In 1730, Mrs. Paine the Wife devised all her real Estate to the Defendant, subject to a few Legacies mentioned in her Will, but lived and died a Papist; but that being difficult to prove at Law, the Plaintiff Mr. Smith, who had married Elizabeth Paine, Heir at Law to Mr. Paine, he and his Wife filed their Bill against the Defendant to set aside the Marriage Settlement and Will of Mr. Paine the Husband, under which Mrs. Paine claimed; and in particular prayed, that the Defendant might discover whether Mrs. Paine the Wife, under whose Will he claimed, was a Papist or not. To which the Defendant pleaded the Statute of 11 & 12 W. 3. Upon arguing this Plea it was insisted upon for the Defendant, that it was a standing Rule in this Court, That no Person was bound to discover what might subject him to the Penalty of an Act of Parliament; that the Statute of 11 & 12 W. 3. was a penal Law, and the Party who would take Advantage of such Law, would never be assisted in a Court of Equity, which never assists a Forfeiture; he who would claim any Thing forfeited, must make out the Forfeiture himself; for no Person shall be obliged to discover a Fact that would be a Forfeiture of his own Estate. If a Copyholder commits Waste, it is a Forfeiture of his Estate to the Lord of the Manor; but if the Lord of the Manor comes into this Court for a Discovery, whether the Copyholder has been guilty of Waste or not, the Copyholder is not bound to answer; for no Law in the World obliges a Man to accuse himself; himself; if an Estate is given to a Woman durante viduitate, she is not bound to discover whether she is married or not, because the Discovery of that Fact might be the Loss of her Estate. That Disabilities and Forfeitures were of the same Nature; that a total Incapacity or Disability to hold at all (which is the Case of Papists) was certainly as much a Penalty; as a Forfeiture of an Estate which the Party before was capable of holding; that as Mrs. Paine would not have been obliged in her Life-time to discover whether she was a Papist or not, the Defendant who claims under her ought not to be obliged to discover it. On the other Hand it was insisted by the Counsel for the Plaintiff, that it was not their Business to examine, whether the Acts of Parliament made against Papists were hard Laws or not; they were Laws, and that was sufficient for their Purpose; that this was not the Case of a Forfeiture, but it was to discover a Fact, which if true, the Estate was never in Mrs. Paine, because the Act of Parliament makes all Papists absolutely incapable of being Purchasers; if she was a Papist, the Estate never vested in her; and as she was not capable of holding it, she could not give it away to the Defendant, therefore could never forfeit the Estate; for no Person can be said to forfeit an Estate he never had. An Alien is incapable of holding Lands at Common Law, yet he is obliged to discover whether he is an Alien or not; and his Discovery of that Fact, whether he is so or not, can never be a Forfeiture of his Estate, because he never had a Right to it. So in case of a Bastard who is nullius filius, and incapable of claiming Lands by Descent, he shall discover whether he is so or not, for the same Reason. So a Person claiming under a Bankrupt, whose Goods are vested in the Assignees of the Commission of Bankruptcy for the Benefit of Creditors, must discover whether the Person under whom he claims, was a Bankrupt or not, at the Time of the Conveyance: That all these Cases depend upon the same Reason, and were no Forfeitures, because the Estates were never in them; so if Mrs. Paine was a Papist, she was incapable of having the Estate herself, and could not give it away; and therefore the Defendant could never forfeit it, because the Estate was never in him. But my Lord Hardwicke was of Opinion, that the Defendant was not obliged to discover whether Mrs. Paine was a Papist or not; that there is no Rule better established in this Court, than that a Man should not be obliged to answer what may subject him to the Penalty of an Act of Parliament; no Person can doubt whether this Act is not a penal Law, and whether the Clauses relating to Papists are not Disabilities or Incapacities, imposed by way of Penalty upon all Persons exercising that Religion. It is objected, that this is not the Case of a Forfeiture, because the Estate was never vested, and therefore can never be divested; yet it all falls under the same Reason, and an Incapacity or Disability to hold at all by Act of Parliament, is certainly as much a Penalty as the Forfeiture of an Estate by a Person who had a Right to enjoy it before the Forfeiture. That if a Bill is brought against the Person for a Discovery whether he is a Papist or not, he is not bound to discover; and where is the Difference between him and the Person claiming under him. Here is a Disability imposed by Parliament, by way of Penalty, upon a particular Set of Men upon the Account of their Religion; the Discovery of that Fact subjects them to a Penalty; and this is not like the Case of an Alien or Bastard, who are incapable by the general Laws of the Land to inherit; besides, what sways with me much is the great Inconvenience that would follow, should this Plea be disallowed; we should have nothing in this Court but Bills of Discovery, whether such and such Persons were Papists or not; and no Body knows what Confusion would follow; therefore the Plea must be allowed. 3 Bac. Abr. 799, 800, 801.

There are many Statutes concerning the Inrolment of Deeds and Wills made by Papists, and for the Indemnity and Relief of Protestant Purchasers, Devises and Lessees. But the last made 16 Geo. 2. c. 32. enacts, that every Deed and Will made since the 29th September 1717. in order to pass, alter or change any Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Interest therein, or any Rent or Profit thereout, from any Papist, though not inrolled, or not inrolled in due Time, shall be as good in Law as if inrolled in the Times limited by former Acts, provided they be inrolled on or before the 28th November 1743. nothing herein shall extend to make good any such Deed, &c. made and not inrolled, of which Advantage has been taken on or before the 2d of February 1742.

And that no Purchase made for valuable Considerations of any Manors, Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or of any Interest therein, by any Protestant meerly and only for the Benefit of Protestants, shall be impeached or avoided, for or by Reason that any Deed or Will through which the Title thereto is derived, has not been inrolled as required by former Acts, so as no Advantage was taken of the want of Inrolment thereof, before such Purchase was made, and so as such Purchaser had not Notice before such Purchase, that the Person who made such Deed or Will was a Papist, and so as no Decree or Judgment has been obtained for want of the Inrolment of such Deeds or Wills.

If a Man in Consideration of a Marriage-Portion settles a Jointure on his Wife, and makes a Provision for the Issue of that Marriage, the Wife and Children are to be considered as Purchasers for valuable Consideration; and though the Settlement was made after Marriage, yet if it was made pursuant to Articles entered into for that Purpose previous to the Marriage, it is the same Thing, and the Jointress in such Case shall avoid a prior voluntary Conveyance, and shall not be obliged to discover Writings, nor any Thing else that may prejudice her, unless she has her Jointure confirmed to her. *Chan. But if the Settlement was made after Marriage, and not pursuant to Marriage-Articles, it will be fraudulent against Creditors, but it will be good against a subsequent Purchaser with Notice, though not against one without, for the Wife and Children are to be considered more than mere Voluntaries; but if the Matter rests barely in Covenant or Agreement, it will never be carried into Execution against a subsequent Purchaser, without Notice, who has got a legal Title, nor against a second Jointress, without Notice, who brought in a Marriage-Portion. Abr. Ca. Eq. 354.

If a Wife joins with the Husband in letting in an Incumbrance on her Jointure Lands, and barring the Estate-tail, and then limits the Uses to the Husband for Life, Remainder to the Wife for Life, Remainder to their Daughters. This does not make the Daughters Purchasers, so as to shut out a Judgment-Creditor of the Husband's antecedent to the barring of the Estate-tail; it might have been a good Consideration for both, but it was not expressed in the Deed, to be any Consideration for settling the Estate upon the Daughters, but it was a voluntary Gift of the Wife to her Husband, and therefore the Daughter's Estate must be taken taken to be voluntary; and so a Judgment-Creditor ought to have the Assistance of this Court before them. Prec. in Chanc. 114. Abr. Ca. Eq. 354.

A. seised in Fee, settled his Estate in 1712. to the Use of himself for Life; Remainder to B. in Tail, but with Power of Revocation, by any Writing signed, &c. and attested by three, &c. credible Witnesses. In 1715. A. by Deed, attested by two Witnesses only, reciting that he was indebted, as in a Schedule annexed, conveyed his Estate to W. R. and W. S. and their Heirs, in Trust to pay his said Debts by Profits, Mortgage, or Sale, and after Payment thereof, to pay the Overplus, and reconvey such Part as should be unsold, to A. or such other Person, &c. and for such Uses, &c. as he, by any Writing signed and sealed by him, and attested by two, &c. Witnesses, should direct. A. died without Issue, but left the said B. and C. the Daughters of two Sisters, his Heirs at Law. The Deed of 1715. was kept private till after the Death of W. S. the surviving Trustee in 1724. and was then laid before Mr. Piggot, who directed that the Heir of W. S. should assign the legal Estates to the Trustees in the Deed 1712. which was done. Afterwards in 1726. upon a Treaty of Marriage between Lord Fauconbridge and B. a Marriage-Settlement was prepared by the same Counsel, as Counsel for the Lord Fauconbridge, who made a Settlement on B. in Consideration of the great Estate in Land which he was to have with her. The surviving Trustee in the Deed of 1712. joined in this Marriage-Settlement. C. brought a Bill claiming a Moiety of the Estate of A. as Co-heiress with B. for that the Deed in 1715. was a Revocation of the Deed in 1712. Lord Fauconbridge pleaded, that he was a Purchaser under the Deed of 1712. without Notice of that in 1715. and that the Settlement made by him on B. was in Contemplation of that Settlement in 1712. and that the surviving Trustee in that Settlement was Party to the Marriage-Settlement; and that though the Purchase was not of the legal Estate, but the Trust only, that will make no Difference, according to Wilker and Bodington's Case, 2 Vern. 599. and that neither will it differ the Case, though there was no actual Conveyance; for as the Trustees in the Deed of 1712. always acted under that Deed for B. that Trust shall subsist as to himself, who is a fair Purchaser; and that he shall not be affected by constructive Notice to his Counsel, as having been advised with on these two Deeds in 1724; for that it must be intended, that at the Time of the Counsel's being concerned for him, which was in 1726. he had forgot that he had ever seen this Deed of 1715. there being an Interval of two Years between his first seeing it, and his being Counsel for this Defendant. And for these Reasons, the Court held, that this could not be Notice to his Lordship. Lord Chief Baron Reynolds, who assisted the Lord Chancellor, held, that the Lord F. could be a Purchaser of no more than B. had, as no actual Conveyance was made to him. The Master of the Rolls said, that to be a Purchaser in the Notion of Equity, there must be an actual Contract, and a Consideration paid; and therefore, if at any Time of the Marriage the Deed of 1712. stood revoked, the Trustees could be seised only of a Moiety for the Use of B. and consequently Lord Fauconbridge can be a Purchaser of no more. Lord Chancellor decreed a Moiety of the Estate, and an Account of the Rents and Profits taken since the Death of A. Fitzgerald v. Lord Fauconbridge, 12 June 1730. Fitz. Gibb. 207. and Lilly's Prac. Conv. 446 to 459.

The Plaintiff preferred a Bill in this Court against the Defendant, supposing that more Lands passed than was intended: But because the Defendant was a Purchaser upon valuable Consideration, no Relief was given. Totb. 83.

The Statute of 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. enacts that no Purchaser shall be impeached, unless the Commission be sued out within five Years after he becomes a Bankrupt.

Bill to discover, &c. The Defendant pleaded he was a Purchaser for a valuable Consideration, and that he had paid the Purchase-Money: But because he did not set forth how much the Purchase-Money was, nor to whom he paid the same, this Plea was over-ruled, and the Defendant was ordered to answer those Particulars without Costs; but the Purchase not to be impeached. Fin. Rep. 219.

Purchase pendente lite. A Purchaser of a Reversion under a Decree in Chancery, shall not be drawn to take his Money again with Interest, if of the Life dying, notwithstanding the Pretence of the Purchase being made pendente lite. Chanc. Rep. 76.

But a Purchase made pendente lite, and after full Notice of a Trust, will be set aside in Equity. Fin. Rep. 322.

Buying in Incumbrances. A Purchaser bona fide, without Notice of any Defect in his Title, at the Time of making the Purchase, may lawfully buy in a Statute or Mortgage, or any other Incumbrances; and if he can defend himself at Law by any such Incumbrances bought in, his Adversary shall never be aided in a Court of Equity, by setting aside such Incumbrances; for Equity will not disarm a Purchaser, but assist him, and Precedents of this Nature are very ancient and numerous, viz. where the Court has refused to give any Assistance against a Purchaser, either to an Heir, or to a Widow, or to the Fatherless, or to Creditors, or even to one Purchaser against another. *Fin. Maxims of Law in a Court of Equity. And this Rule is agreeable to the Wisdom of the Common Law, where the Maxims which refer to Descents, Discontinuances, Non-Claims and Collateral Warranties, are only the wise Arts and Inventions of the Law, to protect the Possession and strengthen the Rights of Purchasers. Per Finch Keeper. Fin. Rep. 104. Prec. in Chan. 249.

A Purchaser, but not by common Intendment. H. B. seised in Fee of a Manor, covenanted with L. D. for the Advancement of such Heirs Male, as were of the Body of M. then his Wife, to levy a Fine thereof to the Use of himself for Life, and afterwards to the Use of the eldest Issue Male of the Bodies of him and his said Wife begotten, in Tail, &c. and so to three Issues of their Bodies, &c. with the Remainder to his right Heirs. Afterwards H. B. by Fraud and Covin, to defeat the said Covenant, made a Lease of the said Manor for a long Term to R. H. and afterwards levied the Fine accordingly: Resolved, that though the Issue was a Purchaser, yet he was not a Purchaser in vulgar and common Intendment. 3 Co. 83. b. And. 233.

Statute. A Purchaser relieved against a Statute sought to be extended by a second Agreement after the Purchase. Toth. 257.

Lease. A Purchaser of a Lease, out of which a Rent is issuing, shall not be liable, but the Executor of the Will; this Rent was without a Clause of Distress, and the Executrix and her Trustee sold away the Lease. Toth. 259.

Suit to have Consideration Money repaid on a bad Purchase, the Land not being the Vendor's. Upon a Purchase made by M. of J. S. the Agreement was, that a Recovery should be suffered within three Years. M. paid his Money before the Recovery suffered, and took a Bond of J. S. that if the Recovery was not suffered in three Years, then M. re-conveying the Lands, should be repaid his Money; J. S. tenders a Recovery, but before it was suffered, a third Person makes a Title to the Lands, and thereupon M. exhibited his Bill to have his Money repaid; but the Lord Chancellor said, he could give no Relief; for M. has parted with his Money, and taken a Bond for Re-payment, if the Recovery were not suffered in three Years, M. re-conveying his Estate; and here the Recovery being suffered, he has no Pretence by his own Agreement to have it re-paid; and the Court cannot help him, unless it should take upon it self, where any Man had a bad Bargain, and was cheated in his Title, to help him to his Money again; and here being no Manner of Fraud or Surprise in the Case, if he be not helped by his Covenants, he will not be helped in Equity; but for the Matter of Re-conveying, if M. should re-convey such Title as he had from them, be it more or less, or none at all, yet being a Relative to convey, it would have been well enough; but here the Recovery being suffered according to the Agreement, though nothing passed by it, the Party had well performed his Agreement, and so no Reconveying nor Re-payment of the Money to be made. Serjeant Maynard's Case, Pas. 1676. 2 Freem. Rep. 1.

Purchaser relieved against a Deed of Intail. Plaintiff bought several Manors of B. deceased, who, (before the Plaintiff's Purchase) had conveyed the same by Fine and Recovery to the Defendant and his Heirs Male, which being done without Consideration, was adjudged and decreed to the Plaintiff. Toth. 257.

Incumbrances. If one sells another's Land, and covenants to discharge it of such particular Incumbrances, and before the Payment of the Money other Incumbrances are discovered, this will prevent any Suit for the Money, till all the Incumbrances are discharged. Arg. and seems to be admitted in Serjeant Maynard's Case, Pas. 1676. 2 Freem. Rep. 2.

And if in a Conveyance of Lands there be no Covenants against any Incumbrances, yet if before Payment of the Money any are discovered, the Party may retain his Money till they are cleared. (Said by Mr. Keck, and agreed by Lord Chancellor.) But (it was said by Sir P. King, and not denied per Cur. that) those must be Incumbrances made by the Vendor himself, or otherwise the Party cannot detain the Money unless they be covenanted against. Serjeant Maynard's Case, 2 Freem. Rep. 2.

A Judgment was antedated on Purpose to over-reach a fair Purchaser, who had paid all the Purchase Money except 70*l.* which he was to keep till an Incumbrance, of which Notice was given, should be discharged. Decreed, that on Payment of the 70*l.* to the Judgment-Creditor, with Interest from the Time it ought to have been paid to the Vendor, a perpetual Injunction be awarded, and that he either acknowledge Satisfaction, or assign it to the Purchaser. *Fin. A. purchased Land in Borough English of an elder Brother, supposing the younger to be dead, and took a Bond to indemnify; but the younger Brother afterwards appearing, he and the elder Brother came to an Agreement, by which the younger was to have an Annuity paid him by the Vendor, and so the Purchaser was permitted to enjoy whilst the elder Brother lived, but he being dead, and A. the Purchaser also, the younger Brother brought an Ejectment against the Plaintiff the Heir of A. But other Compensations also being proved to be made by the elder Brother to the younger, it was decreed, that the Defendant, the younger Brother, should make good the Plaintiff's Title, and surrender and release the Lands to the Plaintiff and his Heirs. Vern. 325. Where the Heir of a Purchaser of Lands in Borough English had his Title made good by the Younger.

A Contract for the Purchase of an Estate on Payment of a certain Sum was made by an Agent of the Purchaser, and Part of the Money by him paid, which Agent died before the Purchase was completed; and the Vendor likewise died; but his Heir was decreed to execute a Conveyance on paying the Remainder of the Purchase-Money, &c. Fin. Rep. 201, 202. Heir of a Vendor compelled to execute a Conveyance.

Purchasers who have got an Advantage at Law, though by undue Means, have been permitted to profit by it; per Lord Rawlinson, and for that Purpose cited Bucknell and Ellis's Case, where Ellis had got the Deed of Rent-Charge into his own Hands; and Sir John Fagg's Case, who got the Deed of Intail into his Hands by a Trick; (which Case was cited by the Lord Chancellor in Lord Huntingdon and Greenville), and Harcourt and Knowel where a Release was obtained from a Grantee of a Rent-Charge, without any Condition and by Fraud; and Lord Rawlinson also cited the Case of Lord Huntingdon and Greenville, 2 Vern. 49. first decreed to protect a Purchaser, and after that, a Release gained from an Administrator de bonis non. A Purchaser brought a Bill for Writings and a Partition; Defendant insisted, that there was an Intail, and the Plaintiff's Purchase not good. The Court on the first Hearing gave Plaintiff Time to try his Title. Ejectment was brought, and a Copy of a Deed of Intail produced in Evidence, but the Original was lost, and not proved to be executed; a Verdict was against the Intail: On the Cause coming on upon the Equity reserved, Defendant insisted he ought not to be bound by one Trial in a Matter of Right of Inheritance. Sed non allocatur, being a Decree only for Partition. Tamen Q. 2 Vern. 232. Partition.

The Purchaser sold the Stock again, though forbid by the Proprietor. In Trover at Nisi Prius, before Sir P. A. entred into a Judgment to B. and C. which is defeasanced to the Use of D. and in the Defeazance A. covenants for himself, and his Heirs, to pay to D. the Cestui que Trust, and her Heirs; afterwards A. sells Part, and the other Part descended to the Heir, who married and had Children; B. one of the Trustees dies; C. the surviving Trustee makes A. the Conusor of the Judgment, Executor; D. the Cestui que Trust, brings a Bill against the Executors of A. the Heir at Law and the Purchaser, for Relief, not being able to recover at Law, the Conusor being made Executor; but no Relief. The Lord Chancellor said, though it be a meer Accident and Slip by the Conusor's being made Executor, yet Equity will not interpose or give any Assistance to affect a Purchaser; and bid them recover at Law, if they could. *Sel. Of a Purchaser's selling Woods.

The Court of Chancery would not stay a Purchaser from felling of Woods, though the Vendor had an Estate for Life; and the Court would not bar him Remedy at Law upon any Evidence he could produce. Toth. 223.

Purchaser of Woods after a Conveyance in Tail.

The Father makes a voluntary Conveyance in Tail of Lands, reserving an Estate for Life, after sells the Woods upon the Lands to a Stranger. Decreed in Chancery, that the Vendees of the Woods shall have them notwithstanding the Conveyance of the Lands. Toth. 257, 258.

A Purchaser from J. S. who has a Decree against him in Chancery for Land, shall be bound by the Decree, though he had no Notice of it. 2 Chan. Ca. 48.

J. C. mortgaged Land to H. and (having two Sons J. and E.) devised the Equity of Redemption to E. H. and J. join in an Assignment of the Mortgage to E. Though E. pleaded want of Notice of the Will, and that J. was the visible Heir, yet decreed, that E. should have the Equity of Redemption, on the Foot of the first Mortgage. Nel. Chan. Rep. 153.

A. purchases, having Notice of a Settlement, whereby B. the Vendor was but Tenant for Life, Remainder to his first, &c. Son in Tail. Afterwards A. sells to C. who had no Notice; B. dies leaving a Son; the Bill was dismissed as to C. but decreed A. to account for the Consideration Money, which he sold the Estate for, with Interest from the Decease of B. thereout discounting what was due on a Mortgage prior to the Settlement which he had bought in. 2 Vern. 384.

A. sells to B. who has Notice of an Incumbrance; B. sells to C. who has no Notice. And he to D. who has Notice; the Master of the Rolls thought this revived the first Notice to B. But the Lord Keeper held the contrary. Pre. in Chan. 51.

Lord Chancellor said, he took it to be a Rule in Equity, that where a Man is a Purchaser without Notice he shall not be annoyed in Equity; not only where he has prior a legal Estate, but where he has a better Title or Right to call for the legal Estate than the other. A. purchases of B. who had done an Act of Bankruptcy, but without Notice of it; afterwards a Commission is taken out, and there being a Term standing out in Trustees, the Assignee brings a Bill against them and the Purchaser, to have the Term assigned to him. Bill dismissed. 2 Vern. 599. It makes no Difference whether the Party be a Purchaser of the legal Estate, or only of an equitable Interest. Lilly's Prac. Conv. 393.

A. mortgaged an Estate for Years to D. who assigned the same to H. who made his Wife W. Executrix, and died. A. suggests that D. agreed to execute a Reconveyance. W. pleads that she was a Purchaser and Legatee, without any Notice of such Agreement, and that in Consideration of a Marriage between her and J. &c. she assigned the original Lease in Trust that the Marriage took Effect, therefore J. and W. claim an absolute Estate, having no Notice of such Agreement. Decreed, that it appearing the Plea was true, J. and W. were were in Nature of Purchasers without Notice, and therefore the Plea was allowed, but that they should give A. at his Charge, a Copy of the Deed of Trust, if required. Fin. Rep. 9.

A. on his Marriage with B. settles Lands for her Jointure, which were subject to an Intail. C. Brother of A. was privy to the Intail, ingrossed the Jointure Deed, had the Deed of Intail in his Custody, and concealed it. A. devised the Lands to J. S. and afterwards died without Issue, and J. S. married the Widow; C. sets up the Intail, brought an Ejectment, and recovered. J. S. and his Wife brought a Bill to be relieved. C. confessed that he was privy to the Marriage Treaty, ingrossed the Jointure Deed, and had the Deed of Intail in his Custody, but did not mention his Title, nor discover the Deed of Intail, because he apprehended his Brother would dock the Intail. Decreed the Wife to hold her Jointure, and a perpetual Injunction against the Judgment in Ejectment; but the Bill was dismissed as to the Husband's Claim of the Reversion and Inheritance by a voluntary Devise. And this Decree was afterwards affirmed in the House of Lords. 2 Vern. 239.

So where a Mother, who was absolute Owner of a Term, was present at a Treaty for her Son's Marriage, and heard her Son declare, that the Term was to come to him at his Mother's Death, and was a Witness to the Deed by which the Reversion of the Term was settled on the Issue of that Marriage; and on a Bill brought by the Issue of that Marriage she was compelled in Equity to make good the Settlement, and to settle the Reversion of the Term accordingly. 2 Vern. 150.

So where a younger Brother, having an Annuity of 100*l.* per Ann. charged on Lands by his Father's Will, contracted with A. to sell him this Annuity; A. goes to B. the elder Brother, and tells him he was about to buy this Annuity of his younger Brother, and desired to know if his younger Brother had a good Title to it, and whether his Father was seised in Fee at the Time of making the Will, and whether the Will was ever revoked. B. told him he believed his Brother had a good Title to it, and that he had paid him his Annuity these twenty Years; but withal, told him, that he heard there was a Settlement made of his Father's Lands before the Will, and that the said Settlement was in the Hands of J. S. and that he had never seen it, and therefore could not tell him what the Contents of it were, but encouraged him to proceed in his Purchase, telling him, he had not only paid his Brother his Annuity to that Time, but had paid his Sisters 3000*l.* under the same Will; afterwards B. gets the Settlement in his Hands, by which the Land out of which the Annuity issued was intailed, and would thereby avoid this Annuity: But on a Bill by A. to have the Annuity paid, or the Purchase Money back again, the Court decreed Payment of the Annuity, purely on the Incouragement given by the elder Brother. Abr. Ca. Eq. 356.

A Purchaser for a valuable Consideration, without Notice, having as good Title to Equity as any other Person, the Court of Chancery will never take any Advantage from him, and consequently will not grant a Discovery against him of the only Equity he has to defend himself by, which if he should be obliged to discover, the other Party would immediately take Advantage of; and there certainly may be Cases where a Purchaser for a valuable Consideration, without Notice of an Act of Bankruptcy, shall not be obliged in the said Court to discover any Thing (whether Incumbrances that he has got in, or any other Thing) but all Advantages shall be left him to defend himself by. Suppose two Purchasers without Notice, and the second by Chance gets holds of an old Term, he shall defend himself thereby against the first, who still is as much a Purchaser for a valuable Consideration as himself; therefore a Purchaser for a valuable Consideration, without Notice of the Bankruptcy, is to be relieved against it in Chancery, within 21 Jac. 1. Cases in Lord Talbot's Time 69.

A Debtor by Bond devised it should be paid out of his personal Estate; and if that was not sufficient; then to sell his real Estate and pay it, which accordingly was sold, and by several Conveyances came to the Defendant, who was sued for the Money as charged on the Lands which he bought. But it was decreed, that the Money which was received for the Sale of the Lands shall go in Aid of this Purchase, which was for a valuable Consideration without any Notice, &c. Fin. Rep. 137.

A. purchased the Manor of D. in which were Lands called B. and P. The Manor, at the Time of the Purchase, was in Mortgage for a Term of Years, and the Mortgage was paid off, and the Term assigned in Trust to attend the Inheritance; afterwards A. upon the Marriage of his Son, settles Part of these Lands, and amongst them the Lands called B. and P. but no Care was taken of the Mortgage Term that stood out; afterwards A. being in Possession contracts with Brockett to sell him all the said Manor, except the Lands of B. and P. but shews the Lands B. and P. as Part that he would sell; for Brockett did not know that any Part of the Lands were called by that Name; and in the Conveyance to him there is an Exception of Lands called B. and P. After the Purchase-Money paid, Brockett was evicted of the said Lands by Oxwick, who claimed under A.'s Son; upon which Brockett having found the old Term that was on Foot at the Time of A.'s Purchase, and got an Assignment of it; Oxwick brought his Bill against Brockett to be relieved, and to have an Assignment of the Term; and that as to the Lands called B. and P. he was no Purchaser of them, for they were expressly excepted in his Conveyance. But Lord Chancellor was of Opinion, that these Lands being shewn to the Defendant as Part of his Purchase, he (not knowing them to be excepted by the Name of B. and P.) was in Equity a Purchaser of them; and the Court ought not to assist in defeating of him, and therefore dismissed the Bill as to all the Lands purchased by him. Abr. Ca. Eq. 355.

Discovery of Deeds. A Purchaser of Lands from A. which B. makes Title to, getting the Deeds that make out B.'s Title, is not bound to discover them. Chan. Ca. 69.

An Heir exhibited a Bill for the Discovery of Evidences concerning Lands that were his Ancestors; the Defendant swore that he was a Purchaser of the Lands, and the Heir demanded a Sight of his Deeds and Writings. But per Lord Chancellor, he shall not see them; for although the Heir prima facie has a legal Title, he may go into a Court of Law if he pleases; but this Court will not compel the shewing the Writings to any Person unless he has an equitable Title, as a Mortgagee, &c. And this is the Difference between a legal and an equitable Title. 2 Freem. Rep. 24.

Supplying Defects in Deeds. A. employed by B. to purchase Lands, contrary to Agreement purchased them in his own Name, but by Persuasion let A. into the Purchase by Deed, wherein were several Omissions of Things comprized in the Purchase-Deed. On a Bill for Relief the Omissions were decreed to be supplied. Nel. Chan. Rep. 7.

Faboured by Allowance. The Husband made a Lease of the Wife's Land to one who was ignorant of the defeasible Title. The Lessee built upon the Land, and was at great Charge therein. The Husband died, and the Wife avoided the Lease at Law, but was compelled in Equity to yield a Recompence for the building and bettering of the Land; for it was so much the better worth unto her. Rep. Chan. 5.

Purchaser of a Term. But where a Purchaser of a Term of sixty-one Years, which he assigned to Trustees, and also of the Reversion and Inheritance, being in Possession, had laid out 1000 l. in Building, and enjoyed the same till the Death of the Vendor, and then the Land was recovered by virtue of an old dormant Entail; the Court would not relieve the Purchaser who was Plaintiff, nor give Defendant any Costs. Nel. Chan. Rep. 57, 58.

But Allowances for Improvements and necessary Reparations were made to a Purchaser of a Term, upon decreeing it to be delivered up to Devisees in Remainder. Fin. Rep. 379.

So where it was after a long Time, (the Person claiming having been beyond Sea twenty Years, and ignorant of his Title till after his Return) and divers Purchases made, and the last Purchaser had laid out Money in Building, it was decreed in Chancery that he hold till satisfied, discounting for the Profits received after the Purchase. 2 Lev. 152. Ca. Eq. Abr. 356. p. 9.

Prior Settlement. A Purchaser, who before his Purchase-Money paid, or Deeds executed, (though not before his Contract made) had Notice of a prior Settlement, was ordered to be allowed what he had laid out in lasting Improvements upon the Premises, though they were made pending the Suit. Vern. 487.

Articles of Purchase. And where it appears that Articles of a Purchase were unfairly obtained, though not to such a Degree as to set them aside, yet if upon the Prospect of their being performed he has improved the Estate, it is reasonable he should have Allowance for lasting Improvements, provided he deliver up the Articles, and account for the Profits; but if he goes to Law he must not expect it. Ca. Eq. in Lord Talbot's Time 234, 236.

Bill for Purchase-Money dismissed, there being a prior Settlement; and a Note given for that Money, decreed to be delivered up, and the Premises re-conveyed. P.'s Wife, before her Marriage with P. being possessed of a Term of Years as Executrix to her first Husband, and which was liable as Assets to the Payment of his Debts; in order thereto, and to raise Money for that Purpose, P. and his Wife, after their Marriage, entered into an Agreement with D. for Sale of the House in Question, for the Residue of the Term, for 450 l. whereof 210 l. was to be applied in Discharge of a Mortgage thereon to one J. S. and the remaining 240 l. was to be paid to P. and his Wife; accordingly P. and his Wife executed an Assignment of the House to D. with a Receipt indorsed thereon for the whole Purchase-Money; but D. did not then pay the Purchase-Money, but gave a Note for the Payment of 210 l. Part thereof, to J. S. the Mortgagee, and of the remaining 240 l. to P. and his Wife; and for the Non-payment thereof P. and his Wife brought their Bill in Chancery to have a specifick Performance and Payment of the Money accordingly. D. by his Answer

Answer admitted the whole Case to be as above, but insisted that he ought not to be bound thereby, for that P. and his Wife could not make him a good Title, they having, by Articles before Marriage, agreed to settle this House for the Benefit of themselves and their Issue, of which he had no Notice at the Time of his Purchase; and for the Discovery of these Articles, and to have up his Note on a Re-assignment of the House, D. brought his Cross-Bill. P. and his Wife, by their Answer, admitted there were such Articles, but insisted, that the House lying in Middlesex, those Articles were never registered in the Middlesex Office, and therefore void as against D. But it was decreed, that the original Bill should be dismissed with Costs, and on the Cross-Bill it was decreed, that the Note given for the Purchase-Money should be delivered up on a Re-assignment of the House, and D. likewise to have his Costs by Reason of P.'s Fraud and concealing the Articles. Abr. Ca. Eq. 357, 358.

So where the second Purchaser having Notice of the first Purchase, but that it was not registered, went and purchased the same Estate, and got his Purchase registered; yet it was decreed, that having Notice of the first Purchase, though it was not registered, bound him; and that his getting his own Purchase first registered was a Fraud; the Design of those Acts being only to give Parties Notice, who might otherwise without such Registry be in Danger of being imposed on by a prior Purchase or Mortgage, which they are in no Danger of when they have Notice thereof in any Manner, though not by the Registry. Abr. Ca. Eq. 358.

An antient Statute being against a Purchaser, though no direct Proof on either Side, was decreed to be cancelled. Totb. 258, 277.

A Purchaser, and those under whom he claimed, had been in quiet Possession for sixteen Years, and then the Defendant set up a Mortgage and a Recognizance to incumber the Premises, against whom the Purchaser exhibited his Bill to be relieved; but there being no Proof to confirm, but that the Mortgage and Recognizance might both be satisfied, the Mortgage was decreed to be delivered up and cancelled, and the Recognizance to be vacated. Fin. Rep. 250.

A Man possessed of a Lease for fifty Years, he died intestate, the Wife administered, and made a Feoffment to her own Use; a little before her Marriage with a second Husband, the Feoffees sold the Land for a valuable Consideration, which was enjoyed many Years accordingly; after the Wife's Death the second Husband would avoid this Purchase by Reason of the Use; but the Court decreed that the Purchasers should enjoy it, notwithstanding a Verdict at Law. Totb. 223, 224.

Lands devised to be sold for Payment of Legacies, the Sale was made by W. who possessed Legacies, them six Years, and then sold them to A. A. and his Heir enjoyed the same twenty-two Years more, without any Demand of the Legacies. This quiet Possession for twenty-eight Years was held a good Title, and the Bill brought against the Purchaser for the Payment of the Legacies was dismissed, W. the Vendor having received by the Sale Money sufficient to discharge the Legacies. Fin. Rep. 316.

A. Tenant in Tail of a Copyhold, Remainder to himself in Fee, purchased the Freehold of Copyhold, the Lord, and then sells to J. S. and dies; and after thirty Years Possession the Son of A. sets up a Title as Issue in Tail. The Lord Chancellor declared, that the Purchaser of the Freehold shall attract the other Estate, which was but at Will; and decreed the Purchaser to enjoy against the Issue in Tail. Vern. 393. For the Copyhold being severed from the Manor, there is no Means to bar it. 2 Chan. Ca. 174. and vide Vern. 458.

P. having a Lease of certain Mills for twelve Years, which were near expired; Lessor on his Marriage made a Settlement of these Mills to the Use of himself for Life, then to the first and other Sons of that Marriage in Tail Male, Remainder to his own right Heirs. Afterwards P. took a new Lease of these Mills from the said Lessor for thirty Years, and laid out 2800*l.* in Building and Improvements; D. was the eldest Issue Male of the Lessor, and during the Time P. was making Improvements, went to his Father, and told him, he had no Power to make any such Lease; that after his Death the Estate would be his, but never acquainted P. with this, or of the Settlement made on his Father's Marriage; but on the contrary, wrote to P. to take care to keep one of the Mills in particular in Repair; then the Father died, and the Son recovered in an Ejectment against the Lessee, who thereupon brought his Bill to be quieted in the Possession of the Mills during the Residue of his Lease, because D. was fully acquainted with the Circumstances of this Lease, knew his Father had no Power to make it, and yet never forbade nor cautioned P. from going on with his Repairs, but on the contrary stood by and saw them, and encouraged him in the Proceeding therein; and therefore it was decreed that P. should hold during the Residue of his Term; for though D. was not privy to the making of this Lease, that being only only the Fraud of the Father, yet he being to have the Estate after his Father's Death, and taking Notice thereof to his Father, that he had no Power to make any such Lease, and yet suffering P. to go on in his Repairs, with a Design to reap the whole Benefit himself when his Father was dead, was such a Fraud and Practice in him as ought to be discountenanced in Equity; for Qui tacet assentire videtur. Abr. (E) In what Cases Purchases are affected.

1. By Incumbrances.

Articles.

Marriage-Articles.

Voluntary Articles shall never be set up against an absolute Purchaser, although such Purchaser had Notice by being a Party to the Articles; but Quære; for there was another Point in the Case, which might be the Foundation of the Judgment. Vin. Abr. Tit. Purchaser, (D) pl. 5.

A Church Lease was agreed by Marriage Articles to be settled upon the Husband and Wife, and the Issue of the Marriage. They had Issue; the Husband mortgaged the Lease to A. and then the Husband and Wife surrendered the Lease, and a new one was granted to J. S. afterwards B. purchased this last Lease, without Notice of the Articles. B. died, and his Executors sold the Lease to C. who had Notice of the Articles, and gave him a collateral Security for the better assuring his Title. The Plaintiff claimed under the Articles, and prayed, that C. by Reason of the Notice he had of the Articles, might be considered as a Trustee for him: C. pleaded his Purchase, and confessed the Notice, but insisted principally upon B.'s Purchase without Notice, and that he had now B.'s Title. And because C. claimed under B. who was a Purchaser without Notice, and who had barred the Plaintiff's Right, and that all B.'s Right was now devolved upon C. Lord Chancellor Talbot decreed for C. and said, it would be the same, though C. had been only a Voluntier, as B.'s Executors were, and that C.'s taking collateral Security would not make his Case the worse; but if B. had had Notice, all would be overturned. Ca. Lord Talbot's Time 187.

Concealed Conveyance.

Purchaser is not to be affected with a concealed Conveyance. Butler v. Burk, 6 Febr. 1719. Vin. Abr. Tit. Purchaser, (D) pl. 7.

Decree.

Ordered, That a Decree for a Lease and other Personal Estate by Consent shall bind Purchasers for valuable Consideration. 3 Chan. Rep. 22.

Award.

An Estate was awarded to A. who had Possession pursuant to the Award, and devised it to a Charity. B. having Notice of the Award, and the Devise, purchased it. Decreed against the Purchaser, and in Favour of the Charity. Fin. Rep. 76.

Jointure.

A general Power to make a Jointure, and not said of what Lands in particular, is not such a Lien upon the Lands as will affect a Purchaser, though the Power had been afterwards executed, much less where it is not executed at all. Vern. 407.

Will.

A Devisee of Lands got a Decree to hold against the Heir, who was supposed to have suppressed the Will; the Testator had mortgaged the Land, and a third Person, pending the Suit, got Assignment of the Mortgage, and purchased the Equity of Redemption of the Heir, with Notice of the Will. The Court would not admit the Purchaser to dispute the Justice of the Decree, nor to try at Law if the Will was cancelled by the Testator or not. 2 Vern. 216, 217.

Judgment.

Lord Cowper seemed to be of Opinion, that in Case of a Covenant to convey Land, the Money being paid, and afterwards the Vendor confessed a Judgment to a Creditor between the Time of the Conveyance and the Covenant, it should not affect the Purchaser, because in Equity the Land is esteemed to be sold from the Time of the Covenant. Lucas's Rep. 468.

And the same Point is admitted and affirmed by Lord Chancellor Cowper, though the Judgment-Creditor had no Notice of the Covenant, because from the Time of the Articles and Payment, the Seller would be only a Trustee for the Purchaser. Will. Rep. 278; 279.

But if the Consideration paid is not somewhat adequate to the Thing purchased, as if the Money paid is but a small Sum in Respect of the Value of the Land, this shall not prevail over a mesne Judgment-Creditor. Per Lord Chancellor Cowper, Will. Rep. 282.

But a Mortgagee, for a valuable Consideration, without Notice of such Covenant, shall hold Place against such Covenantee; for there the Money is lent upon the Credit of the Land, and attaches upon the Land, which a Judgment does not; which was granted. Will. Rep. 279.

By the Stat. of 29 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 2. any Judge, or Officer of any of the Courts at Westminster, that shall sign any Judgments, shall (without Fee) set down the Day of the Month and Year of his so doing, upon the Paper or Record, &c. which he shall sign, which shall be entered upon the Margin of the Roll of the Record of the said Judgment; and such Judgments, as against Purchasers bona fide, for valuable Consideration, shall be Judgments only from such Signing.

Upon this Statute a Judgment shall have no Relation but from the Time of the Signing, not only as against Purchasers of the Lands themselves, but also as against prior Judgments entered in the Grand Sessions of Wales, to which that Statute does not extend; and said, That a Man, who trusted his Money on a Judgment, was in some Part a Purchaser of the Land, as he might take out Execution, and extend the Land itself; that the Rule laid down by the Statute for the Safety of Purchasers of the Lands themselves, was a good Rule to follow in the other Case, and the Relations were not to be favoured in a Court of Equity. Prec. in Chan. 478.

If a Judgment be signed in the Vacation, yet it is entered as of the Term before, and none but a Purchaser shall be admitted to say it was signed as of any other Time, and it is the Course of the Court to let all Thing be done in the Vacation as of the Term before. Salk. 401. Faresley 39.

The Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 20. §. 2, 3. enacts, That the Clerk of the Essoigns of the Court of C. B. Clerks of the Dockets in B. R. and the Master of the Office of Pleas in the Exchequer, shall, before the End of every Easter Term, alphabetically enter a Particular of all the Judgments of Debt by Confession, Non sum Informatus, &c. of the Hilary Term preceding, and within ten Days deliver Notes in Writing to the Clerks, &c. The like before the End of Michaelmas Term, of the Terms of Easter and Trinity, and before the End of Hilary Term, of Michaelmas Term, under the Penalty of 100*l.* And that no Judgment shall affect Purchasers of Lands or Mortgages, till docketed and entered as aforesaid.

Lands in Mortgage were purchased in another Man's Name in Trust for the Purchaser. Purchaser in He, in whose Name they were bought, was a Debtor by Judgment; now if all the Lands, another's which were purchased in his Name, were in Trust for the Purchaser, they could not be affected with the Judgment; but it appearing, that a Moiety was only in Trust, the Judgment-Creditor had Relief. Fin. Rep. 63.

K. contracted with M. to sell him Lands; afterwards A. the Father knowing of the said Purchase for Contract purchased them of K. in Behalf of A. his Son, and had a Conveyance from K. to A. another. the Son and his Heirs. M. brought a Bill in Chancery to be relieved upon his said Contract, and against the Conveyance to A. and charged Notice of this Contract to both A.'s. A. the Son pleaded, that he was a Purchaser bona fide for a valuable Consideration, without any Notice of K.'s Contract with M. and without any Trust for his Father. Per Cur., Notice to the Father was Notice to the Son, and should affect him, though a Purchaser; for Notice of a dormant Incumbrance to a Party who purchases for another, shall affect the Purchaser himself; and decreed, that A. should convey the Lands to M. Nel. Chan. Rep. 59.

A Purchaser with Notice aliened to one who had no Notice. In this Case, though the Court Fraud. would not affect the Purchaser without Notice, yet it being a Fraud, the Vendor, who was the Purchaser with Notice, was decreed to make Satisfaction to his Vendee, who had sued for Relief. Cited by Lord Chancellor Talbot, as a Case which he said he remembered. Ca. in Lord Talbot's Time 188.

If an Estate subject to a Trust is purchased from the Trustees, for a valuable Consideration Trust. without Notice, a Court of Equity cannot affect the Purchaser, though they can the Trustees; but if such Purchaser had Notice, then the Trust goes along with the Estate, and the Land continues subject to it. Ca. Eq. Talbot's Time 260.

A. devised Lands to his Wife for Life, and after to his eldest Son, upon Condition, that if his Wife should be with Child, 80*l.* should be paid by the Heir at Law to the Child after the Mother's Death. The Wife had a Child, and after the Mother and eldest Son conveyed away the Land to a Purchaser. Upon Notice proved of the Will, the Money devised was decreed to the Daughter, and the Court declared, it was a Trust devised to go with the Land; and yet this Will was void in Law as to the Legacy, seeing he who was to have the Benefit of the Breach of the Condition was Heir, and also the Party that should pay the Legacy. 3 Ch. Rep. 93.

A. devised Lands to B. charged with Payment of 600*l.* to C. and D. at a certain Time, Trust and and in Default A. devised the Lands to E. B. and E. joined in a Mortgage of these Lands Mortgage. to F. and F. suffered B. to continue in Possession, and to sell Timber; so that there was not sufficient to satisfy the 600*l.* and the Mortgage; and by B. and E. joining it must be intended, that F. had Notice of the Trust. Decreed, that the 600*l.* be paid before the Mortgage. Fin. Rep. 225.

A Statute which was for Performance of Covenants, ought not to take away the Possession Statute. of a Purchaser. Toth. 258.

A Term in Trust for Payment of Debts generally, is good against an Heir, though no Debts and I.e. Creditor be Party to the Deed, nor Debt expressed in particular, nor Covenant in the Lease gacies. to pay; but the Lord Keeper said, he would not maintain it against a Purchaser. Chan. Ca. 249.

W. devised Lands to A. and B. his Wife for Life, upon Condition, that A. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, should pay all his Debts and Legacies, and after the Decease of the Survivor of them, then he devised the Inheritance to C. their Son, and the Heirs Male of his Body, &c. and made A. his Executor, and died; A. B. and C. joined in a Conveyance to D. A. died, leaving no Personal Estate. Per Cur', The Lands were liable in the Hands of the Purchaser to pay the Debts and Legacies; and D. was decreed to pay the same with Damages and Costs, and then he was to take his Remedy against B. for the Profits received, which the Court declared was likewise liable to pay this Legacy; and she was decreed to pay the same to the Purchaser, for which Purpose he was to have the Benefit of this Decree. Nel. Chan. Rep. 38, 39, 40.

*A. purchases a Leasehold Estate of an Executor, having Notice of Testator's owing C. 100*l.* on bond; A. the Purchaser was also a Creditor of the Testator for 200*l.* and of his Executor for 550*l.* and discounted both Debts, and then paid the Surplus, being 150*l.* in Money. C. exhibited a Bill against A. to have Satisfaction for his Debt out of the said Estate, being Part of the Testator's Assets. A. insisted, that an Executor may sell, and with the Money, when he has it, may pay his own Debts; and for the same Reason, he may upon Sale discount, and allow the Debt the Purchaser owes him, and the rather in this Case, because he paid 150*l.* in Money, with which the Executor might have paid the Plaintiff's Debt; yet it was decreed at the Rolls for the Plaintiff, and affirmed on Appeal to the Lord Chancellor, he saying, the Defendant was a Party, and consenting to, and contriving a Devastavit. 2 Vern. 616. The same Case is said to be cited and agreed by the Lord Chancellor, 13 November 1738. in Nugent v. Giffard; who said, that he had examined the Register-Book, and the Decree was there founded upon particular Proof of Fraud, which Mr. Vernon's Report does not plainly and fully set forth.*

An Executor being possessed of a Term for Years in Right of his Testator, and being indebted to one on his own Account, agreed with his Creditor for Sale of this Term, and that the Debt should be discounted out of the Purchase-Money. Upon a Bill brought against him by the Testator's Creditors, he was not allowed to sink his own Debt, but was decreed to pay the Money, he having purchased with full Notice; that this was a Testamentary Estate, and nothing came into the Executor's Hands as an equivalent for it, to make up the Quantum of the Testator's Assets. Prec. in Chan. 434.

*A. was indebted by three Bonds, in which B. was Surety for him, and also in another Bond alone to one to whom B. afterwards gave his own Bond alone. A. being so indebted, made his Will, and in the Beginning says, My Will is, that all my Debts be paid, and I do charge all my Lands with Payment thereof. Item, I give all my Real and Personal Estate to B. his Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, chargeable nevertheless with Payment of all Debts and Legacies. And made B. his Executor. A. died in 1724. B. proved the Will, and in the same Year sold a Freehold Estate of A.'s to E. In 1725. B. sold a Leasehold Estate of A.'s to F. and in 1727. he sold another Estate of A.'s, consisting of both Freehold and Leasehold, to G. In every Conveyance A.'s Will was recited. To one of the Deeds J. S. a Creditor of A. was a subscribing Witness. These Lands were sold in the Neighbourhood by Outcry. At the Time of the Sales, all the Creditors either lived in the Town where B. lived, or within four Miles thereof. All along, till 1730, the Creditors received the Interest at 5*l.* per Cent. regularly from B. who was a solvent Person, till 1732, when he became Bankrupt. In 1734. the Creditors of A. brought a Bill against B. and the Assignees of the Bankrupt's Estate, for Satisfaction of their Debts out of the Lands sold by B. to E. F. and G. The Master of the Rolls said, that with Regard to the Leasehold Estate sold to F. the Creditors cannot have Satisfaction out of that, and this was so plain, that it would be monstrous to call it in Question; that the Executors are the proper Persons at Law to dispose of a Testator's Personal Estate, which indeed in some Cases might be clothed with such particular Trust, that possibly the Court in such Cases may require a Purchaser thereof to see the Money rightly applied; but unless there is some such particular Trust, or a Fraud in the Case, it is impossible to say but that the Sale thereof by an Executor must stand, and the Creditors cannot afterwards break in upon it; and as to the Sale to E. he observed, that the general Rule is, That a Trust, directing Land to be sold for Payment of Debts generally, does not bind the Purchaser to see the Money rightly applied; but if it be for Payment of certain Debts, specified in a Particular, the Purchaser must see a right Application. This Case does not fall within either of these Rules, because here the Lands are only charged with Payment of Debts, and not ordered to be sold for Payment; however that Circumstance does not make any Difference; for if such Distinction was to be made, the Consequence would be, that when Lands are charged generally, they can never be discharged without a Suit in Chancery, which would be very inconvenient; besides the Circumstances of Acquiescence so long as till 1734, without insisting on any Charge upon these Estates, and the Solvency of B. till 1732, and the Creditors*

Creditors receiving their Interest regularly of B. till 1730, who could not be supposed ignorant of the Purchases made by Outcry, and they living within three or four Miles of B. and J. S. a Creditor, being a subscribing Witness to one of the Purchase-Deeds; nor does it appear, that the Purchasers knew to whom the Debts were owing. Besides B.'s being a Co-obligor in three Bonds, and having given to another Obligee his single Bond, may be well deemed a Satisfaction for that Bond; by all which it appears, that the Creditors relied upon B. and therefore it is not reasonable, that they should resort now to A.'s Estate. His Honour dismissed the Bill with Costs, as to F. the Purchaser of the Leasehold only, and as to the other Defendants, without Costs, and so he was pleased to decree accordingly. He observed, that the only Objection that seemed of any Weight in this Matter is, that where Lands are appointed to be sold for Payment of Debts generally, the Trust may be said to be performed as soon as the Lands are sold; but that where they are only charged with the Payment of Debts, that the Trust is not performed till these Debts are discharged; and said, that so far it is true, that where Lands are charged with Payment of Annuities, those Lands will be charged in the Hands of a Purchaser; because it was the very Purpose of making the Lands a Fund for that Payment, that it should be a constant and subsisting Fund; but where Lands are not burthened with such a subsisting Charge, the Purchaser ought not to be bound to look to the Application of the Money; and that seems to be a true Distinction. Barn. Rep. Chan. 78 to 83.

If Lands be given to a charitable Use, and to dispose of an Overplus, if the Purchaser had Rents. no Notice, it cannot bind him; but if Rent issue out of Land, the Purchaser must pay it, but will not charge him to pay Arrears before Purchase, nor lay it upon one, nor excuse the other. Toth. 95, 96.

A. being seised of several Estates, granted an Annuity out of one of the Estates for a valuable Consideration, and gave a Recognizance for securing the Payment of the Annuity; afterwards A. sold other Lands to B. who had no Notice of this Recognizance; and after that A. sold the Land, charged with the Annuity, to C. The Annuity was greatly in Arrear. Decreed, that the Annuity was a just and clear Duty, and ought to be paid out of the Lands purchased by C. they being originally charged; and this in Ease of B. whose Lands are bound only by the Recognizance, and that the same ought to be paid out of the Assets of C.'s Estate in the Hands of his Executors, and if there be a Deficiency, then D. (to whom C. had sold the Lands) to pay out of the Profits received; but on B.'s offering to pay the Annuity and Arrears, it was decreed, he should have the Benefit of the Deed by which the Annuity was granted, and of the Recognizance, to reimburse him. Fin. Rep. 130.

A. seised of Lands, conveys them to B. in Trust, for Payment of all his Debts in general. C. the Plaintiff, being one of the Creditors of A. exhibits his Bill against D. as being a Purchaser under that Trust, to pay the Debts, &c. It was insisted for D. that the Conveyance to B. being general, to wit, for the Payment of all his Debts, and none of the Creditors Parties to it, it was therefore revocable at Pleasure, and merely voluntary; and that it had been so adjudged by Lord Keeper Coventry, and that such Conveyances are ambulatory, and that if a Man makes a Conveyance to B. in Trust to pay all his Debts mentioned in a Schedule, and all other his Debts, that as to all the Debts, besides those mentioned in the Schedule, such Conveyance is fraudulent against a Purchaser. But it was insisted for D. that if the Deed to B. was revocable by A. yet D. purchasing under that Conveyance, had confirmed it. Nel. Chan. Rep. 126, 127.

A. drew in B. a young Gentleman, to sell his Estate at a great Under-value, with Covenants from B. for A.'s quiet Enjoyment; and it happened the Title was defective. A. was evicted, and brought an Action on the Covenants. B. came into Chancery to be relieved against the said Action. A. insisted, that he ought to have the Value of the Estate evicted. Per Lord Keeper, A. who was a Lawyer, and ought to have understood a Title, purchased this Estate at a great Under-value; and the Title now proving defective, and the Land evicted, it is unreasonable he should make an Advantage of this catching Bargain; and therefore decreed him his Purchase-Money, with Interest only, discounting the Profits. Vern. 320.

Where a Purchaser has Allowance in Respect of an Incumbrance, this shall make the Incumbrance good, though it was before defective. Vern. 358.

Where a Deed of Trust is for the Payment of Debts in general, a Purchaser is not affected with any Misapplication of the Money; otherwise where it is for Payment of Debts particularly specified. Vern. 260, 261.

Where no Creditors are Parties, such Conveyances are ambulatory, revocable at Pleasure, and merely voluntary; and if a Man makes a Conveyance to another in Trust to pay all his Debts mentioned in a Schedule, and all other his Debts; as to all the Debts, besides those mentioned, such Conveyance is fraudulent against a Purchaser. Nel. Ch. Rep. 127.

Where

Where Lands are to be sold for Payment of particular Debts mentioned in a Schedule, the Purchaser must see his Money rightly applied; and if the Debts be not paid, that is such a Breach of Trust as shall affect the Purchaser. But if more be sold than is sufficient to pay the Debts, that shall not turn to the Prejudice of the Purchaser, for he is not obliged to enter into the Account, and the Trustees cannot sell just so much as is sufficient to pay the Debts. 1 Vern. 303. Abr. Ca. Eq. 358. But if the Trust be general, to pay Debts, though he has Notice of them, yet the Purchaser is not obliged to see the Money applied. Abr. Ca. Eq. 358.

If the Words of a Will are thus, I give my Lands to A. and B. in Trust, to sell to pay my Debts; the Purchaser is safe; and it does not concern him to see if the Debts are satisfied, especially if there is no Schedule. 2 Chan. Cases 223.

A Purchaser of Lands devised to be sold by Executors for Payment of Debts in Case of Deficiency of Personal Estate, is not concerned whether there be Sufficiency or not; for if he buys and pays, though there were sufficient to pay the Debts out of the Personal Estate, yet he shall hold the Lands against the Heir, and the Heir shall take his Remedy against the Trustee; and so if the Matter rests in Account between the Heir and the Trustee, his Purchase is safe, though the Money be Mis-spent by the Trustee. 2 Chan. Ca. 115.

But Lis pendens between the Heir and Trustee to have an Account, is sufficient Notice in Law, without actual Notice of the Suit; so that if he purchase, 'tis at his Peril: So that if in the Event of that Suit it falls out that the Debts were paid when he purchased, or sufficient of the Personal Estate to pay his Debt without Sale, the Heir will recover against the Purchaser; but if it falls out that there was a Necessity to sell them, then the Purchaser is safe; but such Dependence of Suit must be real, and not collusive. 2 Chan. Ca. 116.

And in 2 Chan. Ca. 223. it was agreed and resolved, that by the Trust in the Will to sell, the Purchaser purchases at his own Peril, if the Personal Estate and Profits of the Land should prove sufficient, and afterwards should prove insufficient.

Lands (whereof Part were in Jointure) were vested in Trustees by Act of Parliament, to sell and to raise Money for building, and stocking a Printing House (burnt down in the Fire of London) and the Surplus to purchase Lands to be settled to the Uses of the Marriage Settlement. Money was borrowed accordingly upon a Mortgage, and the Question was between the Remainder-man in Tail under the Settlement, and the Mortgagees, whether any more Money ought to be charged on the Mortgage, than what was taken up and employed according to the Trust of the Act of Parliament. It was decreed by Lord Chancellor Jefferies, that there ought not, and that an Account be taken of how much had been employed, and the Defendant, on paying so much, with Interest and Costs, discounting the Profits received by the Mortgagees, should be let in to redeem; though for the Mortgagees it was insisted, that it could not be reasonably intended they could be privy to, and prove the laying out of the Money according to the Act of Parliament, and that no one would lend Money upon the Trusts of an Act of Parliament, if it was incumbent on him to see the Money laid out according to the Act, and that such Construction could not consist with the Intention of the Act, but utterly prevent the same. 2 Vern. 5. Abr. Ca. Eq. 358. p. 3.

A. had an Interest in a Term of Years in a Printing Office, and made his Will, and devised his Term in the Printing Office to his Executors, in Trust, by Profits, &c. to raise 2000*l.* for the Portion of his Daughter, and then for other Trusts, and died: The Executors mortgaged the Term for 1000*l.* to J. S. on Pretence of want of Assets to pay Testator's Debts; and the Plaintiff, the Assignee of the Mortgagee, brought a Bill to Foreclose the Equity of Redemption. The Daughter opposed it, and insisted this Mortgage ought not to take Place till her Portion was raised, for that the said Term was devised to the Executors in Trust for that Purpose in the first Place, and the Mortgagee could not but have Notice of it; and that there were no Debts of the Testator; or if any, the Mortgagee at his Peril ought to see the Money applied to discharge them, and to be allowed no more than he could make out to be so applied. Lord Keeper: Where a Trust is to sell for Payment of Debts in a Schedule, the Purchaser at his Peril is to see the Money applied to the Payment of those Debts; but here the Question is, how far an Executor's Power extends over a Chattel which has a Trust annexed to it; the Law has intrusted the Executor with the personal Estate to pay Debts, and unless he has a general Power, he has none at all; for if he cannot sell, none can buy, and the general Trust must take Place; and a Purchaser is not bound to prove the Debts, or the Number of them, or the Application of the Purchase Money, therefore the Sale is good; but after, on Appeal to the House of Lords, they altered the Decree, and preferred the Portion. Quere causam inde. Abr. Ca. Eq. 358, 359. and by 2 Vern. Rep. 445. The Court was of Opinion in this Case, that the Executor of a Testamentary Estate had the Power over it so as to alien or sell, as he should judge necessary; and and that if he sold in Prejudice of a Residuary or Specifick Legatee, they might have their Remedy against the Executor, but not follow the Estate into the Hands of a Purchaser; for should that be allowed, no one would venture to buy of an Executor; for it would be unreasonable that a Purchaser should take upon him to make out the Account, as to the Quantum of the Debts or Assets; nor is he intitled to have the Vouchers to make out such an Account; and if such Difficulties be put upon Purchasers of Chattels, &c. from Executors, it will follow, that Executors will be under an Incapacity, and disabled to sell, though there be never so much Occasion for it, for Payment of Debts; and therefore the Court decreed an Account to the Plaintiff of the Rents and Profits, and to hold and enjoy the Printing Office, and Defendants to redeem, or be foreclosed. But the Decree was reversed as aforesaid.

In the Case of Hitchcock & al' v. Sedgwick & al', Lord Rawlinson said that the Chancery <sup>3. By pre-</sup> has been always very careful not to impeach Purchasers by presumptive Notice, and cited the <sup>sumption</sup> Case of Brampton and Barker, where Tenant for Life, Remainder to his first Son, mort- <sup>Notice, and</sup> gaged for 1500*l.* the Deed of Settlement was then produced, and seen by the Mortgagee, who <sup>where there is</sup> notwithstanding lent the Money, being advised that Tenant for Life, not having then any Son born, could destroy the contingent Remainder, whereas there was a Son born five Days before the Money lent; but the Mortgagee having no Notice thereof, and having got the Deed of Settlement, the Court would not relieve against him, but dismissed the Bill. And the Case of Philips and Redbill, where Tenant for Life sold as Tenant in Fee, and the very Deed of Settlement, at the Time of the Purchase, was produced and delivered to the Purchaser himself, yet the Court would not affect the Purchaser with presumptive Notice, but dismissed the Bill. 2 Vern. 159, 160.

A. and M. his Wife, being Tenants for Life, Remainder to Trustees to raise 6000*l.* Portions, Remainder in Fee, A. and M. by Deed created a Term for raising another 6000*l.* for such Persons as M. should appoint; with Power for A. and M. jointly to revoke the Uses. They mortgaged Part thereof for 200*l.* having before by Deed revoked pro tanto the former Uses; the Mortgage recited both the Power of Revocation, and the Execution of it. M. by Will appointed the 6000*l.* to the Plaintiffs, and died; afterwards A. married Defendant, and jointured the Premises upon her; in the Settlement was an Exception of the Trust for the 6000*l.* Portions, and of the Mortgage, but no Mention made of the other 6000*l.* Upon a Bill brought for the 6000*l.* appointed by M. it was insisted that the second Wife was a Purchaser without Notice of this Incumbrance; but per Cur. There was sufficient Notice in Law, or an implied Notice; for the Mortgage was excepted in the Jointure, so that they could not be ignorant of the Mortgage, and therefore ought to have seen that, which would have led them to the other Deeds, in which, if pursued from one to another, the whole Case must have been discovered to them. Chan. Cases 287 to 291.

A Purchaser having Notice of a Settlement made after Marriage, ought to have inquired of the Wife's Relations, who were Parties to the Deed, whether it was voluntary, or made pursuant to an Agreement before Marriage, and having Notice of the Deed, must at his Peril purchase, and be bound to the Effect and Consequence of the Deed. 2 Vern. 384.

(F) Of Disputes between Purchasers.

A PAROL Agreement for a Purchase and Possession delivered, was decreed to be performed against a subsequent Purchaser with Notice, who had a Conveyance, and paid his Money. Vern. 363.

Where a Writ of Dower was brought against several Purchasers, the Court directed that the Sheriff should charge them all proportionably, though otherwise the Sheriff might have charged them all out of one Party, and the Party should have no Remedy at Law; but in Equity they ought all to be equally charged; and therefore the Court gave this Direction. Freem. Rep. 227.

Plaintiff and Defendant severally purchased the same Reversion expectant on the Death of Tenant for Life. Plaintiff brought a Bill to examine Witnesses to preserve their Testimony, and to be admitted to try his Title in the Life of Tenant for Life. But as the Purchaser was a Defendant, the Court would do nothing in it, but dismissed the Plaintiff's Bill, and he lost his Land for want of examining his Witnesses. Cited by Lord Commissioner Rawlinson in the Case of Hitchcock v. Sedgwick, as the Case of Seybourne v. Clifton. 2 Vern. 159. libr. Ca. Eq. 354. p. 3. Nelson (in his Reports in Chancery, p. 125.) has the same Case by the Name of Seabourn v. Chilton thus: The Plaintiff's Father and Mother in their own Right were seized in Fee of the Lands in Question, in which one P. had an Estate for Life, and in 1643. they covenanted to levy a Fine thereof to the Use of the Father and Mother for Life, and the Survivor of them, Remainder to their first Son (the Plaintiff) in Tail Male, with several Remainders over. The Father survived, and then forged another Deed, declaring the Uses of the Fine to be to the Father and Mother, and to the Survivor of them, and to his or her Heir. Under which Deed Defendant purchased the Lands of the Father, who is since dead, and P. the Tenant for Life being still living, the Plaintiff exhibited his Bill to perpetuate the Testimony of Witnesses, to prove the true and disprove the forged Deed. The Defendant demurred as being a real Purchaser under the pretended Deed, believing it was a true and real Deed; therefore it being to draw under Examination a Matter of Forgery against a dead Person, who could not answer for himself, and to get Aid to impeach a real Purchaser, he insisted he ought not to answer. And upon Debate it appearing that the Tenant for Life was still living, so that the Plaintiff could not try his Title at Law, and that the Chancery is obliged to preserve a Title at Law, which by such Impediment could not at present be tried, the Demurrer was over-ruled.

V. on Marriage with M. (in Consideration of 6000*l.* Portion, mentioned as received by him with M. an Infant) covenanted with B. and C. Trustees, that if he and his Wife lived seven Years, then in three Months afterwards to lay out 10,000*l.* in a Purchase, and settle it on himself for Life, and on M. for her Jointure, &c. and if he died before a Settlement made, to leave her 10,000*l.* and confessed a Judgment to B. and C. for Performance of Covenants; 1500*l.* of the Wife's Portion was laid out in purchasing an Annuity of 100*l.* per Annum in the Exchequer, in the Name of C. and he gave a Declaration of Trust to V. that his Name was used in Trust for him, his Executors and Administrators. H. lent V. 1000*l.* on his assigning the Annuity, and depositing the Tallies and Orders with him, H. brought a Bill to compel C. to assign the Trust for securing his 1000*l.* But on a Cross Bill M. insisted that the Annuity purchased in C.'s Name was to be as a Pledge till the Marriage Agreement performed, and that the Tallies, &c. were deposited in C.'s Hands for that Purpose; but that her Husband persuaded her to take them out of his Hands, on Pretence they were not safe there; and she having so done, he afterwards took them out of her Cabinet, and delivered them to H. The Counsel for H. insisted, that whatever private Agreement might be between V. and his Wife, as he had not heard of it, it could not bind him, being only by Parol, and void by the Statute of Frauds, and that a Parol Agreement could not be tacked to a written one. But Cooper C. dismissed the Bill of H. and decreed 100*l.* a Year to M. her Husband being broke, and said that though Parol Agreements are bound by the Statute, and that Agreements are not to be part Parol, and part in Writing, yet a Deposit or collateral Security is not within the Purview of the Statute; and said that M. who was married in her Infancy, and her Trustees, who had made an improvident Agreement in Writing, did well afterwards, upon Recollection, to get that Deposit for Performance of the Agreements. Hales v. Vanderchem, Mic. 1708. 2 Vern. 617.

F. in Consideration of the Marriage, and 4000*l.* Portion, covenanted with K. that within six Months after K.'s Request he would settle all his Lands in B. to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to Trustees to preserve contingent Remainders, Remainder to E. his intended Wife for her Jointure, Remainder to the first, &c. Son of the Marriage in Tail Male, Remainder to Trustees for five hundred Years, to raise 5000*l.* for Daughters Portions. The Wife died, leaving no other Issue than one Daughter; F. married a second Wife, and settled the greatest Part of the Lands in the Articles, without giving Notice of the Articles, and had Issue a Son and a Daughter by her, and died Intestate. It was held by the Master of the Rolls, that this 5000*l.* ought to be made good out of the real Estate contracted to be settled, supposing that such Part thereof as is left unsettled be sufficient; but that it must be agreed that the Land actually settled by F. on his second Marriage without Notice, is a good Settlement, (though it be a Breach of Trust) and must take Place against the Articles, no more Lands being liable to the Articles than are omitted out of the Settlement on such second Marriage. And Lord Chancellor King signified the Opinion of Mr. Justice Price to be (as to this Point) that the Lands not included in the Settlement made on the second Marriage, must stand liable for raising the said Daughters Portions. 2 Will. Rep. 436, 447.

S E C T. IV.

PRESCRIPTION is a Title by Use and Time allowed by Law. Inst. 113. d.

Prescription,
what.

To make such a Title to an Inheritance, the Time by Common Law is, Time whereof there is no Memory of Man to the contrary; which is no limited Time. Wood's Inst. B. 1. c. 3. cites Lit. 170. Inst. 115. a & b. 2 Inst. 95, 96, 238, 653.

By Statutes Prescription may be within Memory. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

A Prescription properly so called, (as it relates to an Inheritance) is to be Time out of Mind, and is for the most part Personal, being made in the Name of a certain Person and his Ancestors, or those whose Estate he has, or of a Body Politick and their Predecessors; as when J. S. seised of the Manor of D. in Fee, shews that he and his Ancestors, and those whose Estate he has in the said Manor, have, Time out of Mind of Man, had, and used to have Common of Pasture, &c. in such a Place (being the Land of another) as appertaining to the said Manor. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites Lit. 170, 183. Inst. 213. b. 115 a. 121. a. Vent. 386, 387, &c.

In what
and who may
scription,

Tenant in Fee-simple ought to prescribe in his own Name: Tenant for Life, Years, or at Will, in the Name of him who has the Fee. Ibid.

A Park-keeper for Life cannot prescribe in himself and Predecessors to have such Profits as incident to his Office, because he has not any Interest in the Office in Perpetuity, neither is there is any Inheritance in it; and a Man cannot prescribe to the Incidents, unless he can prescribe to the principal Thing. Dyer 70.

Lessee for Life cannot prescribe alone, but he and him in Remainder may prescribe together, both being but one Estate. 2. Leon. 177.

Natural Persons cannot gain or be charged by a general Prescription from their Ancestors; though Bodies Politick may gain or be bound by Prescription only. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

A Corporation may prescribe by a Que Estate in their Borough. Ld. Raym. 386.

Occupiers cannot prescribe for an Interest, as Common, &c. Ld. Raym. 406.

Tenants in Common may be by Prescription, but not Jointenants, because there is a Survivorship betwixt them; nor Tenants at Will. In that Case of Tenancy in Common, one may make Title to Lands by Prescription. Lit. 310. Inst. 114. b. 195. b.

A Corporation cannot prescribe in themselves without shewing that they are a Corporation by Prescription. Ld. Raym. 558.

Prescription may be laid in a great many, where it tends but to claim an Easement or Discharge, not Matter of Interest and Profit. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

Prescriptions for Interest and Profits are extinguished by Unity of Possession, but not Prescriptions for Easements. 2 Ld. Raym. 1400.

A Man may prescribe that all the Inhabitants of the Parish have used to be buried in the Church-yard, &c. though they are not a Corporation. Ibid.

Inhabitants, unless they are incorporated, cannot prescribe to Matters of Profit in alieno solo, but they may for Matters of Easement, as for a Way to a Church, &c. or for Matters of Discharge, as for a Modus Decimandi, or to be discharged of Tithes or Toll. 6 Rep. 59, &c.

He that would have a Thing that lies in Grant by Prescription, must prescribe in himself and his Ancestors, whose Heir he is by Descent; not in himself and those whose Estate he has, (unless the Que Estate is but a Conveyance to the Thing claimed by Prescription, as in the former Case); for he cannot have their Estate that lies in Grant without Deed, which ought to be shewed to the Court. But of Things that are appendant to a Manor, Lands or Tenements, it is otherwise, because the Manor, &c. might pass without Deed. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

In Grant,

Nothing can be prescribed for, which cannot be raised by Grant at this Day. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites Finch 132. Vent. 387. 2 Roll. Abr. 264.

Things.

One cannot make Title to Land by Prescription, but only to Rent or Profit out of Land. Ibid.

It relates to a Fee-simple, and is always applied to incorporeal Inheritance. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites 4 Rep. 31, 32. Inst. 115. b. 2 Inst. 720. 6 Rep. 60.

No one can prescribe against the King, where he has an Estate permanent, and a certain Interest, nor against an Act of Parliament. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites 7 Rep. 28. Inst. 41. b. 113. a. 114. a. & b.

Though

Though regularly a Man cannot prescribe or alledge a Custom against a Statute, because it is Matter of Record, and is the highest Proof and Matter of Record in Law; yet a Man may prescribe or alledge a Custom against an Act of Parliament, when his Prescription or Custom is saved or preserved by another Act of Parliament. Co. Lit. 115. a.

None can prescribe directly to Goods and Chattels of Traitors, Felons, Felons of themselves, Fugitives, of those that are put in the Exigent, Deodands, Conscience of Pleas, to make a Corporation, to make a Coroner, &c. But one may make Title by Usage or Prescription only to Treasure-Trove, Waifs, Estrays, Wreck of Sea, to hold Pleas, Courts-Leet, Hundreds, to have a Park, Warren, Royal Fishes, Fairs, Markets, Frank-Foldage, the Keeping of a Gaol, Toll, to have a Corporation by Prescription, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

B. being seised of the Manor of D. he and all those whose Estate he has in the said Manor, Time out of Mind have had Liberty of Foldage in the Town of D. Et pro meliori pasturatione omnium suorum, the Inhabitants of the said Town having any Lands therein might erect Herdals in their Lands, with the Leave of the Lord of the Manor, and not otherwise. B. had let the said Manor to P. and L. had erected Heralds without Licence, so as the Profits of his Foldage is impaired by it. It was objected that the Prescription is not good, for it is against Law and common Right to abridge the Subject of the Profits of his Lands: But per Cur', the Prescription is good, for it only restrains the Tenant from erecting Herdals. Leon. 11.

Prescription,

A Prescription must not be laid in an Uncertainty, or in the Disjunctive, nor against the publick Good; as, to do a Thing which is a Nuisance, &c. nor against Reason or Religion, nor as to a mere Negative. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites 2 Roll. Abr. 265, 270.

When a Title
may be lost.

The Title being once gained by Prescription or Custom, it cannot be lost by Interruption of the Possession for ten or twenty Years; but it may be lost by Interruption in the Right; as if one has had a Rent or Common by Prescription, Unity of Possession (or a Possession of the Land with the Rent or Common) of as high and durable Estate, is an Interruption in the Right. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites Inst. 114. b. 2 Inst. 653, 654. 2 Roll. Abr. 271.

A Modus Decimandi being alledged by Prescription for Tithes of Lambs; the Payment of the Tithe-Lamb in Specie for twenty Years last past did not destroy the Prescription. Ibid.

If one that has Title to a Common by Prescription takes a Lease of the Land, after the Expiration of the Lease he may still claim by Prescription, for the Suspension was only of the Possession. Ibid.

Though a House or Mill falls by Default of the Owner, or otherwise, he may rebuild it upon the same Foundation; and all those Things that were appendant or appurtenant to it shall continue. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. cites 4 Rep. 87.

A Corporation that has Privileges by Grant or Prescription, though they are incorporated by another Name, yet the new Body shall have all the Privileges that the old one had. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

If a Court held by Prescription is granted and confirmed by the King's Letters Patent, this does not destroy the Prescription; but the Court may be held by Prescription as before. Qu. Ibid. cites 2 Roll. Abr. 271.

And if one claims any Thing by Prescription, and also by Charter, if the Charter is not contrary to the Prescription, it shall be good by way of Confirmation, as some affirm. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

The Difference between Prescription,
Custom and Usage.

There is a Difference between a Prescription, Custom and Usage; Prescription has respect to a certain Person, who by Intendment may have a Continuance for ever; as for Instance, he, and all those whose Estate he has in such a Thing, this is a Prescription. Nel. Abr. 1277.

But a Custom is local, and is alledged in no Person, but is within some Manor or other Place: As, that there is such a Custom Time out of Mind within the Manor of A. that all the Copyholders of the said Manor have had and used to have Common of Pasture, &c. in such a Waste of the Lord, Parcel of the said Manor, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3. Inst. 113. b. Nel. Abr. 1277.

Copyholds.

Thus it must be, when a Copyholder alleges a Custom against his Lord; for a Copyholder cannot lay a Prescription in himself and his Ancestors, by reason of the Baseness of his Tenure; therefore this is allowed for Necessity; but when he claims Common or other Profit in the Soil of a Stranger, he must prescribe in the Name of the Lord of the Manor, (viz.) That the Lord of the Manor and all his Ancestors, and all those whose Estate he has, have had Common in such a Place for themselves and Tenants at Will, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

Local, and in no Person.

Custom is local, and alledged in no Person; and this serves for them who cannot prescribe in their own Name, nor in the Name of any certain Person, as Inhabitants of a Town, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

Also a Custom may be alledged, when it is referred to insensible Things; as, that all such Lands are devisable, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

Usage.

Usage differs both from Prescription and Custom; for Usage may be either to Persons or Places, as to Inhabitants of a Town to have a Way, or to such a Hundred in such a County:

Thus

Thus Tenant for Life cannot prescribe, but he shall have the Benefit of an Usage. Nel. Abr. 1277.

But to speak in general of Customs and Prescriptions without Distinction.

To Customs and Prescriptions, Possession and Time are inseparably incident. Wood's Inst. The Incidents inseparable to Prescription and Custom.

B. 2. c. 3. cites 1 Inst. 113. b. 114. a. 115. a.

Possession must be long, continual and peaceable. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

Time (as has been said) by Common Law must be beyond the Memory of Man. Ibid.

But if there is a sufficient Proof by Record or Writing to the contrary, then it is within the Memory of Man. Ibid.

From what has been said, it may be observed, that a Prescription is properly a Title or Claim of a real Interest of Profit in the Land of another; which in Actions at Law must be strictly pleaded according to certain Rules; and are not like Customs, or improper Prescriptions, that are by way of Discharge, or for Easements, or for Matters of personal Exemption or Privilege.

As to Title by Prescription in Lands by Fine and Non-Claim, see concerning Fines, postea.

S E C T. V.

Of acquiring real Estates by Escheat.

ESCHEAT, Eschaeta, is a Word of Art, and derived from the French Word Escheat, Escheat. (id est) Cadere, Excidere or Accidere, and signifies properly when the Lands fall to the Lord of whom they are holden, by Accident, and unlooked for; in which Case we say, the Fee is escheated. Co. Lit. 13. a. 92. b. The Derivation and Signification of the Word.

And of this Word Eschaeta comes Escheator, an Escheator, so called because his Office is to inquire of all casual Profits, and to seize them into the King's Hands. Co. Lit. 13. a. 92. b. Escheator.

Property of Lands by Escheat, is where the Owner died seized of the Lands in Possession without Child or other Heir; thereby the Land, for want of other Heir, is said to escheat to the Lord of whom it is holden. Bac. L. Tracts 130. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 246. Property of Lands by Escheat.

This want of Heir happens principally in two Cases: First, where the Land's Owner is a Bastard. Secondly, where he is attainted of Felony or Treason. For neither can a Bastard have any Heir, except it be his own Child; nor a Man attainted of Treason, although it be his own Child. Bac. L. Tracts 131. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 246. Causes of Escheat. (1) Bastardy.

Upon Attainder of Treason the King is to have the Land, although he be not the Lord of whom it is held, because it is a Royal Escheat. But for Felony it is not so, for there the King is not to have the Escheat, except the Land be holden of him: And yet where the Land is not holden of him, the King is to have the Land for a Year and a Day next ensuing the Judgment of the Attainder, with a Liberty to commit all Manner of Waste all that Year in Houses, Gardens, Ponds, Lands and Woods. Ibid. (2) Attainder of Treason, Felony, &c.

An Escheat may be either per defectum sanguinis, or per delictum Tenentis. Co. Lit. 13. a. 92. b. Godb. 211. S. P. per Coke.

But in Case of an Attainder of Felony, the Escheat to the Lord is per defectum Tenentis, and not Descending the Consequence of the Corruption of Blood; but in Case of Treason, the Lands come to the Crown as an immediate Forfeiture, and not as an Escheat. Salk. 85.

Lands held of the King, as of an Honour, come to him by common Escheat, as the Tenant's dying without Heir, or committing Felony, these Lands are Part of the Honour. 2 Inst. 64. 4 Inst. 224. Et vide Kelw. 104. b. 2 Roll. Rep. 251.

Otherways if forfeited for Treason, for then it comes to the King by reason of his Person and Crown; and if he grants them over, &c. the Patentee shall hold of the King in chief, and not of the Honour. 2 Inst. 64.

If one seized in Fee of a Fair, Market, Common, Rent-Charge or Seck, Warren, Corrody, or other Inheritance not holden, is attainted of Felony, the King shall have the Profits of them during his Life; but after his Death they cannot descend; because his Blood is corrupted, nor escheat, because not holden, but perish and are extinct by Act in Law. 3 Inst. 21.

If the Tenant be disseised, and the Disseisee dies without Heir, during the Continuance of the Disseisor, this Right shall escheat to the Lord. 3 R. 2. Entry Congeable 38. 3 Danv. 136. 3 Co. 35. b. S. P. 1 Roll. Abr. 816.

If the Tenant be disseised, and the Disseisor by Fine grants and renders the Land to one in Tail, the Remainder to another in Fee, and after the Tenant in Tail dies without Issue, and he in Remainder enters, and after the Disseisee dies without Heir, this Right shall not escheat to the Lord, because he had another Tenant by Title in the Life of the Disseisee. 3 R. 2. Entry Congeable 38. 3 Danv. 136. 1 Roll. Abr. 816.

If a Disseisor makes a Feoffment, or dies seised, and after the Disseisee dies without Heir, there shall be no Escheat, because the Lord hath a Tenant by Title. Co. Lit. 268. b. Hob. 142.

Though a Lord hath not been seised of his Services within the Time of Limitation, yet if the Tenant dies without Heir, the Land shall escheat; for at the Time of the Escheat, the Seignioriness remained, the Seisin of the Services was wanting. 4 Co. 125. a.

If an Infant, or Non Compos, in Person makes a Feoffment, and after dies without Heir, the Land shall not escheat. 4 Co. 11. a.

Otherwise if made by Letter of Attorney, for then the Feoffment is void. 4 Co. 125. a.

Things to be
Escheats.

In these Escheats two Things are especially to be observed; (1) the Tenure of the Lands, because it directs the Person to whom the Escheat belongs, viz. the Lord of the Manor of whom the Land is holden. (2) The Manner of such Attainder which draweth with it the Escheat. Bac. L. Tracts 131. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 246.

(1) The Tenure.

Concerning the Tenures of Lands, it is to be understood, that all Lands are holden of the Crown either mediately or immediately, and that the Escheat appertaineth to the immediate Lord, and not to the mediate. Ibid.

The Conqueror got all the Lands of the Realm into his Hands, and reserved Rents and Services.

The Reason why all Land is holden of the Crown immediately, or by Mesne-Lords, is this: The Conqueror got by Right of Conquest all the Lands of the Realm into his own Hands in Demesne, taking from every Man all Estate, Tenure, Property and Liberty of the same, (except Religious and Church Land, and the Land in Kent;) and still as he gave any of it out of his Hand, he reserved some Restitution of Rents, or Services, or both, to him and to his Heirs; which Reservation is that which is called the Tenure of Land. Ibid.

In which Reservation he had four Institutions, exceeding politick, and suitable to the State of a Conqueror. Bac. L. Tracts 132. Shaw's Bac. 246.

Knights-Service.

1. Marriage of the Wards.

The first was, that seeing his People to be Part Normans, and Part Saxons, the Normans he brought with him, the Saxons he found here; he bent himself to conjoin them by Marriages in Amity; and for that Purpose ordains, that if these of his Nobles, Knights and Gentlemen, to whom he gave great Rewards of Lands should die, leaving their Heir within Age, a Male within twenty-one, and a Female within fourteen Years, and unmarried, then the King should have the bestowing of such Heirs in Marriage in such a Family, and to such Persons as he should think meet; which Interest of Marriage went still implied in every Tenure called Knight-Service.

2. Horse for Service.

The second was, to the End that his People should still be continued in Warlike Exercises and able for his Defence. When therefore he gave any Portion of Lands, that might make the Party of Abilities or Strength, he withal reserved this Service, that that Party and his Heirs having such Lands, should keep a Horse of Service continually, and serve upon himself when the King went to Wars; or else having Impediment to excuse his own Person, should find another to serve in his Place; which Service of Horse and Man is a Part of that Tenure called Knight-Service. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 247. Bac. L. Tracts 232.

But if the Tenant himself was an Infant, the King was to hold this Land himself until he came to full Age, finding him Meat, Drink, Apparel, and other Necessaries, and finding a Horse and Man with the Overplus, to serve in the Wars as the Tenant himself should have done if he was of full Age. Ibid.

But if this Inheritance descended upon a Woman that could not serve by her Sex, then the King was not to have the Lands, she being of fourteen Years of Age, because she was then able to have an Husband that might do the Service in Person. Ibid.

3. Homage and Fealty.

The third Institution was, that upon every Gift of Land the King reserved a Vow and an Oath to bind the Party to his Faith and Loyalty; that Vow was called Homage, the Oath Fealty. Bac. L. Tracts 133. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 247.

Homage was to be done kneeling, holding his Hands between the Knees of the Lord, saying in the French Tongue, I become your Man of Life and Limb, and of earthly Honour. Ibid.

Fealty was to take an Oath upon a Book, that he would be a faithful Tenant to the King, and do his Service, and pay his Rents according to his Tenure. Ibid.

4. Premier Seisin.

The fourth Institution was, that for Recognition of the King's Bounty by every Heir succeeding his Ancestor in those Knight-Service Lands, the King should have Premier Seisin of the Lands, which was one Year's Profits of the Lands; and until that was paid, the King was to have Possession of the Land, and then to restore it to the Heir; which was the very Cause of suing Livery, and that as well where the Heir had been in Ward as otherwise. Ibid.

These before mentioned be the Rights of the Tenure, called Knight-Service in Capite, which is as much as to say, Tenura de persona regis, and Caput being the chiefest Part of the Person, it is called a Tenure in Capite, or in chief. Ibid.

Aid-Money.

Aid-Money to make the King's eldest Son a Knight, or to marry his eldest Daughter, was likewise due to his Majesty from every one of his Tenants in Knight-Service, who hold by a whole Fee 20s. and from every Tenant in Socage, if his Land be worth 20l. per Ann. 20s. Note at the bottom of the same Page.

Esuage

Escheage was also due from his Tenants by Knight-Service, when his Majesty made a Voyage Royal to War against another Nation, those of his Tenants who did not attend him there for forty Days with Horse and Furniture fit for Service, were to be assessed in a certain Sum by Act of Parliament, to be paid to his Majesty, which Assessment is called Escheage. Ibid.

And it is also to be noted, that as this Tenure in Capite by Knight-Service generally was a great Safety to the Crown, so also the Conqueror instituted other Tenures in Capite necessary to his Estate; as namely, he gave divers Lands to be holden of him by some special Service about his Person, or by bearing some special Office in his House, or in the Field, which had Knight-Service and more in them, and these he called Tenures by Grand Serjeanty. Also he provided upon the first Gift of Lands, to have Revenues by continual Service of ploughing his Land, repairing his Houses, Parks, Pales, Castles, and the like; and sometimes to have a yearly Provision of Gloves, Spurs, Hawks, Horses, Hounds and the like; which Kind of Reservations are also called Tenures in Chief, or in Capite of the King; but they are not by Knight-Service, because they required no personal Service, but such Things as the Tenants may hire another to do, or provide for by Money. And this Tenure is called a Tenure by Socage in Capite, the Word Socagium signifying the Plough; howbeit in this latter Time, the Service of ploughing the Land is turned into Money Rent; and so of harvest Works, for that the Kings do not keep their Demesne in their own Hands, as they were wont to do; yet what Lands were de Antiquo dominio coronæ, it well appeareth in the Records of the Exchequer, called the Book of Domesday. And the Tenants by Antient Demesne have many Immunities and Privileges at this Day, that in ancient Times were granted unto those Tenants by the Crown; the Particulars whereof are too long to set down. Bac. L. Traacts 134. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 247, 248.

The Tenures in Capite, as well that by Socage, as the others by Knight-Service, have this Property; that the Tenants cannot Alien their Lands without Leave of the King: If they do, the King is to have a Fine for the Contempt, and may seize the Land, and retain it until the Fine be paid; and the Reason is, because the King would have a Liberty in the Choice of his Tenant, so that no Man should presume to enter into these Lands, and hold them (for which the King was to have these special Services done him) without the King's Leave; this Licence and Fine, as it is now digested, is easy and of Course. Bac. L. Traacts 134, 135. Shaw's Bac. 248.

There is an Office called the Office of Alienation, where any Man may have a Licence at a reasonable Rate, that is, at the third Part of one Year's Value of the Land moderately rated. A Tenant in Capite by Knight Service or Grand Serjeanty, was restrained by ancient Statute, that he should not give nor Alien away more of his Lands, than that with the rest he might be able to do the Service due to the King; and this is now out of Use. Bac. L. Traacts 135. Shaw's Bac. 248.

And it is to be noted, that all those that held Lands by the Tenure of Socage in Capite (although not by Knight-Service) could not alien without Licence, and they were to sue Livery and pay primer Seisin, but not to be in Ward for Body or Land. Ibid.

But now by Statute 12 Car. 2. c. 24. All Tenures by Knight-Service and Socage in Capite are turned into Common Socage, and discharged of Homage, Livery, Premier Seisin, Wardship, &c. which were at Law incident to such Tenures, and Aids pur file Marrier, & pur faire fitz Chivalier. And any Father (though under twenty-one) may by Act executed, or by Will in Writing, dispose of the Tution of his Children, as long as they shall be under twenty-one Years of Age, to such Persons (except Popish Recusants) and in such Manner as he thinks fit.

In imitation of the King's Policy in these Institutions of Tenures, the great Men and Gentlemen of this Realm did the like as near as they could: Thus, when the King had given to any of them two thousand Acres of Land, the Party purposing in this Place to make his Dwelling, or (as the old Word is) his Mansion-house, or his Manor-house, devised how he might make his Land a complete Habitation to supply him with all Manner of Necessaries; and for that Purpose, he would give of the uttermost Parts of these two thousand Acres, one hundred or two hundred Acres, or more or less, as he should think meet, to one of his most trusty Servants, with some Reservation of Rent to find a Horse for the Wars, and go with him when he went with the King to the Wars, adding Vow of Homage, and the Oath of Fealty, Wardship, Marriage, and Relief. This Relief was to pay five Pounds for every Knight's Fee, or after the Rate for more or less at the Entrance of every Heir; which Tenant so created and placed, was called a Tenant by Knight-Service, and not by his own Person, but of his Manors; of these he might make as many as he would. Then this Lord would provide that the Land which he was to keep for his own Use, should be ploughed, and his Harvest brought Home, his House repaired, his Park paled, and the like: And for that End he would give some lesser Parcels to sundry others, of twenty, thirty, forty, or fifty Acres; reserving the Service of ploughing a certain Quantity, or so many Days, of his Land, and certain Harvest Works or Days in the Harvest to Labour, or to repair the House, Park Pale, or otherwise, or to give him for his Provision Capons, Hens, Pepper, Cumin, Roses, Gilliflowers, Spurs, Gloves, or the like; or to pay him a certain Rent, and to be sworn to be his faithful Tenant, which Tenure was called a Socage Tenure, and is so to this Day, though most of the Ploughing and Harvest Services are turned into Money Rents. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 248, 249. Bac. L. Tracts 136.

Relief.

The Tenants in Socage at the Death of every Tenant were to pay Relief, which was not as Knight-Service was, five Pounds a Knight's Fee: But it was, one Year's Rent of the Land; and no Wardship or other Profit to the Lord. The Remainder of the two thousand Acres he kept to himself, which he used to Manure by his Bond-men, and appointed them at the Courts of his Manor how they should hold it, making an Entry of it on the Roll of the Remembrances of the Acts of his Court, yet still in the Lord's Power to take it away; and therefore they were called Tenants at Will by Copy of Court-Roll; being in Truth Bond-men at the Beginning: But having obtained Freedom of their Persons, and gained a Custom by Use of occupying their Lands, they now are called Copyholders, and are so privileged, that the Lord cannot put them out, and all through Custom. Some Copyholds are for Lives, one, two, or three successively; and some Inheritances from Heir to Heir by Custom; and Custom ruleth these Estates wholly, both for Widows Estates, Fines, Heriots, Forfeitures, and all other Things. *Shaw's Bac. Villanage, or Tenure by Copy of Court-Roll.

Court Baron with the Use of it.

Manors being thus made at the first, it was reasonable that the Lord of the Manor should hold a Court, which is no more than to assemble his Tenants together at a Time by him to be appointed; in which Court he was to be informed by Oath of his Tenants, of all such Duties, Rents, Reliefs, Wardships, Copyholds, or the like, that had happened to him; which Information is called a Presentment, and then his Bailiff to seize and distrain for those Duties, if they were denied or with-holden, which is called a Court-Baron: Wherein a Man may sue for any Debt or Trespass under forty * Pounds Value, and the Freeholders are to judge of the Cause upon Proof produced upon both Sides. And therefore the Freeholders of these Manors as incident to their Tenures, do hold by Suit of Court, which is, to come to the Court, and there to judge between Party and Party in these petty Actions; and also to inform the Lord of Duties, Rents, and Services unpaid to him from his Tenants. By this Course it is discerned who be the Lords of Lands, such as, if the Tenants die without Heir, or be attainted of Felony or Treason, shall have the Land by Escheat. *Shaw's Bac. Suit to the Court of the Lord incident to the Tenure of the Freeholders.

What Attainders shall give the Escheat to the Lord.

Outlawry.

Now concerning what Attainders shall give the Escheat to the Lord; it must either be by Judgment of Death given in some Court of Record against the Felon found guilty, by Verdict, or Confession, of the Felony, or else by Outlawry of him. Bac. L. Tracts 138. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 250.

The Outlawry proceeds thus: A Man is indicted for Felony, being not in hold, so as he cannot be brought in Person to appear and to be tried, insomuch that Process of a Capias is therefore awarded to the Sheriff, who not finding him, returns, Non est inventus in balliva mea; and thereupon another Capias is awarded to the Sheriff, who likewise not finding him makes the same Return; then an Exigent is directed to the Sheriff, commanding him to proclaim him in his County-Court five several Court-Days, to yield his Body; which if the Sheriff do, and the Party yield not his Body, he is said by the Default, to be outlawed, the Coroners there adjudging him outlawed, and the Sheriff making the Return of the Proclamations, and of the Judgment of the Coroners upon the Back-side of the Writ. This is an Attainder of Felony, whereupon the Offender forfeits his Lands by an Escheat to the Lord of whom they are held. Ibid.

* Q. If not the same when Transported? Standeth Mute.

But a Man found guilty of Felony by Verdict or Confession, and praying his Clergy, and thereupon reading as a Clerk, and so * burnt in the Hand and discharged, is not attainted; because by his Clergy he preventeth the Judgment of Death, and is called a Clerk-convict, who loseth not his Lands, but all his Goods, Chattels, Leafes and Debts. Ibid.

So a Man indicted, that will not answer and put himself upon Trial, although he be by this to have Judgment of pressing to Death, yet he forfeits no Lands, but Goods, Chattels, Leafes and Debts, except his Offence be Treason; and then he forfeits his Lands to the Crown. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 250. Bac. L. Tracts 138, 139.

Felo de se, Se Defenden- do, &c.

Flying for Felony.

So a Man that kills himself shall not lose his Lands, but his Goods, Chattels, Leafes and Debts. So of those that kill others in their own Defence, or by Misfortune. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 250. Bac. L. Tracts 139.

A Man that being pursued for Felony, and flyeth for it, loseth his Goods for his Flying, although he return and is tried, and found not guilty of the Fact. Ibid.

So

So a Man indicted of Felony, if he yield not his Body to the Sheriff until after the Exigent Yielding the of Proclamation is awarded against him, the Man doth forfeit all his Goods for his long Body. Stay, although he be not found guilty of the Felony; but none is attainted to lose his Lands, except such as have Judgment of Death by Trial upon Verdict, or their own Confession, or that they be by Judgment of the Coroners outlawed, as before. Ibid.

Besides the Escheats of Lands to the Lords of whom they are held, for want of Heirs, and by Attainder of Felony (which only hold Place in Fee-simple Lands) there are also Forfeitures of Lands to the Crown by Attainder of Treason; as namely, if one who has entailed Lands commit Treason, he forfeits the Profits of the Lands for his Life to the Crown, but not to the Lord. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 251. Bac. L. Traits 139. Lands in Fee-simple or in Tail. Stat. 26 H. 8.

And if a Man having an Estate for Life of himself, or of another, commit Treason or Felony, the whole Estate is forfeited to the Crown, but no Escheat to the Lord. Ibid. Tenant for Life.

But a Copyhold, for Fee-simple, or for Life, is forfeited to the Lord, and not to the Crown; and if it be entailed, the Lord is to have it during the Life of the Offender only, and then his Heir is to have it. Ibid. Copyhold in Fee-simple for Life or in Tail.

The Custom of Kent is, that Gavelkind Land it not forfeitable nor escheatable for Felony: For they have an old Saying; The Father to the Bough, and the Son to the Plough. Ibid. See more concerning Forfeitures in the two next Sections. Gavelkind.

If the Husband was attainted, the Wife was to lose her Thirds in Cases of Felony and Treason, but yet she is no Offender; but at this Day by the Statute Law, she shall not lose them for the Husband's Felony. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 252. Bac. L. Traits 140.

If two hundred Fagots are granted to a Master and his Co-brethren and their Successors, to perceive from all the Lands of the Grantor, and after the Master and Co-brethren grant them over, and after their Corporation is dissolved; yet the Thing granted to them shall not escheat to the Grantor, although it ought to have escheated if they had not granted it over. In what Cases an Escheat shall be to the Grantor or not.

3 Danv. Abr. 135. Popb. 91, 92.

The Law is the same where Land, Rent, or other Thing is granted to a Corporation and their Successors, and after the Corporation grants it over, and after is dissolved; for this is all one as when it is granted to a Man and his Heirs, and he grants it over, and after dies without Heirs, there it shall not escheat. 3 Danv. Abr. 135. Co. Lit. 13. b.

But if Land, Rent, or other Thing be granted to a Corporation Aggregate in Fee, and after the Corporation is dissolved, the Thing granted to them shall escheat to the Donor. 3 Danv. Abr. 135. Co. Lit. 13. b. S. P. Winch 38. Godb. 211.

The Law is the same of a Sole Corporation. 3 Danv. Abr. 135.

If a Man grants a Rent to another and his Heirs, and he dies without Heirs, it shall escheat to the Grantor, and shall be extinct in the Land. 3 Danv. Abr. 135.

If a Man grants an Advowson in Gros to another in Fee, and the Grantee dies without Heirs, it seems this shall revert to the Grantor, not being held of any Body; for this is a gros Thing, which cannot vanish, but ought to be in some Person; and it seems if the Grantor shall not have it, the King shall have it as supreme Patron. Contra Sta. Escheat, it shall be extinct. 3 Danv. Abr. 135.

If one Lease a Manor for Life or Years, and a Tenancy escheats, this belongs to the Manor held in Farm, and for which the Lessor shall have a General Writ; and suppose a Lease by him made of the Lands escheated, and maintain it by the special Matter. 2 Inst. 146. Who shall take Advantage of an Escheat.

After the Death of the Tenants for Life the Lessor may have a Writ of Escheat. Kelw. 114. a.

If he that hath Title to a Writ of Escheat accepts Homage or Fealty of the Tenant, this will bar him. Co. Lit. 268. a. By what Act an Escheat shall be prevented.

Otherwise if he accepts Rent of the Tenant, for that may be done by a Bailiff. Co. Lit. 268. a.

By some, if there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant is disseised, and the Disseisee dies without Heir, and after the Lord accepts the Rent from the Disseisor, this is no Bar to him. Co. Lit. 268. a.

Otherwise if he avows upon the Disseisor for the Rent. Co. Lit. 268. a.

But if after a Title of Escheat accrued, the Disseisor makes a Feoffment, or dies seised, the Acceptance of the Rent from the Feoffee, or Heir, will be a Bar. Co. Lit. 268. a.

If one attainted of Felony commits Treason afterwards, and is thereof attainted, as he may be, because the Offence is of an higher Nature than the Felony; yet this shall not de- vest the Right of Escheat which by the Felony was lawfully vested in the Lord, contrary to the Opinion of Stanford, for the Act of the Party shall not de- vest the lawful Escheat of the Lord. 3 Inst. 213.

If A. as Principal, is attainted of Felony by Outlawry, and B. is after attainted as Accessory by Verdict, and the Lord enters into the Lands of B. by Escheat, and after the Judgment against A. is reversed, by which the Attainder of B. is also reversed, the Escheat is avoided, and B. may enter, or have an Action for Recovery of the Lands against the Lord. 3 Inst. 232. 2 Brownl. 220. S. P. cited 9 Co. 119. b.

At what Time
commence.

The Relation of these Forfeits are these; That Men attainted of Felony or Treason, by Verdict or Confession, do forfeit all the Lands they had at the Time of their Offence committed; and the King or the Lord, whosoever of them has the Escheat or Forfeiture, shall come in and avoid all Leases, Statutes or Conveyances made by the Offender, at any Time since the Offence committed. Bac. L. Tracts 140. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. c. 251.

But where a Man commits Felony, and before Conviction the King pardons him, by this Pardon the Lord shall lose his Escheat, for the Lord can have no Escheat before there be an Attainder, but that is prevented before by the Pardon. Owen 87.

And the Law is clear, that if a Man be attainted for Treason by Outlawry; but upon Attainder of Felony by Outlawry, it hath been much doubted by the Law-Books, whether the Lord's Title by Escheat shall relate back to the Time of the Offence done, or only to the Date or Test of the Writ of Exigent for Proclamation, whereupon he is outlawed; though at this Day it is ruled, that it shall reach back to the Time of his Fact; but for Goods, Chattels and Debts, the King's Title shall look no further back than to those Goods, which the Party attainted by Verdict or Confession had at the Time of the Verdict and Confession, given or made, and in Outlawries at the Time of the Exigent, as well in Treasons as Felonies: Wherein it is to be observed, that upon the Party's first Apprehension, the King's Officers are to seize all the Goods and Chattels, and preserve them together, dispending only so much out of them, as is fit for the Sustentation of the Person in Prison, without any wasting, or disposing them until Conviction; and then the Property of them is in the Crown, and not before. Bac. L. Tracts 140. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 251.

Of seizing Fe-
and Chattels.

Of a Purchase
by a Person
attainted.

Note also, That Persons attainted for Felony or Treason, have no Capacity in them to take, obtain or purchase, save only to the Use of the King, until the Party be pardoned, yet the Party giveth not back his Lands or Goods without a special Patent of Restitution, which cannot restore the Blood without an Act of Parliament. Ibid.

Restitution in Blood.

So if a Man have a Son, and then is attainted of Felony or Treason, and pardoned, and purchaseth Lands, and hath Issue another Son, and dieth; the Son he had before he had his Pardon, although he be his eldest Son, and the Patent have the Words of Restitution to his Lands, shall not inherit, but his second Son shall inherit them, and not the first; because the Blood is corrupted by the Attainder, and not to be restored by Patent alone, but by Act of Parliament. Bac. L. Tracts 141.

And if a Man have two Sons, and the eldest is attainted in the Life of his Father, and dieth without Issue, the Father living, the second Son shall inherit the Father's Land; but if the eldest Son have any Issue, though he die in the Life of the Father, then neither the second Son, nor the Issue of the eldest, shall inherit the Father's Lands, but the Father shall there be accounted to die without Heir; and the Land shall escheat, whether the eldest Son have Issue or not, afterward or before, though he be pardoned after the Death of his Father. Ibid.

S E C T. VI.

Of acquiring real Estates by Means of Forfeitures and Losses in Civil Cases.

(A) Of Forfeitures and Losses of real Estates in general.

Forfeiture,
what.

THE foregoing Sections of this second Chapter show the different Ways of acquiring and claiming Titles to Lands, &c. This and the following Section will show how they may be forfeited and lost, which, with respect to the Persons that gain, may be also called the Means of acquiring Estates.

To do any Thing against or without Law or Custom, is legally called a Forfeiture. Co. Lit. 59. a.

(B) Of Forfeitures by the Alienation of a particular Tenant, by claiming a greater Estate than one ought; or by affirming a Reversion or Remainder to be in a Stranger.

First, Of the Nature of the Things forfeited, whether in pais or by Record.

SOME Alienations are forbidden, viz. an Alienation of a particular Tenant, and an Alienation in Mortmain. The Alienation of a particular Tenant, as Tenant for Life, &c. incurs incurs a Forfeiture of the Estate. This Forfeiture by the Alienation of a particular Tenant, may be either in Pais, or by Matter of Record.

1. In Pais, of Lands which lie in Livery, as where Tenant for Life (not being an Infant <sup>1. In Pais.</sup> or Feme Covert) maketh over a greater Estate than he may lawfully, whereby the Remainder or Reversion is devested. This must be understood of a Feoffment, Fine or Recovery by Consent.

But in Case of the King it is a Forfeiture, though the Remainder or Reversion is not devested out of him.

If Lessee for Life makes a Lease for the Life of another, or a Gift in Tail, it is a Forfeiture of his Estate. And if Tenant for Life and he in Remainder for Life join in a Feoffment in Fee, this is a Forfeiture of both their Estates, because he in the Remainder is Particeps injuriæ. And if he in the Remainder for Life enters, and disseises Tenant for Life, and makes a Feoffment in Fee, this is a Forfeiture of the Right of his Remainder.

Thus it is if Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, Tenant by the Curtesy, Tenant in Dower, Tenant for another's Life, Tenant for Years, by Statute Merchant, Staple or Elegit, make a greater Estate than they lawfully may make. Lit. §. 416. Co. Lit. 233. b. 251. a. & b. 252. a. 8 Co. 44.

But if a Copyholder for Life surrenders to the Use of another in Fee, this is no Forfeiture, for the Estate passes by Surrender to the Lord, and not by Livery. 4 Co. 23.

A particular Estate of any Thing that lies in Grant cannot be forfeited by Grant in Fee by Deed. As if Tenant for Life or Years of an Advowson, Rent, Common, or of a Reversion or Remainder of Land, by Deed grant the same in Fee, it is no Forfeiture of their Estates; for nothing can pass thereby but what may lawfully pass. Co. Lit. 251. b.

2. Forfeitures by Matter of Record, may be by Alienation, by claiming a greater Estate <sup>2. By Matter of Record.</sup> than one ought, or by affirming the Reversion or Remainder to be in a Stranger.

First, By Alienation, which is of two Kinds, viz. By Alienation devesting, or not devesting the Reversion or Remainder. (1) Devesting, as by levying a Fine, or suffering a common Recovery of Lands whereby the Reversion or Remainder is devested. (2) Not devesting, as by levying a Fine in Fee, of an Advowson, Rent, Common, or other Thing that lies in Grant. Upon which Note two Diversities; First, Between a Grant by Fine (which is of Record) and a Grant by Deed in Pais; and yet in this they both agree, that the Reversion or Remainder in neither Case is devested. Secondly, Between a Matter of Record, as a Fine, &c. and a Deed recorded, as a Deed inrolled, for that incurs no Forfeiture, because the Deed is the Original. Co. Lit. 251. b.

Secondly, By Claim, express or implied. (1) Express, as if Tenant for Life claims a Fee in a Court of Record; or if Lessee for Years be ousted, and brings an Assise, Ut de libero tenemento. (2) Implied, as if in a Writ of Right brought against him, he takes upon him to join the Mise upon the mere Right, which none but Tenant in Fee-simple ought to do. So if Lessee for Years loses in a Præcipe, and brings a Writ of Error for Error in Process, this is a Forfeiture. Co. Lit. 251. b.

Thirdly, By affirming the Reversion or Remainder to be in a Stranger, actively or passively. (1) Actively, may be five different Ways: 1. If Tenant for Life prays in Aid of a Stranger, whereby he affirms the Reversion to be in him. 2. If he attorns to the Grant of a Stranger, this is intended of an Attornment of Record to a Stranger, for an Attornment in Pais, incurs no Forfeiture. 3. If a Stranger brings a Writ of Entry in casu proviso, and suppose the Reversion to be in him, if Tenant for Life confesses the Action, it is a Forfeiture. 4. If Tenant for Life plead covinously to the Disinheritance of him in the Reversion, it is a Forfeiture. 5. If a Stranger brings an Action of Waste against Lessee for Life, and he pleads Nul waste fait, it is a Forfeiture, or the like. (2) Passively, as if Tenant for Life accepts a Fine Sur conusans de droit come ceo, &c. of a Stranger, it is a Forfeiture, for thereby he affirms of Record, the Reversion to be in a Stranger. Co. Lit. 252. a.

If a Man leases at Will, and afterwards grants a Rent-Charge in Fee to another, it is not <sup>What is a</sup> any Determination of the Will, admitted <sup>Forfeiture by</sup> 11 H. 6. 28, 33. But Quære, for what Remedy <sup>Matter of Record.</sup> shall the Grantee have for the Rent? for he shall not distrain the Cattle of the Lessee, if the Lease continues, because he comes Paramount to the Charge. 3 Danv. Abr. 219. Roll. Abr. 852.

If a Lessee for Life in a Quid juris clamat attorn to a Grant by Fine of one who had nothing in the Reversion, it is a Forfeiture, for he thereby acknowledgeth the Reversion in a Stranger. 27 E. 3. 77. Fitz. Quid juris clamat 34. S. C. Co. Lit. 252. a. 2 And. 30. S. P.

If there be a Lessee for Life, the Reversion over jointly to Husband and Wife, and the Husband alone aliens the Reversion by Fine, and the Conusee brings a Quid juris clamat, and the the Lessee attorns to the Grant, it is a Forfeiture to the Wife, and she shall have Advantage of it after the Death of her Husband, because the Lessee by the Attornment hath acknowledged the Reversion in a Stranger. 27 E. 3. 77. Fitz. Quid juris clamat, S. C.

(a) So if of a Rent, Common, or other Things which lie in Grant. If Tenant for Life of an (a) Advowson in Gross (b) levies a Fine Come ceo, &c. of it, it is a Forfeiture, although it doth not devert the Reversion. Trin. 13 Car. B. R. Springe and Sir Julius Caesar, Master of the Rolls, adjudged per Curiam without Doubt; and they would not suffer it to be argued in a Writ of Error upon a Judgment in Banco, in a Quare Impedit. Co. Lit. 251. 3 Danv. 219. W. Jon. 389, 391. S. C. adjudged. Co. Lit. 251. b. Style 192. S. P. b. Ow. 147.

(b) But a Grant by Deed recorded, as a Deed inrolled, works no Forfeiture, because the Deed is the Original. Co. Lit. 251. b. & vide Owen 147. 2 Leon. 60, 65. 4 Leon. 124, 129. But whether it be otherwise where Bargain and Sale inrolled in London before the Recorder, according to Custom, vide Moor 211. pl. 352. Godb. 105. 3 Leon. 169. Goulsh. 40, 41.

What shall be said a Forfeiture of a Lease by Matter of Record. For most of the old Cases where a Tenant for Life or Years may in a real Action by Pleading forfeit his Estate, vide Sir William Pelham's Case, Co. 14. Moor 271. 2 Leon. 60. 4 Leon. 123. And. 227. & vide Godb. 105. Goulsh. 40, 41.

If Tenant for Life affirms the Land in a Stranger in a Court of Record, it is a Forfeiture. 13 H. 4. 13. b. 3 Danv. 220. Roll. Abr. 852.

If Lessee for Life accepts a Fine Sur conusans de droit come ceo que ad, &c. it is a Forfeiture, for he hath acknowledged by Estoppel, that he hath the Fee from him. 1 H. 7. 12. b. 2 Co. 56. 9 Co. 106. b. Vide Dy. 3, 4. Ma. 148, 149. 3 Danv. 220. Co. Lit. 252. a. S. P. & vide Mod. 117. Roll. Abr. 852.

But it is otherwise if he accepts a Fine Sur conusans de droit tantum with Release, for that enures for the Benefit of the Reversion, and is no Estoppel. 1 H. 7. 12. b. 3 Danv. Abr. 220. Roll. Abr. 853.

If Tenant for Life has Aid granted of him in Reversion, and J. S. comes without Process, and says, that he is the same Person of whom Aid is prayed, and is ready to join; to which the Lessee says, that he is not the same Person; whereupon he is adjudged to answer alone:

(c) By praying Aid of a Stranger. Co. Lit. 252. a. It is a (c) Forfeiture if he be the same Person who hath the Reversion, because by this Plea he supposeth the Reversion in another. 21 E. 3. 14. 3 Danv. Abr. 220. Roll. Abr. 853. 2 Co. 55. b. at the Bottom. 2 Leon. 62. Cro. El. 758.

(d) Forfeiture for claiming Fee in a Court of Record. In Quid juris clamat if Lessee for Life or Years (d) claims Fee, it is a Forfeiture. 11 H. 4. 57. B. If he in Remainder for Life enters and disseises Tenant for Life, and makes a Feoffment in Fee; this is a Forfeiture of his Right of Remainder. Co. Lit. 255. b.

If Tenant for Life or Years, the Reversion or Remainder being in the King, makes a Feoffment in Fee; this is a Forfeiture, though the Reversion or Remainder be not devested out of the King; and the Reason is in respect of the Solemnity of the Feoffment by Livery tending to the King's Disinheritance. Co. Lit. 252. b. So where there was Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life, Remainder to the King, and the first Tenant for Life made a Feoffment. Co. 76. b.

If there be Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, Remainder in Tail, and Tenant for Life and he in the first Remainder in Tail join in a Fine; this is no Forfeiture, for the Law (which abhors Wrong) shall construe this first to be the Grant of him in Remainder in Tail, and after of the Tenant for Life. Co. 76. 2 And. 66. pl. 48. Hob. 277. and vide Owen 130. T. Raym. 142, 147.

In respect of the Person to whom it is made.

If Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee to Husband and Wife in Reversion seised in Right of the Wife, it is a Forfeiture to the Wife. 39 E. 3. 29. b. per Thorpe; and so the Wife remitted. Contra 39 Aff. pl. 7. 3 Danv. Abr. 225. Roll. Abr. 855.

If Husband and Wife, seised in Right of the Wife, for the Life of the Wife, lease by Indenture to him in Reversion, who is within Age, for the Life of the Husband, it is a Forfeiture; for the Acceptance of the Estate by the Infant shall not prejudice him. 29 Aff. 64. Fitz. Aff. 292. S. C. 3 Danv. Abr. 225. Roll. Abr. 855.

But if Tenant for Life and he in Reversion join in a Fine, and it is after reversed for the Nonage of the Reversioner, yet he shall not enter for the Forfeiture; because he joined in the Fine, and consented to it. Cro. Eliz. 124. 2 Leon. 108.

But where Tenant for Life aliens or makes a Feoffment to him in Reversion or Remainder, it amounts to a Surrender, and is no Forfeiture. Co. Lit. 252. a.

If Tenant for Life enfeoffs him in Remainder for Life; this is a Surrender, and no Forfeiture. Co. Lit. 42. a. Poph. 84. S. P.

If Tenant for Life leases to him in Reversion or Remainder, in Tail or Fee, for Life of him in Reversion or Remainder; this is no Forfeiture, because he in Reversion, &c. was Party, it cannot be a Surrender, because his whole Estate was not given. If there be Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail to an Infant, and they levy a Fine, and it is after reversed as to the Infant; yet he shall not enter for the Forfeiture, because he joined in the Fine, and so assented to it. 2 Leon. 108. Cro. Eliz. 124.

Testator being seised in Fee, devised his Lands to his youngest Daughter in Tail, Remainder to his eldest Daughter in Tail, with divers Remainders over; Proviso, that if either of them willingly agreed to do any Act, whereby the Lands should not come to them in Remainder, that then the Estate limited to them should cease, &c. The youngest Daughter married, and then she and her Husband suffered a Recovery to them and their Heirs. Adjudged, that this being incident to an Estate-tail, could not be barred by any Limitation or Condition, and therefore her suffering a Recovery, was no Forfeiture of her Estate. 10 Co. 35.

Fifthly, In what Cases such Forfeitures may be dispensed with.

IT seems Tenant in Tail in Remainder or Reversion cannot dispense with a Forfeiture of the Lessee by Alienation. 3 Danv. Abr. 226. Roll. Abr. 855.

If there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Tail, and he in Remainder releases in Fee to the Lessee, and after he aliens in Fee, it seems that he in Remainder cannot enter for the Forfeiture against his Release; yet after his Death his Issue may enter for the Forfeiture, for now the Release is void. 43 Aff. 45. adjudged. 3 Danv. Abr. 226, 855, 856.

If Tenant for Life levies a Fine, by which he forfeits his Estate; yet if the Reversioner joins with him in the Declaration of the Uses, this is a Dispensation with a Forfeiture. Styl. 464. per Glynn C. J. but Vide 3 Keb. 307.

If Husband and Wife, seised in Right of the Wife, for the Life of the Wife, lease by Indenture to him in Reversion for the Life of the Husband, it is not any Forfeiture, for he hath dispensed with it by the Acceptance of the Estate. 29 Aff. 64. per Curiam; and the Reversion is not discontinued. Fitz. Aff. 292. S. C. 3 Danv. Abr. 226. Roll. Abr. 856.

Sixthly, What shall excuse such Forfeitures.

IF Husband and Wife are seised for Life, the Remainder to B. their Son and Heir apparent in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. and the Husband makes a Feoffment in Fee to C. with general Warranty, and dies, and afterwards the Wife enters, and she and B. (neither of them, by any Thing appearing, having Knowledge of this Warranty descended on B. or of the Feoffment) join in a Feoffment in Fee to D. it is a Forfeiture of the Wife's Estate for Life, so that C. may enter immediately for this Forfeiture, for the Estates in Remainder in Tail and Fee limited to B. were bound by the collateral Warranty, so that the Feoffment was made by the Lessee and another who had nothing in the Reversion; and although the Estate of B. was only bound by a Warranty which doth not destroy the Right, and although the Wife had not any Notice of it, yet forasmuch as no Body is obliged to give Notice thereof, the Wife ought to take Notice of it at her Peril; and therefore inasmuch as she joined with B. in a Conveyance which was voluntary, and did not grant her Estate by herself, the not having Notice of the Bar of the Estate of B. shall not excuse the Forfeiture. Roll. Abr. 856. Cro. Car. 391, 393. 3 Danv. Abr. 226, 227.

Seventhly, What Act shall purge such Forfeitures.

IF Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment on Condition, and enters for it broke; yet the Forfeiture by the Alienation remains, and the Lessor may enter. 39 Aff. 15. Fitz. Entry Congeable 47. 43 Aff. 47. Co. Lit. 202. b. and Vide And. 352. 3 Danv. Abr. 227. Roll. Abr. 856.

Entry Congeable 30. Roll. Abr. 856. 3 Danv. Abr. 227.*

If a Gift be to two, and to the Heirs of the Body of one by her Husband begotten, and she who hath but for Life aliens her Part in Fee; and the other enters for a Forfeiture, and afterwards the Husband dies without Issue, whereby her Estate is determined as to that Moiety (admitting it to be Law) Quare, whether she be not Tenant apres Possibilitie of that Moiety; yet it shall not devert the Title executed by the Entry for the Forfeiture. 45 Aff. 7. 3 Danv. Abr. 227. Roll. Abr. 227.

If A. being Tenant for Life, leases to B. for his Life, and B. dies, and A. re-enters, yet the Forfeiture remaineth. Co. Lit. 252. a.

Decreed that the Money be paid to the Son, though the Executors in their Answer insisted to have it as forfeited to them, upon the Refusal of the Father to execute the Release: And the Lord Chancellor said it was a standing Rule in Equity, That a Forfeiture should not bind where the Thing might be done afterwards, or a Compensation made for it, unless where there is a Devise over to another Person upon the Forfeiture of the first. 2 Vent. 352.

Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition that the Feoffees should re-grant the Lands to the Feoffor and his Wife in Tail, Remainder to his own right Heirs, which was done accordingly; the Husband and Wife had Issue a Son, and then the Husband died; the Son, who was the Issue in Tail, levied a Fine in the Life-time of his Mother, who was Tenant in Tail, and this was to Sir G. B. and his Heirs; the Mother afterwards made a Lease for three Lives, without reserving any Rent, and therefore not warranted by the Statute 32 H. 8. Adjudged, that this Lease for three Lives was a Discontinuance, and within the Statute 11 H. 7. and so a Forfeiture of her Estate; and that Sir G. B. the Conusee might enter for the Forfeiture, because the Estate-tail was barred by the Fine levied by the Issue in Tail, and the Remainder in Fee passed by it to the Conusee, so as he had the Remainder in him at that very Time when the Discontinuance was made by the Tenant in Tail, in making a Lease for Lives not warranted by the Statute, because no Rent was reserved, and then he is within the very Words and Intent of the Statute to enter for a Forfeiture. 3 Co. 50. ### (C) By Alienation in Mortmain.

Mortmain.
Derivation
and Significa-
tion of the Word.

LANDS, &c. may be forfeited by Alienation in Mortmain. There have been various Opinions concerning the Derivation of the Word Mortmain. Some have said, that it is called Mortmain Manus mortua, quia possessio eorum est immortalis, manus pro possessione, & mortua immortalis, and the rather because Ecclesiastical Persons are restrained by the Laws and Statutes of the Realm from aliening; others say, it is called Manus mortua per Antiphrasin, because Bodies Politick and Corporate never die; others say, that it is called Mortmain by Resemblance to the holding of a Man's Hand who is ready to die, for that he them holdeth he letteth not go till he be dead. But Lord Coke (Co. Lit. 2. b.) says, that these and such others are framed out of Wit and Invention; but the true Cause of the Name, and the Meaning thereof, was taken from the Effects, as it is expressed in the Statute (de Religiosis, 7 E. 1.) itself, Per quod quæ servitia ex hujusmodi feodis debentur, & quæ ad defensionem regni ab initio provisæ fuerunt, indebite subtrahuntur & capitales domini eschaetas suas amittunt, so as the Lands were said to come to Dead-Hands as to the Lords, because by Alienation in Mortmain they wholly lost their Escheats, and in Effect their Knight-Services for the Defence of the Realm, Wards, Marriages, Reliefs, and the like; and therefore was called a Dead-Hand, for a Dead-Hand yields no Service.

What is a
Mortmain.

An Appropriation of an Advowson is a Mortmain, or a Grant of an Advowson in Fee to a Sole or Aggregate Corporation, and a Rent extinct by a Release to a Corporation.

But the Grant of an Annuity cannot be a Mortmain, because it charges the Person only; nor an Appropriation of Tithes, because they are Things merely Spiritual; the Cognizance whereof regularly belongs to the Ecclesiastical Court. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 4. F. N. B. 223. Inst. 2. b. 304. a. & b. 5 Co. 56. 7 Co. 26. 9 Co. 96. 2 Inst. 361, 640. Kitch. 280.

The Statutes of Mortmain, and their Expositions, and what Evasions have been

The Foundation of all the Statutes of Mortmain was Magna Charta (9 H. 3.) chap. 36. For, by that Charter it shall not be lawful to give Lands to any Religious House, and to take the same again to hold of the same House, &c. upon Pain that the Gift shall be void, and that the Land shall accrue to the Lord of the Fee.

This Chapter of Magna Charta, by Stat. de Religiosis, (7 E. 1.) is expounded to extend to a Gift of Lands to a Religious House, though they gave them not back again to hold of the same House, but kept the Land so given unto themselves in their own Hands; and in that Case the Land should incur to the Lord of the Fee. 2 Inst. 75.

But Ecclesiastical Persons found many Ways to creep out of this Statute; Religious Men, as Abbots, Priors, and other Ecclesiastical Persons Regular, by purchasing Lands holden of themselves, or by taking Leases for a long Term of Years, &c. And Bishops, Parsons, and other Ecclesiastical Persons Secular, thought that they were out of this Statute. 2 Inst. 75.

But the said Stat. 7 E. 1. was intended to provide against these Devices, and enacted, That no Person Religious or other whatsoever (i. e. other whatsoever of like Quality of being a Body Politick, Ecclesiastical or Lay, Sole or Aggregate) shall buy or sell any Lands or Tenements, or under the Colour of Gift or Lease, and to prevent all other Inventions and Evasions added to this Effect) or by Reason of any other Title whatsoever, receive the same, or by any other Craft or Engine shall presume to appropriate to himself, whereby such Lands may in any wise come into Mortmain, under Pain of Forfeiture of the same. And within the Year after the Alienation, the next Lord of the Fee may enter; and if he do not, then the next immediate Lord from Time to Time to have half a Year; and for Default of all the mesne Lords, the King shall have the Lands so alienated for ever, and shall infeof others by certain Services, &c.

Evasions

This Statute is to be understood of such Inheritances as may be holden; but if such Inheritances as are not holden, as Rent-Charges, Commons, Advowsons, &c. the King shall have them presently by a favourable Interpretation of the Statute. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 4.

Lord Coke says, (2 Inst. 75.) a Man would have thought, that this Statute of 7 E. 1. would have prevented all new Devises; but the Ecclesiasticks also found out an Evasion out of this Statute, because it extended only to Gifts, Alienations and Conveyances made between them and others, Arte vel ingenio, &c. and therefore they gave over them; and they pretending a Title to the Land (which they meant to get) brought a Præcipe quod reddat against the Tenant of the Land; and he by Consent and Collusion was to make Default, and thereupon they recovered the Land, and entered by Judgment of Law, Et sic fieret fraus statuto. And Lord Coke (2 Inst. p. 429.) says, that though such Recovery by Default was by Consent and Collusion, yet the Justices held, that these Religious and Ecclesiastical Persons came not to the Land per titulum doni, vel alienationis; nor was within the general Words of the Statute of 7 E. 1. aut alio quovis modo, arte, vel ingenio sibi appropriare præsumat: For that Recoveries being prosecuted in Course of Law, were by Law presumed to be just and lawful, it was holden by the Justices, that they were not within the former Statute; and yet these Recoveries were done in fraudem Legis, for Remedy whereof the Statute of Westm. 2. or 13 Ed. 1. ch. 32. was made, whereby it is enacted, That it shall be inquired by the Country, whether or no the Demandant had a just Title to the Land; and if so, then he shall recover Seisin; but if otherwise, the Lord of the Fee shall enter, &c.

All Actions brought for any Lands or Tenements wherein a Freehold Inheritance, or a long Term is recovered, are within this Statute; as Præcipe quod reddat, Quare impedit, Droit de gard, Ejectione firmæ, Quare ejecit infra terminum, Warrantia Chartæ, Convenit to levy a Fine, Execution per Elegit, Statute-Merchant or Statute-Staple, &c. 2 Inst. 429.

Recoveries by Default are within this Statute, if they are had by Collusion. 2 Inst. 429.

Notwithstanding all these Statutes, Ecclesiastical Persons (not being able to get Lands by Purchase, Gift, Lease or Recovery) caused the Lands to be conveyed by Feoffment, or in other Manner, to divers Persons and their Heirs, to the Use of them and their Successors, by Reason whereof they took the Profits. 2 Inst. 75.

But this was barred by Stat. 15 Rich. 2. c. 5. whereby it is deemed within the Compass of 7 Ed. 1. De Religiosis, to convert any Land into a Church-yard without Licence of the chief Lords, though done by the Sufferance and Assent of the Tenants. And no Feoffment, &c. of Lands and Tenements, Advowsons or other Possessions, to the Use of any Spiritual Person, and whereof such Spiritual Persons take the Profits, shall hereafter be made without Licence of the King and of the Lords, &c. upon Pain of Forfeiture, &c. The same Law shall likewise be of Lands, Advowsons, and other Possessions purchased by Guilds, Fraternities and Corporations, or to their Use.

And by Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 10. Feoffments, Fines, Recoveries, Devises, &c. of Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, in Trust to the Use of Parish Churches, Chapels, Churchwards, Guilds, Companies, &c. erected and made of Devotion, or by common Assent of the People, without any Corporation, or to the Uses and Intents to have perpetual Obits, or a continual Service of a Priest for ever, or for threescore or fourscore Years, or to such like Uses or Intents, to the Prejudice of the King, and to other Lords and Subjects, as in Case where Lands are aliened in Mortmain, shall be utterly void. Provided that such Uses and Intents may be made and declared to continue twenty Years from the Time of limiting them, and no longer.

This Act shall not prejudice Corporations, where there is a Custom to devise Lands in Mortmain; as in London, a Freeman that is Resident there, and pays Scot and Lot, may devise all his Leases and Lands in that City, or Part thereof, in Mortmain, without Licence. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 4. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 1. c. 10. Roll. Abr. 556.

See Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 9. concerning the President and Governors for the Poor in London and Westminster.

The said Statute of 23 H. 8. c. 10. extends only to superstitious Uses, and therefore notwithstanding that or any of the aforesaid Statutes, any Man at this Day may give Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments to any Person or Persons, and their Heirs, for the Finding of a Preacher, Maintenance of a School, Relief of maimed Soldiers, and the Poor, Reparation of Churches, Highways, Bridges, Causeways, discharging poor Inhabitants of a Town of common Charges, for making a Stock for poor Labourers in Husbandry and poor Apprentices, and for the Marriage of poor Virgins, or for any other charitable Uses.

And it is good Policy upon every such Estate to reserve a small Rent to the Feoffor and his Heirs; for then the Feoffees shall be seised to their own Use, and not to the Use of the Feoffor: Or it may be proper to express some Consideration of a small Sum; and then the 23 H. 8. cannot by any Pretence make void the same. Co. 26. 11 Co. 70, 71.

No Relief against a voluntary Forfeiture of Copyhold. Str. 447.

By Stat. 17 Car. 2. c. 3. Owners of Improvements, Tithes, &c. may annex the same to the Parsonage or Vicarage where they lie, or settle them in Trust for the Curates, where the Parsonage is impropriate and no Vicarage endowed, without any Licence of Mortmain. And if the settled Maintenance of any Benefice with Cure shall not amount to 100 l. per Ann. clear, the Incumbent may purchase to him and his Successors Lands, &c. without Licence in Mortmain.

By Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 37. the King may licence any Person or Bodies Politick to alien in Mortmain, or to purchase or take in Mortmain (in Perpetuity or otherwise) any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments whatsoever, of whomsoever the same are holden; and such Lands, &c. so aliened, or purchased and licensed, shall not be subject to any Forfeiture by Reason of such Alienation or Purchase.

By Stat. 2 Ann. c. 11. any Person may vest Lands, &c. in the Corporation for the Bounty of Queen Anne, by Deed inrolled, according to the Statute of 27 H. 8. c. 10. or by Will, for Augmentation of Churches, which have not a competent Provision.

The said Corporation also may take and purchase for the said Purposes without Licence or Writ Ad quod damnum.

(D) By Non-performance of a Condition.

LANDS, &c. may be forfeited or lost by the Non-performance of a Condition, whether it be express'd or implied by Law.

For the Nature of Conditions and Rules, &c. concerning them, see Chap. 5. post.

(E) By Waste.

Waste, what.

LANDS, &c. may be forfeited by Waste.

Waste (Vastum dicitur a Vastando, to Waste) is a Spoil or Destruction in Houses, Gardens or Orchards, Dove-houses, Parks, Warrens, Fish-ponds, Trees, Woods, Lands, &c. to the Prejudice of the Heir, or of him in Remainder or Reversion. Co. Lit. 52. b. 53. a.

Search if Waste committed.

The Lessor may enter at seasonable Times, to see whether any Waste is committed; and if the Lessee hinders his entering, the Lessor may bring an Action on the Case. 2 Cro. 478.

Kinds of Waste.

There are two Kinds of Waste, voluntary or actual, and permissive.

Voluntary and permissive.

1. Voluntary, by Commission, that is, By cutting down Timber-Trees, prostrating Houses, or the like; and the same Word has the Statute of Glouc. c. 5. Que aver fait Waste, and yet is understood as well of passive as active Waste; for he who suffers a House to decay, which he ought to repair, does the Waste: And therefore if a Man makes a Lease for Years by Indenture of a House and Lands, upon Condition, that if it happen, that the Lessee commits Waste, that the Lessor shall re-enter; in this Case if the Lessee suffers the House to be wasted, the Lessor shall re-enter. 2. Permissive, i. e. By Omission, or not doing, as in not Repairing. 2 Inst. 145. Both are equally injurious to him that has the Inheritance.

Active and passive.

Waste in Houses.

Waste may be committed in Houses, by pulling or prostrating them down, or by suffering them to be uncovered, whereby the Spars or Rafters, Planchers or other Timber of the House becomes rotten. But if the House be uncovered when the Tenant comes in, it is no Waste in the Tenant to suffer the House to fall down. Co. Lit. 53. a.

In pulling them down, &c.

Yet in such Case the Lessor shall have the Timber, and so he shall if a House be pulled down or blowed down by Tempest. 11 Co. 81. b.

Though a House be ruinous at the Tenant's coming in, yet if he pulls it down, it is Waste, unless he builds it up again. Co. Lit. 53. a.

If Glass Windows (though glazed by the Tenant himself) be broken down or carried away, it is Waste; for it is Part of the House. Co. Lit. 53. a. 10 Co. 63, 64.

The same is of new Chimney-pieces; though in some Places they pretend a Custom to take them down within the Term, if they set up the old Chimney-pieces.

And so it is of Wainscot fastened by Nails, Screws or Irons put through Posts or Walls, Benches, Doors, Furnaces, &c. fixed to the House, either by him in Remainder or Reversion, or by the Tenant himself. Co. Lit. 53. a. 4 Co. 64.

If Wainscot, Benches, Furnaces, &c. are not fixed, they may be taken away at any Time. And a fixed Furnace may be taken away at any Time within the Term, if it is not fixed to the Walls or Posts of the House.

If one pulls down a Malt-Mill, and builds a Corn-Mill, it is Waste, though the Corn-Mill is of greater Value.

If the Tenant builds a new House, it is Waste, (Roll. Abr. 507. contra) and then if he suffers that to be wasted, it is a new Waste. Co. Lit. 53. a.

If the House falls down by Tempest, or is burnt by Lightning, or thrown down by Enemies, &c. without the Fault of the Tenant, he shall not be charged with Waste, (Plowd. 29. Co. 98. Co. Lit. 283.) unless he bound himself by Covenant that he would leave it in as good a Condition as he found it. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 2. c. 4. Roll. Abr. 939.

But in this Case, or where the House was ruinous at his coming in, and falls down, the Tenant may build the same again with such Materials as remain, and with other Timber which he may take growing on the Premises. Co. Lit. 53. a.

Yet he must not make the House lesser or larger than it was before, or fell the Trees, and with the Money build it up, for the Sale is Waste. Ibid.

If the House is uncovered by Tempest, the Tenant must repair it in convenient Time. Co. Lit. 53. a.

And though there be no Timber growing upon the Ground, yet the Tenant, at his Peril, must keep the House from wasting. Co. Lit. 53. a.

A Lessor has no Remedy against a Tenant at Will for permissive Waste; but a Tenant for Years is of Course bound to sustain or repair the House. Lit. §. 71. Co. Lit. 57. a.

If one suffers the Houses to be wasted, and then fells Timber to repair them, this is double Waste. Co. Lit. 53. b.

But in many Cases a Tenant for Life or Years may fell Timber to repair, though he is not forced to it; as if a House is ruinous at the Time of the Lease made, he is not bound to repair it; but if he cuts down Timber, and doth repair it, he may justify it; for the Law doth favour the Maintenance of Houses for the Habitation of Mankind. And therefore if two or more Jointenants or Tenants in Common be of a House of Habitation, and one will not repair the House, the other shall have a Writ De reparatione facienda. And the Writ says, Ad sustentationem ejusdem domus teneantur.

So it is if the Lessor covenants to repair the House, the Lessee (if the Lessor does not do it) may with Timber growing on the Ground repair it, though he cannot be compelled to it. Ibid.

A Tenant may dig for Gravel or Clay (though no Pit was open at the Time of the Lease) for Reparation of the House, by the same Reason that he may cut down Timber to repair it. Co. Lit. 53. b.

If the House is burnt by Negligence or Mischiefe, it is Waste. Ibid. See Stat. 6 Ann. c. 31.

If the Tenant cuts down or destroys any Fruit-Trees growing in the Garden or Orchard, it is Waste; but if such Trees grow upon any Part of the Ground out of the Garden or Orchard, it is no Waste. Co. Lit. 53.

If the Tenant of a Dove-house, Park, Warren, Vivary or Fish-Pound, &c. does take so many Pigeons, &c. as that such sufficient Store is not left as he found there when he first entered, it is Waste. Co. Lit. 53. a. 2 Inst. 304.

Waste in Gardens and Orchards.

Waste in Dove-houses,
Parks, &c.

And to suffer the Park-pales to decay, whereby the Deer are lost or dispersed, it is Waste.

Waste in Land. If a Tenant converts Arable Land into Wood, or Wood into Arable Land, or Meadow into Arable, or Arable into Meadow, or Pasture into Arable, it is Waste; for it not only changes the Course of the Husbandry, but the Proof of the Landlord's Evidence of his Estate. Co. Lit. 53. b.

If ancient Meadow Ground beyond the Memory of Man, or Brook Meadow, is plowed up, it is Waste. 2 Roll. Abr. 814.

But if Meadow Ground hath been at any Time Arable, or sometimes Meadow and sometimes Pasture, it is no Waste to plough it up. Ibid.

Therefore such Meadow must be defended from being ploughed up by Covenant, (viz.) to pay so much an Acre (as five Pounds an Acre, &c.) if the Tenant doth plough it up. 2 Roll. Abr. 815.

For an absolute Restraint to plough is void; [Qu.] because Arable is to be preferred before Meadow. Ibid.

If

It is Waste to suffer a Wall of the Sea to be in Decay, so as by the flowing and reflowing of the Sea the Meadow or Marsh Ground is surrounded, and thereby rendered unprofitable. Co. Lit. 53. b.

But if the Land is surrounded suddenly by the Violence of the Sea, occasioned by a Tempest, without any Default of the Tenant, it is no Waste that is punishable. Co. Lit. 53. b.

So it is if the Tenant does not repair the Walls or Banks against Rivers, or other Waters, whereby the Meadows or Marshes are surrounded, and become rushy and unprofitable. Co. Lit. 53. b.

Digging for Gravel,
Mines, &c.

Digging for Gravel, Lime, Clay, Stone, Brick, Earth, &c., or for Mines of Metal, Coal, &c. hidden in the Earth, which were not open when the Tenant came in, is Waste; but he may dig for Gravel, Clay, &c. for the Reparation of the House, as well as he may take convenient Timber-Trees. Co. Lit. 53. b.

If one makes a Lease of his Land for Life or Years, in which there is a Mine of Coals, &c. not mentioning any Mines in his Lease, the Lessee may dig and take the Profit of such Mines as were open at the Time of the Lease made. Co. Lit. 54. b. 5 Co. 12.

But he cannot dig for any new Mine that was not open, for that would be Waste. Ibid.

And if there are open Mines, and the Owner makes a Lease of the Land with the Mines therein, this shall extend to the open Mines only, and not to any hidden Mine. Ibid.

But if there be no open Mine, and the Lease is made of the Land with all Mines, the Tenant may dig for Mines, and have the Profits; otherwise those Words would be void. Ibid.

Trees and Woods.

Waste in Trees and Woods. Trees are Parcel of the Inheritance; and though they are excepted in a Lease, yet they are not Chattels.

The Lessor after he has made a Lease for Life, may by Deed grant the Trees, or reasonable Estovers out of them, to another and his Heirs, and the same shall take Effect after the Death of the Lessee. Ibid.

But such a Gift to a Stranger is void during the Estate for Life, because of the particular Prejudice it may be to the Lessee. Ibid.

Timber is reserved by Law to the Lessor; therefore if it be cut down by a Lessee, the Lessor may take it away; the Lessee had only an Interest in Trees while standing, as in the Fruit, Shrowd, Shadow, &c. 4 Co. 62, 63. 5 Co. 11, 76. 11 Co. 48, 50, 81. On this Account, if he cuts down Timber-Trees, (viz.) Oak, Ash and Elm, (which are Timber-Trees in all Places, except Elms on some Copyhold Estates) or tops them, or doth any other Act whereby the Timber may decay, it is Waste. Co. Lit. 53. a.

And if the Lessee has covenanted to leave the Wood in as good Plight at the End of the Term as he found it, the Lessor shall presently have an Action of Covenant for cutting down the Timber, for now it is not possible for him to perform the Covenant, or to leave the Wood in as good Plight as he found it. Otherwise, if during the Term the Lessee do Waste in Houses; for these may be repaired before the Term expires. F. N. B. 145. 5 Co. 21. 7 Co. 15.

Also in Counties where Timber is scarce, and Beech and the like serves to build Houses for the Habitation of Man, or the like, they are to be accounted Timber, and to cut them down is Waste. Co. Lit. 53. a.

If Timber-Trees are thrown down by the Wind, the Landlord or Lessor shall have them. 4 Co. 63. 11 Co. 81.

If a Tenant suffers the young Germens to be destroyed by Beasts, or does stub them up, it is Destruction. Co. Lit. 53. a.

Cutting down Willows, Beach, Birch, Asp, Maple, &c. standing in the Defence and Safeguard of the House, is also Destruction. Co. Lit. 53. a.

If there is a Quick-set Fence of white Thorn, and the Tenant or Lessee stubs it up, or suffers it to be destroyed, it is Destruction. Co. Lit. 53. a.

And for all these and the like Destructions an Action of Waste lies. Co. Lit. 53. a.

For Waste and Destruction in a large Sense are synonymous Terms.

Turning Trees into Coals for Fuel, when there is sufficient dead Wood, is Waste. Co. Lit. 53. b.

The Tenant may take sufficient Wood to repair Walls, Pales, Fences, Hedges and Ditches, as he found them; but not to make these a-new. Co. Lit. 53. b.

And he may take sufficient Plough-bote, Fire-bote, and other House-bote. Co. Lit. 53. b.

He may also cut down Underwood at seasonable Times. 2 Roll. Abr. 817.

A Copyholder without Custom may cut down great Trees to repair his Copyhold House, though this may be restrained by Custom; or he may be restrained to cut them down without Assignment of the Lord or his Bailiff. Roll. 508.

A Tenant also may cut down dead Wood. 4 Co. 63.

Dilapidation or Waste of Ecclesiastical Places, Houses and Buildings, is a good Cause of Deprivation. Some say an Action of the Case will lie for Dilapidations. 3 Inst. 204. 11 Co. 49. 3 Lev. 116. Lev. 268.

If he who has the Inheritance fears Waste will be committed in any of the foregoing Instances, he may (before any Waste done) have a Prohibition directed to the Sheriff, that he shall not permit Waste to be done by the Tenant; and then the Sheriff may take the Possessio Comitatus, and withstand the doing of it. F. N. B. 55. Co. 115. Co. Lit. 53. b. 2 Inst. 146, 299.

Or he in Remainder or Reversion may have an Injunction out of the Chancery to stay the Waste. F. N. B. 55. Co. 115. Co. Lit. 53. b. 2 Inst. 146, 299.

He in Reversion, either personally or by another, may enter into the House or Lands, lett for Life or Years, to see if Waste is committed. 2 Inst. 306.

A Patron may have a Prohibition to hinder a Person from cutting down Trees to his own private Use. 11 Co. 49. 2 Roll. Abr. 819.

The Forfeiture and Judgment in Waste appears in the Statute of Gloucester, or 5 & 6 Ed. The Forfeiture, Judgment and Recovery in Waste. 1. c. 5. For by it, the Party convicted of Waste shall forfeit the Thing wasted, and Recompence thrice so much as the Waste is taxed at. [See West. 2. or the 13 Ed. 1. c. 14. and the 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 11. for Recovery of Costs, and also 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 4. §. 4. concerning wilful Waste in the Lands of Papists disabled, &c.]

If Waste be done sparsim here and there in Woods, the whole Woods shall be recovered, or so much wherein the Waste sparsim was done. Co. Lit. 54. a. 2 Inst. 303, 304.

And so in Houses, so many Rooms shall be recovered wherein there is Waste done; but if the Waste is committed here and there throughout, all shall be recovered. Ibid.

Regularly, he that enters or recovers by Force of an implied Condition, shall not avoid precedent Incumbrances; for if a Tenant for Life grants a Lease for Years, and afterwards doth Waste, and the Lessor recovers in an Action of Waste against the Tenant for Life, he shall avoid the Lease made before the Waste done; because the Action of Waste must of Necessity be brought against the Lessee for Life to recover the Place wasted, which must bind the Lessee for Years. Co. Lit. 233. b. 234. a.

For if Lessee for Life grants a Rent-Charge, and afterwards doth Waste, and the Lessor recovers in an Action of Waste, he shall hold the Land charged during the Life of Tenant for Life. Ibid.

But if the Rent was granted after the Waste done, the Lessor shall avoid it. Ibid.

None shall have Judgment to recover in an Action of Waste, where the Waste is of small Value. Co. Lit. 54. a. 2 Inst. 306.

Yet the Law will take Notice of Waste in Trees to the Value of three Shillings and Four-pence, and suffer Judgment. Ibid.

And many Things together may make Waste to a Value, and amount to a Forfeiture. Ibid.

(F) By Bankruptcy.

LANDS and Tenements may be forfeited or lost by Bankruptcy; therefore it will be proper to shew, who may be a Bankrupt, what Acts make a Bankrupt, and how Lands and Tenements may be forfeited or lost by Bankruptcy.

Who may be,
and what Acts
make a Bankrupt.

First, Who may be a Bankrupt, and what Acts make a Bankrupt.

A Bankrupt (derived from Banque, a Table, and Route, the Sign of the Table that was fixed in the Earth) is he or she that has gotten other Mens Goods into his or her Hands, and hides in order to deceive his or her Creditors; 4 Inst. 277. but is more particularly described by the following Statutes.

By Stat. 13 El. c. 7. If any Person who has used the Trade of Merchandize, and sought his Living by Buying and Selling in Gross, or by Retail, or shall use the Trade of a Scrivener, receiving other Mens Money, and doth depart the Realm, or begins to keep his or her House, or otherwise absent himself or herself, or suffers him or herself willingly to be arrested, outlawed or imprisoned, without just or lawful Cause, &c. to the Intent to defraud Creditors, shall be deemed a Bankrupt.

In Smith & al against Mills, 2 Rep. 25. The Court considered the several Parts and Branches of the said Statute thus: 1. The Act describes a Bankrupt, and whom he defrauds, viz. the Creditors. 2. To whom the Creditors should complain for Relief, viz. to the Lord Chancellor. 3. How and by what Relief and Remedy is provided, viz. by Force of a Commission under the Great Seal, &c. 4. The Authority of the Commissioners, viz. to sell, &c. that is to say, to every one of the Creditors a Portion, Rate and Rate alike, according to the Quantity of his or their Debt. So that the Intent of the Makers of the said Act expressed in plain Words was to relieve the Creditors of the Bankrupt equally, and that there should be an equal and rateable Proportion observed in the Distribution of the Bankrupt's Goods amongst the Creditors, having Regard to the Quantity of their several Debts, so that one should not prevent the other, but all should be in æquali jure.

And the Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. is to the same Effect as the 13 El. c. 7. And adds moreover, That if any Person that has used the Trade of Merchandize, &c. shall willingly and fraudulently procure him or herself to be arrested, or his or her Goods to be attached or sequestred, or does depart from his or her Dwelling-house, or makes or causes to be made any fraudulent Grant or Conveyance of his Lands, Tenements, Goods or Chattels, to the Intent to defraud his or her Creditors, or being arrested for Debt, shall lie in Prison six Months or more upon the Arrest, shall be adjudged a Bankrupt.

And the Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. adds farther, That if Persons using the Trade of Merchandize, &c. (as before) and Scriveners, who shall either by themselves or others obtain any Protection (except by Privilege of Parliament) [See 7 Ann. c. 12.] or shall by Petition or Bill endeavour to compel their Creditors to take less than their due Debts, or to gain Time for the Payment thereof; or being arrested for Debt, shall after the Arrest lie in Prison two Months, or more, or being arrested for a just Debt of one hundred Pounds, or more, shall escape out of Prison, shall be adjudged a Bankrupt. [See Stat. 10 Ann. c. 15. whereby the Clause of being indebted in a hundred Pounds, and not paying or compounding for the same within six Months after the same shall grow due, and the Debtor arrested, or within six Months after an original Writ sued out and Notice given; or procuring his or her Enlargement by putting in common or hired Bail, shall be adjudged a Bankrupt from the Time of his or her said first Arrest, is repealed; and the Act of 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. and all other Acts, so far forth as they relate to the said Descriptions of a Bankrupt, are made void.]

A single Act is enough to make a Bankrupt.

In short, every Person a Subject born, or Stranger, Alien or Denizen, who shall use the Trade of Merchandize by way of Bargaining, Exchange, Bartery, Chevizance, or otherwise, in Gross or by Retail, or seeking his Living by Buying and Selling, or that shall use the Trade or Profession of a Scrivener, and that shall commit an Act of Bankruptcy, shall be a Bankrupt.

By Stat. 14 Car. c. 24. it seems that Noblemen, Gentlemen and Persons of Quality, if they be not Adventurers in the East-India or Guinea Company, or the Royal Fishery, may be Bankrupts.

A Nobleman having the sole Importing of Cards or Glassess, may be a Bankrupt. Stone's Reading on Stat. Bank. 166.

So may a Member of Parliament. Davis p. 6, 7.

So may private Gentlemen who invest their Money in Trade to make a better Interest, though they have never been bred up to Trade, nor do not act in Person, nor any wise appear in Trade.

So may Lawyers and Physicians if they Trade or Merchandize.

So may Innkeepers or Innholders, Dealers and Chapmen; sed vide post.

So may a Scrivener.

Person who has left off

And a Trader leaving off, or who has left off Trade, may be a Bankrupt for his Debts contracted when a Trader. Comb. 463. Palm. 325. Vent. 5. But not those contracted afterwards. Comb. 463.

A. whilst a Trader owes 100*l.* to B. and leaves off his Trade, and after that borrows another 100*l.* of B. and afterwards pays one of the 100*l.* not mentioning which, the 100*l.* shall be applied to the first Debt, and he shall not be a Bankrupt for that which remains. Comb. 463.

A. in Trade gets in Debt, leaves off his Trade and lives in the Country upon his Land, he may be a Bankrupt for such Debt. Palm. 325.

And if a Man for a certain Time deals in Trade, and afterwards leaves his Trade and Stock in the Hands of another, and has Part of the Profit, and suffers Part of the Loss; if after such Desertion he becomes in Debt, he may be a Bankrupt. Palm. 325.

B. who had been a Merchant and had left off Trade, sold such Merchandizes as were only the Effects of his former Trade, and which he could not immediately put off on ceasing to trade. Per Cur. E. 21. C. 2. B. R. this could not make him a Trader; for the Statute extends only to those who live by Buying and Selling. But in M. 23 C. 2. B. R. it came on again; when it was proved that B. was a Turkey Merchant, and traded in 1656; but it was not proved that he imported or exported any Thing after, but that having the Stock of his former Trade

Trade on his Hands to a great Value, on the Loan and Credit whereof he obtained divers large Sums of Money; and now per Cur. this brings him within the Statute for such Debts as he contracted after 1656, otherwise the Mischief would be great; because Men cannot take Notice when another withdraws his Trade, or when he commands Factors beyond Sea to deal no further with him; but Persons seeing great Quantities of Goods in his Hands are apt to trust him; and therefore it is fit they should be relieved by the Statute. Vent. 29. Sed Q. vide ante.

If a Merchant buys beyond Sea and sells here, or buys here and sells beyond Sea, it is Trading, and he may be a Bankrupt. T. Jones 141.

Even if he be a Subject or Alien Resident beyond Sea; for by Trading thither and back he gains a Credit here. Salk. 109.

If a Trader be Security for any Person, he may be a Bankrupt. Palm. 325. Stone's Reading 183.

Bankers, Brokers and Factors may be Bankrupts. Stat. 5 G. 2. c. 30.

A Feme Covert sole Trader, by the Custom of London, may be a Bankrupt.

But no Adventurer in the East-India or Guinea Company, or the Royal Fishing Trade, to be a Bankrupt, unless he trades, trafficks or merchandizes in another Way or Manner. Stat. 14 C. 2. c. 24.

Nor an Innkeeper. Show. 96, 268. Comb. 181. 3 Lev. 309. For he doth not properly sell what he buys, but utters it at such reasonable Rates as he thinks fit, with Respect to Attendance of Servants, &c. 3 Cro. 549, 550. Danv. Abr. 686, 687.

Nor though he has a Share in a Ship. Holt's Rep. 92.

But if they deal, as in buying Wine, Malt, &c. and selling it to Gentlemen in the Country, there are frequent Instances of their being Bankrupts, under the Titles Innholder, Dealer and Chapman.

A Pawnbroker (if he does not otherwise deal) may not be a Bankrupt; for he does not buy or sell for himself, and is only a common Lender of Money at Interest, and the Pledges which he sells are for the Benefit of the Borrower. But if he otherwise trades, he may be a Bankrupt, in which Case he is usually stiled Pawnbroker, Dealer and Chapman. Davis 24.

A Taylor who only makes Clothes is not liable to be a Bankrupt, because he only works for Hire; but where he buys and sells the Materials, &c. as the Taylors in London, &c. do, he is liable, by the Name of Taylor and Chapman.

By Stat. 7 Ann. c. 7. Members of the Bank of England shall not be adjudged liable to the Statutes of Bankrupts.

By Stat. 9 Ann. c. 21. & 3 G. 1. c. 9. Members of the South-Sea Company shall not be liable to the Statutes of Bankrupts.

By Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. no Farmer, Grafier, or Drover of Cattle, or Receiver General of Taxes granted by Parliament, shall be deemed a Bankrupt.

By Stat. 6 G. 1. c. 4. no Person concerned about Circulating Exchequer Bills shall be liable to the Statutes of Bankruptcy.

It is not buying or selling of Land, but of personal Things, that may make a Bankrupt, nor is it buying only, or selling only, but Buying and Selling. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 4.

Not one single Act of Buying and Selling, but where one gets his Livelihood by it. Ibid.

Such as live on their manual Labour only, as Husbandmen, Labourers, Handicraftsmen, are not Traders within the Statutes: But such as buy Wares and convert them into saleable Commodities, and to get their Livelihood by Buying and Selling, may be Bankrupts within the Statutes; as Shoemaker, Locksmith, Clothier, &c. 3 Cro. 31.

Secondly, How Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments may be forfeited and lost by Bankruptcy.

How Lands,
&c. may be
Bankruptcy.

A Commission of Bankruptcy issues under the Great Seal, upon a Petition to the Lord Chancellor, &c. by a Creditor whose Debt amounts to the Sum of 100*l.* at least, or by two Creditors whose Debts amount to 150*l.* or upwards, or by three or more Creditors whose Debts amount to 200*l.* or upwards, against any Person or Persons being Bankrupts, of which an Affidavit must be made, and a Bond must be given to the Lord Chancellor in the Penalty of 200*l.* conditioned for the proving his Debt, &c. After the Person is declared a Bankrupt, &c. and is summoned to appear at the Meeting assigned by the Commissioners, and the Bankrupt's Trade, Acts of Bankruptcy, and his Estate and Debts are discovered by the Examination of the Bankrupt himself, his Wife, and other Witnesses; and the Creditors are sworn to the Value of their Debts, &c. according to the Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 7. 1 Jac. 1.

* Note, The Wife is only to be examined as to the Estate and Effects, and not as to the Acts of Bankruptcy.

c. 15. 21 Jac. 1. c. 29. but more particularly according to the Stat. 5 G. 2. c. 30. by which a Certificate of the Bankrupt's Conformity in all Things is to be made to the Lord Chancellor, &c. Then by Virtue of one or more of those Statutes, the Commissioners may sell all the Bankrupt's Lands, &c. in his own Possession at the Time of his becoming Bankrupt, whether in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, Freehold or Copyhold, towards Payment of his Debts.

Sale of Bank-rupt's Lands,
&c.

By Stat. 13 El. c. 7. it is enacted, That the Commissioners shall have full Power, at their Discretion, to order and direct as to the Bankrupt's Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, as well Freehold as Copyhold, or Customary, which he or she had in his or her own Right before he or she became Bankrupt; and also with all such Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, as such Person had purchased or obtained for Money, or other Recompence jointly with his Wife, Child or Children, to the only Use of the Bankrupt, or of or for such Use, Interest, Right or Title as such Bankrupt then shall have in the same which he or she may lawfully part with, or with any Person or Persons of Trust, to any secret Use of such Bankrupt, and also with his or her Money, Goods, Chattels, Wares, Merchandizes and Debts wheresoever they may be found or known, and cause the said Lands, Tenements, Fees, Annuities, Offices, Goods, Chattels, Wares, Merchandizes and Debts, to be searched, viewed, rented and appraised to the best Value; and by Deed indented, inrolled in one of the King's Courts of Record, to make Sale of the said Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, and of all Deeds, Writings and Evidences touching only the same belonging to such Bankrupt; and also of all Fees, Annuities, Offices, Goods and Chattels, or otherwise, to order the same for true Satisfaction and Payment of the Creditors, in Proportion to their Debts; and every Direction, Order, Bargain, Sale, and other Things done by the Commissioners, shall be good and effectual in Law against the said Bankrupt, his Wife, Heirs and Children, and such Person and Persons as by such joint Purchase with the Bankrupt have or shall have any Estate or Interest in the Premises, and against all other Person and Persons claiming by, from or under such Bankrupt, by any Act or Acts had, made or done after such Person becomes Bankrupt; and also against the Lords of the Manors, whereof the said Copyhold or Customary Lands be held, their Heirs, Successors and Assigns, and every of them.

Copyhold
Estates.

Provided, that all and every Person or Persons to whom any such Sale of Copyhold or Customary Lands or Tenements shall be made, shall, before such Time as they, or any of them, shall enter or take any Profit of the same Lands or Tenements, agree and compound with the Lords of the Manors of whom the same shall be holden for such Fines or Incomes as heretofore has been most usual and accustomed to be yielded or paid therefore: And that upon every such Agreement or Composition, the said Lords for the Time being, at the next Court to be held at or for the said Manors, shall not only grant unto the said Vendee or Vendees, upon Request, the same Copyhold or Customary Lands or Tenements, by Copy of Court-Roll of the same Manors, for such Estate or Interest as to them shall be sold, and reserving the ancient Rents, Customs and Services; but also in the same Court admit them Tenants of the same Copy or Customary Lands, as other Copyholders of the same Manors have been wont to be admitted, and to receive their Fealty accordingly.

Bankrupt.

Provided always, that the Commissioners shall on lawful Request of the Bankrupt not only make a true Declaration to the same Bankrupt of the employing and bestowing of his said Lands, Tenements, Offices, Fees, Goods, Chattels and Debts so paid and satisfied to their said Creditors, but also make Payment of the Overplus of the same (if any such shall be) to the said Bankrupt, their Executors, Administrators or Assigns.

Sale of Goods,
Chattels,
Debts, &c.

And further enacted, That if after any Act of Bankruptcy, and Complaint thereof made to the Commissioners by any Party aggrieved concerning the Premises, knowing, supposing or suspecting any of the Goods, Chattels, Wares, Merchandizes or Debts of such Bankrupt to be in Custody, Use, Occupying, Keeping or Possession of any Person or Persons, or any Person or Persons be indebted to any such Bankrupt, do make Relation thereof to the said Commissioners, or the major Part of them, then they may call before them by Process, &c. every Person or Persons so known, suspected or supposed to have any such Goods, Chattels, Wares, Merchandizes or Debts, in his or their Custody, Use, Occupation, Keeping or Possession, or supposed or suspected to be indebted to such Bankrupt, and upon their Appearance to examine them, and every of them, as well by their Oaths as otherwise, by such Ways and Means as the said Commissioners, or the major Part of them, shall think meet, for or upon the Specialty, Certainty, true Declaration and Knowledge of all and singular such Goods, Chattels, Wares, Merchandizes and Debts of any such Bankrupt, as be supposed or suspected to be in his Custody, Use, Occupation or Possession, and all such Debts as by them, or any of them, shall be supposed or suspected to be owing to any Bankrupt: And if any such Person or Persons, upon such Examination, do not disclose, and plainly declare and shew the whole Truth of such Things as he or they shall be examined of concerning the Premises, to his Knowledge, or to deny to swear, then such Person or Persons so denying to swear, or being examined do not declare the plain and whole Truth concerning the Premises, upon due Proof thereof before the major Part of the said Commissioners, by Witness, Examination or otherwise, shall lose and forfeit double the Value of all such Goods, &c. so concealed, and not wholly and plainly declared and shewed: Which Forfeiture shall be levied by the major Part of the said Commissioners, of the Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods and Chattels of such Person so denying to swear, or not disclosing the whole Truth as aforesaid, by such Ways, &c. as before appointed for the Bankrupt; and the same Forfeiture or Forfeitures to be distributed or employed to and for the Satisfaction and Payment of the Debts of the said Creditor or Creditors, in such Manner as the Lands, &c. of Bankrupts as aforesaid.

And that if at any Time before or after that any Person commits an Act of Bankruptcy, any Person or Persons do fraudulently by Covin or Collusion claim, demand, recover, possess or detain any Debts, Duties, Goods, Chattels, Lands or Tenements, by Writing, Trust or otherwise, which were or shall be due, belonging or appertaining to any such Bankrupt, other than such as he or they can and do prove to be due by Right and Conscience in Form aforesaid, for Money paid, Wares delivered, or other just Consideration or Cause reasonable, to the just Value thereof, before the major Part of the said Commissioners, and the same to proceed (bona fide) without Fraud or Covin; that then every such Person or Persons so craftily demanding, claiming, having, possessing or detaining any such Debt, Duty, or other Thing as aforesaid, shall forfeit and lose double as much as he or they shall so claim, demand, detain or possess; which said Forfeiture shall be levied, recovered and employed as aforesaid.

Provided also, That if it happens the Creditors of any such Bankrupt be satisfied and paid their Debts and Duties of or with the proper Lands, Tenements, Goods, Chattels and Debts of the said Bankrupt, or of or with the same and some Part of the Forfeitures of the double Values aforesaid, and that there shall remain an Overplus of the said Forfeitures, then one Moiety of the said Overplus shall be by the said Commissioners, within convenient Time after the levying thereof, paid to the King, and the other Moiety distributed amongst the Poor.

Provided always, That if any Person who shall be declared a Bankrupt by this Act, shall at any Time after purchase Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Free or Copyhold, Offices, Fees, Goods or Chattels, shall descend, revert, or by any Means come to any such Person, being a Bankrupt as aforesaid, before such Time as their Debts due to their Creditors shall be fully satisfied and paid, or otherwise agreed for, that then the said Lands, &c. shall, by the major Part of the Commissioners be bargained, sold, extended, delivered and used for and towards the Payment of the said Creditors, in the Manner as the other Lands, &c. of the Bankrupt which he had when declared a Bankrupt.

Provided that this Act shall not extend to any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, Free or Copyhold, which any Bankrupt shall assure bona fide, and not to the Use of the Bankrupt himself only, or of his Heirs; and that the Parties to whose Use such Assurance has or shall be made, be not, at or before the making such Assurance, privy or consenting to the fraudulent Purpose of any such Bankrupt to deceive his Creditors.

And by Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. it is enacted, That if any Bankrupt shall convey, or procure or cause to be conveyed to any of his Children, or any other Person or Persons, any Manors, Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Offices, Fees, Annuities, Leases, Goods, Chattels, or Transfer of his Debts in other Mens Names, except the same shall be purchased, conveyed or transferred, for or upon Marriage of any of his or her Children, both the Parties married being of the Years of Consent, or some valuable Consideration, the major Part of the Commissioners may bargain, sell, grant, convey, demise, or otherwise dispose thereof, in as ample Manner as if the said Bankrupt had been actually seised or possessed thereof, or the Debts were in his own Name, of the like Estate and Interest, to his and their own Use, at such Time as he or she became Bankrupt; and that every such Grant, &c. shall be good and available, to all Intents and Purposes against the Bankrupt, his Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, and such Children and Persons as shall be subject to this Statute, and against all other Persons claiming under such Bankrupt, or such other Persons to whom such Conveyance shall be made by the said Bankrupt, or by his Means or Procurement.

And for that the Power and Authority given to the Commissioners of Bankrupts, touching the Debts due to the said Bankrupt, is not so full and perfect, as that the full Benefit thereof, in due Course, might be employed to the Use of the said Creditors, as was intended: For Remedy therefore, it was further enacted, That the Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, may grant and assign, or otherwise order or dispose all or any of the Debts due or to be due to and for the Benefit of the said Bankrupt, by what Person or Lands or Goods purchased, descending or coming to a Bankrupt after Bankruptcy and before Debts paid.

Lands conveyed before Bankruptcy.

Lands conveyed to others, or Debts transferred in other Men's Names.

Of Debts due to the Bankrupt.

Persons soever, or in what Manner and Form soever, to the Use of the Creditors of the Bankrupt; and that the same Grant, Assignment or Disposition of the said Debts as aforesaid, to be made by the said Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, shall so vest the Property, Right and Interest of the said Debt and Debts, in the Person or Persons of him, her or them, to whom it shall be granted, assigned or ordered by the said Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, as fully to all Intents and Purposes as if the said Bills, Bonds, Statutes, Recognizances, Judgment or Contract whereupon the said Debt or Debts, Deed or Deeds shall arise or grow, had been made to, or with or for the said Person or Persons to whom the same shall be so granted, assigned or disposed by the Commissioners; and that after such Grant, Assignment or Disposition of the said Debts, that neither the Bankrupt, nor any other to whom any such Debt shall be due, shall have Power to recover the same, nor to make any Release or Discharge thereof; neither shall the same be attached as the Debt of the Bankrupt, or such said other Person or Persons to whom the same shall be due by any other Person or Persons, according to the Custom of the City of London, or otherwise; but that the Party or Parties to whom the Debts shall be assigned, shall have like Remedy to recover the same, as fully and lawfully in the Name or Names of the Person or Persons to whom the same shall be so granted, assigned or ordered by the said Commissioners, in all Respects and Purposes as the Party himself might have had.

How the Bankrupt's Lands and Goods shall be divided notwithstanding
Judgment, &c.

And by Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. For the better Division and Distribution of the Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods, Chattels, and other Estate of the Bankrupt, to and amongst his or her Creditors, it is enacted, That the Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, shall and may examine upon Oath, or by any other Ways or Means as to them shall seem meet, any Person or Persons for the Finding out and Discovery of the Truth and Certainty of the several Debts due and owing to all such Creditor and Creditors as shall seek Relief by the Commission; and that every Creditor having Security for his Debt, by Judgment, Statute, Recognizance, Specialty with Penalty or without Penalty, or other Security, or having no Security, or having made Attachments in London, or any other Place, by virtue of any Custom there used, of the Goods and Chattels of every such Bankrupt, whereof there is no Execution or Extent served and executed upon any the Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods, Chattels, and other Estate of such Bankrupt, before such Time as he or she shall or do become Bankrupt, shall not be relieved upon any such Judgment, Statute, Recognizance, Specialty, Attachment, or other Security, for any more than a ratable Part of their just and due Debts with the other Creditors of the Bankrupt, without respect to any such Penalty or greater Sum contained in any such Judgment, &c.

And if it shall happen that any the Lands, Tenements, Goods, Chattels, Debts, or other Estate of any Bankrupt, be extended after such Time as he or she is become a Bankrupt, by any Person or Persons, under Colour or Pretence of his or their being an Accountant, or any way indebted unto the King, that then the Commissioners may examine upon Oath, whether the said Debts were due to such Debtor or Accountant upon any Bargain or Contract originally made betwixt such Accountant and the said Bankrupt, the said Debtor and Accountant, and his or their Servants: And if such Bargain or Contract was originally made to and with any Person or Persons than the said Debtor or Accountant, or for the Use and Trust of any other Person or Persons, then it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, to order and dispose of all such Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods, Chattels and Debts so extended as aforesaid, to and for the Use of the Creditors which shall seek Relief by the Commission; and that the Order and Disposition of the said Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, shall be good and available against the said Extent, and against all Persons claiming by, from or under the said Extent; and that such Person and Persons, to whom the said Lands, &c. so extended shall be bargained, sold, granted or assigned by the Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, shall have good Remedy to have, demand and recover the same, and against such Person and Persons who shall detain the same.

And for the better Payment of Debts, and discouraging Men to become Bankrupts, it is further enacted, That the Commissioners, or the greater Number of them, may by Deed indented and inrolled within six Months after the Making thereof, in some of his Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster, grant, bargain, sell and convey any Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, whereof any Bankrupt is or shall be in any wise seised of any Estate in Tail, in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, and whereof no Reversion or Remainder is or shall be in the King, his Heirs or Successors, of the Gift or Provision of his Majesty, his Progenitors, his Heirs or Successors, to any Person or Persons, for the Relief and Benefit of the Creditors of all such Bankrupts; and that all such Grants, Bargains, Sales and Conveyances, shall be good and available in the Law to such Person or Persons, and their Heirs, against the said Bankrupts, and against all and every the Issues of the Body of such such Bankrupts, and against all and every Person and Persons claiming any Estate, Right, Title or Interest, by, from or under the said Bankrupts; after such Time as such Person shall become Bankrupt, and against all and every other Person and Persons whomsoever, whom the said Bankrupt by Common Recovery, or other Ways or Means, might cut off or debar from any Remainder, Reversion, Rent, Profit, Title or Possibility, into or out of any the said Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments.

And that if any Person that now is or hereafter shall become a Bankrupt, have heretofore granted, conveyed or assured, or shall at any Time hereafter grant, convey or assure any Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods, Chattels, or other Estate, unto any Person or Persons, <sup>And of Lands, &c. mortgaged.</sup> upon Condition, or Power of Redemption at a Day to come, by Payment of Money, or otherwise, that the said Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, before the Time of the Performance of such Condition, to assign and appoint, under their Hands and Seals, such Person or Persons as they shall think fit, to make Tender or Payment of Money, or other Performance, according to the Nature of such Condition, as fully as the Bankrupt might have done; and that the said Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, shall, after such Tender, Payment or Performance, have Power to sell and dispose of such Lands, &c. so granted, &c. upon Condition, to and for the Benefit of the Creditors, as fully as they may sell or dispose of any the Estate of the Bankrupt.

And by the said Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. §. 9. it is recited, That it often fell out that many Persons, before they became Bankrupts, conveyed their Goods to other Men upon good Consideration, who still kept the same, and were reputed the Owners thereof, and disposed the same as their own, <sup>Fraudulent Sales, and the Bankrupt's continuing in Possession.</sup> and enacted, That if at any Time hereafter any Person or Persons shall become Bankrupt, and at such Time as they shall so become Bankrupt, shall, by the Consent and Permission of the true Owner and Proprietary, have in their Possession, Order and Disposition, any Goods and Chattels whereof they shall be reputed Owners, and take upon them the Sale, Alteration or Disposition as Owners; that in every such Case the Commissioners, or the greater Part of them, shall have Power to sell and dispose the same to and for the Benefit of the Creditors, which shall seek Relief by the said Commission, as fully as any other Part of the Bankrupt's Estate.

And by Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. Commissioners, or the major Part of them, as often as they see Cause, for the better preserving and securing the Bankrupt's Estate, immediately to appoint one or more Assignee or Assignees of the Estate and Effects, or any Part thereof; which Assignee or Assignees, or any of them, shall or may be removed or displaced at the Meeting of the Creditors, so to be appointed for the Choice of Assignees, if they or the major Part of them (whose Debts respectively amount to 10*l.* or upwards) then present, and of such Persons duly authorized, shall think fit; and such Assignee or Assignees as shall be so removed or displaced, shall deliver up and assign all the Estate and Effects of such Bankrupt which shall have come to his or their Hands or Possession, or which shall have been assessed by the said Commissioners unto such other Assignee or Assignees who shall be so chosen by the Creditors as aforesaid; and all the Estate and Effects of the Bankrupt, which shall be delivered up or assigned, shall be to all Intents and Purposes as effectually and legally vested in such new Assignee or Assignees, as if the first Assignment had been made to him or them by the said Commissioners; and if such first Assignee or Assignees shall refuse or neglect by the Space of ten Days next after Notice given of the said Choice of such new Assignee or Assignees, and of his and their Consent to accept such Assignment, signified to the first Assignee or Assignees, by Writing under his or their Hands to make such Assignment and Delivery as aforesaid, every such first Assignee or Assignees shall respectively forfeit the Sum of 200*l.* to be divided and distributed amongst the Creditors towards Satisfaction of their Debts, in such Manner as the Estate of the Bankrupt is or ought to be divided and distributed, and to be recovered by Action of Debt, &c. by such Person or Persons, as such major Part of the Commissioners shall appoint to sue for the same, with full Costs of Suit.

The Statutes do not extend to any Lands, &c. conveyed bona fide by the Bankrupt before he became a Bankrupt; nor to the Lands purchased of one that is a Bankrupt, by any Act done, unless a Commission to prove him a Bankrupt is sued forth within five Years after he or she shall become Bankrupt. <sup>How far these Statutes extend.</sup>

But if any Bankrupt shall convey, or cause to be conveyed, to his Children, or to any other Person, Lands or Goods, except the same shall be transferred upon the Marriage of any Child, [See Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ante] or upon some valuable Consideration, the Commissioners may dispose thereof.

All fraudulent Conveyances to deceive Creditors are within these Statutes.

Lands, &c. whereof the Bankrupt is jointly seised, may be sold (as to his Moiety) by the Commissioners.

If a Bankrupt hath Land in the Right of his Wife, it may be sold during the Coverture.

The

The Dower of a Bankrupt's Wife cannot be sold.

Otherwise, if she marries one that is a Bankrupt.

Offices of Trust which are annexed to the Person cannot be sold; but Offices of Inheritance, as a Keeper of a Forest, Warden of the Fleet, &c. may.

Entering Proceedings on Record.

By the said Statute of 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. Upon Petition, the Lord Chancellor, &c. may order the Commissions, Depositions and Proceedings thereupon to be entred of Record, to enable Purchasers under Commissions, to make out their Right and Title to the Lands purchased.

A Copy of which Record may be given in Evidence, to prove the Commission of Bankruptcy of the Person, in case of the Death of the Witnesses, or the Loss of the original Proceedings.

Disposal of personal Estate.

The Commissioners also, &c. have Power by the aforesaid Statutes, to dispose of the Bankrupt's personal Estate, or his Goods and Chattels which he had and was possessed of at the Time of his becoming a Bankrupt, though the Bankrupt sells them in Market-overt; for the Sale of the Commissioners shall have Relation to the first Act of Bankruptcy.

But no Debtor of a Bankrupt shall be in Danger for paying a Debt due to the Bankrupt before he had Notice that he was become a Bankrupt, by the 1 Jac. 1. c. 15.

The Assignees may bring Actions for the Recovery of the Bankrupt's Debts in their own Names, or compound with the Debtors to the Bankrupt.

If the Bankrupt makes his Debts payable to other Men, they are as liable as if they were payable to himself.

The Commissioners, or any other Person appointed by their Warrant under the Hands and Seals of the greatest Part of them, may break open the House, Shops, Warehouses, Trunks or Chests of the said Bankrupt, where the Bankrupt, or any of his Goods or his Writings shall be, or be reputed to be, and then seize the Bankrupt and his Goods and Chattels, &c. and send the Bankrupt to Prison.

By Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. Where mutual Credit hath been given betwixt the Bankrupt and others, and the Accounts are unbalanced, the Commissioners may adjust the Accounts, and the Balance shall be paid accordingly.

By the above-mentioned Statutes of Eliz. Jac. 1. and 5 Geo. 2. The Commissioners (after the Bankrupt's real and personal Estate is sold) must make Distributions amongst those Creditors who came in before Distribution, to contribute to the Charge of the said Commission, having first allowed the Bankrupt five Pounds per Cent. out of the neat Produce of all the Estate discovered by him, so as the said Allowance is not above two hundred Pounds, or a lesser Sum; but not above three Pounds, where the Bankrupt's Estate will not pay every Creditor eight Shillings in the Pound. 2 Rep. 25, 26. Hob. 287.

But this must be upon Certificate of the Commissioners and Creditors, to the Lord Chancellor, &c. which Certificate must be obtained without Contract or Security given as a Consideration thereof.

This Allowance, or any Privilege or Advantage, shall not extend to any Bankrupt whatsoever, who shall upon Marriage of any of his Children give (when he was not able to pay his Debts) above the Value of 100*l.* or who shall lose in one Day the Sum of 5*l.* or in the whole the Sum of 100*l.* within a Year before he became a Bankrupt, in playing at any Game whatsoever. [See Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30.]

Aliens and Denizens, &c. may come in as Creditors upon Distribution.

If an Executor becomes a Bankrupt, a Legatee shall be relieved as a Creditor.

A Surety or Bail may come in as Creditor, if he hath paid the Debt.

One that has a Debt not yet payable, may be relieved upon Allowance for Payment before the Time.

But if one trusts a Bankrupt after he becomes a Bankrupt, he shall not be relieved as a Creditor. But see Stat. 7 Geo. 1. c. 31.

A Mortgagee is not a Creditor within the Statutes, and need not contribute to the Charges of the Commission; for he is safe without it.

So he that hath a Pledge of the Bankrupt's Goods before he was a Bankrupt.

But the Goods of another in the Bankrupt's Possession and Disposal, as if they were his own, shall be distributed as the Bankrupt's own Goods, and he must come in as a Creditor.

Those that attach the Goods of a Bankrupt, must also come in as Creditors.

In the Distribution of the Bankrupt's Estate, no more Respect shall be had unto Debts upon Judgments, Recognizances, Specialties with Penalties, &c. than to other Debts.

But the King shall be preferred before a private Person.

If the Debts cannot be fully paid, every one of the Creditors must have a Share, Rate and Rate alike, according to the Quantity of his Debt.

If the Bankrupt happens to die before Distribution, yet nevertheless the Commissioners may proceed to execute the said Commission concerning the Bankrupt's Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods and Chattels, in such Sort as they might have done if the Offender had been living. But the Commissioners must account to his Heirs, Executors, &c. and pay the Overplus to them in the same Manner as to the Bankrupt when living. See Stat. 13 El. c. 7. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. 3 Geo. 1. c. 12. 7 Geo. 1. c. 31. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. All which Statutes shall be beneficially construed for the Aid and Relief of Creditors.

If the Commission is not duly taken out, or if the Commissioners do not pursue their Commission, the Party hath no other Remedy but to put in a Traverse contrary to the Finding of the Commissioners, that he is a Bankrupt; and to say that he is not a Bankrupt. 8 Rep. 121.

As to Commissioners, or those acting under them, pleading the General Issue, &c. vide Danv. Abr. 694.

If the Commissioners will not pay a Creditor his ratable Part, he may have an Action of Debt. But Relief may be had more properly in Chancery.

By Stat. 10 Ann. c. 15. No Acts or Statutes discharging any Bankrupt shall discharge any Partner in Trade with the Bankrupt at the Time he became a Bankrupt; nor one that was jointly bound with the Bankrupt, &c. See Stat. 6 Geo. 1. c. 22. 7 Geo. 1. c. 31. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. for his Discharge from all Actions.

(G) By Disseisin.

LORD Coke says, A Disseisin is a putting out of a Man out of Seisin. Co. Lit. 153. b. Disseisin, And Littleton says, A Disseisin is where a Man enters into any Lands or Tenements what. where his Entry is not congeable, and ousts him which has the Freehold, &c. Lit. §. 279. without Order of Law.

And Coke thereupon says, This Description of a Disseisin, and the (&c.) is understood only of such Lands and Tenements whereunto an Entry may be made, and not of Rents, Commons, &c. Co. Lit. 181. a.

A Disseisor is he, (and a Disseisors is she) who so enters and ousts him who has the Freehold. Disseisor, who.

And he who is so ousted is the Disseeisee.

The Law will not construe it to be a Disseisin when none of the Parties intended it to be so. Cro. Car. 803.

Every Entry is no Disseisin, unless there be an Ouster also of the Freehold. Co. Lit. 181. a. Carter 161, 163.

A Jointenant, Tenant in Common or Coparcener, cannot be disseised by his Fellow, without an actual Ouster. Hob. 120. T. Raym. 371.

If Baron and Feme purchase Lands in Fee, and after the Baron is attainted of Felony, and the King seises the Land, and after the Lord of whom it is held, upon his Suggestion, hath it delivered to him out of the Hands of the King as his Escheat, this is a Disseisin to the Wife who had a joint Estate with her Husband, for it was delivered out of the Hands of the King by a false Suggestion, and so a Disseisin to the Feme. 4 Aff. 4. 2 Danv. Abr. 624. Roll. Abr. 658. What Act shall be said a Disseisin.

If a Lessee for Years is ousted by the Lessor, this is no Disseisin, yet the Estate of the Lessee is turned into a Right not grantable. Hob. 322.

A. seised in Fee, infeoffs B. his Trustee, B. leases, bargains and sells for 100 Years to C. to attend the Inheritance; the Lessee enters, A. afterwards continues the Possession, and makes several Leases, which are expired, and dies; afterwards his Heir leases and levies a Fine Sur Conusance de droit, &c. and five Years Non-claim. The Executor of the Lessee for 100 Years assigns off from the Land to E. F. who within five Years after the Fine makes no Claim; this Fine made a Disseisin, and displaced the Lease for 100 Years, and put it to a Right, and it was barred by the Fine and Non-claim. Carter 161, 199. A. continuing the Possession after the Lease of 100 Years, was Tenant at Will to the Lessor for 100 Years, (he having entered) and his making of Leases for Years made him a Disseisor at the Election of the Party; but if he had made a Lease for Life, it had been a Disseisin. Sid. 337, 458, 459. If a Fine Sur concessit had been levied, this had not turned the Estate, viz. the Lease of 100 Years, to a Right: But the Fine Sur Conusance being a Feoffment upon Record, and an absolute Disseisin had turned it to a Right; and so the Fine and Non-claim for five Years has barred the Lease of 100 Years. Sid. 337, 338, 458, 459, 460.

Where the Feoffor after the Feoffment enters and takes the Profits, and makes a Lease to one for Years, the Law does, upon this whole Matter, adjudge it to be a Disseisin; although though the Intent of the Parties was, that the Feoffee should make a Lease to him for his Life; for this Entry by Tort and taking of the Profits, without the Agreement of the Feoffee, is a Disseisin; a fortiori, if he takes upon himself to make a Lease. 2 Co. 59. b.

Where a Copyholder makes a Lease for Years not warranted by the Custom, yet it is no Disseisin. Cro. Car. 304. pl. 6.

When a Tenant at Will takes upon him to make a Lease for Years, (which is a greater Estate than he may make) that Act is a Disseisin; and by this Lease for Years made, and the Lessee's entring and paying of the Rent, and he accepting thereof, he is in as Lessee, and the Lessor (viz. The Tenant at Will who makes the Lease) is the Disseisor, and has the Reversion expectant upon the Lease for Years; and this Lease between them is an Interest derived out of the Inheritance gained by the Disseisin. It was argued by Richardson, That it being but a Lease for Years, it has gained no Reversion to the Lessor; but if it had been a Lease for Life it had. Cro. Car. 304, 306.

If a Man leases several Acres for Years, rendring one intire Rent, and the Lessee is ousted of one Acre by a Stranger, and afterwards this notwithstanding pays the intire Rent to the Lessor, yet this shall not continue the Seisin of the Lessor of the Whole, but he is disseised of the said Acre. A. being seised of a Close, a Stranger enters, and occupies Part of the Close, but A. continues in the Possession of the Residue; and whether this shall preserve his Possession in the Whole, being an intire Thing, Dubitatur, Brownl. 230.

If a Man has a House, and locks it and departs, and another comes to his House, and takes the Key of the Door into his Hand, and says that he claims the House to himself in Fee, without any Entry into the House, this is a Disseisin of the House. 2 Danv. Abr. 624. Roll. Abr. 659.

If a Man enters into my House by my Sufferance, without claiming any Thing from me, this is not any Disseisin. 11 E. 3. Affise 86. adjudged. 2 Danv. Abr. 625. Roll. Abr. 659.

If the King be seised in Fee of the Manor of B. and a Stranger erects a Shop in a vacant Plot of the Manor, and takes the Profits thereof without paying any Rent to the King, and after the King grants over the Manor in Fee, and the Stranger continues afterwards in the Shop, and occupies it as before, yet this Continuance is not any Disseisin, because the first Entry was not any Disseisin. 2 Danv. Abr. 625. Roll. Abr. 659.

If a Stranger receives of my Tenant, by voluntary Payment, without Coercion of Distress, the Rent due to me, this is a Disseisin to me at my Election. 40 Aff. 19. Br. Disseisor 60. 2 Danv. Abr. 625. Roll. Abr. 659.

So if a Man feeds his Cattle on my Common without Right. Hob. 322. 9 Co. 51. a. Brownl. 197.

If A. cuts Trees in his own Soil, and B. that has Common there, says the Soil is his Soil, and commands him that he cuts nothing, &c. upon which A. departs out of the Land, yet this is not any Disseisin to him, for he that has no Right cannot be seised of a Freehold by Parol. 26 Aff. 17. S.* because the first Entry was not any Disseisin. 2 Danv. Abr. 625. Roll. Abr. 659.

If a Man enters and ousts a Copyholder of Inheritance of a Manor in the Hands of the King; by this he gains no Estate, but a Possession against all Strangers. 3 Leon. 221. 4 Leon. 30.

If there be Tenant at Sufferance, and a Stranger not having any Right to the Land makes a Lease to him by Indenture, rendring Rent, without putting the Tenant at Sufferance out of Possession, and the Tenant pays the Rent to the Stranger, this is not any Disseisin to him that had Right. 2 Danv. If Lessee for Years hold over his Term, yet he is not any Disseisor, because he comes in by the Act of the Party; but he is called a Tenant at Sufferance. (Roll. Abr. 659, 660. 2 Danv. Abr. 626.) And the Lessor may either take him as such, or have an Action of Entry Ad Terminum qui præterit against him as Tenant of the Freehold. Jon. 316, 317. 4 Co. 24. a, b.

And if a Tenant pur auter vie holds over, he is no Disseisor. 4 Co. 24. a. b. But vide Ow. 27, 35. 2 Leon. 45, 46.

If Guardian by Nurture makes a Lease by Indenture to one, being under the Title of the Infant, rendring Rent to himself, which is paid accordingly, yet this is not any Disseisin to the Infant. 2 Danv. Abr. 625. Roll. Abr. 659.

If Tenant at Will, rendring Rent, and his Son enters generally, occupies the Land, and pays the Rent during his Life, and dies, and his Son also enters and pays the Rent, no Freehold is gained by this Manner of Entry and Occupation, nor is it any Disseisin. And. 134.

If a Disseisor makes a Lease for Years or at Will, and the Disseisee enters upon him, and after the Lessee re-enters, claiming his first Estate, yet he is a Disseisor, because he cannot qualify his own Tort. 2 Danv. Abr. 630. Roll. Abr. 662. Who shall be said a Disseisor or not where a Man cannot qualify his own Wrong.

Where a Man enters of his own Head, and occupies Land, if the Freeholder releaseth to him in Fee, Nil operatur, because there is no Privy between them. Lit. §. 461. This must be intended of a Tenant at Sufferance; for if a Man enters into Land of his own Wrong, and takes the Profits, his Words, To hold it at the Will of the Owner, cannot qualify his Wrong, but he is a Disseisor. Co. Lit. 271. a.

And if a Man enters into my Land, claiming a Lease for Years, he is a Disseisor. 9 H. 6. 21. 31. b. 2 Danv. Abr. 630. Roll. Abr. 662.

Lessee for Years at a Day to come enters before his Term commences, and continues Possession afterwards, he is a Disseisor. Sid. 8.

So if there be two Jointenants, and one of them makes Rescous, they are both Disseisors; for the Distress is a Demand in Law, and the Non-payment a Denial and Disseisin; but he that made the Rescous only is the Disseisor with Force. Co. Lit. 161. b. Moor 53.

If the Grantee of a Rent-Charge demands the Rent, and after distrains, and a Stranger, without the Assent of the Tenant, makes Rescous, yet this is a Disseisin in the Tenant, for the Non-payment was a Denial, and the taking of the Distress has not waived this Disseisin. The Case aforesaid of 39 Aff. 4. proves this. 29 Aff. 51. (53) dubatur. Fitz. Affise 335. Br. Disseisin 59. 2 Danv. Abr. 623. Roll. Abr. 658.

If he that ought to have a Rent-Charge comes to the Proctor of the Tenant of the Land out of which the Rent issues, and demands the Rent, and he refuses to pay it, this is a Disseisin. 18 E. 3. Affise 78. Roll. Abr. 658. 2 Danv. Abr. 623.

Note; The Demand of the Rent must be on the Land. Co. Lit. 153. a.

If I have a Rent-Charge issuing out of Land, of which there are several Tertenants a Demand upon the Land, in the Possession of one of the Tenants, and Non-payment, is a Disseisin by all, for all the Rent issues out of every Part. 39 Aff. 4. 2 Danv. Abr. 623. 1 Roll. Abr. 658.

When there is a lawful Demand of a Rent-Seck, and the same is not paid, where the Tenant is present or absent, this is a Denial in Law, and consequently a Disseisin. Co. Lit. 153. b.

Where

Where a Man is seised of a Rent-Seck, and the Tenant will not pay it, the Party seised of the Rent (or some other by his Direction) must go upon the Land, and demand the Arrears of the Rent; and if the Tenant denies to pay it, this is a Disseisin: So if the Tenant is not there ready to pay it, this is a Disseisin: So if there is no Body upon the Land ready to pay it when demanded, this is a Denial in Law, (for Non-payment is a Denial in Law, whether the Tenant is present or absent. Co. Lit. 153. b.) and a Disseisin, for which an Affize lies. Lit. §. 233.

And where there is a House upon the Land, a Demand either at the House or upon the Land is sufficient. Co. Lit. 152. a.

And a Demand needs not be upon the Day, but at any Time after is sufficient. Co. Lit. 153. a. b.

There are three Causes of a Disseisin of a Rent-Service, viz. (1) Rescous, (2) Replevin, and (3) Inclosure. Lit. §. 237.

Rescous is where the Lord distrains, and the Cattle are rescued from him, or the Tenant or another Man will not suffer him to distrain. Lit. §. 237.

Replevin is where a Distress is made, and the Distress is replevied by Writ or Plaint. Lit. §. 237. Replevin is derived of Replegiare, to re-deliver to the Owner upon Pledges or Surety. Co. Lit. 161. a. And Inclosure is if the Lands and Tenements be so inclosed, that the Lord may not come within the Lands and Tenements to distrain. Lit. §. 237.

And the Cause why such Things so done be Disseisins made to the Lord, is, that by such Things the Lord is disturbed of the Means by which he ought to have come at his Rent, viz. of the Distress. Lit. §. 237. Co. Lit. 161. a.

But all these are intended by Littleton to be Disseisins after an actual Seisin had, and when the Rent is behind, otherwise none of those are Disseisins at all. Co. Lit. 161. a.

Though upon a Replevin the Distress is re-delivered by the Sheriff by Course of Law, yet this is a Disseisin, because the Party is thereby disturbed of the Means by which he ought to come to his Rent, viz. of the Distress. Co. Lit. 161. a.

There are five Causes of a Disseisin of a Rent-Charge. Littleton says four, viz. (1) Rescous, (2) Replevin, (3) Inclosure, and (4) Denial; for Denial is a Disseisin of a Rent-Charge as well as for a Rent-Service. But Denier is no Disseisin of a Rent-Service without Rescous or Resistance. And Coke says, you may add a fifth, viz. Resistance to distrain, Counterpleading and Vouching a Record and Failer thereof. Lit. §. 238. Co. Lit. 161. b.

And there are two Causes of a Disseisin of a Rent-Seck, Denial and Inclosure. Lit. §. 239. The Reason wherefore Inclosure is a Disseisin of a Rent-Seck, is because the Grantee cannot come upon the Land to demand it. Co. Lit. 161. b.

There is another Cause of Disseisin of all three, that is, if the Lord is going to the Land to distrain, or the Grantee of the Rent-Charge or Seck to demand the Rent, and the Tenant forestalls him in the way with Force and Arms, or menaceth him in such Manner, that he dares not come to the Land, &c. for Doubt of Death, or Bodily Hurt; this is a Disseisin, for that the Lord is disturbed of the Means whereby he ought to come at his Rent. Lit. §. 240.

If a Man distrains for a Rent-Service, and a Stranger rescues the Distress in the Name of the Tenant, this is a Disseisin of Rent. 56 H. 3. 2 Danv. Abr. 624. Roll. Abr. 658.

If a Man brings an Infant with him into the Lands of J. S. and there claims the Land to the Use of himself and the Infant, yet the Infant is not any Disseisor, because he made no Claim. Ibid.

If one disseises Tenant for Life to the Use of him in Reversion, and after he in Reversion agrees thereto, it is said that he in Reversion is a Disseisor in Fee, for by the Disseisin made by the Stranger the Reversion was divested, which they say could not be re-vested by the Agreement

Although an Action will not lie against the Feoffee of the Disseisor for the Corn or Grass, &c. cut, yet the Disseisee, after his Re-entry, may seise or bring Trover for them; for the Regress of the Disseisee has Relation (as to the Property) to the Continuance of the Freehold in him ab initio. 11 Co. 57. b.

(H) By Abatement, Intrusion, Deforcement, Usurpation, and Purpresture.

A Bater is a French Word, and signifies Distruere, or Prostruere, to destroy or prostrate: Abate, what. Co. Lit. 134. b.

And Abate is both an English and French Word, and signifies in its proper Sense to diminish or take away, as an Abator diminishes and takes away the Freehold in Law descended to the Heir, and so it is said to abate an Account, signifying Subtraction or Withdrawing, &c. and to abate the Courage of a Man. In another Sense it signifies to prostrate, beat down or overthrow, as to abate Castles, Houses, and the like, and to abate a Writ; and hereof comes a Word of Art, Abatementum, which is an Entry by Interposition. Co. Abatement, what. Lit. 277. a.

Now the Difference inter Disseisinam, Abatementum, Intrusionem, Deforciamentum, & Usurpationem, & Purpresturam, is this: The Difference between Disseisin,

A Disseisin is a wrongful putting out of him that is actually seised of a Freehold. Co. Lit. 277. a.

And Abatement is when a Man died seised of an Estate of Inheritance, and between the Death and the Entry of the Heir, a Stranger does interpose himself and abate. Co. Lit. 277. a.

Intrusion first properly is when the Ancestor died seised of any Estate of Inheritance, expectant upon an Estate for Life, and then Tenant for Life dies, and between the Death and the Entry of the Heir a Stranger does interpose and intrude. 2dly, He who enters upon any of the King's Demesnes, and takes the Profits, is said to intrude upon the King's Possession. 3dly, Where an Heir in Ward enters at his full Age without Satisfaction for his Marriage, the Writ says, quod intrusit. Co. Lit. 277. a. b.

Deforciamentum comprehends not only these aforementioned, but any Man that holds Land whereunto another Man has Right, be it by Descent or Purchase, is said to be a Deforcor. Co. Lit. 277. b.

Usurpation has two Significations in the Common Law, one when a Stranger that has no Right presents to a Church, and his Clerk is admitted and instituted, he is said to be an Usurper, and the wrongful Act that he has done is called an Usurpation. 2dly, When any Subject does use without lawful Warrant, Royal Franchises, he is said to usurp upon the King those Franchises. Co. Lit. 277. b.

Purprestura, or Pourprestura, a Purpresture. Purprestura est, &c. generaliter quoties aliquod fit ad nocumentum regii tenementi, vel regie viae (vel aliquarum publicarum) vel civitatis, &c. And because it is very properly when there is a House builded, or an Inclosure made of any Part of the King's Demesnes, or of an Highway, or a common Street or publick Water, or such like publick Things; it is derived of the French Word Pourpris, which signifies an Inclosure, but specially applied, as is aforesaid, by the Common Law. Co. Lit. 277. b.

Of acquiring real Estates by Means of Forfeitures and Losses in criminal Cases.

(A) Forfeiture in High Treason.

FIRST, The Delinquent forfeits to the King all his Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments in Fee-simple or Fee-tail (or for Life, as to the Profits during the Offender's Life) holden or not holden of any other Uses, Conditions, Entries, &c. (not Rights of Actions where the Entry is taken away) which he had at the Time of the Treason committed, or afterwards, the Right of all others being saved.

There is no Forfeiture of the Lands or Tenements, or Rights in Auter droit, (as in Right of the Church; in Right of a Wife, but only during the Coverture; nor of a Founder of a House of Religion in Frank-almoign; for that is annexed to the Blood of the Founder) and in clipping, the Hereditaments are forfeited only for Life.

Secondly, The Delinquent's Wife loses her Dower, not her Jointure. So it is in Petit Treason.

Thirdly, His Blood shall be corrupted, by becoming base as to his Birth, and that his Children shall not inherit to him or any of his Ancestors. In Counterfeiting the Coin or Clipping there is no Corruption of Blood.

F f

Fourthly,

Fourthly, All his Goods and Chattels shall be forfeited from the Time of the Conviction. For where Goods and Chattels are forfeited, there shall be no Relation to the Crime committed, as it is in Forfeiture of Lands. Co. Lit. 37. a. 41. a. 392. a. & b. 3 Inst. 19, 211. 3 Co. 10, 82.

A Traitor or Felon after the Treason or Felony committed, and before Conviction, may sell his Goods bona fide, whether Chattels Real or Personal, for his Maintenance.

But if one, to prevent Forfeiture by Treason, Felony or Outlawry, makes a Gift of all his Goods, and afterwards is attainted or outlawed, these Goods are forfeited. An Executor cannot forfeit the Goods which he has as Executor. 3 Co. 82. 8 Co. 171.

If one commits Treason, and dies before Attainder, or is slain in actual Rebellion, he forfeits nothing, if not attainted by Act of Parliament. But if the Chief Justice of the King's Bench (who is head Coroner of all England) in Person, upon View of the Body of him that was slain in open Rebellion, makes a Record thereof, and returneth it into the King's Bench, he shall forfeit his Lands and Goods. 3 Inst. 12. 4 Co. 57. H. P. C. 17.

Those that are hanged by Martial Law, in Time of War, forfeit no Lands. Co. Lit. 13. a. 3 Inst. 21.

17 E. 2. c. 16.

Mr. Wood in his Institute of the Common Law, B. 4. c. 5. says, That in Gavelkind, if the Father is hanged for Treason or Felony, the Sons shall inherit. But as to Treason he must be mistaken, for Mr. Robinson, in his Common Law of Kent, p. 230. (who cites Lamb. Peramb. 318 Dav. 37. 1 H. P. C. 360. Wright's Tenures 118.) says, that the Custom of Gavelkind holds only in Case of Felony, and extends not to Treason; for if a Man be attainted of Treason, his Gavelkind Lands are forfeited to the King.

When the King shall be vested of the Lands, &c. forfeited.

By the 33 H. 8. c. 20. If any Person shall be attainted of High Treason, the King shall be deemed and adjudged in actual Possession of the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, Uses, Rights, Entries, Conditions, Reversions, Remainders, Goods and Chattels, and all other Things of the Offender so attainted, which the King might lawfully have, or which the Offender might lawfully forfeit, as if he had been attainted by Parliament, without an Office or Inquisition found.

Saving to all others (except of the Offender attainted of High Treason, his Heirs and Assigns, and all other Persons claiming by him, or to his Use, after the Treason committed) all such Rights, Titles, Interests, &c. which any of them ought to have if this Act had never been made.

This Act vests the actual Possession in the King presently by the Attainder, as well in the Life as after the Death of the Person attainted, and as well of Lands in Tail as of Land in Fee-simple.

It also extendeth to all Manner of Attainders by Treason, whether by Confession, Verdict, Process or Outlawry, or Attainder by Parliament. 3 Co. 10.

But as to the Time the King is vested of Lands, &c. forfeited for Felony, vide post.

(B) In Misprision of Treason.

THE Offender forfeits his Goods and Chattels, and Profits of Land during Life, for his Concealment. But the Wife is dowable. Co. Lit. 392. b. 3 Inst. 36, 218. H. P. C. 269.

(C) In Petit Treason and Felony.

Standing mute.

Challenging Jurors.

IF the Offender stands mute, and is adjudged to Penance in Cases of Petit Treason and Felony, he forfeits his Goods and Chattels. So he does if he challenges above thirty-five Jurors. But not if he challenges above twenty and under thirty-six; for no Law gives a Forfeiture for challenging above twenty. Neither is one convicted by the challenging above twenty, as one was by the Common Law by Challenge of three Juries. 3 Inst. 227, 228. H. P. C. 226, 227. Kely. 36.

How the Forfeiture differs from High Treason.

The Forfeiture is the like as in High Treason as to Lands and Tenements upon Attainder, and as to Goods and Chattels upon Conviction; except that upon Attainder in Petit Treason or Felony Lands and Tenements intailed are forfeited only during the Life of the Tenant in Tail, and the Inheritance goes to the Issue. Co. Lit. 37. a. 41. a. 391. a. 392. a. & b. 3 Inst. 212.

The King shall have the Profits of Inheritances that are not holden during the Life of the Person attaint in Felony; but after his Decease, the Inheritances that are not holden extinguish. Again it must be observed, that upon Attainder of Petit Treason the Wife is not dowable, but upon Attainder of Felony she is dowable. 3 Inst. 21.

But by the Custom of Kent, if Tenant in Fee-simple of Lands in Gavelkind commits Felony, and suffers Judgment of Death, he shall incur Forfeiture of his Goods, but his Lands of that Tenure shall not be forfeited, nor escheat to the King or other Lord of whom they are holden, but the Heir, notwithstanding the Offence of his Ancestor, shall enter immediately and enjoy the Lands by Descent after the same Customs and Services by which they were before holden, which has given Occasion to the Proverbial Expression,

*The Father to the Bough,
And the Son to the Plough.*

Stat. 17 Ed. 2. de Prærog. Reg. c. 16. or as it is somewhat differently expressed in the Manuscript Copy of the Consuetudines Kan. in Lincolns-Inn Library:

*The Father to the Bode,
And the Son to the Londe.*

Nor shall the King have the Year, Day and Waste of Lands in Gavelkind holden of a common Person where the Tenant is executed for Felony, which seems to be but a Consequence of the other Custom, according to the general Rule in Bracton 130. a. 131. a. Non debet Rex de jure habere annum & diem de aliquâ terra quæ non possit esse eschaeta Deminorum. Robinson's Common Law of Kent, p. 226, 227. cites many Authorities.

Customs which are by Reason of the Land, as Gavelkind and Borough English, bind the King; but Customs by Reason of the Person or the Goods do not. 6 H. 6. 28. a. as to Customs. Bro. Custom. 5.

But to how far this Custom is confined, vide concerning Forfeitures upon Outlawry, post.

Twissden Justice says, in 1 Sid. 138. That he had heard, that the Custom of The Father to the Bough, &c. was in no other Town or County except in Kent. But Mr. Taylor in his Hist. of Gavelkind 106. mentions, that the Gavelkind Lands in the Liberty of Urchinfeild in Herefordshire partake of the same Privilege. Indeed the same Author says, that it was the Right of all Wales; which is certainly a Mistake, for it appears by Statutum Walliæ, 12 E. 1. that even at the Time when the Lands in that Principality were partible among the Males, the Attainder of the Ancestor for the Felony was a Bar to the Heir: Si excipiat quod antecessor, vel aliquis in descendendo commisit Feloniam per quam sibi non competit actio, &c. terminetur per recordum Justiciariorum, vel per Inquisitionem Patriæ de suspensione, &c.

In the Stat. de Prærog. Reg. c. 16. it is mentioned to be used in the County of Gloucester by Custom, That after one Year and one Day the Lands and Tenements of Felons shall revert and be restored to the next Heir to whom they ought to have descended if the Felony had not been done: But this Custom differs from that of Kent in one Respect, that the King shall have the Year, Day and Waste; but not so of Lands in Gavelkind. Stamf. de Prærog. 50. a. Robinson's Common Law of Kent 232, 233.

It is said in Chapman's Case, 2 Roll. Rep. 368. That if a Brother in Gavelkind is attaint, the Land shall escheat; though otherwise it is, if the Father be attaint; for The Father to the Bough, and the Son to the Plough; and the Reason there given is, that the Custom shall be taken strictly. But this is a mistaken Opinion. Mr. Lambard in his Peramb. 211, though he admits that some have doubted whether the Brother or Uncle shall have the Advantage of this Custom, is notwithstanding of Opinion himself, that whoever the Heir be, he shall enjoy this Privilege, under the Custom, as well as the Son, because the Words of the Custom extend to the Heir in general, and are not restrained to the Son alone. And it is a Distinction unknown to most of the Authorities both ancient and modern, the Words of which are general as to all Heirs: Feloniam antecessoris non impedit seisinam hæredis, nec successionem. Bract. supra, and 8 Ed. 2. Prescription 50. By the Custom of Kent, if a Man be hanged for Felony, the Lord shall not have the Escheat. And Bacon's Use of the Law 139. That the Land is not forfeitable nor escheatable for Felony. And 1 H. H. P. C. 360. That if the Ancestor be executed for Felony, the Land shall not escheat, but descend to the Heir.

And Rot. Claus. 8 Ric. 2. m. 2. Kant. The King writes to the Sheriff of Kent to redeliver the Gavelkind Lands of a Man executed for Felony, which he had seised. Cum secundum Consuetudinem de Gavelkind, in hoc casu nos habere non debemus annum, diem, neque Vastum, nec Capitales Domini inde Eschaetam; sed proximi hæredes sic Convictorum & suspensionum hæreditatem suam immediate consequuntur feloniam illam non obstante. And by the same Custom

- Dower. Custom the Wife's Dower of the Moiety of Gavelkind Lands was in no Case forfeitable for the Felony of the Husband, but where the Heir should lose his Inheritance. Consuet. Kanc. in Robinson 283. 8 H. 3. Prescription 60. adjudged Lamb. Peramb.  $\frac{6}{11}$ . Noy's Max. 28. Dos post feloniam (mariti) peti non potest a muliere, &c. nisi in casu speciali sicut in Kancia. Bract. lib. 4. f. 311.
- Whether the Custom of Gavelkind extends to Petit Treason. Although the Custom of Gavelkind extends not to High Treason, yet it seems it may extend to Petty Treason, for that Offence is by the Law properly comprehended under the Word Felony. Co. Lit. 391. a. The Lands escheat to the Lord of the Fee, as in other Felonies. Stat. 25 E. 3. c. 2. And Auterfoits attaint of Murder is a good Plea to an Indictment of Petty Treason for the same Death, because it has the same Judgment in Effect, and the very same Forfeiture. 3 Inst. 213.
- Piracy. Pirates, Robbers and Murderers on the Sea, attainted before Commissioners, by Virtue of the Stat. 28 H. 8. c. 15. forfeit Lands, and incur Corruption of Blood. But not if they are tried before the Lord Admiral in the Court of Admiralty according to the Civil Law. Wood, p. 655.
- Custom of Gavelkind as to Piracy. Mr. Lambard doubts whether the Custom of Gavelkind extends to Piracy, which must be understood of an Attainder before Commissioners by Virtue of 28 H. 8. c. 15. For on a Conviction of Piracy before the Admiral no Forfeiture of Lands is incurred; the Words of the Statute are, That such as shall be convicted of any such Offences, &c. shall have and suffer such Pains of Death, Losses of Lands, Goods and Chattels, as if they had been attainted and convicted for any Treasons, Felonies, Robberies, or other the said Offences done upon the Lands. Which Words are merely relative, giving only the same Forfeiture for a Felony at Sea as would be incurred by the like Offence at Land; and if Gavelkind Lands are not forfeitable in the latter Case, how can they be in the former? Robinson 232.
- To what Time the Forfeiture relates. The Forfeiture of Lands relates to the Time alledged in the Indictment, for avoiding any Estates, Charges and Incumbrances made by the Felon after the Felony committed. But for the mean Profit of the Lands, it shall relate only to the Judgment upon the Indictment. Co. Lit. 13. a. & b. 390. b.
- If a Felon is convicted by Verdict or Confession, he doth forfeit his Goods and Chattels, real and personal, presently. But Lands and Tenements are not forfeited, nor Blood corrupted, before Attainder, or before Judgment, (as before was said in general) and then it relates to the Time alledged in the Indictment for avoiding Estates, &c. Co. Lit. 391. a.
- Where Tenant in Fee-simple commits Petit Treason or Felony, and is attainted, the King shall have a Year, Day and Waste in his Lands; or rather a Year and Day in Lieu of Waste; and afterwards it cometh to the Lord by Escheat: But the Lord may compound with the King, and have the Estate presently. It must be a Tenant in Fee-simple, not Tenant in Tail, or for Life; for the King shall have the Profits only of their Lands during their Lives. A Copyhold Estate is of common Right presently forfeited to the Lord of the Manor in Case of Felony. This must be understood of Felonies punishable with Death, not of Petit Larceny. But if a Copyholder for Life is attainted of Felony, and pardoned, he in the Reversion for Life shall have the Estate. [See the Stat. 24 H. 8. c. 5. where one indicted or appealed for the Death of another, attempting to murder or rob him, shall forfeit nothing.] 2 Inst. 36, 37, 38. 3 Inst. 111. Coke's Copyb. §. 58.
- When the Lands, &c. shall be vested in the King. Where an Alien purchases, or where a Person is attainted of Felony, who is not the King's Tenant, and in Cases of Præmunire, Alienation in Mortmain, Condition broken, &c. the Inheritance or Freehold of Land is not vested in the King, till Office found by Force of a Commission under the Great Seal, for that is an Office of intitling; not under the Exchequer Seal; an Office found by Force of a Commission from the Exchequer, is only an Office of Instruction, or to instruct the King and his Officers of the Certainty of the Land, &c. by which it may be put in Charge. 5 Co. 52. 3 Cro. 173.
- Of seising Goods before Conviction. By the Statute of 1 Rich. 3. c. 3. none shall seise the Goods of any Person arrested before he is convicted or attaint of Felony; upon Pain to forfeit double the Value of the Goods so taken.
- The Goods of any Delinquent cannot be seised before they are forfeited; though they may be inventoried, and the Town may be charged therewith before Indictment. Wood, p. 659.
- Forfeiture at the King's Will upon Statute. Where a Statute says, Upon Forfeiture to be at the King's Will, of Body, Lands and Goods, &c. it is not to be extended further than Imprisonment, Lands and Goods. 4 Inst. 66.
- Whether the Custom of Gavelkind extends to Felonies by Statute. Mr. Lambard, Peramb.  $\frac{6}{11}$  says, That peradventure this Rule, The Father to the Bough, and the Son to the Plough, holds not in Felonies made by Statutes of later Times, because the Custom cannot take hold of that which then was not at all. As Felonies by Statute are now so numerous, this may be a Question of considerable Importance; but it is remarkable, that no other Book either ancient or modern making Mention of this Custom takes Notice of this Point; but all say, that the Custom extends to Felony, without offering at any Distinction.

Now Felony is the Genus of all Capital Offences under Treason, (except Piracy, which is an Offence by the Civil Law) and though the Species of this Offence are much increased within Time of Memory, yet they are created in Similitude of the old Felonies, and are to be punished in the same Manner, and no other. And when a Statute makes a new Felony, or says, the Offender shall suffer as in Cases of Felony, it entirely refers itself for the Punishment of the Common Law; and the Word Felony being Vocabulum Artis, we must have recourse to the Common Law for an Explanation of the Nature of it; which tells us, That it is an Offence punishable with Death, with Forfeiture of Goods, with Corruption of Blood; as a Consequence whereof the Land will escheat to the Lord (pro defectu hæredis, and not as Salk. 85. an immediate Forfeiture) in all Places except in Kent, where the Custom is allowed to have Power to exempt the Gavelkind Lands from the general Rule; and the inheritable Blood remains as to Tenements of this Nature, notwithstanding the Attainder of the Ancestor. And it is material, that the Escheat of the Lands is no Part of the Judgment in Felony, but merely a Consequence implied by the Law on suffering for any Offence of this Kind to which the Custom of Kent is a necessary Exception.

If a Court has by Custom Power of holding Pleas, and an old Action is given by Statute in a new Case, it is within the Jurisdiction. 2 Saund. 254. Green and Cole. And the like Law on a Grant of Conusance of Pleas. Hob. 48. And it seems, that the old Punishment of Felony being applied to a new Offence, our Custom may with a Parity of Reason extend to it. Robinson's Common Law of Kent, p. 230, 231, 232.

A Felo de se forfeits all his Goods and Chattels real and personal which he has in his own Right, and all such Chattels real which he has jointly with his Wife, or in her Right; but not until it is lawfully found by the Oath of twelve Men, before the Coroner Super visum corporis, that he is Felo de se. [Lev. 8. contra.] He forfeits also Bonds, or Things in Action, belonging solely to himself, and all intire Chattels in Possession, except in the Case of Merchants, where a Moiety only of such joint Chattels as may be severed is forfeited. He does not forfeit any Lands of Inheritance, for he was not attainted in his Life-time; nor the Goods and Chattels which he possessed as Executor or Administrator, nor a Guardianship in Socage or by Nature, because here he hath nothing to his own Use. 3 Inst. 55. *Co. (E) In Manslaughter.

THE Offender forfeits his Goods and Chattels on Conviction. S. P. C. 185. Co. Lit. 391. a. 2 Inst. 149.

(F) In Chancemedley and Se defendendo.

THE Offender forfeits all his Goods and Chattels, Debts and Duties whatsoever, upon Conviction, but no Freehold or Inheritance. Yet the Offenders have their Pardon of Course. Co. Lit. 391. a. 3 Inst. 220.

(G) Upon Outlawry in Treason, Felony, &c.

THE Offender upon Outlawry in Treason or Felony loses and forfeits as much as if he had appeared, and Judgment had been given against him, as long as the Outlawry is in Force.

Those that tarry till the Exigent in Treason, Felony or Petit Larceny, forfeit their Goods and Chattels, though they render themselves to Justice, and are acquitted, for it was a Flight in Law. 3 Inst. 52, 212, 232. Finch 352. 5 Co. 110, 111. H. P. C. 271.

And upon Attainder of Felony by Outlawry on an Appeal, he shall forfeit only such Lands as he had at the Time of the Outlawry pronounced. For if, hanging the Process, the Defendant conveys away his Land, and afterwards is outlawed, the Conveyance is good, and shall defeat the Lord of his Escheat. But if one is indicted of Felony, and pending the Process against him he conveys away his Land, and after is outlawed, notwithstanding the Conveyance the Lord shall have his Escheat. For in an Appeal the Writ (whereon the Forfeiture is grounded) containeth no Time when the Felony was committed, as an Indictment does; therefore the Escheat in an Appeal can relate only to the Outlawry pronounced, whereas it relates to the certain Time of the Fact set forth in the Indictment. But though in an Indictment the Forfeiture shall relate to the Time alledged in the Indictment for avoding Estates or Incumbrances made by the Felon after the Felony committed, the mesne Profits of the Land shall relate only to the Judgment, as well in Case of Outlawry as in other Cases. Co. Lit. 13. a. & b. 390. b. 3 Inst. 232.

By Outlawry in Actions all the Offender's Goods and Chattels are forfeited to the King, whether real, as a Term for Years; or personal, as Goods not fixt to the Freehold, Debts due by Specialty, but not by a simple Contract, Profit of the Lands, as Rents, Corn, (but not of the Land itself) wherein the Offender hath Freehold or Inheritance. But before the Time that the Outlawry appears of Record, the Defendant does not forfeit his Goods and Chattels, nor the Profits of his Lands, if a Feoffment is made before Seizure. Finch 351. Lev. 33. Noy's Max. 3.

Gavelkind Lands.

The Custom of Gavelkind, The Father to the Bough, and the Son to the Plough, holds only where the Defendant submits to the Judgment of the Law, and not where he withdraws himself from the Hands of Justice, and will not abide a legal Trial; for if Tenant in Gavelkind, being indicted for Felony, absent himself, and is outlawed after Proclamation made for him in the County, (or if formerly he had taken Sanctuary and had abjured the Realm) his Heir shall reap no Benefit by the Custom, but the Lands shall escheat to the Lord, and the King shall have Year, Day and Waste in them, if holden of another, in like Manner as the Common Law directs, as to Lands which are not subject to the Custom of Gavelkind. (Robinson's Common Law of Kent, p. 228. cites many Authorities.) And so it was adjudged in Canc. 28 Eliz. between Brocas and Savage, cited in the Margin of the last Edition of Dyer 310. b.

Canc. de Tenementis quæ tenentur in Gavelkind, si ille qui Feloniam fecerit judicium sustinuerit." Brañ. lib. 4. 276. b.

(H) In Petty Larceny.

THE Offender upon Conviction forfeits Goods and Chattels, but no Freehold or Inheritance. [See Forfeiture upon Outlawry, &c. ante.] Co. Lit. 391. a. 3 Inst. 218, 233.

(I) Upon Flight.

IF Flight is found by Indictment Super visum corporis before the Coroner in Case of Death, or if the Jury find Flight in Treason, Felony or Petty Larceny upon Acquittal, it is a Forfeiture of the Goods and Chattels which one had at the Time of the Indictment or Acquittal. 3 Inst. 218, 233. H. P. C. 271. 5 Co. 109.

(K) Upon Appeal of Death.

THE Defendant forfeits as in Felony, and the Lord shall have his Land by Escheat. But the Forfeiture of the Land on Appeal relates to the Judgment only, whereas the Forfeiture on an Indictment of Felony shall relate to the Day on which it was committed. [See of Forfeiture in Felony, and upon Outlawry on Appeal, before.] Co. Lit. 13. a. 390. b.

(L) Drawing a Weapon upon a Judge, or for striking in Westminster-hall, &c. sitting the Courts.

THE Offender forfeits Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels. Some say the Profits of the Lands only during Life, others say the Lands shall be forfeited during Life. H. P. C. 131. 2 Roll. Abr. 76, 77.

But for striking or drawing Blood in the King's Palace, where his Royal Person resides, there is no Forfeiture of Lands or Goods. 3 Inst. 140, 141, 218.

(M) In Præmunire.

THE Offender forfeits his Lands and Tenements in Fee-simple, and his Goods and Chattels. But Estates in Tail or for Life are forfeited only during Life. Quære, Whether an Attainder in a Præmunire shall have Relation to the Offence for the Forfeiture of Lands, or only to the Time of the Judgment. It extendeth not to Forfeiture of Fairs, Markets, Rent-Charges, Warrens, Annuities, or other Hereditament that is not within the Word Land. *Co. (N) For

(N) For challenging to Fight for Money won at Play, &c.

BY Stat. 9 Ann. c. 14. §. 8. The Offender forfeits his personal Estate:

(O) By Papists.

BY Stat. 1 Geo. 1. c. 55. Papists not taking the Oaths, &c. or in Default thereof not registering their Names and Estates, forfeit the Fee-simple and Inheritance of all such Lands, &c. not registred, or fraudulently registred, wherein they or any in Trust for them were seised; and the full Value of the Inheritance of all such Lands, &c.

(P) By Artificers exercising or teaching their Trades in foreign Parts.

BY Stat. 5 Geo. 1. c. 27. If any Artificer in Wool, Iron, Steel, Brasses, or any other Metal, Clock-maker, Watch-maker, &c. shall exercise or teach his Trade in a foreign Country, and shall not return into this Realm within six Months after Warning by the Ambassador, Envoy, &c. or by one of the Secretaries of State, and from thenceforth continually inhabit within this Realm, he shall be incapable of taking any Legacy, or of being Executor or Administrator, or of taking any Lands, &c. and shall forfeit all his Lands, Goods, &c. to his Majesty's Use, and shall be deemed Alien, &c.

C H A P. III.

The different Ways of Acquiring or Conveying Personal Estates in particular.

S E C T. I.

Of Acquiring or Conveying Personal Estates by Act in Law, by Act of the Party, or by a mixed Act.

Personal Things, either in Action or Possession, may be acquired or transferred three Ways: By Act in Law, by Act of the Party, or by a mixed Act, consisting of both. Hale's Anal. §. 26.

(A) The Acquisition of Property by Act in Law.

THIS Acquisition by Act in Law may be many Ways, viz. 1. By Succession, whereby Properties are transferred to the Successors of such a Corporation by Law or Custom, which has a Power to receive Personal Things in a Politick Capacity; as 1. A sole Corporation, by Custom. 2. An Aggregate Corporation, by Common Law.

2. By Devolution, viz. To the Executor. 2. To the Ordinary. 3. To the Administrator. 4. To the Husband by the Intermarriage, i. e. As to Personal Things in Possession, but not as to Personal Things in Action.

3. By Prerogative, whereby they are given to the King, or to such as have the King's Title by Grant or Prescription, as Waif, Stray, Wreck, Treasure-Trove.

4. By Custom, as in the Case of Heriot-Custom and Heriot-Service, Mortuaries, Heir-Looms, foreign Attachment, Assignment of Bills of Exchange.

5. By Judgment, and Execution thereupon, which in the Case of the King extends as well to Things in Action that have a Certainty in them (as Debts) as to Things in Possession; and this by (1) Fieri Facias, or (2) Elegit.

6. By Sale in Market-overt. Hale's Anal. §. 27.

(B)

(B) The Acquisition of Property by Act of the Party.

A Acquisition of Property by Act of the Party may be three Ways, viz. 1. By Grant, 2. By Contract, or 3. By Assignment.

And herein is considerable, 1. That in the King's Case it extends as well to Things in Action as in Possession; for Debts may be assigned to him, or by him. 2. In the Case of other Persons, only Things in Possession are assignable. Hale's Anal. §. 28.

(C) The Acquisition of Property by a mixed Act, partly by Act of Law, and partly by Act of the Party.

THUS Things in Action as well as in Possession are transferrable two Ways:

1. By Act of the Party with Custom co-operating. Thus Bills of Exchange are assignable.

2. By Operation of the Law, concurring with the Act or Default of the Party; as Forfeitures of several Kinds, viz. 1. By Outlawry in Personal Actions. 2. By being put to the Exigend in the Case of Felony. 3. By Attainder of Treason or Felony. 4. By Motion to the Death of any Person, as Deodand. Hale's Anal. §. 28.

These (according to Lord C. J. Hale) are the various Ways whereby Things Personal either in Possession or Action may be acquired or transferred, with their Divisions and Subdivisions, &c. which are put here, being very necessary for the understanding this Subject: But to dispose the Matter more conveniently I have chosen the following Heads and Divisions, &c. which will have Reference to this Section, as to which Acquest, &c. is an Act in Law, an Act of the Party, or a mixed Act.

S E C T. II.

Of Acquiring or Conveying Personal Estates by Gift.

Gift, what.

A Gift is a Transferring the Property in a Thing from one to another without a valuable Consideration. For to transfer any Thing upon a valuable Consideration, is a Contract or Sale.

He who gives any Thing is called the Donor; and he to whom it is given is called the Donee.

Gift, how made.

By Gift, the Property of Goods may be passed by Word * or Writing.

By the Common Law all Chattels real or personal may be granted or given without Deed, except in some special Cases, and a free Gift is good without a Consideration, Perk. 57. Hob. 230. if not to defraud Creditors, vide Stat. 13 El. c. 5. post.

But by the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. No Leases, Estates or Interests, either of Freehold, or Terms of Years, or any uncertain Interest, not being Copyhold or Customary Interest, of, in, to or out of any Messuages, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, shall at any Time be assigned, granted or surrendered, unless it be by Deed or Note in Writing, signed by the Party so assigning, granting or surrendering the same, or their Agents thereunto lawfully authorized by Writing, or by Act and Operation of Law.

If a Man makes a general Gift of all his Goods, without Exception of Apparel or other Things of Necessity, as Bedding, &c. though it is by Deed, this may reasonably be suspected to be fraudulent to deceive Creditors, &c. and though there may be a true Debt owing, &c. a Gift of all one's Goods in Satisfaction of the Debt, &c. is void against other Creditors, &c. though good against the Giver, his Executors or Administrators, or any Man to whom afterwards he shall sell or convey them; for though it may be a Gift upon valuable Consideration, yet it may not be done bona fide, as the Statute of the 13 Eliz. c. 5. requires. (Bac. L. Tracts 146. Shaw's Bac. 260, 261. 3 Co. 80, &c.)

Stat. 13 El. c. 5.

By which Statute, for avoiding and abolishing of feigned, covinous and fraudulent Feoffments, Gifts, Grants, Alienations, Conveyances, Bonds, Suits, Judgments and Executions, as well of Goods and Chattels, &c. contrived to delay, hinder or defraud Creditors and others of their just and lawful Actions, Suits, Debts, Accounts, Damages, Penalties, Forfeitures, Heriots, Mortuaries and Reliefs, to the Hindrance of the due Course and Execution of Law and Justice, &c. it is enacted, That every Feoffment, Gift, &c. of Lands, &c. Goods and Chattels, or of any Lease, Rent, Common, or other Profit or Charge out of the same, by Writing or otherwise, which shall be made to or for any Intent or Purpose before declared and expressed, shall be deemed and taken (only as against that Person or Persons, his or their Heirs, Successors, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, and every of them, whose Actions, Suits, Debts, &c. by such fraudulent Devises and Practices as aforesaid, are, shall or might be in any wise disturbed, hindered, delayed or defrauded) to be clearly and utterly void, frustrate, and of none Effect.

And that the Parties to such feigned, covinous or fraudulent Feoffment, Gift, &c. or being privy and knowing of the same, which shall wittingly and willingly put in ure, avow, maintain, justify or defend the same, as true, simple and done, had or made bona fide, upon good Consideration; or shall alien or assign any the Lands, &c. Goods, Leases or other Things before-mentioned, to him or them conveyed as aforesaid, or any Part thereof, shall incur the Penalty and Forfeiture of one Year's Value of the said Lands, &c. Leases, Rents, Commons, or other Profits, of or out of the same, and the whole Value of the said Goods and Chattels, and also so much Money as are or shall be contained in any such covenous and feigned Bond; one Moiety to the King, and the other to the Party aggrieved, to be recovered by Action, &c. and also being thereof lawfully convicted, shall suffer Imprisonment for one half Year without Bail or Mainprize. Provided that this Act shall not extend to common Recoveries;

Nor to make void any Estate or Conveyance by Reason whereof any Person shall use any Voucher in a Writ of Formedon;

Nor to any Estate or Interest in Lands, &c. Leases, Rents, Commons, Profits, Goods or Chattels, had, made, conveyed or assured, which Estate or Interest is or shall be upon good Consideration, and bona fide lawfully conveyed or assured to any Person or Persons, or Bodies Politick or Corporate, not having, at the Time of such Conveyance or Assurance to them made, any Manner of Notice or Knowledge of such Covin, Fraud or Collusion as aforesaid.

Upon which Statute an Information was brought against Twyne, in Pas. 24 El. (3 Co. 80.) in the Star-Chamber, for making and publishing a fraudulent Gift of Goods. The Case was thus: Pierce was indebted to Twyne in 400*l.* and was also indebted to C. in 200*l.* C. brought an Action of Debt against Pierce, and pending the Writ, Pierce being possessed of Goods and Chattels of the Value of 300*l.* in secret made a general Deed of Gift of all his Goods and Chattels real and personal whatsoever to Twyne, in Satisfaction of his Debt; and notwithstanding that, Pierce continued in Possession of the said Goods, and some of them he sold; and he shored the Sheep, and marked them with his own Mark: And afterwards C. had Judgment against Pierce, and had a Fieri Facias directed to the Sheriff, who came to execute it, but divers Persons, by Command of Twyne, with Force resisted the Sheriff, claiming them to be Twyne's Goods by Force of the said Gift; and openly declared by the Commandment of Twyne, that it was a good Gift, and made on a good and lawful Consideration; and whether this Gift on the whole Matter was fraudulent and of no Effect by the said Statute, or not, was the Question. And it was resolved to be a fraudulent Gift within the said Statute, for it had the Signs and Marks of Fraud:

1. Because the Gift is general, without Exception of his Apparel, or any Thing of Necessity; for it is commonly said, Quod dolosus versatur in generalibus.

2. The Donor continued in Possession, and used them as his own; and by Reason thereof he traded with others, and defrauded and deceived them.

3. It was made in secret, Et dona claud' sunt semper suspiciosa.

4. It was made pending the Writ.

5. Here was a Trust between the Parties, for the Donor possessed all, and used them as his proper Goods, and Fraud is always apparelled and clad with a Trust, and a Trust is the Cover of Fraud.

6. The Deed says, That the Gift was made honestly, truly and bona fide; Et clausula in consuet' semper inducunt suspicionem.

And it was also resolved, That notwithstanding here was a true Debt due to Twyne, and good Consideration of the Gift, it was not within the Proviso of the said Statute, whereby it is provided, that the Act shall not extend to Estates, &c. Goods or Chattels made on a good Consideration and bona fide; for though it is on a true and good Consideration, yet it is not bona fide, for no Gift shall be deemed to be bona fide within the said Proviso which is accompanied with any Trust: As if a Man be indebted to five several Persons in the several Sums of 20*l.* and has Goods of the Value of 20*l.* and makes a Gift of all his Goods to one of them in Satisfaction of his Debts; for by giving all his Goods there seems to be a secret Trust and Confidence that the Donee shall deal favourably with the Donor in Respect of his Poverty, either to permit him, or some other for him, or for his Benefit or Use, to have Possession of them, and is contented that he shall pay him his Debt when he is able, this shall not be called bona fide within the said Proviso; and therefore when any Gift shall be made in Satisfaction of a Debt, let it be made, 1. In a publick Manner before Neighbours, and not in private, for Secrecy is a Mark of Fraud. 2. Let the Goods and Chattels be appraised by good People to the very Value, and the Gift made in particular in Satisfaction of the Debt. 3. Presently after the Gift let the Donee take Possession of them, for the Continuance of the Possession in the Donor is a Sign of a Trust, but the Words of the Proviso, on a good Consideration, and bona fide, do not extend to every Gift made bona fide; for there are two Manners of Gifts on a good Consideration, viz. Consideration of Nature or Blood, and a valuable Consideration. As to the first in the Case put before, if he who is indebted to five several Persons in 20*l.* each, in Consideration of natural Affection gives all his Goods to his Son or Cousin, in that Case, forasmuch as others should lose their Debts, &c. which are Things of Value, the Intent of the Act was, that the Consideration in such Case should be valuable; for Equity requires, that such Gift which defeats others, should be made on as high and good Consideration as the Things which are thereby defeated are; and it is to be presumed that the Father, if he had not been indebted to others, would not have dispossessed himself of all his Goods, and subject himself to his Cradle; and therefore it shall be intended that it was made to defeat his Creditors: And if Consideration of Nature or Blood should be a good Consideration within the said Proviso, the Statute would serve for little or nothing, and no Creditor would be sure of his Debt.

And every Gift made bona fide, is either on a Trust between the Parties, or without any Trust.

Every Gift on a Trust is out of the said Proviso; for that which is betwixt the Donor and Donee, called a Trust per nomen speciosum, is in Truth, as to all the Creditors, a Fraud, for they are thereby defeated and defrauded of their true and due Debts.

And every Trust is either expressed or implied; an express Trust is, when in the Gift, or upon the Gift the Trust by Word or Writing is expressed: A Trust implied is, when a Man makes a Gift without any Consideration, or on a Consideration of Nature or Blood only.

And when a Man being greatly indebted to sundry Persons makes a Gift to his Son, or any of his Blood, without Consideration, but only of Nature, the Law intends a Trust between them, viz. That the Donee would, in Consideration of such Gift being voluntarily and freely made to him, and also in Consideration of Nature, relieve his Father or Cousin, and not see him want who had made such Gift to him.

But a valuable Consideration is a good Consideration within this Proviso; and a Gift made bona fide, is a Gift made without any Trust either expressed or implied; by which it appears, that a Gift made on a good Consideration, if it be not also bona fide, is not within the Proviso; nor a Gift made bona fide, if it be not on a good Consideration; but it ought to be on a good Consideration, and bona fide.

If a Deed of Gift of Goods and Chattels be delivered to the Donee, the Goods and Chattels are in the Donee presently, before Notice or Agreement (i. e. though he be absent and knows nothing of it, nor has any wife agreed to it); but the Donee may make Refusal in pais, and by that the Property and Interest will be devested, and such Disagreement need not to be in a Court of Record. 3 Co. 26, 27.

Such Gift is by Act of the Party, and the Property vests in the Donee till he disagrees. A Gift may also be by Act of Law, as when a Woman is married, all her Goods and Chattels are given to her Husband by the Marriage; or when one is made Executor, the Law gives all the Goods and Chattels of the Testator to the Executor; of which see more in the following Sections.

See after concerning Bargains and Sales of Goods and Chattels.

S E C T. III.

Of acquiring or conveying Personal Estates by Sale.

Sale, what.

A Sale is the Transferring the Property of a Thing from one to another upon a valuable Consideration.

He who sells the Thing is called the Vendor or Bargainor; and he to whom it is sold is called the Vendee or Bargainee.

A Sale must be upon a valuable Consideration, but a Gift may be without. Noy's Max. 87.

By

By Sale, any Man may convey his own Goods to another; and although he may fear Execution for Debts, yet he may sell them out-right for Money, by the Common Law, at any Time before the Execution served. Bac. L. Tracts 156. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 261. But now by Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 16. No Writ of Fieri Facias, or other Writ of Execution, shall bind the Property of the Goods against whom such Writ of Execution is sued forth, but from the Time that such Writ shall be delivered to the Sheriff, &c. to be executed. Who may sell

But if there be any Reservation of Trust between the Parties, that on paying the Money the Vendor shall have the Goods again, the Sale is not good, for such a Trust proves a good Sale or Fraud to prevent the Creditors from taking the Goods in Execution. Bac. L. Tracts 156, What is a good Sale or not.
157. Shaw's Bac. Vol. 2. p. 261.

A Debtor to the King by Bond, sold a Lease for Years for a valuable Consideration; the Sale binds the King, because it was but a Chattel, for the King's Debtor shall not be in a worse Condition than a Felon or Traitor, who may sell his Goods and Chattels after the Felony or Treason committed, and before Conviction, for his Maintenance. 8 Rep. 171. 3 Rep. 82.

If a Man agrees for Wares, he must not carry them away before he has paid for them, unless a Day of Payment is allowed him.

If the Bargain is, that you shall give me five Pounds for my Horse, and you give me a Penny in Earnest, which I accept, this is a perfect Sale.

If I say I will sell my Horse for five Pounds, and you say you will give me five Pounds, and presently go to tell out the Money to pay for him, I cannot sell my Horse to another; but if you do not pay me presently, it is no Contract. Noy's Max. 87. Hob. 41.

If I sell my Horse for Money, I may keep him till I am paid.

And if a Horse dies in my Stable after I have sold him, and before I have delivered him to the Buyer, I may notwithstanding have an Action for my Money, because the Property was in the Buyer. Noy's Max. 88.

But by Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 17. No Contract for the Sale of any Goods, Wares and Merchandize, for the Price of ten Pounds or upwards shall be good except the Buyer actually receives Part of the Goods sold, or gives something in Earnest to bind the Bargain, or in Part of Payment, or some Note or Memorandum thereof in Writing be made and signed by the Parties to be charged with the Contract, or by their Agents thereunto lawfully authorized.

And by said Statute, §. 4. No Action shall be brought upon any Agreement that is not to be performed within the Space of a Year from the making of the said Agreement, unless the Agreement upon which such Action shall be brought, or some Memorandum or Note thereof shall be put in Writing, and signed by the Party to be charged therewith, or some other Person thereunto by him lawfully authorized.

Observe from both the said Sections, that if any Agreement is for Goods, &c. under the Price of ten Pounds, and they are not delivered within the Year, it is void unless put in Writing, though Earnest be given. But as to Agreements that are not to be performed within a Year, if no Day is set, or the Time is uncertain, (as to pay a Sum at the Day of Death, &c.) they are good notwithstanding the Statute, for it doth not appear to the contrary but that the Payment may be within the Year.

The Common Law held it for a Point of great Policy, and necessary for the Commonwealth, that Fairs and Markets-overt should be replenished, and well furnished with all Manner of Commodities vendible in Fairs or Markets, for the necessary Sustentation and Use of the People. And to that End the Common Law ordained (to incourage Men thereto) that all Sales and Contracts of any Thing vendible in Fairs and Markets-overt, should not only be good between the Parties, but should bind those who had Right thereto. How a Sale in a Market-overt of Goods, &c. though stolen, &c. shall bar the Owner. 2 Inst. 713.

Such Sale is good though the Thing vendible be stolen, taken in jest, or borrowed of the right Owner, or it be carried to the Market by a Felon or Trespasser. Bac. L. Tracts 157. Shaw's Bac. 261. But as to Goods stolen in Wales and sold in a Fair or Market there, vide Stat. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 26. post.

But the foregoing Rule admits of many Exceptions and Observations.

1. It shall not bind the King for any of his Goods sold in Market-overt by any Person; but the Sale by a Stranger in Market-overt binds Infants; Feme Coverts who have Right either in their own Right, or as Executors or Administrators; also Ideots, Non compos mentis, Men beyond Sea, and in Prison, who have Right. 2 Inst. 713.

2. The Sale is not good though the Fair or Market be overt, unless the Sale be made in a Place that is overt and open, and not in a Back-room, Warehouse, &c. 2 Inst. 713. As if a Sale

Who are excepted or not.

Sale of Plate be in a Shop of a Goldsmith, either behind a Hanging, or behind a Cup-board upon which his Plate stands, so that one who stands or passes by the Shop cannot see it, it will not change the Property. Nor if the Sale be not in the Shop, but in the Warehouse or other Place of the House, for that is not in Market-overt, and no one would search there for his Goods. 5 Co. 83. b.

3. Although it be in an open Place, yet overt in this Case implies apt and sufficient, 2 Inst. 713. i. e. it must be a Sale in a Market or Fair where Things of that Nature are usually bought or sold in, otherwise the Sale will not alter the Property.

As for Example, If a Man steals a Horse and sells him in Smithfield, the true Owner is barred by this Sale; but if he sells the Horse in Cheapside, Newgate or Westminster Market, the true Owner is not barred by this Sale, because these Markets are usually for Flesh, Fish, &c. and not for Horses. Bac. L. Traets 157.

Or if Plate be stolen and sold openly in a Scrivener's Shop on the Market-Day, this Sale does not change the Property, but the Party may have Restitution; for a Scrivener's Shop is not a Market-overt for Plate, because no Person would search there for such a Thing, Et sic de similibus, &c. But if the Sale had been openly in a Goldsmith's Shop in London, (where every Day except Sunday is a Market-Day) so that any Person who stood or passed by the Shop might see it, in that Case it would change the Property. 5 Co. 83. b.

4. It must be a Sale, and not a free Gift without any valuable Consideration: For Fairs and Markets were not instituted for Gifts, but for Sales. 2 Inst. 713.

5. If the Buyer knows whose Goods they were, and that the Seller thereof has at most but a wrongful Possession, this shall not bind him who has Right. 2 Inst. 713.

6. If they be sold by Covin between two on Purpose to bar him that has Right, such Sale does not bar him. 2 Inst. 713.

7. If a Sale be made of Goods by a Stranger in a Market-overt, whereby the Right of A. is bond, yet if the Seller acquires the Goods again, A. may take them again, because he was the Wrong-doer, and he shall not take Advantage of his own Wrong. 2 Inst. 713.

8. There must be a Sale and Contract; and therefore a Sale to a Man of his own Goods in Market-overt binds not; and likewise a Sale in Market-overt by an Infant of such Tendernefs of Age as it may appear to the Buyer that he is within Age, or by a Feme Covert, if the Buyer knows her to be a Feme Covert, (unless for such Things as she usually trades for, or by the Consent of her Husband) does not bind. Et sic de similibus. 2 Inst. 713.

9. The Contract must be originally and wholly made in the Market-overt, and not to have the Inception out of the Market, and the Consummation in the Market. 2 Inst. 713, 714.

10. By the Common Law, a Sale in Market-overt altered the Property though no Toll was paid either in Respect of the Freedom of the Fair or Market, wherein no Toll at all was to be paid, or for that many were discharged of Payment of Toll; as the King, and some of his Subjects by Charter, and some by Tenure, as Ancient Demesne, &c. where Toll of others was to be taken. 2 Inst. 74. But vide the Statutes 2 & 3 Ph. & M. c. 7. & 31 El. c. 12. post.

11. The Sale must not be in the Night, but between the Rising and Setting of the Sun; for he who has a Fair or Market either by Grant or Prescription, has Power to hold it per unum diem, seu duos, vel tres dies, &c. where (dies) is taken for dies solaris; for if it should be taken dies naturalis, then might the Sale be made at Midnight. And yet a Sale made in the Night is good between the Parties, but not to bind a Stranger that has Right. 2 Inst. 714.

12. If a Person who is robbed of Goods pursues his Appeal freshly, and convicts the Felon, though the King's Officer who seized them lawfully, or any other Person sells them in Market-overt, the King shall make Restitution of his Goods notwithstanding the Sale in Market-overt; because by the fresh and diligent Suit and Pursuit of Record, the Goods were so protected, and by the King's Seizure, that the Property of the same being tanquam in Custodia Legis, cannot be altered by Sale in Market-overt. 2 Inst. 714. Vide Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 11. as to Restitution, and 3 Inst. Tit. Restitution.

The Days and Statutes relating to Sales in Fairs and Markets.

In London every Day except Sunday is a Market-Day, and every Shop is a Market-overt for such Things only which by the Trade of the Owner are put there to Sale.

But by several Statutes Properties in Horses, Goods, &c. are particularly preserved in the Owner, notwithstanding a Sale in a Market-overt.

By Stat. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 26. If any Goods or Chattels be stolen by any Person or Persons, and sold in any Fair or Market in Wales, no such Sale shall change the Property thereof from the Owner of the same, but that he may seize, take and have the same again upon Proof thereof made.

And by the Statute of 2 & 3 Ph. & M. c. 7. after reciting, 'That stolen Horses, Mares and Geldings, by Thieves and Confederates were for the most part sold, exchanged, given or

‘ or put away in Houses, Stables, Backsides, and other secret and privy Places of Markets and Fairs,’ (hereby the common People were deceived; but in Law this did not change the Property, as before mentioned in the third Exception and Observation) ‘ and the Toll also privily paid for the same, whereby the true Owners thereof were not able to try the Falshood and Covin betwixt the Buyer and Seller of such Horfe, Mare or Gelding, was by the Common Law of this Realm without Remedy;’

It is enacted, ‘ That the Owner, Governor, Ruler, Farmer, Steward, Bailiff or Chief <sup>Place for a</sup> Keeper of every Fair and Market-overt within this Realm, and other the Queen’s Do- <sup>Horfe-fair or</sup> minions, shall before the Feast of Easter next, and so yearly, appoint and limit out a cer- <sup>Market.</sup> tain and special open Place within the Town, Place, Field or Circuit where Horses, Mares, Geldings and Colts have been, and shall be used to be sold in any Fair or Market-overt, in which said certain and open Place as is aforesaid, there shall be by the said Ruler or Toll-taker Keeper of the said Fair or Market, put in and appointed one sufficient Person or more to and Keeper of take Toll, and keep the same Place from Ten of the Clock before Noon until Sun-set of <sup>the Fair or</sup> every Day of the aforesaid Fair or Market; upon Pain to lose and forfeit for every Default <sup>Market.</sup> forty Shillings.’

‘ And that every Toll-gatherer, his Deputy or Deputies, shall, during the Time of every Taking Tolls. the said Fairs and Markets, take their due and lawful Tolls for every such Horfe, Mare, Gelding or Colt, at the said open Place to be appointed as is aforesaid, and betwixt the Hours of Ten of the Clock in the Morning and Sun-set of the same Day if it be tendered, and not at any other Time or Place, and shall have presently before him or them at the Toll-taker to taking of the same Toll the Parties to the Bargain, Exchange, Gift, Contract or putting have before away of every such Horfe, Mare, Gelding or Colt, and also the same Horfe, Mare, him the Parties, Gelding or Colt so sold, exchanged or put away; and shall then write, or cause to be and the Horfe, written in a Book to be kept for that Purpose, the Names, Surnames and Dwelling-places &c. of all the said Parties, and the Colour, with one special Mark at least of every such Mare, Gelding or Colt; on Pain to forfeit at and for every Default contrary to the Tenor hereof and make an Entry in a Book, forty Shillings.’

‘ And the said Toll-gatherer, or Keeper of the said Book, shall within one Day next after every such Fair or Market, bring and deliver his said Book to the Owner, Governor, <sup>and deliver</sup> Ruler, Steward, Bailiff or Chief Keeper of the said Fair or Market, who shall then cause <sup>the Book to</sup> a Note to be made of the true Number of all Horses, Mares, Geldings and Colts sold at <sup>the Owner of</sup> the said Market or Fair, and shall there subscribe his Name, or set his Mark thereunto; <sup>the Fair or</sup> upon Pain to him that shall make Default therein, to lose and forfeit for every Default <sup>Market.</sup> forty Shillings, and also to answer the Party grieved by Reason of the same his Negligence in every Behalf.’

‘ And that the Sale, Gift, Exchange or putting away in any Fair or Market-overt of any <sup>Six Points to</sup> Horfe, Mare, Gelding or Colt, that is or shall be thievishly stolen, or feloniously taken <sup>save the Pro-</sup> away from any Person or Persons, shall not alter, take away nor exchange the Property <sup>erty of the</sup> of any Person or Persons to or from any such Horfe, Mare, Gelding or Colt, unless the <sup>right Owner,</sup> same Horfe, Mare, Gelding or Colt shall be in the Time of the said Fair or Market &c. wherein the same shall be so sold, given, exchanged or put away, openly (1) ridden, 1. Fee for entering the Contract.	‘ Provided, that in every such Fair and Market where any Toll is, nor shall be due, nor leviable by Reason of the Freedom, Liberty or Privilege of the said Fair or Market, the Keeper or Keepers of the Book touching the Execution of this present Act, shall take nor exact but one Penny upon and for every Contract, for his Labour in Writing the Entry concerning the Premises, in Manner and Form as is before declared.’ But neither the Rules of the Common Law nor the above Statute had so good Effect as was expected; therefore,
Causes of Horse stealing.	By an additional Statute of 31 El. c. 12. after reciting, ‘ That through the Counties of this Realm Horse-stealing was grown so common, as neither in Pasture or Closes, nor hardly in Stables, the same were in Safety from Stealing, which ensued by the ready Buying of the same by Horse-Couriers and others in some open Fairs or Markets far distant from the Owner, and with such Speed as the Owner could not by Pursuit possibly help the same, &amp;c. it is enacted, That no Person shall in any Fair or Market sell, (a) give, exchange or put away any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, unless (1) the Toll-taker there, (or where no Toll is paid) the Book-keeper, Bailiff or Chief Officer of the same Fair or Market, shall and will take upon him perfect Knowledge of the Person that so shall sell, or offer to sell, give or exchange any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, and of his true Christian Name, Surname and Place of Dwelling and Residence, and (2) shall enter all the same his Knowledge into a Book there kept for Sale of Horses, (3) or else that he so selling or offering to sell, give or exchange, or put away any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, shall bring unto the Toll-taker, or other Officer aforesaid of the same Fair or Market, one sufficient or credible Person that can, shall or will testify and declare unto and before such Toll-taker, Book-keeper or other Officer, that he knows the Party that so sells, gives, exchanges or puts away such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, and his true Name, Surname, Mystery and Dwelling-place, and (4) there enter or cause to be entered in the Book of the said Toll-taker, or Officer, as well the true Christian and Surname, Mystery, and Place of Dwelling and Residence of him that so selleth, giveth, exchangeth or putteth away such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, as of him that so shall testify or avouch his Knowledge of the same Person; and (5) shall also cause to be entered the very true Price or Value that he shall have for the same Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly so sold.’
This is an Act of Addition consisting of six Points, for the Saving of the Property in the right Owner.
1. Knowledge of the Seller.
2. Entry of Name, &c.
3. Voucher.
4. Entry of Name, &c.
And 5. Value.
Voucher.	‘ And that no Person shall take upon him to vouch, testify or declare, that he knoweth the Party that so shall offer to sell, give, exchange or put away such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, unless he do indeed truly know the same Party, and shall truly declare to the Toll-taker, or other Officer aforesaid, as well the Christian Name, Surname, Mystery and Place of Dwelling and Residency of himself, as of him of and for whom he maketh such Testimony and Avouchment.’
No Entry to be made, but upon the Disjunctive in the first Clause.	‘ And that no Toll-gatherer, or other Person keeping any Book of Entry of Sales of Horses in Fairs or Markets, shall take or receive any Toll, or make Entry of any Sale, Gift, Exchange, or putting away of any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, unless he knows the Party that so sells, gives, exchanges or puts away any such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, and his true Christian Name, Surname, Mystery and Place of his Dwelling or Residency, or the Party that shall and will testify and avouch his Knowledge of the same Person so selling, giving, exchanging or putting away such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, and his true Christian Name, Surname, Mystery and Place of Dwelling or Residency, and shall make a perfect Entry into the said Book of such his

(a) A Gift, without valuable Consideration in Market-overt, alters no Property. This Statute restrains the very Sale, and makes it void, if not pursued; and this Part is in the Disjunctive, unless either the Toll taker or Book keeper shall and will take upon him perfect Knowledge, &c. or else that he so selling, or offering to sell, &c. shall bring, &c. one sufficient and credible Person, &c. that shall avouch, &c. who vulgarly is called a Voucher: And this Part of the Act extends to all Sales of Horses in Market-overt, whether the Horse, &c. be stolen or not stolen. 2 Inst. 717.

Knowledge of the Person, and of the Name, Surname, Mystery and Place of the Dwelling or Residency of the same Person, and also the true Price or Value that shall be bona fide taken or had for any such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly so sold, given, exchanged or put away, so far as he can understand the same, and then give to the Party so buying or taking by Gift, Exchange or otherwise, such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, requiring and paying two Pence for the same, a true and perfect Note in Writing of all the full Contents of the same, subscribed with his Hand; on Pain that every Person that so shall sell, give, exchange or put away any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, without being known to the Toll-taker or other Officer aforesaid, or without bringing such a Voucher or Witness, causing the same to be entered as aforesaid; and every Person making any untrue Testimony or Avouchment in the Behalf aforesaid, and every Toll-taker, Book-keeper, or other Officer of Fair or Market aforesaid, offending in the Premises contrary to the true Meaning aforesaid, shall forfeit for every such Default the Sum of five Pounds; but also that every Sale, Gift, Exchange, or other putting away of any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, in Fair or Market, not used in all Points according to the true Meaning aforesaid, shall be void: The one half of all which Forfeitures to be to the Queen's Majesty, her Heirs and Successors, and the other half to him or them that will sue for the same before the Justices of Peace, or in any of her Majesty's ordinary Courts of Record, by Bill, Plaint, Action of Debt or Information, in which no Essoin or Protection shall be allowed.

And that the Justices of Peace of every Place and County, as well within Liberties as without, shall have Authority in their Sessions, within the Limits of their Authority and Commission, to inquire, hear and determine all Offences against this Statute, as they may do any other Matter triable before them.

Offences
able.

And that if any Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly shall be stolen, and after shall be sold in open Fair or Market, and the same Sale shall be used in all Points and Circumstances as aforesaid, that yet nevertheless the Sale of any such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, within six Months next after the Felony done, shall not take away the Property of the Owner from whom the same was stolen, so as Claim be made within six Months by the Party from whom the same was stolen, or by his Executors or Administrators, or by any other by any of their Appointment, at or in the Town or Parish where the same Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly shall be found, before the Mayor or other Head-Officer of the same Town or Parish, if the same Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly shall happen to be found in any Town Corporate or Market-Town, or else before any Justice of Peace of that County near to the Place where such Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly shall be found, if it be out of Town Corporate or Market-Town, and so as Proof be made within forty Days then next ensuing, by two sufficient Witnesses, to be produced and deposed before such Head-Officer or Justice, (* who by Virtue of this Act shall have Authority to minister an Oath in that Behalf) that the Property of the same Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly so claimed, was in the Party by or for whom such Claim is made, and was stolen from him within six Months next before such Claim of any such Horse, Gelding, Mare, Colt or Filly; but that the Party from whom the said Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly was stolen, his Executors or Administrators, shall and may at all Times after, notwithstanding any such Sale or Sales in any Fair or open Market thereof made, have Property and Power to have, take again and enjoy the said Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, upon Payment, or Readiness or Offer to pay to the Party that shall have the Possession and Interest of the same Horse, Mare, Gelding, Colt or Filly, if he will receive and accept it, so much Money as the same Party shall depose and swear before such Head-Officer or Justice of the Peace, (who by Virtue of this Act shall have Authority to minister and give an Oath in that Behalf) that he paid for the same bona fide, without Fraud or Collusion; any Law, &c. to the contrary notwithstanding.

6. Claiming in six Months.

And that not only all Accessaries before such Felony done, but also all Accessaries after such Felony, shall be deprived and put from all Benefit of their Clergy as the Principal by Statute heretofore made is or ought to be.

By the twelve Points of the Common Law, and the twelve additional Points by said two last mentioned Statutes, the Property of a Horse is so preserved, that if the Owner understands and pursues them, it is almost impossible, that the Property of the Horse, &c. either stolen or not stolen, should be altered by any Sale in a Market-overt by him that is Mala fidei possessor. 2 Inst. 719.

And

ed.

And by the Statute against Brokers, 1 Jac. 1. c. 21. §. 4. it is recited, 'That forasmuch as there were not any Garments, Apparel, Household-Stuff, or other Goods of any Kind whatsoever the same be of, either being stolen or robbed from any, or badly or unlawfully purloined or come by, but upstart Brokers, under Colour and Pretence they be Freemen of the City of London, or inhabiting in Westminster, where they pretend to have the like Overt-Market as the City of London, and thereby presuming to be lawful for them to use and set up the same idle and needless Trades, being the very Means to uphold, maintain and imbolden all Kind of lewd and bad Persons to rob and steal, and unlawfully to get and come by true Mens Goods, knowing and finding that no sooner the same Goods can be stolen or unlawfully come by, but that they shall and may presently utter, vend, sell and pawn the same to such Kind of new upstart Brokers for ready Money; for Remedy whereof, and for the avoiding of the said Mischiefs and Inconveniencies, and for repressing and abolishing of the said idle and needless Trades and upstart Brokers, and the avoiding of Thefts, Robberies and Felonies, and bad People, and for the repressing of such Kind of Nourishers and Aiders of Thieves and bad People, and for the Defence of honest and true Mens Properties and Interests in their Goods,' it is enacted, 'That no Sale, Exchange, Pawn or Mortgage of any Jewel, Plate, Apparel, Household-Stuff, or other Goods of what Kind, Nature or Quality soever the same shall be of, and that shall be wrongfully or unjustly purloined, taken, robbed or stolen from any Person or Persons, or Bodies Politick, and which at any Time hereafter shall be sold, uttered, delivered, exchanged, pawned or done away within the City of London or Liberty thereof, or within the City of Westminster in the County of Middlesex, or within Southwark in the County of Surry, or within two Miles of the said City of London, to any Broker or Brokers, or Pawntakers, by any Way or Means whatsoever directly or indirectly, shall work or make any Change or Alteration of the Property or Interest of and from any Person and Persons, or Body Politick, from whom the same Jewels, Plate, Apparel, Household-Stuff or Goods, were or shall be wrongfully purloined, taken, robbed or stolen; any Law, Usage or Custom to the contrary notwithstanding.'

'And for the better maintaining of true and honest Dealing, and for the eschewing and avoiding of Falshood, Fraud and Deceit in such Kind of Brokers and Pawntakers, it is further enacted, That if any Person or Persons, or Bodies Politick, from whom any Jewels, Plate, Apparel, Household-Stuff, or any Kind of Goods whatsoever, shall be wrongfully purloined, taken, stolen or robbed, shall require and demand of any such Broker or Pawntaker, to declare whether any such Goods be come to his or their Possessions, and to declare, shew and manifest the same, and how and by what Means he had them; or came by the same, and how, when and to whom he hath delivered, conveyed, or bestowed and employed the same; and that such Broker, upon any such Request and Demand to, be made, shall deny and refuse to disclose, tell or manifest the same truly and justly, shall forfeit unto the true Owner or Owners of such Jewels, Plate, Apparel, Household and other Goods, from whom the same were wrongfully purloined, taken, stolen or robbed, double the Value thereof that shall be denied and refused to be disclosed, told and manifested as aforesaid; the same double Value thereof to be recovered by the true Owner or Owners of such Goods from whom the same were wrongfully purloined, taken, robbed or stolen, to be recovered by Action, &c.'

'By 30 G. 2. c. 24. If any Person shall knowingly, &c. pawn, or exchange, or unlawfully dispose of the Goods of any other Person, not being employed, &c. by the Owner so to do, and shall be convicted thereof by the Oath of one Witness, or Confession before one Justice, he shall forfeit 20s. and if not forthwith paid, the said Justice shall commit him to the House of Correction, or some other publick Prison of the Place where he shall reside, or be convicted, there to be kept to hard Labour for fourteen Days, unless the Forfeiture shall be sooner paid; and if within three Days, before the Expiration of the said fourteen Days, the said Forfeiture shall not be paid, the said Justice, upon Application of the Prosecutor, shall order him to be publicly whipped in such House of Correction, or some open publick Place of the City, &c. wherein the Offence shall have been committed, as to such Justice shall seem proper.

'The said Forfeitures, when recovered, to be applied towards making Satisfaction to the Party injured, and defraying the Costs of the Prosecution, as shall be adjudged reasonable by such Justice; but if the Party injured shall decline to accept of such Satisfaction and Costs, or if there be any Overplus of the same, then such Forfeitures or Overplus shall be paid to the Overseers for the Use of the Poor of the Parish, &c. where the Offence was committed. See 3.

'Every Person who shall take any Goods by way of Pawn, &c. shall forthwith enter in a regular Manner, in a Book to be kept for that Purpose, a Description of such Goods, and the Sum advanced thereon, the Day and Year, and the Name and Place of Abode of the Person by whom they were pawned, and also the Name and Place of Abode of the Owner according to the Information of the Person so pawning the same; and shall at the same time give a Duplicate or Copy to the Person so pawning the same, if required, on paying to him an Halspenny, if the Goods are pawned for less than 20s. and a Penny if pawned for 20s. and not more than five Pounds, and two Pence if for any larger Sum; and in Default of making such Entry, and giving such Duplicate or Copy, if required, he shall forfeit five Pounds, by Distress, by Warrant of one Justice, to be applied to the Use of the Poor as aforesaid. Seet. 4.

If it shall be proved to the Satisfaction of such Justice upon Oath, that any of the Goods so pawned have been rendered of less Value than they were at the Time of pawning thereof, through the Default, &c. of the Person to whom they were pawned, his Executors, Administrators, Assigns, Agents, or Servants; the said Justice shall award a reasonable Satisfaction to the Owner in respect of such Damage, and the Sum so awarded shall be deducted out of the Principal and Interest, and Allowance for Warehouse Room, which shall appear to be due to the Person to whom they were pawned, his Executors, &c. and it shall be sufficient for the Pawner, his Executors, &c. to pay or tender the Money upon the Balance, after deducting out of the Principal and Interest, and Money paid for Warehouse Room as aforesaid, such reasonable Satisfaction in respect of such Damage as such Justice shall order; and upon so doing the Justice shall proceed as if he had tendered the Whole. Seet. 5.

If any Person shall knowingly buy, or take in, as a Pledge, any Linen or Apparel, intrusted to any other Person to wash, scour, iron, mend, or make up, and shall be convicted thereof, on the Oath of one Witness, or Confession, before one Justice, he shall forfeit double the Sum lent on the same, to the Poor, to be recovered as other Forfeitures by this Act, and shall be obliged to restore the said Goods to the Owner in Presence of the Justice. Seet. 6.

If any Person who shall offer by way of Pawn, &c. any Goods, shall not be able, or shall refuse to give a satisfactory Account of himself, or of the Means by which he became possessed thereof; or if there shall be any other Reason to suspect that such Goods are stolen, or otherwise illegally and clandestinely obtained; it shall be lawful for any Person, his Servants or Agents, to whom the same shall be offered, to detain such Person, and the said Goods, and to deliver him as soon as conveniently may be into the Custody of the Constable, &c. who shall immediately convey such Person, and the said Goods, before a Justice; and if such Justice shall upon Examination and Inquiry have Cause to suspect that the said Goods were stolen, &c. he may commit him to safe Custody, for any Time not exceeding six Days, in order to be further examined; and if upon either of the said Examinations it shall appear to the Satisfaction of such Justice, that said Goods were stolen, &c. he shall commit the Offender to the common Gaol, or House of Correction, there to be dealt with according to Law. Provided that if such Goods so detained as aforesaid, shall afterwards appear to be the Property of the Person who offered the same to be pawned, &c. or that he was authorized by the Owner thereof to pawn, &c. the same; the Person who detained the Party offering the said Goods shall be indemnified for having so done. Seet. 7, 8.

If the Owner of any Goods unlawfully pawned, &c. shall make out either on his Oath, or by the Oath of one Witness before one Justice of Peace, that such Owner hath or hath had his Goods unlawfully obtained or taken from him, and that there is just Cause to suspect that any Person within the Jurisdiction of such Justice, hath knowingly, &c. taken to pawn any Goods of such Owner, and without his Privy, &c. and make appear to the Satisfaction of such Justice, probable Grounds for such the Owner's Suspicion; such Justice may issue his Warrant for searching in the Day-time, the House, Warehouse, or other Place, of any such Person so charged as aforesaid; and if the Occupier of such House, &c. shall, on Request made to him to open the same by any Peace Officer authorized to search for there by Warrant of such Justice, refuse to open and permit the same to be searched, it shall be lawful for such Peace Officer to break open any such House, &c. in the Day-time, and to search as he shall think fit therein for the Goods suspected to be there, doing no wilful Damage; and if any Person shall hinder any such Search, and shall be thereof convicted before one Justice by one Witness, he shall forfeit five Pounds; and if the same be not immediately paid down or within the Space of 24 Hours, the Justice shall commit him to the House of Correction, or some other publick Prison, there to be kept to hard Labour for any Time not exceeding one Month, nor less than five Days, unless in the mean Time the Forfeiture shall be paid, and such Forfeiture when recovered, shall go to the Poor; and if upon such Search any of the Goods shall be found, and the Property of the Owner shall be made out to the Satisfaction of such Justice by one Witness or Confession, such Justice shall thereupon cause the same to be forthwith restored to the Owner. Seet. 9.

If any Goods shall be pawned, for securing any Money lent thereon, not exceeding in the Whole the principal Sum of ten Pounds, and the Interest thereof; and if within two Years after the pawning thereof (Proof having been made by one Witness, or by producing a Duplicate of the Entry directed to be given by this Act as aforesaid, before any such Justice, of the pawning of such Goods within the said Space of two Years) any such Pawner, who was the real Owner of such Goods at the Time of the pawning thereof, his Executors, &c. shall tender to the Person who lent on Security of the said Goods, his Executors, &c. the Principal Money borrowed thereon, and all Interest due for the same, together with such Charges due for the Warehouse of the Goods pawned, as shall be agreed on at the Time of pawning the same; and if the Person who took the Goods in Pawn, his Executors, &c. shall thereupon refuse to deliver back the Goods so pawned for any Sum not exceeding the principal Sum of ten Pounds to the Person who borrowed the Money thereon, his Executors, &c. then on Oath thereof made by the Pawner, his Executors, &c. or some other credible Person, any Justice of the Place where the Person who took such Pawn, his Executors, &c. shall dwell, on the Application of the Borrower, his Executors, &c. shall cause such Person to come before him, and examine on Oath the Parties themselves, and such other credible Persons as shall appear before him, touching the Premises: And if Tender of the Principal and Interest, and Charges for Warehouse Room as aforesaid, shall be proved by Oath to have been made as aforesaid, within the said Space of two Years; then on Payment by the Borrower, his Executors, &c. of such Principal and Interest, together with Charges for Warehouse Room as aforesaid, to the Lender, his Executors, &c. and in case the Lender, his Executors, &c. shall refuse to accept thereof, on Tender before such Justice, he shall thereupon, by Order under his Hand, direct the Goods so pawned forthwith to be delivered to the Pawner, his Executors, &c. and if the Lender shall refuse to deliver up, or make Satisfaction for such Goods as aforesaid, as such Justice shall order, then he shall commit the Party refusing to the House of Correction, or some other publick Prison, until he shall deliver up the said Goods according to Order of such Justice, or make Satisfaction for the Value thereof to the Party intitled to the Redemption. Seet. 10.

If any Pawn of Goods made by or for the Proprietor, shall remain unredeemed for two Years, the same shall be forfeited; and the Person to whom they were pawned may sell the same, subject to account for the Overplus, if any shall be, of the Produce of all such Goods, which have been pledged for two Pounds or upwards, as by this Act is directed. And he shall enter in a Book kept for that Purpose, a just Account of the Sale of all such Goods, expressing the Day when, the Money for which, and the Name and Place of Abode of the Persons to whom the same were sold: And if they be sold for more than the Principal, &c. the Overplus shall be paid on Demand to the Person on whose Account such Goods were pawned, his Executors, &c. who shall for his Satisfaction be permitted to inspect the Entry to be made as aforesaid of such Sale, paying for such Inspection one Penny and no more; and if any Person shall refuse to permit such Person who pawned the Goods to inspect such Entry, (such Person, if he be an Executor, &c. at such Time producing his Letters testamentary, &c.) or if the Goods were sold for more than the Sum entered in such Book, or if such Person shall not make such Entry, or shall not have bona fide (honestly) sold such Goods for the best Price that he might have reasonably got for the same, without his wilful Default; or shall refuse to pay such Overplus on Demand as aforesaid; he shall forfeit treble the Value of such Goods to the Person by whom, or on whose Account they were pawned, his Executors, &c. to be recovered in any of his Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster. Seet. 11, 12.

No Fee, &c. shall be taken for any Summons, &c. granted by any Justice in Pursuance of this Act, so far as it relates to Goods pawned, &c. Seet. 13.

Any Justice, unto whom Complaint upon Oath shall be made of any Offence committed against this Act, shall issue his Warrant for bringing before him, or some other Justice of such Place, the Person charged with such Offence; and the Justice before whom he is brought, shall hear and determine the Matter, and proceed to Judgment, and Conviction; and if it shall appear upon Oath to the Satisfaction of such Justice, that any Person within his Jurisdiction can give material Evidence on Behalf of the Prosecutor, or of the Person accused, and who will not voluntarily appear; he shall issue his Summons to convene him to give his Evidence; and if he shall neglect to appear on such Summons, and no just Excuse shall be offered, then (on Proof upon Oath of the Summons having been duly served upon him) he shall issue his Warrant to bring such Witness before him; and on his Appearance, if he shall refuse to be examined on Oath, without offering just Cause for such Refusal, the Justice shall commit him to the publick Prison for any Time not exceeding three Months: And if on such Examination the Justice shall deem the Evidence of any such Witness to be material, he may bind over such Witness, unless a Feme Covert, or under the Age of 21 Years, by Recognizance in a reasonable Penalty, to appear and give Evidence at the next Sessions or Assizes. Seet. 16.

No Person charged on Oath with being guilty of any of the Offences punishable by this Act, and which shall require Bail, shall be admitted to Bail before 24 Hours Notice at least shall be proved by Oath to have been given in Writing to the Prosecutor, of the Names and Places of Abode of the Persons proposed to be Bail for any such Offender, unless the Bail offered shall be well known to the Justice, and he shall approve of them. And every such Offender who shall be bound over to the Sessions, &c. shall be tried at the next Sessions to be held after his being apprehended, unless the Court shall think fit to put off the Trial on just Cause made out to them. Seet. 17.

Any Inhabitant may be a Witness. Seet. 18.

No Certiorari to remove Proceedings. Seet. 20.

Appeal to the next Sessions, on the Conditions in this Clause mentioned, wherein is the Manner it is to be prosecuted, and how the Justices to act thereon, is likewise set forth. Seet. 21.

Persons sued for any Thing done on this Act, may have double Costs. Seet. 22.

Of Acquiring or Conveying Personal Estates by Marriage.

BY Act in Law Estates may be acquired by Marriage. Agreements between a Man and a Woman before their Marriage, are generally extinguished by the Marriage: Wherefore it is usual for the Husband to covenant to other Persons to the Use of the Wife, as for her Jointure, &c.

But when there is no Agreement or Settlement before Marriage, if the Woman is seised in Fee, the Man by the Marriage gains a Freehold in her Right. Co. Lit. 351. a. And may make a Lease thereof for twenty-one Years or three Lives.

He also gains a Chattel Real, as a Term for Years, &c. which he may dispose of by Grant or Lease in her Life-time, or as he pleases if he survives her. But if she survives him it remains with her, for he cannot charge it with a Rent, &c. nor dispose of it by Will unless he survives her. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 1. c. 7. Co. Lit. 46. b. 184. b. 299. b. 300. a. 351. a.

But by Marriage the Husband has an absolute Gift of all Chattels Personal in Possession of the Wife in her own Right, whether he survives her or not. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 1. c. 7.

But if the Chattels Personal be Choses in Action, as Debts by Obligation, Contract, &c. the Husband shall not have them, unless he and his Wife recover them. Co. Lit. 351. b.

Nor Personal Goods, which the Wife has in auter droit, as Executrix or Administratrix, are not given to the Husband by Marriage, though he survives his Wife: But they go to the Administrator De bonis non, &c. for if they should go to the Husband, the Creditors, &c. of the Deceased would be wronged. Co. Lit. 351. b.

Of Acquiring, &c. Personal Estates by Executorship.

(A) Who are Executors, and how they are appointed.

GOODS may be acquired by Executorship, to wit, by Act in Law, by the Property's devolving to the Executor.

Executors are Persons appointed by a Testator (i. e. the Person who makes a Will of Executors, Testament) to execute or perform his Will after his Decease. who.

Which Appointment may be by expresse Words, or by Words of Circumlocution, that How appointed. amount to a direct Appointment.

(B)

(B) By whom Executors may be appointed, or not.

- King. THE Bishops, Lords and Commons, assented in full Parliament, that the King, his Heirs and Successors, might lawfully make their Testaments, and that Execution should be done of the same, whereof some Doubt was before made. 4 Inst. 335.
- Queen. The Queen, the Wife of the King, may make Executors. 2 Roll. Abr. 912.
A Feme Covert may make an Executor of Things in Action due to her. Roll. Abr. 912.
A Feme Covert cannot make an Executor without the Assent of her Husband, for the Administration of her Goods of Right belongs to her Husband. 4 Co. 51. b. Roll. Abr. 914. This must be intended of Things in Action, to which the Husband by taking Administration to her might intitle himself. Went. Off. of Ex. 286, 287.
- Feme Covert. But a Feme Covert Executrix may make an Executor of the Goods which she has as Executrix without her Husband's Assent. Roll. Abr. 912, 914. 3 Danv. 359, 365. Went. Off. of Execut. 286, 287.
A Woman, with the Consent of her Husband, may make an Executor of Things which the Husband shall not have by her Death. Roll. Abr. 914. 3 Danv. Abr. 364.
- Felon. A Man attainted of Felony cannot make Executors. Roll. Abr. 912.
But a Man against whom an Exigent for Felony is awarded, (though by it he loses all his Goods) may make Executors to reverse it. 5 Co. 111. for there he is not attainted.
- Outlaw. And a Man outlawed in a Personal Action may make Executors, for he may have Debts upon Contract not forfeited to the King. Roll. Abr. 912.

(C) How many may be appointed.

HE that may make one Executor may make two, three or more; but all of them in the Eye of the Law are but one Executor, in which respect most Acts done by or to any one of them are Acts done by or to all. West's Symb. 637. Roll. Abr. 914, 924.

A Man may make an Executor for Part of his Goods, and another Executor for the Rest. Roll. Abr. 914.

A Man made his Wife his sole and whole Executrix of all his Cattle, Corn and moveable Goods, and did not mention what should be done concerning the Residue of his Estate; the Question thereupon was, Whether the Wife be absolute Executrix quoad all his Estate, or only particular Executrix quoad his Cattle, Corn and moveable Goods, and not quoad his Leases, and his Debts? And thereupon the Judges all agreed, That one may make several Executors; the one quoad Things Real, the other quoad Things Personal, and may divide their Authority; yet quoad Creditors, they are all Executors, and as one Executor: But Jones and Croke conceived, as this Case is, That she is sole and absolute Executrix for the whole Estate, as well Leases as Debts and other Things; for when he says, that she shall be his sole and whole Executrix of his Cattle, Corn and moveable Goods, it is but an Enumeration of the Particulars, and no Exclusion of any, especially when he does not make any other Executor for the Residue, and Catalla in Latin extends to all Things, and it may be intended that so was the Intent of the Testator, when he did not make any other Executor. But Berkley conceived, that she is a special Executrix quoad the Things enumerated, and no general Executrix. Per quod adjournatur. Cro. Car. 293.

If a Man makes A. and B. his Executors, but wills that A. shall not meddle until he has paid B. all Money due to the Testator; in such Case A. is not Executor, nor can by Virtue of the Will administer until he has paid all such Money. Moor 11. pl. 44. 3 Leon. 2, 3.

(D) For what Time Executors may be appointed.

AN Executor may be made to a fixed Time, upon Condition, (as if the Executor will find Sureties to perform the Will) or to some certain Part of the Estate, or to some certain Act. Wood, B. 2. c. 6. p. 320.

If one makes an Infant his Executor, and appoints, that during his Nonage J. S. shall have the Disposition of his Goods, J. S. is Executor during that Time. Cro. El. 164.

(E) Who are capable or not of being Executors.

ALL that are capable of making a Testament are capable of being Executors. West. Symb. §. 635. Cro. Car. 9.

But some that cannot make a Testament are capable of being Executors. A Mayor and Commonalty may be Executors. Roll. Abr. 915. 3 Danv. Abr. 365.

An

An Infant in Ventre sa mere may be Executor. West's Symb. §. 635.

But when he is born he cannot act as such till seventeen Years of Age; and therefore the Ordinary must grant Administration Durante minori etate till that Age. 4 Inst. 335.

A Woman Covert may be also an Executrix.

So may a Person excommunicated, outlawed or attainted; or an Alien, &c. Cro. Eliz. 683. Cro. Car. 8, 9.

Popish Recusants convict shall not be Executors or Administrators. Nor a married Woman being a Popish Recusant convict (the Husband not being convicted) that does not conform, &c. by the Space of one Year before her Husband's Death, shall not be capable of being Executrix or Administratrix to her Husband, and enjoying any Part of her Husband's Goods. Per Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5.

Nor those that execute an Office, &c. after they have neglected or refused to take the Oath mentioned in Stat. 13 W. 3. c. 6. and 1 Geo. 1. c. 13.

Nor Artificers exercising or teaching their Trades in foreign Parts, by Stat. 5 Geo. 1. c. 27.

When the King is made an Executor, he appoints certain Persons to take the Execution of the Will upon them, against whom such as have Cause of Suit may bring their Action, and appoints others to take the Account; and so was done when Katherine, Queen Dowager, Mother of H. 6. made her Will, and appointed him Executor thereof. 4 Inst. 335.

(F) Of accepting or refusing an Executorship.

A Person appointed Executor, if he has not intermeddled with Testator's Effects, may refuse the Executorship; and after he has once refused the Executorship, can never afterwards intermeddle; nor after he has once legally accepted it, he can never after refuse it; for he cannot accept and refuse too. So if an Executor is cited by the Ordinary to prove the Will, and he appears and refuses to prove the Will, he cannot afterwards accept and intermeddle with the Estate. 9 Rep. 37, 38. vide Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 5.

If an Executor administers before Refusal, he cannot afterwards refuse. Went. Off. Ex. 26, 27. Salk. 308.

If he uses any Action for the Debt of the Testator, it shall be an Administration. Roll. Abr. 917. 8 H. 6. 36. Br. Administration 25.

If he takes the Goods of the Testator, and converts them to his own Use, it is an Administration. Roll. Abr. 917. 20 E. 4. 17. Br. Administration 35.

But if he takes the Goods of the Testator taken from him by Wrong in his Life, it is no Administration. Roll. Abr. 917. 20 E. 4. 17. Br. Administration 35.

If he happens of any Thing which was the Testator's, it is an Administration. Roll. Abr. 917.

If Executors grant any of the Chattels of the Testator, it is an Administration in Law. Roll. Abr. 917.

If an Executor releases to a Debtor of the Testator, it is an Administration in Law. Roll. Abr. 917. 11 H. 4. 84. Br. Debt 65. Br. Executor 57. And he cannot afterwards refuse the Executorship. 2 Brownl. 58.

So if he makes an Acquittance of any Debt of the Testator. Roll. Abr. 917. 8 H. 6. 36. Br. Administration 25.

If certain Goods are devised to an Executor, and he takes them without the Assent of the other Co-executor, it is an Administration, because a Devisee cannot take Goods devised without the Assent of the Executor. Roll. Abr. 917. 11 H. 4. 84. Br. Executor 57.

But it is otherwise if he takes them with the Assent by the Delivery of the other Executor. Roll. Abr. 917. 11 H. 4. 84. Br. Executor 57.

If the Executor seises of the Goods of the Testator, it is an Administration. Roll. Abr. 917. 8 H. 6. 36. Br. Administration 25. Stokes and Porter. And. 11. Moor 14. N. Bend. 74. Dy. 166.

And if he seises the Goods of another Man to the Intent to administer them, this will be an Administration, though the Goods are after taken from him by the Owner. Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 917. 8 H. 6. 35. Br. Administration 25.

If the Testator was Tenant at Will of certain Goods, and after his Death his Executor seises the Goods, supposing them to be the Testator's, to have them administered, and afterwards the Owner of the Goods takes them out of his Possession, yet this shall be an Administration in Law, for his Intent appeared. Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 917. 8 H. 6. 35. b. Br. Administration 25.

But if the Executor, being Commissary, sequesters the Goods of the Testator as Commissary, this is no Assent to the Executorship. Roll. Abr. 917. 20 H. 6. 1. b. Fitz. Executor 15.

If an Executor proves the Will, it seems that this is an Administration in Law, so that he cannot after plead Ne unques Executor. Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 918. 26 H. 8. 8. a. Br. Executor 5. Administrator 2.

Of Refusal or
there are many Executors.

Thus it is where there is but one Executor; but where there are many Executors named, and all are cited by the Ordinary to prove the Will, and only some of them appear and refuse the Executorship, and afterwards one of the Executors proves the Will, and takes upon him the Executorship, this suffices for them all, and they who refused may at any Time join with him or them, and intermeddle with the Estate, as well as any of the Rest. Perk. 485. 9 Rep. 37, 38. Noy's Max. 102.

And if the acting Executor dies, and makes an Executor, the surviving Executors may act, for their Refusal before the Ordinary is void in this Case, but where all refuse, no one can ever after come in and prove the Will; for the Testator now dies Intestate and without an Executor; so that the Ordinary may grant Administration Cum Testamento annexo, or sequester the Goods in the mean Time till the Administration is granted. Co. Lit. 113. a. Noy's Max. 102. 9 Rep. 37, 38, 39.

If a Man makes two Executors, and they refuse to act, two others shall be his Executors: And in this Case, if the first two Executors administer, the two last shall not be Executors, nor named in Actions; but it is otherwise if the two first refuse. Roll. Abr. 914.

But if a Man makes two Executors and dies, and one of them before Probate of the Will releases an Action to a Debtor of the Testator; this is a Consent to the Executorship, so that he cannot after refuse to administer. Roll. Abr. 918.

And where there are two Executors, and one of them proves the Will in the Name of both against the Consent of the other; this is not any Administration for him who did not consent to the Probate, but he may plead Ne unques Executor, &c. for the Probate doth not make him Executor, if he does not administer. Roll. Abr. 918. 26 H. 8. 8. a. Br. Administrator 2. Executor 5.

If there be two Executors, and one of them only proves the Will, and the other by his Delivery, and as his Servant takes and sells the Goods, this is no Administration by him who acted as Servant. Cro. Eliz. 858.

In Case where one accepts, and all the rest refuse, he must bring Actions in all their Names, and one may release the Action, for the Possession of one is the Possession of all of them; but an Action must be brought against him or them that act or administer, and he that first cometh shall first answer. Perk. 485. Noy's Max. 102, 103. Off. of Ex. c. 9.

How far Acts of Charity or Humanity are not Acceptance of Exe-
cutorship.

But every Intermeddling with the Goods of the Deceased is not an Acceptance of the Executorship to make one chargeable as Executor: As if one does an Act of Charity or Humanity, by locking up the Goods of the Deceased that they be not wasted; by burying the Deceased, though he sells his Goods to do it; or if one does take away his own Goods that were in the House of the Deceased, or use some of the Goods of the Deceased in the necessary Occasions of the Family, or take the Goods by Letters ad Colligendum, &c. These Acts will not amount to an Acceptance of the Executorship if the special Matter be pleaded. Dyer 166, 167. Noy's Max. 102, 103. Roll. Abr. 918.

When an Executor has accepted the Executorship, he cannot assign it over. Vaugh. 182. Roll. Abr. 918.

Regularly one Executor cannot sue the other at Law, but he may have Relief in Equity.

(G) The Executor's Interest in the Goods, &c. of the Testator.

THE Interest of an Executor arises at Common Law by virtue of the Testament which is Temporal, and which gives him all the Chattels Real and Personal of the Testator, which are likewise Temporal; for the Probate of the Ordinary is only a Confirmation. Plowd. 280. 9 Co. 37, 38. Noy's Max. 103.

The Law gives him not only those in Possession, as Leases for Years, and Charters and Evidences concerning them, Arrears of Rent due at the Death of the Testator, Rent-Charge, Grants of next Advowsons and Presentations of the Testator's Inheritance becoming void in his Life-time, Relief due to the Testator, Corn cut or growing, &c. where the Testator had such an Estate as might in Possibility have continued till the Corn, &c. was ripe, (as where the Testator had an Estate for the Life of another, or in the Right of his Wife, &c.) Gold, Silver, Jewels, Plate, Household-Stuff, Cattle, Implements of Husbandry, Apprentices for Years by Custom, &c. but also those Things that lie in Action, as Rights and Interests upon Judgments, Statutes, Recognizances, Obligations and Bonds, and all other Debts due to the Testator, (if they are not bequeathed) because on the other Hand the Law subjects the Executor to every Man's Claim and Action which he had against the Testator for the same. Co. Lit. 209. a. 388. a. Noy's Max. 103, 104. Cro. Car. 515. 3 Danv. Abr. 366. For

For this Reason the Executor is said to be the Testator's Assignee, and to represent the Person of the Testator. Co. Lit. 209. b. 210. a.

But for personal Wrongs done by the Testator to the Person, Goods or Land of another, he does not represent him, because personal Actions die with the Person. Noy's Max. 104.

9 Co. 89.

B. possessed of a Lease for Years, devised the Benefit thereof to A. his Wife for six Years, and that J. his Son, if he came home, should have the Residue of the Term, but if he did not come home within six Years, then W. his Son shall have it till J. came home, and died, and after W. died within the six Years, and after J. did not come home within the six Years; though this was but a Possibility to have the Term (viz.) if J. did not come home within the Years, and W. died before the Possibility happened, yet his Executors shall have it, for it was a Possibility fixed in the Testator, and only to be perfected by the Act of God without any Act of the Parties; for this is not like a Lease to be named by J. S. for there is not any Perfection before the naming. Sheriff v. Wratham, Roll. Abr. 916. Cro. Jac. 509.

So if a Termor devises his Term to one and the Heirs Male of his Body, and if he dies without Issue Male, then to J. S. And J. S. dies in the Life of the first Devisee, yet the Possibility that he had to have the Term by the Devise shall go to his Executor for the Cause aforesaid. Price and Atmore, Roll. Abr. 916. But this Case is differently reported in 4 Leon. 246. Moor 831. and Bulst. 191. where it is said, that the Termor by his Will made his Wife Executrix, and devised the Term to her, and if she died before the Term ended, that the same should remain to his Son and the Heirs Male of his Body. The Executrix entered and claimed as Legatee, and assigned the Term over; the Son died in the Life of the Wife, and his Executor entred. Per Cur. This Entry was not lawful, for the Son had but a Possibility, and no Interest; for by the Devise of the whole Term the whole Interest was in the Wife, and when it was in her, it could not remain over; otherwise if the Land had been granted to her for Life, and if she died, that it should remain as before. And in 4 Leon. there is a Note, That 25 Eliz. it was resolved in C. B. that such a Possibility could not be released: And 29 Eliz. in Hammington's Case, that it could not be granted.

This Case in Cro. Jac. 510. is cited, and denied to be Law, but the Court conceived the Resolution in Lampet's Case, 10 Co. 51. b. to be good Law in this Point. In which Case a special Verdict was found, that J. Lord L. & al<sup>ps</sup> were seised in Fee, and demised the Premises to J. M. jun. for a Term of 5000 Years, who entered and was possessed, and devised the same to J. M. his Father for Life, and after his Decease to his Sister Eliz. and the Heirs of her Body, and made his said Father Executor, and died. The Father accepted the Executorship, entered, and was possessed; Eliz. married W. T. both of whom released the Residue of the Term to said J. M. sen. who demised the Premises to M. S. the Defendant for ten Years; said W. T. died, and said Eliz. married W. L. J. M. sen. died, said W. L. and Eliz. entered, and demised to R. L. the Plaintiff, who entered and was possessed till M. S. the Defendant ejected him. Now whether the said Grant or Release to J. M. the Father, then being possessed of the whole Term, can bar the said Eliz. because she has but a Possibility, and neither Interest or Right in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, was the principal Question, (10 Co. 47. a.) Upon which it was resolved, that the said Release had barred the said Eliz. to claim any Thing in the said Lease after the Death of the said J. M. sen. 48. a.

And these Resolutions were likewise made:

1. That when a Man possessed of Land for Years devises the Use or Profits, or the Land itself to one for Life, and afterwards to another during the Residue of the Term, the Devise of a Chattel after the Death of the first Devisee, is good. 47. a.

2. The executory Devise after the Death, &c. is good, though the Term itself (and not Use or Occupation) was devised to the first for Life, &c. and afterwards to others. 47. b.

3. That the first Devisee after Assent made by the Executor could not bar the executory Devise although a Possibility. 47. a.

4. The Assent of the Executor to the first Devisee should enure to the other, although he has it by executory Devise and not by Remainder.

5. When the Devise is ut supra to the Executor for Life, and afterwards to another, &c. and the Executor enters generally, he shall have it as Executor, which is his first and general Authority, and not as Legatory without Claim or Demonstration of his Election, although the Testators were not indebted to any. 47. b.

6. Such Executor's Interest might not be granted to a Stranger during the Life of the first Devisee. 47. b.

The said Release has extinguished the future Interest of the said Eliz. for divers Reasons:

1. Because it is a future Interest in a Chattel, which as it may be more easily created than a Freehold, so it may be more easily determined. 48. b.

2. It

2. It is a Maxim in Law, that Land in Fee-simple may be charged by one way or other: And it is another Maxim in Law, that every Right, or Title or Interest, in præfenti or futuro, by the joining of all who may claim any such Right, Title or Interest, may be barred or extinguished. 48. b. Upon the first Maxim it was concluded, that if at the Common Law the Donor and Donee in Tail had joined in a Grant of a Rent-Charge, and afterwards the Donee had died without Issue, and the Land had reverted to the Donor, he should hold it charged, and yet he had but a Possibility at the Time of the Charge made; but all those who had Estate or Interest in præfenti or futuro joined in the Charge; a fortiori, if they had joined in a Lease for Years, and the Donee had died without Issue, the Lease is good against the Donor. So upon the second Maxim, if J. M. sen. and Eliz. had joined in a Deed of Assignment to another, it had utterly barred the said Eliz. for no other had Interest either in præfenti or in futuro, but those who joined in the Grant. So where the Husband of Eliz. releases to him in Possession, both consented to it, one in releasing, the other in accepting of it: And in the Case when both join in the Grant, it is the Grant of him who had the Term, and the Release or Confirmation of the other. 49. a.

3. Quando diversi desiderantur actus ad aliquem statum perficiendum, plus respicit Lex actum originale, when to the Perfecting of an Estate or Interest divers Acts or Things are requisite, the Law has more Regard to the original Act, Quia cujusque rei potissima pars est principium, for that is the fundamental Part on which all the others are founded. In this Case three Things are requisite to the Perfecting the Interest of Eliz. (1) The Devise, (in which is included the Death of the Devisor) this is the fundamental Part. (2) The Assent of the Executor, which appears was given. And (3) The Death of the first Devisee. 49. a.

4. If the said Eliz. had died before the first Devisee, the Executors or Administrators of the said Eliz. would have had the Residue of the said Term after the Death of the first Devisee, which is a Proof that Eliz. herself might have released such Interest which by her Death might have come to her Executors or Administrators. 51. b. Note; This is the Point particularly referred to in Cro. Jac. 510. which the Court held to be good Law, and denied the Case of Price and Almore before-mentioned to be Law.

5. The Legacy or Devise to Eliz. is in esse and present, although the Interest is in futuro; and therefore the Legacy or Devise may be discharged, and by Consequence the Interest itself, for qui destruit medium destruit finem. 51. b.

6. It would be inconvenient, that such Manner of Perpetuity should be made of a Chattel, when of an Inheritance neither by Act executed by the Common Law, nor by Limitation of an Use, nor by Devises in last Wills, any Perpetuity can be established; and if it should be allowed, it would be Cause of Contentions, Suits and other Inconveniences. And it was observed, that these Leases for so many Hundreds and Thousands of Years (which were made in Truth to deceive or defeat the King or other Lords of their Wards or other lawful Duties) are many Times unfortunate, and subject to be lost at Outlawry or other Forfeitures; and if the Owner thereof dies Intestate, the Ordinary shall grant Administration, whereby Women will lose their Dowers, Men their Tenancies by the Curtesy, and many other Inconveniences, in Subversion of the Common Law, will from thence ensue; and therefore it would be of all others the most dangerous to make a Perpetuity of them. 52. b.

If A. leases Land to B. for eighty Years, if he so long lives, and if he dies within the Term, that then immediately after his Death the Land will remain to his Executors for twenty-one Years, and after the Lessee dies Intestate, yet his Administrator shall have the Term for twenty-one Years, for the Administrator is within the Intent of the Grant. Roll. Abr. 916.

Where upon the Death of one of the Executors the Surplus of the Personal Estate, after Debts and Legacies paid, shall survive to the other.

If a Man makes B. and C. Executors, and devises to them Residuum bonorum, &c. after Debts and Legacies paid; and after B. dies, the Surplusage shall not survive, for it shall be supposed, that the Testator intended an equal Share to his Executors, and decreed for the Administration of B. accordingly, but much to the Dissatisfaction of the Bar; for where the Intention is secret and not declared, it must give way to the legal Intent. Chanc. Ca. 238. 2.

For the Resolutions since have been otherwise in Equity; and it seems well settled, that the Survivor shall have the whole by Law; as where a Man devised Goods to A. and B. and the Executor assented to the Legacy; and A. died, and his Executor sued in the Spiritual Court for A.'s Share, there being no Survivorship in such Case by the Ecclesiastical Law, whereupon B. sued a Prohibition, and declared; and upon Demurrer and Argument it was adjudged the Prohibition should stand; for by the Assent of the Executor the Interest was vested in the Legatees, and became a Chattel in them, governable by the Rules of the Common Law. 2 Lev. 209.

A. devised the Surplus of his Estate, after his Debts paid, to B. and C. B. died: Adjudged in the Delegates, and decreed by the Lord North, and confirmed by Jefferies Lord Chancellor, that this was a joint Devise, and should survive to C. And the Lord Chancellor's Opinion

Opinion was, that if B. and C. had been made Executors, and B. had possessed a Moiety of the Goods, and died, it would have been all one. Vern. 482.

So where a Man devised all the Rest and Residue of his Goods, Chattels and Personal Estate to two Persons, their Executors and Administrators, and one of them died; and on a Bill brought by his Executor against the surviving Devisee, it was held, that the Survivor should take the Whole to his own Use, and should not be a Trustee, as to the Moiety, for the Representative of him who is dead; and that they were to be considered as Jointenants where Survivorship takes Place, as well in Cases of Chattels as in Cases of Inheritance. Abr. Ca. Eq. 343.

A. made his Will, and after several Legacies gave and devised all the Rest, Residue and Remainder of his Personal Estate to three Persons, whom he made his Executors; one of them died in the Life-time of the Testator; and the only Question was, whether the two surviving Executors should have the Whole, or whether the third Part should be distributed according to the Statute amongst the next of Kin. And the Master of the Rolls, on Time taken to consider of the Case, and citing most of the Authorities, both out of the Civil and Common Law, was of Opinion, and decreed accordingly, that the two surviving Executors should take the Whole. Abr. Ca. Eq. 243.

If a Devise be of a Legacy to one and his Assigns, and the Devisee dies before Payment, his Administrator shall have it as Assignee. Roll. Abr. 915. 3 Danv. Abr. 367.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that if the Obligor pays 20*l.* to such Person as the Obligee by his last Will in Writing shall appoint it to be paid, then the Obligation to be void; and the Obligee appoints no Person to whom it shall be paid, but makes his last Will, and makes Executors thereby, yet the Obligor shall not pay the 20*l.* to the Executors, because the Condition has Reference to his Nomination; and here it appears, that this was to be paid to an Assignee in Deed, to be made by the Obligee by his Appointment, and not to an Assignee in Law. Moor 855. Hob. 9. 14. Godb. 192. adjudged. Lit. Rep. 173, 174. the like Point dubitatur.

And per Coke, there is a Diversity where the Condition is to pay 10*l.* to the Assignee of the Obligee, and where to the Obligee or his Assigns; for in the last Case it vests as a Duty in the Obligee, and shall go to his Executors. Godb. 192.

But where one was bound to stand to the Award of two Arbitrators, who award, that the Party shall pay to a Stranger or his Assigns 200*l.* before such a Day, the Stranger before such a Day dies, and B. takes Letters of Administration, and if the Obligor shall pay the Money to the Administrator, or that the Obligor should be discharged, was the Question. And it was the Opinion of the whole Court, that the Money should be paid to the Administrator, for he is Assignee: And by Gawdy Justice, if the Word Assignee had been left out, yet the Payment ought to be made to the Administrator; quod Coke affirmavit. Leon. 316.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10*l.* per Ann. after the Death of the Obligee, to the Executors of the Obligee, for the Use of his Children, and he dies without making any Executors, the Money shall be paid to his Administrators. Heil. 115, 116. Lit. Rep. 156. adjournatur.

If a Lessee for Years of a Shop assigns it to B. and covenants with B. not to sell Wheels for Coaches to the Prejudice of A. or his Assigns, and after A. dies, and Administration is granted to his Wife, who continues the Trade in the Shop, and B. after sells Wheels for Coaches, to the Prejudice of the Administrator, he hath broke his Covenant, for the Administratrix is an Assignee to have Benefit of this Covenant. Roll. Abr. 916.

J. M. by Will devised particular Legacies to his Children and Grandchildren, and 12*l.* a-piece to M. and S. whom he made Executors, for their Care; the Surplus of the Personal Estate being 5000*l.* and upwards, the Question was, Whether the Surplus should be a Trust for the Children, or go to the Executors. And it was decreed a Trust for the Children. Mich. 1687. Per Yefferies Lord Chancellor, Vern. 473. Same Case cited 2 Vern. 649. and said to be affirmed in the House of Lords. Upon which Case the Author of The Gen. Abr. of Ca. in Eq. p. 243. observes, That since this Case there has been Variety of Resolutions both in Chancery and the House of Lords on this Head, notwithstanding which this Matter seems as undetermined as any in Equity; for though the Law casts the whole Personal Estate on the Executor, yet as the Intention of the Testator is chiefly to be regarded in a Will, if it appears by a strong and necessary Implication, that the Executor was not to have it to his own Use, Equity will decree him a Trustee for the next of Kin to the Testator; and therefore it seems agreed, that if Strangers or distant Relations are made Executors, and Legacies are given them for their Care and Trouble, that they shall not have the Surplus; but where the Executors are as nearly related as those who claim as next of Kin, and and they have had all Legacies given them, though perhaps some of them greater, and some of them less, great Doubt had been; in which Instances it has (as appears by the Cases) been determined according to the Intention of the Testator, collected not only from the Words of the Will, but likewise from collateral Proof of Testator's greater Kindness, &c. which upon these Occasions has been admitted sometimes for the Executor, and sometimes for the next of Kin.

Mrs. S. was Executrix of A. her former Husband, and after married Mr. S. who by his Will in 1686. devised to his Wife the Plate and Goods she brought him in Marriage, and two Silver Salvers, in lieu of the Plate that had been changed away; and made her Executrix, and died, leaving a Daughter by a former Wife, and his Wife ensent of a Daughter, and there being no Devise of the Surplus of the Personal Estate, the Question was, Whether she would take it as Executrix to her own Use, or be liable to Distribution. And my Lord Keeper decreed the Surplus to the Wife, as well for that this Will was made before the Case of Foster and Munt, (i. e. the last Case) as also for that in this Case nothing is devised to the Wife but what was her own before, and as she was Executrix to her former Husband, but principally, because where a Wife is made Executrix, it is to be presumed she was not made so to have barely an Office of Trouble, but of Benefit to take the Surplus. 2 Vern. 675, 676.

B. married one Mrs. A. Sister to W. A. who was possessed of a Personal Estate to the Value of about 2000*l.* and made his Will in Writing the very Day before his Death, and thereby devised several Legacies to his Relations, and amongst the rest gave the Plaintiff his Sister about 1000*l.* and gives 70*l.* to Mr. S. and his Wife and their four Children, to buy them Mourning; and gave to Mrs. S. (one of the Daughters of Mr. S.) 500*l.* and gives his Horse and Furniture to one of the Defendants by his Christian Name and Surname, and his Clothes, to be disposed of by his Executors; and then concludes, as to the 700*l.* I am intitled to in the South-Sea Company, and the rest of my Personal Estate, I will that the same should be sold for Payment of my Debts and Legacies, and I make Mr. J. and Mr. T. S. my Executors, and dies. The Executors were two of the Children of Mr. S. and intitled to their Proportion of 70*l.* devised for Mourning, and one of them to the Horse and Furniture, but were no ways related to the Testator. The Surplus of the Personal Estate came to about 600*l.* and the Bill was brought against the Defendants the Executors to have an Account thereof; and that it might be paid to the Plaintiff, whose Wife was the only Sister and next of Kin to the Testator. And for the Plaintiffs it was insisted, that the Executors were mere Strangers, no ways related to the Testator, and that they had particular Legacies left them for Mourning out of the 70*l.* and one of them had a Horse and Furniture expressly devised to him; and that therefore it was not reasonable that they should go away with the Surplus of the Personal Estate. On the other Side it was insisted, that the Defendants being Executors, they represented the Testator; that they stood in his Place, and were intitled to whatever he left undisposed of; that this was the ancient Law for many Ages, and therefore the legal Title being in them, they ought not to be defeated of it without a manifest Intention of the Testator to the contrary; that here appeared no such Intent in the Will, for they are not named either by Christian Name or Surname, or so much as by the Name of their Office, till the very Close of the Will; nay it was in Proof, that the Testator did not so much as consider whom he should make his Executors, till he had disposed of all the Legacies; that the giving one of them his Horse and Furniture, was only to exclude the other, who, by being Executor with him, would have been equally intitled to it, and could not be construed a Legacy to shut them out of the Surplus, since it rather regarded the other Executor than the Plaintiff, the next of Kin; that they had it fully in Proof, that the Testator being asked, whether he would not give his Sister more? answered, he would not; that being asked, who should have the Surplus, or what should become of the Surplus? he said, his Will should stand as it was, and that he had a very great Regard for the Defendants Family, and was to have married their Sister: That these Proofs being in Affirmance of the Disposition which the Law made to the Executors might be read; and that several Resolutions, since the Case of Foster and Munt, had pared away the Authority of that Case, and therefore prayed that the Bill might be dismissed. My Lord Chancellor was clearly of Opinion, that the Proofs being in Affirmance of the Disposition, ought to be read; and said, that they were so full as to make an End of this Case; that without a strong and violent Implication, the Executors ought not to be defeated of the Residuum; that here was no such Implication in this Will, but rather the contrary; that to make Sense of the last Clause, it must be construed as a Devise of the South-Sea Stock, and the rest of his personal Estate, to his Executors; for it immediately follows, And I make J. and T. S. my Executors; which could have no Relation to the Direction for Sale, unless by giving them the Surplus which should arise by Sale; and as there appeared no strong or violent Implication to induce any other Construction, he could not give into so great a Change of the Law, but must decree for the Executors, and accordingly did so. Abr. Ca. Eq. 246, 247. 2 Vern. 736, 737.

C. made his Will to the Effect following: I dispose of my Estate after mentioned, and what else I have in the World, in Manner and Form following; and then gives several Legacies to his Relations, amounting to near the Value of his Estate, (as appeared by a Calculation of his own Hand-Writing made by him about that Time) and appointed his Mother and N. Executors, and gave them 20*l.* and intreated them to take the Trouble of getting in his Estate; the Testator lived ten Years after, and acquired an additional Estate, and died, not having altered nor new published his Will; and on a Bill brought by the Legatees against N. the surviving Executor, to account, it was decreed, that the surviving Executor was but an Executor in Trust for the Legatees, and that the new acquired Estate should go to the Legatees in Proportion to their Legacies. 2 Vern. 148, 149.

So where A. L. made his Will, and his Wife Executrix, and lived twenty Years after the Will, and acquired an Estate, the Surplus was decreed to be distributed. 2 Vern. 677.

But where a Man devised his Library of Books to A. (except ten Books, such as his Wife should chuse, as Plays, Romances, Sermons, but not Law-Books) and made her Executrix; it was held by my Lord Keeper, that she should not by this Devise be excluded from the Benefit of the Surplus of the Personal Estate. Abr. Ca. Eq. 245.

So where one not of Kin, but a Stranger, was made Executor, and had considerable Legacies given him, although it was decreed by Sir Peter King in the Mayor's Court in Favour of the Testator's two Brothers, that the Surplus should be distributed, yet upon Appeal to the House of Peers, that Decree was reversed; not barely as it stood upon the Will, but that parol Proof ought to be received in Favour of the Executor's Title, consistent with the Will; and the Proof being full as to the Testator's frequent Declarations, that his Executor, though a Stranger, should have the Surplus, it was decreed accordingly. Abr. Ca. Eq. 245. 2 Vern. 648.

A. possessed of a long Term for Years by Will devised it to his Wife for Life, and after her Death to the Child she was then ensient with; and if such Child died before it came to twenty-one, then he devised one third Part of the same Term to his Wife, her Executors and Administrators, and the other two Thirds to other Persons, and made his Wife Executrix of his Will, and died; and the Bill was brought against her by the next of Kin to the Testator, to have an Account and Distribution of the Surplus of his Personal Estate not devised by the Will; and the two Questions were made, 1st, Whether the Devise to the Wife of one third Part of the Term was good, because it happened she was not then ensient at all; and so the Contingency, upon which the Devise to her was to take Place, never happened. The other Question was, Whether this Term, being Part of the Personal Estate, and expressly devised to her for Life, with such other contingent Interest on the Death of the supposed ensient Child before twenty-one, should shut her out from the Surplus of the Personal Estate which belonged to her as Executrix, and so the Surplus go in a Course of Administration to be distributed amongst the Plaintiffs as next of Kin. As to the first Part, my Lord Keeper delivered his Opinion, that though the Wife was not ensient at the Time of the Will, yet the Devise to her of such third Part of the Term was good; and as to the other Point dismissed the Plaintiff's Bill, and so let in the Executrix to the Surplus of the Personal Estate, notwithstanding the Devise to her of Part as aforesaid. Abr. Ca. Eq. 245.

E. B. by Will gave several Legacies therein specified, to all her next of Kin by Name; and likewise gave particular Legacies to M. and P. two Dissenting Ministers, and made them her Executors, but did not make any express Disposition of the Surplus of the Personal Estate; and the Executors were decreed to account and distribute the Surplus amongst the next of Kin to the Testator. 2 Vern. 361.

So where A. made B. his Executor, and gave him 20*l.* for Mourning, and B. not being of Kin to Testator, the Surplus of the Personal Estate was decreed to be distributed. Abr. Ca. Eq. 244. 2 Vern. 676.

So where D. gave 100*l.* Legacy, and the Interest of 300*l.* to his Wife for her Life, and made her and B. Executors, and gave to W. 20*l.* for Mourning; the Surplus was decreed to be distributed. 2 Vern. 677.

A. devised Lands to be sold for Payment of his Debts, and wills that the Surplus shall be deemed Part of his personal Estate, and go to his Executors, and gives to his Executors 100*l.* a-piece as a Legacy; and the Question was, Whether the Executors should have the Surplus to their own Use, or should distribute according to the Statute of Distributions. For the Executors it was insisted, that the Surplus should be Part of his personal Estate, and go to them, and that he meant them to their own Use; and his giving them a Legacy of 100*l.* a-piece cannot alter the Case, for the Surplus perhaps might be nothing, and therefore fore he gave them the 100*l.* that they might at all Events be sure of something, and not to exclude them of the Benefit of the Surplus; and this being a Devise of the Surplus after Debts and Legacies paid, cannot be a Trust in them, for then all their Trust is performed when Debts and Legacies are paid. On the other Side it was said, that the Words in the Will, that the Surplus should be Part of his personal Estate (and go to his Executors) were only intended to exclude the Heir, who else would have had it, and not to give any greater Interest to his Executors than they would have had otherwise; and of the same Opinion was my Lord Chancellor, and decreed accordingly. Abr. Ca. Eq. 244, 245.

And the Heir shall have the Glafs Windows, the Wainscot that is fixed by Nails or Screws, Furnaces of Lead or Brasses fastened to the Walls, or in the Ground, Lead fixed to the House, Doors within or without that are hanging, Locks, Keys, though the Executor hath the Lease for Years of the House; also the Heir must have the Trees, and the Deeds belonging to the Inheritance. Noy's Max. 107. 4 Co. 63, 64. 11 Co. 50. 3 Danv. Abr. 366.

The Executors shall not have the Deeds which concern the Inheritance, but the Heir. Roll. Abr. 915. 3 Danv. Abr. 366.

And if they are in a Chest, the Executors shall have the Chest, and the Heir the Deeds. Ibid.

If a Chest with Deeds be shut, the Heir shall have the Chest also; but if it be not shut, the Executor shall have the Chest. Ibid. cite 41 E. 3. 2. Fitz. Detinue 40. Br. Charters de terre 13. 14 H. 4. 30. Fitz. Detinue 35. The Words in Roll are soit enclose—ne soit enclose.

If the Testator recovers in Detinue for Deeds in a Box, the Executor shall have the Execution of this and the Damages and Costs, and not the Heir. Roll. Abr. 915. 3 Danv. Abr. 366.

But if the Testator recovers a special Deed, the Heir shall have Execution of this and of the Damages, if the Deed cannot be had. Ibid.

If a Man delivers a Deed to another to re-deliver to him and his Heirs, not having any Title to the Land, his Heir shall not have this Deed, but his Executors, because this was but a Chattel in him without Land. Ibid.

What Things
the Heir shall have, and not the Executor.

If a Man buys several Fishes, as Tenches, Breems, Carps, &c. and stores his Pond with them, and dies, the Executor shall not have the Fish, but the Heir, who has the Water. Roll. Abr. 916. Co. Lit. 8. a. They shall go with the Inheritance, because they were at Liberty, and could not be gotten without Industry, as by Nets and other Engines, otherwise it is if they were in a Trunk, or the like. Co. Lit. 8. a.

If a Man dies seised of a Park, the Heir shall have the Deer, and not the Executor. Roll. Abr. 916. Co. Lit. 8. a. So in case of a Warren or Dove-house, the Conies and Doves shall go to the Heir. Co. Lit. 8. a.

If one has a Lease for three Lives to him and his Assigns, this is no Chattel, nor shall go to the Executor or Heir, but to him that first enters and claims it as an Occupant in case no Assignment was made in the Life of the Lessee. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 77. But see before concerning Occupancy, p. 16. and the Statutes relating thereto, p. 19.

Where one is seised in Right of his Wife of Land, and is attainted of Treason or Felony, the Profit thereof accruing to the Crown is but a Chattel; and though the King grants it to one and his Heirs, yet it shall go to his Executors. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 78.

If one possessed of Land for a Term of Years only, grants a Rent out of the same to A. and his Heirs, or the Heirs of his Body, yet the Rent shall go to his Executors, and not to any Heirs, for being derived out of a Chattel, it cannot be any Freehold or Inheritance, but a mere Chattel. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 29.

So if one seised in Fee leases for Years, reserving a Rent, and devises the Rent to A. and A. dies, his Executor, and not his Heir, shall have it. Dyer 5. b.

In ancient Time the Heir was permitted to have an Action of Debt upon a Bond made to his Ancestor and his Heirs, but the Law is otherwise at this Day. Co. Lit. 8. a.

Paraphernalia.

The Wife after the Death of her Husband must have her Paraphernalia, (i.e. her wearing Apparel, which is necessary and convenient for one of her Station and Character) and not the Executors of her Husband. But she shall not have excessive Apparel, the Executors shall have them. Roll. Abr. 911. 3 Danv. Abr. 358.

If the Husband delivers to the Wife a Piece of Cloth to make a Garment, and dies, although it was not made into a Garment in the Life-time of the Husband, yet the Wife shall have it, and not the Executors of the Husband, because it was delivered to her for this Intent; but against the Debtee of the Husband the Wife shall have no more Apparel than is convenient. Roll. Abr. 911. 3 Danv. Abr. 358.

And a Chain of Diamonds and Pearl worth 370*l.* being usually wore by a Woman who was the Daughter of an Earl of Ireland, and a Baron of England, and the Wife of a Knight and Serjeant at Law of the King, shall be Bona Paraphernalia, so that the Husband cannot devise devise them from the Wife, but the Devise shall be void. Lord Hastings and Dowglas, Trin. 8 Car. B. R. Upon a special Verdict, the Defendant having married the Wife of Sir John Davis, who used the Chain in the Life of Sir John, Hil. 9 Car. B. R. it was argued per Cur., and Richarson and Croke thought the Wife should not have them, though no Debts, because of the Devise, viz. that she should not have them against the Will of her Husband, because they were not necessary for her, though convenient. But Jones and Barkely econtra, because convenient for her to wear; but Jones thought she should not have them as Paraphernalia, but by the Law of Reason and Convenience. But all the Court agreed she should have her necessary Apparel as Paraphernalia, and the Husband could not devise them from her, because necessary that she should not go naked, &c. Roll. Abr. 911, 912. 3 Danv. Abr. 358. See same Case Cro. Car. 343. Jon. 332.

Four Gold Chains, twenty-eight Dozen of Gold Buttons, and an Agate, were allowed to be Paraphernalia of a Viscountess. Moor 213. 2 Leon. 166.

But after all that has been said concerning the Interest of an Executor, if one makes his Will, and appoints an Executor, and gives him 10*l.* or no Legacy, [Qu.] nor makes any Disposition of the Residue of his Personal Estate after Debts and Legacies paid, this Residue shall not go to the Executor, but shall be distributed to the nearest Kin to the Testator, or their Representatives; for the Testator is esteemed to die intestate as to that Residue, and therefore an Administration shall be granted quoad the Residue. [Qu.]

(H) An Executor's Power.

THE Power which an Executor has is wholly by the Will; and therefore he may release an Action, Debts or Duties, or do any Thing as Executor before the Probate of the Will, if he afterwards proves it; but before Probate he cannot bring Actions for Debt, &c. due to the Testator, for he must shew the Testament proved under the Seal of the Ordinary, at least when he declares, he may take the Goods and Chattels to himself, or give Power to another to seise them for him; yet he cannot make a Testament of the Goods he has as Executor before the Property is altered; neither can Executors make a Division of the Goods amongst themselves till the Property is altered. Plowd. 277, 278, 280. 5 Co. 28. 9 Co. 38. Co. Lit. 292. b. Noy's Max. 103. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 49.

If an Obligee releases to the Executor of the Obligor before Probate of the Will, it is a good Release if he proves the Will after. Roll. Abr. 917.

If an Executor before Probate of the Will brings an Action of Debt upon an Obligation due to him as Executor, but when he declares he shews it in Court proved, it being proved after the Action brought, yet the Action is well brought, because he was Executor before Probate, though by Law he is not permitted to sue before Probate; yet this being proved, the Impediment is removed ab initio, for by his shewing the Will to the Court he hath satisfied the Ceremony which the Law requires. Roll. Abr. 917.

An Infant Executor after seventeen Years of Age has as much Power as another Executor of full Age; but he is disabled to do any Thing to his own Hurt; and therefore if he releases a Debt before he receives it, the Release is void, though it might have been good upon Payment; and if an Infant before seventeen Years of Age assents to a Legacy before the Debts are paid, the Assent is void; or if he do any Act that will be a Devastavit, or a Wasting of the Goods, in another Executor of full Age, it shall not bind him; he cannot sell a Lease for Years, which he hath as Executor, before he is twenty-one Years of Age, if he does, such Sale shall be void. 5 Co. 27, 29. Cro. Car. 490. Co. Lit. 264. b.

A Feme Covert Executrix may do any lawful Act which another Executor may do, but she cannot prejudice her Husband by releasing a Debt before it is paid, by assenting to a Legacy before the Debts are paid, &c. yet the Husband may do it. 5 Co. 27.

If the Goods of the Deceased are kept from the Executor, he may sue for them in the Spiritual Court, or at Common Law.

If one seised of a Messuage in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life, hath Goods in his House, and makes his Executors, and dies, his Executors shall have free Entry, Egress and Regress, to carry the Goods out of the House (to whomsoever it doth belong) in a reasonable Time. Lit. §. 69.

One Executor may sell a Lease for Years, and the Sale shall bind the other. Roll. Abr. 924.

the Executor chargeable (as far as the said Goods and Chattels extend) to a Creditor or Legatee; if a Stranger takes Goods out of his Possession, yet they are Assets in his Hands. Assets in the Hands of one Executor are Assets in the Hands of all the Executors; but such Things as are not valuable, or not to be sold, (as Presentation to a Church actually void, &c.) shall not be accounted Assets. The Goods of other Men in the Hands of the Executor shall not be Assets. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Assets. Co. Lit. 338, 374. b. Noy's Max. 104.

If the Cattle of the Testator do breed after his Death, the Young shall be Assets. So Wool growing on the Sheeps Backs, Goods and Chattels mortgaged to the Testator, and not redeemed, or the Money wherewith it was redeemed, shall be Assets. Off. of Ex. c. 9. p. 119.

If Lands are only devised to be sold, the Money and Profits of the said Lands shall not be accounted any of the Testator's Goods. 5 Co. 34.

If a Man devises Lands to be sold by J. S. for Payment of his Debts and Legacies, and makes J. S. his Executor, and dies, the Money made by J. S. upon the Sale of the Land shall be Assets in his Hands. Roll. Abr. 920. Lev. 224. Hard. 405.

But it is otherwise where the Land is devised to be sold by the Executors and others, for there the Money shall not be Assets, for they are not trusted therewith as Executors.

If Lands are devised to Executors for three Years for Payment of Debts, it is Assets in the Hands of the Executors; but if Lands are devised to be sold for Payment of Debts, it is no Assets before sold. Brownl. 34. 2 Brownl. 47. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 105.

If a Man devises Land held in Socage to be sold by his Executor, and that the Money thereof coming shall be disposed in Legacies specially expressed in the same Will, if the Executor after his Death sells the Land for Money, this Money shall be Assets in his Hands to the Legacies. Roll. Abr. 920. But not for Payment of Debts. Leon. 87. 2 Leon. 119. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 105.

So if a Devise be of such Land to his Executor, upon Condition to sell it, and with the Money thereupon accruing, and also with his Personal Estate to pay his Debts, and gives Power by the same Will to his Executor to sell it accordingly, &c. and after the Executor sells it accordingly, the Money received upon the Sale shall be Assets to the Debts. Roll. 920.

Also all Goods and Chattels, Debts, &c. that are recovered by the Executor by Action at Law or Suit in Equity after the Death of the Testator, shall be accounted Assets, but not before they are recovered; for if the Executor do never recover, or get a Debt into his Possession, he shall never be charged, provided he hath used his utmost Endeavour to recover it, and cannot do it. Co. 98. Off. of Ex. c. 6. p. 92. Roll. Abr. 920.

Damages also recovered for Goods taken away in the Life of the Testator shall be Assets. Lit. §. 192. Co. Lit. 124. a.

If an Obligee or Creditor is made Executor, the Debt is Assets, but he may pay himself before any other in equal or inferior Degree. If the Obligee or Creditor makes the Obligor or Debtor Executor, it is a Release of the Debt even in the Case of an Infant. Co. Lit. 264. b. Off. of Ex. c. 2. p. 43, 63.

But his Debt shall be Assets for so much to other Creditors, if there is not Assets besides. 2 Roll. Abr. 920, 921.

If Money due to the Testator is paid to a Stranger by Consent of the Executor, it is Assets in his Hands immediately; and if without such Consent, and he after brings an Action for it against the Receiver, (by which he agrees to the Receipt) and recovers, it will be Assets immediately without Execution, for the original Debtor is thereby discharged. Salk. 207.

If the Debtee makes the Debtor and a Stranger Executors, by which the Debt is extinct in the Hands of the Debtor, yet it shall be Assets in his Hands to Debts, for this is extinct but by the Will. Roll. Abr. 920. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 45. Yelv. 160.

So if the Debtee makes the Debtor Executor, and dies, by which the Debt is extinct in the Hands of the Debtor, yet it shall be Assets, for that this is extinct but by the Will. Roll. Abr. 920, 921. Wentw. Off. of Ex. 45. Yelv. 160. Salk. 304.

If the Testator was indebted to the King in 13<sup>l.</sup> and the King seized the Goods of the Testator in the Hands of the Executor for the said Debt, and after the Executor pays the 13<sup>l.</sup> and hath the Goods re-delivered, the Value of the Goods above the Sum of 13<sup>l.</sup> shall be Assets to other Debts. Roll. Abr. 921.

If Executor of Lessee for Years enters, and receives the Profits, yet no Part thereof will be Assets unless what is over and above the Rent, but is received by Executor as Tertenant, and appropriated to the Use of the Lessor. Salk. 79.

If A. takes a Bond in Trust for B. and dies, this is not Assets in the Hands of the Executors of A. Salk. 79.

So if the Obligee assigns over a Bond, and covenants not to revoke it, and dies, this is not Assets in the Hands of the Executors of the Obligee. Salk. 79.

If Money is brought into the Prerogative Court, and there delivered to the Executor as due to the Testator, and presently after in the same Court, by Order thereof, and the same Day he pays it to a Creditor of the Testator, and after such Payment and upon the same Day another takes out a Writ upon Plene Administravit pleaded, this Money will be taken to be Assets, though perhaps by special Pleading the Defendant might have been aided. Dyer 208.

A Bond of the Testator in the Hands of an Executor is not Assets till recovered, because but a Chose in Action; but if an Executor releases the Debt, he has made it Assets in his Hands to the Value of the whole Bond. Ow. 36.

Goods distrained or impounded are not Assets in the Hands of an Executor. Cro. Eliz. 23; Pound.

If an Executor puts in Suit a Bond of 100*l.* for Performance of Covenants, and the Parties submit to an Award, and it was awarded, that the Obligor shall pay 70*l.* in full Satisfaction, and that the Executor shall release, which is done accordingly, the Executor shall be taken to have Assets to the Value of the whole 100*l.* and though by the Award compelled to release, it was his own Act to submit to the Arbitrament. 3 Leon. 53.

If a Trespasser take Goods in the Life of the Owner, so that they were never more than a Chose in Action to his Executor or Administrator, they are not Assets till recovered; otherwise if taken after his Death. Cro. Eliz. 810.

If A. for Money due from the King takes a Debenture in the Name of B. and A. makes C. his Executor, and dies, and C. procures B. to release and surrender this, and for the same Money C. takes a new Debenture to himself, this is no Assets in the Hands of B. nor Devastavit in C. the Executor. Goulf. 115.

If an Executor being of full Age, upon Receipt of all Principal and Interest due releases the Bond, it is no Devastavit, and Assets only for the Money received, because nothing done but what in good Conscience ought to be. Cro. Car. 491.

If a Man makes A. his Executor during the Minority of B. and makes B. his Executor after his full Age, and after B. comes to full Age, and takes upon him the Executorship of the Will, the Goods of the Testator which are in Specie in the Hands of A. after the Executorship of B. are Assets in the Hands of B. though B. never had the Possession thereof, for he may have Trover and Conversion for them against him. Roll. Abr. 921.

If an Executor after he comes of full Age proves the Will, and releases all Actions to him who was Administrator during his Minority, and who then had Goods in his Hands of the Testator's, this is Assets in the Hands of the Executor, for the Law presumes he hath received as much as he released. But it was said, that if an Executor releases an Account, and it was uncertain what he should recover, it is not Assets; but if it can appear or be proved, that so much was due, it is Assets. Cro. Eliz. 43.

If an Executor of his own Wrong to whom 20*l.* is owing seizes Goods to the Value of twenty Pounds, intending to pay himself a Debt of that Value, this shall be Assets in his Hands, to make him chargeable to any Creditor or Legatee, if he alters the Property of any Thing belonging to the Testator, as by laying down his own Money in Lieu of it, it belongs to him; if one recovers against an Executor a just Debt of an hundred Pounds, and the Executor compounds for sixty Pounds, he shall not be allowed a hundred Pounds, to defraud other Creditors. 5 Co. 30. 8 Co. 132, 133.

Though a Plantation be an Inheritance, yet being in a foreign Country, it is a Chattel to pay Debts, and a Thing that is Testamentary. 2 Vent. 358.

By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. An Estate for the Life of another shall be Assets in the Hands of the Heir or Executors, and Trusts in Fee-simple shall be Assets in the Hands of Heirs.

Assets shall be always intended till the Executor alleges the Want of them in Excuse. 9 Co. 90, 94.

After all the Debts and Legacies are paid, that which remains belongs to the Executor by Virtue of his Executorship, but the Interest which the Executor hath as Executor in the Goods of the Testator before Probate of the Will, and before such Payments, is different from the Interest which every one hath in his own proper Goods; for then an Executor, as Executor, cannot by Will give away the Goods, but his Executor also shall be Executor to the first Testator. [Qu. of a mere or nude Executor.] Neither can the Goods which a Man hath as Executor be liable to pay his own Debts; but if an Executor alters the Property from the Testator to himself, by paying a Debt to the Value of such particular Goods named by him, Dyer 185, 187. or by paying the Rent, and receiving the Profits of a Lease, or Part of the Profits received equal to the Rent, the Goods and Profits received equal to the Rent are his own. 5 Co. 31.

(K) The Office and Duty of an Executor,

Burial.

IS first to bury the Testator in a decent Manner, according to his Rank and Character, but with Regard to his Estate left after Debts paid; for funeral Expences that are unreasonable ought not to be allowed out of the Testator's Estate. Whatever the Executor lays out extravagantly, if there is not enough to pay Debts, he must bear it at his own Expence.

Funeral Charges that are necessary must be paid before Debts and Legacies. Dr. and Stud. Dial. 2. c. 10. Roll. Abr. 926.

Probate.

2. The Executor must prove the Will before the Ordinary, either by common Form by his own Oath, or by Witnesses besides his own Oath, if any that have Interest call him to do it; and though a Will is proved in common Form, or per Testes, it must be exhibited in the Office belonging to the Ecclesiastical Court, to be kept by the Register; and a Copy thereof in Parchment is to be delivered to the Executor under the Ordinary's Seal, which Copy in Parchment so sealed is called the Probate, but it is rather the Certificate of the Probate. 2 Inst. 488. Perk. 486. 9 Co. 37, 38.

A Will may be proved before the Ordinary which contains Goods and Lands, though formerly a Prohibition used to be granted as to the Lands. If there is a Devise of Lands and Tenements of Freehold in the Testament, it is proper also to prove the Will by Witnesses in the Court of Chancery. Vent. 207. 6 Co. 23.

The Probate of the Will, with Respect to Goods and Chattels, is necessary; for though as to Freehold Lands devised it is not at all material to prove the Will before the Ordinary, yet as to Goods and Chattels it is necessary, to give the Executor Power to bring Actions, and to confirm the Acts which he did as Executor before Probate. Roll. Abr. 917. Noy's Max. 103.

If all the Goods of the Deceased, which comprehends Specialties, as Bonds, Statutes, &c. (Qu. of a Lease for Years) be within the same Diocese in which the Testator lived and died, the Executor must prove it before the Bishop of the Diocese, or his Commissary, or before the Archdeacon, or his Official, according as the Composition has been made with the Bishop, or as Prescription directs. Dyer 305. Roll. Abr. 908, 909.

But sometimes the Executor has been obliged to shew how an Archdeacon, &c. has Power to prove a Will, whereas the Power of the Bishop, or his Commissary, will be allowed of Course. Perk. 491, 492.

Debts without Specialty are to be accounted Goods in that Diocese where the Debtor lives. Vide Canon. 92.

If all the Goods and Chattels lie in a peculiar Jurisdiction, then the Will ought to be proved before him that is Judge of the Peculiar. If some Part of the Goods is in a Diocese and Part in a Peculiar of the same Diocese, there must be two several Probates. [Qu.] Cro. Jac. 718, 719.

But if the Goods are within two Peculiars within the same Diocese, then the Will must be proved before the Archbishop of the Province. And so before the Archbishop, if there are bona Notabilia, i. e. if the Testator had Goods and Chattels at the Time of his Death of the Value of five Pounds, or more, lying in another Diocese besides that wherein he lived and died. Lev. 78.

In some Places Lords of Manors have the Probate of the Wills of their Tenants within the Manor by Custom Time out of Mind. 5 Co. 73. 9 Co. 37. Therefore it is to be observed, that if Probates of Wills or Letters of Administration are denied in the King's Courts, and thereof an Issue joined, it shall be tried by a Jury, and not by Certificate of the Ordinary, because this Power of the Ordinary was not originally of Ecclesiastical Cognizance. 2 Inst. 231. 9 Co. 31, 40, 41.

By the 21 H. 8. c. 5. The Fees for the Probate of Testaments are limited, and the Ordinary may convene Executors to prove the Testator's Will, and to bring in an Inventory.

By the 23 H. 8. c. 9. A Man is not to be cited out of his Diocese, or peculiar Jurisdiction, to prove a Will, or to take Letters of Administration, unless there are bona Notabilia.

Inventory.

3. The Executor should make an Inventory of all the Goods and Chattels of the Deceased at the Time of his Death, with their Value, and of all Debts due to him, which ought to be made and appraised in the Presence of the Executor, or by two or more of the Creditors, or two of the next of Kin, or in their Default by two or more of the Neighbours or Friends to the Deceased; and then the Executor must deliver the same upon Oath to the Ordinary, unless the Ordinary gives him Time to bring in the Inventory, or upon good Cause dispenses with it. Until the Inventory is made and brought into the Office of the Ordinary, it shall be presumed, that the Executor hath Assets to pay all the Debts of the Testator. [Qu.]

4. It is the Executor's Office and Duty to pay Debts and Legacies. A Bond or other Security for Payment is to be accounted Payment. Hob. 250. 2 Vent. 358. Debts and Legacies.

All Debts must be paid before Legacies. In Payment of Debts this Order must be observed: 1. Debts:

1. After the Charge of the Funeral, Inventory, Opposition by a Caveat and the Probate, the King is to be preferred for his Due upon Record and Specialty. Off. of Ex. c. 12. p. 179. Roll. Abr. 927. Bac. L. Tracts 161.

2. Then the Forfeitures for not burying in Woollen are to be allowed out of the Estate of the Deceased before any Statute, Judgment, or other Debt, Legacy, or any other Duty whatsoever. Per Stat. 30 Car. 2. c. 3.

3. All Money due for Letters to the Post-Office shall be paid before any Debt due to a private Person. Per Stat. 9 A. c. 10.

4. Afterwards Debts due to private Persons upon Judgments against the Testator in any Court of Record, without any Consideration of first or last. 4 Co. 60. 5 Co. 28.

But by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 20. Judgment not doggeted shall not affect Lands or Tenements as to Purchasers or Mortgagees, or have any Preference against Heirs, Executors or Administrators, in their Administration of their Ancestors, Testators or Intestates Estates.

Yet amongst Judgments, he that first sueth Execution shall be preferred, but before Execution it is at the Election of the Executor to pay whom he will first.

5. Then Statutes or Recognizances, those forfeited before those that are for Performance of Covenants, &c. not broken; otherwise amongst Statutes and Recognizances the Executor may give Precedency, as he pleases, before Execution. 4 Co. 60. 5 Co. 28, 29. Off. of Ex. c. 12. p. 201, &c. Contra Cro. Jac. 734, 822.

6. Then Debts due for Arrearages of Rent upon Leases, &c. in Writing, (though some say upon parol Leases too) because it favours of the Realty in Regard of the Profits received, for the Lessor may distrain and pay himself, whether the Executor will or no. Off. of Ex. c. 12. p. 209, 210, 211. 2 Vent. 184. Bac. L. Tracts 161. 3 Lev. 267.

7. Then Debts due upon Specialties, as Obligations, Bills Penal, or single Bills sealed without Penalty. Off. of Ex. 204, &c.

And sthly, Debts due upon Bills or Notes unsealed, or verbal Contracts; for there is no Difference betwixt Notes and Shop-Books, &c. Some prefer a Debt due for Wages of Servants, that are within the Statute of Labourers, before Debts due upon Shop-Books. Roll. Abr. 927. 9 Co. 87, 88, 89, 90.

In such an Action where the Testator might wage his Law, the Executor is not bound to pay; therefore they are not chargeable in an Action of Debt, as they may be in an Action of the Case, where no Wager of Law is allowed, except in Detinue.

Note, That amongst Debts that are of equal Degree, the Executor may always pay himself first. Plowd. 543. Off. of Ex. p. 204, &c.

But an Executor of his own Wrong cannot retain, as before mentioned. 5 Co. 30. 2 Ventr. 180.

And those Creditors that at first commence their Suit are to be paid first. [Qu.] If not those that first get Judgment and Execution against him; those Debts that are due are to be paid before those that are not due, or before those whose Day of Payment is to come. Noy's Max. 104. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 2. c. 10. Roll. Abr. 926, 927. Bac. L. Tracts 161.

Yet (notwithstanding what has been said concerning the Commencement of Suit first, and those whose Day of Payment is to come) Executors will sometimes confess Judgment presently to a Friend for his Debt, (for he is not bound to stand Suit) and plead dilatory Pleas (to wit, such confessed Judgment) to a Stranger's Debt, that his Friend may be first paid upon Execution.

But if Judgment for a hundred Pounds is suffered to stand to an Agreement, and the Plaintiff compounds for sixty, the Judgment for the whole Sum will not be allowed to keep off other Creditors, as before-mentioned. 8 Co. 133. 9 Co. 110.

If no Suit is begun, the Executor may make a voluntary Payment of the whole Debt to any one Debtor in equal Degree, though he hath no Assets left to pay unto another any Part of his Debt. Debts due to the King otherwise than by Matter of Record, as for Sale of Timber, Amerciaments in his Courts-Baron, &c. are like the Debts due to a Subject. Sed vide Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 39.

The same Order throughout is to be observed by Executors of Executors.

If the Executor pays in any other Order, he must pay the Debts of a higher Degree out of his own Estate, if he hath not Assets to pay all the Creditors.

After all the Debts are paid in such Order as directed, the Executor must pay Legacies. 2. Legacies. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 2. c. 11. 8 Co. 136. 9 Co. 88.

And herein the Executor may prefer himself if any Legacy is given to him, though there is nothing left to discharge the other Legacies. Afterwards he may pay what Legacies he pleases first, though there is not enough to satisfy all the Legatees, or he may pay to each of the Legatees a Part of their Legacies in Proportion with the other Legatees, if there is not enough to pay every one his whole Legacy. This is the fairest Way; for it is not here as in the Case of Debts due from the Testator; the Executor may not know the Number of the Debts, and therefore shall be allowed to pay those which come to his Knowledge first; but here the Legacies are all known as soon as the Will is opened. Plowd. 545. Off. of Ex. c. 12. p. 204, &c. 2 Vent. 358, 360.

But if there is a specifick Legacy, or any particular Thing given in Specie, as a Lease, a Horse, a Silver Cup, &c. this must be delivered accordingly before any other Legacy, if there are Assets. Off. of Ex. c. 19. p. 317.

If there is enough to pay all the Legacies, they must be all paid.

If one binds himself and his Executors in an Obligation, &c. to perform a certain Thing, and in his Will gives divers Legacies, and dies, leaving Goods sufficient only to pay this Obligation when it is forfeited, this Obligation shall be no Bar to the Legacies, because it is uncertain whether it may ever be forfeited. Roll. Abr. 928.

The Executor therefore may make a Delivery upon Condition (viz.) to return the Legacy, if the Obligation, &c. is ever forfeited, and the Penalty recovered. 2 Vent. 358.

If there is not enough to pay Debts, or more above Debts, the Legatees must lose their Legacies.

By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. No Executor or Administrator shall be charged on a special Promise to answer Damages out of his own Estate, unless some Note thereof be in Writing, and signed by the Party to be charged, or some other by him authorized.

Account.

5. The Executor must pass his Account before the Ordinary concerning the Goods and Chattels of the Testator. 9 Co. 39, 40.

The Inventory shews what is his Charge, and the Account must be his Discharge for so much as he can prove to be laid out in Payments for funeral Charges, making the Inventory, Probate of the Will, Debts and Legacies; this Account will discharge him of all Suits in the Spiritual Court, but will not discharge him of Suits at Common Law for there each Particular must again be proved.

By Stat. 1 Jac. 2. c. 17. Executors must not be called to an Account ex officio, &c.

By Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. An Action of Account lies against the Executor or Administrator of a Guardian, Bailiff, Receiver, &c. and the Auditors shall examine the Parties upon Oath, and shall be allowed as the Court shall judge reasonable, by the Party on whose side the Balance shall be.

Overseers of a Will.

If one maketh Overseers in his Will, they have no Power to execute the Will, or to intermeddle with the Goods; they may give Counsel and Advice, and if Executors will not be prevailed on to do their Duty, the Overseers may complain of them in the Spiritual Court. Off. of Ex. c. 1. p. 13, 14.

Waste by Executor.

Lastly, if an Executor does waste or mis-employs the Estate of the Deceased, or sells the Goods of the Testator at an Under-value, though by Submission to Arbitrators, or does not observe the Law which directs him in the Management thereof, by paying what ought not to be paid, or by not observing the right Order of Payment, or doth any Thing by Negligence or Fraud against his Trust; it is a Devastavit or Waste; and he shall be charged so much upon the Devastavit returned by the Sheriff De bonis propriis upon his own Goods, as if it were for his own proper Debt. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Devastavit. Noy's Max. 104. Off. of Ex. c. 13. p. 226, & c. 8 Co. 133.

Where there are many Executors, the Fraud or Negligence of one shall not be chargeable upon the Rest. Off. of Ex. c. 13. p. 231. Roll. Abr. 929, 930.

If the wasting Executor dies, his Executors or Administrators are chargeable. (See Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M.)

But it is not so with Administrators, for they have but one Authority, which must be executed by all joined together. Off. of Ex. c. 13. p. 232. Contra Roll. Abr. 920.

Executor de son tort, who.

An Executor de son tort, is he that is neither lawful Executor or Administrator, and yet acts as an Executor.

As when he takes in his Hands the Goods of the Deceased, and uses or converts them to his own Use, and alters the Property by Gift, Sale, &c. though he has Letters Ad colligendum bona defuncti, for the Ordinary himself has no Power to give or sell them. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Administrator. Roll. Abr. 918. 5 Co. 32. a. 33. b.

Or where he has a Writ Ad colligendum granted by the Commissary, in which Authority is given Ad vendendum & venditioni exponendum bona intestati peritura, & quæ sine detrimento servari non possunt, & ad computum inde reddendum; by Force of which he sells Grain; this is such such an Administration by which the Defendant should be charged of his own Wrong, for the Ordinary himself could not do this. Roll. Abr. 918. Went. Off. of Ex. 250.

Or if he delivers the Goods of the Deceased to Creditors or Legatees in Satisfaction of their Debts or Legacies; or receives any Debt due to the Deceased, and gives a Release for the same; or releases any Debt due to the Deceased before it is paid; or pays any Debt due from the Deceased, except it be with his own Money. Noy's Max. 102. 5 Co. 31, 32, 33. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 39. Roll. Abr. 918.

If Lessee for Years in Reversion dies intestate, and his Wife assigns the Term, and after takes out Administration, and assigns to another, the first Assignment is void, for upon such Term no Entry would be made, nor could there be an Executor de son tort thereof. Moor 26.

But where such Termor dies Intestate, and one enters and possesses himself thereof, he thereby becomes Executor de son tort. Style 406, 432. 2 Mod. 274.

If an Executrix makes a fraudulent Gift of all her Testator's Goods, and yet continues the Possession thereof, and marries, and dies, and the Husband being possessed of Part thereof pays Legacies, he is chargeable as an Executor de son tort. Cro. Eliz. 405.

If Lessee for Years dies Intestate, and one enters, he thereby becomes an Executor de son tort, and if he commits Waste an Action of Waste lies against him. 3 Lev. 35.

If a Woman after the Death of her Husband takes more of her Apparel than is convenient, she is Executrix of her own Wrong. Roll. Abr. 918. Vide post. as to her Paraphernalia.

A Woman Executrix administers, and takes Husband, and they are after divorced Causa præcontractus, and the Wife appeals from the Sentence, and pending this Appeal the Husband administers the Goods, and the Wife dies, the Appeal not being determined, and the Administration of the Goods is granted to another, whether the Husband may be charged as Executor of his own Wrong for the said Administration, Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 918.

An Executor de son tort cannot retain to satisfy his own Debt, yet upon Plene Administravit he may give in Evidence Payment of just Debts, and though in an Action brought by the rightful Executor or Administrator he cannot plead Payment of Debts, &c. to the Value, yet upon the General Issue pleaded, such Payments shall be recouped in Damages. Carth. 103, 104.

A. makes a Will, and J. S. Executor thereof, and after makes a latter Will, and thereof makes J. D. Executor, and dies, and after J. S. proves the first Will in the Prerogative Court, and there this is allowed, decreed and published for a Will, and after J. S. administers the Goods of the Testator, by Force of this, for half a Year after, and within this Time, B. who was bound by Obligation of 100*l.* to the Testator, pays the Money to J. S. he not having Knowledge of any other last Will, and thereupon J. S. gives a Release, and after the Probate of the first Will is repealed, and the Will itself disannulled, and the last Will proved, * this Payment made and Release is no Bar of an Action upon the said Obligation by J. D. the last and true Executor, because it does not lie in the Power of the Ordinary to make another Executor than he who is made Executor by the Testator himself; and though it be mischievous to him who pays the Money, and the Executor who proved the Will before he knew of the last Will; yet the Mischief would be as great on the other Part, if the Ordinary should have Power to make another Executor than he who is the true Executor made by the Testator, and he should have Power to dispose of the Estate of the Testator. Adjudged upon the Advice of all the Judges, M. 16 Car. 2. B. R. Greves and Weigham; for the Ordinary has no Power to grant Administration, or to give any other Power to dispose of the Estate of the Testator, where he had made an Executor. Roll. Abr. 919.

If an Executor de son tort possesses himself of Goods of an Intestate, and sells them, and after takes out Administration, this Sale is good by Relation. Moor 126.

An Intestate's Widow took his Goods into her Hands, and by the Direction of his Son sold them, and the Son after took out Administration, and paid the just Debts of the Intestate upon Specialties, as far as all the Intestate's Goods amounted to. An Action was afterwards brought against the Wife as Executrix de son tort, who pleaded Plene Administravit, and shewed the special Matter in Evidence; upon which it was adjudged that she should not be charged, but that the Plaintiff should be barred; for this Action being brought after the Administration committed, and when she was chargeable for those Goods to the Administrator, and when the Administrator had fully satisfied in paying the Debts of the Intestate as far as all the Goods of the Intestate amounted unto, it is not Reason she should be charged against the Plaintiff, for then she should be double charged, viz. to the Administrator, and also to the Creditors; also it is not Reason that more should be satisfied out of the Goods of the Intestate unto the Creditors than the Goods of the Intestate amounted unto, and so much being satisfied by the Administrator, they should not have more; but if the Action had been brought against her her before the Administrator had fully administered all in Debts, peradventure it might have been otherwise, for she having gained Goods into her Hands, is chargeable for them as Executor de son tort Demesne, until she gives Satisfaction for them to the true Administrator, or she herself satisfy for the true Debts to the Value; whereupon it was adjudged for the Defendant. Cro. Car. 88, 89.

Who shall be chargeable as Executors.

An Executor of his own Wrong shall be bound to pay Legacies as well as Executors of Right.

If a Woman Executrix takes Husband who wastes the Goods, and the Wife dies, by the Common Law there is no Remedy against the Husband; but in this Case by the Ecclesiastical Law the Husband shall be punished and compelled to make Execution.

And if an Executor wastes the Goods, and dies, his Executor shall not be charged for them; for Actio personalis moritur cum persona. Roll. Abr. 919, 920. not even in the Case of the King. 2 Lev. 110. Vent. 292. sed vide Stat. 30 Car. 2. c. 7. & 4 & 5 W. & M. post.

If an Executor of his own Wrong wastes the Goods, and dies, his Executor shall not be charged. Roll. Abr. 920.

If an Executor durante minore etate wastes the Goods after the Age of the Infant, he shall be charged upon the special Matter, and not as an Executor of his own Wrong, because he had a lawful Authority to that Time. Noy 86.

Although an Executor de son tort is not chargeable to Creditors further than he has received, yet for his tortious Intermeddling the rightful Executor may have an Action against him, and shall recover Damages, though not according to the Value of the Goods, because what he has lawfully paid shall be recouped. Skin. 274. Carth. 104. Vent. 349.

So that if a Man dies Intestate, and a Stranger takes the Intestate's Goods, and uses or sells them, he is an Executor of his own Wrong, and must be sued as Executor; for no one can be an Administrator of his own Wrong, no Action lying against an Administrator by Common Law. 5 Co. 33, 82, 83. vide Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11.

But if there is a legal Executor who has proved the Will, or if a legal Administration is granted before the Stranger intermeddled, a Stranger cannot be an Executor of his own Wrong, but is a Trespasser against the Executor, &c. because the rightful Executor may be charged, and the Goods taken by the Stranger out of his Possession are Assets in his Hands: Yet though there be an Executor or Administrator, if the Stranger takes the Goods, claiming to be Executor, pays and receives Debts, &c. he may be charged as Executor of his own Wrong by such express Administration; but all lawful Acts which he doth as Executor of his own Wrong are good, and he must answer only as far as he acts. 5 Co. 33, 34.

An Executor of his own Wrong cannot retain for his own Debt against another Creditor, because then the Creditors would strive amongst themselves to seize the Goods of the Testator. 5 Co. 30.

By the Stat. 4 & 5 Eliz. c. 8. If one obtained Goods or Debts of an Intestate, or any Release or Discharge of any Debt or Duty to him belonging, by procuring by Fraud Administration to be granted to a Stranger of mean Estate, and without a valuable Consideration from him, taking such Grant and Release, he shall be chargeable as Executor of his own Wrong, so far as the Value of the Goods or Debts so obtained or released shall amount unto, but may deduct Money owing to him from the Intestate, and other Payments by him made, which lawful Executors or Administrators ought to have made.

And by Stat. 30 Car. 2. c. 7. reciting, That the Executors and Administrators of such Persons who had possessed themselves of considerable Personal Estates of other dead Persons, and converted the same to their own Use, had no Remedy by the Rules of the Common Law to pay the Debts of those Persons whose Estate had been converted by their Testator or Intestate, which had been found very mischievous, and many Creditors defeated of their just Debts, although their Debtors left behind them sufficient to satisfy the same, with a great Overplus, it is enacted, That all and every the Executors and Administrators of any Person or Persons, who as Executor or Executors in his or their own Wrong, or Administrators, shall waste or convert any Goods, Chattels, Estate or Assets of any Person deceased, to their own Use, shall be liable and chargeable in the same Manner as their Testator or Intestate would have been if they had been living.

And by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 14. reciting, That forasmuch as it had been a Doubt whether the said Act extended to any Executor or Executors, Administrator or Administrators of any Executor or Administrator of Right, who for want of Privy in Law were not before answerable, nor could be sued for the Debts due from or by the first Testator or Intestate, notwithstanding that such Executors or Administrators had wasted the Goods and Estate of the first Testator or Intestate, or converted the same to his or their own Use; for Remedy whereof, it is enacted, That all and every the Executor and Executors, Administrator or Administrators of such Executor or Administrator of Right, who shall waste or convert to his own Use Goods, Chattels or Estate of his Testator or Intestate, shall from henceforth be liable and chargeable in the same Manner as his or their Testator or Intestate should or might have been.

S E C T. VI.

Of acquiring Personal Estates, &c. by Administration and Distribution.

Property in Goods may in some Measure be acquired by Letters of Administration; as that if he pays the Intestate's funeral Expences or Debts with his own Money, he may retain so much of the Goods in Kind of the Intestate as is equivalent to the Money paid, and shall have the Property therein, &c. (See what Interest he has in the Intestate's Goods, &c. post.) But now he must not have the Surplus of the Goods and Chattels of the Intestate after his Debts, &c. paid, (though an Executor may of the Goods of the Testator) for it must be distributed according to the Statutes, &c. hereafter mentioned, by which Alteration in the Law, those who receive their Shares of such Surplus acquire so much of the Intestate's Estate by Distribution.

(A) Administration, what, and who is an Administrator.

Administration is the Management (committed by the Ordinary in Writing under Seal) of the Goods and Chattels of one that dieth Intestate, or by not appointing an Executor in his Will, or where the Executor refuses to prove his Will. Terms de la Ley, Administration. 2 Inst. 397.

He to whom such Management is committed is called an Administrator, or if committed to a Woman she is called an Administratrix.

Administration, what.

Administrator or Administratrix, who.

(B) By whom Administration may be granted.

AN Administration is to be granted by the Bishop of the Diocese, or Archdeacon, or Judge of the peculiar Jurisdiction where the Party whose Goods are to be administered lived at the Time of his Death; but a Judge of a Peculiar ought to shew his Grant, how he has Power to grant it. Cro. 791. 2 Cro. 556.

Regularly, he that shall have the Probate of a Will shall have the Grant of an Administration when the Party dieth Intestate; and if there are bona Notabilia, the Administration must be granted there where the Probate of a Will in such a Case is to be granted (viz.) by the Archbishop of the Province. In the Time of the Vacation of a Bishoprick, the Guardian of the Spiritualities may grant the Administration.

The Ordinary upon good Cause may also revoke an Administration.

By the Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11. Where one dies Intestate, (i. e. either in Fact where he makes no Will, or in Law where he makes a Will, and the Executors refuse before the Ordinary, or all die Intestate. 9 Co. 40. a.) the Ordinaries shall depute the next and most lawful Friends of the Intestate to administer his Goods; which Deputies shall have an Action to demand and recover the Debts due to the Intestate in the King's Courts, to enable them to administer, &c. and shall answer also in the King's Courts to others, to whom the said Intestate was bound, in the same Manner as Executors shall answer; and shall be accountable to Ordinaries as Executors are in case of a Testament.

This Act gave Power to Ordinaries to grant Administrations, which they could not do before; for originally the King, who is Parens Patriæ, and has the supreme Care to provide for all his Subjects, that every one should enjoy that which he ought to have, used by his Officers to seize the Goods of the Intestate to preserve and dispose of them for his Burial, and for Payment of his Debts, and for Advancement of his Wife and Children, if he had any, and if not, those of his Blood. And afterwards this Care and Trust was committed to the Ordinaries, but no Power was given to Ordinaries to sell or dispose of the Goods either to his own Use or the Use of any other, though the Goods were in Danger of perishing, but only to the Use of the Deceased, as to pay his Debts, &c. 2 Inst. 398. 9 Co. 38, 39.

Statute.

Neither could the Ordinaries bring Actions for Recovery of the Debts of the Intestate, though an Action lay against them at Common Law, or their Committees, by the Name of Executors, if they intermeddled with the Goods, and would not pay the Debts. After

P p

Possession

Possession of Goods they might have an Action of Trespas for carrying them away, or before Possession sue for them in the Spiritual Court. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 39, 40. 2 Inst. 398.

What Alterations the said Statute has made.

But now by the said Statute of 31 Ed. 3. six Alterations are made; three as to the Ordinaries, and three as to the Administrators.

I. As to the Ordinary. First, Whereas before the Statute he was not compellable to grant Administration, now by the Act of Parliament he is commanded and thereby compelled to grant Administration. Secondly, He must grant it to the next and most lawful Friends, (i. e. the next of Blood who are not attainted of Treason or Felony, &c.) But the Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 5. (which see post.) gives Power to the Ordinary to commit Administration to the Wife of the Intestate, or to the next of Blood, or to both, and so as to the Wife has altered the Act of 31 E. 3. Thirdly, The Ordinary himself has not greater Interest in the Goods by this Act, but has a greater Power than he had before, in this only that he may appoint Administrators, who shall have by this Act greater Interest and Ability than they had before the Act. 9 Co. 39, 40.

Under the Word Ordinary Commissaries, Archdeacons, Officials, and other Ecclesiastical Judges are comprehended for this Purpose within the Meaning of the Act.

II. As to the Administrators. First, The Administrators have by this Act a greater Interest in the Goods, &c. than the Ordinary ever had, and as absolute a Property in the Goods and Chattels as Executors have, which they had not before this Act. [But now see the Statute of Distribution, post.] Secondly, Administrators shall recover the Debts, and have all Actions as Executors may have, which they could not do by the Common Law. Thirdly, Administrators shall answer to Actions, &c. in the same Manner as Executors, and be accountable to the Ordinaries as Executors are. 9 Co. 40. a. b.

By Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 5. In case any Person dies Intestate, or the Executor refuses to prove the Testament, the Ordinaries shall grant Administration of the Goods of the Person deceased to the Widow of the same Person deceased, or to the next of Kin, or both, as the Ordinary shall think fit, taking Surety for the true Administration thereof; and in Case where divers Persons claim the Administration as next of Kin, which be in equal Degree of Kindred to the Person deceased, the Ordinary hath Election to accept any one or more making Request; or where but one or more of them, and not all, being in equal Degree, make Request, the Ordinary may admit the Widow, and him or them only making Request, or any one of them, at his Pleasure.

Now, as before it is observed, this Act as to the Wife has altered the 31 Ed. 3. c. 11. and as to the next Kin, where an Executor refuses to prove the Testament, the Statute supposes that such an Intestate's Intent was to prefer the Kin; but if he makes a residuary Legatee, that Presumption is taken away; in that Case, the residuary Legatee shall have the Administration, who is to have what remains after the Debts and Legacies are paid. * An Administration Durante minore etate of an Executor is not within the Statute, or of Necessity to be granted to the Widow of the Testator, nor Administration pendente lite. Hob. 250. Vent. 219. 2 Lev. 56.

An Administrator pendente lite about a Will may bring Actions. 2 Stra. 917. 2 Will. Rep. 576. Fitzgib. 202. Barnard. K. B. 423. See Andr. 366.

(C) To whom Administration may be granted.

How the Law is now.

As to who may administer.

NOW the Law is thus as to whom Administration shall be granted: It shall be granted,

1. To the Husband of the Wife's Good and Chattels, as of a Lease for Years.
2. To the Wife of the Husband's Goods and Chattels. 4 Co. 51.

But an Administration may be granted to the Father before the Widow. T. Raym. 93. Show. 351.

Administration to the next of Kin shall be repealed at the Suit of the Husband; otherwise of the Wife. Ld. Raym. 685.

And a residuary Legatee ought to be preferred before the Widow in an Administration cum testamento annexo. Vent. 217, 218, 219.

If there is no Husband nor Wife living, then,

3. To the Children, Sons or Daughters.

* Administrator durante minore etate of an Executor ought to shew that the Executor is under the Age of 17. But the Omission is aided by Pleading over. Ld. Raym. 409.

† Administrator pendente lite must aver that the Contest continues. 2 Ld. Raym. 1071.

4. If Children die first, to the Father, or if the Father is dead, to the Mother. 3 Co. 40. If there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Father dies Intestate, the Son shall have the Administration, and not the Grandfather. Abr. Ca. Eq. 249. 2 Vern. 125. And if no Father or Mother, then,

5. To a Brother or Sister of the Whole Blood; and for want of them,

6. To Brother or Sister of the Half Blood, for they are all next of Kin in equal Degree. Style 74, 75, 102. And if none of the Half Blood, then,

7. To the next of Kent, Uncle, * Aunt or Cousin; and if none of these desire the Administration, but refuse it, which they often do, because the Intestate's Debts are greater than the Estate will bear, then,

8. To a † Creditor. Bac. L. Tracts 160. And for want of all these,

9. To any other Person or Persons, at the Discretion of the Ordinary; or the Ordinary Letters Ad may ex officio grant to a Stranger Letters Ad colligendum bona defuncti; or the Ordinary may colligendum. take them into his own Hands, to pay the Debts of the Deceased, in such Order as an Executor or Administrator ought to pay them; but he or the Stranger who has Letters Ad colligendum cannot sell them without making themselves Executors of their own Wrong. Dyer 256. Roll. Abr. 918. Vent. 350. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 39.

If one has made a Will, and after the Death of the Testator the Executor proves it, and Administration then dies Intestate, the Ordinary must grant Administration De bonis non, &c. viz. non administratis to some other Person. 2 Roll. Abr. 907. Administration de bonis non, &c.

An Executor obtains an Award of Execution on a Scire facias; the Administrator De bonis non must bring his Scire facias on the original Judgment. 2 Ld. Raym. 1049.

If an Executor has not proved the Will of the Testator, and dies, his Executor is not Executor of the first Testament, but Administration cum testamento annexo must be granted: But where an Executor has proved the Will, and dies, making an Executor, the second Executor may be Executor to the first Testator. Roll. Abr. 907.

Yet if an Administrator dies Intestate, or makes an Executor, his Administrator or Executor shall not be Administrator or Executor to the first Intestate or Testator, but the Ordinary is to grant a new Administration, or an Administration De bonis non, &c. of the Goods of the first Intestate or Testator; therefore where an Administrator has Judgment, and dies, his Executor cannot sue out Execution upon that Judgment, for none shall have Execution of that Judgment but he who shall be subject to the Payment of the Debts of the first Intestate, to which the Executors of the Administrator are not subject. 5 Co. 9.

If an Executor refuses to prove a Testament, or if the Testator has appointed no Executor, Administration must be granted cum testamento annexo to the next of Kin, &c. Administration cum testamento annexo.

If an Infant is made Executor, Administration must be granted cum testamento annexo to his Guardian or next Friend Durante minore etate; but such Administration ceases when the Infant is seventeen Years of Age, and so it does if an Infant Executrix marries a Husband of full Age before she is seventeen Years of Age. 2 Inst. 398. 5 Co. 29. 6 Co. 67. Durante minore etate.

If an Infant is intitled to an Administration, it must be granted to another Durante minore etate, because till he is of full Age he cannot enter into a Bond with Sureties to administer faithfully, as required by the Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 10. but before that Statute the Administration ceased at seventeen Years of Age.

An Administrator Durante minore etate may bring Actions, but he cannot sell any of the Goods of the Deceased, unless it is upon Necessity, as for the Payment of the Debts, &c. or for fear the Goods, should perish. He cannot let a Lease if the Grant of the Administration is special, as Ad opus, commodum et utilitatem Executoris durante minore etate, & non aliter, &c. but if the Grant of the Administration is general without such Restraint, such an Administrator may let Leases, &c. 2 Noy's Max. 106. Roll. Abr. 910. Cro. Eliz. 718, 719. Actions by him. Selling Goods. Granting Leases.

On Judgment against an Administrator Durante minore etate a Scire facias lies against the Executor, &c. when of Age. Ld. Raym. 265.

Mandamus lies not for an Administrator Durante minore etate. 2 Stra. 892.

An Administration may be granted Durante absentia extra Regnum, or pendente lite, which is as good as an Administration Durante minore etate. Administration Durante absentia extra Regnum, or pendente lite.

Administrator Durante absentia must aver in his Declaration, that the Executor is absent in Parts beyond the Sea. 2 Ld. Raym. 1071. Where Administration does not cease.

If Administration is granted to two, and one dies, yet the Administration does not cease, for it is not like a Letter of Attorney to two, where by the Death of one the Authority ceases; but is rather an Office; and Administrators are enabled to bring Actions in their own Names, they come in the Place of Executors, and therefore the Office survives. 2 Vern. 514.

* The Aunt denied a Prohibition to stay the granting Administration to the Great Grandmother. Ld. Raym. 686.

† A Creditor who has had Administration may retain against the next of Kin. Ld. Raym. 689.

(D) The Interest of an Administrator in the Goods, &c. of the Intestate.

AN Administrator by virtue of his Administration has Interest in all the Chattels Real and Personal of the Intestate, and in all the Goods and Chattels either in Possession or Action, in like Manner as an Executor in the Goods of the Testator deceased. And all these Goods and Chattels which belonged to the Intestate at the Time of his Death, and which come to the Hands of the Administrator, shall be Assets, or sufficient Goods and Chattels to make him chargeable to the Creditors as Executors are to Creditors and Legatees, but before they come to his Hands he is not chargeable. Roll. Abr. 919. 2 Inst. 398.

By Custom of the City of London, if a Contract is made by a Citizen of London to pay Money to another Citizen, and he who ought to pay dieth Intestate, the Administrator shall be bound to pay it as if it were by Obligation. 5 Co. 82.

What Administrator may retain.

But though an Executor shall have all the Residue or Surplusage of the Goods and Chattels after Debts and Legacies paid by virtue of his Executorship, it is otherwise in case of an Administration, for an Administrator can take no Advantage by his Administration, (unless by paying his own Debt first, (2 Roll. Abr. 922.) if it is equal in Degree with others, or by taking the Goods and Chattels as they are appraised) because the Surplusage must be distributed amongst the next of Kin, if there are any Kindred, according to the Statute of 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 10. hereafter mentioned.

If a Debtor takes Administration of the Goods and Chattels of his Creditor, this shall not discharge the Debtor, but his Debt shall be Assets, because the Intestate did not act to free him from the Debt, whereas by making a Debtor Executor the Testator doth thereby release the Debt. 8 Co. 136. Roll. Abr. 922. But the Duty remains, and is Assets. Co. Lit. 264. b.

When an Administrator (as well as an Executor) has paid funeral Charges, Debts, &c. with his own Money, he may retain so much of the Goods of the Intestate in Kind according to the Value, and shall have Property in them.

(E) The Power of an Administrator.

HE can do nothing till an Administration is granted to him, except Acts of Necessity and Charity. See before concerning Executors de son tort.

But an Executor has his Power from the Will, and may act in many Cases before Probate, (of which see before concerning the Power of Executors).

After the Administration is granted, the Power of an Administrator is almost equal with that of an Executor; yet if there are many Administrators, one of them cannot sell Goods, release Debts, &c. without the other, but they must all join, because they have but one Authority. Noy's Max. 106. Bac. L. Tracts 162.

(F) The Office and Duty of an Administrator; and therein how, to whom, and of what Distribution is to be made.

THE Office and Duty of an Administrator is the same as that of an Executor, as to the Burial of the Deceased, Payment of funeral Charges, making an Inventory, Payment of Debts, and passing the Account. And as an Executor must take a Probate of the Will, so the Administrator must apply to the Ordinary for Letters of Administration, upon granting of which he must enter into a Bond to make an Inventory, &c. as hereafter mentioned.

Bond to make.

By Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 10. All Ordinaries and Ecclesiastical Judges (upon granting Administrations) must take Bond of the Administrator, with two or more Sureties, (Qu. Of an Administrator cum testamento annexo) with Condition, that the Administrator shall make a true and perfect Inventory of all the Goods and Chattels of the Deceased, and exhibit it into the Registry of the Ordinary's Court by such a Day, and to administer according to Law, and to make a true and just Account thereof, and to make Distribution of the Surplusage as followeth, (viz.)

Inventory. Administer, and account and distribute the Surplus.

How Distribution is to be made.

One Third to the Wife of the Intestate, the Residue amongst his Children and such as legally represent them, if any of them are dead; except such Children (not Heirs at Law) who had any Estate by Settlement of the Intestate in his Life-time equal to the other Shares. If their Shares are not equal to the other Shares, those Children shall now have so much of the Surplusage as shall make the Estate of all to be equal. But the Heir at Law shall have an equal Share in the Distribution with the other Children, without any Consideration of what he hath of Land by Descent, or otherwise, from the Intestate.

If there are no Children, nor legal Representatives of them, one Half of the Intestate's Goods and Chattels shall go to the Wife, the Residue equally to the next of Kindred to the Intestate in equal Degree, and those that represent them. If there is no Wife, all shall be distributed amongst the Children; if no Child, all shall be distributed amongst the next of Kin, to the Intestate in equal Degree and their Representatives. (But see Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 17. post.)

No Representative shall be admitted amongst Collaterals after Brothers and Sisters Children.

On the said Statute, the Question was on the Clause, That if there should be no Representations among Collaterals beyond Brothers and Sisters Children, whether it be intended of Brothers and Sisters to the Intestate, or whether, when Distribution falls out amongst Brothers and Sisters, though remote Relations to the Intestate, Representation shall be admitted; and the Court held, that the Representation should be only between Brothers and Sisters to the Intestate. Abr. Ca. Eq. 249. 2 Vern. 233. Salk. 250.

If one dies Intestate, leaving a Grandmother, and Uncles and Aunts, the Grandmother is intitled to the Personal Estate, in Exclusion of the Uncles and Aunts. Abr. Ca. Eq. 249. Salk. 251.

Security must be given by those to whom such Distribution shall be made, to refund to the Administrator in Case Debts afterwards appear, as mentioned by the Lord Chancellor in the Case of Edwards and Freeman, post.

A Man died Intestate, leaving a Brother of the whole Blood, and Sister of the Half Blood; and it was held, that the Sister of the Half Blood should come in for an equal Share with the Brother of the Whole Blood. Mod. 209. Vent. 316. 2 Lev. 173. Vern. 437. 2 Vern. 124. Show. Parl. Ca. 108. 2 Vent. 317.

By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. The Act of the 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 10. shall not extend to the Estate of a Feme Covert that dies Intestate, but that their Husbands shall have Administration of their Personal Estates, as before the making of the Act; and the Husbands are not compellable to make Distribution of their Personal Estates.

By Stat. 1 Jac. 2. c. 17. If after the Death of the Father any of his Children shall die Intestate without Wife or Children in the Life of the Mother, every Brother and Sister, and the Representatives of them, shall have an equal Share with the Mother.

A. had three Brothers, one died, leaving three Children, another two, and the third five; then A. died Intestate; and it was resolved, that Distribution should be per Capita, and not per Stirpes; and that all the Children should have equal, because none take by Way of Representation, but all as next of Kin. Abr. Ca. Eq. 249.

If a Man makes his Will, and his Son Executor, but makes no Disposition of the Surplus of the Personal Estate; the Son dies without proving of the Will; the Testator is dead Intestate as to the Surplus, and the same shall be distributed amongst the next of Kin of the Testator. 2 Vern. 634.

F. on the Marriage of the Daughter of B. covenanted, in Case of a second Marriage, to pay the first Son by the first Wife 500*l.* there was a Son and several other Children of the first Marriage; the Father died Intestate; and it was held, that the Heir must bring the 500*l.* into Hotchpot, although in Nature of Purchaser under a Marriage-Settlement. 2 Vern. 638, 639.

The great Case between Edwards and Freeman, Mic. 1727. on the Statute of Distributions was thus:

F. on his Marriage entred into Articles, in Consideration of the said Marriage, and of 4000*l.* Portion, to settle such an Estate to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to his intended Wife for Life, Remainder to the first and other Sons of the Marriage successively in Tail Male, Remainder to Trustees for 1000 Years (in Trust) to raise Portions for Daughters in Case there were no Sons; that is to say, if but one such Daughter 5000*l.* and if two or more, then 6000*l.* equally between them, to be paid at their respective Ages of eighteen Years, or Days of Marriage, which should first happen; and 80*l.* per Ann. Maintenance in the mean Time to each Daughter, with Remainder to his own right Heirs, and gave a Bond of 10000*l.* Penalty for Performance of Covenants: The Marriage took Effect, and they had Issue one Daughter only, one of the Plaintiffs, and no Son; then the Wife died, and afterwards F. married a second Wife; and on that Marriage made a Settlement of this Estate amongst others; but neither the second Wife, nor her Trustees, had any Notice of the Articles made on the first Marriage. Afterwards F. died Intestate, leaving a Son and a Daughter by his second Wife, and left a Personal Estate to the Amount of 20000*l.* and upwards; the Daughter by his first Wife, at that Time, was about twelve Years of Age, and some Time since intermarrying with the Plaintiff, they brought their Bill to have an Account of the Personal Estate of F. and their distributory Share thereof; and the only Question was, whether the 5000*l.* should not be looked upon to be so far an Advancement of the Daughter of the first Marriage, that if she would have any farther Share of her Father's Personal Estate, they must bring this 5000*l.* into Hotchpot, upon the several Clauses and Intent of the Statute of Distribution, 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Argued for Plaintiff, 1. That they were intitled to a distributive Share of the Father's Personal Estate, without Regard to this 5000*l.* which was no Advancement either within the Words or Meaning of the Act of Parliament, which intended only an Advancement of Children after they come in esse, and when they were about being married or disposed of in the World; but this, if any, was an Advancement long before the Plaintiff was born, and when it was wholly unknown and uncertain whether there ever would be such a Daughter.

2. That it was likewise contingent and uncertain, after she was born, whether she would ever be intitled to this Fortune or not; for if she had died before eighteen or Marriage, it would have sunk into the Inheritance for the Benefit of the Heir at Law, according to the Case of Pawlett and Pawlett, 2 Vent. 366. and she was but twelve Years of Age at the Time of her Father's Death, and therefore might have died before she was intitled to this 5000*l.*

3. That her distributive Share of her Father's Personal Estate vested in her immediately on her Father's Death, or not at all; and then it could not be de vested out of her, by the Accident of her attaining eighteen, or being married, whereby this 5000*l.* became due.

4. That this 5000*l.* was a Debt upon the Father's Estate, which she was intitled to as a Creditor or Purchaser, in Consideration of her Mother's Marriage and Portion; for which was cited the Case of Feast and Feast, 3 April 1726. where on a Marriage-Treaty Sir F. F. covenanted to leave his Wife 2000*l.* at his Death, 2000*l.* to his eldest Son, and 1000*l.* a-piece to his younger Children; and afterwards being a Freeman of London, died, leaving several younger Children; and it was held in that Case, that the 1000*l.* a-piece to the younger Children being due only by Covenant was a Debt on the Personal Estate, and not being to be paid till after the Father's Death, was no Provision or Advancement either within the Statute of Distributions, or the * Custom of London, to bar them of their Customary or Distributary Shares of their Father's Personal Estate, which were greatly advanced at the Time of his Death.

5. That this was not an Advancement within the Statute, it was urged, 1. That the Statute mentioned only two Cases wherein there is to be any bringing into Hotchpot: 1st, Where the Child had been advanced by the Father with any Estate. 2<sup>dly</sup>, Where he had been advanced with any Portion; as to the first, the Plaintiff cannot be said to have any Estate by those Articles, for the Word Estate in the Statute means Lands in Opposition to Portion; and in the latter Part of it, it is mentioned Lands by Settlement expressly; but in the present Case the Plaintiff cannot be said to have any Provision of Lands, the Settlement of the Lands being only in the Nature of a Mortgage for her Portion: Secondly, That this Portion is not within the Statute, as an Advancement by the Intestate in his Life-time, being neither payable nor demandable till after his Death; and therefore in the Case of Rowland and Shepherd, where the Father agreed to give in Marriage with his Daughter the Sum of 7000*l.* to be paid by Instalments of 1000*l.* a Year; and the Father had paid 6000*l.* of this Portion, but died before the last 1000*l.* became due; and on a Bill brought for a Distribution of his Personal Estate, it was decreed by Lord Macclesfield, and affirmed by the then present Chancellor (King), that the 6000*l.* paid was not Part of the Advancement to be brought into Hotchpot, but that the remaining 1000*l.* was a Debt to be paid out of the Personal Estate.

2. That the Statute must operate either at the Time of the Father's Death, or within a Year after at farthest; but in this Case the Plaintiff was not intitled to her 5000*l.* either in her Father's Life-time, or within a Year after; and is the Distribution to wait till it be seen, whether she would attain eighteen, or be married? Suppose there had been a Son at the Time of the Father's Death who had after died without Issue, would this Portion have been an Advancement in the mean Time, so as to debar her of her distributary Share? for being contingent at first, such Value cannot be set on it in Equity, as Gamesters do on Chances; and if Part is to be laid up till the Contingency happens, it is no Advancement in the mean Time; nor is there any Instance that one distributary Share should be laid up to make a Heap.

3. This 5000*l.* was not a voluntary Provision moving from the Father; but the Plaintiff was a Purchaser thereof, in Consideration of her Mother's Portion; and suppose a Child had Money of his own, and agreed with his Father, in Consideration thereof, to have a Portion from his Father after his Death; or if a collateral Relation had purchased such a Portion from the Father for his Child, certainly this would not be an Advancement, and the Intent of the Statute was to make them all equal out of the Father's Personal Estate, not out of what was purchased for them by others, or by the Mother, as in this Case.

4. That

4. That this was not a Debt originally payable out of the Personal Estate, but out of Lands, notwithstanding the 10000*l.* Bond for performing of Covenants; and though the Defendants, who claim under the Settlement made on their Mother's Marriage, shall not be affected as to the Lands thereby settled, for want of Notice, yet as to the Lands comprized therein, they shall be liable in the first Place; and if they are not sufficient, the Personal Estate must be applied in Aid to make it up, by reason of the Bond.

5. Besides, no Case can be produced where a Portion settled by Marriage-Articles had been brought into Hotchpot as an Advancement by the Father; and yet it must often have happened that Fathers who have made such Settlements have died Intestate, and is therefore of great Consequence.

For Defendants it was argued, 1. That in the first Place no Settlement being made pursuant to the Articles, and the Bond for Performance thereof, the Land will in no Sort be subject thereto, but in Aid of the Personal Estate if that were deficient; and that too by the Assistance of a Court of Equity on the Agreement, for between the Heir and Executor the Personal Estate shall be applied in the first Place to discharge Incumbrances even on the Real Estate, and would have been so in this Case where it rested barely in Covenant, and on the Bond.

2. That the 5000*l.* thus provided for by the Settlement was an Advancement within the Meaning of the Statute, which appears throughout to intend and preserve an Equality between the Children; and if any Finesse of Reasoning were made use of in the Construction thereof, it ought rather to be in Support of that Intent.

3. That the Subject Matter of the Statute was chiefly Personal Estate, and yet there is no Reason to exclude a Provision by a Real Estate; and therefore where the Statute says, Other than such Child who shall have an Estate by Settlement, why should not that be extended both to Real and Personal Estate? It is true, the Statute is not perfectly correct according to the Rules of Grammar, and therefore where Portion is mentioned in the first Part, it is omitted in the second; and what is called Estate in the first Part, is called Land in the second.

4. That if the Lands are in Equity to be considered as a Settlement of Lands, then it is an Advancement according to the Act; if they are not to be considered as a Settlement of Lands, then it is an Advancement by a Portion; and as to the Objection, that this was not a voluntary Provision of the Father, but arose from the Contract of the Parties; it was answered, that the Statute makes no such Distinction, and therefore neither ought this Court to make it; for the Act only intended an Equality between the Children, whether the Provision was voluntary or by Purchase; and a Child provided for either one way or other is provided for; and it is not like the Cases put, where a Child, either with his own or a Relation's Money, purchases an Estate, or a Sum of Money from the Father; for this certainly is no Provision by the Father, but a direct Sale as much as it would have been to any Stranger; and in the Case of Newland and Shepherd, the Question was not, whether the 6000*l.* paid should not be brought into Hotchpot, if she had desired to be let into a further Share; but whether the 6000*l.* being more than her Share for the Whole, she should besides have the other 1000*l.* and it was agreed that she should; besides there is no Pretence to say, that the Custom of * London is to govern an Act of Parliament.

5. That this Portion, though not payable till after the Father's Death, was nevertheless a Provision for her by him in his Life-time, as the Act speaks; as the principal Part of it, viz. the Security, was executed by him in his Life-time, and as he was not at Liberty to controul it; and suppose he had given such a Portion at his Death, would not this be a good Provision within the Statute? and here the Portion is payable as soon as possibly it can be wanted, viz. at eighteen, or Marriage, and a Maintenance of 80*l.* per Ann. in the mean Time; and though it is true, that a Portion out of Lands sinks in the Inheritance if the Party dies before it becomes payable, which if it were of a Personal Estate it would not; that is not material, since the Statute makes no Distinction, whether the Portion is payable out of the Real or Personal Estate.

6. That if a Bill had been brought immediately after the Father's Death for a Distribution, there would be no Inconvenience in setting apart a Sum to answer the Contingency when it should happen, no more than in the Case of Debts; which is every Day done; and there are some whose Estates are not got in till several Years after their Death; and a Distribution may very properly be made thereof from Time to Time, as they come in; neither is the Distribution wholly to wait till they are got in; and in the Cases of Finney and Finney, and Loney and Hutchinson, it was decreed, that the Heir at Law should bring into Hotchpot whatever Share he received out of the Personal Estate, if he would have any more; and in the Case of Kelway and Kelway, on the Statute 21 Jac. 1. it was held, that where a Man died leaving a Wife and no Children, that the Wife being intitled to one Moiety of his Personal Estate, the other Moiety shall be distributed equally between his Mother and Brothers and Sisters; and yet the Case of leaving a Wife is not mentioned in that Statute.

Personal

The Court were all clear of Opinion, That this was an Advancement by the Father in his Life-time within the Meaning of the Statute, though contingent and future, so that she could not have that and her distributory Share likewise; and the Master of the Rolls said, that the Civil Law made no Difference between a Real and Personal Estate, but only moveable and immoveable; and the Words of the Act, which speak of a Provision made by the Father in his Life-time, are very proper to distinguish between that and a Provision made by his Will; and cited the Writ De rationabili parte bonorum, and Swinb. 200. to prove, that a future Provision will exclude the Heir or any other of the Children; and cited Pawlett and Pawlett, 2 Vent. 366. Vern. 321. and the Chief Justice said, Suppose the Father had left but 2000*l.* Personal Estate, it would be extremely hard, that the eldest Daughter should have her 5000*l.* and a Share of the 2000*l.* too.

And per Lord Chancellor, the Case of Feast and Feast is not to be cited in this Case, that being a Cause by Consent, and the Question very little considered; and he said, he thought any Settlement in or out of Lands, either by Annuity, Rent or Portion, would be a Provision within the Statute; and that such Provision might be valued and brought into Collatio bonorum if they think it worth their while, that the 5000*l.* whether called contingent or not, is an Interest, and such a one as would happen within a reasonable Time, viz. six or seven Years after the Father's Death, and there was then no Son; and it was such an Interest as was valuable. That the Distribution must be made as the Estate stands at the Father's Death, and the Parties are to give Bond to refund if Debts afterwards appear; and future Debts due to the Intestate must be distributed as they can be got in; that here the Contingency has happened, and she is now at Liberty to say, whether she will stick to that Provision, or bring into the Computation of Collatio bonorum, in order to have an equal Share with the Rest. But as to the 80*l.* per Ann. Maintenance, that is not to be brought in, being only for the Education and Maintenance of the Daughter, which the Parents were best Judges of, and accordingly the Decree was pronounced per Lord Chancellor King, assisted by Raymond C. J. and the Master of the Rolls, and Price and Fortescue J. Abr. Ca. Eq. 249 to 254.

And by said Stat. 29 C. 2. c. 3. An Estate pur auter vie shall go to the Executors or Administrators of the Party that had the Estate, and be Assets in their Hands, if no Devise be thereof made, or no special Occupant thereof.

But since the making that Statute, Doubts having arisen, where no Devise was made of such Estates, as to whom the Surplus should belong after Debts, &c. paid; therefore by Stat. 14 G. 2. c. 20. sect. 9. it is enacted, That such Estates pur auter vie, if there be no special Occupant thereof, of which no Devise shall have been made according to said Stat. 29 C. 2. c. 3. or so much thereof as shall not have been so devised, shall go, be applied and distributed in the same Manner as the Personal Estate of the Testator or Intestate.

London and Province of York.

By Stat. 1 Jac. 2. c. 17. Such Part of any Intestate's Estate within the City of London or Province of York as any Administrator has by Virtue only of being Administrator, shall be subject to Distribution as in other Cases, and the Custom observed therein shall not be subject to extend to it.

Accounting.

By Stat. 1 Jac. 2. c. 17. No Administrator shall be cited to render an Account of the Personal Estate of the Intestate, otherwise than by Inventory, unless it be at the Instance of some Person in Behalf of a Minor, or of one having a Demand out of such Personal Estate as Creditor or next of Kin.

Of acquiring Goods, &c. by Legacy.

THE Property in Goods, &c. may be acquired by Legacy.

(A) Legacy what, and Legatee who.

Legacy what.

A Legacy is a particular Bequest or Gift of Goods and Chattels to one or more by Testament. In some Cases a Bequest of Lands, &c. may be called a Legacy, Terms de la Ley, Verb. Legacy. 2 Inst. 81.

Legatee who.

A Legatee or Legatary, is he to whom the Legacy is given.

And a Residuary Legatee, is he to whom after the particular Legacies all the Rest of Testator's Goods is given.

(B) To

(B) To whom Legacies are to be paid, or not.

A Legacy of 100*l.* was devised to an Infant of about ten Years of Age; the Executor paid this Legacy to the Father, and took his Receipt for it; when the Infant came of Age, the Father told him he had such a Legacy of his in his Hands, but could not pay it immediately; but however would not have him trouble the Executor about it, for that he would give it him: Upon this the Son rested satisfied for about fourteen or fifteen Years, and he and his Father carried on a joint Trade together, and then became Bankrupts; and upon a Commission taken out against the Son, this Legacy of 100*l.* was assigned, amongst other Things, for the Benefit of his Creditors; and the Plaintiff, the Assignee of the Commission, brought this Bill against the Executor, to have an Account and Payment of the Legacy. And for the Defendant it was insisted, that this would be an extreme Hardship on him if he should be obliged to pay it over again; that he had already fairly and honestly paid it to the Father whilst he was in good Circumstances, and if Application had been made sooner, he might have had his Recompence over against the Father; that the Father was by Nature Guardian to his Children, and such Payments to him have formerly been allowed good, though now indeed this Court has thought fit to extend their Care farther for such Children, and disallowed such Payments; but the Circumstances of this Case were such, that the Defendant it was hoped would not be answerable again for it. My Lord Chancellor said, that if the Father had not made his Son such Promise of Recompence, and the Son had acquiesced all that Time, the Case might have been more doubtful; but this Promise of the Father drew him to forbear applying to the Executor sooner; and since his Father had not, nor could now make good his Promise, being a Bankrupt likewise, the Reason of the Son's Forbearance was at an End; and he thought the Rule of this Court, in not suffering Parents to receive their Childrens Legacies, was founded on very good Reason; and therefore left this Case might hereafter be cited as a Precedent, when the Circumstances attending it were forgotten, and to discountenance and deter others from paying such Legacies to the Parents, (though he did not deny the Hardships of this particular Case) he decreed against the Executor; which was affirmed on a Rehearing. Abr. Ca. Eq. 300, 301.

A. B. devised 100*l.* to P.'s Wife, to be paid within six Months after Testator's Death: The Executor paid the same to the Wife, and had her Receipt for it; but it was decreed that the Executor should pay it over again to the Husband with Interest. Vern. 261.

(C) Who are incapable of taking by Legacy, or of being Legatees.

BY Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. §. 10. Every married Woman being a Popish Recusant convicted (her Husband not being convicted) who does not conform herself by the Space of one whole Year next before the Death of her Husband, shall be disabled to be Executrix or Administratrix of her said Husband, and to have or demand any Part or Portion of her said late Husband's Goods or Chattels.

And by Stat. 13 W. 3. c. 6. §. 6. & 1 Geo. 1. c. 13. Every Person that executes any Office, &c. and neglects or refuses to take and subscribe the Oath of Abjuration of the Pretender, and Allegiance to the King, &c. mentioned in the said Statute, shall be incapable of any Legacy or Deed of Gift, &c.

And by Stat. 5 Geo. 1. c. 27. If any of the King's Subjects, being Artificers in Wool, Iron, Steel, Brass or other Metal, Clock-maker, Watch-maker, or other Artificer of Great Britain, shall go out of the King's Dominions to exercise or teach the said Trades to Foreigners; and if any of the King's Subjects in any foreign Country, exercising any of the said Trades shall not return into this Kingdom within six Months after Warning given by the Ambassador, &c. of Great Britain, and from thenceforth inhabit within this Realm, such Person shall be incapable of taking any Legacy, &c. and shall forfeit his Goods, &c.

(D) Difference between the Property and Use being bequeathed.

THERE is a Difference where the Property of a Thing is given, and when only the Use of it is given; for a Man may give the Use of his Plate, &c. to one for Life, Remainder to another; but if the Plate was given for Life, or an Hour, a Remainder to another would be void, and the Legatee may dispose of it; but if he does not dispose of it, he in Remainder shall have it. Noy's Max. 31, 99, 100. But now in Equity a Bequest of a Chattel Personal for Life, &c. is construed to mean the same Thing as a Bequest of the Use of it: For Example, D. by Will devised all his Goods in C.'s House to G. for Life, and after her Decease to the Heir of Sir J. D. upon which the Question was, Whether he

that was Heir of Sir J. D. should take these Goods as Devisee, and the said Goods go to his Executors, although such Heir died in the Life-time of G. or whether he that was Heir of Sir J. D. at G.'s Death should have them? It was urged that these Goods were only the Furniture of the said House, and quasi an Heir-Loom.* But it was decreed that they absolutely vested in the Person of him that was Heir of Sir J. D. at the Time of his Death. Vern. 35, 36.

(E) Where Legacies are recoverable; and of an Executor's Assent to Legacies.

Where recoverable.

Legacies are not recoverable at Common Law, but in Chancery or the Spiritual Court. But if an Executor promises, that in Consideration of Forbearance to sue for his Legacy he will pay the Legacy at such a Time, by virtue of that Promise it becomes a Debt, and may be recovered at Common Law.

Executor's Consent to a Legacy, where necessary.

The Common Law gives the Executor Time to consider of the Value of the Goods, and State of the Debts, that he may safely pay a Legacy without Danger to his own Goods.

The Legatee must have the Assent or Agreement of the Executors, or one of them, for till then he may not enter or take his Legacy, because the Executor is to pay Debts of Record to the King, or by Bill and Bond sealed, or Arrears of Rent, or Servants or Workmens Wages, before Legacies; but not Debts of Shop-Books, nor Bills unsealed, or Contract by Word, for before them Legacies are to be paid; and if one of the Executors assents to pay Legacies before the Debts which should be first paid, he shall pay the Value thereof out of his own Pocket, if there be not otherwise sufficient to pay the said Debts; and this is the Reason why no Property can be transferred to the Legatee without the Consent of the Executor, even if it is a Specifick Legacy, as a Piece of Plate, &c. it cannot be taken without his Assent; for otherwise, by such Legacies, the Testator might give all his Goods away to defraud his Creditors. Perk. §. 570. Roll. 618. Co. Lit. 111. a. 10 Co. 49. Bac. L. Traſts 163.

Where a Lease for Years is devised, the Executor's Assent is necessary. And where a Lease for Years is bequeathed to one for Life, or so many Years as one shall live, the Remainder over, the Assent to the first Estate shall be effectual to him in Remainder. 8 Co. 95, 96. 10 Co. 47. Co. Lit. 111. a.

If the Legacy is given to the Executor himself, it shall come to him as Executor, except he chuses to take it as Legatee, for the Law gives him his Election. 10 Co. 47.

When there are many Executors, the Assent of one is sufficient to transfer the Property to the Legatee; and one Executor may take his Legacy without the Assent of his Co-Executors, for one may release, &c. and if there is not sufficient to pay Debts, he only that assents shall answer of his own proper Goods. Perk. §. 572. Bac. L. Traſts 163.

An Executor may assent before and after Probate; an Infant Executor before seventeen Years of Age cannot bind himself by his Assent; nor a Feme Covert where she is Executrix, but her Husband's Assent in that Case is sufficient. Cro. El. 719. 5 Co. 29.

An Administrator Durante minore etate of an Executor, cannot assent to a Legacy unless there be Assets to pay Debts, &c. 5 Co. 29. b.

Assent implied or express.

An Assent may be implied, as well as express; for if a Horse is bequeathed, and one offers to buy him of the Executor himself, who directs him to go to the Legatee to buy him, or if the Executor himself offers the Legatee Money for him, &c. this is an implied Assent, and sufficient; for if the Executor once declares his Assent to the Legacy, the Legatee may take it, though the Executor revokes his Assent afterwards, because by the Assent the Property was vested in the Legatee. 4 Co. 28. Plowd. 543, 544.

Where the Assent is not necessary.

The Executor's Assent is not needful in a Devise of Lands by one seised in Fee-simple, if he devises the same in Fee, in Tail, for Life, or Years. Co. Lit. 111. a.

(F) At what Time Legacies are to be paid.

A. By Will gives a Legacy to B. at twenty-one, and if he died before twenty-one, then to the Plaintiff; B. dies before twenty-one, and the only Question was, whether the Plaintiff was intitled to the Legacy presently, or must wait till B. if he had lived, would have been twenty-one; and on Time taken to consider of it, my Lord Chancellor was of Opinion, the Plaintiff was intitled to the Legacy presently; but where a Legacy is given to one, to be paid at twenty-one, so as to be an Interest vested in him presently, though not payable till twenty-one; if the Party dies before that Age, his Executors or Administrators shall not have it till the Legatee, if he had lived, would have been twenty-one Years of Age. Abr. Ca. Eq. 299, 300.

If a Legacy is given to a Child payable at twenty-one, and the Child dies before, though his Administrator shall have the Legacy, yet he must wait for it till such Time as the Child, if he had lived, would have come to twenty-one. 2 Vern. 199.

But if a Legacy is devised to J. S. to be paid at twenty-three Years of Age, and if he dies before, to go over to A. and B. and J. S. dies an Infant, the Legacy shall be paid presently. 2 Vern. 283.

If a Legacy be given payable at twenty-one, with Interest in the mean time, and the Infant dies, his Representative may sue for it immediately. Stra. 238.

A Legacy of 500*l.* was given to the Defendant's Testator when he should be twenty-four Years old; the Plaintiff being his Sister, and Executrix to the Testator that gave the Legacy, paid the Legatee 250*l.* of it at twenty-one, to put him out into the World, and gave him a Bond to pay him the other 250*l.* at a Day certain, which was the very Day he would attain his Age of twenty-four Years; he died before that Age. To a Bill to have the 250*l.* repaid, and the Bond delivered up, the Defendant pleaded the Payment, and the Bond which was for Payment at a certain Day, and became a Duty thereby; and upon Debate the Plea was ordered to stand for an Answer, the Lord Chancellor declaring it was fit to be heard on the Merits. 2 Vern. 31.

(G) In what Order Legacies are to be paid.

IF the Executors doubt that they shall not have enough to pay every Legacy, they may pay which they list first; but they may not sell any special Legacy which they will to pay Debts, or a Lease of Goods to pay a Money Legacy; but they may sell any Legacy which they will to pay Debts, if they have not enough besides. Bac. L. Trañs 163.

(H) Of abating Legacies.

A Specifick Legatee is not to abate in Proportion with other Legatees, where there is a Deficiency to pay the Debts. 2 Vern. 111.

If A. by Will devises to his Wife all his Personal Estate at a Place called W. and devises to B. a Legacy of 500*l.* and several other Legacies, and Assets prove deficient to pay the 500*l.* and other Legacies, yet the Wife's Legacy being a specifick Legacy, shall take Place. 2 Vern. 688.

If a Man devises a specifick Legacy, and likewise other Legacies, though the other Legacies fall short, yet the Legatee must have his specifick Legacy intire; but if a Man devises several Legacies, and 100*l.* to one and 50*l.* to another, &c. there, although he directs the Legacy of 100*l.* to be paid in the first Place, yet if the other Legacies fall short, then the Legatee of 100*l.* must make a proportionable Abatement of his Legacy. Vern. 31. 2 Chan. Rep. 138.

J. S. having 4000*l.* secured to him by Bond in the Names of A. and B. in Trust for himself, devised it to his Daughter, (now married to the Plaintiff) and made her residuary Legatee; and by the same Will devised a Lease he had in Farm to R. D. and there not appearing Assets at his Death to pay his Debts, this Farm devised to R. D. was sold for Payment of Debts: Afterwards by Decree of this Court the 4000*l.* was adjudged to be Assets to pay Debts, and was brought into Court, and there to remain for that Purpose; the Plaintiff proposed to have what remained of the 4000*l.* paid out of Court to him, all Debts being (as was said) paid, and the Defendant R. D. opposed it, till he had first had Satisfaction out of it for the Value of the Farm devised to him, and sold for Payment of Debts. The Court held that the Devise of this Sum of Money was a specifick Legacy, and therefore R. D. can have but a proportionable Part of the Value of his specifick Legacy out of it. Abr. Ca. Eq. 298.

(I) Of Refunding Legacies.

A Creditor shall make Legatees refund, when Assets become deficient, though there be no Provision made for Refunding. Vern. 94. 2 Vern. 205. 2 Vent. 360.

So where A. being indebted to B. made C. his Executor, and C. wasted the Estate, and died, having devised several Legacies, and made D. Executor, which Legacies D. paid; and B. having exhibited a Bill against D. the Executor of C. for his Debt due from the first Testator, and against the Legatees in the Will of C. to compel them to refund their Legacies, there not being sufficient Assets of the first Testator; and it was decreed accordingly. Vern. 162.

If an Executor pays out the Assets in Legacies, and afterwards Debts appear, of which he had no Notice at the Time of Payment of the Legacies, he by a Bill in Equity may compel the Legatees to refund. Chan. Ca. 136. If he had been compelled by a Decree in Equity to pay the Legacies, he may make the Legatees refund. 2 Vern. 205.

But

But if an Executor voluntarily pays a Legacy, or assents to the Devise thereof, he cannot, either in Favour of other Legatees or Creditors, compel the Legatee to refund. Vern. 90, 453, 460. 2 Vern. 205. 2 Chan. Ca. 9, 145. 2 Chan. Rep. 248.

One Legatee shall compel another to refund where the Assets become deficient, though there be no Provision made for refunding. Vern. 94. But if the Executor is solvent, and he voluntarily paid the Legacy, the unsatisfied Legatee may come upon him, and oblige him to pay it out of his own Purse. Chan. Rep. 133. 2 Chan. Ca. 132. And therefore the Executor is always to be made a Party to the Suit. Chan. Ca. 136, 248. 2 Vent. 360.

(K) What a Widow may discount out of Legacies to Children for their Maintenance.

WHEN a Wife is made Executrix with Legacies to the Children, and she marries again, at the Instigation of her Husband, she frequently will endeavour to discount Maintenance and Education; but this was not suffered in the Chancery, so as to diminish the principal Sum, for the Mother ought to maintain her Children; yet a Sum of Money paid for the Binding out a Child to be an Apprentice, was allowed to be discounted. 2 Vent. 353.

(L) Where the Legatees shall have Interest and Maintenance.

Legatees exhibit a Bill against the Executor, and by their Guardian pray, that he may be obliged to allow them Maintenance; to which the Executor demurred, because the Legatees were under Age, and the Legacies not payable till they were twenty-one Years of Age; but the Demurrer was over-ruled. Chan. Ca. 60.

If a Father devises Legacies or Portions to his Daughters or younger Children, to be paid or payable at their respective Ages of twenty-one Years, or any other Time certain, without making any Provision for their Maintenance in the mean Time, and die; in this Case they shall have Interest for their Portions from his Death till paid, because the Father was obliged to have provided for them if he had lived; but if such Portions had been devised to them by a Stranger, to be paid or payable at such an Age, their Legacies should not carry Interest in the mean Time, because he being a Stranger, was under no such Obligation to provide for them. Abr. Ca. Eq. 301.

A Father by his Will gave 2000*l.* a-piece to his two Daughters, payable at twenty-one, and charged on Land and Personal Estate; and the Personal Estate being exhausted in Debts, my Lord Chancellor held they should have a reasonable Maintenance out of the Real Estate until their Legacies became payable, and allowed them 80*l.* per Ann. each. Ibid.

If A. gave a Legacy to his Grand-daughter an Infant, to be paid at a certain Time, in such Manner as his Wife, who was his Executrix, should think fit and best for his Grand-daughter; and the Executrix lived near twenty Years, and died without paying the Legacy, the Legacy was decreed to be paid with Interest from the Death of A. though there was no Demand made of it in the Life of the Executrix. Vern. 251.

If a Legacy be made payable at a certain Day, it shall carry Interest from the Time of Payment. Vern. 262. But a Demand seems necessary, for where a Legacy was given to J. S. to be paid at a certain Time, it was held that it should only carry Interest from the Time of the Demand made. Abr. Ca. Eq. 286.

(M) Ademption of a Legacy.

A. Devised to his Daughter 200*l.* and also his Household Goods, if she should not be married in his Life-time; but before he died he gave with his Daughter in Marriage above 200*l.* and died, not having revoked nor altered his Will; and the Court held, that the Legacy was extinguished by the Portion. 2 Vern. 114.

The Defendant's late Husband inter alia deviseth as followeth: *I give and devise to A. my good and only Uncle, the Sum of 500*l.* that is to say, that Bond and Judgment he gave me for 400*l.* and 100*l.* in Money, and makes the Defendant his Executrix, and desires her to be kind and assisting to his Uncle, that he might live as became a Gentleman: The Uncle sometime after sold an Estate, and with the Money paid off 320*l.* and took up the Bond, and had the Judgment vacated, and gave a new Bond for the remaining 80*l.* and sometime after the Testator died, and the Uncle having Notice of this Will, brought his Bill for this Legacy of 500*l.* The Defendant insisted that this was a specifick Legacy of that particular Bond and Judgment, and they being cancelled and altered before the Testator's Death, was an* an Ademption of the Legacy as to so much; and besides, they urged that this Payment of the 350*l.* amounted to a Release of so much of the Legacy, and therefore the Plaintiff would have no Right but to the Remaining 100*l.* On the other Side it was insisted, that the Diversity is where the Money is voluntarily paid in by the Person who owes it, and where the Testator sues for and recovers it. In the first Case the Legacy continues still good, because the Money comes only home to the Personal Estate; but in the other Case, the Testator by suing for it, shews, that he intended to make it his own, and therefore would not leave it to the Legatee to recover, and the Justice of the Uncle ought not to prevent the Affection of the Nephew; and no Alteration of his Intention appeared. My Lord Keeper was clear of the same Opinion, and decreed the 80*l.* Bond to be delivered up, and the Residue of the Legacy to be paid. Abr. Ca. Eq. 302. 2 Vern. 681.

Legacy to a Child discharged by a Provision subsequent to the Will. Str. 235.

O. by Will devised thus: Item, *I give and bequeath to my Grand-daughter Mary Ford, the Plaintiff, the Sum of 40*l.* being Part of a Debt due and owing to me for Rent from G. M. she allowing what Charges shall be expended in getting in the same.* Item, *I give and bequeath unto my Grandsons A. and B. the Rest and Residue of what is due and owing to me from the said G. M. which is about 40*l.* more, to be equally divided between them, they allowing Charges as aforesaid.* After the Testator received the whole Debt owing for Rent from G. M. For the Plaintiff it was insisted, that there was a Difference between a specifick and pecuniary Legacy; that though the disposing of a specifick Legacy might be an Ademption of it, yet this being a pecuniary Legacy, the paying the Money to the Testator would be no Loss of it. On the other Side was insisted on the Difference between a voluntary and compulsory Payment, that though the first was no Ademption, yet the second was, and that the Testator obliged G. M. to pay in the Money. But Lord Chancellor was of Opinion, that there was no Foundation for the Difference taken in the Books between a voluntary and compulsory Payment, for the latter might be with an Intent to secure the Legacy on all Events, and decreed the Plaintiff the 40*l.* Legacy. Abr. Ca. Eq. 302.

(N) Where a Legacy is lost or not by Death of the Legatee.

IF a Legatee dies before the Testator, the Legacy is lost; but if the Testator dies, and there is a Time limited for Payment of the Legacy, and the Legatee dies before that Day, his Executor shall have the Legacy; for the Legatee had a present Interest, though the Time of the Payment was in futuro; otherwise if a Legacy is bequeathed to one at such a Time, and he dies before that Time, for then the Legacy is lost. 10 Co. 51. 2 Vent. 342, 366.

E. H. by her Will made a Bequest in these Words: *I give unto my loving Kinsman R. H. the Sum of 300*l.* one hundred Pounds Part whereof he doth owe me, which I do intend to give to my Cousin S. H. his youngest Daughter; but my Will and Desire is, that he will give the said 300*l.* to his Daughter S. H. at the Time of his Death, or sooner, if there be Occasion, for her better Advancement and Preferment:* The Testatrix at the making of her Will was in England, and it so fell out, that R. H. died in Ireland eight Days before the Death of the Testatrix; and afterwards S. H. died at the Age of sixteen, and unmarried, and the Plaintiff was her Administrator. And it was decreed at the Rolls, and affirmed by my Lord Chancellor, that the Words I desire, or I will, amount unto an express Devise, and that the one hundred Pounds Bond to the Testatrix should be assigned to the Plaintiff, and the 200*l.* paid him, with Interest from the exhibiting of the Bill; although it was insisted upon that a Benefit was designed R. H. and that he was not a bare Trustee, for he was to have the Interest of the 300*l.* for his Life, unless his Daughter had Occasion for it before his Death, which she had not. 2 Vern. 466, 467, 468.

But where A. devises to his Sister 350*l.* upon Condition that she at or before her Death should give to her Children 200*l.* thereof, and the Sister died in the Life-time of the Testator; it was held, that the whole 350*l.* was lapsed; for it being a Devise of Money, the absolute Property vested in the first Legatee. 2 Vern. 116.

D. the Testatrix by Will, reciting, that E. owed him 400*l.* gave and bequeathed that 400*l.* to him, provided he out of the 400*l.* paid several Sums in the Will mentioned to his Wife and Children, and the Rest and Residue he freely and absolutely gave to E. and willed and required the Executor to deliver up the Security immediately upon his Death, and not to claim or meddle with the Debt, or any Part thereof; but to give such Release or Discharge as E. his Executors or Administrators, should require or think fit; E. died in the Life-time of the Testatrix; and it was held, that the Money directed to be paid the Wife and Children was well devised; but as to the Residue devised to the Debtor himself, that it was a lapsed Legacy, he dying in the Life-time of the Testator, although it was admitted, that that if the Testator had said, I forgive such a Debt; or, that my Executor shall not demand it, or shall release it, that would have been a good Discharge of the Debt, though the Debtor died in the Life-time of the Testatrix. 2 Vern. 521.

If A. devises 1500*l.* a-piece to the four Children of J. S. by Name, to the Sons to be paid at their Ages of twenty-one Years, and to the Daughters at eighteen or Days of Marriage; and in Case one or more of the aforesaid Children shall happen to die before his, her or their respective Legacy or Legacies shall become due, then such Legacy or Legacies shall go to the Survivors of them; and in Case three should die, then the Survivor to take the Whole; if one of the Children dies in the Life-time of the Testator, the Survivors shall take that Share, and it shall not be a lapsed Legacy. 2 Vern. 207, 211.

So where a Legacy of 50*l.* was given to A. at twenty-one, or Marriage, and 50*l.* to B. at twenty-one, or Marriage; and in the Close of the Will the Testator added, If any Legatee dies before his Legacy is payable, the same shall go to the Brothers and Sisters of such Legatee; A. dying in the Life-time of the Testator, it was adjudged no lapsed Legacy, but that it should go to the Brothers and Sisters. 1 Vern. 425. 2 Vern. 378, 653, 744. 2 Chan. Rep. 187.

So where a Man devised to A. and B. the two Daughters of his Brother G. to be paid within a Year after the Death of his Wife, viz. 50*l.* to A. and 50*l.* to B. if they shall both be alive at the Time of Payment, but if either of them shall die before, then the said 100*l.* to the Survivor of the said two Daughters; one of the said two Daughters died in the Life-time of the Testator; and the only Question was, whether the surviving Daughter should have the whole 100*l.* or only 50*l.* And Rawlinson and Hutchins, Lords Commissioners, were clearly of Opinion, that she should have the whole 100*l.* They said, that by the first Clause of the Will it is a joint Devise to them of the 100*l.* in which Case, if the Will had gone no further, if one had died, it would have survived to the other; then the videlicet that comes after is only a Severance of it, in Case they should both live to the Time of Payment, which they did not; and then the last Clause of the Will, in Case either died before the Time of Payment, is a new substantive Devise of the whole 100*l.* to the Survivor, and decreed accordingly. Abr. Ca. Eq. 298.

A. devised an Estate to his Wife for her Life, and after to the Plaintiff his Niece, and her Heirs, upon Condition and to the Intent that she shall pay 400*l.* to such Person as his Wife, by her Will in Writing, or any other Writing, should direct and appoint, and dies; the Wife after married a second Husband, and then makes a Will in Writing, and thereby reciting the Power given her by her former Husband's Will, appoints the 400*l.* to be paid to her Husband, his Executors or Administrators; and that when he shall have fully received the 400*l.* he shall pay 100*l.* out of it to B. 50*l.* to C. and 50*l.* to D. and makes her Husband her Executor, and then goes on and says, that she has published this her last Will and Testament in the Presence of three Witnesses; and the Husband subscribed, that he does approve of that Will; afterwards the Husband died before her, and makes her Executrix of his Will and Residuary Legatee; then B. and C. die both Intestate, and afterwards the Wife dies, and the Defendants take out Administration to her, with the Will annexed, and also Administration to B. and C. And the Question was, whether this Appointment being made by Will, and the Appointee dying before the Appointor, this should be in the Nature of a Legacy, and so the Appointment void, the Testatrix surviving the Nominee. And my Lord Keeper held, that if it was a Thing purely Testamentary, it would be plainly a lapsed Legacy; but that in this Case the 400*l.* was not in his own Nature Testamentary, but they take as Nominees, and it is but the Execution of a Trust; and decreed the Money to be paid. Abr. Ca. Eq. 296, 297.

If Money is bequeathed to one at his Age of twenty-one Years, or Day of Marriage, to be paid to him with Interest, and he dies before either of these Days, yet the Money shall go to his Executor. 2 Vent. 342.

But if Money be bequeathed to one at his Age of twenty-one Years, and he dies before that Age, the Money is lost. 2 Salk. 415. Chan. Ca. 155.

The Rule and Distinction in these Cases is agreeable to the Civil Law, which is, that if a Legacy be devised to one generally, to be paid or payable at the Age of twenty-one, or any other Age, and the Legatee dies before that Age, yet this is such an Interest vested in the Legatee, that his Executor or Administrator may sue for and recover it, for it is Debitum in presenti, though Solvendum in futuro, the Time being annexed to the Payment, and not to the Legacy itself; so if the Legacy is made to carry Interest, though the Words, to be paid, or payable, are omitted, it shall be an Interest vested. But if a Legacy be devised to one at twenty-one, or when he shall attain the Age of twenty-one, and the Legatee dies before that Age, the Legacy is lapsed. Dy. 59. 1 Leon. 177. Off. of Ex. 347. Swinb. 311, 312.

But in the Case of Yates and Phettiplace, Hill. Term. 1700. 2 Vern. 416. Lord Keeper Wright was of Opinion, that there was no Foundation for this Distinction, and that the Testator's Intention was equal in both Cases; but that was in a Case wherein the Legacy was to arise out of the Real Estate, which shall not go to the Representative of the Legatee, but shall sink in the Inheritance for the Benefit of the Heir, as much as if it were a Portion provided by a Marriage-Settlement. 2 Vern. 92, 617, 508.

But when it was to be paid out of the Personal Estate, the above Distinction had been allowed of as well before as by all the subsequent Chancellors; and my Lord Cowper said, that though it was at first introduced upon very slender Reasons, and probably upon no other, but from a constant Willingness in the Civil Law to stretch in Favour of a particular Legatee against the Residuary Legatee, who went away with the whole Surplus of the Personal Estate; yet as Chancery has now a concurrent Jurisdiction with the Spiritual Court in Matters of this Nature, he thought it highly reasonable, that there should be a Conformity in their Resolutions, that the Subject might have the same Measure of Justice in which Court soever he sued. Abr. Ca. Eq. 295.

A Portion was devised to a Child, with Interest, but not to be paid, or payable, until the Child attains twenty-one Years, or was married; the Child died under twenty-one Years, and unmarried; the Portion was decreed to the Administrator of the Infant. 1 Vern. 462. Str. 238.

A Legacy of 50*l.* devised to J. S. when of the Age of sixteen Years, and Interest in the mean Time to be paid quarterly; J. S. died before sixteen, yet adjudged it was a Legacy vested, because it carries Interest. 2 Vern. 673.

But if A. devises in these Words, *viz. I give 100*l.* a-piece to the two Children of J. S. at the End of ten Years after my Decease*, and the Children die within the ten Years, this is a lapsed Legacy, and is so in all Cases where the Time is annexed to the Legacy itself, and not to the Payment of it. Though it was objected, that this differed from the Case, where a Man devises 100*l.* to J. S. at his Age of twenty-one, because it is a Contingency whether he will attain to that Age, but the Expiration of the ten Years is inevitable. 2 Salk. 415.

So where one being possessed of a very considerable personal Estate, Part in Jamaica and Part in England, and being himself residing in Jamaica, made his Will, and thereof several Executors, some for his Estate in Jamaica, and others residing in England, for his Estate here, and amongst other Things devised in these Words, *viz. I give and bequeath to J. S. now under the Custody of R. D. the Sum of 2000*l.* at the Age of twenty-one Years, to be paid by my Executors in England*; and devised all the Rest and Residue of his Estate to the Plaintiff, and died; J. S. having attained his Age of eighteen, made his Will, and thereby devised this Legacy, and all his Estate to the Defendant. And my Lord Chancellor held this a lapsed Legacy, and that it was a vain Endeavour in the Defendant's Counsel to construe it a present Legacy, and therefore vested by the Word now, because it was a plain Description of the Condition of the Legatee, viz. Now under the Custody of, &c. for otherwise they must stop at now, which would be playing with the Words; and though the Word paid was made use of, yet it was plainly intended a Designation of the Persons by whom the Legacy was to be paid, viz. by his Executors in England, which was proper, he having two Sets of them. Abr. Ca. Eq. 295, 296.

If a Debt or such like Thing in Action be given by way of Legacy, and the Legatee is Of suing for not made Executor as to that Debt, &c. (which would have been the best way) he must then Legacies. have a Letter of Attorney to sue in the Executor's Name.

But if an Assent is necessary, and the Executor will not assent to pay a Legacy, he may be compelled to pay it in a Court of Equity, or in the Court Christian.

Of Acquiring Goods, &c. by Judgment and Execution.

Acquisition of Property by Act in Law, may be by Judgment and Execution thereupon, which in the Case of the King extends as well to Things in Action that have a Certainty in them, as Debts, as to Things in Possession: But in the Case of a common Person, only to Things in Possession; which Execution may be a Fieri Facias or an Elegit. Hale's Anal. §. 27.

By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. The Day of Signing any Judgments in his Majesty's Courts at Westminster, must be set down in the Margin of the Roll whereon the said Judgment is entered: And no Writ of Fieri Facias or other Execution shall bind the Property of the Goods against whom such Writ of Execution is sued out, but from the Time that such Writ Writ shall be delivered to the Sheriff, Under-Sheriff or Coroners, to be executed: And for the better Manifestation of the said Time, the Sheriff, Under-Sheriff and Coroners, their Deputies and Agents, shall upon the Receipt of such Writ (without Fee for doing the same) endorse upon the Back thereof the Day of the Month or Year whereon he or they received the same.

S E C T. IX.

Of acquiring Things Personal by Custom.

THINGS Personal may be acquired by Custom; as Heriots, Mortuaries, Heir-Looms, &c. The Acquisition whereof is by Act in Law.

Heriot.

A Heriot (Heregate, from Herus Lord, and Gate best) is a Render made at the Death of the Tenant to the Lord of the best Beast, as a Horse, &c. or in some Manors the best Goods, as a Piece of Plate, &c. found in the Possession of the Tenant deceased, or some other. Kitch. 133.

Heriot Service.
Heriot-Custom.

There is Heriot-Service and Heriot-Custom: Heriot-Service is payable on the Death of Tenant in Fee-simple, and Heriot-Custom upon the Death of Tenant for Life.

When a Tenant holds by Service to pay a Heriot at the Time of his Death, which Service is expressed and especially reserved in the Deed of Feoffment, this is Heriot-Service.

And where Heriots have been customarily paid Time out of Mind after the Death of Tenant for Life, this is Heriot-Custom. Co. Lit. 185.

For Heriot-Service, the Lord may distrain or seise: The Distress may be of any Beast on the Land, but Seizure may be of any Beast belonging to the Tenant. But for Heriot-Custom, he must seise, and not distrain. Here the Lord may seise the best Beast, &c. though it is in some Place out of the Manor, or in the Highway, that being no Distress; for it is his own proper Goods by the Tenant's Death, and therefore he may seise it where he finds it.

Mortuary.

A Mortuary is a Gift by a Man at his Death to his Parish Church, in Recompence of Personal Tithes omitted to be paid in his Life-time: Or it is that Beast or other Cattle moveable, which after the Owner's Death, by the Custom of some Place, is due to the Parson, Vicar or Priest of the Parish, in Lieu of Tithes, or Offerings forgot, or not well and truly paid by the Deceased. Terms de la Ley 449.

They are due by Custom only, and are now settled to be paid in Money. By Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 6. Where Mortuaries are due by Custom, he who dies possessed of moveable Goods to the Value of 40*l.* and upwards, (his Debts being first paid) pays 10*s.* he who dies possessed of Goods to the Value of 30*l.* and under 40*l.* pays 6*s.* 8*d.* to the Value of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* and under 30*l.* pays 3*s.* 4*d.* Goods under 6*l.* 13*s.* yield no Mortuary. No Mortuary is to be paid by any Feme Covert, Child, Person not keeping House, Way-faring Man, one not residing in the Place where he happens to die; for his Mortuary shall be paid in the Place where he shall find his most Abode.

But by Stat. 12 Ann. sess. 2. c. 6. Mortuaries in the Diocese of Bangor, Landaff, St. Davids and St. Asaph, are taken away, and Recompence made to the Bishops by adding Rectories Sine Cura.

Heir-Looms.

By Custom the Heir shall have Goods and Chattels called Heirs-Looms, and not the Executor.

Heir-Looms are such Goods and Chattels as by Custom have been descended to the Heir along with the Freehold, and are not devisable by Testament; for the Law prefers Custom before a Devise. Co. Lit. 18, 28.

Foreign Attachment.

Foreign Attachment, is an Attachment of the Goods of Foreigners, found in some Liberty or City, to satisfy their Creditors within such Liberty or City. Carib. Rep. 66.

And by the Custom of some Places, as London, &c. a Man may attach Money or Goods in the Hands of a Stranger, but not where the Matter is before any of the Courts at Westminster. Cro. Eliz. 691.

Bills of Exchange.

Bills of Exchange are assignable by Custom, Hale's Annal. §. 27. but by promissory Notes by Statute.

S E C T. X.

Of Acquiring the Property in Personal Estates by Means of Forfeitures and Losses in Civil Cases.

(A) By Sale in a Market-overt and Bankruptcy.

BY Sale in a Market-overt the Property in Goods that are stolen is sometimes devested and altered, of which see p. And the Property in Goods may also be altered by Bankruptcy, of which see p. 93.

(B) By the King's Prerogative, or by his Grant, or by Prescription.

First, Of Treasure-Trove.

TREASURE-TROVE, (Treasure found) is Treasure found hid in the Earth, not lying upon the Earth nor hid in the Sea, which for want of a true Owner belongs to the King, or Trove, what to the Lord of the Liberty by special Grant or Prescription; but if the Owner can be found he shall have it.

The Civil Law gives it to the Finder, but the Law of England gives it to the King by his Prerogative, or to some other claiming under him. Braet. lib. 3. 3 Inst. 132. Kitch. 80.

Nothing is said to be Treasure-Trove but Gold and Silver; and it is every Subject's Part as soon as he has found any Treasure in the Earth to acquaint the Coroners of the County, &c. therewith. The Concealing it is punishable with Fine and Imprisonment. Britton, c. 17. S. P. C. 25.

Secondly, Of Waifs.

The Acquisition of Property in Goods may be by Means of a Thing forfeited by waving it.

A Waif is a Thing which is stolen, and left behind or waved by the Thief in his Flight, Waif, what upon being pursued, for fear he should be apprehended.

Upon which Account it is forfeited to the King, or to the Lord of the Manor, where he has a Right to it by Custom or Charter. To whom forfeited.

But if the Felon be indicted, adjudged or found guilty, or outlawed, at the Suit of the Owner of the Thing waved, he shall have Restitution of the same. Bac. L. Traets 158. Restitution in what Cases made.

The Law makes a Forfeiture of Goods waved, as a Punishment to the Owner of the Goods for not bringing the Felon to Justice: But if the Thief had not the Goods in his Possession when he fled, there is no Forfeiture. And if he steals the Goods and hides them, and afterwards flies, they are not forfeited; so where he leaves stolen Goods any where with an Intent to fetch them at another Time, they are not waved; and in these Cases the Owner may take his Goods where he finds them, without fresh Suit, &c. Cro. El. 694. 5 Co. 109. Moor 785. Why the Forfeiture is.

If a Felon in Pursuit waves the Goods, or having them in his Custody, and thinking that Pursuit was made, for his own Ease and more speedy Flight, flies away and leaves the Goods behind him; then the King's Officer or the Bailiff of the Lord of the Manor, within whose Jurisdiction they are left, who has the Franchise of Waif, may seize the Goods to the King or Lord's Use, and keep them; except the Owner makes fresh Pursuit after the Felon, and sues an Appeal of Robbery within a Year and Day, or gives Evidence against him, whereby he is attainted, &c. in which Case the Owner shall have Restitution of his Goods so stolen and waved. Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 11. 5 Co. 109. Vide as to Fugitives Goods, p. 164. Who may seize Waifs.

Thirdly, Of Strays.

Property in live Cattle may be got by their Straying, which Acquisition is by Act in Law, and by the King's Prerogative, or by his Grant or Prescription.

An Estray (Extrabura, from the old French Word Estrayeur) is any Beast (which is not the King's) that is not wild, or Swans (but no other Fowls) found in any Ground or Lordship, the Owner thereof being unknown. An Estray, what.

In which Case the Party or Lord into whose Ground or Manor the Estray came may Proclamation seize it, and put a Wythe about its Neck, and then have it cried and proclaimed according to Law in the two next Market-Towns, on two Market-Days, in which Proclamation it should should be shewn whether the Estray be Horse, Sheep, &c. the Marks, and by whom seized, so that the Owner may know where to resort for his Cattle: After which if it is not claimed by the Owner within a Year and a Day, the Property thereof is in the Lord of the Liberty or Manor, if he has all Strays by Custom or Charter, or else it is in the King. Brit. c. 17. Godb. 151. Bac. L. Tracts 158, 159. Lord Bacon says, it must be cried in three Markets adjoining. In N. Bendl. 19. pl. 27. it is said, in three Markets adjoining on three several Days. Sed Quere. Finch says, at the Market in two several Towns next adjoining. And Brit. ut supra, says two.

the Year.

If the Beast strays to another Lordship within the Year after it has been an Estray, the first Lord cannot retake it, for until the Year and Day be past, and Proclamation made as aforesaid, he has no Property, and therefore the Possession of the second Lord is good against him. Finch 177.

Of the Owner's
and seizing his Cattle.

If there be no Proclamation made, the Owner may take his Cattle at any Time.

But after Seizure and Proclamation, if the Owner claims it within a Year and a Day, he may have it again, but he must pay the Lord of the Manor for keeping it, for till then he may justify detaining it. Roll. Abr. 879.

An Owner may seize an Estray without telling the Marks or proving the Property, (which may be done at the Trial if contested) and tendering Amends generally is good in this Case without shewing the particular Sum, because the Owner of the Estray is no Wrongdoer, and knows not how long it has been in the Lord's Possession, &c. which makes it different from Trespass, where a certain Sum must be tendered. 2 Salk. 686.

A Beast Estray may not be used in any Manner within the Year and Day, except in case of Necessity; as to milk a Cow, or the like; but not to ride or work a Horse, &c. Roll. Abr. 673, 879. Cro. Jac. 148.

Fourthly, Of Wreck.

Property in Goods, &c. may be acquired by their being Wreck. This Manner of Acquisition is also by Act in Law, and by the King's Prerogative or his Grant, or by Prescription.

Wreck, what.

Wreck, is a Ship which the Sea casts upon the Coast within some County, having no living Creature, Man, Dog, Cat, &c. on board, whereby the Owner may be known; or such Goods as after a Shipwreck are so cast upon the Coast. 2 Inst. 167. Stat. Westm. 1. c. 4. 5 Co. 106.

Nothing is Wreck so long as it remains at Sea in the Jurisdiction of the Admiralty. 2 Inst. 167.

What is not Wreck, &c.

By Stat. Westm. 1. or 3 Ed. 1. c. 4. Where a Man, Dog or Cat escape alive out of a Ship, whereby the Owner of the Goods may be known, neither the Vessel nor any Thing therein shall be adjudged Wreck, but the same shall be kept a Year and a Day by the Sheriff, Coroner or King's Bailiff, &c. and be restored to the Owner, if he claims within that Time.

This Statute is but declaratory of the Common Law, and these Words Man, Dog or Cat, are only put for Examples; for besides these two Kinds of Beasts, all other Beasts, Fowls and living Things are understood, whereby the Ownership or Property of the Goods may be known. 2 Inst. 167, 168.

The Year and Day shall be accounted from the Seizure made as Wreck; yet if the Goods be Bona peritura, the Sheriff may sell them within the Year, so as he disposes of them to the best Advantage, and accounts for them, &c. 2 Inst. 167. 5 Co. 106.

Although the said Statute speaks only of Wreck, yet it extends to Flotsam, Jetsam and Lagan. 2 Inst. 167.

Flotsam, Jetsam and Lagan.

Flotsam, is when a Ship is sunk or cast away, and the Goods are floating upon the Sea. 5 Co. 106.

Jetsam, is where any Thing is cast out of a Ship when in Danger of Wreck, and the Ship notwithstanding perishes, and the Thing is drove on Shore. Lex Mercat. 149. 5 Co. 106.

Lagan, is when heavy Goods are thrown over-board when in Danger of Shipwreck, which sink to the Bottom of the Sea, Lex Mercat. 149. and having a Buoy to them, the Owners may know where to find them. 5 Co. 106. But these are not to be deemed Wreck till they are cast upon the Land by the Sea.

The King shall have Flotsam, Jetsam and Lagan, when the Ship is lost, and the Owners of the Goods are not known, but not otherwise. F. N. B. 122.

But so long as Goods are Lagan they belong to the Lord Admiral; but if they are cast away upon the Land they are then Wreck. 5 Co. 106.

Yet any Person may have Flotsam, Jetsam or Lagan, by the King's Grant, as well as the Lord Admiral, &c. Lex Mercat. 149.

Where

Where a Ship is ready to sink, and all the Men therein for the Preservation of their Lives quit the Ship, and afterwards she perishes, if any of the Men are saved and come to Land, the Goods are not lost. 2 Inst. 167.

A Ship at Sea being pursued by Enemies, the Men for Safety of their Lives forsook the Ship, and the Enemies took it, spoiled the Tackle and Goods, and turned her a-drift, and she was cast on the Land, where the Men arrived; this was adjudged to be no Wreck. 2 Inst. 167.

See Stat. 12 Ann. sess. 2. c. 18. 4 Geo. 1. c. 12. and 7 Geo. 2. c. 15. as to the Salvage of Ships.

Wreck belongs to the King by his Prerogative, or to a Subject by his Grant, or by Prescription. 2 Inst. 168.

If a Man has a Grant of Wreck, and a Stranger takes it away before Seizure, he may bring an Action of Trespass, &c. and before they are seized there is no Property gained to make it Felony. Hawk. P. C. 94.

And if Goods wrecked be seized by Persons having no Authority, the Owner may have his Action against them; or if the Wrong-doers are unknown, he may have a Commission to inquire, &c. 2 Inst. 166.

Wrecked Goods are not liable to Customs. Ld. Raym. 388, 501.

Grant of Wreck to the Lord Admiral as appertaining to his Office will not pass Wreck belonging to the King's Manor by Prescription. Ld. Raym. 473.

Fifthly, Of Deodands.

Property in Goods, &c. may be acquired by Means of a Deodand.

A Deodand (Deo Dandum) is a Thing given as it were to God, where a Man comes to Deodand, a violent Death by Mischance, caused by any moveable Thing inanimate or animate, without the Fault of himself or any other Person, in any County in England, but not upon the Sea or Salt Water.

The Original of Deodands is said to come from the Notion of Purgatory; for when a Person came to a sudden and untimely Death, without having Time to be shrived by a Priest, and to have the Extreme Unction administered to him, the Thing which had been the Occasion of his Death became Deodand; that is, was given to the Church, to be distributed in Charity, and to pray for the Soul of such deceased Person out of Purgatory. Lill. Reg. 443.

The Acquisition of Property by Means of Deodand is by a mixt Act, i. e. by Operation of the Law concurring with the Act of the Party, Hale's Anal. §. 28. but not with the De-fault of the Party, for that would be Felo de se.

Which Thing and every Thing moving with it is forfeited to the King or Grantee of the Crown, if he dies within a Year and a Day after.

Omnia quæ movent ad mortem sunt Deodanda. Braët. lib. 3. tract. 2. c. 5. 5 Co. 110.

But it has been observed, that at this Day if a Man be killed by the Wheel of a Cart drawn by Horses, the Jury find that only Deodand which was the immediate Cause of his Death, viz. the Wheel. Nels. Abr. 636. But Qu. If the Wheel, Cart and Horses are not all forfeited.

If a Man riding over the River is thrown off his Horse by the Violence of the Water, and drowned, his Horse is not a Deodand, for the Death was caused per cursum aquæ. 2 Co. 483.

Where one within the Age of Discretion (i. e. under fourteen Years old) falls from a Cart, Horse, &c. they are not Deodand; but if a Horse strikes and kills such a Person, it is Deodand. 3 Inst. 57.

And if a Person is accidentally wounded by a Cart, Horse, &c. and dies within a Year and a Day after, what did it is Deodand.

So that if a Horse strikes a Man, and afterwards the Owner sells the Horse, and then the Party that was stricken dies of the Stroke, the Horse, notwithstanding the Sale, shall be forfeited as Deodand. Plowd. 260. 5 Co. 110.

If a Man falls out of a Vessel in fresh Water, the Vessel is a Deodand; but not if he falls out of a Vessel in salt Water, though the Arm of the Sea is in the Body of a County; because Persons at Sea are continually exposed to such Accidents. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 2. p. 212.

Things fixed to the Freehold cannot be Deodands, as the Wheel of a Mill, a Bell hanging in a Steeple, &c. unless severed from the Freehold before the Accident happened. 2 Inst. 281. Sid. 204.

If A. kills a Man with B.'s Sword, the Sword is a Deodand. Wood, B. 2. c. 2. p. 212.
 The Goods and Chattels of Felo de se were Deodands. Lilly 443.
 When the Forfeiture accrues, &c. The Jury who finds or presents the Death by such Misadventure, ought also to find and appraise the Deodand; for the Goods in these Cases are not forfeited till the Matter is found of Record, and therefore cannot be claimed by Prescription. 5 Co. 110. Co. Lit. 114. a. & b. 2 Inst. 281.
 After the Coroner's Inquisition, the Sheriff is answerable for the Value where the Deodand belongs to the King; and he may levy the same on the Town, &c. wherefore the Inquest ought to find the Value of it. Hawk. 67.
 Distribution thereof. If the Forfeiture is to the King, his Almoner disposes of it by Sale, and distributes the Money arising thereby to the Poor. And if the Forfeiture be to the Lord of the Liberty, it ought so to be distributed.

S E C T. XI.

Of Acquiring the Property in Personal Estates by Means of Forfeitures and Losses in Criminal Cases.

IF the Owner of Goods and Chattels be outlawed, indicted for Treason or Felony, or either confesses it, or be found guilty of it, or refuse to be tried by Peers or Jury, or be attainted by Judgment, or fly for Felony; although he be not guilty, or suffer the Exigent to go out against him; although he be not outlawed, or if he goes over the Seas without Licence, all the Goods he had at the Judgment he forfeits to the Crown, except some Lord by Charter can claim them: For in these Cases Prescription will not serve, except it be so ancient that it has been allowed before the Justices in Eyre in their Circuits, or in the King's Bench in ancient Time. Bac. L. Tracts 159.

Fugitives Goods. Though Waif is generally spoken of Goods stolen, yet if a Man be pursued with Hue and Cry as a Felon, and he flies and leaves his own Goods, these will be forfeited as Goods stolen; but not till it be found before the Coroner, or otherwise of Record, that he fled for the Felony. 2 Hawk. 450. 5 Co. 109.

C H A P. IV.

Of Deeds in general, and the Things incident thereto.

S E C T. I.

What a Deed or Charter is, and the Things incident thereto.

Deed, what. A Deed (Fr. Fait, or Lat. Factum) is a Writing or Instrument sealed and delivered to prove the Agreement of the Parties to what is contained therein. Co. Lit. 35. b. 171. b.

Charter, what. And a Charter (Lat. Charta, Fr. Chartres, i. e. Instrumenta) is a written Evidence of Things done between Man and Man. And Charters may be of the King, or of private Persons; Charters of the King are those whereby the King passes any Grant to any Person or Body Politick; as a Charter of Exemption of Privilege, &c. Charter of Pardon whereby a Man is forgiven a Felony, or other Offence committed against the King's Crown and Dignity; and of these there are several Sorts, viz. Charta pardonationis Utlagariae, Charta pardonationis se defendendo, &c. and others mentioned in Register of Writs. Charter of the Forest, wherein the Laws of the Forest are comprised, &c.

Muniment, what. But Charters of private Persons are Deeds and Instruments for the Conveyance of Lands, &c. Charters are sometimes called Muniments, a muniendo, quia muniunt & defendunt Hereditatem.

There

There is a Difference between Cartam and Faſum, for Carta is intended a Charter which touches Inheritance, and ſo is not Faſum unleſs it has ſome other Addition, Co. Lit. 9. a. b. as Livery and Seifin, &c.

There are three Things of the Eſſence and Subſtance of a Deed, viz, (1) Writing in Paper or Parchment, (2) Sealing, and (3) Delivery. 2 Co. 5. The Eſſence of a Deed.

And to a Deed there are ten Things neceſſarily incident: (1) Writing. (2) In Parchment (Vellum) or Paper. (3) A Perſon able to contract. (4) By a ſufficient Name. (5) A Perſon able to be contracted with. (6) By a ſufficient Name. (7) A Thing to be contracted for. (8) Apt Words required by Law. (9) Sealing. And (10) Delivery. Co. Lit. 35. b. Things incident to a Deed.

S E C T. II.

In what Hand and Language a Deed muſt be written.

As to the Writing of a Deed: (1) All the Matter and Form thereof muſt be written before the Sealing and Delivery of it; for if a Man ſeals and delivers an empty Piece of Parchment or Paper, although he therewithal gives Commandment that an Obligation or other Matter ſhall be written in it, which is done accordingly, yet this will not make it a good Deed. Co. Lit. 171. Perk. §. 118, 119. 1. Writing.

The Writing muſt be finiſhed before it be ſealed and delivered, or at leaſt before it be delivered; for nothing may be added to it afterwards, nor may any Alteration be made in it; and therefore, if a Deed of Obligation be ſealed and delivered, with a Blank left for the Sum, which the Obligee does after Sealing and Delivery fill up, this will make the Deed void.
Moor 28.

And if a Deed be made as an Obligation ſingle, and after upon the Back of it, before the Sealing and Delivery, is written the Intent of the Bond is to pay 10*l.* for ſuch Coſts; this if it was perfect might be a good Condition, if there were Words of Concluſion; but if it be written after the Delivery of the Deed, it cannot be good. Hetley 136, 137.

A Deed may be written in any Hand, as in Text, Court or Roman Hand, or in any Language, as in Latin or French, and is as good as a Deed written in Engliſh and in a Secretary Hand. 2 Co. 3.

And it is not neceſſary that the Latin or Engliſh whereby it is made be true and congruous, for falſe and incongruous Latin or Engliſh ſeldom hurts a Deed, for the Rules of Law are,
Falſa Orthographia non vitiat Chartam; falſa Grammatica non vitiat Conſeſſionem. Co. Lit. 6,
5, 121, 10, 133. And yet falſe Latin, if it be very bad, may make a Deed void.
Yelv. 193.

And although the Writing be bad, and beſides the Lines, or the Lines be written crooked, yet this will not hurt the Deed.

And if there be any Alteration, Raſure or Interlining made in any Part of the Deed before the Delivery of it, this will not hurt the Deed.

But in ſuch Caſes it is Policy to make a Memorandum of it upon the Back of the Deed, and to give the Witneſſes Notice of it, (this is now uſually done in the Atteſtation of the Deed thus: Sealed and Delivered, the Words—being firſt interlined, &c. For otherwiſe if it be in any Place material, as in the Name of the Grantor, Grantee, in the limiting of the Eſtate, or the like, and it cannot be proved to be done before the Sealing and Delivery of it, eſpecially if it be in a Deed Poll, it is greatly ſuſpicious. Co. Lit. 37, 225. Perk. §. 155, 125, 126, 127, 128.

S E C T. III.

On what a Deed muſt be written.

A Deed muſt be written in Paper, Parchment or Vellum, as being the leaſt ſubject to Alteration; for if Writing be on a Piece of Wood, Linen, the Bark of a Tree, a Stone, or the like, and be ſealed and delivered, it is no good Deed. Co. Lit. 229. a. 2. On Parch-
or Paper.
F. N. B. 222.

It may be written either in a Piece of looſe Paper or Parchment, or in a Paper or Parchment ſewed in a Book. Bro. Oblig. 67. Co. Lit. 137, 229. But the Paper or Parchment muſt in moſt Caſes be ſtamped.

And although a Deed be never ſo well written as to the Hand and Language, and on Parchment or Paper, and duly read, ſealed and delivered, yet it muſt be formally and orderly

orderly written, as to the Matter and Manner of it, according to Law, that is, there must be sufficient Words to set forth the Agreement, and to bind the Parties to perform it; for a Deed may be void, and lose its Force in all or Part, for Repugnancy, Incertainty, Mistake, Deficiency and Error. Of which formal and orderly Parts see the next Chapter.

S E C T. IV.

Who is able to contract, or to give, grant, &c.

3. Who may contract, &c.

Disabilities by Common and Statute Law.

Bodies Natural or Politick.

General Rules.

Who are incapable to make a Deed.

And who capable.

Tenant in Fee-simple

In Tail.

Ecclesiasticks.

Tenant for Life or Years.

Who may make Estates for Lives or Years.

A Nother Thing incidentally necessary to the making a good Deed is, that the Party contracting is capable of giving, granting, &c.

For some Persons are disabled by Common Law and some by Statute; some are absolute, and some are Secundum quid only; as in Case of Infants, Feme Coverts, Ideots, Persons Non compos mentis, Aliens, Tenants in Tail, Ecclesiastical Persons, and others, some of which may not make any Deeds or Estates by them at all; others but so and so limited and qualified. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28.

Generally any Natural, Politick or Corporate Body may make a Deed.

All who may take by Deed may give and grant by Deed.

Generally all that are disabled to take by Deed, are disabled to give and grant by Deed; and some others also.

Some Persons are disabled to give or grant by Deed, and not enabled to take by Deed: And some are enabled to take that are not enabled to give or grant by Deed.

Some may by Deed give or grant some, and not other Things, and some may not give or grant any Thing at all.

Some may not make a Deed good of themselves, but by joining with others.

And some are disabled to make a Deed good, although they be joined with others in it.

Some may make a Deed that will be good to some Persons and not to others.

Some may make a Deed that will be good at one and not at another Time.

And some may make a Deed that will be good in one way, but not in another.

Disabilities to make Deeds, &c. are chiefly amongst Persons De non sane memorie, Infants, Aliens, Women who have Husbands, Men who have Wives, Women that have had Husbands, and Land settled by their Husbands upon them, Persons born deaf and dumb, Persons attaint of Treason or Felony, or in a Premunire, Clerk convict, Leper, Bastard, Tenant in Tail, Ecclesiastical Persons, as Bishops, Parsons, and the like, Jointenants, Tenants in Common, Coparceners, Disseisors, Disseisees, &c.

And this in some of them is in Part and Temporal only, but in others of them it is absolute, universal and perpetual.

But for all other Persons Male or Female, and for all other Bodies Natural or Politick, either as Sole Corporations or Aggregate, and for all Persons Ecclesiastical and Temporal, they are capable to be Grantors or Grantees, or to give and take by Deed.

So that if any such Person be seised of an Estate in Fee-simple in his own Right, he may by Deed in Writing in pais, or without Writing, by Parol, make what Gift, Grant or Exchange upon it, as he pleases.

But he who has but an Estate-tail in Land can only make a Lease of it for his own Life by Deed, or such a Lease as is within the Stat. 32 H. 8.

Ecclesiastical Persons cannot make a Lease of their Ecclesiastical Lands for longer than their own Lives, or such a Lease as is warrantable by the Statute of 13 Eliz. c. 10. and 1 Jac. 1. c. 3. and others.

And he who has only an Estate for his own or another's Life, or a Lease for Years of Land, may give, grant or charge it at his Pleasure for so long as his Estate lasts; and it will be good to all Purposes and against all Persons for that Time.

And a Man who has an Estate in Land to him and his Wife and his Heirs, may make what Estate he will of it, and this will be good against all but his Wife, and that for her Life only. 7 Co. 12. Co. Lit. 42. Perk. §. 182.

As to the Disability of Persons Secundum quid, or to such a Purpose only, observe, that there are three Sorts of Persons that formerly could not make Estates for Lives, &c. but now may by Stat. 32 H. 8.

First, Any Persons Husbands and Wives seised of any Estate of Inheritance in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, in the Right of their Wives, or jointly with their Wives before or after the Coverture.

Secondly, Any Person seised of an Estate-tail in his own Right.

Thirdly, Any Person seised of an Estate in Fee-simple in the Right of his Church.

The

The Husband and Wife may by Deed make such an Estate of the Land of his Wife, or Charge thereupon, as to bind the Wife and the Husband, her and their Heirs, by Stat.

32 H. 8.

The Tenant in Tail may make such an Estate, or Charge by Deed, as to bind himself and his Issues in Tail, but not the Reversion or Remainder; by same Stat.

And an ecclesiastical Person, as the Bishop, &c. without the Dean and Chapter, and the rest of that Sort, may make such an Estate or Charge by Deed of such Land to bind his Successors, by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 13. 13 Eliz. and 1 Jac.

But to make all such Leases good, there are divers Things necessary to be observed. Co. Lit. 44. a. Of which see Title Leases.

The King for the Greatness of his Person, and Preservation of his Estate, is disabled by Law to grant by Deed in pais; but he is to give by Matter of Record, which is of a higher Nature than a Deed. Fitz. Fait and Feoffment 21. Who may grant, &c. The King.

The Queen has a Privilege above other Women, that she may make a Gift or Grant of her own Lands or Goods without the King. Queen.

If a Deed be made by Husband and Wife together, this generally will not bind and conclude the Wife as a Fine will do. But a Deed referring to a Fine or Recovery, as to lead the Uses thereof, and the like, may be good by the Husband and Wife. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 8, 20, 41, 185, 186, 86, 194. Yelv. 1. Jenk. Cent. 4. Case 20. Grants, &c. by both Husband and Wife to others.

A Husband and Wife together may pass what Fine or Recovery they please of the Wife's Land, or charge it for what Time they please, and such Leases and Charges will be good to bind them both and their Heirs; but they may not do so much by their Deed as by Fine. Woman's Lawyer 103.

The Husband may make Leases of the Lands or Tenements whereof he has any Estate of Inheritance in Fee-simple or Fee-tail in Right of his Wife, or jointly with his Wife, made before or after Marriage, so as there be observed in such Leases the Conditions or Limitations required in the Leases made by Tenants in Tail; and so as the Wife join in the Deed, and be made Party thereto; and so as she seal and deliver the same Deed in Person; for if a Man and his Wife shall make a Letter of Attorney to another to deliver the Lease upon the Land, this Lease will not be a good Lease from the Wife, warranted by the Stat. (32 H. 8. c. 28.) and yet it will be good against the Husband. But if the Lease is warranted by the Statute it will bind both the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Wife. And yet in case of an Estate-tail, it will not bind the Donor, nor him in Remainder. But in this Case the Husband and Wife together may by the Help of a Fine, Recovery, both or one of them, make what further Estate they please, or charge the Land so as to bind the Donor and him in Remainder also, and their Heirs. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. Co. Lit. 44. 90. 2 Bulstr. 44.

And where the Wife may do the Principal, as levy a Fine, &c. she may do the Accessary, to wit, declare the Uses of it. 10 Co. 30.

And yet in case of a Woman sole, who is Tenant in Tail of the Gift of her deceased Husband, or any of his Ancestors, or with another Husband she shall take afterwards, if she alone, or they two together, shall make any such Lease within the Conditions of the said Statute warranted by it, this Lease will not be a good Bar of the Title to the Inheritance of those who come after; but it will be good to bind the Parties themselves, and all others. Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. 3 Co. 51, 60.

If Husband and Wife for Money bargain and sell her Land, and afterwards they levy a Fine Come ceo of it; by this the Estate is made good, and the Wife cannot avoid it. Moor 22.

If both Husband and Wife join in a Lease of her Land without Render of Rent, this Lease (by the Common Law) will not be good against her. 26 H. 8. 2. 2 Co. 77. Dyer 92.

If Husband and Wife make a Lease Parol of her Land, rendring Rent, or a Lease in Writing, without reserving any Rent, this Lease will not bind, but will be void as to the Wife. Dyer 92. 26 H. 8. 24.

Husband and Wife and a third Person are Jointenants for the Life of the Wife and the third Person, the Husband (thus seised in Right of his Wife) and his Wife by Indenture let a Moiety for twenty-one Years, the Wife dies; this is a good Lease against the Survivors, and shall be as a Lease made by her, until after the Coverture, that she, or one who claims in Privy under her, do avoid it by Entry. Cro. Jac. 517. Dyer 187.

A. and B. a Woman are Jointenants for Life, the Woman takes a Husband, and they by Indenture do lease their Moiety for Years; in this Case the Lease may be avoided by the Wife, if she overlives the Husband, but not by the other Jointenant. Bridgm. 44, 45.

If Husband and Wife be seised of Land in London to them and the Heirs of the Husband, and they covenant by Indenture for 20<sup>l</sup>. to suffer a common Recovery according to the the Custom of the Place, (which binds as a Fine) and that it should be to the Use of the Recoverors, until they had made a good Lease by Indenture for forty Years, and after the making of the Lease, to the Use of them and the Heirs of the Husband, and [this Recovery is had; this Lease is good in this Case, and not avoidable by the Wife. Dyer 290.

If Husband and Wife join in a Deed of Gift or Grant, it shall be said to be the Deed of the Husband alone, and not of him and his Wife. 2 Brownl. 66.

M. is seised for Life, the Remainder to K. in Fee, K. takes N. to Husband, and after he and his Wife and one J. D. levy a Fine of the Land to F. and his Heirs, who grants and renders to J. S. for fifty Years from Michaelmas last past, rendring Rent, and granted the Reversion to the said N. and K. and to the Heirs of K. this is a good Lease. 6 Co. 63.

If Land be given to Husband and Wife and the Heirs of their Bodies, and they demise by Indenture, and after the Husband's Death the Wife enters and dies within the Term, it is now no Lease ab initio. Leon. 192. But till her Entry the Lease is not avoided. Cro. Jac. 332, 417.

The Husband is seised of Land in Right of his Wife, they both join in an Exchange of it by Deed, for other Land with a Stranger, and the Exchange is executed. They pass the Land taken in Exchange by Fine, yet the Wife after the Husband's Death may enter upon her own Land. Dyer 359. As where he after Marriage makes her an Assurance of a Jointure, and they levy a Fine of it, as of the Gift of her Husband; this will not bar her of her Dower. Leon. 285.

If a Lease is made by Indenture by Husband and Wife, and no Rent is reserved upon it; this is not void as it is in case of an Infant, but voidable at most. Hut. 102.

If Husband and Wife make a Lease by Indenture for Years, rendring Rent, the Lessee enters, the Husband before the Day of Payment of the Rent dies, the Wife also before the Day of Payment marries a second Husband, who accept the Rent at the Day; in this Case the Wife may not avoid the Term, but the Lease is good. Dyer 159.

If Husband and Wife be seised of Land in London in Right of the Wife, and they by Indenture covenant to suffer a Recovery of it to the Use of the Recoverors, until they make a Lease for forty Years, and after to the Use of the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Wife, the Lease is made accordingly, the Husband dies; the Lease is not avoided, nor avoidable by the Wife after the Death of the Husband. But Qu. What Remedy she has for the Rent. Dyer 290.

If a Lease is made by Husband and Wife of the Wife's Land to A. to try the Title of it, they being put out, and a Letter of Attorney to a third Person to enter into the Land, and to deliver the Deed, and the Letter of Attorney in the Name of the Husband and Wife, and they are sealed and delivered accordingly, this is good. 2 Leon. 200.

Husband and Wife in Right of the Wife and a third Person are Jointenants for the Lives of the Wife and a third Person; the Husband and Wife by Deed let the Moiety for twenty-one Years, the Wife died, the surviving Jointenant entered, &c. the Lease is good until she, or some in Privy claiming under her, do after her Coverture avoid it by Entry; for it is not void, but voidable, and the surviving Jointenant may not avoid it, but it will be good as long as either of the Jointenants live. Cro. Jac. 417.

Husband and Wife Lessees of a House in F. called the Three Conies; the Husband made a Lease of it for Part of the Years by these Words: The House and Tenements in F. called the Three Conies, with all the Chambers, Cellars, Shops, excepting and reserving to J. S. the Husband the Shops for his proper and only Use and Occupation. The Husband died within the Term, the Wife survived, and entered into the Shops, and lawful; for the Exception is void, and but temporary at most, to wit, during the Time they are in the Occupation of the Husband, and after his Death they shall be in the Disposal of the Wife, both House and Shops, for the Remainder of the Term. Dyer 264.

If Husband and Wife join in a Mortgage of her Term, this is no absolute Disposition. Hob. 3. And if he purchases in Fee, the Term is not extinct.

Husband and Wife possessed of a Term, mortgage their Interests, she dies before the Day of Payment, he pays the Money, he shall have the Lease. Hob. 3.

If a Feme Covert by Durefs joins in a Lease with her Husband, this shall bind her. 3 Leon. 71.

J. S. and a Feme Sole are Jointenants, the Feme marries, and her Husband and she join in an Indenture of Lease for the Moiety of the Land for eighty Years to J. D. if the Wife and her Companion shall so long live; the Wife dies, leaving the Husband, this is a good Lease, and not to be avoided by the surviving Jointenant. 3 Bulf. 271, 273.

Husband Wife join in a Mortgage of the Wife's Term; this is good, and if the Wife dies, the Condition shall survive to the Husband, as the Term should have done; and the Husband by the Marriage has full Power over his Wife's Term to alien it. Hob. 3.

Husband

Husband and Wife can neither expressly, nor by Acceptance of a new Lease, surrender the Wife's Freehold, so as to bind her surviving. Hob. 203, 204.

Husband and Wife of her Land may make a Lease to try a Title of her Land. Noy 130, 132.

Husband and Wife make a Lease of the Wife's Land, and this is signed and sealed by the Husband and Wife, and a Letter of Attorney by them, to deliver it in their Names upon the Land, and by the Attorney delivered in both their Names; this is a void Lease as to the Wife. Cro. Car. 617.

Husband and Wife (in Right of the Wife) and a third Person are Jointenants for the Lives of the Wife and the third Person, and the Husband and Wife by Deed indented grant a Moiety for twenty-one Years, the Wife dies, the surviving Jointenant may not enter and avoid it. Cro. Jac. 417.

If Husband and Wife make a Lease not warranted by Stat. 32 H. 8. yet it may be a good Lease as to the Husband; but if it be made according to the Statute, it will bind the Husband and Wife both, and the Heirs of the Wife; but it will not bar the Donor or him in Remainder. Co. Lit. 44.

If Husband and Wife make a Lease of her Land, rendring Rent to them and the Heir of the Wife, (as such Lease should be made) in this Case the Husband cannot by Fine or Deed grant or discharge this Rent longer than during the Coverture, unless the Wife join in the Fine, but this Rent shall descend, remain or revert in such Sort and Manner as the Land should have done.

A Lease for Years by Husband and Wife, if it be without Deed, is void as to the Wife. Cro. Car. 656.

If the Husband be seised in Fee, and the Wife for Life, and they both bargain and sell the Land in Fee, upon Condition, that if they, or either of them, pay 100*l.* then it shall be void; and all Assurances made to be to the Use of the Husband and his Heirs; the Husband dies, the Wife pays the 100*l.* she shall have an Estate for Life, notwithstanding the Declaration of the Use as before. Cro. Car. 744.

If Husband and Wife for Money bargain and sell her Land, and afterwards levy a Fine Come ceo of it; this Estate is made good, and the Wife cannot avoid it. Moor 22.

If Husband and Wife make a Parol Lease for Years of the Wife's Land, and then levy a Fine, and then they both die, the Conusee may avoid this Lease. Leon. 247.

The Husband and Wife together may join, and by Fine or common Recovery make a good Assurance of any Land she has and her Husband has in her Right of any Freehold Estate they have in her Right. And so they may also bar her of any Right or Title of Jointure, or Dower, she has or may have in or to any of the Husband's Lands: But so they may not do by Deed indented, (no, though it be afterwards inrolled) Feoffment or other Conveyance by Deed, but where there is a special Custom to warrant and enable it. Co. Lit. 171. 20 H. 7. 8. Plow. 515.

And they both together may make a Lease of the Land she has and he holds in her Right, for three Lives or twenty-one Years, according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 28. to bind them and their Heirs. Co. Lit. 44. Or they may make a Lease of such Land to try a Title; and these two Things they may do by Deed in pais without Fine or Recovery. And if he has a Copyhold Estate in her Right, they two may surrender it in the Court according to the Custom of the Place. 4 Co. 23. Dy. 344.

But if they both join in a Statute or Recognizance, this does not bind the Wife, or her Land. Kelw. 10.

The Husband by his Fine alone cannot conclude his Wife after his Death, as to her Lands. Woman's Lawyer 103.

If the Husband alone levies a Fine of his Wife's Land for any Estate whatsoever, she may avoid this Fine after his Death. Woman's Lawyer 163.

And if they make a Lease, rendring Rent to them and the Heirs of the Wife, (as in such Cases the Leases must be made) the Husband may not by Fine or otherwise grant or discharge this Rent for longer Time than during the Coverture, unless the Wife join in the Fine, but the Rent shall remain, descend or revert in such Manner as the Land would have done. Ibid.

If the Husband alone makes a Feoffment or other Grant of his Wife's Land, this will be good against him, and all others, but his Wife, who may avoid it after his Death. Perk. §. 223.

If a Woman Inheritrix has a Husband within Age, who within Age aliens her Land and dies, the Wife by her Entry shall avoid this. Lit. §. 633, 634. Co. Lit. 336. b. 337. a.

If the Husband alone makes a Lease for Years of his Wife's Land, rendring Rent, and dies, this Lease will be void as to the Wife. 2 Co. 77. 26 H. 8. 2.

And yet if after his Death she takes another Husband who accepts the Rent, the Lease is made good. Dyer 159.

Where the Husband alone makes a Lease for Years of the Wife's Land, this is good for no longer than he lives, and yet it is not avoided till the Wife makes her Entry. Plow. 137.

If a Man be possessed of a Term in Right of his Wife, and grants Part of it to another the Wife after the Husband's Death will have the Residue of the Term not granted; and it shall be only an Alteration for what is granted. Cro. Car. 33.

If Husband and Wife be Jointenants for sixty Years, and the Husband by Indenture lets all the Land for seventy Years, to begin immediately after his Death; the Husband dies, the Wife survives; this is a good Lease. But it is otherwise if he grants the Term itself to begin after his Death. Cro. Car. 287. Cro. Eliz. 155.

W. and his Wife being possessed of a Term in Right of the Wife, which she has as Administratrix; W. grants the Term to C. to the Use of him and his Wife for their Lives, and after to the Use of himself; this Grant is good, and shall not be said to be fraudulent to deceive Creditors, and is out of the Statute of 19 H. 7. and all other Statutes of that Nature. Cro. Car. 392, 393.

If Husband and Wife have an Estate in Land to them and to the Heirs of the Husband, and he alone makes a Lease of the Land; this will be good against all Persons but the Wife, and that also for her Time only. Bro. Leases 58.

If Tenant in Fee-simple takes a Wife, and then makes a Lease for Years, and dies, and the Wife is endowed of the third Part of his Land; in this Case she will avoid the Lease for her Time for so much of the Land as is within her Thirds, but after her Death it will be good again. Co. Lit. 46.

A Man purchases Land to him and his Wife, and their Heirs, afterwards he without his Wife lets this Land for sixty Years to another, if they two live so long, the Husband dies; in this Case it seems this Lease shall bind the Wife, although she be no Party to the Deed, by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. and is within that Statute. Cro. Eliz. 15, 16.

If a Man who is possessed of a Term of Years in Right of his Wife makes a Lease thereof to begin after his Death, and dies during the Term, the Wife survives; the Lease is good. Poph. 97.

A Man who has Land in Right of his Wife makes a Lease for Years of it, it is not void by his Death till she enters. Cro. Jac. 132.

If Husband makes a Gift in Tail of his Wife's Land, rendering Rent, and they after grant the Reversion by Fine, by this the Wife is barred of all; but if they grant the Rent only by Fine, there the Wife after his Death may enter. Moor 91.

If a Lease be made to Husband and Wife during their Lives, the Remainder to the Executors of the Survivor of them; if the Husband grant away this Term, and dies, the same will not bar the Wife, for he has but a Possibility, and no Interest.

But if a Man be possessed of a Term for forty Years in the Right of his Wife, and he makes a Lease for twenty Years, reserving Rent, and dies, although the Wife has the Residue of the Term, yet the Executors of the Husband shall have the Rent, for she is no Party to the Lease.

So if the Husband makes a Grant of the whole Term, upon Condition that the Grantee shall pay a Sum of Money to the Executors, &c. the Husband dies, and upon Breach of the Condition the Executors enter; by this the whole Term passes, and he is barred of it. Co. Lit. 46. 10 Co. in Lampet's Case.

If a Man purchases Land to him and his Wife and their Heirs, and afterwards (without his Wife) he lets the Land for sixty Years, if they two live so long, the Husband dies; this binds the Wife by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. although she be no Party to the Deed. Cro. Eliz. 15.

If a Man possessed of a Term in Right of his Wife makes a Lease for Years of the Land, to begin after his Death, and then dies, his Wife survives; the Lessee shall have it during his Term, but for the Remainder of the Term, if the Husband makes no Disposition of it, the Wife shall have it. Poph. 5. For where a Woman has a Term, and marries, the Husband may dispose of it in his Life, but not by Will, Plow. 416.

Land is given to Husband and Wife and to the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, the Husband makes a Feoffment in Fee, and dies, having Issue, and afterwards the Wife before she enters dies; the Feoffment is a Discontinuance to the Issue at Common Law, and this Estate in the Husband and Wife is within the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 28. and by that Statute the Entry of the Issue in Tail is lawful. Co. 71. Moor 28.

If the Husband be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to the Wife in Tail, and the Husband makes a Feoffment in Fee, and dies without Issue, the Wife may enter; but if he suffers a Recovery, and dies without Issue contra, she is barred. 8 Co. 72.

If the Husband has Issue, and aliens, and the Wife dies, the Issue may not enter during the Life of the Husband; but if the Husband aliens, and after the Wife is divorced Causa præcontractus, or for other Cause dissolving the Marriage a vinculo, &c. there the Wife may enter by the Statute during the Life of the Husband. 8 Co. 72.

Husband purchased Land to him and his Wife and their Heirs, and afterwards without his Wife let the Land for sixty Years, if they lived so long, rendring Rent, the Husband dies; the Wife by 32 H. 8. c. 28. is bound by the Lease. Cro. Car. 15, 16.

A Lease and Letter of Attorney by the Husband alone, and under his Seal, without the Seal of the Wife, is not good; but in such Case to seal a Lease to try a Title by Ejectment, the Husband and Wife both must seal the Lease and Letter of Attorney, and the Attorney must enter in both their Names. And so Leases must be made to sue for Recovery of her Lands. 2 Bulf. 11.

Husband and Wife seised jointly to them and their Heirs of an Estate of Inheritance of Lands made during the Coverture, and the Husband makes a Feoffment in Fee, and dies, the Wife may enter within the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 28. although it was the Inheritance of them both. Co. Lit. 326. a.

And so it is if the Feoffment be made by the Husband and Wife, (although the Words of the Statute be by the Husband only) for in Substance this is the Act of the Husband only. Co. Lit. 326. a.

Before the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uses, a Feoffment was made to the Use of a Man and a Woman who were unmarried, and of the Heirs of their two Bodies; they marry, and then the Statute is made; afterwards the Husband bargains and sells the whole Land to one of the Feoffees, and dies, the Wife shall have but a Moiety of the Land; but if the Wife dies, the Son shall have a Formedon of the whole Land. Dyer 149.

If a Husband be possessed of Land for Years in Right of his Wife, and grants a Rent-Charge, and dies, the Wife may avoid it. Co. Lit. 185.

If Husband alone without his Wife makes a Lease for Years of his Wife's Land, this is only voidable, and not void by his Death. Cro. Jac. 332, 417.

If Husband purchases Lands to him and his Wife in Fee, and he alone makes a Lease of the Land for sixty Years, this seems a good Lease by 32 H. 8. c. 28. Cro. Eliz. 15.

And yet if the Husband at Common Law was seised of Land in Right of his Wife, and he made a Lease for Years, rendring Rent, and died, this Lease had been void as to the Wife. Cro. Jac. 77. 26 H. 8. 2. Dyer 92.

An Annuity is granted to a Wife for Life by one, to whom the Husband releases all Demands, and dies, the Wife is not barred by this. Moor 668.

If a Husband makes a Lease for Years of his Wife's Copyhold Lands of Inheritance, (which is a Forfeiture by the Custom) this is no good Lease to bind, and therefore shall not prejudice his Wife after his Death. Cro. Eliz. 4.

A Lease of Land is made to Husband and Wife for their Lives, the Remainder to the Executors of the Survivor of them, the Husband grants away the Term, and dies, this is not good against the Wife, for it is but a Possibility, and not an Interest. Co. Lit. 46.

Baron and Feme Jointenants during the Coverture for sixty Years; the Baron by Indenture lets all the Land for seventy Years, to begin immediately after his Death; the Baron dies, the Wife survives, this is a good Lease, and not like to a Lease to begin after the Death of the Baron, where he may over-live the whole Term; nor like a Grant of a Term to begin after his Death, where nothing passes till his Death: But here a good Term is created in Interest though not in Possession; and here the Baron having an Interest to dispose of in his Life-time, he may dispose of the Term, and it shall bind the Wife; and when he has disposed of it by Act executed in his Life-time, he has created a Term in Interest, and it is as good as if he had granted all the Term. Cro. Eliz. 287. Co. 155.

Husband and Wife Jointenants for one hundred Years, the Husband makes a Lease for twenty Years, to begin after his Death, and dies; the Lease is good. Moor 395.

The Husband alone may convey the Land he has in Right of his Wife, during both their Lives together, without her Consent or Agreement.

A Lease made by the Husband alone of the Wife's Land is not void by his Death till the Wife's Entry. Cro. Jac. 417. Dyer 290.

The Husband may not make a Lease of his Wife's Copyhold of Inheritance to prejudice her or her Heirs after his Death. Cro. Eliz. 4.

If one has a Lease for Years, Extent, or the next Avoidance of a Church, in the Right of his Wife, he may grant it away by Act executed in his Life-time, but not devise it by Will, for it will return to the Wife if not disposed by this Act executed.

But the absolute Property of all the Wife's Goods and Chattels moveable and personal Estate is vested in the Husband, and he may give or grant them away, without her, at his Pleasure. Moore 44, 45.

If

If a Feme Inheritrix has a Husband within Age, and he within Age aliens her Land and dies, she by her Entry may avoid this. Lit. §. 633, 634.

If Husband conveys his Land to the Use of himself and Wife, and to the Heirs of the Survivor of them, and he afterwards makes a Feoffment of this Land, by this he has destroyed the contingent Use. Cro. Eliz. 73.

Husband possessed of a Term in Right of his Wife, grants Part of the Term to another; the Wife shall have the Residue of the Term after the Husband's Death, and the Alteration shall be only for what is granted. Cro. Car. 33.

If a Lease for Years be made to the Husband to the Use of the Wife, the Husband may sell it for a good Consideration, and there will be no Remedy for the Wife in Law. Bull. 118.

If Husband and Wife make a Lease of her Land, rendring Rent to them and to the Heirs of the Wife, for so the Render should be made: The Husband by Fine or otherwise cannot grant or discharge the Rent for longer Time than during the Coverture, unless the Wife joins with him. Woman's Lawyer 113.

If Husband purchases Land in Fee to them two and their Heirs, he alone without her may make a Lease of the Land, for this is out of the Statute of 32 H. 8. as to require her joining with him. Cro. Eliz. 15.

If a Woman has a Lease for Years, and conveys it in Trust for her own Use, and after marries, the Husband may not dispose of it; and if the Wife dies, the Husband may not dispose of it, but it shall go to the Executor of the Wife. March 44. Case 69.

If a Copyholder makes a Lease for Years of the Land whereof a Feme by Custom is to have her Widow's Estate, she shall not avoid the Lease, unless there be a special Custom to avoid it; for he comes under the Custom, and by the Lord's Licence as well as the Feme. Cro. Jac. 36, 37.

If Husband has an Estate in Right of his Wife for her Life as Dower or otherwise, and he alone, or they both, by Deed surrender to him in Reversion; this is good during the Coverture, but if she survives, or there be a Divorce Causa præcontractus, the Wife may enter, and avoid the Surrender, though he to whom it was made be dead, and his Heir in by Descent. Perk. §. 117.

If a Feme Sole makes a Feoffment in Fee, on Condition to pay 10*l.* to the Wife at Easter next, and she before that Time takes a Husband, the Husband may release this Condition, and bar her for ever. Perk. fo. 764.

If a Lease be made to Husband and Wife for Years, the Remainder to the Survivor of them for twenty-one Years, the Husband alone cannot dispose of this Remainder to bar his Wife.

So if a Lease be made to them for Lives with such a Remainder, the Husband cannot grant it away. 10 Co. 51.

Husband purchases Land to him and his Wife and their Heirs, and after he alone lets it for sixty Years, if he lives so long, rendring Rent, Husband dies; the Lease shall be good against the Wife upon the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. and not within the Proviso. Cro. El. 15, 16.

The Husband alone cannot by Fine, Recovery or otherwise, by any Deed dispose of the Land of his Wife for longer Time than he lives with her, but she or her Heir will avoid it.

But by Stat. 32 H. 8. they may make Leases according as the Statute directs. 17 E. 4. 14. And if it be otherwise made, although the Money given for the Land sold be paid to her, yet this will not make it good. 8 Co. 72.

Where Husband and Wife are joint Purchasers, the Husband alone may make a Feoffment or Discontinuance, the Wife being upon the Land and not agreeing to it.

But of a joint Estate in Fee-simple, or for Life, to the Husband and Wife, there regularly the Husband alone during his Wife's Life may not sever the Jointure, or dispose of it.

And if a Lease for Years be made to them, and he alone charges it, she may avoid this. Plow. 58, 259. Dyer 9.

And if the Husband makes a Lease of his Wife's Land for Years, and then he and his Wife alien it by Fine, and the Husband dies, the Alienee shall avoid this Lease. Bridgm. 45.

And if the Husband be seised of a Reversion in the Right of his Wife, and he grants it away, and the Tenant attorn, yet this shall not bar the Wife. 19 H. 6. 4.

The Husband alone may give or grant away any of the Chattels Real of his Wife by Act executed in his Life-time, and this will bind and bar him and his Wife also; and therefore if one has a Term in Right of his Wife, and he in Reversion confirms the Estate of the Husband and Wife, Habendum for Term of their two Lives; by this the Lease for Years is drowned and gone. Plowd. 199. Lit. §. 526. 9 Co. 129. 10 Co. 47.

So if the Wife has a future Interest, the Husband alone during the Coverture may grant it away, or by Release, &c. prevent her of it.

So

So for any Goods or Chattels she has as Executrix. Kelw. 103, 122. 5 Co. 27. 21 H. 7.

24. Bro. Grants 157.

If Husband and Wife levy a Fine, and he alone declares the Uses, this is good to bind both of them. 2 Co. 157. But if she disagrees to it, and declares other Uses, contra.

2 Co. 17.

And generally all Acts done by the Husband voluntarily and out of Court, which he and his Wife are compellable to do, and is to be done by Deed, or otherwise, shall be deemed both their Acts, and good: As where he is seised in his Wife's Right, or jointly with his Wife, and he assigns Dower to another Woman, or grants a Rent for Equality of Partition, or makes an Attornment, this will bind her though done by him alone. 9 Co. 85.

No Man's Wife, except the Queen, may by any Deed of Gift or Grant, Obligation, release, or otherwise, dispose of or bind her Husband's Person, Land or Goods, without his Consent; nor will any such Deed made by her alone without her Husband conclude or bind herself. And her saying in the Deed that she is Sole, if she be otherwise, will not amend the Case. The Wife alone, or other Woman alone.

But a Deed referring to a Fine or Recovery, as to lead the Uses thereof, and the like, may in some Cases be good by the Wife alone. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 8, 20, 41, 185, 186, 86, 194. Yelv. 1. Jenk. Cent. 4. Case 20.

And though there be a solemn Agreement between Man and Wife before the Marriage that she alone shall have the Disposol of Lands or Goods without her Husband, yet this will not do, she shall not have the Disposol of his Lands or Goods without his Agreement. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 8, 21, 41.

If Husband and Wife Tenants in Tail of the Gift of the Husband, the Remainder to the Husband in Fee, and the Husband dies, and the Son and Heir of the Wife levies a Fine with Proclamations to the Use of himself and Heirs; the Wife makes a Lease of the Land for twenty-one Years, this is good against the Issue in Tail. Bridgm. 28, 29.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for thirty-one Years, and takes a Husband and has Issue, the Wife dies, and the Husband is Tenant by the Curtesy; one may not avoid the Lease during his Life. Owen 83.

But if he surrenders to the Issue, the Issue may avoid the Lease. Moor 8.

If Land be given to Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Husband dies leaving Issue by his Wife, and the Wife makes a Lease according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. in this Case it seems the Lease is good to bind the Issue. Godb. Case 119.

If Husband and Wife seised of Land in Right of the Wife, levy a Fine to the Use of themselves for their Lives, and after to the Use of the Heirs of the Wife, provided that it shall be lawful for the Husband and Wife at any Time during their Lives to make Leases for twenty-one Years, or three Lives; the Wife being Covert makes a Lease for twenty-one Years, the Lease will be good against the Husband. Godb. Case 419.

If a Man seised of Land in Fee enfeoffs divers Persons, upon Condition that they shall give back the Land to him and his Wife in Tail, the Remainder to his right Heirs; they have Issue a Son, the Husband dies, the Son in the Life of the Wife levies a Fine with Proclamations to A. the Wife enters, and makes a Lease for three Lives, not warranted by Stat. 32 H. 8. the Conusee re-enters, his Entry is lawful; for the Lease being a Discontinuance, is within the Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. and the Conusee may enter for the Forfeiture. And if a Wife accepts a Fine Sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. she being Tenant in Tail, and thereby grant and render the Land for 1000 Years, this is an Alienation within the Statute of 11 H. 7. 3 Co. 51. Dyer 148.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail of the Gift of her deceased Husband, or any of his Ancestors whilst she is Sole, or after with another Husband makes a Lease, although it be within the Stat. 32 H. 8. yet it is not good. 3 Co. 51. Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20.

A Feme Sole possessed of a Term conveys it over in Trust for her, and being to marry, the Husband is bound not to meddle with it; he may not have it, nor assign it. March, pl. 141.

A Feme Sole conveys a Term in Trust, and then marries, the Husband assigns it; the Trust (not the Estate) passes. March, pl. 141.

If a Feme Covert grants an Annuity by Deed, it is void.

And if her Husband be seised of Land in her Right, and she grants a Rent-Charge out of it by Deed, it is void.

And so if the Husband knows of it, and agrees to it, if it be done by him also.

And although he has been out of the Country, and it is not known whether he be living, but she has managed the Estate a great while, yet if he be alive the Deed is void. Perk. r. 1. §. 6.

A Lease made by a Female Covert is not good unless it be made by Deed; for if it be by Parol, it is void, but if by Deed, it is voidable only. Cro. Eliz. 497.

A Woman

A Woman who has recovered the third Part of her Husband's Land in Dower, may not make a Lease of it till she be in Possession by Execution. Bro. Sci. Fa. 36.

A Feme Covert will not be bound by a Deed inrolled, unless she be examined, and so in London it will bind her. Hob. 225.

A Feme Covert alone, and without her Husband, cannot make a Feoffment of her own Land, and if she dies, it is void, although her Husband agrees to it. Perk. §. 185, 186.

If Land be given to Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Husband dies leaving Issue by the Wife, and the Wife make a Lease according to the Stat. 32 H. 8. this Lease it seems is good to bind the Issue. Godb. Case 119.

If a Feme Sole makes a Grant of a Rent out of her Land, and delivers it to a Stranger to take Effect as her Deed, upon certain Conditions performed, her taking a Husband before the Time, or if she had made a Feoffment or Lease, will not hinder, but upon Performance of the Condition the Deed shall take Effect. Perk. c. 1, 2. And if she be Covert at the Time of Delivery, and after before the Time of Performance she become Sole, yet is the Deed void. Idem.

A Feme Covert alone cannot by any Deed during the Coverture dispose of any of the Lands, Goods or Chattels she has in her own Right, without her Husband; and therefore all Feoffments, Deeds, Gifts and Grants made thereof by her alone, are void. And although she says in the Deed that she is Sole, that will not make the Case better. And although such Deeds be executed by Livery of Seisin or Attornment, yet they are not good, or of any Force at all. And although the Husband be agreeing or privy to it, yet they are not good to bind the Husband or herself. And although he be out of the Country vagrant, and it is not known whether he be alive or dead, yet it is not good. Co. Lit. 112. Dyer 234. Perk. c. 7. 2.

So of Statutes and Obligations made by her, these are all void, and not binding to him or her. 10 Co. 43. Kelw. 10, 12, 21. 16 H. 7. 5. 1 H. 7. 15. 5 Co. 27.

And therefore a fortiori, she may not dispose of her Husband's own Lands, Goods or Chattels, that he is seised or possessed of in his own Right without her Husband.

But if a Feme Sole Executrix takes a Husband, she, after her Marriage, without and against her Husband's Will, may do any lawful Act for an Executor to do; but if that which is done be a Devastavit, it is not good to bind him. Perk. c. 1, 2.

If there be a Difference between a Man and a Wife, and by the Mediation of some Friends some of his Land be assigned to her by his Assent, yet she may not dispose of it without him. Perk. §. 7.

If the Wife alone gives or grants the Husband's Goods, this will be good till the Husband disagrees to it; but if it be by Deed, the Deed will be void; and yet by the Husband's Agreement it may be made good for ever. Bro. Dower 504. Plow. 294.

† If one devises that his Executor shall sell his Land, and makes his Wife Executrix; she alone, or with another Husband, may sell it. Kelw. 10.

A Feme Covert that is an Executrix may do any Thing according to the Office and Duty of an Executor as another may do, save only give or sell Goods or Chattels; this she may not do; and she may not assent to a Legacy without him. 5 Co. 27. 2 H. 7. 15. Perk. §. 2.

Jointenant.

A Custom that a Wife may give Lands to her Husband is void. Godb. Case 178.

Where one of many that make a Deed of Feoffment has the Land, and the rest have nothing in it, yet it is a good Deed to pass the Land. Bro. Feoffments 4. Perk. §. 222.

A Jointenant may lease his Moiety for Years, to commence after his own or after his Companion's Death. Lane 14.

An Infant may not make a Gift or Grant by Deed, or do any Thing else by Deed that will be good and binding to him or others, but in some special Cases: For if he makes such a Deed that shall take Effect by the Delivery of the Deed only, as where he shall grant a Rent-Charge out of his Land, or make a Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to give Livery of of Seisin, or by Deed give or sell any of his Goods, and the Buyer takes the Thing, these Deeds are void ab initio.

But if the Deed takes Effect by the Delivery of the Hand of the Infant, as where by Deed he makes a Feoffment, and gives Livery of Seisin by his own Hand; or sells Goods and delivers them with his own Hand; these are voidable by the Infant himself, or him that shall have his Right, as Privies in Blood or Estate, &c. Moor 105.

But what he does by Fine or Recovery, or by way of Statute or Recognizance, or Inrolment of a Deed, he may avoid this during his Minority; it is not to be avoided afterwards. 17 Aff. 17. Latch 151. F. N. B. 104. 9 H. 7. 27.

And if he dies during his Nonage, his Heir cannot avoid it. 26 H. 8. 2. 7 H. 4. 3. Perk. §. 12, 13, 19. Popb. 152. Moor 146. Co. Lit. 171.

If an Infant makes an Exchange or Partition by Deed, this it seems is only voidable, and he may affirm it at his full Age. F. N. B. 62. 18 E. 4. 2. 18 H. 4. 11.

If he makes a Feoffment in Fee, with a Warrant to give Livery of Seisin, and the Attorney does it accordingly; this is void, and the Feoffee when he enters is a Disseisor, and so the Infant may sue him as such, or he may enter upon him: But if the Infant gives Livery with his own Hands, the Estate is only voidable, and the Feoffee may not be charged as a Disseisor or Trespasser. 5 Co. 119. 4 Co. 125. 3 Co. 422. Dyer 10, 36, 109.

If a Wife Inheritor has a Husband within Age, and he aliens her Land during his Nonage, and dies, the Wife may enter. Co. Lit. 336.

A Lease at Will by an Infant without Rent is void. Cro. Car. 220.

And it is a Rule, That all Gifts and Grants by Deed made by an Infant, that take not Effect by the Livery of the Hand, are void.

And all Gifts and Grants by Deed made by an Infant, that take Effect by Livery of the Hand, are voidable by himself, his Heirs, and those to whom his Estate shall come. Co. Lit. 171. Perk. §. 12. Brownl. 120. 21 H. 6. 31.

But if an Infant be Executor, he may do any lawful Act as Executor; and therefore if he makes a Release for a Debt he hath duly received, this is a good Deed; but if he shall make a Deed of Release for the Debt he hath not received, this Deed will be void; but if he does receive the Money, it is a good Deed of Release against him. Cro. Eliz. 532. Co. Lit. 172. Bro. Executor 114. Dyer 104.

But for the Person to take Advantage of a voidable Deed or Estate made by an Infant, see 8 Co. 43.

And it is a Rule, That where an Infant makes a voidable Feoffment, there his Privies in Blood, as the Heir general or special, or general and special both, may take Advantage of the Infancy of the Ancestor, and enter: But Privies in Law, as the Lord by Escheat, and the like, may not take Advantage of such Infancy; and where an Infant dies without Heir, his Feoffment is unavoidable. 9 Co. 42. 4 Co. 125.

If a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. and dies without Issue, and the Reversion descend to his general Heir, being an Infant, he may avoid it. But an Heir in Tail then within Age, when he comes of full Age, by Acceptance of the Rent, may make the Lease of the Tenant in Tail good.

And yet the King as to his Right by Wardship might have avoided it for his Time. 7 Co. 3.

And if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for thirty or forty Years, and dies without Issue, his Wife young with Child of a Son, and the Donor enters and avoids the Lease, and then the Son is born, the Lessee enters, and the Son at his full Age accepts the Rent; by this he has made good the Lease that was before only avoidable. 7 Co. 3.

If an Infant Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years within the Statute of 32 H. 8. this is not good although the Statute be general.

If an Infant Copyholder makes a Lease of his Copyhold Land, it is no Forfeiture because it is void; but if he accepts the Rent reserved upon it at full Age, it will be a Forfeiture. Latch 199.

A Grant of a Copyhold by an Infant is good if the Custom will warrant it; and the Presentation to a Church by an Infant is good for fear of Lapse; but it seems the Infant must be of the Age of fourteen Years or more to present to a Church. Perk. c. 1. 4 Co. 23. 8 Co. 63. Noy 41.

An Infant also may make a Lease for Years to try a Title of Lands. Noy 130.

If an Infant seised of Lands in Fee makes a Lease for Years of it, rendring Rent; this is only voidable, and by his Acceptance of the Rent when he is of Age will be affirmed and made good.

But if he make a Lease of it, rendring no Rent, the Lease is void. 9 H. 7. 24. Plowd. 545. 18 E. 4. 2. 3 Co. 65.

If an Infant grants a Rent, Advowson or Common by Deed, this Deed will be void, and he shall have the same Remedy against the Grantee for his taking a Distress for the Rent, or any other Use made of the Grant, as if no such Grant had been. Co. Lit. 172.

An Infant after he is of Years of Discretion may contract, and may make a single Bill on Contract to pay Money for his necessary Physick, Food, Apparel or Schooling, or Instruction in any Thing that may Profit him, or the Nursing of his Child; and this Deed will bind him as much as if he was of full Age, and what shall be said to be necessary in these Cases shall be tried by the Judges, and not by a Jury. Co. Lit. 172. a.

But if it be a Writing with a Penalty, it will not bind him, nor will his Bill to another Man that has paid such Money for him to pay it again bind an Infant. Co. Lit. 172. Poph. 152. 9 Co. 87. Kelw. 19. Latch 151. Cro. Car. 560. 12 Co. 122, 123.

By a Corporation.

The Grants of some Persons will not be good in Perpetuity without the Assent of others, by way of Grants, Confirmations or otherwise; so the Grant of a Dean without the Chapter, of the Mayor without the Commonalty, the Master of a College without his Fellows, and the like, without a general Consent of the whole Body, is void: But a Body Corporate may by Deed give or grant, do or convey together by joint Consent, as a single Person may do; and so they may convey or charge any of the Lands, or give or dispose any of the Goods or Chattels belonging to their Corporation. Perk. §. 31, 32, 33.

And if any of the Members of any such Corporation be seised of any Land in his own Right, and in his natural Capacity he may make a Feoffment, Grant or Lease of, or a Charge upon this Land, as another Man may do, and so he may dispose of his Goods and Chattels. Perk. §. 224, 225, 51, 209. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 29. Godb. 300.

A Corporation may grant their Land by way of Bargain and Sale. 3 Leon. 159.

But generally, neither the Head alone, nor any one or more of the Members of a Corporation Aggregate of many alone, as a Dean without the Chapter, or Chapter without the Dean, may make a Deed of Feoffment or other Grant of any of the Lands belonging to the Corporation; but all of them together may make a Deed of Feoffment or Lease of any of the Lands belonging to the Corporation. Perk. §. 224, 225. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 29.

By a Disseisor or Feoffee of a Disseisor.

If a Disseisor, or the Feoffee of a Disseisor, or any other who has but a tortious and defeasible Title, subject to an Action or Entry, shall hold a Copyhold Court, and makes Copyhold Estates, such voluntary Grants made by him will not bind him who has Right, when he shall recontinue the Manor by Action or Entry: And yet if one who has such a defeasible Estate shall in such a Manor admit one upon a Surrender, or upon a Descent, such Admittances, according to the Custom, are good. 4 Co. 23. Hob. 215. Poph. 141.

By a Copyholder.

A Tenant at Will Copyholder cannot by Custom make a Lease for Life by Licence of the Lord; and there cannot be any such Custom for a Lease for Life as there is for a Lease for Years. Godb. 6, 236.

A Lease of a Copyhold that has been demised according to the Custom, rendring the accustomed Rent, is a Lease within the Stat. 32 H. 8. Moor 759. 6 Co. 37.

Copyholders generally pass their Copyhold Lands by Copy of Court-Roll, and not by Deed; but if by any special Custom of the Place a Copyholder may make a Deed, as in some Cases he may make a Lease for Years, there he that holds this Land may by Deed grant it as the Custom is; for all Things are to be done by the Copyholder, according to the Custom of the Place; and he is to do nothing against the Custom, nor without Warrant of it.

If a Copyholder makes such a Lease for Years as is a Forfeiture, yet the Lease is good as to the Parties, and the Lessee may have an Ejectione firme upon it. Oro. 18.

A Lease made by a Copyholder by Licence of the Lord, is a good Lease; and an Ejectionment may be brought upon it. Cro. El. 551.

Any Person who has a lawful Estate in a Manor, be it in Fee, in Tail, in Dower, by the Curtesy, for Life or Years; or as Guardian, or Tenant by Statute, Elegit, or at Will, if a Copyhold escheats or comes to their Hands during the Time they have it, may grant the same, rendring the Rent, Customs and Services; and this will bind the Lord who has the Inheritance or Freehold of the Manor; and if a Disseisor, or Feoffee of a Disseisor, or other who has a tortious or defeasible Estate or Interest, subject to the Action or Entry of another, keeps a Court, and makes any voluntary Grant upon Escheat or Forfeiture of a Copyhold, this Grant will not bind him that has Right, when he has recontinued the Manor by Action or Entry; but Admittances of an Heir, or upon a Surrender, are good if made within the Custom. 4 Co. 23.

By one blind, deaf and dumb.

A Person born blind, deaf and dumb, is disabled by Law to make a good Deed; and therefore such a Man's Deed is void; But not if he be deaf, dumb or blind, and hath so much Understanding, that he can make his Mind known by Signs. Perk. §. 6, 19, 23, 24.

And

And such a Person as before may make a voluntary Grant upon an Escheat, or upon a Forfeiture, or otherwise, according to the Custom of the Manor; and this will be good.

<sup>4 Co. 23.</sup> A Gift or Grant by or to a deformed Person, having human Shape, or to a Leper, or By deformed such like Person, of Lands or Goods, may be as good as by or to any other Person what Person, Leper, soever. Co. Lit. 2.

And a Leper removed by the King's Writ from the Society of Men, may notwithstanding give or take by Deed as another Man may do. Co. Lit. 2.

And an Hermaphrodite, according to the most prevailing Sex, may give or grant, have Hermaphrodite. and take by Deed, as any Man may do. Co. Lit. 2.

A Person who has committed Treason or Felony may give or grant or charge his Lands By Persons by Deed, as another Man may do; and so he may after he is attainted for the same Offence attainted of by Outlawry, Verdict or Confession; but this shall not hinder the Forfeiture due to the King Treason or or to the Lord. Felony.

And in this Case, such a Person before or after his Attainder may give or grant his Goods or Chattels by or without Deed to relieve himself in Prison: And this, for so much, will be good and binding to the Lord and King also; and for all the rest, it is good against all Persons whatsoever, except the Lord and King. Co. Lit. 2, 42, 43. Perk. §. 26, 27, 28, 29, 182.

If an outlawed Person, or an Heir in Ward, makes a Deed of Feoffment, or other Grant By outlawed of his Land, this will be good against all Men but the King and the Lord. Perk. §. 219. Persons.

Stann. Prærog. 40.

A Person outlawed in any Civil Action may give, or grant or charge, have and take Lands or Goods by Deed, as any other Man may do; and this will be good against him and all others. But this notwithstanding shall not bar or exclude the King or other Persons from the Benefit of Forfeiture which is given and due to them by the Outlawry. And although the King seises and takes into his Hands the Profits of his Land (as he may) upon the Outlawry, yet the Person outlawed may make what Disposal he pleases of the Land itself; and this will bind himself and all others, save the King, for the Profits of the Land during the Life of the outlawed Person only; and for his Goods and Chattels he may dispose of them until the King or his Patentee seises them. Perk. §. 26, 48. Owen 116. Co. Lit. 2.

An excommunicate Person may give, or grant or charge his Lands or Goods, or have By an ex- and take Lands or Goods by the Gift or Grant of another Man, as any other Person what-communicate soever may do: And such Gifts and Grants will be good against and to the Parties that give Person. or take by the Deeds, and against all others whatsoever. Perk. §. 182, 185.

A Man that is drunk may give or grant, do, have and take by Deed, as any other Man By a Man that may do: or as he himself when he is fresh and sober may do; and his Deed will be as is drunk. binding to him, and all others, made at this Time, as at any other Time. Wing. Max. 570.

To the making of a good Deed it is requisite (amongst other Things) that he who makes By a Man that it, when he does it, has his Reason and Understanding: And therefore if a Man void of is of Sane Me- Reason, and that wants common Understanding, and that is either born so, and has been mory. so from his Birth, who is called an Ideot a Nativitate, or one that is born with Understand- Ideot. ing, and becomes accidentally so, such as we call a Lunatick or mad Person, be he so al- ways, or at certain Seasons and by Fits, that has (as we say) his Lucida intervalla, if any Lunatick. such Person, whilst he is in this Case, shall do any Thing by Fine or Recovery, this will be good to bind him and all others. And if he makes any Deed, and thereby gives, or grants or charges his Land, or gives or sells his Goods; this Deed will be good and binding to himself, for it is a Rule in Law, Nemo admittendus est inhabilitare seipsum; but it shall not bind his Heirs, Executors, and such others as should have had the Thing given or granted after his Death, had not that Deed been made; but they may avoid it: So that the Law in this is, That all Acts done by one Non sane memorie are good against himself, but void- able by his Heirs, Executors, and such as are to have his Estate after his Death. And yet if he be such a one as has his Lucida intervalla, and the Deed in Question is made by him whilst he is in that Case; this is a good Deed, and will be binding to him and all others.

As if a Man of sound Mind and good Memory makes a Feoffment of his Land with a Letter of Attorney, and before Livery is made he becomes Paralytick, and he by Signs shews his Mind to be, to have Livery made, and so it is made; it is said, this is a good Feoffment. Perk. §. 22.

But if a Letter of Attorney to make Livery be made of Land by such a Man as is Non sane memorie, and after he comes to his Memory, and then Livery of Seisin is made by virtue of the Letter of Attorney, without any other Assent of the Feoffor, and the Feoffor dies, dies, in this Case the Heir may enter upon the Feoffee and avoid the Feoffment, but he himself in his Life-time might not have done it. Perk. §. 21, 23.

By an Alien Enemy.

An Alien Enemy, that is, one born under another Prince in Enmity with the King, can neither give nor take by Deed amongst us, for he is to have no Benefit of our Lands. And one born in another Country, under the Obedience of another Prince in Amity with our King, who is amongst us accounted as an Alien-amy, but is no Denizen or natural Subject of the King's, such a one may by Deed give or grant such a Thing as he has a Capacity to have and hold amongst us; and any such Thing may be given or granted to him. But such an Alien-amy is not capable of holding Land in Fee or for Life: If therefore any such Estate be conveyed to him, the King will have it from him. Co. Lit. 2.

And although he be made Denizen by the King's Letters Patent, yet he is then in no better Case for this; but if he be naturalized by Act of Parliament, then may he give or take Lands by Deed, as another Man may do. And if he be a Merchant, he may take and enjoy a House for this Purpose so long as he useth the Trade. And although he be no Denizen, yet may he have and enjoy Goods or Chattels: And therefore of such a Thing any Gift or Grant by or to him will be as good as such Gifts or Grants by or to any other Person. 7 Co. 16. Co. Lit. 2, 31. Dyer 224, 283. Godb. 275. Perk. §. 48. Owen 45. Brownl. 41. Goldsb. 29. Bendl. 10.

By Persons
dead in Law.

The Gifts and Grants of and to dead Persons in Law, such as are Monks, Friars, Canons professed, and the like religious Persons, are utterly void in Law: And therefore if J. S. be seised of an Acre of Land in Fee, and he joins with such a Person in the Grant of a Rent out of it; this will be void as to the Person disabled, the dead Person, and good against J. S. only, and it shall be said to be his Grant. Perk. §. 4, 5, 6, 48. Co. Lit. 3.

By a Bastard.

A Bastard, who (by our Law) is one that is born of a Woman not married to any Man, so that his Father is not known; such a one, although he can neither be Heir to another, nor have an Heir to himself, yet after he hath once gotten a Name by common Reputation, either from him that is suspected to beget him, from his Mother, or otherwise, he may by that Name give and take Lands or Goods by Deed, as any other Man whatsoever may do; and such Gifts and Grants are good. Perk. §. 26, 48, 49. Co. Lit. 2. 3 Leon. 69. Noy 35.

By Executors
strators.

One of many Executors or Administrators may alone, without his Companions, by Deed or otherwise dispose of the Goods and Chattels of the Deceased, and this shall bind all the rest of them. So that if two have a Term, and one grants all that belongs to him, by this all is granted away. Executors or Administrators may make any Deed of Gift or Grant of what is under their Power in that Capacity, as the deceased Person himself to whom they are Executors or Administrators might have done. Dyer 23. Kelw. 22.

If an Administration be granted Durante minore etate of J. S. to J. D. this J. D. in this Case, especially if the Administration be Ad opus, usum & commodum Executoris, may not assign a Term, or an Interesse termini: But if he be such an Administrator, and made so without any Restraint or Limitation, in this Case he may assign such an Interest, at the least during the Minority of the Executor. 6 Co. 63.

By Jointe-nants, Tenants in Common, or Copar-
ceners.

One Tenant in Common, or a Coparcener, may by his Deed of Feoffment pass and convey his Part of the Land so held to his Companion, and this will be good; but one Jointenant may not do so: And therefore a Feoffment by one, and to another Jointenant, is not good; but by a Release, or some other way, the Thing is to be done. And Coparceners may both enfeoff and release one to another. Co. Lit. 48, 49. Perk. §. 197.

And a Feoffment in some Cases between them may enure to some other Purpose. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 26.

And if one Jointenant covenants to stand seised of the Moiety of his Companion after his Death, to the Use of, &c. no Use will arise by this, for it is but a bare Possibility. Noy 14. Dyer 150. 20 H. 7. 26.

And Jointenants, Tenants in Common, and Coparceners in Fee-simple, may make what Estate they please therein of their Part to a Stranger, to bind them and their Companion also. F. N. B. 62. Perk. §. 220.

And yet one Jointenant may make a Lease for Years of his Moiety to his Companion, as some say, as well as Tenants in Common and Coparceners may do. Owen 102, 103. F. N. B. 62.

And one Jointenant may make a Lease for Years, to commence in presenti or in futuro of his Part: As if two Jointenants be for Life, and one of them makes a Lease to begin after his Death, and dies; this is a good Lease, and will bind his Companion. Noy 158. 3 Bulst. 131, 132.

If

If A. and B. be Jointenants for Life, and A. agrees with J. S. that he shall have the Moiety of the Land from the Death of B. for sixty Years, if A. so long live; and then grants the other Moiety to J. S. from the Death of A. for sixty Years, if B. lives so long; and B. survives A. in this Case the Lease will be good against A. for the one, but not for the other Moiety; for a Jointenant may make a Lease for Years of his own Part, to begin after his Death, or the Death of his Companion, and this Lease will bind his Companion; and if A. happens to survive B. it will be a good Lease for the other Moiety also. Cro. Jac. 91. Noy 14.

If Father and Son be Jointenants for one hundred Years, and the Son takes a Lease of his Father for fifteen Years, to begin, &c. by this the Son is concluded to claim all or Part of the Term by Survivorship. 2 Leon. 159.

If two Jointenants be seised of an Estate in Fee-simple, and one of them grants a Rent-charge to a Stranger out of his Part; this Grant will be good during his Life, but after his Death the Survivor may avoid it.

So if he charge the Land with Common of Pasture, Turbary, Estovers, or with a Corrody, or with a Way over Land, or the like. Co. Lit. 184.

But if one of them only makes a Lease for Years, this will be good. And yet if two Jointenants be, and one of them grants to J. S. that if he pays him 20*l.* at Michaelmas, he shall have his Moiety, and he dies before Michaelmas, and after the Money is paid; in this Case he shall not have the Land, for the Condition here is to precede the Estate. Perk. §. 103. Bridgm. 43.

A. and B. a Woman are Jointenants for Life, the Woman takes a Husband, the Husband and Wife by Indenture lease their Moiety for Years; this Lease may not be avoided by the other Jointenants; but it may be avoided by the Wife if she overlives the Husband; but against the Jointenant it will remain good after the Death of the Wife. Bridgm. 44, 45.

If two Jointenants be of a Plough-land, and one of them grants to a Stranger Common of Pasture for Beasts without Number out of and upon the Land so held; this is not good to bind his Companion after his Death, nor perhaps whilst he lives. Perk. §. 103.

If two Jointenants be for Lives, and one of them leases his Part, rendering Rent, and dies; in this Case the Term shall continue against the Survivor, but the Rent is gone. Dyer 187.

And if two Jointenants be for Life, and one of them makes a Lease for Years, to begin after his Death; this is good to bind his Companion: So for any Lease for Years, to begin at a Day to come; but he may not make any Contract for his Companion's Part. Cro. Jac. 91, 92.

If one of two Jointenants makes a Deed of Feoffment of all the Land; this will be good for a Moiety against his Companion and all others. And so of a Lease for Years. And if he makes it for all the Land, it will be good against himself, and against all others but his Companion, for his Part also. Perk. §. 220.

If two Jointenants be for Life, and one of them makes a Lease for Years, if he and his Companion live so long, and the other surrenders his Estate, and then takes a new Estate from him in Reversion, and the Lessor dies; by this the Lease is determined, and shall not bind the Survivor. 3 Bulst. 134.

If one Jointenant for Life makes a Lease for Years in Possession, and dies; this Lease is not at an end, but shall continue. Popb. 97.

If two Jointenants be in Fee, and one grants a Rent-charge in Fee, and after releases to the other, now the Grant of the Rent is good, and the other Jointenant shall hold it charged.

If Land be given to two, and the Survivor of them, neither of them alone whilst they be both alive can charge or give this Remainder. Whitlock's Case, M. 3 Jac. B. R.

If two Jointenants be for Life, and one of them makes a Lease for sixty Years, if he and his Companion live so long; after he surrenders his Moiety, and takes back an Estate, and dies: In this Case the Lease will determine by the Death of him or of his Companion, and will not be good whilst his Companion lives; and it is all one where the Limitation is upon the Lives of the Lessor or of Strangers; and it is determined by the Death of him that made it: For it continues no longer than the Jointure, and so should have been, had there been no Severance of the Jointure by Surrender, &c. Cro. Jac. 377.

If a Feme Sole and J. S. be Jointenants for Life, and she marries B. and B. and his Wife lease to C. for sixty Years, rendering Rent, if the Wife and J. S. live so long, and the Wife dies; now this Lease is good against the Survivor, but the Rent seems to be determined. Smalman and Agbourn, B. R.

If A. and B. be Jointenants in Fee-simple, and A. makes a Lease to a Stranger for ninety-nine Years, and then B. surrenders, or sues out and makes Partition, and then A. dies; yet the Lessee shall retain the Part of A. during the Life of B. and if he survives, then the Lessee shall shall retain. But by the Death of A. the Lease is become void, for the Lessee has but a Possibility to have it for the Life of B. which is now destroyed by the Severance of the Jointure. Noy 157, 158.

If two Jointenants be of a Term, and one grants Parcel of it to a Stranger, by this the Jointure of the Whole is severed. Cro. Car. 33.

If two Jointenants be of a Reversion, and one of them grants the Whole; this will be void for a Moiety. Perk. §. 8.

If two Jointenants be for Life, and one of them makes a Lease for Years of his Part, to begin presently, or at a Day to come; this is good against the Survivor, though the Lessee dies before Entry, or enters not till after the Lessor's Death. Co. Lit. 184, 318. Plow. 203. Goldsb. 187.

If two Jointenants join in a Lease to two Strangers, and after they make Partition, and then one of them dies, yet the Term remains good for the Whole. Noy 157, 158.

M. M. and E. W. being Jointenants for Life, M. M. grants the Moiety of the Land which she holds in Jointure with E. for sixty Years, if she the said M. shall so long live; and then grants the other Moiety from and after the Death of M. for sixty Years, if the said E. shall so long live; in this Case the Lease is not good for any Part; and yet if M. shall survive E. it may be good for her Part. Cro. Jac. 91.

If two Jointenants be for Life, and one of them by Assent of him in Reversion occupies the Land alone, and takes the Profits to his own Use; this will amount to a Lease at Will, which one Jointenant may make to his Companion; but if one of them say, I will not occupy it, this is nothing. Cro. Car. 314.

If a Feme Covert and another be Jointenants for Years, and the Husband grants a Rent out of the Land, and dies, and the Wife dies; this Grant is void, and the Survivor shall hold it discharged. Plow. 418.

Jointenants may give their Parts one to another by Release, Attornment, Livery or Ceremony, and such Release may be without the Word Heirs in the Deed. Co. Lit. 194.

All the Jointenants together may grant or charge their Land by Deed how and in what Manner they please; and they may altogether agree and make Partition by Deed: And if it be of a Lease for Years only, they may do it without Deed. Co. Lit. 186.

If a Jointenant makes a Lease to begin at a Day to come, and he that makes the Lease dies before the Day comes, yet is the Lease good to bind the Companion. Co. Lit. 318. Plow. 203.

A Lease made for Years by one of two Jointenants for Life, and he dies, is good against his Companion. Cro. Jac. 317. Dyer 187.

Two Jointenants under Age make a Feoffment, and one of them dies; here the Survivor may have the Land, and by Entry shall avoid the Feoffment. Lit. §. 633, 634. Co. Lit. 336.

Husband and Wife are Jointenants for one hundred Years, and the Husband alone by his Deed makes a Lease for twenty Years, to begin after his Death; this is good, for a Jointenant for Years may grant away his Moiety, to commence after his own or after his Companion's Death. Lane 14. Moor 395.

Husband and Wife and a third Person purchase jointly, the Husband alien the Whole, he and the Wife die; in this Case the third Person will have all, for this will not prejudice him, the Grant not being good. Hob. 3.

J. S. and a Feme Sole are Jointenants, the Wife takes a Husband, the Husband and Wife join in an Indenture of Lease for a Moiety of the Land for eighty Years to J. D. if the Wife and her Companion shall live so long, the Wife dies leaving the Husband; this is a good Lease, and may not be avoided by the surviving Jointenant. 3 Bull. 271, 273.

Husband and Wife in her Right, and a third Person, are Jointenants for the Lives of the Wife, and the third Person; the Husband and Wife by Indenture let a Moiety for twenty-one Years, the Wife dies; in this Case the Lease shall bind the Survivor as a Lease made by her, which after the Coverture will be good till she or one that claims in Privy under her shall avoid it by Entry. Cro. Jac. 417. Dyer 187. 7 E. 4. 7.

If Husband and Wife and a third Person be Jointenants, and the third Person release to the Husband and Wife, this is good, and gives all the Estate of the third Person to the Husband; or he may release to the Wife alone, and that would give all the Estate to the Wife alone. Co. Lit. 185.

If a Man and Woman be Jointenants for Life, and the Woman marries, and she and her Husband make a Lease for Years of their Moiety, rendring Rent, and then the Woman dies; in this Case the surviving Jointenant shall not avoid this Lease, but the Wife may avoid it if she survive her Husband; and if she had been Sole when she had made it, it had been good for her Life and the Life of the other Jointenant. Bridgm. 42, 43.

A. lets

A. lets Land to two, Habendum eis ad terminum vite eorum conjunctim, & alterius diutius vivent; & assignatis suis, si primus eorum decedere contingat durante vita ipsius qui superstes, & non aliter; in this Case they are Jointenants, and may make Partition; but one of them can grant but a Moiety. Dyer 41.

Two Tenants in Common make a Lease for Years, rendring Rent, this will be good; and if either of them dies, the Executor of him that is dead, and the Survivor, may sue for the Rent together or asunder, as they please. Godb. Case 104.

A Tenant in Common may make any Disposol of his own Part at his Pleasure, and another Tenant in common joined with him cannot by any Deed he can make to a Stranger prejudice him therein, as he may in the taking up the Profits of the Land. Co. Lit. 197. 5 Co. 98.

If two Tenants in common join together in the Grant of a Rent-Charge of 20s. out of their Land; this is good, and shall be and enure as several Grants. 5 Co. 8.

They may make a Feoffment, and give Livery of Seisin of the Land one to another, or make Leases one to another of the Land which they hold in common. Co. Lit. 194, 318. Perk. §. 193.

One Coparcener may make a Feoffment and Livery of Seisin of his Part of the Land to his Companion, or he may make a Lease to him, or he may release to him. Co. Lit. 194, 200, 318. Perk. §. 193.

If there be two Coparceners of a House, and one of them enters generally, and makes a Lease for Life by the Name of All that his House, &c. the whole House is granted, but the Deed is good only for a Moiety. Cro. Car. 361, 615.

A Wife is Lessee for Life, the Reversion to two Coparceners, and she and one of the Coparceners make a Lease for Years of the Whole, rendring 10l. a Year Rent to the Woman for her Life, and after 10l. to the Coparcener; in this Case it seems if the Tenant for Life dies, the Lease is good but for a Moiety of the Parcener that doth let, but the Rent remains for all. Cro. Car. 284, 285.

If two Coparceners be of an Advowson, and the one presents, and then she grants the next Presentation; this may be good, but it must be understood the next she has to grant, for the very next her Companion will have. Dyer 35.

If one Coparcener of a Seignior grants his Part to a Stranger, it is good. Perk. §. 73.

If two Coparceners have twenty Acres of Land of equal Value between them in Tail, and they have been usually let, and they make Partition, so as each of them has ten Acres; in this Case they make Leases of their several Parts, reserving half the Rent, within the Statute of 32 H. 8. 5 Co. 5. Sed Q. for Co. Lit. 14. is against it.

If a Coparcener be married, and for Equality of Partition the Husband and Wife grant a Rent to the Feme Covert out of the Part of the Wife; this being equal shall bind the Wife for ever, and neither she nor her Heirs shall avoid it. 29 Aff. 23. 17 E. 3. 10.

If two Coparceners make a Lease, reserving Rent, they shall have the Rent in common, as they have the Reversion.

If Coparceners have an Advowson, they may grant it away; or they may grant the next Avoidance, or they may present by Turns. Co. Lit. 164.

The Husband purchases to him and his Wife in Fee, and he alone makes a Lease of the Land for sixty Years; this seems a good Lease by Stat. 32 H. 8. Cro. El. 15.

And yet this had been void by the Common Law as to the Wife. 2 Co. 77. Dy. 91.

A Disfeisor cannot make a Feoffment or Grant to the Disfeisee of the Land whereof the Disfeisin is; for by this the Disfeisee will be remitted. Nor may he grant his Right to a Stranger; but by Release, or by some other Way or Means, he may transfer his Interest. By a Disfeisor or Disfeisee.

But if he shall grant all his Right to a Stranger, such a Grant is void. Perk. §. 85, 86, 197, 222. Co. Lit. 48, 49.

And yet if he makes a Deed of Feoffment, or other Grant of the Land, whereof the Disfeisin is to a Stranger; this will be good against all but the Disfeisee himself. Perk. §. 210.

But a Disfeisee may make a Deed of Feoffment, and a Letter of Attorney, to enter and give Livery, and this will be good. Co. Lit. 48, 49. F. N. B. 62. Perk. §. 222.

So if a Stranger enters in the Name of him that is disfeised, and by his Commandment makes a Feoffment in the Name of the Disfeisee, and by his Consent; and the Disfeisee gives Warrant of Attorney for him to enter and make Livery for him, and he does so; this is good, and shall bind him. Perk. §. 157.

If a Disfeisor makes a Charter of Feoffment to A. with a Letter of Attorney, and before Livery the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of A. or confirms the Deed to A. this is clearly void though Livery be made afterwards. Co. Lit. 301.

If the Heir Apparent of the Disfeisee disfeise the Disfeisor, and grant a Rent-charge, and then the Disfeisee dies; in this Case the Grantor will hold it discharged. So if the Father disfeise the Grandfather, and grant a Rent-charge, and dies, if the Grandfather dies, the Son will avoid it, for he is remitted. Co. Lit. 349.

If he in Reversion disfeise his Tenant for Life, and dies seised, the intire Estate goes to the Heir, but the Right remains still in the Lessee. And if the Lessor in this Case grants the Reversion, this Grant is void; for here is no Reversion to grant. Hob. 323.

If a Disfeisor enfeoffs a Stranger by Deed, and says it is with the Assent of the Disfeisee, and it is so; yet this is not good, for he cannot depart with his Right without Deed, and by way of Extinguishment: But if the Disfeisee shall enter, and then he and the Disfeisor shall join in a Feoffment by Deed with Words of Confirmation, then it shall be said to be the Feoffment of one, and the Confirmation of the other of them. And if they join in such a Deed before the Entry of the Disfeisee, and the Disfeisor makes Livery, it shall be the Feoffment of the Disfeisor, and Confirmation of the Disfeisee. Perk. §. 157.

If a Disfeisee makes a Lease for Years, and delivers it as an Escrow to a Stranger, commanding him to enter into the Land, and then to deliver it as his Deed, who does so; this is a good Lease, for it is not his Lease till the second Delivery, at which Time he has good Right and Power to let it. Cro. Car. 446, 457.

A Disfeisee may not make a Lease of the Land whereof the Disfeisin is until he has made his Entry, and recovered the Possession of the Land again. Plow. 133.

And therefore if one be disfeised of his Land, and before his Entry or Recovery of the Land he grants or gives the same, or his Right therein, to a Stranger; or grants a Rent-charge out of it to a Stranger: These Grants are void; but by a Fine or Release he may make a Bar or Extinguishment. Cro. Car. 315, 368. Co. Lit. 214. Perk. §. 63, 66.

By a Person
not in Being.

A Person not in Being at the Time of the Gift or Grant made, makes a Deed of Gift or Grant, this cannot be good: As Primogenit', the first-born of J. S. and J. S. has no Child, or the like, he can neither be a good Grantor nor Grantee: And although such a one be afterwards born, it will not amend the Case. But a Remainder so limited may be good, if any such Person shall happen to be when the Remainder falls. Owen 40.

A. makes a Lease at Will to three, one of them dies; the Lessor reciting his Death, and that the Indenture is surrendered and cancelled, makes an Estate to the Survivors, Habendum to them & heredibus, without any Letter of Attorney to make Livery; this is void. Dyer 269. 5 Co. 10.

If a Grant of an Office be made for Life, the Remainder to a Successor, it is void as to the Successor. Moor 8.

By Lessor or Lessee.

The Lessor cannot make a Feoffment to his Lessee for Life, Years, or at Will; for one may not give a Possession to one that has it before; and yet such a Feoffment may enure as a Confirmation. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 26. Perk. §. 194, 197.

But the Lessor and Lessee joining together may make what Estate they will of the Land. 10 Co. 49.

If a Lessee for Life or Years makes a Lease for longer Time than he has, as if a Lessee for Years makes a Lease for Life, the Leases are good for so long Time as the Lessor has it; as the Lease of Years in case of a Lease for Life will be good for the Life if the Term of Years last so long; but if he gives Livery upon it (as he must to make it a good Estate for Life) it will be dangerous to him, for hereby he will commit a Forfeiture. 7 Co. 12. Plow. 524.

So if he charges the Land for longer Time, it will be good for the Time of the Lease. 7 Co. 12. Plow. 524. Tenant in Tail makes a Lease according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. and then dies without Issue, so that his primitive Estate-tail is at an End, and then the Lease derived out of it must be at an End also. 3 Co. 34.

Lessee for Years may not grant or charge longer than for his own Time, he cannot charge or create a Freehold out of it. Cro. Jac. 142.

By one who is not the Owner.

Where one grants that which is none of his own, if he afterwards purchases the Thing granted, and the Grant be by Deed indented, it may be good against him by way of Estoppel. Co. 77.

By Tenants
in Tail.

If Land be granted to two Men, and the Heirs of their two Bodies; in this Case, although they have several Inheritances after their Death, yet neither of them can grant away his Estate after his Life. Co. Lit. 282.

Second Grant
Thing.

If one grants the same Thing twice, the second Grant will be void; as if one grants the next Presentation to a Church after the Death of the present Incumbent, and then after this grants the same to another, the second Grant is void.

So if one makes a Lease of Land for ten Years to one, and then makes a Lease of the same ten Years to another. But a Man seised of a Manor, after he hath demised ten Acres of of the Demefne for ten Years, may grant the whole Manor for twenty Years, and it will be good for the Overplus presently, and for the whole Manor for the last ten Years. So where the second Lease is to begin after the End of the first Lease. Perk. §. 102. Dyer 35, 350.

If one grants me Common of Pasture without Number in his Ground, and after makes the like Grant to another; this second Grant, although it be good against the Grantor, yet it is not good as to me. Dyer 35, 350.

As if one by Word gives me his Horse, and then grants him by Deed, this is void.

And yet if one makes his Lease for Years, rendring Rent, and after makes a Lease of the same Land to another, to begin during the first Term: This may perhaps be a good Grant of the Reversion so long, and the Rent in this Case may pass without Attornment of the Tenant. Plowd. 432.

If a Reversion be granted to one for Life, and after again for Years to the same Person, and the Tenant attorns to both Grants at once, by this both Grants are void. So if one grants his Seigniority to the Bishop of London and his Heirs by one Deed, and grants it by another Deed to him and his Successors, and the Tenant attorn to both together; in this Case they are both void for Incertainty. Co. Lit. 310. 11 H. 7. 10.

If one makes a Lease to A. for twenty Years, if he live so long, rendring Rent, and after he makes a Lease to B. for eighty Years, by Indenture for eighty Years, to begin presently, or grant the Reversion, to begin at a Day past, or the like; in these Cases if the first Lessee attorn, the Rent will pass, and if not, yet it will be a good Lease of the Land for so many Years as shall be to come after the Lease is ended; but if the second Lease be by Word without Deed, then the Reversion as a Reversion cannot pass, and the Grant will be void if there be nothing else to help it. Co. 155. Plow. 431.

The Statute of 1 R. 3. gave Authority to Cestuy que Use to make a Grant, Lease or Feoffment; and by this was intended, that they should make such Estate as they might lawfully make, and not a Discontinuance; and therefore if Cestuy que Use for Life, where the Remainder was over in Tail, had made a Lease pur auter vie, and died, the Lessee had been but Tenant at Sufferance. Dyer 57.

If one has a Reversion after an Estate for Life in Land, and he grants a Rent issuing out of this Land; in this Case the Grant will be good, and it will charge the Land after the Tenant for Life is dead. Perk. §. 65, 86. Co. Lit. 214. By one out of Possession for the present.

If one makes a Lease of Land to B. to begin two Years after, and before the two Years ended, whilst the Lessor is in Possession, and before the Entry of B. he grants this away to another; this is a good Grant. Cro. Car. 117.

If one makes a Lease for Years of his Land to A. and afterwards makes a Feoffment of it to B. this Feoffment is good to pass the Reversion. Moor 11.

If the Father dies, and the Son makes a Lease of the Land descended to him to a Stranger before his Entry, this Lease will be good; but if a Stranger enters and abates into the Land before him, contra: And yet if a Lease be made to me for Years, in this Case I may make a Lease for Part of the Term, or an Assignment of all the Term, before I have made any Entry upon the Land. Co. Lit. 46. Plow. 137, 142. Perk. §. 91. By one before Entry or Seisin.

If Lessee for Years, after his Term expires, take a new Lease for Years of a Stranger, rendring Rent, and pays it, yet he remains Tenant at Sufferance to the first Lessor; and therefore he may lease it to another before any Entry by him, for it is not out of his Possession. Noy Rep. 120.

So if a Rent be granted to me, and I grant it over to a Stranger before I have a Seisin of it, this is a good Grant. Perk. §. 91.

A Woman that has recovered her Thirds in Dower can make no Lease of it before she has the Possession by Execution. Plow. 133.

If one seised of Land in Fee, and he and his Son and Heir Apparent join in a Lease of his Land, to begin after his Death, rendring a Rent to his Son, and then he dies, and leaves this Son his Heir; in this Case the Lease will be good, but the Reservation of the Rent will be void. Hob. 151. By an Heir.

If one makes a Feoffment to the Use of a Stranger for Life, the Remainder to the Wife for her Jointure; although the Stranger dies before the Wife, this will not be a good Jointure within the Statute to bar her of Dower: Nor can such a Jointure be for the Life of another, but it must be for the Wife's own Life. Hob. 153, 450. 4 Co. in Vernon's Case.

One that has but a Right or Title, or Action to Lands or Goods, properly cannot give or grant, and so transfer this to a third Person; but it may be released to him that hath the Possession of the Thing; nor can such a Thing be charged with a Rent, &c. Perk. §. 92, 93. Fitz. Donne 3. Bro. Donne 13. By one that has but a Right or Title of Entry, &c.

But in such a Case as this a Man may perhaps by Fine, or other Matter of Record, or Deed indented by way of Estoppel, be bound and concluded. Perk. §. 65, 66.

As if one grants a Reversion by Fine executory of Land that he has nothing in, and he after purchases this Reversion; this Grant may be good, and the Grantee shall enjoy it. But if two Men join in a Deed to grant a Reversion of Land, and one of them has nothing in it, and the other has all; in this Case it shall be said to be his Grant that had it alone; but by Fine it is otherwise. Perk. §. 66.

If one grants or charges Land that is not in his Possession, and he has only a Right to what he grants or charges, this Grant will not be good; as if a Man be disseised of his Land, and before he has entred or recovered the Land, he grants or gives it, or his Right in it, to a Stranger; or grants a Rent-charge out of the Land to a Stranger; these Grants are not good unless they be so made that they may work by way of Estoppel. Co. Lit. 214. Perk. §. 65, 86.

If one has a Term of Years in his Land, and by his Will devises it to J. S. for his Life, and after to me for the Residue of the Years; or if one gives to J. S. his Term, if he lives so long as the Term shall last, and if he dies before the Term ends, the Remainder to me; in these Cases, so long as J. S. lives, I may not grant this Possibility away to another. So if a Lease be made to me and my Wife, the Remainder to the Survivor of us; this Remainder is not to be granted away. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. Dyer 244.

A Devisee enters into a Term devised to him without Consent of the Executor, and after grants his Right and Interest to the Executor; this is a good Grant. Owen 56.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant leases the Tenancy to the Lord for Life; in this Case the Lord although his Seigniorship be in suspense, yet the Lord may grant it to a Stranger. Perk. §. 88.

If A. makes a Feoffment in Fee, on Condition that if he pays 20*l.* he shall have the Land again, and before the Time of Payment he grants a Rent-charge out of the Land; this is void, for he has but a Possibility of the Land. Co. 147. 10 Co. 48, 49.

If I have four Houses in Execution upon a Statute, and by Course of Time it will endure thirteen Years, and after two of the Houses are evicted by Elegit for fifteen Years; I may in this Case assign this Interest, and it will be good. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 51. Dyer 244.

If a Man sells me Goods, and I leave them in his Possession, and a Stranger takes them from him, and I grant or sell them to the Stranger, this is good. Perk. §. 92.

And if a Man takes my Goods, they being out of my Possession, and sells them to me in a Market-overt, this Sale is void. Perk. §. 93.

If a Feoffment be made on Condition, and before the Time of the Performance of the Condition the Feoffor and Feoffee join together to make a Lease for Life or Years of the Land, or to charge it with a Rent, or the like, this will be good. Co. 147. 10 Co. 48, 49. For it is a Rule, that all Fee-simple Land may be charged by one way or other.

If A. sells Land to B. by Indenture, and before Inrolment they join in the Grant of a Rent-charge to C. in this Case the Grant of the Rent-charge will be good whether the Deed be inrolled or not. Co. Lit. 45. 10 Co. 48.

If Donor and Donee in Tail grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, and then the Donee dies without Issue; in this Case the Grant will be good to bind the Donor. Ibid.

If a Lease be made to Husband and Wife for their Lives, the Remainder to the Executors of the Survivor of them, and the Husband grants away this Term, and dies, this will not bar the Wife, for he had but a Possibility, and no Interest. But if a Man be possessed of a Term of forty Years in Right of his Wife, and makes a Lease of twenty Years, reserving a Rent, and dies, the Executors of the Husband will have the Rent, but the Wife will have the Residue of the Term. And if the Husband makes a Grant of the whole Term, upon Condition that the Grantee shall pay a Sum of Money to his Executors, &c. and the Husband dies, and upon Breach of the Condition the Executors enter; this is a Disposition of the whole Term, and the Wife is barred. 5 Co. 9.

If Tenant in Tail, and he that is next in Remainder in Fee join in the Grant of a Rent-charge in Fee, and after the Tenant in Tail dies; in this Case the Grant and Charge is good against him in Remainder. Co. Lit. 45. 10 Co. 48.

If one infeoffs divers to the Use of his Son and Heir upon Condition, and before the Time of the Performance of the Condition the Father and Son join in a Grant or Charge of the Land; this will be a good Grant or Charge. Co. 147.

If A. makes a Feoffment of his Land to B. on Condition, that if A. pays him 20*l.* he shall have his Land again; in this Case B. may grant over this Estate if he will to a Stranger but it will be subject to the Condition in whose Hands soever it goes. And if in this Case B. grants a Rent to a Stranger out of the Land, and after the Condition is performed, and the Feoffor Feoffor enters, here the Feoffor shall avoid the Rent; but if A. in this Case grants a Rent out of the Land, this Grant will be void, for A. has but a Possibility. 1 Co. 147.

He that has but an Interesse Termini, a Lease for Years to commence in futuro, either of the Land itself, or any Profit apprender out of it; or has only an Interest by Extent upon an Execution, he may grant and transfer this over to another. Co. Lit. 46. 4 Co. 64. Perk. §. 91. 22 E. 4. 37.

One possessed of a Term of Years devises it to one for Life, and after to another for the Residue of the Years, and the first Devisee enters by Assent of the Executors, and after he in Remainder during the Life of the first Devisee grants it away; this is not good, for it is but a Possibility, and not grantable over. 6 Co. 66.

If a Shepherd, Bailiff or Parker, gives or grants his Master's Goods, by or without a Deed, without his Master's Consent, this is not good: But yet it is held, that a Taverner may give or sell his Master's Wine, or a Mercer his Mercery Wares; and that this will be good. Quare, If he gives, and not sells them away. Bro. Donne 564.

Ecclesiastical Persons, such as are Bishops, Deans, Prebends, Parsons, Vicars, and the like, for the Lands they have in their Spiritual Capacities in Right of their Churches, Houses, &c. which are Ecclesiastical Lands, they are limited and restrained in the Disposal of them, as the Tenant in Tail is limited for his intailed Land; and as the Husband and Wife are limited in the Disposal of the Lands he has in his Wife's Right, or together with her, it is therefore as to all these Kinds of Persons to be observed, that Ecclesiastical Persons for their own Temporal Lands that they have by Purchase or Descent in their natural Capacity, the Tenant in Tail for the Land he has in Fee-simple by Purchase, Descent or otherwise, and for Land that single Men and Women have in their own Right, they may do with these Lands what they will, and there is no Restraint upon them. But how far they are restrained as to their other Lands, observe, that by the Stat. of 32 H. 8. c. 28. it is enacted, That Leases made by Tenant in Tail, or by him who is seised in the Right of his Wife or Church, (the Persons making them being of full Age at the Time of making such Lease) shall be good and effectual in Law against the Lessors, their Heirs, Wives and Successors; but this Lease must be made under all the Conditions and Qualifications hereafter mentioned; and by this Act no Fine, Feoffment, or other Act done by the Husband only of the Inheritance or Freehold of the Wife, shall make any Discontinuance, or prejudice the Wife or any other who is to enjoy the Land after the Decease of the Wife, the Fine levied by Husband and Wife only excepted.

By 1 Eliz. not printed in the Statutes at Large, which you may see in More's Reports, p. 107. it is provided, That all Estates made by any Archbishop or Bishop of any Manors, &c. Parcel of the Possessions of their Bishoprick, or united or appertaining thereunto, to any but the Queen herself, other than for twenty-one Years or three Lives from the Time of the making of it, shall be void.

By Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10. it is enacted, That all Leases, Conveyances or Estates made by any Master or Fellows of any College, Dean and Chapter of any Cathedral or Collegiate Church, Master or Guardian of any Hospital, Parson, Vicar, or any other having any Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Living, or any Houses, Lands, Tithes, or other Hereditaments, being Parcel of their College, Cathedral, Chapter, Hospital, Parsonage, Vicarage, or other Spiritual Promotion belonging thereunto, other than for twenty-one Years or three Lives from the Time of the making thereof, shall be void.

And by Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20. No Lease is to be made of any Benefice or Ecclesiastical Promotion with Cure, or any Part thereof (and not impropriate) shall endure any longer than while the Lessor shall be ordinarily Resident and Serving the Cure of such Benefice, without Absence above eighty Days in any one Year, but that every such Lease immediately upon such Absence shall cease and be void.

Yet he that is allowed to have two Benefices may let one of them (upon which he is not most ordinarily Resident) to his Curate only; but the Lease shall be good no longer than during the Curate's Residence without Absence above forty Days in a Year. See Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. 18 Eliz. c. 6. & 11. & 43 Eliz. c. 9.

But by the Common Law a Bishop, Parson, Prebend, &c. upon an Escheat, Forfeiture, or otherwise, may grant a Copyhold Estate according to the Custom of the Manor; and this will be good. 4 Co. 23.

And by the Common Law every Bishop, Dean, Parson, Vicar, or Corporation Spiritual, might have charged their Possessions, or made Leases of their Lands for Lives or Years without Stint of Time or Number, Concurrentibus his quæ in Lege requiruntur. But now by the Statutes of 13 H. 8. and 13 Eliz. they are restrained to make Leases or Grants but under certain Limitations and Provisoes.

As, 1. The Grant or Leases must be made in Writing by Deed indented, and not by Deed Poll, or by Word only. Co. Lit. 44.

2. They must begin from the Day of the Date or Making thereof, or a Confessione inde. 5 Co. 6.

3. The ancient Lease must be surrendered or yielded up, or expired or ended within a Year after the making of the second Lease; and this Surrender must be absolute and not conditional. 5 Co. 2.

4. There may not be a double Lease in Being at one Time. 5 Co. 6.

5. The Leases may not exceed twenty-one Years or three Lives from the Time of the making of them. Dyer 246.

6. The Lease must be of Lands and Tenements manurable, out of which a Rent may be reserved. 5 Co. 3.

7. It must be of Lands and Tenements which have usually been let to Farm twenty Years before the Lease made. 6 Co. 37. Co. Lit. 44.

8. There must be reserved to them and their Successors so much yearly Rent or more as has been accustomed to be paid for the said Lands. 5 Co. 6.

9. The Lease may not be made without Impeachment of Waste. 6 Co. 37.

10. The Lease must have all due Ceremonies and Circumstances for the Perfection of it as other such like Leases have, as Livery of Seisin, and the like, where they are needful. 7 Co. 7. 8 Co. 54.

11. If it be made according to the Exception of the Statute of 1 Eliz. and 13 Eliz. and not warranted by 32 H. 8. as in the Case of a concurrent Lease, and it be made by a Bishop or any Sole Corporation, it must be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, or others that have Interest. 11 Co. 66. 5 Co. 3, 14. Co. Lit. 44. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. 13 Eliz. c. 10. 1 Jac. c. 3. 1 Eliz. c. 19. 14 Eliz. c. 11. 18 Eliz. c. 10, 20.

And if a Parson or Vicar makes a Lease, it is not good but during the Parson or Vicar's Residence, according to 12 Eliz. c. 20. and here needs no Confirmation at all. Co. Lit. 141.

And if a Parson makes a Lease, and he is after deprived or resigns, the Successor may avoid it. 2 H. 4. 2. 26 H. 8. 2.

These Colleges, Deans, Chapters, Wardens of Hospitals, and the like, having Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Livings, against the Provision of the Act of the 13th of Eliz. c. 10. are restrained to make Leases to the King as well as to common Persons. 5 Co. 14.

Some of the Leases to be made by Colleges and Houses of the University must have some Rent-corn reserved upon them. Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 20.

And Leases of Benefices with Cure are no longer good than the Parson is Resident. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20.

And there is no way to make the Leases of these Persons for longer Time good.

The letting at one, or at several Times, for eleven Years, within the twenty Years past, is enough to warrant the new Lease, and a Grant by Copy of Court-Roll for Life, Years, or in Fee, is a sufficient letting to Farm within the Statute; so a Lease at Will by the Common Law. But these Lettings to Farm must be by some one seised of an Estate of Inheritance, and not as Guardian in Chivalry, Tenant by the Curtesy, or in Dower, or the like. 6 Co. 37.

If more be reserved upon the new than was upon the old Lease, it is good enough. But if one Acre more be added to the Land formerly letten, and an Increase of Rent for that, this is not good. But if the Land antiently together be now let afunder, and the Rent divided, but made up in Parts, this is good. So if there be two Coparceners of such Land, and one lets his Part at the half Rent, this will be good. And if the ancient Rent be of four Days, and the new Rent is reserved to be paid at one Day, yet the new Lease upon the Statute of 32 H. 8. is good. Co. Lit. 44. 5 Co. 5. 6 Co. 37.

Ecclesiastical Persons may make Estates of their Lands they hold in Right of their Bishopricks, Colleges, Churches, &c. or may make Leases for a lesser Time than three Lives or twenty Years. Co. Lit. 44.

And Ecclesiastical Persons cannot make Feoffments, Grants, &c. of their Ecclesiastical Lands for longer Time than three Lives or twenty-one Years, for all Feoffments, Gifts, Grants, Leases by Bishops, although they be confirmed by their Dean and Chapter, or any of the Colleges or Halls in either of the Universities or elsewhere, or by Dean and Chapters, Masters or Guardians of any Hospitals, Parsons, Vicars, or other having Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Livings, are voidable. Co. Lit. 43.

Leases of Houses in Cities, and belonging to Churches, are not ruled by Statutes of 13 and 18 Eliz. but by the Statute of 14 Eliz. Hob. 269.

Offices.

A Bishop or such like Spiritual Person may grant antient Offices of Trust, of Necessity or Convenience; as the Office of Chancellor, Register, Steward, Bailiff, or the like, with the the antient Fees incident thereunto, for the Live or Lives of the Grantees, and these Grants are good, although they be made by the Bishops of the new erected Bishopricks, and that there be not in them the Conditions and Properties required in the Leases before mentioned, so as they be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter; and yet they may not make a Grant of any new Office, nor add any Fee to the old Offices; and therefore if a Bishop grants an Annuity pro consilio impenso & impendendo, where none was before, his Successor may avoid it. And yet if there be an old Fee, and there is a new Fee added to it, in this Case it seems good for the old Fee, and void for the new Fee. Neither may they grant their Offices otherwise than they have been granted; as where antiently the Office was granted to one, there it must be to one; and where to two, there it must be to two, and that jointly, and not to one after the other. Nor may the Grants be for any longer Time than for the Lives of the Grantees. And in Case where the Grant is void, the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter will not make it good. Dyer 300. Vide 2 Brownl. 134, 158. 5 Co. 15. 11 Co. 66. 10 Co. 58. Dyer 370. 1 Co. 68.

The Bishop can make no Kind of Conveyance of any of the Lands belonging to his Bishops, Bishoprick for longer Time than twenty-one Years or three Lives, rendring the antient Rent. Vide Moor's Rep. 107.

A Lease by a Bishop made by Indenture, to commence presently for twenty-one Years, when there is an old Lease in esse, is good notwithstanding the Statute of 1 Eliz. Moor 107, 108.

If a Lease be made by such Persons of Land antiently let at such a Rent, and of other Land not before let together at the old Rent, with an Addition of more Rent for the other Land, this is not good. 5 Co. 6.

A Lease made by a Bishop for three Lives, where there is a Lease for Years in esse, is void. Moor 253.

And if a Bishop, or other such like Spiritual Person, makes a Lease of his Spiritual Land for twenty-one Years to one, and then makes a Lease of three Lives of it to another, this second Lease is void. Co. Lit. 44. 5 Co. 14. 11 Co. 66.

A Lease for three Lives by a Bishop of Tithe is void against the Successor, although there be as much Rent reserved as usually has been reserved and paid upon any former Lease. Moor 778.

If a Bishop oust his Lessee for Years, and then makes a Lease for three Lives, it is void; for where the Statute says, the old Lease must be surrendered, an illusory Surrender upon Condition will not serve the Turn. 5 Co. 2, 3.

If the Parson and Ordinary had made a Lease for Years of the Glebe to the Patron, and after the Patron assigned it over to another Person; this had been good, and the Confirmation of the first Lease made to himself, and the Deed of the Patron, in such a Case should enure to a Deed in Rent, to make the Assignment of the Lease good, and to confirm the Lease to the Assignee. 5 Co. 15.

If a Bishop has two Chapters, as he may have, both of them must confirm Leases made by the Bishop: But if one of the Chapters, after the Date or Making of the Lease be dissolved, there the Confirmation of that which is in Being is good enough to make the Lease good, and there will need no Confirmation of the King as supreme Ordinary. Dyer 282. Co. Lit. 31.

If a Bishop makes a Lease of a Portion of Tithes for three Lives, rendring the antient Rent; this is a void Lease as against the Successor, by the Stat. 32 H. 8. and 1 Eliz. for no Rent will arise out of Tithes; and therefore the Acceptance of it by the Successor will not make it good. Cro. Jac. 173.

If a Bishop makes a Lease for twenty-one Years, and all those Years being spent, saving three or more, yet the Bishop may make a new Lease to another for twenty-one Years, to begin from the making, but not a Lease for Life or Lives, and this concurrent Lease is good as well upon 1 Eliz. in Case of a Bishop, as upon 13 Eliz. of Deans and Chapters, &c. Co. Lit. 44, 45. And this the 32 H. 8. did not extend to. But in the Case of the Bishop's concurrent Lease it must be confirmed. Also the Exception of the Statute of the 1st and 13th of Eliz. do as herein differ from 32 H. 8. for the Leases for Years to be made upon the 1st and 13 of Eliz. must begin from the Making, and not from the Day of the Making; but the Leases upon the 32 H. 8. are to begin from the Day of the Making. And although the Statutes of the 1st and 13th of Eliz. do not say the Lease must be in Writing, yet must it therein, and in the other Properties before-mentioned and required by the 32 H. 8. follow the Pattern thereof, the concurrent Lease only excepted. Co. Lit. 44, 45. Vide Hob. 7, 70. 107, 148, 149.

A Lease made by a Bishop to one for three Lives (viz.) to one for Life, the Remainder to another for Life, the Remainder to a third for Life, is not good within the Statute of 1 Eliz. c. 4. for Action of Waste will not lie for the Waste. Cro. Eliz. 67.

A Lease

A Lease of a Fair reserving a Rent is not good within 1 Eliz. although the Rent be due, because of the Contract; yet it is not incident to the Reversion, it is without Remedy by Assise or Distress. 5 Co. 3.

A Lease by a Bishop by Indenture reserving the antient Rent, not saying how much it is, and made of Part of a Manor, and not of all together, which was usually demised together at one Rent; this Lease and Reservation both will be void against the Successor. Cro. Eliz. 67.

Three Years of a former Lease being in Being, the Bishop leased for twenty-one Years, this is a good Lease. 1 Leon. 148.

A Bishop makes a Lease for three Lives in Remainder one after another, which is not within the Statute of the 1st of Eliz. at the old Rent, and the Bishop's Successor accepts the Rent, this shall bind him for his Time. Cro. Eliz. 67.

A Bishop is seised of a Manor whereof an Acre is Parcel, and by Indenture he devises the Acre to J. D. and W. D. Habendum to the said J. a die datus Indenturæ for his Life, the Remainder to W. for his Life, rendring 3*s.* 2*d.* per Ann. at Michaelmas and Lady-day, the Bishop dies, B. is created Bishop, his Bailiff of the Manor gathers and pays this amongst the other Rents to the Bishop, who accepts it, this shall bind the Bishop. Cro. Eliz. 67.

A Bishop grants a Portion of Tithes to A. B. and for their Lives successively, rendering the antient Rent, and dies, the Successor accepts the Rent for divers Years, and then made a Lease for twenty-one Years; in this Case the Lease is void for the Thing not chargeable with the Rent, and therefore the Acceptance by the Successor will not affirm it. And it is not like Leases made by Bishops at Common Law for three Lives, which is only voidable, and their Acceptance of Rent may affirm it. Cro. Jac. 173.

A Bishop grants an antient Office of Keeper of one of his Parks, and the antient Fee; and adds, Necnon pasturam pro duobus equis; the Grant of the Pasture is void, and it will endanger the whole Grant. Bridgm. 29, 30.

By Bishop.

A Bishop granted a Rent to J. S. during his Life, out of his Manor of W. pro concilio impendendo, and then died; and it was held not void against the Bishop whilst he lived, but that it was void by his Death. Dyer 370.

A Bishop granted such an Annuity pro concilio impenso & impendendo, and this is confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, and then he died; and it was held not good to charge the Successor in an Annuity; and yet it was said, that although the Bishoprick was founded of later Times (i. e. in the Time of H. 8.) yet that the Grant of an Office of Necessity in Possession with reasonable Fees, was good. Bridgm. 31.

A Bishop may grant the Office of Stewardship of a Manor, with a Fee out of the Manor, and such Grant will be good; but the Steward must tender his Service to every Successor. Dyer 156.

A Bishop granted the Office of Surveyor of all his Manors to two for their Lives, and twenty Nobles Fee for it; and this was held void. And it was held, that such a Grant by the Common Law, had it been confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, had been good. And where it is an ancient Office, the Bishop may grant it still with the antient Fee; yet it may not be granted to two for Lives; for that is against the Statutes, and if confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, yet it is not good. And it was held, that although it be an antient Office, yet it is not good without the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter. And also that if the Bishop be translated, deposed or removed, who made the Grant, that the Grant is void against the Successor, although he be alive that made it. 9 Co. 51. 1 Co. 58, 59.

A Bishop leases for twenty-one Years, then ousteth the Lessee, and leases to another for three Lives, rendring the antient Rent; this is confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, the Bishop is translated, this Lease is good. 1 Leon. 59, 60.

A Bishop leases for three Lives, (viz.) to one for Life, the Remainder to the second, the Remainder to the third for Life, which is not warranted by the Statute of 1 Eliz. the Successor accepted the Rent; this will bind the Successor during his Time. Cro. Eliz. 67. 5 Co. 81. Dyer 282. 3 Co. 65. Co. Lit. 370.

If a second Lease be made by a Bishop for twenty-one Years, a Year before the End of a former Lease, to begin presently from the Date of it; this is good enough. So to make a Lease for three Years before the Expiration of a former Lease to begin presently. But if the Bishop after a Lease for twenty-one Years makes a Lease for three Lives, this is not good. So for Leases in Reversion. 1 Leon. 147, 148. Dyer 246. Cro. Eliz. 241.

If such a Person makes a Lease for twenty-one Years, and many Years after makes another Lease to the same Person for twenty-one Years, which is a Surrender of the first Lease; Qu. If the second Lease be good. 2 Leon. 107.

A Bishop made a Lease for twenty-one Years, and after made a Lease to another for twenty-one Years, to begin at the End of the first Lease; this is not good. 3 Leon. 130, 131, 132, 133.

If

If a Bishop grants an antient Office and Fee incident to it, and makes the Fee greater than antiently it was; it may be good for what was antiently paid, but not for the Increase of the Fee; nor can the Confirmation by the Dean and Chapter make it binding to the Successor. Bridg. 29.

Leases for Lives of Copyhold Estates are not within 1 Eliz. 1 Leon. 59.

A Bishop was seised of Tithes in Right of his Bishoprick, and made a Lease thereof for three Lives, rendring the antient Rent, and after died; the Successor made a new Lease for Years, &c. in this Case it was agreed, that the first Lease of Tithes was void, for it is but of Tithes that lie in prender, nor any Place wherein a Distress may be taken, nor any Remedy for the Rent: But had it been a Lease for Years, so that Debt might be brought for the Rent, it had been good. And so it is of all other Things which lie in Render or Prender where no Distress can be taken. Cro. Jac. 111, 112.

And it was agreed, that the Lease was not good by 1 Eliz. nor is such a Lease good by Tenant in Tail, or by a Bishop, Dean and Chapter, upon 32 H. 8. Cro. Jac. 111, 112.

A Bishop lets a Portion of Tithes to A. B. and C. for their Lives successively, rendring the antient Rent, and after dies, the Successor accepts the Rent for divers Years; this is not a good Lease within 32 H. 8. or 1 Eliz. for there is no Remedy for the Rent; as where a Rent is reserved upon a Lease of a Hundred for Life, and the Acceptance here does not make it good, for it is void against all but the Bishop himself. Cro. Jac. 110, 111, 173.

A Bishop leased to B. for Years, rendring Rent, after grants the Reversion to C. for ninety one Years, rendring the antient Rent, Habendum from the Day of the Lease; the Grant was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, but B. did not attorn; and it was held void, for it was by way of Grant, and to pass as a Reversion. 3 Leon. 17.

Bishops and such like Persons may not alien their Ecclesiastical Lands to the King himself, otherwise than according to the 1 & 13 Eliz. 11 Co. in Magdalen College Case.

A Lease by a Dean and Chapter for three Lives, when the Remainder of a Term is in esse, is not void, but voidable during the Life of the Dean. Moor 875. Dean and Chapter.

Deans and Chapters, Tenants in Tail, and such like Persons, may not make Leases without Impeachment of Waste, but they may make Leases pur auter vie, which will be an Occupancy. 6 Co. 37.

If Land has been usually let at Will, or by Copy, such Lands may be let by Deans and Chapters, Tenants in Tail, and such like Persons, upon 13 Eliz. c. 10. and 32 H. 8. c. 28.

And if a Heriot was reserved upon the Copyhold Leases, and there be no Heriot reserved upon the new Lease, it is good enough. And if the Rent upon the new Leases be reserved upon two Days, where upon the former Letting it was reserved upon four Days, it is good in the Leases of Ecclesiastical Persons, upon 10 Eliz. But otherwise it is upon the 32 H. 8. c. 28. 6 Co. 37.

Bishops with the Assent of Dean and Chapter now can make no Leases but for three Lives or twenty-one Years, but in Case of necessary Officer for his Life with a Fee, this may be with Consent of Dean and Chapter. 32 H. 8. c. 28. 1 Eliz. c. 19.

Nor may they grant Annuities or Things out of which no Rent can issue; and if their Grant be ill at first, no subsequent Accident will make it good; as if it be for four Lives, and one of them dies before the Bishop. Quod initio non valet, &c. 10 Co. 58.

A Dean and Chapter seised of a Manor in Fee, in which were Copyholds grantable for three Lives, the Rent being 8*s.* 6*d.* payable at four Times with Heriot, grants a Copyhold to A. for the Life of three others, rendring the 8*s.* 6*d.* at one Payment yearly; this Lease is within the Statute, and good. 6 Co. 37.

The Dean can make no Leases without the Chapter. Godb. 211.

Deans and Chapters may not make Leases without Impeachment of Waste, by 13 Eliz. c. 10. 6 Co. 37.

If a Dean of one Cathedral be elected Bishop of another See with Dispensation Retinere Deconatum in Commendam, after the Bishop of that See whereof he was Head and Dean, do make a Lease of Parcel of the Possessions of the Bishoprick, the Confirmation of the Lease by the Commendatory Dean is good. Hughes's Abr. 1220.

A Lease by the Dean and Chapter of St. Pauls of a House in London, the House being then in Lease to another for ten Years, is void by the 13 & 14 Eliz. Cro. Eliz. 564.

A Lease made by a Prebendary is good by 32 H. 8. but not by a Parson or Vicar. Cro. Prebendary. Eliz. 350.

A Prebend was antiently let with the Exception of all Crab-Trees, and such like Trees, and the new Lease is made without this Exception; it is not good. 2 Co. 458.

Such kind of Spiritual Persons, as Bishops, Deans, and the like, may not grant the next Avoidance of Churches or Rent out of those Lands, but the same will be void after their Death: Lease by Parson, Patron and Ordinary, being avoided by the next Incumbent, makes it void against all his Successors. Cro. Eliz. 420.

A Prebendary makes a Lease of Part of his Prebend's Land, with an Exception of great Woods, Oaks, Ashes, &c. this was confirmed by the Bishop, Patron, but not by the Dean and Chapter; after he made a second Lease without an Exception; in this Case the Confirmation without the Dean and Chapter is good, and the second Lease without the Exception is void, by 13 Eliz. 3 Bulst. 290.

Prebend.

A Prebendary made a Lease for Years of his Land, with Exception of the great Wood, as Oak, &c. which is confirmed by the Archbishop, but not by the Dean and Chapter; and then he makes another Lease without this Exception, the Land being usually let with the Exception: In this Case it was held, 1. That the Lease confirmed by the Archbishop, Patron of the Prebend, was good without Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter. 2. And that this second Lease notwithstanding was void by the Statute. 3 Bulst. 290, 291.

By an Abbot.

And an Abbot leased to three Men for eighty Years with this Proviso, That if they died within the Term, the Lessor might enter. And after a new Lease was made by him in Reversion to J. D. for twenty-one Years, to begin after the End, Surrender, &c. of the first Lease; the three Lessees died within the Term, the said J. D. may not have it till J. D. enter upon the Condition and avoid the Lease, which he may chuse whether he will do or not. 3 Leon. 269.

Parson, Vicar or Prebend.

If a Parson, Vicar or Prebend, makes a Lease for Years, rendring Rent, and dies, and the Successor accepts the Rent, this will not affirm the Lease, for it was void by his Death; otherwise of a Lease for Life. But if a Bishop, Abbot or Prior makes a Lease for Years, and dies, and the Successor accepts the Rent, he shall never avoid the Lease, for here the Lease was only voidable. 5 Co. 65.

Parson or Vicar.

A Parson made a Lease of his Rectory, 9 Eliz. for sixty Years, and this was confirmed by the succeeding Bishop, succeeding Patron, neither of them being Bishop or Patron at the Time of the Lease; this was good. Cro. El. 27. 5 Co. 15.

A Lease by a Parson for twenty-one Years after 13 Eliz. rendring the ancient Rent, the Patron and Ordinary confirm it, the Parson dies; the Lease is void by his Death, as well as by Non-residence and by Resignation. Cro. Car. 123.

A Parson made a Lease for forty Years, the Bishop of London Patron and Ordinary confirmed it under his Hand and Seal, without the Dean and Chapter, the Incumbent died, the Bishop collated another, who made a new Lease, which is well confirmed; afterwards the Bishop is translated; in this Case the first and not the second Lease is good during both the Lives of the Bishop and Incumbent. Dyer 359.

A Parson or Vicar, &c. if they make Leases according to the enabling Statute of 32 H. 8. they are out of the Statute, and their Leases must be confirmed by the Patron and Ordinary: But if a Bishop seised in Right of his Bishoprick, Dean of his sole Possession, and one that is seised jure prebendæ, they may make Leases under the Provisoes aforesaid. Co. Lit. 44.

Parson.

A Parson of a Church may grant his Tithes from Year to Year, or for Years, to his Parishioners that are to pay them, or to a Stranger, and the Grant is good. Vide Perk. §. 90. Owen 103. Hetley 107. Poph. 141.

Incumbent.

An Incumbent leases certain Glebe for twenty-one Years, rendring the ancient Rent, the Patron and Ordinary confirm it. 2. If the Lease be void by the Statute of Non-residence. Moor 124.

Bishops, Deans and Chapters, Masters and Guardians of any Hospital, and their Brethren, Masters, Governors, and Fellows of Colleges or Houses, or any other Body Politick, Spiritual and Ecclesiastical, (by whatsoever Name they be called) Archdeacons, Prebends, and such as are in the Nature of Prebends, as Precentors, Chaunters Treasurers, Chancellors, and such like; all these, except Parsons and Vicars, may at this Day make Leases of their Spiritual Livings (as is before said) for three Lives or twenty-one Years; and these Leases will be good both against them and their Successors. But such Persons may not make Leases of their Land for any longer Time than for three Lives or twenty-one Years, and such Leases will be good both against themselves and against their Successors. But if it be for longer Time, although it be by Fine or Recovery, and although it be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, yet it will be void as to the Successor; and the Leases that are made by such Persons of their Lands for twenty-one Years, or three Lives, must be made with all the Conditions and Qualifications in Leases made by Tenants in Tail, (viz.) by Deed indented, &c. Co. Lit. 44. 5 Co. 14. 11 Co. 66. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. 13 El. c. 20. 1 Jac. c. 3. 1 Eliz. c. 19. 14 Eliz. c. 11.

But

But such Persons may make longer Leases of their Houses in Corporations or Market-Towns, or in the Suburbs thereof, and of the Grounds appertaining to such Houses, so as they be not their Dwelling-houses, &c. and have not above ten Acres of Ground belonging to them; but of these also it may not be in Reversion, and the old Rent, or more, must be reserved upon them, and the Lessee must be charged with Reparations; nor may these Leases exceed forty Years; and so two Leases one after another, both not above forty Years, may be good. Popb. 8, 9.

And these Leases (as it seems) may be granted away altogether, where they shall purchase other Lands in Fee-simple of like Value. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. But as to other Lands belonging to their Churches and Places, they may by no Means make Leases for longer Time than three Lives or twenty-one Years.

A Lease made of Land anciently let asunder at several Rents, and now let together by one Lease, and more than the whole Rent reserved, is doubted to be a good Lease within the Statute. Cro. Eliz. 16.

The Statutes of 13 Eliz. and 1 Eliz. do not alter the Statute of 32 H. 8. but leave it for a Pattern for Leases to be made by others. A Lease made according to the Exception of 1 and 13 Eliz. and not warranted by the 32 H. 8. if it be by a Bishop, or any sole Corporation, must be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, and others, that have Interest, as in the Case of a Parson and Vicar. Co. Lit. 44.

But Note, That although in all these Cases of Leases and Grants not warranted by the Successors, Statutes aforesaid they are said to be void, yet this is to be understood as against the Successors only; for as to the Lessors themselves they are good against them whilst they live, or at least so long as they continue in the Place; so that if such a Lease be made by a Dean and Chapter, or other Congregation Aggregate; this will be good against the Dean, or other Head of the Corporation, so long as he shall continue to be so. So of Leases made by Bishops, not warranted by 1 Eliz. or a Dean and Chapter, Master and Fellows of a College, or the like, not warranted by 13 Eliz. c. 10. these Leases will be good against themselves although they be void against the Successors. So if a private Act of Parliament intails Land upon a Man, and appoints him what Estate he shall make, and that if he makes any other Estates they shall be void; this shall be taken void as to the Tenant in Tail himself that makes them. Co. Lit. 45, 329. 3 Co. 59. 10 Co. 59. 11 Co. 35, 78. 5 Co. 5.

The Tenant in Tail is also restrained, but in the same Cases as before Leases for twenty-one Years or three Lives, may be made under all the other Qualifications and Conditions before-mentioned in the Leases of Spiritual Persons. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. Co. Lit. 44. By Tenant in Tail.

But with this Addition the primitive Estate must continue, for if the Lease be made according to the Statute, and then the Tenant in Tail dies without Issue, the Lease is at an End. 4 Co. 34. Dyer 34.

And there only where Leases are made with these Conditions they are held to be within the Statute, and such only as do bind the Tenant in Tail himself and his Issue; for otherwise if it be not warranted by this Statute, although it will bind the Tenant in Tail himself that made it, yet it will not bind his Issue, but as to him it will be void or voidable at least; for if Tenant in Tail of Land makes a Lease of it for one Hundred Years, without any Rent reserved thereupon, this Lease as to the Issue in Tail is void; but if he makes a Lease for one hundred Years, rendring Rent, and has Issue, and dies, in this Case the Lease is only voidable by the Issue at his Pleasure; and therefore if the Issue in Tail after his Death shall accept the Rent, by this the Lease is affirmed and become good; but let the Lease be made how it will, it will not bind him in Remainder over, nor him that is Donor: And therefore if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease warranted by the Statute, and after dies without Issue, so that the Land remains over to another, or reverts to the Donor; in these Cases neither he in Remainder, nor the Donor, shall be bound by this Lease, for as to them it is void. And yet if the Remainder be in the Tenant in Tail himself, and he makes a Lease for Years by Deed according to the Statute or Fine, this Lease is good, and shall bind his own Remainder: But if he makes a Lease for Years by Fine, this will not bar the Donor, nor him in Remainder, in any Case where it is in a Stranger. Plow. 416, 435. Dyer 7, 8.

But in this Case the Tenant in Tail may, by the Help of a Fine and Recovery, or one of them, make what further Estate he pleases to bind the Donor and him in Remainder also. 7 Co. 7. Brownl. 139. Plow. 435.

A. and B. his Wife being Tenants in special Tail, the Reversion to A. who dies; C. the Issue in Tail to A. and B. by Deed indented, and in the Life-time of the Mother, makes a Lease for forty Years to D. to begin after the Death of the Mother, rendring Rent, and dies; the Reversion comes to E. who with her Husband in the Life-time of B. the Mother levies levies a Fine Sur Conusance de droit, &c. to F. and then B. dies, and Proclamations pass; in this Case the Lease is good. 2 Bulst. 45.

And if Tenant in Tail infeoff his Issue, who at his full Age makes a Lease for Years, the Father dies, the Son is remitted, yet he shall not avoid his own Lease. Dyer 51.

And if the Son being Issue in Tail after his Mother makes a Lease for Years after the Death of his Mother, and dies, and then the Daughter, the next Issue in Tail, makes another Lease, and both these Leases are to begin after the Death of the Mother, the last Issue levies a Fine, and then the Mother dies; both the Leases are good, and that which is first made shall begin first. 2 Bulst. 46.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease to begin at Michaelmas next ensuing for twenty Years, this is good. So is a Lease for ten Years, and after for eleven Years. And so in all Cases where there is not above twenty-one Years in the Whole. Leon. 147, 148. Or not above forty Years in all upon two Leases by ecclesiastical Persons that may make such Leases. Poph. 8, 9.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for twenty-two or for forty Years, or for four Lives; this Lease is void not only for the Overplus of Time more than twenty-one Years, or for three Lives, but for the Time of three Lives, and twenty-one Years also. And if such a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for ninety-nine Years, determinable upon three Lives, it is not a good Lease. But if a Lease be made by Tenant in Tail for a lesser Time, as for two Lives, or for twenty Years, this is a good Lease. And if it be made for four Lives, and one of the Lives dies before the Tenant in Tail dies, yet this Accident will not make it good, but the Lease is voidable notwithstanding. Dyer 246. 5 Co. 6.

If Land has been formerly let to one Man for three Lives, they may now be let to three Men for three Lives. Cro Jac. 76, 77.

A Lease of such Land to one for Life, the Remainder to another for Life, the Remainder to a third for Life, is not good; but a Lease to one for the Lives of three others is good, although it become an Occupancy. 6 Co. 37.

But a Lease for twenty-one Years by Tenant in Tail after the making of it, is good by 32 H. 8. c. 28. although the Day be not accounted Part of the Time. Moor 41.

If Land be given to Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Husband dies leaving Issue by his Wife, and the Wife makes a Lease according to the 32 H. 8. c. 28. in this Case it seems the Lease is good to bind the Issue. Godb. Case 119.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease within the Statute to one for Years, and after for Life to another, and a Letter of Attorney to give Livery to another, and before Livery made the first Lease is surrendered; here the second Lease will be good. Spark's Case, Trin. 4 Jac. B. R.

A Lease for Years by one in Remainder in Tail is good against the Lessor; but if any Tenant in Tail in Possession suffer a Recovery of the Land, by this the Lease will be avoided. Owen 41, 42, 43. Co. Capel's Case.

If Tenant in Tail be of a Manor that has been usually demised for 10*l.* Rent, and after a Tenancy escheat, and then he leases the Manor, rendring this Rent, it is said this Lease is good; but that if he purchases a Tenancy, it is otherwise. 5 Co. 6.

Tenant in Tail of an Advowson, and his Heir in Tail, join in the Grant of the next Avoidance, the Tenant in Tail dies; this Grant is utterly void as to the Son. Hob. Case 47.

If the Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder for Life, &c. this is not a good Lease within the Statute; but such a Lease made for the Lives of others that may be an Occupancy, is good. 6 Co. 37.

If Tenant in Tail and one A. levy a Fine to a Stranger of the Land, who grants and renders to A. for Years, rendring Rent, and by the same Fine grants the Reversion to Tenant in Tail in Fee; this is a good Lease for Years, although it be by one Fine, and the Lease shall be said to precede the Grant of the Reversion. Co. 76, 174.

Where it is required by the Statute that the old Lease shall be surrendered, this Surrender must be absolute, and not conditional; and it must be real, and not illusory and in Shew only. Factum non dicitur quod non perseverat. 5 Co. 2.

And there may not be a double or concurrent Lease in Being at one Time; as where a Lease for Years is made according to the Statute, he in Reversion may not afterwards repulse the Lessee, and make a Lease for Life or Lives, or another Lease for Years, according to the Statute, nor e converso. Co. Lit. 44. b.

But if a Lease for Years be made to one, and after a Lease for Life is made to another, and a Letter of Attorney made to give Livery and Seisin upon the Lease for Life, and before before the Livery made the first Lease is surrendered; in this Case the second Lease will be good. Moor 748.

If one in Remainder in Tail makes a Lease for Years, and then levies a Fine with Proclamations; by this the Lease is made good. Plow. 427.

A Lease made by Tenant in Tail, to begin from Michaelmas three Years after, or after the Death of the Tenant in Tail for twenty-one Years, is not good. 5 Co. 6. Dyer 246.

But a Lease made by him to begin at Michaelmas next for twenty-one Years, is a good Lease within the Statute: Such a Lease to commence a die datus, is good, so Livery be made after the Date. Moor 759.

Two Coparceners in Tail, the Husband of one being Tenant by the Curtesy, join in a Lease, rendring Rent to two and their Heirs; this is not a good Lease by 32 H. 8. of Estates-tail, for it is not reserved to the Donee and his Heirs, but to the Tenant by the Curtesy jointly with the other. Latch 45.

If there be more Rent reserved upon the new than was upon the old Lease, the Lease is good. 5 Co. 5.

If the old Rent was eight Bushels, and the new Rent is a Quarter of the same Corn; this is good enough. 5 Co. 5.

If Tenant in Tail let a Part of the Land accustomably let, and reserve the Rent pro rata, or more than after the Rate; this will not be a good Lease. 5 Co. 5.

If two Coparceners have twenty Acres of Land of equal Value between them in Tail, and these have been usually letten, and they make Partition of them, so that each of them has ten Acres; in this Case they may make several Leases each of them of their Parts, reserving half of the accustomed Rent. 5 Co. 5. Ley 78. Vide Co. Lit. 44. b. contra.

Tenant in Tail is seised of a Manor with three Acres thereof in Demesne, and he makes a Lease of the three Acres also of the Manor, Habendum the three Acres and the Manor for twenty-one Years, rendring Rent for the three Acres, and all other the Premises therewith demised, 5 l. in this Case the Lease is good for the three Acres. Owen 119.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease of his intailed Land without Impeachment of Waste, it is not good although it be but for twenty-one Years or three Lives; and therefore also is a Lease for Life, with a Remainder for Life, void because Waste will not lie. 6 Co. 37.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease of such a Thing as lies in Grant, as of an Advowson, Fair, Market, a Hundred, Portion of Tithes, Franchise, or the like, out of which a Rent cannot be reserved, although it be but for twenty-one Years or three Lives; this will not be good within the Statute: And yet perhaps it may be so far good as to give an Action of Debt for the Rent upon the Personal Contract; and although the Thing whereof the Lease is made has been usually let, yet this will not be good; and therefore a Grant of a Rent-charge out of such Land is void. Cro. Jac. 112. 11 Co. 60.

The Lands whereof the Lease is made must be such as have been usually let to Farm for twenty Years before the Lease; so that if it has been let for eleven Years at one or several Times within twenty Years before the new Lease made, it is sufficient. And although the Letting has been by Copy of Court-Roll only, yet such a Letting in Fee, for Life or Years is a sufficient Letting: And so also is a Letting at Will by the Common Law. But these Lettings to Farm must be made by such as are seised of an Estate of Inheritance; for if it has been by Guardian in Chivalry, Tenant by the Curtesy, Dower, or the like, this will not be a Letting within the Statute. 6 Co. 37. Dyer 271. Cro. Jac. 112.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years according to 32 H. 8. this will bind the Issue of the Tenant in Tail, but not him in Reversion. Noy 6. Dyer 19.

Where a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, or grants a Rent, Common, &c. or otherwise charges the Land; this is a good Lease, Grant or Charge to bind the Tenant in Tail himself, and his Issue, if made within the Statute. Bridgm. 28.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, and then levies a Fine with Proclamations to the Donor, and dies, having Issue; the Donor may not avoid this Lease. Bridgm. 28.

Husband and Wife Tenants in Tail of the Gift of the Husband, the Remainder to the Husband in Fee, the Husband dies, the Son and Heir of the Husband and Wife levies a Fine with Proclamations to the Use of him and his Heirs, the Wife makes a Lease of the Land for twenty-one Years; this is good as against the Issue in Tail. Bridgm. 28, 29.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years at a Rent, and the Issue accepts the Rent, (as he may or may not at his Choice) by this the Lease is made good for his Time; but if he infeoff a Stranger before his Entry, the Feoffee cannot avoid it. Bridgm. 28.

A Lease for Years of Land usually demised, and of other Land not demised before, reserving the ancient Rent for the Land usually let, and 12 d. for the other, is not a good Lease. If an Office usually granted for Life be granted for two Lives, or for Life, the Reversion for Life; this is (it seems) not good. Cro. Eliz. 34, 35. 5 Co. 4.

The Grant of Increase of Fee by way of Reservation to an ancient Officer, is not good. Cro. Eliz. 34, 35.

If one seised of Land in Fee in Right of the Wife, and she as Sole without her Husband grants a Rent by Fine issuing out of the Land, this will not bind the Husband during Coverture; but if he dies before they reverse it, she is bound. Perk. §. 20.

There must be reserved upon such a Lease made by Tenant in Tail, payable to the Lessor and his Heirs, to whom the Reversion shall appertain, so much or more of yearly Rent during the Lease, as has been usually paid for the same for twenty Years before the Lease made; and therefore if the Rent be reserved but for Part of the Time of the Lease, it is void. 5 Co. 8. Moor 759.

But a Lease may be good although it do not reserve a Heriot, or the like Thing, which is not annual. 6 Co. 37.

And a Rent formerly reserved at two Days may now be reserved at one Day, and is good. 6 Co. 37.

If the old Rent were to be paid for a Close, and now a House is built upon it, and the Rent now issues out of both House and Close, it is good. Leon. 147, 148.

And if Tenant in Tail has twenty Acres of Land that has been usually let, and he makes a Lease thereof, and of one Acre more, which has not been usually let, reserving the usual yearly Rent, and so much more as to exceed the Value of the other Acre; this will not be a good Lease within the Statute. 5 Co. 8.

If Tenant in Tail be of a Manor that has been usually demised for 10*l.* Rent, and after a Tenancy escheat, and then he makes a Lease of the Manor, rendring 10*l.* Rent, it is a good Lease; but where the Lessor purchases a Tenancy, it is otherwise. 5 Co. 5. Ley 7, 8.

If the Tenant in Tail of two Farms, the one at 20*l.* the other at 10*l.* Rent, shall make a Lease of both these together at 30*l.* it is not a good Lease within the Statute. 5 Co. 8.

But if the ancient Rent was payable at four Days, and the new Rent is payable at two Days, this may be good. Cro. Jac. 76.

And if the new Rent be payable at one Day, it is said not to be good. And if the old Rent was payable in Gold, and the new Rent in Silver, this is not good. 5 Co. 6.

If anciently let to two Tenants, and now to one, and all the Rent and more reserved together, Q. Cro. Eliz. 16. it seems not good. 5 Co. 5.

If besides the annual Rent, there has been usually a Reservation or Payment of some Things not annual, as Heriots, Fines, or the like, upon the Death of the Farmers, or a Profit out of another's Soil, as Pasturage for a Colt, &c. and upon the new Lease the yearly Rent is reserved, but the other Reservation and Payments are omitted, the Lease is good enough. 6 Co. 37. Moor 759.

If a Lease be made by a Tenant in Tail, or ecclesiastical Person, for twenty-one Years, and then they make another Lease to the same Person for twenty-one Years; it seems this second Lease is good, because the first Lease is surrendered by the taking of the second Lease.

If the Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, rendring Rent, and dies without Issue, his Wife privily with Child of a Son, and he in Reversion enters; in this Case the Lease as to him in Reversion is void: But as to the Son is good, when born, it will be good against him. Co. Lit. 46.

Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Tail within Age grants an Annuity with Distress, and Nomine pænæ 20*s.* for every Month; agreed if Tenant for Life, and it is confirmed by the Remainder in Fee within Age, that it is issuing out of the Estate for Life, and a void Grant as to the Remainder: And if Tenant for Life purchases the Remainder or Reversion, it shall not bind the Inheritance; but the Matter of Law was not agreed. Cro. Eliz. 73.

Tenant in Tail and his Son join in a Grant of the next Advowson of a Church, this is void as to the Son. Hob. 45.

If a Feme Sole Tenant in Tail makes a Lease not warrantable by the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 28. and then takes a Husband, and has Issue, and dies, the Husband shall not avoid the Lease, but the Issue shall avoid it if the Father dies or surrenders. Moor 8.

If Tenant for Life, and he in Remainder in Tail join and make a Lease to another for two other Lives; this will be good only against them for their own Lives. But Quære, If it be not a Forfeiture by the Tenant for Life. Cro. Car. 252.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease of some Land usually let, and of other Land not let, and makes several Reservations of Rent, and reserve out of the Land usually let the ancient Rent Rent thereof; this is a good Lease, at least for so much as hath been usually let. Cro. Car.

If a Lease be made for Life to Husband and Wife, the Remainder in Tail to N. T. their Son; a Stranger levies a Fine Sur Conusance de droit come ceo que il ad de Son done al N. T. the Son, who grants and renders the Land to him for fifty-four Years, rendring Rent, has Issue, and dies before any Proclamations past, and after the Husband and Wife die; in this Case the Lease is good against the Issue in Tail by Reason of the Rent; otherwise if the Rent had not been reserved. Plowd. 430, 431.

A. and B. his Wife, Tenants in special Tail, have Issue a Son, the Father dies, the Son levies a Fine with Proclamations to the Use of himself in Fee, the Wife makes a Lease for twenty-one Years, rendring Rent; this Lease is good against the Son. Hutton 84.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail of the Gift of a deceased Husband, or any of his Ancestors whilst she is Sole, or after with another Husband makes any such Lease according to the Statute of the 32 H. 8. c. 28. yet this Lease will not be good, for it is against another Statute, viz. 11 H. 7. c. 20. 3 Co. 51.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for thirty-one Years, and takes a Husband, and has Issue, the Wife dies, the Husband is Tenant by the Curtesy; in this Case the Issue may not avoid the Lease during the Life of the Tenant by the Curtesy. Owen 83.

A. being Tenant for Life of Land, the Remainder in Tail to R. his Son, grants a Rent out of it in Fee to J. S. after this the Father and Son levy a Fine of the Land with Proclamations to the Use of the Father in Fee; this Grant is good, and now unavoidable by the Son by Reason of a Fine levied. Hutton 96.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, and after takes a Husband, and dies, the Husband being Tenant by the Curtesy surrenders to the Issue; the Issue may avoid the Lease. Moor 8.

Tenant in Tail makes a Lease to a Feme Covert, the Husband surrenders, and then the Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for three Lives, and dies, the Wife after the Death of the Husband that surrenders enters and dies; the Issue may not avoid the Lease for three Lives.

If Lessee for Years surrenders upon Condition, and the Lessor makes a Lease for three Lives, and the Lessee for Years enters for the Condition, the Years expire. Quere, If the Lease be good against the Issue in Tail? Moor 783.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail within the 11th of H. 7. accepts of a Fine Sur Conusance, &c. By a Woman and renders the Land to the Conusor for 100 or 1000 Years, this is within the Statute. So if she has Title of Dower, and before she be endowed she shall enter and levy a Fine. Tenant in Tail.

3 Leon. 78. Dyer 148. 5 Co. Brown's Case. Godb. Case 8. 2 Leon. 168. Hob. 258.

If Lands are given to the Wife in general Tail, the Remainder to a Stranger in Fee, the Donor dies, she takes another Husband, and has Issue a Daughter, the Husband and Wife levy a Fine to a Stranger; that Daughter and next Heir has no Remedy, for that Estate is within the Words of 11 H. 7. not within the Meaning: For no Estate is within the Meaning of the Statute but what is for the Jointure of the Wife; and the Meaning of that Statute is, that the Wife so preferred by her Husband shall not prejudice the Issues or Heirs of the Husband, and no such Prejudice is in this Case. 3 Leon. 78, 260. Vide Benl. 143.

One in Consideration of Service done to him by his Man, gives Land to him and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and dies; this is not within the Statute, vide Yelv. 101. But if it be to Sibil his Wife, Consanguineæ suæ, 2. Vide Moor, Case 493.

One seised of Land in Fee makes a Feoffment of it to J. S. to the Use of his Wife for her Life, and after to the Use of the Heirs of the Body of the Feoffor; the Wife dies, the Feoffor makes a Lease for Years, and dies, the Issue may not avoid this Lease, and a Man can have no Heirs whilst he lives. So if a Lease be made for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and J. S. dies in the Life of the Lessee, there the Remainder is good; otherwise not, but it shall revert. But it may be in a Will. Hetley 66.

The Ancestor of the Husband covenants to stand seised of Land to the Use of the Husband and Wife, in Consideration of Marriage and of Money; if the Wife aliens the Land after the Death of the Husband, the Heir may enter, by the 11th Hen. 7. Moor 93.

But if the Ancestor of the Wife make such a Gift or Covenant, this it seems is not within the Statute.

If the Ancestor of the Husband makes a Feoffment, on Condition to give back to the Husband and Wife in Tail; if in this Case the Wife aliens it after the Death of the Husband, this is within the Statute.

If the Husband be seised of Land in Right of his Wife, and they levy a Fine, and the Conusor grants a Rent to them in Tail; the Husband having Issue died, the Wife aliens the Rent; this is out of the Statute, for the Rent comes in Lieu of the Land. Cro. Eliz. 2.

Husband

Husband devised Land to his Wife in Tail, the Remainder over to another, and died, the Wife with her second Husband aliened this Land by Fine, and died; although this is within the Words, yet it is not within the Meaning of the Statute of the 11th of Hen. 7. Cro. Car. 21.

One seised of Land in Fee levies a Fine to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of his Wife, and of the Heirs Male of her Body by him begotten, for her Jointure, and had Issue Male; and after he and his Wife levied a Fine, and suffered a common Recovery, the Husband and Wife died; in this Case the Issue Male may enter; for although it be out of the Letter, yet it is within the Intent of the 11 H. 7. c. 20.

But if one seised of Land in Right of his Wife, and they two levy a Fine, and the Conusee grants and renders the Land to the Husband and Wife in special Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Wife; they have Issue, the Husband dies, the Wife takes another Husband, and they levy a Fine in Fee; in this Case the Issue is barred, for this, although it be within the Words, yet is not within the Intent of the Statute. Co. Lit. 365.

G. covenants with B. as well in Consideration of a Marriage between L. his Son, and A. the Daughter of B. as of 200 l. paid him by B. to convey the Land to the Use of L. and A. and the Heirs of the Body of A. and to his right Heirs; they after marry, A. dies before the Assurance made, L. the Son makes the Assurance accordingly, and they have Issue R. (1) This Assurance, although made for Money as well as upon a Marriage, shall be said to be a Jointure within the 11th of H. 7. Dy. 146. Cro. Jac. 474. (2) This is an Estate-tail in the Wife, and but an Estate for Life in the Husband. (3) The Alienation of the first Husband and A. his Wife, he himself limiting it, being only Tenant for Life, is not a Forfeiture within this Statute. Cro. Jac. 474.

If a Woman Tenant in Tail of the Gift of her deceased Husband, or any of his Ancestors whilst she is Sole, or after with another Husband makes a Lease, although it be such a one as is within the 3 H. 8. for Tenant in Tail, yet it is not good, being against 11 H. 7. c. 20. 3 Co. 51.

A Gift of Land, Part for Marriage, and Part for Money, is within the Statute of 11 H. 7. c. 20. Moor 91.

And therefore if the Land be purchased Part with the Money of the Husband and Part with the Money of the Father, &c. it may be within this Statute. Moor 250.

The Father infeoffs his Son and a Feme Sole, this is not within this Statute. Moor 715, 716.

A Gift partly for Service of the Husband and partly for the Consanguinity of the Wife, is within the Statute of 11 H. 7. Moor 683.

One devised his Land to his Wife in Tail, the Remainder to a Stranger, and dies; in this Case the Wife with her second Husband may alien it: For where the Remainder is to a Stranger, so as it is no Prejudice to the Heir of the Husband; this is not within the Statute, and her Alienation will be no Forfeiture. Cro. Car. 2.

And if the Husband be seised of Land in Right of his Wife, and they levy a Fine, and the Conusee grants a Rent to them in Tail, the Husband leaving Issue dies, and the Wife aliens the Rent; this is out of the Statute of 11 H. 7. for the Rent comes in Lieu of the Land. Cro. Car. 2.

Rules relating to Leases, &c. by Tenants in Tail. And lastly, as to Leases made by Tenant in Tail, the Sum of all is this: That such Leases made by such Tenants of full Age, of the Land they have in their own Right without Fine or Recovery, are good, so as these Conditions be observed:

First, Such Leases must be by Deed indented, and not by Deed Poll.

Secondly, They must begin from the Making, or from the Day of the Making thereof, and not a Day to come, as three Years hence, or at the Death of the Lessor, or the like. Co. Lit. 44. Dyer 246.

Thirdly, If there be an old Lease in Being of the Land, the same must be surrendered, ended, or within a Year of Ending, and this Surrender must be real and absolute. 5 Co. 2.

Fourthly, There may not be a double or concurrent Lease in Being at one Time; and therefore if one Lease be in Being, he may not put him out and make another. 5 Co. 2.

Fifthly, These Leases must not exceed three Lives or twenty-one Years; and therefore if made for forty Years, or four Lives, they will be void, not only for the Overplus, but for all the Time: But for a lesser Time, as for two Lives, or twenty Years, it is good. 5 Co. 6. Dyer 246.

And if made for four Lives, and one of them dies before the Death of Tenant in Tail, yet it is not good.

Sixthly,

Sixthly, These Leases must be of such a Thing as upon which a Rent may be reserved and recoverable, and not out of an Advowson, Fair, Portion of Tithes, Franchise, or the like; and this is so although it has been antiently let for the Rent; and therefore a Grant of a Rent-charge out of such Land is void. 5 Co. 2.

Seventhly, The Lease must be of such of his Lands as have been antiently let for twenty Years before. 6 Co. 37. Dyer 271.

Or most commonly let for the greater Part of twenty Years, so as it has been let for eleven Years at one or at several Times within twenty Years before the new Lease made, it is well enough; and although the Letting has been by Copy of Court-Roll, or at Will. But such Letting must be by the Tenants themselves, and not by a Guardian, Tenant by the Curtesy, Donor, or the like. Ibid.

Such Lease must not be against any Act of Parliament. 3 Co. 51.

Eighthly, There must be reserved on such Lease to the Tenant in Tail and his Heirs, so much or more Rent as has been usually paid for twenty Years before; and this must be reserved for all the Time of the new Lease. And a Lease of the Land before with other Land, reserving the old Rent, with somewhat more for the other Land, is not sufficient. Nor may they join Lands together that had two Rents, reserving the two Rents together: But for accidental Profits, as Heriots, and the like, they may be omitted, yet the Lease may be good. And yet if the old Rent was payable at four Days, and the new is payable at one Day, this is not good. But if the old Rent was to be paid in Gold, and the new Rent is to be paid in Silver, this may be good. 5 Co. 5.

Ninthly, The new Lease may not be made without Impeachment of Waste. 6 Co. 37.

Tenthly, There must be all due Ceremonies of Livery of Seisin, or Requisites to perfect the same. 7 Co. 7. 8 Co. 54.

One that has an Estate in Land to him and his Wife, and his Heirs, may make what Lease he pleases of the Land, and it will be good against all but his Wife, and that only for her Time. Bro. Lease 58.

A. possessed of a Term of Years in Right of his Wife, makes a Lease for Years of it, By Husband to begin after his Death; and it was held good, although he could not by Will have disposed of the Wife's Land. Popb. 5.

So he may contract for and make a Lease for Part of his Time, as twenty-one Years, where he hath forty Years, or the like; and for the Remainder of the Term not disposed of, the Wife will have it. Ibid.

If Lands be granted to Husband and Wife for their Lives, the Remainder to the Survivor of them for Years, and the Husband grants over this Term of Years, and dies; this is not good, but the Wife and not the Grantee shall have it: For till a Survivor was, neither of them had Power to grant. So it would have been if the Wife had died and the Husband had survived, yet he should have had the Term against his own Grant. Popb. 5.

W. and his Wife being possessed in Right of his Wife of a Term which she has as Administratrix; W. grants the Term to C. to the Use of him and his Wife for their Lives, and after to the Use of himself: This Grant is good, and it shall not be accounted fraudulent as to Creditors; and it is out of the Statute of 19 H. 7. and all other Statutes of that Nature. Cro. Car. 392, 393.

Husband and Wife Jointenants for Life, the Husband alone accepts of a new Lease; this is a Surrender, but avoidable by the Wife if she survives. Moor 636. By Husband alone.

A Letter of Attorney by Husband and Wife to deliver a Lease made by them, is void as to the Wife. Yelv. 1.

A Husband by his Marriage has full Power of his Wife's Term, if the Wife dies, it survives to the Husband, or if the Husband dies it survives to the Wife, unless he dispose of it. Hob. 3.

If they join in a Mortgage, this is no Disposition, and if the Husband purchase the Fee, By Husband the Term is not extinct; they can neither by Acceptance of a new Lease, nor expressly surrender the Wife's Freehold, so as to bind her surviving. Hob. 203. and Wife.

The Husband alone may during his Life, by Act executed, dispose of any of the Husband Goods and Chattels of his Wife's, but he cannot dispose it by his Will at his Death. alone. March 135.

So he may give or grant Goods and Chattels which he has as Executor, by any Act executed in his Life-time, but not devise them by his Will at his Death. Plow. 516. 6 Co. 66.

Husband and Wife seised of Land in London to them and the Heirs of the Husband, By Husband and they covenanted by Indenture for 20 l. to suffer a common Recovery after the Custom and Wife. there, (which binds as a Fine) and that it should be to the Use of the Recoverers, until they had made a good Lease by Indenture for forty Years, and after the Making of the Lease, to the Use of them and the Heirs of the Husband, which Recovery was had; this Lease is good, and not avoidable by the Wife. Dyer 290.

Husband and Wife seised of Lands in the Right of his Wife, levied a Fine to the Use of themselves for their Lives, and after to the Use of the Heirs of the Wife, provided that it shall be lawful for Husband and Wife at any Time during their Lives to make Leases for twenty-one Years, or three Lives; the Wife being Covert, made a Lease for twenty-one Years; it is a good Lease against the Husband. Godb. 327.

Husband.

A Husband seised of Lands in Fee makes a Feoffment from that Day to divers, to the Use of his Wife for her Life, and after to the Use of the Heirs of the Body of the Feoffor; the Wife dies, and the Feoffor makes a Lease for Years, and dies: In this Case the Issue cannot avoid the Lease, for a Man cannot have Heirs of J. S. and J. S. dies in the Life of the Lessee, then the Remainder is good, otherwise not, but it shall revert; but otherwise perhaps it may be in such a Case upon a Demise. Hetley 66.

A Husband makes a Feoffment to the Use of his Wife for Life, and after her Death to the Use of the right Heirs of the Body of the Husband and Wife; the Wife dies having Issue, the Husband survives, this Issue cannot take, for the Husband during his Life cannot have a right Heir capable. Dyer 99.

By Husband and Wife.

If a Gift be to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Body of the Survivor of them, and they make a Lease for twenty-one Years, observing all Circumstances by 32 H. 8. yet this Lease will not bind the Issue, for the Incertainty of the Person of the Survivor the Estate-tail was not vested. 10 Co. 51.

By Tenant in Tail.

Tenant in Tail of Lands in Capite makes a Lease not warranted by 32 H. 8. and dies without Issue, the Reversion descended to his Heir, who is in Ward, &c. yet although the King avoid this Lease for his Time, as he might, the Heir in Tail may after, by Acceptance of the Rent, make the Lease good. Dyer 119.

So a Tenant in Tail, the Reversion in the King, makes a Lease for Years, and dies, his Issue of full Age, the King avoided it for his dues, the Son accepts the Rent after Livery sued out, this is an Affirmance of the Lease. And if Tenant in Tail shall discontinue the Tail, and take back an Estate in Fee, and after makes a Lease for Years, rendering Rent, and dies, the Issue before Entry levies a Fine, the Grantee may not avoid the Lease. 7 Co. 8.

If Tenant in Tail has Issue, who being of Age grants a Rent out of the Land to a Stranger, and after the Tenant in Tail dies, the Issue in Tail shall hold the Land discharged. Co. Lit. 348.

A Guardian during the Minority of the Issue in Tail but of one Year old, makes a Lease for twenty Years of the Land; this is not good within the Statute of 32 H. 8. to bind the Issue. So of the Lease of Tenant in Dower by the Curtesy, or of Husband in Right of his Wife, for they have no Inheritance. Dyer 271. Co. Lit. 44.

J. M. and his Wife Tenants in Tail, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Husband, by Conveyance of the Husband during Coverture, he has a Son, and dies; the Son in the Mother's Life-time levies a Fine to the Use of himself and his Heirs; the Wife lets the Land for twenty-one Years, not reserving the antient Rent, and dies, the Son has Issue a Daughter, and he devises the Land; this is a good Lease to Bar the Devisee of the Son, and all Persons; and it is no Alienation within the Statute of 11 H. 7. Cro. Jac. 689. Bridgm. 27.

If Tenant in Tail reserves a lesser Rent than the antient Rent, and after his Death a greater Rent than the antient Rent was; this will not be a good Lease. 5 Co. 6.

A Lease for the Lives of others is within the Statute of 32 H. 8. for Leases made by Tenant in Tail, as well as within 13 Eliz. 6 Co. 37.

If a Gift be made to a Man and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband, and they have Issue A. the Husband dies, A. in the Life-time of the Mother levies a Fine, with Proclamations to B. in Fee; the Wife living, the Son made a Lease for three Lives: This Lease is not good although she is Tenant in Tail, yet the Fine levied is a Bar to the Issue in Tail. 9 Co. 140.

A Lease made by Tenant in Tail from Michaelmas next for twenty Years, or for ten Years, and after for eleven Years, is good. Dyer 246.

Leases for Years by Tenant in Tail, warranted by the 32 H. 8. or by Husband and Wife of the Lands of the Wife, must not be of Copyhold Land; for it must be of such Land as is grantable by Deed only. Cro. Eliz. 30, 31.

If Tenant in Tail and his Son join in the Grant of the next Avoidance; this will be void as to the Son. Hob. 45.

Two Coparceners in Tail, the Husband of the one being Tenant by the Curtesy joined in a Lease, rendering Rent to one of them and their Heirs; this is not a good Lease by 32 H. 8. of Estate-tail, for the Rent will not go to the Issue. Latch 45.

Tenant

Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for twenty Years, to begin at Michaelmas. Qu. If good within 32 H. 8. Dyer 2, 46.

If a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease within the Statute of 32 H. 8. and after dies without Issue, this Lease being derived out of the Estate-tail is determined also. Cessante statu primitivo cessat derivativus. 8 Co. 34.

And if he makes a Lease for 100 Years, without any Rent reserved; this as to the Issue in Tail is void; but if it be rendring Rent, and he has Issue and dies, in this Case it is only voidable by the Issue at his Pleasure; and therefore if the Issue accepts the Rent after the Tenant in Tail's Death, by this Means the Lease is affirmed, and becomes good. But be it made how it will within the Statute, &c. it shall not bind him that comes in of a Remainder over, nor the Donor; and therefore if he makes a Lease within the Statute, and dies without Issue, so that the Land remains to another, or reverts to the Donor; in these Cases neither he in Remainder, nor the Donor, shall be bound by it, but as to them it will be void. And yet by a common Recovery the Tenant in Tail may take Leases of, or lay Charges upon the Land, to bind the Donor and him in Remainder also; but otherwise it is of a Fine, for if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years by Fine, this will not bar the Donor nor him in Remainder in any Case where he is a Stranger. And yet if the Remainder be in the Tenant in Tail himself, and he makes a Lease for Years by Deed, according to the Statute, or by Fine; this Lease will be good, and bind his own Remainder. Plow. 436. 7 Co. 7, 8, 54. Dyer 7, 8.

If one has an Inheritance of Rent-Corn, as Tenant in Tail, it is said, it is an Hereditament, and may descend or escheat, a Wife may be endowed of it; and therefore that a Rent may be reserved out of such a Lease: And so it was there said, it may be done upon a Lease of a Rent. Vide Owen 32. Qu.

If one grants or charges that which is not his to grant or charge, and that wherein he has no Interest or Propriety, it being in the Grantee, or in a Stranger; this Grant will be void. By one who has no Interest or Property.

And therefore if a Man grants a Rent-charge out of the Manor of Dale, or grant a Reversion of Land, and in Truth the Grantor hath nothing in the Manor of Dale, or in the Land; in this Case the Grant is void.

And although the Grantor do after purchase this Manor or Land, yet this will not make the Grant good.

And yet where it is by Fine or Indenture, there in some Cases it may be good by way of Estoppel.

And where the Grantor in such a Case as this shall recite the Land to be his own, yet this will not amend the Case; as if a Man recites that he has a Rent of 10*l.* a Year out of such Land, and grants 5*l.* Parcel of it; in this Case if there be no such Rent, the Grant will be void. Perk. §. 65. Dyer 12, 33.

If the Heir Apparent of the Disfeisee disfeises the Disfeisor, and grants a Rent-charge, and then the Disfeisee dies, the Grantor shall hold it discharged, for a new Right of Entry descends to him. So if the Father disfeises the Grandfather, and grants a Rent-charge, and dies, the Entry of the Grandfather is taken away; and if the Grandfather dies, the Son is remitted, and shall avoid the Charge. Hugh's Abr. 1029, 1030.

If a Man grants Common or Rent, and at that Time a Stranger takes the Rent, or uses the Common, yet the Grant is good. And if a Lease for Years be made to me of Land, I may grant it away before my Entry into the Land. Perk. §. 92, 98. Co. Lit. 46.

One that has nothing in Land makes a Lease for Years by Indenture, he is estopped to say he had nothing in it. But a Jury is not concluded in it, but they may say the Truth. But regularly a Man cannot grant or charge that which he hath not; and although he after require it, yet the Grant is not good unless there be an Estoppel. Perk. c. 1.

If one makes a Lease for Life, and the Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, and after purchases the Reversion, and dies within the Term; yet the Lease for Years is determined, and the Heir in Reversion may oust him, and avoid it: But if one will make a Lease for Years where he has nothing, and after purchases the Land, and the Lessor dies, if it be by Deed indented, the Heir is estopped and cannot avoid it. Hetley 91.

If one makes a Lease for Life, and after makes a Feoffment in Fee, and a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and the Attorney ousts the Lessee for Life, and makes Livery accordingly; this is a good Feoffment, but the Lessee for Life may re-enter; yet the Reversion shall remain in the Feoffee. Moor, Case 226.

If a Feoffment be made to J. S. and the Wife he shall after marry, and their Heirs, it gives nothing to the Wife. But a Covenant to stand seised to such an Use is good, and a Fine levied to the Use of the Conusor, and the Wife that he shall after marry, is good. Moor, Case 240.

If

If one makes a Feoffment of another's Land, (which is Disseisin) it is good against all Persons but the Disfeisee. Perk §. 222.

If four join in a Feoffment of Land, and three of them have nothing in the Land, it shall be taken to be the Feoffment of the fourth that hath all the Estate, and be a good Feoffment. Bro. Feoffment 4. Perk §. 222.

And this is generally true in such like Cases as these, that one that has neither Right to, nor a Possession of Land, may not give, grant or charge it; nor can a Man lay Charge upon that Land to which a Man has only a Right, as before-mentioned.

And yet one may grant a Rent or Common that has Right to, although he for the present have not Possession of it. Perk §. 98.

By one that has a future Interest and more than a Right.

A. makes a Lease for Life of Land, and after covenants to levy a Fine of it to the Use of J. S. for forty Years, to begin after the Death of the Lessee for Life; after the Lessor disseiseth the Lessee for Life, J. S. that has the future Interest during the Disseisin, assigned it over; and this is good, for he has more than a Right. If a Man has a Lease for Years, to begin after a Lease for Life, although the Lessee for Life be disseised, yet the Interest of the Term continues good, and is grantable over. 1 Brownl. 224.

By one who has but a Possibility.

A. possessed of a Term of Years, devised the Profits of it to one for Life, and after to another for the Residue of the Years, and died, the first Devisee entred by the Assent of the Executors, and after he in Remainder, during the Life of the first Devisee, assigned it to a Stranger, the first Disfeisee died; it was held a void Assignment. 6 Co. 66.

By one who has granted the same before.

If a Lease be made for Life, the Remainder for Years to him which comes first to Paul's, and then grants the Term of Years to another; this A. is the first that comes to Paul's; yet this is not good, neither shall the Grantee have it. Popb. 5.

By Jointenants.

A Lease is made of Land to two, Habendum to them Ad terminum vite eorum conjunctim & alterius diutius viventis ac assignatis suis, qui primus eorum decedere contingat, durante vita ejus qui superstes & non aliter; in this Case he that first dies can assign away but one Moiety, for he has no more to grant. Dyer 46. Co. Lit. 187.

By Coparceners.

If one Jointenant makes a Lease for Years, to commence after his Decease; this Lease is good although his Companion survives. Moor, Case 514.

If two Coparceners be of an Advowson, and one of them presents, and then grants the next Presentation; this is good, but it shall be intended the next which he has to grant, for his Companion will have the next Presentation.

And if one be seised in Fee of an Advowson, and he has a Wife, and he grants the third Presentation; this is good, but it shall be taken for the third he may grant, which is the fourth; for the Wife is to have the third for her Dower. Dyer 35. 15 H. 7.

Two Coparceners, the Husband of one Tenant by the Curtesy joins in a Lease, rendring Rent to one of them, and to the Tenant by the Curtesy; this is no good Lease within 32 H. 8. Latch 45.

By one outlawed.

A Termor being outlawed of Felony, granted his Term and Interest to J. S. who is put out by J. D. and after the Outlawry is reversed; adjudged that J. S. shall by Action of Trespass recover for the Profits taken between the Outlawry and the Reversal of it. Cro. Car. 270.

By a Lessee.

If Lessee for Years of a Term from the King be ousted by a Stranger, yet he may assign his Term; for in case of the King he cannot be out of Possession, as where the Reversion is in a common Person. Cro. Car. 275.

By Tenant in Remainder or Reversion.

If a Man makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. J. S. has Issue a Son which sells this Remainder, and after J. S. dies, this Son being his Heir, yet avoids his own Sale. Popb. 6.

Lessee for Years makes a Lease at Will, the Lessee at Will makes a Lease for Years, and then he in Remainder grants over his Land; this is good although the Deed of the Grant of the Interest be not upon the Land, for he is not out of Possession, but at Will. Latch 75.

If one that has a Reversion upon Estate for Life, and he grants a Rent issuing out of this Land; in this Case, and by this the Grant will be good, and the Charge shall fasten upon the Land after the Estate of the Tenant for Life is ended. Perk §. 65, 72, 86, 98. Co. Lit. 46.

If a Bargain and Sale is made of Lands for Years in Possession, and the Bargainee never enters; and after reciting this Lease he makes a Grant of the Reversion; this is a good Conveyance. Cro. Jac. 604.

If one has a Term of Years in his Land, and by his Will devises it to J. S. for his Life, and after to me for the Residue of the Years, or devise it to J. S. if he lives so long as the Term shall last, and if he dies before the Term ends, the Remainder to me: In these Cases so long as J. S. lives, I may not grant this Possibility: So if a Lease be made to me and and my Wife, the Remainder to the Survivor of us. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 51.

Dyer 244.

If one makes a Lease to A. for twenty Years, and A. makes a Lease of the Land to B. for two Years, rendring Rent, and after A. makes a Lease for the rest of his Time to L. by Deed; this Lease, if the Lessee for two Years do attorn, is a good Grant of the Rent and the Reversion. And so it is also without Attornment, if there be any Consideration given for it, and then it will be also a good Lease for all the rest of the Term after the two Years. Plow. 432. Dyer 112.

If the Lessor enters upon his Lessee for Life, and makes a Feoffment, and the Lessee re-enters, the Reversion shall pass; and if the Lessor be a Tenant in Tail. Qu. If this be a Discontinuance. Moor 91.

Tenant in Tail, Remainder over, he in Remainder granted the Land, Et totum statum, to a Stranger during the Life of the Tenant in Tail, the Remainder over; in this Case the Grant of the Land is void, but good for all his Estate, and then the Remainder over is void. Moor 466.

In some Cases such Persons as are not seised in Fee-simple, &c. nor able to derive such Estates for Life or Years out of their own Estates, may lawfully notwithstanding make such Leases for Life, &c. And this may be by a special Act of Parliament enabling them so to do. And so the Tenant in Tail is enabled to make a Lease for three Lives or twenty-one Years. And sometimes it is by a special Power or Authority given or reserved by and to the Party himself that had the Fee-simple in him, or given to some other to do it in his Name. And Leases thus made may be good. By Persons having a special Power or Proviso.

And therefore where an Act of Parliament enables a Tenant in Tail, or a Tenant for Life to make Leases for three Lives, or twenty-one Years, Leases so made in Pursuance of that Authority are good.

And if a Man be seised of Land in Fee, and conveys it to the Use of himself for Life, or in Tail, with divers Remainders over, with a Proviso that it shall be lawful for him, or any such Tenant in Tail, to make Leases for twenty-one Years; in this Case he or they may make such Leases, and they will be good.

But in both these Cases Care must be had that the Authority be strictly pursued (that is) that the Leases be made according to the Power and Direction given by the Statute or Proviso; for if it differ and vary ever so little from the Sense and Meaning of the same, the Lease will not be good. And therefore in the Case before, of a Power to make a Lease for twenty-one Years, and the Party makes more Leases for twenty-one Years at one Time than one, they are all void but the first, because it is against the Intent of the Parties, though it be not against the Words. And so if the Power be to make Leases for three Lives, he may not by this make a Lease for ninety-nine Years, if three Lives live so long. But if the Power be thus: Provided, &c. that he make any Lease in Possession or Reversion, so as it doth not exceed the Number of three Lives, or twenty-one Years; in this Case a Lease may be made for ninety-nine Years, if three Lives so long live. But where Uses are raised by way of Covenant, and in the Deed there is a Proviso, that the Covenantor for divers good Considerations may make Leases for Years; in this Case the Power is void, and no Lease can be made upon it, neither will any Averment help in this Case. And if a Man have a Letter of Attorney, or other Authority from another to make Leases for him, and do make them accordingly, such Leases are good. But herein Care must be had of three Things: 1. That the Authority be good. 2. That the Deputy or Attorney pursues it strictly. 3. That he does all that he does in the Name of him that gives him the Power, and not in his own Name. 5 Co. 5. Dyer 357. 6 Co. 2. 8 Co. 70. Co. 175. 9 Co. 76.

But if a Power to make Leases be raised upon a Covenant to stand seised without any Transmutation of Possession, this is void in Law, and not to be helped in Equity. Cary 30. Cro. Jac. 180, 181. Leon. 35. Cro. Car. 5.

If Power be given by Parliament to make Leases, yielding the true and ancient Rent of the Land so letten; in this Case if a Lease has been made of many Lands together, whereof some were not demised before, this Lease will be void. Moor 197.

A. being seised of Land in Fee makes a Lease for Life, and after levies a Fine of all his Land, with an Indenture to lead the Uses thereof, i. e. to the Use of J. S. for fifteen Years, and after to the Use of himself for Life, with a Power therein by Proviso to himself to make Leases for twenty-one Years or three Lives in Possession; by this he may make Leases for twenty-one Years during the fifteen Years, and presently in Possession, but not in Reversion. 2 Bulst. 42. Erington v. Erington.

If a Man has Power to make Leases for twenty-one Years, rendring the ancient Rent, he may not by this Power make Leases in Reversion. Cro. Car. 5. Cro. Jac. 319. Leon. 35.

L. Tenant in Fee of a Manor levies a Fine to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of J. his eldest Son in Tail, &c. with Power for him at any Time to make Leases for twenty-one Years or three Lives, rendring the ancient Rent, &c. and he leases two Parts for twenty-one Years to B. and before this Lease expires he makes another Lease to B. for twenty-one Years, to begin after the Determination of the first Lease; and as to the third Part, he made a Lease of it for twenty-one Years after the Death of one C. (who in Truth had not any Estate in the Land) and died; the first Lease expired, and J. the Son entred and leased to the Plaintiff; the Defendant claimed under B. the Lessee; and it was adjudged for the Plaintiff; for by such a Power he may not make a Lease to begin at a Day to come, but it must be a Lease in Possession, and not in Interest, to commence in futuro, nor in Reversion after another Estate ended. Yelv. 222.

An Estate is created by Parliament in a Manor which consists of free Rents, Copyholds and other casual Profits, and thereby it is enacted, That all Acts which they that are seised by Force of the said Tail shall do to the Prejudice of their Issue, &c. if not Jointures, &c. shall be void; the Donee makes a Lease of the whole Manor, and an Acre of Waste, rendring Rent at two Days, where the ancient Rent was reserved at four Days: In this Case the Lease is void, (1) In respect of the Acre of Waste not leased before, for this is not the ancient Rent. (2) For that it is reserved at two, which anciently was at four Days. And the Reservation of Silver, where the old Rent was in Gold, had not been good.

So, had Part of the Farm been leased for Part of the Rent.

So, where two Farms be in one Demise for the Rent of both.

But the rendring of eight Bushels for a Quarter of Corn, is good, for this is the same Thing.

And although the Rent be to be apportioned, yet this will not make the Lease good.

And yet a Parcener may lease her Moiety, reserving Rent for so much, and it is good.

5 Co. 3.

If it be enacted by Parliament, That a Woman shall have such Land for her Widowhood, provided that it shall be lawful for him that hath the Fee to make Leases for twenty-one Years, rendring the ancient Rent; he may not by this make a Lease for twenty-one Years to begin at a Day to come, nor one Lease in Reversion after another. Leon. 35.

The Reversioner upon an Estate for Life levies a Fine to his own Use till the Marriage of his Son, and then to the Use of himself for Life, with Power to make Leases, so they exceed not twenty-one Years or three Lives, reserving the ancient Rent, the Remainder to his Son in Fee; the Son marries, the Father leases for ninety-nine Years, if two live so long, reserving Rent to him and his Heirs; this is a good Lease. 8 Co. 69. For his Power in the Beginning is absolutely limited, that it exceed not three Lives.

There is a Difference between a general and absolute Power and Authority as Owner of the Land, for he that has this Power may make Leases for Life or Years by Attorney; and a particular Power and Authority by him that has but a particular Estate, for he may not do so; as where A. is Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Tail, and A. has Power to make Leases, &c. 2 H. 4. 4. 1 H. 6. 6. 9 H. 7. 14.

If one makes a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself for Life, the Remainder to B. in Fee, with Power to make Leases, &c. reserving the ancient Rent, he dies, it seems he in Remainder shall have the Rent. Lane 110.

And in these Cases where a Statute makes such Leases void, it shall be taken as against the Lessor, and not as against the Issue. 5 Co. 3.

If one limits an Estate by Indenture to the Use of himself for Life, with Power to make Leases for Life or Years, or to such Person or Persons as he shall name by his last Will of any Estate or Estates, the Remainder to A. in Tail, with divers Remainders over; these Remainders do not vest till the Contingencies happen. 10 Co. 85.

One being Lessee for ninety-nine Years of Land devises his Term to his Wife for Life, with Power to make such Estates in as ample Manner as he himself might have done during her Life, the Remainder in Tail to his Daughter, and died; the Wife proved the Will, accepted of the Bargain, and after made a Lease for ninety-nine Years of the Land, and died. Qu. If by this the Wife may make any Estate to endure after her own Life. Style 315, 275.

If a Statute enables a Man to make Leases for twenty-one Years, or less, of Land usually demised for twenty-one Years, or less, rendring the ancient Rent; he leases for twenty-one Years, and after during this Term leases to another for twenty-one Years, to begin at the End of the first Lease. Qu. If good. 3 Leon. Case 110, 184.

One seised of Land makes a Lease for Life, and after levies a Fine of all his Land to the Use of D. for fifteen Years, and after to the Use of himself for Life, with a Power to him to make Leases for three Lives or twenty-one Years in Possession, by this the Term of fifteen Years

Years is presently subject to the Power to make Leases for Years, and the first Lessee must have the Rent reserved during the Term of fifteen Years limited to him. Hughes's Abr. 1231.

A. Tenant for Life of the Manor of D. in Lease for Years levies a Fine to the Use of herself for Life, and after to the Use of her eldest Son in Tail, reserving Power to her at any Time to make Leases for twenty-one Years, the former Lease in Being, she makes a Lease for twenty-one Years to J. S. to begin at the Determination of the former Lease; in this Case the second Lease is void, for it must be Leases in Possession, and not in Reversion. Cro. Jac. 318.

If a Power be given to make Leases for twenty-one Years, and there be a Lease in Being, and he makes another Lease that has this Power; this is good although it be to begin at a Day to come. Leon. Case 44.

And although it be to begin after the Expiration of the former Lease. Ibid. Popb. 9. 2 Leon. Case 183.

One levies a Fine to the Use of himself for Life, the Remainder in Tail, &c. with Power reserved to the Conusor to make Leases for eighty Years in Possession or Reversion, if A. B. and C. do so long live, rendering the ancient Rent; afterwards he grants the Reversion for eighty Years, reserving the ancient Rent: In this Case he does less than he has Power to do, for this Grant of the Reversion expires with the particular Estates for Life: But if he makes a Lease to begin after the Death of the Tenants for Life, contra. Godb. Case 281.

Of the Name and Description of the Person contracting, as the Grantor, Donor, &c.

THE fourth Thing (as Lord Coke observes) necessarily incident to a Deed, is a sufficient Name of the Person contracting, which will be the Subject of this Section. <sup>4. By a sufficient Name.</sup>

As to the Naming and Description of the Parties and Persons in Deeds, these Things are necessary to be known:

First, The Names of the Parties to Deeds serve only to distinguish Persons, and to make the Person intended certain; and therefore it is safe to describe the Person intended by his true and proper Names of Baptism and Surname; and if it be a Corporation, by the true Name whereby it was made; yet Mistakes in this, unless they be very gross, will not hurt, Nihil facit error nominis cum de corpore constat. Bulst. 21, 22. 2 Bulst. 302, 303. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 36.

But if the Name of Baptism or Surname be mistaken, as John for Thomas, or Adderley for Adderby, this is dangerous. Moor 407, 897.

Secondly, There are many Descriptions of Grantors and Grantees; as (1) proper Names of Baptism and Surnames, and the Names of Corporations, or Bodies Politick or Corporate. (2) Names of Dignities, Office, and the like. And these (of both Sorts) will admit a Description made good by Reputation. And so I and will pass to one, by the Name of a Son, who is a Bastard; so to one by the Name of a Wife, who is not a Wife, if they be reputed or known by that Name. Hob. 32.

If W. by the Name of J. (without any Surname) or by the Name of S. without any Christian Name, gives or takes by Deed, the Deed is void. 2 Bulst. 70. Perk. §. 39.

Thirdly, There must be such a Person in esse at the Time of the Deed made as is named, and he must be able to give and capable to receive that which is given or granted by the Deed. Plowd. 345. Co. Lit. 2, 3. Perk. §. 43, 52.

And therefore if an Annuity be granted to the right Heirs of J. S. he being then living, this is void; for there is none such, nor can be whilst he lives. Perk. §. 52.

So primogenit. proli of A. and B. and they have no Issue yet born. Cro. Car. 22.

Fourthly, If a Man gets another Name by common Esteem than his right Name, and he is known by his other Name, his Deed made by this other Name may be good. 6 Co. 36. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 41.

Fifthly, The Mistake is less dangerous where any other Part of the Deed, or some other Addition, shall make the Person intended certain. 6 Co. 36. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 40.

Sixthly, The Law favours not Advantages of Misnaming, otherwise than as the strict Rules of Law require. 6 Co. 64.

If A. S. be bound by a Deed by the Name of W. S. this Deed will be good; and if he be sued upon it by the Name of W. S. alias dict. A. S. he shall avoid it; for if he plead Non est factum, the Jury shall find it specially, the Plaintiff will not recover. But if the Action Action be brought against him by the Name of W. S. as he is called in the Obligation, the Plaintiff will recover; and if he plead Non est factum, it will be found against him. Dyer 280. Perk. §. 185, 186.

And therefore if John at Style makes a Deed by the Name of William at Style, yet this Deed may be good. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 39, 41.

A Man being a Patentee of the King's, may be bound by Covenant although he do not covenant by Name and in express Terms. Cro. Jac. 240.

In Moor's Rep. Case 1260. it is said by all the Justices, that they had divers Times resolved, that none can make a Deed by a contrary Name of Baptism, nor may be known by two Names of Baptism. Vide Co. Lit. 3. Dyer 119. 27 E. 3. 85. 9 E. 4. 43.

If a Man be baptized by one Name, and after confirmed by another Name, some have said he may make a Deed by either of these Names. Co. Lit. 3. 6 Co. 36.

So of a Deed of Grant to one by either of these Names. Co. Lit. 3.

But a Man grants a Rent-charge or other Thing by a contrary Name of Baptism of the Grantor or Grantee, the Grant is void. Moor, Case 215. Perk. §. 42.

Abbot. A Grant of Annuity by an Abbot, by the Name of the Foundation, without the Name of Baptism, there being then no other Abbot of that Name in England, was good. Perk. §. 36.

Duke, Marquis, Earl, Bishop. If a Duke, Marquis, Earl or Bishop, grant by his Name of Honour and Dignity, without any, or by a false Name of Baptism; as where the Duke of Suffolk, by this Name without Christian or Surname, or more Words, or by the Name of William Duke of Suffolk, makes a Deed; this is good, for there is but one of that Name in the Kingdom: So of a Bishop. Fitz. Grant 67. Perk. §. 42. As to the Bishop of Worcester. Perk. §. 36, 45.

If the Name of the Father be W. and the Name of the Son W. also, and either of them makes a Deed by the Name of W. without any Addition or Distinction, this is good enough. So of a Deed to them.

And if a Deed be made by the Father without any Distinction of Elder, &c. it shall be good, and taken to be the Deed of the Father. Perk. §. 37.

And so it seems it will be for the Deed of the Son, it being made good by Proof to be his Deed. Perk. §. 37.

Where John at Style recites by his Deed that his Name is so, and then after grants by the Name of Thomas at Style, this is good. Perk. §. 40.

So where Alice at Style recites by her Deed, that she is a Feme Covert, and in Truth she is Sole. Perk. §. 40.

So a Deed of Grant to W. Wife of W. S. where she is Sole, is good.

A Grant by Richard, Abbot of S. where his Name was Thomas, was good; so there were then no other of that Name in England. Perk. §. 42.

If one give me a House by Word, and make a Writing of the Gift, either by a contrary Name of Baptism of him or me; this Gift by Word is good, but by Deed is void. Perk. §. 42.

But if an ordinary Man grants by his Surname only, without any Name of Baptism, or by his Name of Baptism without a Surname, there regularly the Deed will be void for Incertainty, unless there be something in the Deed to help to make it certain, or unless there be something Ex post facto to make it certain, as by the making of Livery, &c. which may supply it. And yet if a Man have six Sons, and he by Name, and his six Sons not naming them, makes a Deed of Grant; this may perhaps be good. 2 Bull. 70. Perk. §. 38, 39, 54, 55, 56. 8 Co. 155.

But for such Things as pass by Livery, as Land, &c. although the Deed of Feoffment be made of it by a contrary Name of Baptism of the Feoffor or Feoffee, yet if Livery of Seisin be made duly upon it by and to the right Persons, it is good, and will take its Effect by the Livery of Seisin. Perk. §. 42.

A Corporation called Minister Dei pauperis domus de Donnington, made a Lease by the Name of John Litherland, Minister of the Almshouse of God of Donnington beside Newbury in the County of Berks: And it was held good. Moor's Rep. Case 1194.

If a Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty, make a Deed by the Name of their Corporation, without any Addition of Christian or Surname; this may be good. Perk. §. 8, 42.

The Dean and Canons of the King's free Chapel of his Castle of Windsor, grant by the Name of the Dean and Canons of the King's Majesty's free Chapel of the Castle of Windsor in the County of Berks; and it is good. Moor, Case 195.

If a Corporation of Decanus & Capitulum Ecclesie Cathedral. Sancte & Individ. Trinit. Carliel, make a Deed by the Name of Decanus Ecclesie Cathed. Sancte Trin. in Carliel ac totum Capitulum Ecclesie predictae; this is good. 10 Co. 106. Dyer 278.

The

The Master and Chaplains of the Hospital of the late King H. 7. of the Savoy, made a Grant by the Name of William Ugle, Master of the Hospital of the King H. 7. called the Savoy, and the Chaplains of it, and it was not good. Moor, Case 367.

So if a Place and Persons be incorporate by the Name of the Dean of the King's free Chapel of St. George the Martyr, within the Castle of Windsor, and it makes a Deed by the Name of the Dean and Canons of the King and Queen's free Chapel of St. George, within the Castle of Windsor; it is good. 10 Co. 124.

Sayn John for Saynt John, is not good. Andersf. 211.

The Dean and Chapter Ecclesiæ Cathedralis Christi de Oxon, by the Name of the Dean and Chapter Ecclesiæ Cathedralis Christi in Academia de Oxon, made a Lease; and good. Moor, Case 493.

So is a Corporation by the Name of Gardiani & Scholarium domus sive Collegii Scholarium de Merton in Universitate Oxoniæ, and it makes a Deed per nomen Custodis domus sive Collegii de Merton in Oxonia & Scholar' ejusdem domus; this is not good. 10 Co. 125. Moor, Case 415.

Elizabeth and Isabel are several Names. Andersf. 212.

So is Margaret, Marget and Margery; so is Gelyon and Julian, Agnes and Anne, Cozen and Cousin. Andersf. 212.

But if the Mistake or Omission be in the Substance of the Name of a Corporation, then the Deed may be void: As where the Corporation is incorporate by the Name of Præpositi & Collegii Regalis, Collegii beatæ Mariæ de Eaton juxta Windsor, make a Deed by the Name of Præpositi & Sociorum Collegii Regalis de Eaton, &c. leaving out Collegii beatæ Mariæ; this is not good. 10 Co. 106.

But the Mis-naming of Corporations to avoid their own Leases and Grants is not to be suffered. Jenk. Cent. 6. c. 10.

If the greater Part of a Corporation agree to the Deed regularly in their Common Council, and fix their common Seal to it, it is good. 14 H. 8. 27. 21 E. 4. 27. 15 E. 4. 2. 14 H. 6. 17. Davis's Rep. 48.

The Dean and Chapter of the College of Eaton by that Name made a Lease, being incorporated by the Name of the Dean and Chapter of the College of St. Mary of Eaton; and it was held a good Lease. Andersf. Case 47. and p. 238.

If a Lease be made by the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of Peterborough, it being incorporated by the Name of, &c. Cathedral Church Sancti Peterburgensis, it is not good. Andersf. Case 47.

If the Dean and Chapter of Christ-Church in Oxford, incorporated by the Name of the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of Christ, &c. Oxford, of the Foundation of King H. 8. grant by the Name of the Dean and Chapter Ecclesiæ Cathedralis Christi in Academia Oxon. ex fundatione Reg. H. 3. the Deed will be good, notwithstanding this little Mistake. Poph. 57. Moor, Case 493. See Andersf. Case 231.

A Bond made by the Name of Edmond, where his Name is Edward, is not good. Godb. Case 485. Owen 84. Dyer 279. 21 H. 7. 8. 33 H. 6. 19.

If a Deed be made by or to Johane B. by the Name of Jane B. or to Jane by the Name of Johane; it is good, for these two are one Name. 1 Leon. Case 204.

If Eleanor seals a Deed by the Name of Ellen, the Deed is not good, and she may plead Non est factum to it. Moor, Case 1260. Q.

The Queen made a Lease for Years of Land to the Men of Chesterfield, rendring Rent, by the Name of the Aldermen of Chesterfield, and they by this Name grant all their Interest to Clark; this Grant from the Queen was good, but the Grant by them was void. 1 Cro. 35.

A Hall in Oxford was founded by the Name of the Hall of the Scholars of the Queen in Oxford; if it be granted by the Name of the Provost, Fellows and Scholars of the College of the Queen in the University of Oxford, or by the Name of the Provost, Fellows and Scholars of the Hall or College of the Queen in the University of Oxford; the Grant would be good. 11 Co. 20, 22.

If a Bastard has got a Name by Reputation in the Place where he lives, or another Man has got another Name by common Esteem than his right Name, or is usually called by another Name than his true Name in the Place where he lives; in these Cases a Grant by these Names is good. 6 Co. 63. Perk. §. 41.

Names or Designations that have an equivocal Amphibologie in them; as for Example, Puer, for Male or Female; if not cleared to the contrary, will prima facie be taken for a Son. Dyer 337. & sic de similibus.

The Law does not favour Advantages of Misnomer in Conveyances; for if the Grantor or Grantee are usually called by a wrong Name, which they are commonly known by, it will will not hurt the Deed, provided it contains sufficient Certainty to describe the Person or Thing. Nomen dicitur a noscendo, quia notitiam facit: Et nihil facit error nominis cum de corpore constat; for the Law respects much the Intent of the Parties, and as it may be collected from the several Parts of the Deeds, the Judges give Judgment. Nibil tam conveniens naturali æquitati, quam voluntatem Domini volentis rem suam in alium transferre ratam habere.

And the Judges expound Deeds according to their Intent and vulgar Intelligence, and not according to the very Definition and strict Propriety of Words.

And therefore to make a Thing in esse pass by a Name, it is sufficient to call it by the Name it has been for some considerable Time called and known by in the Neighbourhood, as Exeter House, &c. and a Thing may get a new Name in two or three Years, by such a vulgar and common Reputation.

So Lands may pass by the Name of a Manor, or a Manor by the Name of Lands, especially where the Thing was originally what it is now called. De nomine proprio non est curandum dum in substantia non erretur. Et nomina mutabilia sunt, res autem immobiles. 6 Co. 63.

If the Variance between the Deed and the true Name of the Corporation be material or essential, either by Omission, Alteration or Addition; whether made to or by a Corporation, the Deed may be avoided.

But if the Variance be only literal or verbal, in literis & syllabis (& non re & sensu) so that the Sense by the express Words remains, or by necessary Implication, and the Description of it, imports a sufficient and certain Demonstration of the true Name of the Corporation, according to the Foundation, such nice and curious Misnomers shall not avoid the Deed. 10 Co. 103. 11 Co. 20.

Where a Corporation has divers Names, (as some of the antient Corporations have) it may give or take by either of its Names. 10 Co. 103.

If a Person or Corporation (Sole or Aggregate) be so described that he or it may be certainly distinguished from other Persons or Corporations; in these Cases the Omission, or in any Case the Misprision of the Name of Baptism, or of any Thing in the Name of the Corporation, will not hurt the Deed. Nomen quasi rei notamen. Et nomina sunt nota rerum. Nihil facit error nominis cum de Corpore constat. 11 Co. 20. Dy. 278. Plow. 537.

So that the Sum of all this is, That a Person may grant by the Name whereby he is called or known.

And where a Duke, Marquis, Earl or Bishop, gives or grants by his Name of Honour or Dignity, without any Name, or with a false Name of Baptism: As the Duke of Suffolk, by the Name of the Duke of Suffolk, without any more Words; or by the Name of William Duke of Suffolk, where his Name is John, or the Bishop of Norwich grants in like Manner; these are good Grants, because there is but one such Duke, or one such Bishop, in the Kingdom.

So if a Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty, grant by the Name of their Corporation, without any Addition of Christian or Surname, it is good; especially if the true Name appears in some other Part of the Deed; as where John at Stile recited by his Deed, that his Name is John at Stile, and by the same Deed grants by the Name of Thomas at Stile. Or Alice at Stile, reciting by her Deed that she is a Feme Covert, when in Truth she is Sole. Fitz. Grant 67. Perk. §. 40, 41, 38, 42. 3 H. 6. 26.

But if an ordinary Man grants by his Surname only, without any Name of Baptism; or by his Name of Baptism, without any Surname at all: In these and such like Cases, for the most part, the Deed will be void for Incertainty, unless there be some other Matter in the Deed to help it, or some Matter done ex post facto, to supply it; for in some Cases where the Thing granted lies in Livery, such a Mistake or Incertainty in the Grant may be helped, by the Livery of Seisin upon the Deed afterwards. And so it is in the Names of Corporations; for if the Variance and Mistake, by Omission or Alteration, be only in some small Matter, so as it is literal and verbal only, and the Sense still remains either expressly or by necessary Implication, and the Description be such as imports a sufficient and certain Demonstration of the true Name of the Corporation, according to the Foundation thereof, it is sufficient, and the Grant or Gift will not be hurt by it. But if the Mistake or Omission be in the Substance or Essence of the Name, the Deed may be spoiled by it. 6 Co. 65. 10 Co. 122. 11 Co. 19. Dy. 120.

Therefore the safest Way is to name the Grantor and Grantee by their Names of Baptism and Surname. Co. Lit. 3.

S E C T. VI.

To whom Grants, Contracts, &c. may be made.

5. A Person able to contract with.

THE Person to whom a Contract or Grant, &c. is made must be capable to receive and take the Thing granted, &c.

All Persons Male or Female, Ecclesiastical or Temporal, and all Bodies Natural or Politick, are capable to take by Grant, or to be contracted with, unless disabled by their being Non compos mentis, &c. as before, as to the Disabilities to grant, &c.

The King, for the Greatness of his Person, is disabled to take by Deed in pais; and therefore if a Feoffment be made to him there, and Livery of Seisin be made upon it, this will be void; but he is to take by Matter of Record, which is of a higher Nature than a Deed. Fitz. Fait and Feoffment 21.

Leases made to him by Colleges, Deans and Chapters, or any other having a Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Living, against the Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10. are restrained by the same Act, as well as Leases made to common Persons. 5 Co. 14.

A Lease is made to Husband and Wife for their Lives, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Survivor; this is a good Remainder notwithstanding the Incertainty. Godb. Case 167.

If a Lease be made to the Husband, Habendum to the Wife, the Habendum to her is void, for she is a Stranger to the Premises of the Deed. 3 Leon. 32, 33, 34.

If one demises his Term to J. S. and makes his Wife Executrix, and dies, she enters, and then takes another Husband, and they take a Lease from the Lessor, and then the Devisée enters, and grants all his Estate to the Husband and Wife; this shall be good, and shall enure as an Assent in the Executor, and so a good Grant. Owen 56. 3 Leon. 24.

Land was demised to Husband and Wife for their Lives, the Remainder to the Survivor of them for Years, the Husband granted over the Term of Years; and died: The Wife and not the Grantee shall have the Term of Years, for there is nothing in the one or the other to grant till there be a Survivor: And so it is if the Wife dies after the Grant, and the Husband survives, yet he shall have the Term against his own Grant. Poph. 5.

If Land is given to a Man and such a Woman as shall be his Wife, the Man takes the Whole.

But if a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself and his Wife that shall be, and afterwards he takes a Wife, his Wife shall take jointly with him, although all at first vests in the Husband. 1 Co. 101.

If a Feoffment in Fee was made before the Stat. of 27 H. 8. of Uses, to the Use of a Man and Woman and their Heirs, and they intermarry, and then the Statute was made; they held by Moieties, for if he aliens, it is good for a Moiety. Plow. 58. But if a Reversion be granted to Husband and Wife, and before Attornment they intermarry, and then Attornment is good, they shall not have any Moieties; as where a Feoffment in Fee is made to a Man and Woman, with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, they intermarry, and then Livery is made secundum formam Chartæ, they shall have no Moieties. Plow. 483.

If a Reversion be granted to a Man and a Woman, and afterwards they intermarry, and the Tenant attorns; they shall not take by Moieties, but by Entireties. 2 Co. 68.

If after the Stat. 27 H. 8. a Man makes a Feoffment to the Use of his Wife, and if she dies living the Husband, to the Use of the Husband and such Wife as he should after marry, for Life for her Jointure; the second Wife shall take jointly with her Husband, or by way of Remainder after his Death. But if it be a Remainder of Land in Possession fallen, then she takes nothing. And a Remainder to a Woman for Life after the Death of her Husband, is not a Jointure within the Stat. of 11 H. 7. and 27 H. 8. c. 10. Dyer 340.

Husband and Wife are Jointenants for 108 Years, the Husband by Deed makes a Lease for 20 Years, to commence after his Decease, and dies, this Lease is good. Moor 395.

If an Estate in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Term of Life, be made to a Feme Covert, or to her Husband and her, the Husband alone may disagree to it, and avoid it for both of them. Lit. §. 671. 1 H. 7. 10. 8 Co. 72. Dy. 51. 5 H. 7. 32.

If a Statute or Obligation be made to them two, or to her alone, during the Coverture, the Husband alone by Defeazance or Release may avoid it; and if an Obligation be made to her during the Coverture, the Husband by his Disagreement may avoid it. Co. Lit. 351. 48 E. 3. 12. 7 H. 6. 1.

To Husband and Wife.

A. in Consideration of the Marriage of his Son made a Feoffment, and took back an Estate to himself for Life, the Remainder to his Son and his Wife which should be in Tail; the Marriage took Effect, the Father levied a Fine, and bound him and his Heirs to Warranty, and died; the Son was attaint of Treason and executed; the Queen granted the Land to a Stranger in Tail, and after she restored the Wife: And it was held, that the Conveyance to the Son, and his Wife that should be, was good to make her a Purchaser. But after the Restitution of the Wife, it seems she has Right but to a Moiety of the Land. Dyer 122. Co. Lit. 187.

A Fine is levied to the Use of a Man's self, and such Wife or Wives as he shall marry, and after he marries, it is good: And it was held, that she shall take jointly with the Husband, being upon a Use; contra upon an Estate executed; so that it seems it is a good Name of Purchase. Dy. 274.

A Gift by Deed of Land to a Man and Margaret his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, her Name being Margery; the Gift is good, and the Heirs inheritable by it. 1 H. 5. 8 H. 7. Hawkford in Hawley's Case.

alone.

If a Wife dies, the Term survives to the Husband; and vice versa, unless he has disposed it away. Hob. 3.

Husband and Wife Jointenants for Life; the Husband alone accepts a new Lease, which is a Surrender, but voidable by the Wife if she survives. Moor 876.

To Wife alone, or to a Feme Sole,
&c.

The Queen may purchase and buy Land, or Goods and Chattels, as any Man may do, and her Contracts will bind her therein. But it is not so in the Case of other Women that have Husbands. Co. Lit. 3. a.

A Woman cannot take by the Gift or Grant of her Husband immediately and directly to her, but collaterally and by way of Use she may; but she may take by Purchase from others without her Husband's Assent, and if he disagrees, the Estate is devested; and if he agrees, she may waive it after his Death till she has agreed to it. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 194.

A Man may not covenant with his Wife to stand seised to her Use, but he may covenant with another so to do; or he may make a Feoffment or other Conveyance to her Use; or he may surrender a Copyhold to her Use. Co. Lit. 112. 4 Co. 29.

A Feme Covert may be a Grantee in a Deed, and any Gift or Grant made to her will be good, till the Husband disagrees to it; so that if a Rent-Charge be granted to her, and the Deed delivered to her, her Husband not being privy to it, and he dies before any Disagreement to it, it is good although this happens before any Day of Payment; but if the Husband makes a legal Disagreement to it in his Life-time, this may avoid the Deed made to her. Perk. §. 43. And he that will avoid the Grant must shew that the Husband did disagree to it. Co. Lit. 2.

If the Husband dies, the Term survives to the Wife, unless he has disposed it away. Hob. 3.

An Estate made to a Feme Covert de novo shall vest till the Husband dissent, but a new Lease to her who was Lessee before, will not vest till the Husband assents to it. Hob. 204.

If an Annuity is granted to a Woman for Life, who after marries, Arrears incur, and she dies, whereby it is determined, the Husband shall recover them. So if one grants an annual Rent out of Land wherein he has nothing, yet this is a good Annuity to charge the Person of the Grantor in a Writ of Annuity. Owen 3.

If a Feoffment be made to a Feme Sole on Condition, and she takes a Husband who does not perform the Condition, and so forfeits the Estate, the Wife is barred and bound for ever. 8 Co. 48.

And if a Feoffment be made to her, she takes nothing by it till he agrees. And if one be bound to infeoff them, and he refuses, it is a Refusal of both. Finch 44.

And if a Lease be made of two Acres for Life, the Remainder of one of them (not naming which) to a Feme Sole, and she takes a Husband, the Tenant for Life dies, and the Husband makes the Election; by this she is barred and concluded for ever, and she shall not chuse again. Perk. §. 79.

If an Estate in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, be granted or conveyed to a Feme Covert, or to her Husband and her, the Husband alone may disagree to it and avoid it for both of them. Lit. §. 671. 1 H. 7. 10. 8 Co. 72. Dyer 51. 5 H. 7. 32.

To Wife alone, or to her and a Stranger.

If Land is devested to a Feme Executrix during the Minority of A. to hold to her own Use without Account, provided she keeps A. at School: This Term will go to the Husband by the Marriage, and he may dispose of it. Hob. 285.

Lessee for Years assigns a Term to the Wife of the Lessor, and to a Stranger; the Lessor bargains and sells the Land, the Stranger dies, the Husband dies, the Wife shall have the Term. Moor 171.

If the Husband discontinues his Wife's Land, and goes beyond Sea, and the Discontinuee lets it to the Wife for Life, and gives her Livery, hereby she will be remitted, and the Husband by his Disagreement afterwards shall not prevent it. Lit. §. 677.

If a Lease be made for two Acres for Life, the Remainder of one of them (not naming which) to a Feme Sole, and she takes a Husband, the Tenant for Life dies, and the Husband makes the Election; by this she is barred and concluded for ever, and she shall not chuse again. Perk. §. 79.

A Lease for Years to an Infant rendring Rent, is not void, but voidable at the Pleasure To an Infant. of the Infant. Before the Rent-Day comes he may move it, but if he pays the Rent, and then becomes of Age before another Rent-Day, it seems he shall be charged with that Rent.

2 Co. 320.

A Dean and Chapter makes a Lease for ninety-nine Years, to begin after a Lease for fifty Years in Being, the Lease for ninety-nine Years is assigned to A. and B. Infants, who before the fifty Years ended take a new Lease from the Dean and Chapter for the same Term and Rent, and under the like Covenants, the Lease for fifty Years ends; in this Case it was agreed, that an Infant may not surrender by Deed; and that this Surrender by Acceptance of the second Lease was void. Cro. Eliz. 360.

Where one is an Infant or Feme Covert, not having Power to contract at the Time of the first Delivery of a Deed, and before the second Delivery becomes of Age, or discover, in these Cases the Deed is not made good. Cro. Car. 35.

A Lease for Years made by an Infant to try a Title, is good; and he may make a Letter of Attorney to take a Livery upon a Feoffment for him. Lane 130.

But a Deed made to an Infant, because it is presumed to be for his Advantage generally, is good, Perk. §. 47. so far that it is not void, but voidable only at his Pleasure; and therefore an Infant may be a good Grantee, Feoffee, Lessee, &c. by a Deed or Conveyance.

And yet in this Case also he is at his full Age to agree to it, and so to perfect it, or he may then disagree to it, and avoid it. Co. Lit. 2. Perk. §. 4.

Therefore if a Lease for Years be made by him, rendring Rent, it is but voidable; but if without Rent, it is at his Election to make it good or not, as he sees it to be for his Advantage or not. Brownl. 120. Co. Lit. 2. 2 Bulst. 69. Cro. Jac. 310.

If a Feoffment be made to an Infant, and he makes a Letter of Attorney to take Livery; this it seems is a good Warrant. Perk. §. 14.

If a Lease in Being be assigned to an Infant, and he takes a new Lease, this will not be a Surrender in Law of the first Lease. Cro. Eliz. 360. Cro. Jac. 310. 2 Bulst. 69.

An Office whereof he is capable may be granted to an Infant, as to one of full Age.

Or if it be another Office, so it be granted to him, to be exercised by him, or by his sufficient Deputy, it may be good. Cro. Eliz. 203, 400. Marsh 41, 42, 43.

An Infant under one and twenty Years of Age may bind himself Apprentice, and make a Deed of Contract for it, and Covenant perhaps that it may bind him, if it be an incident Covenant to his Trade; but collateral Covenants will not bind him. Vide Winch 63, 64. Hutton 63.

Although a Bastard can neither be Heir to another, nor have an Heir to himself, yet after To a Bastard. he has once gotten a Name by common Reputation, either from him that is suspected to beget him, from his Mother, or otherwise, may by that Name give and take Lands or Goods by Deeds, as any other Man whatsoever may do. Perk. §. 26, 48, 49. Co. Lit. 2. 3 Leon. 69. Noy 35.

If a Limitation be made (by way of Use) to a Man's self for Life, and after to such Issue and Issues Male of the Body of L. M. from Eldest to Eldest, who by common Supposition or Intendment shall be adjudged or reputed to be begotten by J. B. on the Body of L. M. whether the said Issue and Issues Male so born of the said L. M. and reputed to be begotten on her by the said J. B. be Per legem hujus Regni Angliae adjudicati legitime & mulierly begotten, or unlawfully and immulierly begotten betwixt the said L. M. and J. B. and to the Heirs of the Bodies of such Issue or Issues Male, De seniori in seniore existen. nat. de prædict. L. in forma prædict. and after they marry and have Issue, this is a good Limitation. So a Limitation to a Bastard is good, for it is Issue to its Mother. But not so to a reputed Son or Bastard before he he is born. Cro. Car. 526. Perk. §. 26, 48.

For a Son in Reputation is enough to make one a Purchaser: And yet if A. have Issue three Sons, and the Eldest is a Bastard, and a Remainder is limited to the eldest Issue of A. by this the Mulier, and not the Bastard, shall take. But in the Case before, by the special Words, it is otherwise, for Modus & conventio vincunt legem. Noy's Rep. 35.

And if one by Deed give all his Goods to his Children, and one of them is a Bastard, by this he shall have no Share in the Gift. Quere, If it be by Will. Moor 39.

And

And a Bastard may purchase by his reputed Name: And a Remainder limited to him, by the Name of the Son of his reputed Father, is good. But a Bastard cannot take a Remainder by the Name of Issue. Co. Lit. 3.

To a Lessee.

A Lessor cannot make a Feoffment to his Lessee for Life, Years, or at Will; for one may not give a Possession to one that has it before; and yet such a Feoffment may enure as a Confirmation. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 26. Perk. §. 194, 197.

To Corporations.

But any civil Corporation, as Mayor and Commonalty, or the like, may be a good Grantee by Deed: And one may (with the King's Leave) give or grant his Land to any such civil Corporation, as he may to any single Person.

Yea, if any Member of a Corporation be seised of Land in his own Right, and in his natural Capacity, he may make a Feoffment of his Land to the Head or Members of the same Corporation, and so they may give and take Lands or Goods in a diverse Capacity. 3 Leon. 197. Perk. §. 31, 32, 33.

To Jointenants, Tenants in Common, or Coparceners.

One Tenant in Common, or a Coparcener, by Feoffment may convey his Part of the Land to his Companion, but one Jointenant may not; therefore a Feoffment by one, and to another Jointenant, is not good; but by a Release, or some other Way, the Thing is to be done. And Coparceners may both enfeoff and release one to another. Co. Lit. 48, 49. Perk. §. 197.

And in some Cases, a Feoffment between them may enure to some other Purpose. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 26.

One Jointenant may make a Lease for Years of his Moiety to his Companion, as well as Tenants in Common and Coparceners may do. Owen 102, 103. F.N.B. 62.

One Coparcener may make a Feoffment of his Part of the Land to his Companion, or he may make a Lease or Release to him. Co. Lit. 194, 200, 318. Perk. §. 103.

Jointenants may give their Parts one to another by Release, Attornment, Livery or Ceremony, and such Release may be without the Word Heirs in the Deed. Co. Lit. 194.

A Lease for Life to A. the Remainder to A. for Years, is a good Remainder to A. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 37.

To those in Reversion or Remainder.

A Limitation of Use on a Fine is to the Use of the Conusor for Life, and after his Death to the Use of his two Daughters, till A. his Son returns from beyond Sea, comes to his full Age, or dies, which of the said Times shall come first, and then to remain to A. who comes from beyond Sea; in this Case the Remainder is good, and the Daughters have a good Estate conditionally for their Lives, and the Words in the disjunctive (or dies) being in the End of the Sentence, make the Copulatives before to be disjunctive. So if one makes a Lease to A. and B. his Wife for Years, if he and his Wife, or any Child of their Bodies, shall so long live; the Wife dieth, yet the Lease continueth, therefore it is a good Lease at first for all the three Lives. Cro. Car. 270.

And if a Lease be made to one until he comes to his Age of twenty-one Years, and then that it shall remain over to another; this it seems is a good Remainder. Cro. Car. 270.

If A. seised in Fee of Lands leases them to B. for Years, the Remainder in Tail to C. the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. by this B. hath nothing in the Fee, but it is a Remainder contingent to the Heir of B. If C. die without Issue in the Life of B. the Remainder is void, for the Foundation and Support of it is gone; there must be a Freehold to support a Remainder when it happens, and here is none; for B. dying without Issue in the Life of B. and B. during his Life cannot have Heir. Jenk. Cent. 248. Case 38.

And if in this Case B. shall make a Lease for Years, this will be good for so long as his first Term lasteth, for he hath nothing in Remainder. And if A. makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. the Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee in the Life-time of J. S. none may enter for this Forfeiture but A. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 38.

A. makes a Feoffment in Fee to B. to the Use of C. for Years, the Remainder to the Use of B. in Tail, the Remainder to the Use of the right Heirs of A. this Remainder is void as a Remainder, but it is a Reversion in A. And if he had not spoken of the Use in Remainder after the Tail, it had been a Reversion in A. And the Limitation of such a Use by A. having the Fee of the Use cannot make his Heir Purchasor. And a Lease for 1000 Years made by A. after the Death of the Tenant in Tail without Issue, is good; for this is extracted out of the Reversion. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 38.

If A. leases Land for Life to B. the Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of J. D. B. in the Life of J. D. surrenders to A. the Lessor; this Lease, notwithstanding the Surrender, shall support the contingent Remainders to the Heirs of the Body of J. D. so that if he dies, having Issue in the Life of B. he shall have the Estate. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 38. And

And if there be Lessee for Life, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee to J. S. and dies in the Life of him in Remainder for Life, this Right of Remainder for Life shall support the contingent Estate. Ibid.

A. B. Tenant for Life, the Remainder to C. B. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of A. B. lets the Land to J. S. for four Years; afterwards grants the Reversion to one R. Habendum from Midsummer next for the Life of A. B. after Midsummer the Lessee J. S. did attorn to R. and after granted all his Term to him; this Grant of the Reversion by A. B. to R. of the Reversion to begin at a Day to come, is void, and the Attornment does not make it good. Cro. Car. 585.

One gives Land by Deed to another for Life, Remainder rectis heredibus masculis of his To Heirs. Body, the Remainder to his right Heirs, and died, having Issue two Sons, Tenant for Life dies, the eldest Son enters and dies having Issue a Daughter; in this Case he shall have the Land as Heir, and not the youngest Son. 4 H. 6. Champernon's Case, Dyer 156. Co. Lit. 22.

If a Lease be made to one for forty Years, if the Lessee lives so long, and after another Lease is made by Deed, by the Word Demise, to the same Lessee, Habendum to his Executors and Assigns for forty Years after the Expiration of the first Lease; Quere, if this Lease be good. And yet if a Lease be made for Life, with this Addition, And that the Executors shall have it for certain Years after his Death; this may be good. 3 Leon. 32, 33.

If A. makes a Lease to B. for ten Years, if B. shall live so long, the Remainder after his To an Admi- Death to the Executor or Assigns of the said B. for forty Years, B. dies intestate, and an nistrator. Administration of his Goods is granted; in this Case the Administrator is not an Assignee to take, nor shall he take as a Purchaser, but he shall take it as a Thing vested in the Intestate. Owen 125.

J. And this Lease, although it be for a Day longer than was agreed by the Deed, yet shall be good. Style 188, 205.

A Person Non compos mentis, or dumb, blind and deaf, may have and take by the Gift To Persons of Grant of Lands, as well as another Man may do; and a Deed of Gift or Grant made Non compos to them is as good and effectual as a Deed made to any other Person whatsoever. *Co. The Gifts and Grants to dead Persons in Law, such as Monks, Friars, and other reli- To Persons gious Persons formerly were, utterly void in Law. dead in Law.

And

And therefore if J. S. be seised of an Acre of Land in Fee, and he joins with such a Person in the Grant of a Rent out of it; this will be void as to the Person disabled, the dead Person, and good against J. S. only, and it shall be said to be his Grant. Perk. §. 4, 5, 6, 48. Co. Lit. 3.

To Persons not in Being.

A Person not in Being at the Time of the Gift or Grant made, as Primogenit, the first-born of J. S. and J. S. has no Child, or the like, can neither be a good Grantor nor Grantee: And although such a one be afterwards born, it will not mend the Case. But a Remainder so limited may be good, if any such Person shall happen to be when the Remainder falls. Owen 40.

The Grant of an Office for Life, the Remainder to a Successor, is void as to the Successor. Moor, Case 1094.

What is a sufficient Name for a Donee, Grantee, or other Person to whom a Contract may be made.

6. A sufficient
Name of a Grantee.

Grantees, &c. must not only be Persons in Being, and capable to take by Grant, &c. by the Name in the Deed mentioned, but they must also be sufficiently named and described one way or other; and he himself, and not a Stranger, must take by the Deed; and all Bodies Natural or Politick, that are not disabled by Law, may be Grantees, and take by Deed; and all Persons that may be Grantors may be Grantees. And some others that cannot grant or give, yet may take or receive. And a Grant made to two, three or twenty such Persons, is good. Co. Lit. 2, 3. Perk. §. 43.

If a Grant be never so well made in all the Parts of it, besides the Omission of the Name of the Grantee, if it does not express who shall take by it, it is void.

There are divers Sorts of Names and Nominations of Persons, or Bodies Politick or Corporate, that may take, whereof there are divers Sorts; as first, the proper Names or Surnames, wherein notwithstanding there may be Ambiguity of a Gift or Grant to my Son John, having two of that Name, perhaps may be made good by an Averment which John is meant.

There are also other Nominations or Descriptions, as by some Dignity, Office, or the like; as the Earl of Hertford, Lord Treasurer, and the like: And this will admit of a Description made good by Reputation, though not by Truth; as Land will pass even by Conveyance to one by the Name of Son who is a Bastard, by the Name of Wife who is not such, if he or she be so reputed or known by that Name. 27 E. 3. 85. Bulst. 3.

But the safe Way in the Cases of common Persons is, to name the Parties Grantor or Grantee, &c. by their Names of Baptism and Surname. Co. Lit. 3.

For where the Grant intends to describe the Person of the Grantee by his proper Name, and omits or mistakes his Christian Name or Surname; commonly the Deed is void, unless there be some special Matter to help it.

And yet if the Grant does not intend to describe the Grantee by his known Name, but by some other Matter, there it may be good, by a Description of the Person without either Name of Baptism or Surname. Co. Lit. 3.

A Bishop by the Name of Bishop of London, may take without any other Name. Co. Lit. 3. Bulst. 21.

A Grant to J. S. or J. N. is void for Incertainty; and a Delivery of the Deed to one of them will not make it good. 11 H. 7. 13.

If I be known by the Name of Edward Williamson, and my Name is Edward Anderson, and Lands are given to me by the Name of Edward Williamson, this is a good Name of Purchase. Godb. Case 47.

By which I may take by a Devise, and so it seems also by Grant: And yet a Bond made by the Name of Edmund where his Name is Edward, is not good. Godb. Case 485. Owen 84. Dyer 279. 21 H. 7. 8. 33 H. 6. 19. Non facit error nominis si constet de persona.

If a Deed be made by or to Johane B. by the Name of Jane B. or to Jane by the Name of Johane; it is good, for they are one Name. Leon. Case 204.

If a Man marries and has Children called by his Name, and after he is divorced from his Wife, yet the Children by that Name may have or take. So one that has a Child before Marriage usually called by his Name. 6 Co. 63.

If one gives me a House by Word, and makes a Writing of the Gift, either by a contrary Name of but Baptism of him or me; this Gift by Word is good, but by Deed is void. Perk. §. 42.

Land

Land was given to a Man and to Margaret his Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, and her Name was Margery, but Livery of Seisin was well executed; this was held good, and that the Wife and her Heirs should inherit accordingly. 2 Bulst. 303.

So if a Deed of Grant be to W. and Emme his Wife, and her Name is Emelin; or to Alfred Fitz-James, by the Name of Etbeldred Fitz-James. Bro. Nafme 9. Confirmation 30.

So to Wat Style by the Name of Wat Down. 9 E. 4. 43. 2. vide ante §. 5.

If a Grant be to Ro. Earl of Pembroke, for Henry; or to Jo. for George Bishop of Norwich; these are good Grants. Bro. Nafme 9. Confirmation 30. 6 Co. 65.

A Grant Deo, to the Church, to the Poor, or to the Church-wardens, without more, or to three or four of a Parish, not naming whom, or to one of the Sons of W. who has many Sons, is void for Incertainty. Perk. §. 39, 54, 55, 56. Plowd. 6. 8 Co. 155. 2 Bulst. 50.

A Grant to the Wife of J. S. or Primogenito filio, or to the second Son, or to the youngest Son, or seniori puero, or omnibus filiis, or filiabus J. S. or omnibus liberis J. S. or omnibus exitibus J. S. or to the right Heirs of J. S. or to the next of Blood of J. S. in these Cases the Grants that are made to Persons by these Words may be good, for the Person is well enough described. Bro. Donne 17, 31, 50. Fitz. Donne 1. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 52, 55, 56. 37 H. 6. 30.

A Deed or Grant to the Inhabitants or Parishioners of D. or to the Commoners of such a Waste, or to the Lord or Tenants of such a Manor, is not good. Co. Lit. 3. 10.

So to the Lord and his Tenants bound and free. Perk. §. 52, 55. 12 H. 7. 28. 37 H. 6. 30.

Yet Church-wardens may take a Gift of Goods for Church or Poor.

If a Deed or Grant be to one that is a Party to the Deed, and to another that is a Stranger to the Deed, it is good only as to the Party, and void as to the Stranger, but by way of Remainder it may be to a Stranger: And therefore if one grants a Lease for Life, and after grants to a Stranger, that the Tenant for Life shall have the Fee, it is void. 11 H. 7. 13. Co. Lit. 3. 10. & sic de similibus.

And yet this Case was, R. gave the Reversion of Lands which his Wife held for her Life to S. Habend. post mortem of his Wife, in liberum maritagium cum J. filia ejusdem R. by this she took in Tail with her Husband. Co. Lit. 21. Co. 15.

A Grant to the Father and his Son, without any other Description of him, although he has but one Son, yet it is good. Cro. El. 10. Father and Son.

If a Bastard gets a Name by Reputation in the Place where he lives, he may grant by that Name, and it will be good. Co. Lit. 3. 6 Co. 36. So a Grant to him by that Name will be good. Hob. 32.

A Grant to John Holt, who is a Bastard, usually called by that Name, is good, in Case of the King or Subject's Grant.

So to J. H. Son of J. H. who is so in Reputation only, is a good Name of Purchase.

But if any such Grant of the King or Subject be to him by the Name of John the Son of Thomas, without a Surname, it is not good if he be a Bastard.

One may not purchase by a Christian Name only; if one therefore gives Lands to T. Gray his Son, by him begotten on the Body of J. O. and in Truth T. G. is a Bastard, of the Donor's begetting, begotten upon J. O. whose Name was not Jane Onwell, but Jane Punt, but used to be called and known by that Name; this is a good Gift or Grant by such Name, or by her right Name. Leon. Case 69.

Puer may be a good Name of Purchase for a Male or Female; and yet if it be no ways cleared to the contrary, it shall prima facie be taken for a Son. Hob. 32.

A Grant to J. S. Wife of W. S. whereas she is Sole, is good.

A Grant to one of the Children of W. (who has but one Child) not naming nor describing which Child, is void for Incertainty. Bro. Donne 31.

But to the first Son of W. without more Addition, and W. has two Sons, this is certain enough, and a good Grant. Perk. §. 14.

So if a Grant be to him or her that shall be the first Child of J. S. and he has no Child at the Time of the Grant, it is void.

So if a Grant be made to the Wife or Child of J. S. when there is no such, it is void. As where a Grant is to J. S. and to his first-born Son; or to J. S. and her that shall be his Wife, and at the Time of the Grant he has neither Wife nor Son; in these Cases the Grant is void as to the Wife and Son, and J. S. shall have all by the Grant. Co. 101. 2 Co. 31. Perk. §. 52, 54.

A Grant to W. or D. is void for Incertainty, and the Delivery of the Deed to one of them will not make it good. 11 H. 7. 13.

If a Lease be made for Life, the Remainder to the Mayor and Commonalty of B. and there is no such Corporation, this is not good. And although the King do after create such a Corporation, yet this will not make it good.

So a Remainder limited to John the Son of J. S. who has no such Son at that Time, but afterwards has such a Son; this is not good.

If a Grant be made to one of the Infants of W. a Grant thus penned is void for Incertainty. Dy. 91.

So if it be Seniori & dignissimo filio. Dy. 91.

A Bargain and Sale made to one by the Name of a Knight, who is not a Knight, is good enough. Cro. Jac. 240.

Where a Deed was to R. E. Knight, Lord Evers, and he was not a Knight, but he was Lord Evers, it was held good. 1 Bulst. 21. 2 Bulst. 240.

So Deeds of Grant made to such Persons by such mistaken Names, 27 E. 3. 85. are good. Utile per inutile non vitiatur. 6 Co. 64, 65.

So if a Grant be made by or to Robert Bishop of E. and his Name is Richard Bishop of E. it is good. 1 Bulst. 21. Perk. §. 36.

If a Grant be made to the right Heirs of W. W. being then living, it is void, for there can be no such whilst he lives.

And so is a Grant to the first Child of W. or to the Wife or Child of W. no such being at the Time of the Deed made.

But if such a Deed be to another, the Remainder to the Heirs of W. or as before; this may be good, if W. dies before the particular Estate ends: As if a Rent-charge be granted to J. S. for Term of his Life, the Remainder in Fee to the right Heirs of J. K. and T. K. is alive, and the Deed is delivered to J. S. in this Case it is good conditionally, (i. e.) if T. K. be dead, and has an Heir when the Remainder falls; but otherwise not.

So if Land be leased for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. he being then alive at the Time of the Lease, &c. for here is one named that is capable at the Commencement of the Lease. Perk. §. 52.

But if a Rent be granted to the right Heirs of J. S. he being then alive, the Remainder to T. K. the Grant is void.

And if a Man seised of a Rent-charge in Fee grants it to a Stranger for Life, and the Tenant of the Land attorns, &c. and after by another Deed the Grantor grants the Reversion of the same Rent to the right Heirs of J. S. he being then alive; this Grant is void. Perk. §. 53.

But if J. S. had been dead at the Time of the Grant of the Reversion, it had been otherwise. Idem.

If J. S. has Issue two Sons, and a Rent is granted to the first Son of J. S. and by no other Name; this is a good Grant, if the Deed be delivered, &c. But if J. S. has no Son, and a Grant be to him that shall be the first Issue of J. S. whether he be Son or Daughter; it is void. Perk. §. 54.

A Grant to W. for Life, the Remainder to the first, second or third Son, or to all the Sons, or to all the Daughters, or all the Children of W. may be good; so with a Remainder to him that shall first come to St. Pauls such a Day, or to him that W. shall name in three Days, if any one comes, or any one be named by him in the Name, is good; Id certum est, quod certum reddi potest.

But a Deed of Grant to four of the Parishioners of Dale, not naming them, is void.

So a Deed of Grant to W. or W. S. in the disjunctive, with a Distinction, is void. Perk. §. 56.

A Grant of Goods to the Church-wardens of D. is good, but not a Grant of Lands.

A Lease for Years to such a Person as W. shall name, is not good; though a Lease for so many Years as W. shall name is. Moor, Case 911.

A Woman Covert cannot take any Thing by the Gift of her Husband, but she may purchase Lands of others without Assent of her Husband, and this by her own right Name. Co. Lit. 3.

If a Corporation be made by the Name of Majoris & Burgenfium Burgi Domini Regis de Lynn Regis, and a Deed is made to them by the Name of Majoris & Burgenfium de Lynn Regis, leaving out Burgi Regis, it is good enough. 10 Co. 122, 123.

If one releases his Common by the Words Renunciavit Communiam, by this it may be released; but if he does not say to whom he renounces the Common, it is void. Plow. 162.

If a Lease be made to two, Habendum to one of them, and to a third Person not named in the Deed, it will be void as to the third Person, and the other two shall take by it. 3 Leon. Case 60.

If the Variance between the Deed and the true Name of the Corporation be material or essential, either by Omission, Alteration or Addition, whether made to or by a Corporation, the Deed may be avoided: But if the Variance be only literal or verbal, in literis & syllabis (& non re & sensu) so that the Sense by the express Words remains, or by necessary Implication, and the Description of it imports a sufficient and certain Demonstration of the true Name of the Corporation, according to the Foundation, such nice and curious Misnomers shall not avoid a Deed. 11 Co. 20. 10 Co. 103.

And where a Corporation has divers Names, as some of the antient Corporations have, it may give or take by either of its Names. 10 Co. 103.

If an Obligation be made to a Corporation named Abbas Monasterii beatæ Mariæ, by the Name of Abbat Monasterii beatæ Mariæ extra muros Civitatis Ebor'; yet because in Truth the Abbey was within York, though it was Extra muros, it was held good; Et sic de similibus. As in a Deed of Grant to Christ-Church in Oxford, named Ecclesiæ Christi in Universitate Oxoniæ. Co. Lit. 3.

A Grant of Land or Rent in Possession to the right Heirs of J. S. J. S. being then living, is void; for there can be no such Person in rerum natura, for no Man can be Heir to another that is living. But such a Grant to one by way of Remainder is good, if so be that J. S. dies before the particular Estate ended, and before the Remainder happens. Co. Lit. 101. 2 Co. 31. Perk. §. 52, 54.

S E C T. VIII.

Of the Things to be contracted for, granted or conveyed.

THE seventh Thing incident to a good Deed is a Thing to be contracted for; therefore 7. A Thing it may be necessary to make a regular Division of Things, and then shew which of them to be contracted for may be conveyed or contracted for, and by what Means.

(A) The Division of Things.

AS to the Division of Things, they are (1) either Ecclesiastical or Spiritual, or (2) Temporal or Lay. Ecclesiastical or Temporal.

First, Ecclesiastical or Spiritual Things, are such as are so either, (1) in their own Nature, or (2) in their Use. Ecclesiastical in their Nature.

I. Ecclesiastical Things in their own Nature, are either (1) Dignities, or (2) Benefices.

Ecclesiastical Dignities are of two Kinds; (1) Superior, as Archbishopricks, Bishopricks; or (2) Inferior, as Dignities in Cathedral Churches, viz. Dean, Chancellor, Præcentor, &c.

And Ecclesiastical Benefices are likewise of two Kinds; (1) With Cure, as Parsonages, Vicarages, &c. Or (2) Without Cure, as Prebends, Ecclesiastical Hospitals, &c. Hale's Anal. §. 25.

II. Ecclesiastical Things in their Use, are Churches, Chapels, Church-yards, &c. which are In their Use. (1) Parochial; or (2) Not Parochial, as Chapels of Ease.

Secondly, Temporal, or Lay Things, are of two Kinds; (1) Some are Juris Publici; Temporal. and (2) Some are Juris Privati.

I. Those Things that are Juris Publici, are such as, at least in their own Use, are common Juris Publici to all the King's Subjects; and are of these Kinds, viz. 1. Common Highways. 2. Common Bridges. 3. Common Rivers. 4. Common Ports, or Places for the Arrival of Ships.

II. Those Things that are Juris Privati, are of two Kinds; (1) Things Real; and (2) Juris Privati Things Personal. Hale's Anal. §. 23.

Things Real are of two Kinds; (1) Corporeal; and (2) Incorporeal. Things Real. Corporeal Things Real, are such as are manurable; and they again are of two Kinds; (1) Simple, and (2) Aggregate.

Things Corporeal which are Simple, are generally comprehended under the Name of Lands; Corporeal. which are yet distributed into several Kinds, according to their several Qualifications, and accordingly are demandable in Writs; as, A Messuage, a Cottage, a Mill, a Toft, a Garden, an Orchard, Arable Land, Meadow, Pasture, Wood, Marsh, Moor, Furze and Heath, and divers other Appellations.

Things Corporeal which are Aggregate, are such as consist of Things of several Natures, whether they be all Corporeal, or the principal Part Corporeal, but the other Part Incorporeal; because that Part which is Corporeal in them, gives it the Denomination of Corporeal; and they pass without Deed, for the most part, as Things Corporeal do, and are of several Kinds, viz.

1. Honours,

Incorporeal.

1. Honours, consisting of many Manors.
  2. Manors, consisting of, 1. Things Corporeal, as Demesnes; and 2. Things Incorporeal, as Reversions and Services. Manors are of two Sorts; Manors in Right, and Manors in Reputation. (1) Manors in Right, where there are Demesnes and Freeholders. And (2) Manors in Reputation, as Conventiary or Customary Manors, consisting of Copy-holders only.
  3. Rectories, consisting of Glebe and Tithes, which are not only Ecclesiastical, but are often Temporal or Lay.
  4. Vills, Hamlets, Granges, Farms, &c. are a Kind of Corporeal Things Aggregate, for they consist of Houses, Lands, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, &c.
- Things Incorporeal, are of a very large Extent, but may be reduced into two Kinds; (1) Things Incorporeal in their own Nature; or (2) Things Incorporeal not in their own Nature. Things Incorporeal in their own Nature, are of very great Variety, and hardly reducible into general Distributions; but most of them follow, viz.
1. Rents reserved or granted; as Rent-service, Rent-charge, Rent-seck.
  2. Services Personal incident to Tenures; as Homage, Fealty, and Knights-service.
  3. Advowsons of all Sorts, Denative or Presentative.
  4. Tithes of all Sorts, Personal, Prædial, and Mix'd.
  5. Commons of all Sorts, as Common of Estovers, and of Pasture, Appendant and Appurtenant; for Cattle certain, and for Cattle sans Number, Separabilis Pastura.
  6. All Kinds of Proficua capienda in alieno solo; as Herbage, Pawnage, &c.
  7. All Kinds of Pensions, Proxies, (Procurations) &c.
  8. Offices of all Sorts.
  9. Franchises and Liberties of all Sorts; (1) Such as are the Flowers of the Crown, and Part of the King's Royal Revenue; as Waifs, Strays, Felons Goods, Goods of Persons outlawed, Prisage, Wreck, Treasure-Trove, Royal Fish, Royal Forfeitures, Fines, Issues, Amerciaments, Forests, &c. (2) Such as are not Parcel of the King's Royal Revenue, but either lodged in him, or created by him; as Counties Palatine, Markets, Fairs, Tolls, Courts-Leet, Hundred-Courts, Liberty to hold Pleas, Returns of Writs, Bailiwicks of Liberties, Warrens, Ferries, and the like.
  10. Villeins.
  11. Dignities, as Dukes, Marquisses, Earls, Viscounts, Barons, &c.

Things Incorporeal not in their own Nature, are so called in Respect of the Degree or Circumstance wherein they stand, as Reversions, Remainders, the Estate of Lands.

The common Incident of these Incorporeal Real Things Temporal is, that they do not pass from one to another without Deed. Hale's Anal. §. 24.

Things Personal.

Things Personal, are of two Kinds; (1) Things in Possession, or (2) Things in Action. Things Personal in Possession, are Money, Jewels, Plate, Household-Stuff, Cattle of all Sorts, Emblements, &c.

Things Personal in Possession, are (1) Debts, due either by Contract, or by Specialty, by Deed or Obligation, or by Recognizance. (2) Goods, whereof the Party is devested, or out of Possession. (3) Rights of Damages uncertain, as Covenants broken, &c. (4) Legacies not paid or delivered. (5) Personal Things in Contingency, as Accounts, and many more. Also Annuities, which are partly in Possession, for they are grantable over; and partly in Action, because not recoverable but by Action. Hale's Anal. §. 23.

(B) What Things may be contracted for or conveyed; and by what Means or Instrument.

AS to what Things may be conveyed, I have before (in Chap. 1. §. 2.) given a little Sketch, but am now obliged to be more full and particular, as I have made a copious Division of Things, and intend now to shew not only what may be conveyed, but where the Conveyance may be without Deed, or it must be by Deed; and if so, by what Deed, &c.

1. There are some Things that are grantable not only at first, and de novo, but afterwards in infinitum; and some Things are grantable at first, but are not afterwards grantable over to another Man.

2. There are some Things that are grantable by any Man and to any Man whatsoever; and there are some Things that are grantable only by the King to a Subject, and not by one Subject to another.

3. There are some Things that are grantable alone, and by themselves, or with other Things; and there are other Things that are not grantable, but with some other Thing to which which they belong and are appendant: As a Court-Baron to a Manor, Common appendant to Land, and Common of Estovers to a House. 5 H. 7. 7. Perk. §. 104.

4. There are some Things that are grantable by or without a Deed, by Word of Mouth only; and there are other Things that are not grantable otherwise than by Deed. Bro. Don. 10.

5. And there are some Things also in their own Nature that are grantable, yet in Respect of the Estate and Property that the Owner has in them are not grantable: As for Example:

1. All Corporeal and Immoveable Things, such as are said to lie in Livery, as Honours, Isles, Things that Villages, Manors, Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, Advowsons, Moors, lie in Livery, Marshes, Furzes, Heaths, Mines, Quarries, and the like; and some Incorporeal Things that as Honours, are incident and appendant to them, are grantable from any Man to another Man in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years at first, and transmissible and assignable afterwards by the Grantee thereof in infinitum at Pleasure. Co. Lit. 20.

All Persons and Bodies, except Corporate Bodies, may give or grant any Thing that lies in Livery, as Manors, &c. in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, to a Subject, as well without as by a Deed; but nothing may be given or granted to the King by a Subject by Word or Deed; but it must be by some Matter of Record. Perk. §. 62, 64. 4 H. 7. 17. 16 H. 7. 3. Plow. 150.

It is a Rule, that all Manner of Estates in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, and for Years present and to come in Land, or the Profits thereof, are grantable by or without Deed. Bro. Done 19.

An Estate for Life or Years of Land may be made by Word of Mouth, without a Deed: But where it is an Estate for Life, there it must be (if it be in Possession) with Livery; if of a Reversion, there must be an Attornment to perfect it. Cro. Car. 482. Moor, Case 31.

And yet if I lease Land for Life or Years to one, the Remainder in Fee to a Stranger without a Deed, this may be good for the Remainder also, if Livery be made to the Tenant for Life or Years. Perk. §. 61. Cro. Jac. 122.

A Grant of Land, & unum Ovile, Anglice a Sheep-walk, cum pertinentiis in D. is good, without a Deed for the Sheep-walk. Cro. Jac. 419.

The Father Tenant for Life, the Remainder to his Son for Life, the Son purchases the Reversion in Fee, the Father cannot in this Case surrender to him without a Deed. Cro. Car. 269.

A devises, that his Executors shall sell his Land; the Executors may sell without Deed, for the Vendee will be in by the Will. 1 Leon. Case 38.

Bodies Corporate or Politick may not give or grant any of the Lands, Goods or Chattels belonging to their Corporations, otherwise than by Deed. Perk. §. 64. Corporations, Lands, &c.

And yet the Grantees of such Lands, Goods and Chattels, after their Grant of them, may grant them by Deed or without Deed, as other Men may do. Ibid.

The Grant of a Monopoly is not good. 11 Co. 87. Monopoly.

A Grant may be of a Moiety, third, fourth or fifth, or other certain Part of a Manor, or of Land, and by the Name of a third, fourth, fifth, or other certain Part, and good. Co. Lit. 190. Moiety, third or fourth Part of Land.

So of a third or fourth Part of Tithes, and the like. Dyer 84.

2. And all Incorporeal Things, such as are said to lie in Grant, as Rents and Services; and of these not only such as are reserved upon any Estate made of Land, but such as are granted out of Land, Seigniories, Commons, Vicarages, Advowsons in Gross, Estovers, Dignities, Ways, Waters, Fishings, Franchises, Ferries, Leets, Waifs, Estrays, and some Offices. All these and the like Things are grantable by one Man to another in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or for Years at first, and de novo, but they are grantable and assignable over, in infinitum. But these Things may not be granted otherwise than by Deed. Co. Lit. 144. Fitz. Grant 145. Perk. §. 87, 91, 103. Bro. Grant 3. 3 H. 6. 20. 9 H. 6. 12. Things that lie in Grant, as Rents, &c.

And if a Man has a Rent reserved on a particular Estate, he may grant over Parcel of it.

And of whatsoever a Fine may be levied, a Grant by Deed of the same Thing may be made.

A Grant of an Acre of Land covered with Water, is good. Co. Lit. 4.

Any Man that has any Estate in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, in any Land, &c. or Profit Appreder out of it, may grant it over from Man to Man in infinitum. Bro. Done 9. sed vide concerning Fines and Recoveries, post.

And he that has any such Estate may charge it with Rent, or otherwise at his Pleasure. Bro. Done 19.

Rents and Services reserved upon any Estate, and Rents granted out of Land (it is said) are grantable over in infinitum; but one may not grant Rent out of a Rent, nor may one grant over a Rent which he has till he has Seisin of it. Perk. §. 88, 89. Bro. Grant 171.

Any Man that has a Rent, Common, or other Profit out of another Man's Land in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, may grant it over at his Pleasure; and this is grantable from Man to Man in infinitum. Bro. Done 9.

But an Estate at Will is not grantable over.

If an Estate be made to a Man and his Heirs without any Word Assigns, yet he may assign it at his Pleasure, for Assigns is included in the Word Heirs. Bro. Done 19.

A Rent-charge of what Nature soever it be is grantable over. Cro. Jac. 282. And yet if it be pro concilio impendendo, it is not grantable over. 7 Co. 27.

Some Things are so intire, that cannot be severed by Grant; as if one holds three Acres of Lands of me by 12 d. Rent, and I grant the Services of the third Acre; this Grant is void, for he must have all or none.

But if one holds Land of me by Homage, Fealty, and a certain Rent; I may grant the Rent, and keep the Seignior. Fitz. Grant 19, 79.

A Rent is grantable over before a Man has received it. Perk. §. 87.

Incidents.

That which is inseparably incident to another, as Fealty to some Estates, Common appendant to Land, the Court of Piepowders to a Fair, are not grantable away from the Things to which they are annexed. Plow. 379. 11 Co. 77.

Statute.

A. was indebted to B. 2000 l. by a Statute, B. makes his Wife his Executrix, and dies, she marries with J. S. who is indebted to the King by Bond in the Court of Wards; J. S. and his Wife by Deed inrolled assigned the Statute to the King for Payment of the Debt; and it was held good. Cro. Eliz. 324.

Such Things as lie in Grant and not in Livery generally may not in their first Creation, nor afterwards by way of Grant or Assignment be given or granted by one Man to another in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, otherwise than by Deed, except in some special Cases. Co. Lit. 40. Dy. 139. Perk. §. 60. 1 Brownl. 40.

So that if a Rent be granted to me but for Years only, I may not grant it over without a Deed.

But if a Rent or Service be Parcel of a Manor, or incident to it, or to any other Thing that is in its own Nature grantable without a Deed; there by the Grant of the Principal, the other as Accessary may pass without Deed. Co. Lit. 49. Perk. §. 91.

If the Lord will grant his Rent or Services of his Tenants to a Stranger, or release them to the Tenants themselves, it must be done by Deed. Co. Lit. 38, 39. Perk. §. 63.

If there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty, and the Service of yielding the tenth Sheaf of Corn before it be sowed; this Service may not be granted by the Lord for Years without Deed, unless it be in Case of Partition, Exchange, Dower, or the like. Bro. Grant 54.

A Partition in some Cases may be without Deed. Cro. Car. 95.

A Reservation of Rent to make an Equality in Case of Assignment of Dower, or of a Partition, may be without any Deed at all. Co. Lit. 169. Hob. 153.

Rents or Services may be given or granted in Case of a Partition by one Coparcener to another to make an Equality of Partition without Deed; but generally in other Cases such Things as lie in Grant may not be granted, nor may they be surrendered but by Deed. Co. Lit. 338.

Common of Pasture, Tur-bary, Fishing,
Estovers, &c.

Common of Pasture, of Turbary, of Estovers, of Fishing, is grantable in Fee-simple, in Tail, for Life or Years, from Man to Man in infinitum.

And yet it is said, that if a Common in Gross and without Number be granted to a Man and his Heirs, that this is not grantable over.

But if it be a Common for a certain Number of Beasts, it seems to be otherwise; and although the Grant be not to him and his Assigns, yet it is assignable. H. 16 Jac. B. R.

But for Common appendant or appurtenant to Land for all his Beasts Levant and Couchant upon the Land, and Common of Estovers to burn in a House certain, these Things are not grantable without the Land or House itself to which they are appendant or appurtenant. Cro. Jac. 15. 1 Brownl. 32, 42. 2 Brownl. 226, 227.

But Common appurtenant for Beasts certain may be granted over. Cro. Jac. 15.

Grantee for Life of a Common of Pasture sans Number, or of a Corody non-certain, cannot grant it over, unless it be granted to him and his Assigns.

But a Grantee of a Common for Beasts certain, or of a Corody certain, or of any Manner of Common certain, or of an Advowson, or of a Villain, or of a Rent, or the like, may grant it over although it be not granted to him and his Assigns. Perk. §. 103. Brownl. 32, 42. 2 Brownl. 226, 227. Cro. Jac. 15.

But almost any Thing, Land, Money or Debts, is grantable to the King. Dy 2. 9 Co. 96.

A Grant of Common of Pasture, of Estovers, Turbary, Fishing, and the like, must be by Deed, and not without, unless it be in Case of Partition, or of Appendency, as incident to some Corporeal Thing.

Therefore

Therefore if a Grant be made to me by Word of Mouth of Common for twenty Beasts in his Manor, it is not good; nor may I grant this over to another, unless it be by Deed.

But if one has Common of Pasture appendant or appurtenant to his Land, he may grant his Land with the Common appendant or appurtenant thereto by Word of Mouth only, and without Deed. Perk. §. 61. Cro. Jac. 189. 15 H. 7. 8.

Common appurtenant in Land may pass by a Grant of the Land cum pertinentiis, without any Deed at all; as Land may with an Advowson and a Rectory with Tithes. Cro. Jac. 519.

A Grant of Common, or of a Sheep-walk in the Nature of Common, may not be devised without a Deed.

Except in Norfolk, where a Sheep-walk is known by the Name of Land, there it may pass without a Deed. Cro. Jac. 419, 519.

A Way over another's Ground, either de novo, or in Being, may not be granted other- A Way. wise than by Deed. 2 Cro. 189.

And yet if the Ground to which the Way belongs be so granted as the same passes by a verbal Grant, the Way will also pass, although it be not named, and perhaps without the Words cum pertinentiis. Cro. Jac. 189.

Reversions and Remainders of Land are grantable from Man to Man in infinitum in Fee- simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years. Reversions and Remain-
ders.

And if I have a Tenant for Life of three Houses, I may grant the Reversion of two of them.

And if I have the Reversion of three Houses, and four Acres of Land, I may grant the Reversion of two Houses, and of two of the Acres of Land. Co. Lit. 338. Cro. Eliz. 78.

And a contingent Remainder, although it be barrable by Recovery, &c. yet it is not grantable. Hutt. 118.

And if Tenant in Tail be of an Acre of Land, the Remainder to his right Heirs, he may not grant over this Remainder by itself, and yet the Tenant in Tail may bar it by a common Recovery.

And if a Grant be to J. S. of Land for Years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. D. this Remainder is not grantable so long as J. D. shall live. Perk. §. 73, 88. Sed Qu.

The Reversion of an Office regularly is not grantable by a Subject. By the Lord Chancellor and two Chief Justices in Cancellaria. M. 5 Car. 9 Co. 96. 5 E. 4. 3.

If a Lease be made to one for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. (J. S. being then alive) this Remainder is not grantable by any Body, but it may be released, or otherwise barred, for it is in Abeyance. Perk. §. 87.

And yet it is said, that if Tenant in Tail be of an Acre of Land, the Remainder to his right Heirs, that he may grant this Remainder over. But Quære, which way? Perk. §. 88.

Reversions and Remainders are not grantable, nor can they be surrendered otherwise than by Deed. Co. Lit. 338.

Such Hereditaments as are transitory, and arise by Grant, and not by Livery, as Reversions and Remainders expectant or dependant upon a particular Estate, may not be granted but by Deed; for it is a Rule, that a Reversion or Remainder may not be granted in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, without a Deed, unless where it is Parcel of a Manor, or upon a Partition by one Coparcener to another. Dyer 174. Perk. §. 161.

If a Lease be made of Land, or the like Thing, for Life or Years, with a Remainder over in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life; this may be good without any Deed in Writing for the Remainder, and yet this Remainder is not grantable over to another without a Deed. Perk. §. 61. 4 H. 7. 17. Plow. 150, 433. 16 H. 7. 3. Lit. §. 60. Bro. Grant 104.

If a Lessee for twenty Years makes a Lease for ten Years, he may grant the Reversion without a Deed: But in this Case if there be a Rent reserved, there must be a Deed and also an Attornment of the Tenant, or the Rent will not pass. 3 Leon. Case 368.

So in all Cases where a Reversion is granted, although it be by Deed, yet Attornment must be had to it. Cro. Jac. 122, 519. Plow. 433. Perk. §. 62.

A Remainder after an Estate for Life may be granted without Deed; but a Reversion, unless it be for a Term of Years only, is not grantable without Deed. Perk. c. 1.

If a Lease be made for Life to A. the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. (then living) this Remainder is not grantable at all with or without a Deed. Perk. §. 87.

Tenant for Life, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder in Fee; in this Case he that is in Remainder for Life cannot (it seems) surrender to him in Remainder in Fee without a Deed, for that which cannot commence without a Deed, as a Rent, Reversion, Common, Advowson in Gross, &c. cannot be granted without a Deed. Popb. 137. 19 H. 6. 33. 14 H. 7. 3. Sed vide Popb. 137. where it is said, That if there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder

Remainder for Life, the Reversion in Fee, and he in Remainder for Life gives his Indenture of Demise with the Assent of the first Tenant for Life upon the Land to a Stranger in the Absence of the Lessor, and says, that he surrendred to him in Reversion, and this was a good Surrender. And there it was held; That Tenant for Life in Remainder might surrender his Estate without Deed, where his Estate begins without Deed; but that he might not grant it over without Deed. Poph. 137. 19 H. 6. 33. 14 H. 7. 3.

If there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to A. and B. Sons of the Tenant for Life, for their Lives, and B. purchases the Reversion; the Father and A. his Son may not surrender their Estates without Deed. Cro. Car. 269.

Interesse Termini.

An Interesse Termini, which is a Lease for Years to commence in futuro, is grantable over to another before the Term begins, whether it be a Lease of the Land itself, or any Profit appender out of it. Co. Lit. 46. Perk. §. 91.

A Man may grant Common or Rent, though a Stranger used to take it. Perk. §. 98.

The Interest and Estate that a Man has by Extent upon an Execution is grantable over.

Things annexed to a Freehold, Trees or Wood.

Trees are grantable from Man to Man in infinitum; and these Things the Grantee may take after the Death of the Grantor; as if a Grant be of ten Loads of Wood in a Wood, or of three Acres of Wood towards the North Side thereof, it is good.

And if one grants me certain Cords of Wood by the Assignment of the Grantor, the Grantee before the Assignment may grant this over: And therefore if the Grantor before Assignment grants to another so much Wood in the same Place as to make 6000 Cords at the Election of the Grantee, and after the Grantor makes an Assignment according to the first Grant to the Assignee thereof, who cuts the Wood, and the second Grantee takes it away, the first Grantee may have Trespass against him for it. Moor, Case 955. 5 Co. 24.

Corn on the Ground, Trees on the Ground, and Fruit of the Trees standing on an Estate in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, are only looked upon as a Chattel Personal; and therefore I may grant them away without Deed, although not severed. Perk. §. 57, 59.

If a Man gives me Trees growing upon his Land, the Gift is good without Deed. Perk. §. 57.

But if Tenant in Tail gives me a Tree growing upon the Land, and dies before I have cut it down, and the Issue enters into the Land where the Tree is growing; if I cut down the Tree, he may have an Action of Trespass, because the Tree is annexed to the Freehold, and by the Gift becomes of the Nature of the Land. Perk. §. 58.

But if the Donor of the Tree had been sole Tenant of the Land in Fee-simple in his own Right, it had been otherwise. Ibid.

But if Tenant in Tail gives me his Corn growing upon the Land, and dies before I have severed it from the Land; I may afterwards sever the Corn and take it, because the Executors of the Tenant in Tail would have been intitled to it. Perk. §. 59.

Timber of a House.

If a Man be seised in Fee of a House, he may give or sell the Timber, Stone, or other Materials thereof, and the Donee or Grantee may take it after the Donor's or Grantor's Death. Co. Lit. 144. And this may be without Deed. Perk. §. 57.

Vesture or Herbage.

A Man may grant the Vesture or Herbage, that is, the Grass on the Ground, and not the Ground itself. Br. Donne 10.

Franchises.

A Grant of the Vesture or Herbage must be by Deed. Noy 54. Lane 54. 17 E. 4. 6. Franchises, as Views of Frankpledge, Perquisites of Courts-Leet, Conuſance of Pleas, Fairs, Markets, Felons Goods, Waifs, Estrays, Hundreds, Ferries or Passages, Warrens, and the like Things, are grantable in their first Creation, and afterwards grantable over from Man to Man in infinitum. 16 H. 7. 4. Co. Lit. 314.

The Profits of a Mill, Ferry, Corrody, County, and the like, are not grantable without a Deed. 15 H. 7. 8.

Fairs, Markets, Warrens, and such like Things, or the Profits thereof, are not grantable otherwise than by Deed. 15 H. 7. 8.

But a Hundred, some say, may be granted without Deed. 15 H. 7. 8.

A Privilege to hold Land without Impeachment of Waste, cannot be granted without a Deed. 9 Co. 9.

Advowsons.

Advowsons (it is said) are grantable in Fee-simple, for Life or Years, from Man to Man in infinitum. Perk. §. 90.

Advowsons in Gross cannot be granted nor surrendred otherwise than by Deed. Co. Lit. 338.

And the Grantee of the Grantee of an Advowson is to have both Deeds in Court; but in Case of a Partition between Parceners, this is grantable without Deed. So where it is incident to a Manor or Parcel of Land, by the Name of the Manor or Land, it may pass without Deed. Co. 1. Dyer 29. 21 E. 3. 38. Plow. 150. 9 E. 4. 47. Winch 34.

Rectories.

Rectories, Tithes, and a Portion of Tithes, are grantable from Man to Man in infinitum. Parsonage, Rectories, Tithes, and a Portion of Tithes.
Perk. §. 90. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 7. Co. Lit. 338. But a Parsonage or Rectory, although it consists of nothing but Tithes besides the Church and Church-yard, and although it has no House or Glebe belonging to it, yet it may be granted without a Deed in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, and there the Tithes and Offerings may pass as incident. 15 H. 7. 8. 16 H. 7. 2. 19 H. 8. 12. 21 H. 6. 43. All this is agreed. Brownl. 98. 2 Brownl. 11. Hutton 54.

But Tithes alone, or a Portion of Tithes, Oblations, Mortuaries or Obventions, are not grantable by themselves without a Deed; and therefore a Lease Parol of Tithes, although it be for Years, is not good. 15 H. 7. 8. 16 H. 7. 1. 19 H. 8. 12. 21 H. 6. 43.

Tithes may pass for Years by way of Agreement without a Deed, but by way of Lease it will not pass otherwise than by Deed. And yet a Lease for one Year may be of Tithes by Word of Mouth. Godb. Case 149.

A Parson of a Church may grant his Tithes from Year to Year, or for Years, to the Parishioners themselves, or to Strangers.

He may grant all the Wool he shall have for Tithe the next Year.

Or all his Tithe of Lambs or Sheep, or other Tithe, as one may grant his Deer or Coonies in his Soil. Vide 38 E. 3. 6. Noy 121. Fitz. Grant 40. Owen's Rep. 103. Hetley's Rep. 107. Popb. 141. Hob. 195. Yelv. 94.

A Composition may be made by a Parson with one of his Parishioners for their Tithes from Year to Year, or it may be made for Years by way of Retainer or Discharge, without a Deed, but not for the Life of the Parson. And a Parson may grant his Tithes from Year to Year without Deed. But this Agreement must be with the Party himself, and not with another for him. Neither may this Interest be assigned without a Deed. But Tithes alone, or a Portion of Tithes, Oblations, Mortuaries or Obventions, are not grantable by themselves without a Deed. E. 3. Jac. Hawk's Case. M. 8 Jac. Dr. Longworth's Case, Noy 121. 15 H. 7. 8. 16 H. 7. 8. Cro. Car. 188, 249. Perk. §. 62.

But some say it is not grantable by way of Lease for Years without Deed. And it is said, that if a Parishioner agrees with the Parson, that he and his Assigns shall be discharged of Tithes for the Time that he shall be Parson there, this is not good; or if it be, it is not assignable over. Noy 121. Godb. Case 449. Owen 103. Hetley 31. 2 Leon. Case 98. Yelv. 95.

The next Avoidance of a Church, and the next Presentation to a Church when it shall be void, is grantable; and being granted, it is assignable from Man to Man. Next Avoidance or Presentation.

But when a Church is void, the present Presentation, which is but a Thing in Action, is not grantable over. Perk. §. 90. Dyer 283. Anderf. Case 32.

The next Presentation upon an Avoidance to a Church may not be granted without a Deed. Plow. 150. Bro. Donne 410. 5 H. 7. 35. 9 E. 4. 47.

A Title of Lapse to a Parsonage before it falls, is not grantable over; for it is but an Office or Matter of Trust. Hob. 154. Title of Lapse.

Pensions are grantable at first, and so afterwards. Perk. §. 90. Pensions.

Chattels Real, as Leases for Years, and the like, may be granted from Man to Man ad infinitum, and Leases for Years (be they present or future) are so grantable. Perk. §. 91. Chattels Real.

A Lease for Years of Land may be granted absolutely, or by way of Mortgage, and that by a verbal Agreement without any Deed. Leon. Case 22.

All Chattels Personal, as Oxen, Horses, Sheep, Plate, Household-Stuff, Apparel, Corn, Wood, Trees and Grasse cut; and also Corn, Grasse and Fruit of the Trees growing upon the Ground, and Wool on Sheeps Backs, are all regularly grantable from Man to Man in infinitum. Dyer 58, 305. Plow. 142, 147. Perk. §. 88, 90. Personal.

A Man may grant for Years the Corn which he shall have upon his Ground, or the Wool which he shall have upon his Sheep's Back; but he may not grant the Wool of his Sheep which he shall afterwards buy. Hob. Case 171. Perk. §. 90.

And a Man may give or grant to another the Apparel on his Back. Perk. §. 90.

It is a Rule, that all Chattels Real and Personal may be granted (if they be in Possession) by one Man to another in infinitum, without any Deed, except in some special Cases. Real and Personal.

And therefore if I make Parol Gift or Grant of a Lease for Years, or grant or sell my Sword, Spear, Plate, Wood, Ore, Horse, Cow, Sheep, or Chest, the Gift or Grant is good. Perk. §. 57, 60. Bro. Donne 9. Plow. 150. Dyer 370. Lane 36, 37.

And in these Cases there needs no Ceremony of Livery and Seisin, and the like; nor any giving of Money in the Name of Seisin. Cro. Jac. 122. Lane 36, 37. Plow. 150. 3 H. 7. 35.

Emblements are grantable from Man to Man in infinitum; and the Grantee may take them after the Death of the Grantor. Emblements.

If one sells or gives the Corn growing upon his Ground by Word of Mouth, the Gift or Sale is good. Perk. §. 57.

But if Tenant in Tail gives me his Corn growing upon the Land, and dies before I have severed the same from the Land, yet I may after sever the Corn and take it, for the Executors of the Tenant in Tail would have had it if no such Gift had been made. Perk. §. 59.

Annuity.

An Annuity granted pro Concilio, unless granted to him and his Assigns, is not grantable over. Dyer 2.

But if the Grant be to him and his Assigns, he may grant it over to another. 7 Co. 28. Moor, Case 18.

If an Annuity be granted to me pro Concilio in posterum impendendo, I cannot grant it over, if it be not granted to me and my Assigns. And Quere, whether I may then grant it? Perk. §. 101.

An Annuity is not grantable at first, nor grantable over afterwards but by Deed. 7 Co. 33.

Money.

One may give Money; as where I give one Money on Condition, if he does such a Thing to have it, otherwise to repay it again. Fitz. Grant 6. Done 12.

Money may be given or granted with or without a Deed. Ibid.

Fera Naturæ.

Things that are Fera Naturæ, as Conies, Hares, Deer, and the like, unless they become tame, are not grantable.

But Dogs, and especially Mastiff Dogs, Hounds, Spaniels, and such like, are grantable.

And so are Hawks, Pheasants and Partridges made tame. Bro. Done 34.

A Licence, Authority,
Possibility or Thing suspended.

A Licence, Authority, Possibility or Thing suspended, may in some special Cases perhaps be granted over after they are given and made. 3 Co. 2.

1. Things in Action.

But generally Licences and Authorities, after they are granted for the Lives of the Parties, or for Years, are not assignable over by the Grantees of them, or any other; and therefore if a Man gives me Power by Letter of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin, or a Licence to walk over his Ground, or in his Garden, I may not grant this to another. 13 H. 7. 113. 12 H. 7. 25. Co. Lit. 314. Perk. §. 88, 89.

If A. sells a Manor to B. in Fee, and B. in the Deed covenants that A. his Heirs and Assigns, shall dig for Ore in such a Place (a great Waste) within the Manor, without Interruption of A. his Heirs and Assigns; this Power is grantable over. Godb. 17, 18.

A. lets a Wine Tavern to B. for Years, and B. covenants with A. every Month for the Wine there spent, and to pay him so much a Ton: This was held not grantable nor assignable over to another. Godb. 120.

It is a Rule, that an Election, Covenant, Condition, Assent, Licence or Liberty, cannot be created and annexed to an Estate of Inheritance or Freehold without a Deed. Dyer 281.

A Licence to take the Profit of another's Soil, is not grantable over without a Deed. Cro. Jac. 575.

But if the Licence amounts to a Lease, (as sometimes it does) it is otherwise. Ibid.

So of a Licence for Common of Pasture, or Feeding of Cattle. Ibid.

So a Licence to hunt in another's Park for a certain Number of Beasts, is not good without a Deed. Ibid.

But a Power to receive a Rent upon a Condition of Re-entry, may be without a Deed. Cro. Car. 22, 188.

A Power of Revocation to be in Writing, may be by a Will as well as by a Deed. Hob. 311, 313.

2. Rents or Services suspended.

A Rent or Service suspended, whilst it so continues, is not grantable over; and therefore if the Lord disseises the Tenant, or the Tenant enfeoffs the Lord upon Condition, the Lord cannot grant over the Seigniorship during this Suspension.

And yet if one has a Rent in Fee out of my Land, and he purchases the Land for Life or Years; the Rent is grantable even whilst the Estate of the Land continues.

So if a Tenant makes a Lease for Life or Years of the Tenancy of the Land, the Lord notwithstanding that may grant the Seigniorship.

And yet if the Tenant makes a Lease to another Man for Life, and the Lord grants the Seigniorship to this Tenant for Life in Fee; in this Case the Grantee of the Seigniorship may not grant it over, because it was never in esse. Co. Lit. 314. 16 H. 7. 4. Perk. §. 88, 89.

3. Things incertain.

So any Thing wholly in suspense, whilst it is so, is not grantable. Co. Lit. 314.
If Land be granted to two Men and the Heirs of their two Bodies; in that Case, although they have several Inheritances after their Death, yet neither of them may grant away his Estate after his Life. Co. Lit. 282.

A bare Possibility of an Interest which is uncertain, is not grantable.

But if it be such a Possibility as is coupled with some present Interest, it is grantable Possibility. over. Co. Chedington's Case. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 51. As if a Lease be made to me and my Wife, the Remainder to the Survivor of us; or a Term of Years is granted for Life, with a Remainder over. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 51. Dyer 244. 3 Leon. 205. Bulst. 191.

It is a Rule, that no Possibility, Right or Title to Land, or Thing in Action, may be given or granted to a Stranger, by Act of the Party; but these may be released to the Tenant. 10 Co. 46, 51.

If I have four Houses in Execution upon a Statute, and by Course of Time it will endure thirteen Years, and afterwards two of the Houses are taken from me by Elegit for fifteen Years; yet I have such an Estate remaining in me as I may grant away. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 51. Dyer 244.

Things in Action, and whatsoever is of that Nature, as Causes of Suit, Rights and Titles Things in of Entry or Action concerning Inheritances, or a Personal Thing, are not grantable over but Action, and in special Cases; as if one disseises me of Land, or takes away my Goods, I may not grant Right and over this Land, or these Goods, till I have got the Seisin and Possession of them: Nor Title of Entry. may I grant the Suit which the Law gives me for my Relief in these Cases to another Man.

5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 48. Co. Lit. 214. Hob. 241. Dyer 244. Perk. §. 85, 86.

I may not grant over a Rent which I am disseised of. 10 H. 7. 22.

And if I make a Feoffment to another Man on Condition, that if I do such a Thing I Condition; shall have the Land again; in this Case I may not before nor after the Time of the Performance of the Condition grant over the Condition to another.

But the Condition may go with the Reversion of Land in many Cases.

And yet all these Things may be released to the Parties; for it is a Rule, that every Right, Title or Interest in præsentis or futuro, by the joint Act of all, that it may be barred or extinguished. Co. Lit. 214.

Things in Action, as a Right or Title of Action, that depend only in Action, and Things of that Nature, as Rights and Titles of Entry, to any Real or Personal Thing, are not (as before is mentioned) grantable at all, but by way of Release to the Tenant of the Land, &c. whereby it may be extinguished; but this cannot be done without Deed. And therefore if a Man takes my Goods as a Trespasser, or I deliver him my Goods to keep, and afterwards I am willing to give him these Goods, it must be by Deed. 6 H. 7. 9. Dyer 91, 126. Doct. & Stud. 16. 6 Co. 50. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 48. Co. Lit. 214. Perk. §. 85, 86, 87.

Bonds, Obligations, Especialties, may be assigned over; as if J. S. be indebted to me, and I indebted to J. B. I may assign that Debt to J. B. with the Assent of J. S. otherwise not.

And if a Bond be to perform the Covenants of a Lease, and he assigns the Lease, he may then assign the Bond also.

But if the Covenant be first broken, and then he assigns it over, this will be Maintenance if the Assignee sue on the Bond.

But if he assigns over the Lease, and after the Covenant is broken, contra.

But if he assign over the Bond, and reserve the Lease in his own Hand, and then the Covenants are broken, and the other sues on Bond, this is Maintenance. Godb. 81.

And if one owes me a Debt by Bond, Bill or otherwise, I may not grant over this Debt to another; but I may make a Letter of Attorney to any one to sue for it, and receive it for me, or for himself, or I may give the Writing to another, and he may cancel it, or give it to the Obligor himself. Co. Lit. 232. 3 Co. 32. Perk. §. 86.

But Debts in some Cases are assignable to the King. Cro. Car. 155, 170.

And yet Bills of Exchange, by Custom; and Promissory Notes, by Statute; are assignable over, and the Assignee may sue in his own Name.

If I have a Judgment against another for Debt and Damages, I cannot grant or assign it away, for a common Person cannot assign over a Debt as the King may do. Cro. Jac. 179, 180.

But a Bankrupt's Debt may be assigned by the Commissioners of Bankrupts. Style 62, 63, 348.

If one takes my Goods from me, or another that has them, or I buy Goods of another Man, and suffer them in his Possession, and a Stranger takes them away, I may not give them to any other but the Trespasser himself. Perk. §. 92. Fitz. Done 3, 7.

But all these may be released to the Parties themselves. 5 Co. 24, 97. 6 Co. 50. Perk. §. 85. Co. Lit. 330. 2 Brownl. 224. 6 H. 7. 9. 10 H. 7. 22.

An Annuity is grantable at first; and (as it seems) an Annuity so granted in Fee or for Life is grantable over, and yet it is but a kind of Chose in Action. Moor, Case 18. Q.

For if an Annuity be granted by the Grantor and his Heirs to a Stranger and his Heirs, it seems to some, that the Grantee may grant it over, because it is an Inheritance in him. Tamen Quære. For the Grantee has not any Remedy for it but by Action. Perk. §. 87. who there likewise makes another Quære, if the Annuity had been for Life, &c.

Damages.

Damages to be recovered in a Suit for Trespass or Battery, &c. is not assignable over. Godb. 81.

Offices.

Offices are grantable at first.

But the great judicial Offices of the Kingdom, as the Office of the Lord Chancellor, Chief Justices, or Chief Baron, or of other of the Justices or Barons, and such like Offices, are not grantable over; nor are they to be executed by a Deputy, except in Case of the Justices of the Great Sessions of Wales, who have Power to depute by Statutes. Perk. Tit. Grants. Co. Lit. 233. Cro. Eliz. 263. 3 Leon. Case 58. Plow. 379.

Judicial Offices are not grantable in Reversion, nor to Persons unskilful or incapable; nor may they be granted for Years. 1 Co. 3. 41. Plow. 379.

Although the Sheriff's Office is not grantable over, yet it may be executed by Deputy, if the Sheriff pleases, or he may execute it himself.

But inferior Offices that are Offices of Trust and Confidence, especially if they concern the Grantor, as the Office of a Steward of Courts, Bailiff, Receiver, Chamberlain, Carver, and the like, although they are grantable at first, yet they are not grantable over by the Officer to any other Person, except in the Case of a Peer, unless they are granted to them or their Assigns; nor are they to be executed by Deputy, unless the Grant gives him Power to make a Deputy. Perk. §. 101, 111. Co. Lit. 144, 232. Godb. Case 200. 9 Co. 49. Dyer 2.

Offices of Trust generally are not grantable or assignable over, as the Office of a Philazer is not grantable over. Dyer 7. Plow. 379.

So neither of the Marshalsea.

Nor is the Reversion of such an Office after a Grant of it for Life grantable to another.

Nor is such an Office grantable for Years, but for Life, or at Will. 9 Co. 96. 39 H. 6. 34.

Nor is the Office of the Clerk of the County belonging to the Sheriff's Office grantable away by the King himself, but it must go with the Sheriff's Office. 4 Co. Milton's Case.

Offices (for the most Part of them) are not grantable at first, nor grantable over without a Deed. 9 Co. 9.

And yet some inferior Offices, as Stewardships of Courts, Bailiwicks, and the like, are grantable without Deed; and the Lord may retain such Officers into his Service by Word of Mouth, without any Deed. Ibid.

A Lord may retain a Steward of a Court for a Time, as for a Year or more, and that he shall have so much for his Pains, without Deed; and if he keeps the Court, he may have Debt against the Lord for his Wages; but he may not have a Writ of Annuity without a Deed for it. Dyer 270.

A Dignity, as of an Earl, or Viscount, if it be granted, it must be by Deed. 7 Co. 33.

Trusts or Confidence.

Trusts and Confidences being Personal Things, are not grantable over, but where they are granted to a Man and his Heirs, or to him and his Assigns, and in some special Cases there also. Perk. §. 98.

An Act or Office of Trust is not grantable over, Hob. 154. but where it is granted to one and his Assigns. Perk. §. 100.

Matters of Trust generally are not grantable over. Perk. §. 99, 111. Plow. 379.

One may not make a Deputy to execute an Office of Trust, unless his Grant do by express Words enable him to do it. Perk. §. 100.

Use.

An Use in some Cases is grantable over. Plow. in Manxell's Case.

Uses before the Statute of Uses, were but in Nature of a Trust and Confidence; and so are such Uses still as are out of the Statute; as Uses of Leases for Years, and of Goods and Chattels; and as they might have been granted by Word, so perhaps the Uses of Goods and Chattels may be so granted still; but an Use that is within the Statute is always to be raised by Deed or Matter of Record, and will not arise; nor can it be charged or transferred without a Deed. Dyer 229. Jenk. Cent. 5. Case 99.

And it is a Rule, that no Use of Land will pass at this Day, especially of a Reversion or Remainder Estate, but by Deed in Writing, or by way of Livery, save only in some Cities, Villages and Boroughs, where by a special Custom of the Place, a Freehold may pass by a Bargain and Sale by Word only, without any Writing, Livery or Inrolment. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 32. Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10.

The Uses of a Fine may be declared without a Deed. Poph. 105.

A Distress taken for Rent, it seems was not by the Common Law grantable, no not Distress, even to the King himself. Vide 37 H. 6. 10. Bro. Done 16.

But now since the Statute of the 2d of William and Mary, Sess. 1. (Chap. 5) if the Tenant does not pay the Lord his Rent, or replevy the Things distrained for it within five Days after Notice given of the Distress made, they may be appraised and sold.

A Man may give or grant away his Deeds at his Pleasure, and he that has the Gift or Deeds. Grant of them may cancel or dispose of them as he pleases; and the Heir and Executor concerned herein is remediless. 25 H. 8. 5. Co. Lit. 322.

That which cannot commence without a Deed, as a Rent, Reversion, Common, &c. Rules as to Grants, &c. by or without Deed.

But that which takes Effect by Livery without a Deed may be granted without a Deed.

Ibid.

That which is grantable only by Deed, may be granted by a Deed Poll as well as by Indenture.

And that which may not be granted without Deed, may not be surrendered without Deed.

Noy's Compl. Lawyer 102.

A Surrender, Release and Confirmation, in some Cases may, and in some Cases may not be without a Deed.

That which may be granted by Word without any Deed, may be surrendered without any Deed. Noy's Compl. Lawyer 102.

Whatsoever may be granted, the same may be revoked eodem modo as it is granted, and Things are dissolved as they are contracted. Rules as to Revocations, Releases, Defeasances, &c.

And whatsoever executory Thing is created by Deed, the same by Consent of all Parties may be revoked by Deed.

And so Warranties, Obligations, Rents, Charges, Annuities, Covenants, Leases for Years, Uses, and the like, may by Defeasance, Revocation, Release, or such like, by the Consent of all Parties to the Creation of it, or concerned in it, be defeated and avoided. And so a Right or Title to Land may be discharged. 1 Co. 113. 4 Co. 1. 5 Co. 26.

S E C T. IX.

8. Apt Words required by Law.

What Words the Law requires in a Deed or Instrument of Conveyance.

THE eighth Thing Lord Coke observes to be necessarily incident to a Deed is, apt Words required by Law.

Apt Words are requisite in a Deed made either to pass or to create an Estate.

Littleton (Tenures, §. 1.) says, If a Man would purchase Lands or Tenements in Fee-simple, it behoves him to have these Words in his Purchase, to have and to hold to him and to his Heirs; for these Words, his Heirs (only) make the Estate of Inheritance in all Feoffments and Grants.

Upon which Lord Coke (Co. Lit. 4. a.) observes, that Littleton puts Lands only for an Example; for his Rule extends to Seigniories, Rents, Advowsons, Commons, Estovers, and other Hereditaments of what Kind or Nature soever.

And that (Co. Lit. 8. b.) here Littleton treats of Purchases by natural Persons, and not of Bodies Politick or Corporate; for if Lands be given to a sole Body Politick or Corporate, (as to a Bishop, Parson, Vicar, Master of an Hospital, &c.) there to give him an Estate of Inheritance in his Politick or Corporate Capacity, he must use these Words, to have and to hold to him and his Successors; for in these Cases without the Word Successors no Inheritance passes; for as the Heir inherits to the Ancestor, so the Successor succeeds to the Predecessor, and the Executor to the Testator. But it appears here by Littleton, that if a Man at this Day gives Lands to J. S. and his Successors, this creates no Fee-simple in him; for Littleton, speaking of natural Persons, says, that these Words, his Heirs, make an Estate of Inheritance in all Feoffments and Grants, whereby he excludes these Words, his Successors. And yet an antient Grant must be expounded as the Law was taken at the Time of the Grant: A Chantry Priest incorporate took a Lease to him and his Successors for a hundred Years, and afterwards took a Release from the Lessor to him and his Successors; and it was adjudged, that by the Release he had but an Estate for Life, for he had the Lease in his natural Capacity, for it could not go in Succession, and his Successors gave him no Estate of Inheritance for Want of these Words, his Heirs.

And that (Co. Lit. 9. a.) if the King by his Letters Patent gives Lands Decano & Capitulo, habendum sibi & heredibus & successoribus suis; in this Case although they are Persons in their their natural Capacity to them and their Heirs, yet because the Grant is made to them in their politick Capacity, it shall enure to them and their Successors.

And so if the King grants Lands to J. S. habendum sibi & successoribus sine hæredibus suis, this Grant shall enure to him and his Heirs.

B. having divers Sons and Daughters, A. gives Lands to B. & liberis suis, & a lour Heires, the Father and all his Children take a Fee-simple jointly by Force of these Words, their Heirs; but if he had no Child at the Time of the Feoffment, the Child born afterwards shall not take.

These Words, his Heirs, do not only extend to immediate Heirs, but to his Heirs remote, and most remote, born and to be born, Sub quibus vocabulis hæredibus suis, omnes hæredes propinqui comprehenduntur, & remoti, nati, & nascituri. And hæredum appellatione veniunt hæredes hæredum in infinitum. And the Reason wherefore the Law is so precise to prescribe certain Words to create an Estate of Inheritance, is for avoiding of Uncertainty, the Mother of Contention and Confusion.

The Necessity of the Word Heirs or Successors, as the Case requires, is therefore absolutely necessary in Conveyances of Estates of Inheritance; for as Littleton (in the same Section) observes, That if a Man purchases Lands by these Words, To have and to hold to him for ever; or by these Words, To have and to hold to him and his Assigns for ever: In these two Cases he has but an Estate for Term of Life.

For Life.

Fee-simple.

One seised of Land in Fee-simple, and having a Son going to be married, he being upon the Land, used these Words: In Consideration of this Marriage I do here, reserving an Estate for my own and my Wife's Life, give unto thee and thy Heirs for ever, these Lands, &c. This seems to be a good Conveyance of the Land. Popb. 47. A fortiori therefore if it be by Deed. But there must be Livery or Attornment upon it in both Cases.

In Tail.

Where Tenements are given by one Man to another, with a Wife, (who is the Daughter or Cousin to the Giver) in Frank-marriage; which said Gift has an Estate of Inheritance by these Words, Frank-marriage annexed to it, although it be not expressly said or rehearsed in the Gift (that is to say) that the Donees shall have the Tenements to them and to their Heirs between them two begotten. And this is special Tail. Lit. §. 17.

These Words in liberum maritagium, create an Estate of Inheritance in special Tail, as Littleton says; but this had need of some Interpretation; for if Lands be given by these Words in Frank-marriage, according to the Rules of Law, then do these Words create an Estate of Inheritance in special Tail; for the Consideration of Marriage is in that Case more favoured in Law than any other Consideration: But though the Gift be in these Words, yet if it be not consonant to the Rules of Law in other Things requisite thereto, there they create but an Estate for Life. Co. Lit. 21. a. b.

And therefore observe, that there are four Things incident to Frank-marriage.

First, That it be given for Consideration of Marriage either to a Man with a Woman, or, as some have held, to a Woman with a Man; for in 6 E. 3. 33. in Peirs de Saltmarsh's Case, a Man gave Land to his Son in Frank-marriage; and F. N. B. 172. takes the Law also to be so; and 7 E. 4. 12. per Moyle against a new Opinion in Temp. H. 8. Br. Tit. Frank-marriage, the former Books being not remembered.

Secondly, That the Woman or Man that is the Cause of the Gift be of the Blood of the Donor; but it may be made as well after Marriage as before, and it may be with a Widow, &c.

Thirdly, If the Gift be made of such a Thing as lies in Tenure, that the Donees hold of the Donor at the Time the Estate in Frank-marriage is made. A Rent-service may be given in Frank-marriage, because it may be holden; and so may a Rent-charge or Rent-feeck, as F. N. B. holds; and it appears in our Books, that a Common was granted in Frank-marriage.

Fourthly, That the Donees shall hold freely of the Donor till the fourth Degree be past; and therefore if Land be given to a Woman, with a Son of the Donor in Frank-marriage, there passes an Inheritance; but if the Donee, who is the Cause of the Gift, be not of the Blood of the Donor, then there passes but an Estate for Life if Livery be made. Also if Lands be given to a Man with a Woman of the Blood of the Donor in liberum maritagium, the Remainder in Fee either to a Stranger or to the Donees, they have no Estate-tail, because there is no Tenure of the Donor; but if in that Case the Remainder had been limited to another in Tail, reserving the Reversion in Fee to the Donor, there the said Words in liberum maritagium create an Inheritance, because the Donees hold of the Donor. And this is the Cause that it is held, That a Man cannot devise Land in Frank-marriage, because the Donee cannot hold of the Donor. And Cestuy que Use before the Statute 27 H. 8. could not have made a Gift in Frank-marriage, because the Reversion was in the Feoffees. And if the Donor gives Lands in liberum maritagium, reserving a Rent, this Reservation shall take no Effect till the the fourth Degree be past, but the Frank-marriage is good; for if the Reservation should be good, then the Donees could not have an Estate-tail for want of the Words, of the Heirs of their Bodies. Co. Lit. 21. b.

The Words in liberum maritagium, are such Words of Art, and so necessarily required, as they cannot be expressed by Words equipollent, or amounting to as much; as,

If a Man gives Lands to a Man with his Daughter, in connubio solut' ab omni servitio, &c. there passes in this Case but an Estate for Life, for seeing these Words in liberum maritagium create an Estate of Inheritance against the general Rule of Law, the Law requires that they should be legally pursued.

But then it may be demanded if a Man had given Lands at the Common Law, in libero maritagio, whether had the Donees a Fee-simple without the Word Heirs, because all Gifts in Tail were Fee-simple by the Common Law before the Statute of Westm. 2. which Statute did not create any Estate in Fee-tail, but out of an Estate in Fee-simple? To this it is answered, that these Words in liberum maritagium, did create an Estate in Fee-simple at Common Law: And it is holden in 31 E. 3. Gard. 116. Per ceux parolx in Frank-mariage les Donees averont les terres a eux & a leur Heires parenter eux engendres, & ce est dit especial Tail. (i. e. By these Words in Frank-marriage, the Donees shall have the Lands to them and their Heirs between them begotten, and this is called special Tail.) But yet between Donees in Frank-marriage and Donees in special Tail there are many notable Diversities. If the King gives Land to a Man and a Woman, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Woman dies without Issue, yet the Man shall be Tenant in Tail after Possibility. But if the King gives Land to a Man with a Woman of his Kindred in Frank-marriage, and the Woman dies without Issue, yet the Man in the King's Case shall not hold it for his Life, because the Woman was the Cause of the Gift; but it is otherwise in the Case of a common Person. If Lands be given to a Man and a Woman in special Tail, and they are divorced causa præcontractus, both shall hold the Lands for their Lives; but in Case of Frank-marriage, if they be so divorced, the Woman shall enjoy the whole Land, because she was the Cause of the Gift. If Lands held in Socage be given in special Tail, and the Donees die, the Issue being within the Age of fourteen Years, the next of Kin of the Part of the Father or of the Part of the Mother, which can get the Custody, shall have it; but in Case of Frank-marriage the Heir of the Part of the Mother shall have it, because, as it has been said, she was the Cause of the Gift. Co. Lit. 21. b. 22. a.

A Deed made by Words in the preterperfect Tense, is as good as that which is made by Words in the present Tense; but it is best to make it in both Tenses. Leon. 25. As hath given, &c. and by, &c. do give, &c.

Words in
general.

Land was given to A. in Tail, the Remainder in Fee to his Sisters, being his Heirs at the Common Law: A. made a Deed in this Manner, viz. I the said A. have given, granted and confirmed, for a certain Piece of Money, &c. without the Words of bargained, sold: And the Habendum was to the Feoffee with Warranty against A. and his Heirs; and a Letter of Attorney was to make Livery and Seisin: And the Deed was in this Manner, To all Christian People, &c. It was inrolled within one Month after the making of it, and although it was in the Form of a Deed Poll, yet it was indented; four Months after the Delivery of this Deed, the Attorney made Livery of Seisin. A. died without Issue, and the Sisters entered, and the Feoffee ousted them of the Land, and thereupon they brought an Action of Trespass: And the Opinion of the whole Court was for the Sisters; for here is not any Discontinuance, for the Conveyance is by Bargain and Sale, and not by Feoffment, because the Livery comes to Sale after the Inrolment, and the Warranty shall not hurt them: And although in the Deed there is not the Word Indenture, and the Words are in the first Person, yet as the Parchment is indented, and both Parties have put their Seals to it, it is sufficient. Also it was agreed per Cur', That by the Words, Give for Money, Grant for Money, Confirm for Money, Agree for Money, Covenant for Money, if the Deed be duly inrolled, Lands pass both by the Statute of Uses, and by the Statute of Inrolments, as well as upon the Words Bargain and Sale. And by Catline, Wray and Whiddon, The Party ought to take by way of Bargain and Sale, and he has not Election to take the Land by way of Livery; but when all is in one Deed, and takes Effect equally together, the Grantee has such Election; but in this Case the Bargain and Sale (the Deed being inrolled) prevents the Livery, and takes his full Effect before. And by Wray and Catline, If he in Reversion upon a Lease for Years grants his Reversion to his Lessee for Years by Words of Dedi, Concessi, Feoffavi, and a Letter of Attorney is made to make Livery of Seisin, the Donee cannot take by the Livery, for the Lessee has the Reversion presently. 3 Leon. 16, 17.

Perkins (§. 158.) says, it has been held, that a Man shall be bound by the Speaking of another Man, by Averment thereof in putting his Seal to it, and delivering of it as his Deed: As, if a Man be Obligee in a Debt, or Covenant by Writing, Et ad majorem hujusmodi modi rei securitatem, inveni A. de B. & C. de P. fidejussores, quorum unusquisque in toto & in solido se obligavit. And notwithstanding that none speaks the same but their Principal, yet if the others put their Seals to it, and deliver the same Writing as their Deed, then they allow of that which the Principal speaks, and so they themselves are become Principals; and so it has been holden. Perkins cites 40 E. 3. Cov. 16. T. 4 E. 1. Obli. 16. but concludes with Tamen Quere.

And yet Perkins goes on thus in the next Section, (viz. 159.) And it is to be known, that at this Day a Man shall be bounden by putting his Seal to a Deed indented, and Delivery of the same, and yet the Words within the Deed are spoken only by another Man.

And therefore if a Man makes a Lease to me, of my own Land by Deed indented, for Years, without saying any more; by this Deed I shall be concluded, and yet there is no Speech of mine in the Deed.

And if there be Father and Son, and the Father is seised of an Acre of Land in Fee, and a Stranger leases the same Acre to the Father by Deed indented for Years, and the Father dies; now the Lessee by this Deed shall conclude the Heir of the Lessor to say, that his Father died seised in his Demesne as of Fee, and yet there is nothing said by the Father, &c.

And Perkins in the 160th Section says, that it is said, that if a Deed indented be made between two, and Words relating to both of them are used in the Deed, but the Words of one of them are in the first Person, and the Words of the other in the third Person; all the Words in the Deed shall be taken to be the Words of him who spake in the first Person, which saying is little or nothing to the Purpose. Sed Quere.

A Deed is good without the Words, In cujus rei testimonium, &c. Owen, Case 5, 33. Cro. Jac. 456. If it be duly sealed and delivered. Bull. 300, 301, 302. Leon. 25. Bendl. 155.

Yet if the Deed say, that the Party has put his Hand, and not his Seal to it; if he does put his Seal to it, it is good enough. Hetley 29.

And yet in Hetl. 88. it is said, that although A. Serjeant said, That if the Words, In cujus rei testimonium were wanting in a Deed, that the Deed is not good, and that all Covenants, Grants and Agreements, which come after those Words in a Deed, are not of Force, nor may be pleaded as Parcel of the Deed. Hetl. 136, 137. But the Law seems to be otherwise. Dyer 19. Hughes's Abr. 591.

A Deed is good without the Words, Sealed and delivered in the Presence, &c. if it be sealed and delivered, and there are Witnesses to prove it; and although the Witnesses Names be not endorsed, if they can prove the Sealing and Delivery, it is well enough. Co. Lit. 6.

But it is not material in a Deed, whether it be drawn in the first or in the third Person, so as the Words be aptly applied; for if it be in the third Person, viz. Quod presens scriptum Testatur, &c. quod idem A. dedit & tradidit, &c. Or if an Obligation be made in the first Person, viz. Me A. B. debere T. D. &c. 20 l. &c. These are good Deeds notwithstanding 38 E. 3. c. 4. which is provided for Obligations made beyond Sea only. And if the Words of a Deed indented run in the first Person, it is as good as if it was made in the third Person. 2 Co. 5. Dyer 6. Fitz. Feoffment 5. 3 Leon. Case 39.

Words in Feoffments.

A Feoffment was made by the Words Bargain and Sale, without the Words give and grant; and being executed by Livery or Attornment, it was held good. Leon. Case 31.

If the Disfeisor enfeoffs a Stranger by Deed in these Words, Sciant presentes, &c. quod ego, the Disfeisor naming him, per assensum & consensum the Disfeisee, and name him, Dedi, Concessi & hoc presenti, &c. to a Stranger, &c. and this is done before any Entry made by the Disfeisee; in this Case these Words, per assensum & consensum of the Disfeisee, although it be true, will not make the Deed good. Perk. §. 156.

Words in Gifts and Grants.

The Words Dedi & Concessi (hath given and granted) are the most apt and proper Words for all Kinds of Gifts and Grants: And yet they may be made by other Words, and good enough. 35 H. 6. 8. Plow. 57, 154.

If he in Reversion upon a Lease for Years grants his Reversion to the Lessee for Years by the Words Dedi, Concessi & Feoffavi, (hath given, granted and enfeoffed) by these Words the Reversion will pass. 3 Leon. Case 39.

If a Man by the Words bargain and sell, only grant the Reversion of his Tenant for Life, and the Tenant attorns, yet this Grant is not good to pass, unless the Deed be inrolled, for these are not proper Words to make a Grant. Godb. 7.

But if Tenant for Life in Right of his Wife, and he in Reversion, shall by Indenture bargain, sell and alien the Reversion, and the Land to A. and his Heirs for Money, and the Deed has not the Word Grant in it, nor is it inrolled within the six Months: By the Words alien alien the Reversion, if there be Attornment the Reversion passes; but a Reversion will not pass by the Words bargain and sell without Attornment. Cro. Jac. 210. Godb. 7.

Leases for Years may be made almost by any Kind of Words that declare the Intent and Agreement of the Parties to have the Land, and take the Profits for a certain Number of Years; as to say, I will that you shall have my Land in D. from henceforth for twenty-one Years; or I do give you Leave or Licence to hold my Lands in D. for twenty-one Years. For in these Cases the Words Demise and Grant are not absolutely necessary to make a Lease for Years. One says, I will you shall have a Lease for twenty-one Years of my Land in D. paying 10l. Rent, make a Lease in Writing, and I will seal it: These Words between Persons make a good Lease presently. Moor's Rep. Case 31. Cro. Car. 33.

The Words covenant, grant and agree, that another shall have Land for so many Years, are apt Words to make a Lease for Years, and shall enure as a Lease. Cro. Jac. 91, 92. Cro. Eliz. 150.

And such Words will make a good Reservation of Rent also. Idem.

A Lease made by the Words demise, grant, bargain and sell, is good: And it may be made for one or more Months or Years. Hell. 82.

A Tenant in Tail of Land, entred into a House built upon it, and said, Brother, I here demise unto you my House as long as I live, paying 20l. per. Ann. to me, and finding me my Board and Washing, and keeping me a Horse; this is not a good Lease without Livery, but the Delivery of a Turf, Twig, or any Thing from off the Land, makes it good. Poph. 47. 6 Co. 26.

If a Man makes a Lease for Life by Deed, with a Proviso that if the Lessee shall die within sixty Years, that his Executors shall have so many of the sixty Years as shall be to come at the Time of his Death; this is a good Lease for the sixty Years, determinable upon the Lessor's Death, but not a good Lease for the sixty Years after his Death by Reason of the Incertainty, and yet it may amount to a good Covenant for that Time. Dy. 150, 253. Co. 145.

But to say, I will you shall have my Land for Life, with Livery, is a good Lease for Life. Jenk. Cent. 5. Case 2.

Articles of Agreement were made between A. and B. thus: It is agreed between the Parties, That A. doth let the Land for and during five Years, to begin at the Feast of St. Michael next following; provided that B. pays A. yearly, during the Term, at the Feast of St. Michael and the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary, 120l. by equal Portions: And the Parties do covenant, That a Lease shall be made and sealed according to these Articles, before the Feast of All Saints next ensuing. This is a good Lease presently; and this Proviso will be good for the Reservation of the Rent. 3 Co. 486. Noy's Rep. 57.

If A. covenants with B. that he shall have his Land, this will make a Lease for the Time. So if I have a Lease, and covenant with another that he shall have it, and this for the Time agreed upon, as that he shall have it till 5l. be paid, or for so many Years, this is good.

But if it be till 20l. be levied, there must be Livery, or else it will be but at Will.

But a Covenant to suffer a Man to enjoy his Land for such a Time as before will not make a Lease; it is but a Covenant. 27 H. 8. 1. Dy. 96. Plow. 309. 3 Bulst. 252. 14 H. 8. 14.

So if a Man leases his Land, being of a certain yearly Value, till his Debts be paid, it is but a Lease at Will without Livery made, but then it is a Freehold. 6 Co. 35. 3 Bulst. 100.

But if one covenants that another shall have his Lands till the Arrears of Rent are paid. Quere, What Lease this is? Bulst. 25, 250.

And yet if a Lease be made of Land till 100l. be paid to me, and Livery of Seisin is made, it is a good Lease for Life, determinable on the Payment of the 100l. 21 Aff.

The most usual and proper Words whereby to make a Lease, is, demise, grant, and to farm let, with an Habendum for Life or Years; yet such a Lease may be as good in other Words; for whatever Words will amount to a Grant will amount to a Lease.

And so the Words give, betake, commit, place, or the like, may make a Lease.

And if I covenant and grant with B. that he shall enjoy my Land for twenty Years; or I promise him to suffer him to enjoy my Land for twenty Years, either of these makes a good Lease.

And yet if A. covenants with B. to levy a Fine to him and his Heirs, which shall be to the Use of him and his Heirs; provided that if A. pays B. and his Heirs 10l. at the End of thirteen Years, that then the Fine shall be to the Use of A. and his Heirs; provided that if B. pays not A. 100l. at the End of thirteen Years, that then A. shall re-enter, &c. And A. covenants with B. by the same Deed, That B. his Heirs, Executors and Assigns, shall quietly hold the Premises from Michaelmas next for thirteen Years, and yearly thenceforth for ever, if the 10l. be paid, or the 100l. be not paid at a yearly Rent, according to the Intent. In this Case the

N n n

Covenant

Covenant does not make a Lease, but shall enure only as a Covenant, and his Payment of a Rent will not alter the Case. Evans's Case, Trin. 5 Jac. B. R. Co. Lit. 5, 52. F. N. B. 270. Bro. Leases 72. 15 H. 7. 1.

And if I license B. to hold my Land for twenty one Years, this will be a good Lease for twenty-one Years. 5 H. 7. 6. Cro. Jac. 172.

But if I give a Bond, with a Condition for the quiet Holding of Land for three Years; this is no Lease for the Time. Ibid.

If A. mortgages his Land to B. on Condition to re-enter, if A. pays him 100 l. such a Day; and B. covenants and agrees with A. that A. shall take the Profits till such a Day; this will be no Lease from B. to A. but a Covenant only. And yet see Bridg. Rep. 13, 14. That if one mortgages Land to another, on Condition, that if 10 l. be paid at Michalmas, the Deed shall be void; provided that the Mortgagee shall not enter, but that I shall hold the Land till Michaelmas; this may be a good Lease till Michaelmas. Quare Diversitatem?

It is a Rule, that any Words which import an Agreement between the Parties, that the Lessee shall enjoy the Land for a certain Time, may make a Lease. As, if I make a Bailiff of my Manor for certain Years, and that he shall have the Profits without any Interruption; this may be a good Lease for Years. 5 H. 7. 1.

If I say to J. S. being in my House, Here I demise to you my House and Land for so long as I live; this is a good Lease to him, if Livery and Seisin be made upon it, Et sic de similibus. 6 Co. 26.

A Lease for Years cannot by Agreement of the Parties be made to the Heirs of the Lessee, nor intailed to the Heirs of his Body; and therefore if a Lease be made to J. S. and his Heirs, or to J. S. and the Heirs Male of his Body; this cannot go so, but the Executors of J. S. shall have it, and may dispose of it, and the Heirs will have nothing to do with it. 2 Co. 24. 10 Co. 87.

If two agree by Word of Mouth, that one of them shall have such a Piece of Land for twenty Years; this is a good and perfect Lease made by this Agreement, although they agree to have a Writing made of it afterwards, for that will be but a Confirmation of it: But if the Agreement be, that such a Writing shall be made, or that a Lease shall be made of such a Thing between them and put in Writing, so that the Agreement has Reference to the Writing, and implies an Intent not to perfect the Agreement till the Writing be made; in that Case the Lease is not a perfect Lease till the Writing be made. Per Justice Jones at Gloucester Assizes. Shep. Law of Com. Assur. 87.

Articles of Agreement were made between A. and B. thus: Articles, &c. First of all A. doth demise his Close to B. to have it for forty Years, and a Rent reserved, with a Clause of Distress, &c. In Witness whereof, &c. And afterwards there was written in the same Paper a Memorandum, that these Articles are to be ordered by Counsel of both Parties, according to due Form of Law; and because the Intent of both Parties appeared by that Memorandum, and the Lease was drawn by the Counsel, but never sealed, (for the Parties disagreed about Fire-bote) it was ruled by the Court, that the Articles were not a sufficient Lease. Noy's Rep. 128.

One seised of a Prebend, made a Lease of Part of it with these Words: Cum omnibus commoditatibus, emolumentis, proficuis & advantagiis eidem præbendæ spectantibus seu aliquo modo pertinentibus. By this the Advowson does not pass. Hob. Case 379.

If an Indenture of Lease be made between A. of the one Part, and B. C. and D. on the other Part; and therein A. demises Land to B. Habendum for eighty Years, if B. lives so long; and if the said B. dies, or aliens the Premises within the Term, then his Estate shall cease; and then the Lessor grants the Land to C. for so many Years of the said Term as shall be then to come, after the Death or Alienation of the said B. if he lives so long: In this Case this is a good Lease to B. for so many Years as he shall live of the eighty Years; but the Lease to C. afterwards is not good, for the Term is ended by the Death of B. But if the Words of the second Demise be, Habendum during the Residue of the eighty Years, and not during the Residue of the Term; in this Case the second Demise to C. will also be good. Co. 153. Dyer 253.

Words in Assignments of Leases.

Words in Patents.

An Use.

If a Lessee for Life by his Deed says to me, I give, grant, bargain and sell my Interest in such Land to you for twenty Years, Habendum in such Manner and Form as I do hold the same: This will be a good Assignment for so many Years as the Lessor shall live. Leon. 255.

The Words of a Patent will bind the Patentee and his Assigns, and enure as a Covenant without the Word Covenant. Cro. Jac. 522.

If a Man on the Marriage of his Son expresses these Words, upon the Land, My Son A. after my Wife's Death and mine, I give this Land to thee and thine Heirs for ever; nothing will pass thereby, for an Use cannot arise at this Day without a Deed, and in this Case there is neither Deed nor Livery to pass the Remainder. But in some special Places, Cities, and the like, by Custom of the Place it may pass by way of Bargain and Sale by Word. Dyer 297. Fitz. Testament 111. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 32.

But

But the Uses of a Fine may be declared without a Deed. Popb. 105. Yet in all Cases it is the usual, safest and most certain way to declare the Uses and Trusts by Deed in Writing.

If one has Issue two Sons, and by Deed, in Consideration of Marriage, gives his Land to his younger Son, and to his Heirs after his Death, but no Livery is made, the Father dies, the eldest Son enters; this shall not enure by way of Covenant, to raise an Use to the younger Son, but by the Word give it shall enure to pass the Estate; and if Livery be not made, it is not good. Hughes's Abr 1209.

Of Sealing Deeds.

9. Sealing.

THE ninth Thing necessarily incident to a good Deed is Sealing.

Sealing of Deeds in old Time was not used in England; for the Saxons used only to subscribe their Names, and add the Sign of the Cross, and to set down a great Number of Witnesses. And afterwards the Normans brought in with them the Custom of Sealing Deeds; but this was only introduced by Degrees; for first the Kings and a few of the Nobility used it, and to seal with their Seals of Arms; afterwards all the Nobility used it, and then the Gentlemen; and about the Time of Edw. 3. all Men began to use Sealing of Deeds, which has been continued ever since; so that now it is of Necessity, inasmuch that if a Deed be never so well written before and delivered afterwards, yet if it be not sealed between the Writing and Delivery, it is not a good Deed; but if a Stranger seals it by Allowance or Commandment precedent, or Agreement subsequent of him that is to seal it before the Delivery of it, it is as well as if the Party to the Deed did seal it himself: And therefore if another Man seals a Deed of mine, and I take it up after it is sealed, and deliver it as my Deed; this is said to be a good Agreement to and Allowance of the Sealing, and so a good Deed. And if the Party seals the Deed with any Seal besides his own, or with a Stick, Key, or any such Thing which makes a Print, it is good. And although it be a Corporation that makes the Deed, yet they may seal with any other Seal besides their common Seal, and the Deed will be never the worse. And if there be twenty to seal one Deed, and they seal all upon one Piece of Wax, and with one Seal, yet if they make distinct and several Prints, this is a very sufficient Sealing, and the Deed is good enough. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Fait. Co. Lit. 225. 2 Co. 4, 5. Perk. §. 129, 130, 131, 132, 134.

If a Feoffment be made to two with Covenants, and one of them seals it, and the other does not, but he who does not seal it survives and occupies the Land, he is bound by the Seal of his Companion. Hughes's Abr. 590. Dyer 13.

A. and B. his Son join in a Deed to grant an Annuity, and A. sets his Hand and Seal, and a Label is put for the Son, but he never sealed it, the Deed is void as to his Son, and shall not bind him. Dyer 227.

If two make a Deed, and one of them seals it at one Time, and the other at another Time; this is as good as if they sealed it together. Lane 32.

If there be two Parts of an Indenture of Lease, and the Lessee seals his Part, but the Lessor does not seal, it is all void, as to the passing of Estates, Covenants and Bonds to perform it. Yelv. 18, 19.

But if a Feoffor, Donor or Lessor, seals that Part of the Indenture which belongs to the Feoffee, &c. the Indenture is good although the Feoffee never seals the Counterpart belonging to the Feoffor, &c. Co. Lit. 229. Cro. Eliz. 212.

Although a Condition may be pleaded by Indenture, sealed with the Seal of the other Party, yet a Conveyance cannot be pleaded by Deed not sealed by the Party, Agent, Feoffor, Grantor, Lessor, &c. 3 Leon. Case 138.

If a Deed concludes with these Words, In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my Hand, and the Party writes his Name, and puts his Seal; this is a good Deed, although no Mention be made of putting his Seal to it. Hetley 75.

S E C T. XI.

Of Delivering Deeds.

10. Delivery.

THE tenth and last Thing which Lord Coke observes to be necessarily incident to a good Deed, is the Delivery thereof. Co. Lit. 35. b.

A De-

A Delivery is necessarily incident to a good Deed; for if it be never so well written and sealed, and it is not delivered by the Party himself, or by some other Person by his Agreement or Assent, it is of no Force.

Therefore I shall shew, what is a good Delivery of a Deed, or not.

1. With Respect to the Person who makes it.
2. With Respect to the Person to whom it is made.
3. With Respect to the Time.
4. With Respect to the Place.
5. With Respect to the Manner and Order of the Delivery.

First, Of the Delivery of a Deed with Respect to the Person who makes it.

THE Delivery of a Deed is either Actual, i. e. by doing something and saying nothing, or else Verbal, i. e. by saying something and doing nothing, or it may be by both, or there is a Delivery in Deed and a Delivery in Law. 3 Co. 7. 2 Co. 4, 5.

And either of these may make a good Delivery and a perfect Deed; but by one or both of these it must be made; for otherwise although it be never so well sealed and written, yet the Deed is of no Force, nor may any Use be made of it as a Deed. Cro. Jac. 136, 137. Perk. §. 137.

And though the Party to whom it is made takes it to himself, or happens to get it into his Hands, yet it will do him no good, nor him that made it any hurt, until it be delivered. Cro. Jac. 263.

And a Deed may be delivered by the Party himself that makes it, or by any other by his Appointment or Authority precedent, or Assent or Agreement subsequent, for commis ratihabitio mandato equiparatur; and when it is delivered by another that has a good Authority, and pursues it, it is as good a Deed as if it were delivered by the Party himself; but if he has no Authority, or does not pursue his Authority, then it is otherwise. Perk. §. 137. 9 H. 6. 37. 11 Co. 28. 3 Co. 35. Cro. Eliz. 167.

And therefore if a Deed, or the Contents thereof, be read or declared to a Man that is to seal it, and he (being illiterate) delivers it to a Stranger and bids him examine it, and if it be so as it was read to him, then to deliver it as his Deed, otherwise to re-deliver it to him again that made it; in this Case if the Deed be in Truth otherwise than it was read, and yet notwithstanding he to whom it was delivered delivers it to him to whom it is made, this Delivery will not avail, neither is the Deed by this Delivery become a good Deed. Perk. §. 137. 9 H. 6. 37. 11 Co. 28. 3 Co. 35. 47 E. 3. 3.

If the Writing of a Presentation by the Patron of a Clerk to a Church be sealed, it needs not be delivered; but the Patron must be consenting to the Clerk's taking and making Use of it, or it will not be good. Telv. 7.

If a Deed Poll be delivered by one of the Parties to the other, and by him re-delivered to the other; this shall be the Deed of both of them. Cro. Car. 483.

If a Lessee for Years grants his Term by Deed, and seals it in the Presence of several Persons, and of the Grantee himself; and the Deed is at that Time read but not delivered, nor does the Grantee take it away with him, but leaves it behind him in the Place, and does not countermand it; this is a good Delivery in Law. 4 Co. 7. Shelton's Case.

And yet if a Deed that is written and sealed in my Name, and brought me, and I am desired to deliver it as my Deed, and I say, Do you such a Thing, and take it as my Deed, otherwise not; this is not my Deed till the Condition be performed. Cro. Eliz. 835.

Or if I say, Take it to you, I will not deliver it as my Deed; this is not my Deed. Cro. Eliz. 835.

But if it be once delivered to the Party himself as my Deed, it cannot afterwards be defeated but by a Condition in Writing. Ibid. Quere.

If an Indenture be made by A. and B. to C. and C. seals his Part, and delivers it to A. and B. but they do not deliver that Part, &c. yet this is a good Deed to charge C. who delivers it. Cro. Eliz. 212.

An Indenture made by a Dean and Chapter, and in their Chapter-House they put their Seal to it, and make a Letter of Attorney to J. S. to enter, and make Delivery upon the Land, which he does; this is a good Lease, but it is not good till it be delivered. Cro. Eliz. 167.

If a Deed Poll be made by A. to B. with mutual Covenants from one to the other; B. delivers it first to C. then C. delivers it to B. this is a good Delivery to bind both Parties. Cro. Eliz. 483.

The Deed of a Corporation needs no Delivery, for when it is made by common Consent, and the common Seal put to it, it is perfected. 1 Leon. Case 119.

Secondly,

Secondly, Of the Delivery of a Deed with Respect to the Person to whom it is made.

A Deed may be delivered to the Party himself to whom it is made, or to any other by sufficient Authority from him; or it may be delivered to any Stranger, for and on the Behalf and to the Use of him to whom it is made, without Authority from him.

But if it be delivered to a Stranger without any such Declaration, Intention or Intimation, unless it be in Case where it is delivered as an Escrow, it seems this is not a sufficient Delivery. And yet if an Obligation be made to the Use of the third Person expressed by the Deed, and the Obligor delivers it to him to whose Use it is made, this is said to be a good Delivery. Dyer 162, 167. Perk. §. 137. Co. Lit. 36.

If a Deed be delivered to the Use of two, if one of them who is particularly named will agree to it, and if he will not agree, that the other shall be made acquainted with it, and one of them dies without being privy to the Deed, this will not be a good Deed. Moor 448.

And if a Deed be delivered to a Stranger, to the Use of him to whom it is made, this Delivery is good; and although he to whose Use it is delivered dies before Notice or Agreement, yet the Deed is good; but it is otherwise where it is to take Effect upon a Condition precedent. Moor 448.

If one grants a Rent to a College in Fee by Deed, and delivers the Deed to a Stranger to the Use of the College, and the College seals the Counterpart of the Indenture; in this Case it was held, that the Stranger might receive the Deed to their Use, without any Letter of Attorney, and that their Sealing of the Counterpart was an Agreement and Confirmation of it. Cro. Car. 862.

If a Deed Poll be made by A. to B. with mutual Covenants; B. delivers it first to C. and C. afterward to him; this is a good Delivery to bind both Parties. Cro. Eliz. 483.

If a Deed be indented, and he who makes it seals and delivers his Part, but the other does not seal and deliver his Part, yet he shall be bound by it. Cro. Eliz. 212.

A Stranger may receive a Deed to the Use of a Corporation without a Letter of Attorney; and their Sealing of the Counterpart of it will amount to a sufficient Agreement to it. Cro. Eliz. 862.

Thirdly, Of the Delivery of a Deed with Respect to the Time.

IF a Deed be delivered before or after the Day of the Date of it, yet it is good enough; but if it be delivered before it be sealed, it is good for nothing; and where it is delivered before the Date, yet in the Pleading of it, it must not be so set forth. 2 Co. 4. Plow. 492. 5 Co. 117.

But if no Time be shewn of the Delivery, it shall be taken to be delivered at the Time of the Date of it. 3 Leon. Case 227, 357.

If a Deed be dated 15th November 23 Eliz. and is not sealed or delivered till the 18 November 26 Eliz. yet it is good; and he who made it may not plead Non est factum to it, but if there be Occasion, perhaps by a special Plea he may help himself. Cro. Jac. 136.

If a Deed be made by two, and one delivers it one Day, and the other another Day, this is good: And prima facie, every Deed shall be intended to be delivered the Day of the Date of it. Latch 61.

If three seal a Deed at one Time, and a fourth at another Time, and then it is delivered by them all, it is not the Deed of any of them till the Delivery. Cro. Car. 263.

If an Obligation be dated the first of May, and the first of June following the Obligee makes a Release dated the first of March, and delivers it the first of June; by this the Obligation is not released. Cro. Eliz. 14.

If an Obligation be made with a Condition to do something by a Day, and the Obligation is not delivered at the Time, so that it is now impossible to be done; in this Case the Condition will be gone, and the Obligation single. Yelv. 35, 138.

A Deed takes Effect by the Delivery, and be the Delivery before or after the Date, it is not material; and if delivered before the Date, and one of the Parties dies before the Date, yet the Deed is good. 2 Co. 4.

Fourthly, Of delivering Deeds with Respect to the Place.

THE Delivery of a Deed is always intended to be in the Place where it is made. Plow. 491.

If a Man pleads a Release, or other Deed made at such a Place, viz. at D. in the County of M. he shall not say it was delivered at any other Place than where it bears Date. Perk. §. 150.

And therefore if an Action of Debt be brought by Administrators, and they declare, that the Administration was committed to them in London, and the Letters of Administration bear Date in another Place, and in another County, the Declaration shall abate; for he who pleads a Deed is not to vary from the Place where it bears Date; but he against whom a Deed is pleaded may say it was made by Durefs of Imprisonment at another Place and in another County than it bears Date. Perk. §. 151.

Fifthly, Of delivering Deeds with Respect to the Order and Manner of the Delivery.

IF I have sealed my Deed, and after I deliver it to him to whom it is made, or to some other by his Appointment, and say nothing; this is a good Delivery.

So if I take the Deed in my Hand, and use these or the like Words, Here take him, or this will serve; or I deliver this as my Deed, or I deliver him you; these are Deliveries.

So if I make a Deed of Land to another, and being upon the Land, I deliver the Deed to him in the Name of Seisin of the Land; this is a good Delivery.

So if the Deed be sealed, or lying in a Window, or on a Table, and I use these or the like Words, There he is, take it as my Deed; this is a good Delivery, and perfects the Deed; for as a Deed may be delivered by Words without Deeds, so may it also be delivered by Deeds without Words. 9 Co. 137. Dyer 192, 167. Co. Lit. 36, 49. 35 Aff. pl. 6.

But if a Man seals and acknowledges before a Mayor or other Officer appointed for that Purpose a Writing provided for a Statute or Recognizance, this Acknowledgment before such an Officer shall not amount to a Delivery of the Deed, so as to make it a good Obligation if it happens not to be a good Statute or Recognizance. Adjudged T. 37 Eliz. B. R.

If one seals and delivers a Deed to L. to be delivered to the Obligee, who refuses it, but L. leaves it at the Place; this is a good Delivery, and a good Deed. Anders. Case 8. Dy. 1. 5 Co. 119.

If a Patron draws a Presentation in Writing, and puts his Seal to it, and leaves it in his Study, and the Party for whom it is happens to get it, without the Privy or Licence of the Patron, and brings it to the Bishop, and he is thereupon instituted and inducted; yet it is all void. Yelv. 5.

Where a Deed by the first Delivery of it is good, though it be not good to pass the Thing granted, the second Delivery of such a Deed is void.

And therefore if one who has Right to Land in the County of L. is out of Possession, makes a Lease, and delivers it by Letter of Attorney to the Attorney, to the Use of him to whom it is made; the Lessor enters into the Land, and according to his Warrant delivers it; in this Case the Lease is void, because delivered in the County of L. when he had nothing in the Land: And yet it was held, that although the first Delivery was void to pass a Thing, yet it was his Deed, and the second Delivery was void. Cro. Eliz. 483.

If a Corporation makes a Deed to J. S. and a Letter of Attorney to J. D. to deliver the Deed and the Possession, (then in the Hands of two Tenants) the Attorney enters into the Possession of one of them, and there delivers the Deed, and afterwards he does the like in the Possession of the other; this is without Question good for the Land in the Possession of the first, and so for the other, if they be only Tenants at Will; but if Tenants for Life or Years, it is doubtful, for a Deed may not have a double Delivery. Cro. Eliz. 181.

If a Deed becomes void by Disagreement, as where one covenants with two Covenantees to stand seised of Land, and one of the Covenantees gives Notice that he utterly refuses, and thereupon the Covenantor rases out his Name every where, and puts in another Name; this Deed will not be good without a second Delivery of it. Moor, Case 448.

Delivery of a Deed as an Escrow.

The Delivery of a Deed as an Escrow, is where one makes and seals a Deed, and delivers it to a Stranger until certain Conditions be performed, and then to be delivered to him to whom the Deed is made to take Effect as his Deed. Cro. Jac. 86.

And so a Man may deliver a Deed, and such a Delivery is good, but in this Case two Cautions must be heeded:

First, That the Form of Words used in the Delivery of a Deed in this Manner be apt and proper.

Secondly, That the Deed be delivered to one that is a Stranger to it, and not to the Party himself to whom it is made. Lane 6. Dyer 24. Cro. Jac. 86. Cro. Eliz. 835, 884, 520.

The Words therefore that are used in the Delivery must be after this Manner: I deliver this to you as an Escrow, to deliver to the Party as my Deed, upon Condition that he deliver you

201. for me; or upon Condition that he deliver up the old Bond he hath of mine for the same Money, or as the Case is; or else it must be thus: I deliver this as an Escrow to you to keep until such a Day, &c. upon Condition, that if before this Day he to whom the Escrow is made shall pay to me 10l. or give to me a Horse to enfeoff me of the Manor of Dale, (or perform any other Condition) that then you shall deliver this Escrow to him as my Deed. Kelw. 88, 14 H. 8. 22. Perk. §. 140. 9 Co. 137. Co. Lit. 36, 48. 3 Co. 835. Lane 6.

But if when I shall deliver the Deed to the Stranger, I shall use these or the like Words, I deliver this to you as my Deed, and that you shall deliver it to the Party, upon certain Conditions; or I deliver this to you as my Deed, to deliver to him to whom it is made when he comes to London; in these and such like Cases the Deed takes Effect presently, and the Party is not bound to perform any of the Conditions. Cro. Jac. 85.

An Escrow must be delivered to a Stranger; for if I seal my Deed, and deliver it to the Party himself to whom it is made as an Escrow upon certain Conditions, &c. In this Case let the Form of the Words be what it will, the Delivery is absolute, and the Deed shall take Effect as his Deed presently, and the Party is not bound to perform the Conditions; for In traditionibus Chartarum non quod dictum sed quod factum est inspicitur. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 4, 13, 15. Perk. §. 140, 141, 142, 138, 143.

But in the Cases before, where the Deed is delivered to a Stranger, and apt Words are used in the Delivery thereof, it is of no more Force until the Conditions be performed than if I had made it, and laid it by me, and not delivered it at all; and therefore in that Case, although the Party gets it into his Hands before the Conditions be performed, yet he can make no Use of it at all, neither will it do him any good. Ibid.

But when the Conditions are performed, and the Deed is delivered over, then the Deed shall take as much Effect as if it were delivered immediately to the Party to whom it is made, and no Act of God or Man can hinder to prevent this Effect then, if the Party that makes it be not at the Time of making thereof disabled to make it. He therefore that is trusted with the Keeping and Delivery of such a Writing, ought not to deliver it before the Conditions are performed, and when the Conditions are performed, he ought not to keep it, but deliver it to the Party according to the Authority to him given. 3 Co. 35. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 13.

For it may be a Question, whether the Deed be perfect before he hath delivered it over to the Party according to the Authority given him.

Although an Escrow is well delivered into a third Man's Hand, yet if either of the Parties to the Deed dies before the Conditions be performed, and the Conditions be after performed, the Deed is good, for there was traditio inchoata in the Life-time of the Parties, & postea consummata existens by the Performance of the Conditions, it takes Effect by the first Delivery without any new or second Delivery, and the second Delivery is but the Execution and Consummation of the first Delivery. And therefore if an Infant or Woman Covert deliver a Deed as an Escrow to a Stranger, and before the Conditions are performed the Infant is become of full Age, or the Woman is become Sole, yet the Deed in these Cases is not become good; and if she be Sole at the first, and Covert at the last, yet it is good, and not avoided by the Marriage; and yet if a Disseisee makes a Deed purporting a Lease for Years, and delivers it to a Stranger out of the Land as an Escrow, and bids him enter into the Land, and deliver it as his Deed, and he does so, this is a good Deed, and a good Lease; so that to some Purposes it has Relation to the Time of the first Delivery, and to some Purposes not. 3 Co. 35, 36. Perk. §. 9.

In Case where a Deed is merely void and takes no Effect by its first Delivery, as where a Woman Covert seals and delivers a Deed, or the like, and she after being Sole after her Husband's Death delivers the Deed again, in this Case the Deed is become good.

So where a Deed originally good doth become void by Matter ex post facto, as by breaking the Seal, or the like, if the Party to the Deed seals and delivers it again, by this Means the Deed is become good again.

But regularly there may not be two Deliveries of a Deed, for where the first Delivery takes any Effect at all, the second Delivery is void. Perk. §. 154. 11 H. 6. 24.

And therefore it is held, that an Infant, or a Man by Duress of Imprisonment, makes, seals and delivers a Deed, &c. (in which Cases the Deed is not void but voidable) and after the Infant being of full Age, or the Man imprisoned being at large, delivers this Deed again the second Time; this second Delivery is void, Debile fundamentum fallit opus. Perk. §. 154. 5 Co. 119. Cro. Eliz. 37, 483. Dyer 51.

So if a Man be disseised, and makes a Lease for Years in Writing, and delivers the Deed, and after delivers it upon the Ground; this second Delivery is void, for the first Delivery made it his Deed; but if he had delivered it as an Escrow to be delivered as his Deed upon the Ground, this had been a good second Delivery. Co. Lit. 48.

Although

Although a Writing or Escrow that is not sealed and delivered in Manner as aforesaid may not be used nor pleaded as a Deed, yet it may serve and be used as an Evidence and Proof of the Agreement contained therein; and whatsoever may be done by Word without Writing, may much more and better be done by Writing unsealed or sealed, though it be not delivered as aforesaid.

C H A P. V.

Of the formal or constituent Parts of Deeds, and the Ceremonies used on the Execution thereof.

S E C T. I.

Of the Parts of Deeds in general.

IN every Deed there are two considerable Parts:

1. The external or material Part, that is, the Vellum, Parchment or Paper, Writing and Wax, which are treated of in the last Chapter, §. 2, 3, 10. as Things incident to a good Deed.

2. The internal or intellectual Part, that is, the Sense, Virtue and Operation of the Words therein contained, relative to the Matter intended to be conveyed, &c. which is chiefly the Subject of this Chapter, treated under the formal and constituent Parts of Deeds.

Deeds for the most part consist of these formal and orderly Parts, viz. the Premises, Habendum, Tenendum, Reddendum or Reservation, Condition, Warranty and Covenants; but all these are not essential Parts of a Deed, for a Deed may be good although it has not all these Parts, or it be not drawn and made in so formal and orderly a Manner.

S E C T. II.

Of the Premises.(A) Premises, what.

THE Premises of a Deed is all the Forepart of the Deed, or all that is written before the Habendum.

And yet the Word Premises is sometimes taken for the Thing granted, &c. by a Deed; as, in the Habendum, &c. after a Recapitulation of the Things granted, &c. it is usual to say, And all and singular other the Premises hereby granted, &c.

A Man makes a Lease for Years of a Farm, (except one Close called N.) the Lessee covenants to do several Things concerning the Premises; the Word Premises shall not extend to the Close excepted, but only to that which is prædimissa. 11 Co. 50. b. 51. a.

(B) The Office of the Premises.

THE Office of the Premises in a Deed is twofold:

First, To name rightly the Person who makes the Deed; as the Feoffor, Donor, Lessor, &c. and the Person to whom it is made; as the Feoffee, Donee, Lessee, &c. Concerning this see the last Chap. §. 5, 6. & infra.

Secondly, To comprehend the Certainty of the Thing to be conveyed by the Deed, either by express Words, or such as by Reference may be reduced to a Certainty; (and as to this see the last Chapter, §. 9.)

The Premises is to express the Certainty of the Thing granted, and the Habendum is to express the Quality of the Estate.

A Bargain and Sale by Indenture without expressing to whom, although the Habendum be to A. B. who is Party to the Deed, is not good; because the Office of the Habendum is only to limit an Estate, and not to give any Thing, and there ought to be Grantor and Grantee in the Premises of the Deed, otherwise it is void. Cro. Eliz. 903. pl. 6. 585. pl. 15. Moor, Case 1236.

There

There is a Diversity between an Estate implied in the Premises, and an Estate expressed; for if A. grants a Rent to B. generally, this by Implication and Construction in Law is for Life: But if the Habendum is for Years, this is good, and qualifies the Generality and Implication of the Premises. 2 Co. 14. a. 24, 25. 8 Co. 154. Hob. 170. Co. Lit. 183. 2 Roll. Abr. 65, 66. Cro. Eliz. 254.

The Premises shall stand although the Habendum is repugnant thereto and void; as if a Man enfeoffs another, and in the Premises gives to him and his Heirs, Habendum to the Feoffee and his Heirs for twenty Years or Life; this Deed shall take Effect by the Premises, and not by the Habendum, for by the Premises and Livery a Fee is given, and the Habendum is void. 2 Co. 23. b. 24. a.

If in the Premises I enfeoff A. and B. of two Acres, Habendum one of the Acres to A. and the other to B. the Habendum is void. 3 Leon. 126. Case 178. vide Hob. 172.

If a Man grants a Term Habendum after his Death, this passes by the Premises; for the Premises are sufficient to carry it, and the Habendum shall not destroy it. Cro. Eliz. 255. pl. 27. Dyer 272.

(C) The Contents of the Premises.

AS the Premises in a Deed is all that is written before the Habendum, it generally contains, (1) The Date, (1) The Parties Names and Description, (3) The Recital, (4) The Consideration, (5) The Receipt, (6) The Grant, &c. (7) The Things granted or conveyed, and (8) The Exception.

(D) The Date.

THE Date of a Deed is the Description of the Time in which the Deed is made, which is done by the Day of the Month and the Year of the King's Reign, or the Year of our Lord, or by both the Year of the King's Reign and Year of our Lord.

It is either placed at the Beginning of the Premises, or at the End of the Consequence or Conclusion of the Deed.

In Deeds indented it is seldom (if ever) put any where else but at the Beginning, thus:

This Indenture made the 26th Day of March in the 19th Year of the Reign of, &c. and in the Year of our Lord 1746.

But in Deeds Poll the Date is usually in the Conclusion, or the In cujus rei Testimonium, &c.

Anciently the Date of a Deed was many Times omitted, and the Reason thereof was, that the Limitation of Prescription or Time of Memory did often in Process of Time change; and then it was held for Law, that a Deed bearing Date before the limited Time of Prescription was not pleadable, and therefore they made their Deeds without Date, to the End they might alledge them within the Time of Prescription. But the Date of Deeds was commonly added in the Reigns of Edward the Second and Edward the Third, and so ever since. Co. Lit. 6. a.

(E) The Parties Names and Addition or Description.

THE Parties or Persons contracting are the very efficient Causes of the Instruments or Deed of Conveyance, for by their Consent they are agreed upon and made.

And such Persons are either active or passive.

1. An active Person in a Deed is he who makes it, or gives, grants, enfeoffs, demises, releases, confirms, parts with, covenants or promises any Thing, or shortly he who makes any Contract or Bargain to or with any other, and is named according to the Contract: As the Donor, Grantor, Feoffor, Lessor, Releasor, Confirmor, Bargainor, &c.

2. A passive Person in a Deed is he to whom it is made, and who takes thereby, who is likewise differently named, according to the several Natures of the Contracts to or with them made; as Donee, Grantee, Feoffee, Lessee, Releasee, &c.

In regard to the Parties two Things are to be particularly observed, viz. their Capacities and Names, Addition or Description.

First, As to their Capacities, the active Persons who make any Deeds should be Persons able to do it, or void of all Impediments, either Natural or Civil. Of which see the last Chapter, §. 4. And the passive Persons to whom Deeds are made should be no ways disabled to take by Deed, Of which see the last Chapter, §. 6.

And Secondly, As to the Names and Addition or Description of the Parties, it is requisite that they should be certainly named by their Names of Baptism and Surnames, with law-ful ful and sufficient Additions of Place, Estate, Degree, Mystery or Occupation, to distinguish them from all other Persons of like Name, whether such Person be King, Prince, Duke, Marquis, Earl, Viscount, Baron or Lord, which are Names of great Nobility and Honour: Or he be a Baronet, Knight, Esquire or Gentleman, which as a Distinction are termed Names of less Nobility or Honour: Or he be a Yeoman, Husbandman, Artificer or Labourer: Or else if he be any ecclesiastical Person, as Archbishop, Bishop, Archdeacon, Dean, Parson, Vicar, Clerk, &c. Or if it be any Corporation, or Body Civil or Politick, having Covent and common Seal, as Bailiff and Burgeses, Mayor and Commonalty, or other Fraternity, &c. See the last Chapter, §. 5, 7.

The Names and Descriptions of the Parties are generally written in this Manner: This Indenture made, &c. Between A. B. of the Parish of — or of S. (a Town or noted Place) in the County of — Gent. of the one Part, and C. D. of the same Place, of the Parish of — ( &c. as the Case is ) in the County of — Yeoman, of the other Part. For more Examples see the Second Part.

(F) The Recital.

Recital, what.

A Recital is the Setting down or Report of something done before. As of Deeds, Wills, &c. shewing the Derivation of a Title intended to be conveyed, and of many other Things. Of which see the Second Part, Tit. Recital.

Where placed.

The Recital usually follows the Names and Descriptions of the Parties thus: Between A. B. of, &c. and C. D. of, &c. Whereas one V. S. late of, &c. in and by his last Will and Testament, bearing Date the — Day of — which was in the Year, &c. (after Payment of his Funeral Expences, &c. therein particularly mentioned) did give, &c. Relation, &c. And whereas, &c. See the Second Part.

Where needful or not.

When a Man is to take any new Estate from the King of a Thing whereof there is an Estate in Being, there the former Estate if it be good and of Record must be rehearsed and recited in the Deed, or else the second Grant will not be good; but in case of a common Person there needs no such Recital; neither when a Man is to derive an Estate out of a former, or assign over a Term of Years, is it needful there should be any Recital of the former Estate in Being. Shep. Touch. 76. Yet it is frequently done.

Where Mis-recital will hurt a Deed.

If one recites or rehearses an Estate made for Term of Years, and then after grants over that Term to another, and mistakes in the Recital, this Mistake may make all void.

As if a Fieri Facias come to a Sheriff to levy a Debt, and he by Writing recite, that the Defendant hath a Term of Years, and then grants over that Term to another, and mistakes in the Recital, this Mistake may make all void; as if a Fieri Facias comes to the Sheriff to levy a Debt, and he by Writing recites that the Defendant has a Term of Years, and supposes it to begin 1 May 2 Jac. when in Truth it begins the 20th of August, and then sells the same Term; in this Case the Sale is void, but if he adds these Words in the Deed, And all the Interest that the Defendant had in the Land; or if he sells it for a certain Number of Years only, this Grant may be good notwithstanding the Misrecital. Shep. Touch. 77.

If one recites a former Lease to be made such a Day to J. S. and then makes a new Lease to begin after the End of the former Lease, and mistakes the Date of the old Lease; in this Case the Deed is good notwithstanding the Mistake. Ibid.

If one grants a Reversion, and in reciting the Lease in Possession mistakes the Date of it only, and recites all the Rest truly; this will not hurt the Grant, no more than where a Man recites that such Land came to him by Forfeiture, and then grants it by Name, for in this Case altho' it did not come to him by Forfeiture, but by Surrender, yet this Mistake will not hurt; and yet in Case of the King such a Misrecital may make the Grant void. Ibid.

If I grant to J. S. all the Lands in Dale which I purchased from J. D. or which came unto me by Descent from J. D. or I give all my Goods to J. S. which I have as Executor to J. D. and in Truth I have no such Lands or Goods, but I had them by some other Means, or of some other, in these Cases and by this Mistake the Deed is void; but if I grant to J. S. all my Lands in Dale by Name, as Whiteacre, which I purchased of J. D. and in Truth I did purchase them of another, in this Case this Mistake will not hurt the Deed; so if I grant twenty Loads of Wood in Dale in the great Wood which I had of the Grant of my Father, but of the Grant of another, in this Case the Grant is void. Ibid.

If I recite by my Deed, that I am possessed of such an Interest in certain Lands, and assign it over by the same Deed, and thereby covenant to perform all Covenants in the Deed, if I be not possessed of such Interest the Covenant is broken. Leon. Case 164.

A Recital often is put at the End of the Parcels, of which vide post.

(G) The Consideration.

THE Consideration is the Motive or Cause why a Deed is made.

It may be of Money, Goods, natural Affection, &c. which is most commonly and properly expressed in the Premises, though it may be put in the Consequence, and in some Cases it may be omitted. 1 West. Symb. §. 55.

If in the Premises it is expressed in this Manner: This Indenture made, &c. Between, &c. (Whereas, &c. if there be Recitals) Witnesseth, that for and in Consideration of the Sum of — Pounds of lawful British Money by him the said C. D. to him the said A. B. in Hand paid, before the Sealing and Delivery of these Presents.

See more concerning Considerations in the next Chapter, where each Sort of Deeds are particularly treated.

(H) The Receipt.

A General Receipt for the Consideration is sufficient; but if the Sum is large, as a valuable Purchase for the Land, there if the Deed is called in Question whether fraudulent or no, it is absolutely necessary to prove either Payment of the Money, or a Receipt under Hand and Seal, or else endorsed on the Back of the Deed. 1 Leon. 130. Moor 304. 1 Lev. 308.

The Receipt for the Consideration Money is usually contained in the Deed thus: — For and in Consideration of the Sum of — Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, by him the said C. D. to him the said A. B. in Hand paid, before the Sealing and Delivery of these Presents; the Receipt whereof he the said A. B. does hereby acknowledge, and thereof acquit and discharge the said C. D. his Heirs, Executors and Administrators.

Yet notwithstanding this Sort of a Receipt is contained in the Premises of the Deed, it is the common Practice likewise to endorse a Receipt, which is signed by the Receiver, and witnessed. See the Form in the second Part.

(I) The Gift, Grant, &c.

SUCH Words must be used in every Instrument, as the Nature of the Contract requires they should be agreeable to such Words as are requisite and expressed in the other Parts of the Deed.

In Feoffments, Feoffavi, Dedi, or Concessi; or Hath given, granted, enfeoffed and confirmed; and by these Presents Doth give, grant, enfeoff and confirm, &c.

In a Bargain and Sale, Barganizavi & Vendidi. Or thus: Hath granted, bargained and sold; and by these presents doth grant, bargain and sell.

The Words Demise and Grant have been adjudged to amount to a Bargain and Sale without other Words. Vent. 141. Mod. 1. Cro. Fitz. 166.

Although it is good and very proper, that the Words Bargain and Sale should be in the Deed, they being the Words mentioned in the Statute of Inrolments, or the 27 H. 8. c. 16. yet they are not absolutely necessary, for other equivalent Words may be used to take Effect by that Statute: For whatsoever Words upon valuable Considerations would have raised an Use at Common Law, the same amount to a Bargain and Sale within the Statute; as,

Where a Man by Deed indented and inrolled covenants in Consideration of Money to stand seised to the Use of his Son in Fee; this by Reason of the Inrolment is a good Bargain and Sale, and yet there is not one Word of Bargain and Sale in the Deed. 2 Inst. 672. Carter 66, 78. Cro. Jac. 210. Cro. Eliz. 166.

In Gifts. Hath given, granted and confirmed; and by these Presents Doth give, grant and confirm.

In Leases. Hath demised, granted and to Farm letten; and by these Presents Doth demise, grant and to Farm let and set.

In a Lease and Release.

First, As to the Lease, or rather Bargain and Sale. Hath granted, bargained, and sold; and by these Presents Doth grant, bargain and sell unto the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns.

The Word Grant will make the Land pass by way of Use. 2 Mod. Rep. 252, 253.

If the Words Bargain and sell, in Consideration of Money be in the Lease, an Use will arise by the Statute of Uses.

So if in Consideration of Money one doth Demise, &c. Mod. Rep. 262, 263.

Secondly,

Secondly, As to a Release, Remisi or Relaxavi; or Hath granted, bargained, sold, remised, released, and for ever quitted claim and confirmed; and by these Presents Do grant, bargain, sell, remise, release, and for ever quit claim and confirm.

The Words Remise, Release and Quit-claim, are necessary in every Release; they are Littleton's Words in §. 445.

But there are other Words of Release, as Renunciare & Acquietare.

So likewise if the Lessor grants to the Lessee for Life, that he shall be discharged of the Rent, this is a good Release. Lit. §. 532. Co. Lit. 264. b.

In a Confirmation, Confirmavi, Ratificavi; or Have granted, ratified and confirmed; and by these Presents Do grant, ratify and confirm unto (the said) C. D. (of, &c.)

The Word Demise may amount to a Confirmation. Lit. Rep. 270. Plow. 187. Dy. 178.

The Words Dedi, Concessi & Confirmavi, are as good, and Work without Livery. Lit. Ten. §. 531. Lit. Rep. 270. Co. Lit. 301. 2 Sand. 96, 97.

Volo, that the Lessee for Years shall have for his Life, is a good Confirmation. Lit. Rep. 270.

In a Surrender. Have granted and surrendered; and by these Presents Do grant and surrender to, &c.

In an Assignment. Hath granted, bargained, sold, assigned and set over; and by these Presents Doth grant, bargain, sell, assign and set over.

For more relating to Words required by Law, see the last Chapter, §. 9.

(K) The Things granted or conveyed.

AS to the Matters, Things and Facts, of which Instruments are to be made, I have in the last Chapter, §. 8. made a copious Division, and in §. 9. treated of apt Words required by Law to express those Things, therefore less is necessary to be mentioned here.

I being now come to that Part of the Premises where the Things conveyed are named and described, it may be proper to make the following Observations:

First, All that is conveyed must be set down; for if any Thing more be put down in the Habendum than is in the Grant in the Premises of the Deed, it will not pass.

Secondly, The Things conveyed should be set down in Order.

1. The more worthy Things before the less worthy; as a Manor before a Messuage, a Messuage before Land, Arable Land before Meadow, and Meadow before Pasture, &c.

2. General Things before special Things.

3. Particular Things after this Order: (1) A Messuage, (2) A Tost, (3) A Mill, (4) Barns and Out-buildings, (5) Gardens, (6) Orchards, (7) Arable Land, (8) Meadow, (9) Pasture, (10) Wood, (11) Furze and Heath, (12) Commons and Rents.

This is not necessarily required, for a Deed may be good in Law if they be otherwise placed.

Thirdly, If there be a Certainty in the Thing granted, as it is described, and it can by any circumstantial Matter within the Grant be found out, although there be not an orderly and formal Description of it by the Quality of the Thing, the Boundaries, &c. yet the Deed herein may be good, and the Thing may pass well enough.

However, it is best that the Things granted be carefully set down, and certainly described, by the Quality, Quantity and Situation thereof, and by any Thing else that may ascertain it; for Omissions and Misnaming of Things are dangerous; and if any Thing granted be altogether incertain, and not reducible to a Certainty, the Grant will be void in that Part, and nothing will pass.

Fourthly, Any Thing may be granted by the Name whereby it is and has been usually called within nine or ten Years, although it be an improper Name, or not its first or true Name.

Fifthly, By the Grant of any House, Land, or the like Thing in Possession, the Reversion thereof, and the Rent reserved upon any Estate made thereof, will pass.

Sixthly, If the Thing granted be named only in the Habendum and not in the Premises, it will not pass.

Seventhly, By the same Words as Things may be excepted they may be granted.

This Part of the Premises follows the Words of the Grant or other Deed, thus: Hath granted, &c. and by, &c. Doth grant, &c. unto the said C. D. his, &c. All that Messuage or Tenement, &c. with their and every of their Appurtenances, situate, lying and being in E. in the Parish of F. in the County of G. late in the Tenure or Occupation of H. and now in the Tenure or Occupation of, &c. adjoining Eastward to, &c. together with, &c. Vide a great Variety of Forms in the second Part.

It is usual in this Part of the Deed after the Grant of the Things in particular, and before the general Words, (as well as after the Names and Additions of the Parties before mentioned) to interpose by way of Recital, from whom the Lands, &c. came to him that makes the Deed, in this or the like Form, (All which said Premises were heretofore in the Possession of one L. M. and by him conveyed to O. B. and his Heirs, by whom the same were afterwards conveyed to the said A. B. and his Heirs.)

For more Examples see the second Part.

As to Recitals, observe, that,

1. It is very necessary, that a Recital should be in the Premises in one of the Places before mentioned, to shew how the Land came from one to another, whereby the Grantee may know how to make good his Title to it; but where he has all the Title Deeds in his own Hands, there is no need of such Recital.

2. Great Care ought to be taken where any such Recital or Reference is made, that it be truly and rightly done, otherwise it will do more hurt than good.

3. The Deed is good without any such Recital.

The general Words used after the particular Words are safe and best to be used, for it is better to have too many than too few Words. The general Words sometimes begin—And all Houses, &c. Vide the second Part.

And sometimes the Words, And all the Estate, &c. are added; but this ought only to be when he who makes the Deed parts with all his Estate; for when he only grants a lesser Estate out of a greater, then to add such Words would be unreasonable and inconsistent.

This Part of the Premises generally concludes with these Words—Together with all Deeds, &c. Vide the second Part.

As to the Grant of Deeds in this Manner, observe,

1. That however Deeds generally will follow the Land, and without granting them the Purchaser will have them, yet it is not amiss to use this Clause, for one cannot be too sure and cautious.

2. It is reasonable, that the Purchaser should have all the Deeds, unless the Seller have more of the same Land, for then it is reasonable, that he keep them to defend the Title of his own Land, or unless he has granted them away.

Where the Title Deeds concern other Lands besides these now conveyed, the Vendor usually grants Copies of such Deeds.

(L) The Exception.

THE Exception is a Clause whereby the Donor, Feoffor, Grantor, or other Person i. Exception, contracting, excepts or takes a particular Thing out of a general Thing granted what or conveyed.

The Thing excepted is exempted and does not pass by the Grant, neither is it Parcel of the Thing granted; as if a Manor be granted excepting one Acre thereof, hereby in Judgment of Law that Acre is severed from the Manor.

An Exception excepts clearly, but a Saving does not. Carter 99.

A Saving never amounts to a Gift of any Thing. T. Raym. 359.

An Exception out of an Exception, or a Saving out of a Saving, makes a Thing as if it had never been excepted. Cro. Eliz. 372. pl. 19.

Rules and Examples concerning Exceptions in Deeds.

Rule 1.

It must be of such Thing as he who makes the Exception may have, and does belong to him. Of what it

For if the Exception be of such a Thing as the Grantor cannot have nor does belong to him by Law, as if a Lessee for Years assigns over all his Term in the Land, excepting the Timber-Trees, Earth or Clay, this Exception is not good. Shep. Touch. 79. 5 Co. 12. b.

But if a Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, or Lessee for twenty-one Years makes a Lease for twenty Years; or Tenant by the Curtesy, or in Dower, grants over their Estate, excepting the Timber-Trees, these are good Exceptions.

And if a Lessee for Life or Years opens a Coal Mine, and then assigns over his Estate, excepting the Mines, or the Profits thereof, these are void Exceptions. Shep. Touch. 79.

Rule 2.

It must not be the whole Thing granted, but a Part thereof only.

An Exception that goes to the whole Thing granted or demised, is a void Exception. Cro. Eliz. 6. pl. 2. 244. pl. 1.

As if one grants all his Lands in Lambhurst, except the Manor of Hodley, and he has no other Lands in Lambhurst than the said Manor, the Exception is void. Cro. Eliz. 6.

A Man cannot Grant an Estate, and reserve a Part of the Estate; as, to make a Feoffment in Fee, and reserve a Lease for Life; or grant an Advowson, and reserve the Presentation for his Life. Shep. Touch. 79.

The Exception must be of Part of the Thing, and not of Part of the Estate.

Rule 3.

Of what it must be.

The Thing that is excepted must be Part of the Thing granted before, and not of some other Thing.

The Exception is always of a Thing granted, and a Thing in esse, and not of a new Thing, which was not before mentioned or granted. Dyer 59. a. pl. 11.

If the Exception be of another Thing than the Thing granted; as if one grants a Manor or Land, excepting Twelve-pence, or excepting the Tithes, or excepting one Acre of Ground which is no Parcel of the Manor or the Land before granted;

Or if one grants the Land descended to him on the Part of his Father, excepting the Land descended to him on the Part of his Mother; these Exceptions are void. Shep. Touch. 78, 79.

Rule 4.

The Thing excepted must be of such a Thing as may be severed from the Thing granted, and not of inseparable Incidents. Dyer 59. a.

Exceptions of several Incidents are good.

But if inseparable Incidents; as if a Manor be granted, excepting the Court-Baron; or Land be granted, excepting the Common appendent thereto belonging; these Exceptions are void. Shep. Touch. 79.

A Grant of a Manor, excepting the Courts, is void, for a Manor cannot be without Courts. Hob. 101.

But a Man may grant a Manor, excepting any of the Demesnes and Services, so as a real Manor, not a reputative Manor, be left. Hob. 170.

If a Man has but one Close in Dale, and he grants all his Lands in Dale, excepting that one Close, this Exception is void. Hob. 170. Moor, Case 1239.

If a Man makes a Lease for Life of a Manor to which an Advowson belongs, and he excepts the Advowson, if he grants over the Reversion, the Advowson will not pass, because it is severed and dismembered from the Manor, and thereby is become an Advowson in Gross. 11 Co. 50. a.

But if one has a Manor in which he has Parks and Fish-ponds, and he grants the Manor for Life, except the Game and Fish, and afterwards grants the Reversion of the Manor, by this the Game and Fish will pass. 11 Co. 50. b.

If I let my Rectory, excepting the Glebe, it is a void Exception: So of a Lease of a Manor, excepting the Demesnes, for a Rectory cannot be without Glebe, nor a Manor without Demesnes. Winch 23.

Rule 5.

It must be of a particular Thing out of a general, or of a Part of an intire Thing, and not of a Particular out of a Particular, or the whole Thing itself granted.

If the Exception be of a particular Thing out of a particular Thing; as if one grants Whiteacre and Blackacre, excepting Blackacre; or grants twenty Acres of Land by particular Names, excepting one Acre of them; these Exceptions are void. Shep. Touch. 79.

For the Grant shall be taken most strongly against the Grantor. Carter 104.

An Exception of a Thing granted by a special Name in the Premises, is void; but it is good for a Thing granted in the Premises by general Words; and although it is by special Name excepted, yet the Exception is void. Moor, Case 1236.

A. lets to B. a Rectory for Years, excepting the Mansion-House of the Rectory, saving to B. (the Lessee) a Chamber; this is an Exception out of an Exception; which is good, and shall make it pass by Force of the Lease; for this Exception or Saving makes the Thing excepted, as if it never had been let: So a Saving out of a Saving, makes it as if it had never been excepted, and then it passes by Force of the Lease at first. Cro. Eliz. 372. pl. 19.

Rule 6.

Rule 6.

An Exception must be conformable to the Grant, and not repugnant thereto.

If it is repugnant to the Grant, it subverts it utterly and takes away the Fruit of it; as <sup>How it must</sup> if one grants a Manor or Land to another, excepting the Profits thereof; or makes a Feoff-<sup>be made.</sup>ment of a Close of Meadow or Pasture, reserving or excepting the Grass of it; or grants a Manor, excepting the Services; these are void Exceptions.

So if one grants his House, Chambers, Cellars and Shops, excepting his Shops; it is said this is no good Exception.

And if one grants his Meadow and Pasture Grounds, except his Meadow Grounds; this Exception is not good, no more than if one grants two Manors, or two Acres, excepting one of them.

And yet if a Man makes a Lease for Years of a Mill, excepting the Profits thereof during the Life of the Lessor; it is said, this has been adjudged a good Exception. Sed. 2. For the Exception of the Profits of a Thing is the Exception in Effect of the Thing itself. Shep. Touch. 79.

An Exception that crosses the Grant, or is repugnant thereto, is void. Hob. 72, 170. Vide Moor, Case 1236.

Rule 7.

The Thing excepted must be certainly described and set down. As,

If a Man grants all his Lands in Essex, saving, besides, or except his Lands in Dale; or all his Lands in Dale, excepting one House or one Acre in certain; or one House, excepting one Chamber in certain; these and such like Exceptions are good. Shep. Touch. 78.

And if one grants a Manor, excepting one Tenement, (Parcel of the Manor) or excepting the Services of J. S. (who holds of the Manor) or excepting one Close; or excepting one Acre; or excepting the Advowson Appendant; or excepting the Woods; or excepting twenty Acres of Wood; or excepting all the Gross Trees; these are good Exceptions. Ibid.

And if one grants a Messuage and Houses thereunto belonging, excepting the Barn, or excepting the Dove-House, it seems this is a good Exception; for they may pass by the Grant of a Messuage, &c. Ibid.

And if one grants Land, excepting the Timber-Trees thereupon, or excepting the Trees thereupon; or if a Man sells a Wood, excepting twenty of the best Oaks, and shews which incertain; these are good Exceptions. Ibid.

So if one has a Manor wherein is a Wood called the Great Wood, and he grants his Manor, excepting all the Woods and Underwoods that grow in the Great Wood, and all the Trees that grow elsewhere; this is a good Exception.

And if one grants a Messuage and all the Lands and Tenements thereunto belonging, excepting one Cottage; this is a good Exception.

And if one grants a Reversion, excepting the Rent; this is a good Exception of the Rent, and doth keep it from passing by the Grant.

So if a Man has a Rent-charge out of Land, and he releases his Right in the Land, except the Rent, the Exception is good.

So if the Lord releases to his Tenant Salvo Domino suo, &c. this is a good Exception.

If one grants all his Horses, except his White Horse; this is a good Exception of the White Horse.

If a Man be seised of a Manor, and lease it by Deed indented for Life, Exceptis & reservatis quod bene liceat to the Lessor succidere, dare & vendere omnes grossas arbores in dicto manerio crescentes, &c. it seems this is a good Exception of the Trees. Shep. Touch. 78.

If A. lets all his Land in D. other than Whiteacre, and all his Land in S. except Blackacre, for twenty-one Years, the Remainder to B. in Fee, except before excepted; I hold (says Tyrrel) Whiteacre passes; for the Grant shall be taken most strongly against the Grantor. Carter 104. So that the Exception is void for Incertainty.

A. lets the Manor of Sale, saving Whiteacre, to B. the Remainder to C. for twenty Years, saving Greenacre; the Remainder of all to D. except Dry Close; the Remainder to John a Stile of all, except before excepted. I think (says Tyrrell) in this Case all passes to John a Stile, except Dry Close. Carter 104.

Yet (says he) I grant, that if A. lets to B. all his Land in Sale, saving or reserving, or other than Whiteacre, the Remainder to C. except before excepted; in this Case I grant Whiteacre is excepted, because there is no Exception before, and the Exception would be vain and idle if it should not be so taken. Carter 104.

A Man

A Man made a Feoffment to divers Uses, excepting two Clofes, for the Life of the Feoffor only: It was adjudged that these two Clofes were excepted, and did descend (to the Heir at Law) either because the Exception was good, tho' the latter Part of the Sentence, viz. for the Life of the Feoffor only, was void, and therefore to be rejected; or the whole Exception was void because one intire Sentence; yet the Court agreed, that there was no Use limited of these two Clofes, which were intended to be excepted; for the Use was limited of the Manor, Exceptis præexceptis, which excluded the two Acres; for although there were not sufficient Words to except them, there was enough to declare the Intention of the Feoffor to be so. Vent. 106, 107.

If a Feoffment be made of a Manor, except Blackacre, to himself for Life only, Habendum, except before excepted, to the Use of B. in Tail, Blackacre shall not pass to B. in Tail. Lev. 287.

If a Man bargains and sells his Land in D. except what he shall afterwards devise; this Exception is void for the Incertainty. Hob. 72.

If Woods whereof a Præcipe lies (by the Name of so many Acres of Wood) be Parcel of a Manor, and I lease the Manor, excepting the Woods; by this the Soil whereon they grow is excepted. 11 Co. 49. b. Poph. 146.

By the Exception of Woods and Underwoods, the Soil itself whereon they grow is excepted. 5 Co. 11. a. Poph. 146.

But if I except all my Trees growing in the Manor; in that Case the Soil itself is not excepted. 11 Co. 49. b. Poph. 146.

In Exceptions of Woods and Trees observe these six Things:

First, That notwithstanding they are excepted, they are Parcel of the Inheritance; and by Demise for Years of the Manor they will pass, because the Freehold remains, and the Lessor remains Tenant to the Præcipe; but by a Demise for Life with such Exception à contra. 5 Co. 11. a. b. 11 Co. 50. a.

Secondly, That where the Exception is of the Trees only, the Soil itself is not excepted, but only sufficient Nutriment for the Trees.

One lets a Tenement or Close whereof was Wood, and commonly known by the Name of a Wood, and in the Lease was an Exception of all saleable Woods now growing, or which shall grow hereafter, which have been sold by the Lord of the Premises, with free Entry, Egress and Regress, for felling, making and carrying off the same at all Times convenient; in this Case the Soil was not excepted, but passed to the Lessee. Cro. Jac. 524.

Thirdly, That the Lessee shall have the Pasture growing under the Trees, vide the Case above.

Fourthly, That the Lessor shall have all the Benefit of the Trees. 11 Co. 50. a.

Fifthly, That he shall have the Fruits, and all other Profits of the Trees. 11 Co. 50.

Sixthly, That where the Lessor excepts the Trees, and afterwards he intends to sell them, the Law gives to him, and to those who buy them, Power, as an Incident to the Exception, to enter and view the Trees, and so to cut them down and carry them away. Lex est, cuicunque aliquis aliquid concedit, concedere videtur & id sine quo res ipsa esse non potuit, is a Principle in Law. 11 Co. 52. a. 13 Co. 68.

If a Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, excepting the Wood, Underwood and Trees growing upon the Land, it is a good Exception, although he has not any Interest in them but as Lessee, because he remains always Tenant, and is chargeable in Waste; wherefore to prevent it, he may make the Exception: But if Lessee for Years assigns over his Term with such an Exception, it is a void Exception. Cro. Jac. 296.

Rule 8.

In what Part of the Deed.
By what Words.

The Exception out of the Thing granted may be in any Part of the Deed, but it most commonly and properly succeeds the setting down of the Things granted, and is made by one of these Words, excepted or excepting, besides, saving, save only, excepted and always reserved, &c.

The Form may be in this or the like Manner: All that, &c. (describing the Things granted, as before, and then go on with the Exception) Saved and excepted to the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns for ever, out of this Feoffment or Grant, (or Grant, Bargain and Sale, &c.) All that Messuage, &c. And all and singular the, &c. always foreprised, excepted and reserved unto the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns. See the Second Part, Title Exceptions.

If a Lease be made, Provided that the Lessee shall not fell the Woods; this proviso is no Exception, but the Woods are demised. Brownl. 241.

Rule

Rule 9.

By the same Words whereby it may be well granted it may be well excepted.
See before (K).

Rule 10.

It may be made by other Words that carry the same Sense, but the Words before mentioned are the most proper.

The Words other than, will make an Exception; as in the Statute of Fines, 4 H. 7. which concludes thus—All Persons, except Feme Coverts, other than those that be Parties to the said Fine—Here other than makes an Exception out of an Exception. Carter 99.

S E C T. III.

Of the Habendum.

(A) Habendum, what.

THE Habendum is a Clause in a Deed, shewing what Estate the Grantee shall hold in the Thing granted.

It is so called from the Word Habendum, being the first Word in that Part of a Deed, when written in Latin.

An Estate may be made by a Deed without any Habendum at all; as if one gives or grants Land to another, and limits no Estate, without any Habendum in the Deed, and seals and delivers this Deed, and makes Livery accordingly; in both these Cases the Deed is good, and in the first Case an Estate in Fee-simple is made, and in the last Case an Estate for Life is made.

(B) The Office of the Habendum.

THE Office of the Habendum is to express the Certainty of the Estate which the Grantee, &c. is to have, for what Time, and to what Use.

It is to limit an Estate, and not to give any Thing.

It sometimes qualifies the Estate, so that the general Implication of the Estate, which by Construction of Law passes in the Premises, by the Habendum may be controlled; but not if the Estate is expressed in the Premises; as if a Man by Deed gives Lands by the Premises to one and his Heirs, Habendum to him for Life; this Habendum is void because repugnant to what is expressed; not if the Habendum had been to the Heirs of his Body. Wood, B. 2. c. 3.

But if the Estate had only been implied in the Premises; as if A. grants a Rent to B. generally in the Premises, the same by Implication and Construction in Law, is an Estate for Life; yet an Habendum for Years is good, and shall qualify the Generality and Implication of Law in the Premises. Ibid.

An Habendum may sometimes explain the Premises, to prevent Wrong; vide post. and sometimes enlarge the Premises; as if a Man gives Lands in the Premises to one and the Heirs of his Body, Habendum to him and his Heirs, he has an Estate-tail and a Fee-simple expectant; for when the Deed at first contains special Words, and afterwards concludes in general Words, both Words, as well general as special, shall stand. Ibid. Jones Rep. 4. 8 Co. 154. Dyer 160.

An Habendum may abridge the Premises. Jones Rep. 4. Vide Moor, Case 1236.

J. W. was seised in Fee of a House and Garden in L. and held it in Burgage, and by his Will devised it to M. his Wife for Life, and died; but before the making of his Will, he made a Deed of Feoffment to G. W. his Son, Habendum after the Death of the said J. W. the Feoffor to the said G. W. in Tail, and made Livery of Seisin secundum formam Chartae; the Feoffment was void, and nothing passed, and then the Will made afterwards was good; for when no Estate is expressed in the Beginning of a Deed, but only an implied Estate for Life, as here, and by the Habendum an express Estate is limited, this doth control the implied Limitation; and if this be void and repugnant in Law, as it is here, being after the Death of the Feoffor, all is void; but if there be an express Limitation in the Beginning, if the Habendum be repugnant, it is void, and the first is good; and although Livery be made, yet it is tied secundum formam Chartae, which is void, and so all is void, for it is but the Execution of a void Deed. Cro. Eliz. 254. pl. 27.

Sometimes the Habendum gives an Estate where nothing was given before. Plow. 160. a.

And sometimes it will alter the Estate given in the Premises. Ibid.

Sometimes it gives to a Person not named before. Ibid.

The Habendum shall never introduce one who is a Stranger to the Premises (3 Leon. Case 60.) to take as a Grantee, but he may take by Remainder. T. Raym. 145.

(C) What the Habendum should contain, where placed in the Deed, and by what Words expressed.

IT is necessary that the Habendum should comprize and include the Premises, and it must be consistent with that which is there expressed; for if it is not, the precedent Estate given by the Premises shall stand, and the Estate by the Habendum shall be void. Wood, B. 2. c. 3.

In it should be set down again the Name of the Grantee, the Estate that is to be made and limited, or the Time that the Grantee shall have in the Thing granted or demised, and to what Use, and therein sometimes, though needlessly, is set down again the Thing granted.

If the Name of the Grantee be not contained in the Premises, yet if it be in the Habendum it may be good enough; as if one gives or grants Land, Habendum to B. and his Heirs, and he is not named in the Premises, yet this is a good Deed to make an Estate in Fee-simple. And yet if the Thing granted be only in the Habendum and not in the Premises of the Deed, the Deed will not pass it; and therefore if a Man grants Blackacre only in the Premises of a Deed, Habendum Blackacre and Whiteacre, Whiteacre will not pass by this Deed; but if the Thing newly added be implied in the Thing granted by the Premises of the Deed, as being an Incident thereunto, or otherwise, or it be the same Thing, and expressed in other Words only, in these Cases the Premises and the Habendum may stand together; as if one grant a Manor, Habendum the Manor with the Advowson appendant to the Manor; or if one grant a Reversion of Land by the Name of the Reversion in the Premises, Habendum the Land itself, in both these Cases the Deed is good, and the Advowson and Reversion will pass. So also if Livery of Seisin be made of the Thing newly added, in this Case perhaps it might pass by the Livery.

And if the Thing granted be left out in all, or in Part in the Habendum, yet the Grant is good; and therefore if one grants Land to A. Habendum to A. his Heirs, &c. or if one grants Whiteacre and Blackacre to A. Habendum Whiteacre to A. and omit Blackacre, yet the Deeds are good, and all that is contained in the Premises of the Deed doth pass in both Cases. Shep. Touch. 75.

The Habendum may be placed in any Part of the Deed, and be good in Law, but the proper Place is immediately after the Premises, thus:

To have and to hold the said Messuage or Tenement, Lands and Premises, before by these Presents granted, bargained, sold, remised, released, quit-claimed and confirmed, or meant, mentioned or intended to be herein and hereby granted, bargained, sold, remised, released, quit-claimed and confirmed, and the Reversion and Reversions, Remainder and Remainders, Rents, Issues and Profits thereof, and of every Part and Parcel thereof, with their and every of their Appurtenances (except before excepted) unto the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns for ever, To the only Use and behoof of the said J. B. his Heirs and Assigns for ever; (or it may be thus, viz.) To the Releasee, &c. his Heirs and Assigns for ever, to the Uses, Intents and Purposes herein after mentioned, and to no other Use, Intent or Purpose whatsoever, viz. To the Use of, &c. and so declare the Uses. See the Second Part, Tit. Habendum.

If any Thing be excepted in the Grant in the Premises, it is best to mention it here by these Words, (except before excepted) as in the above Precedent.

(D) How the Habendum shall be construed; and how different Estates are limited according to the Words of the Habendum.

How Habendum shall be construed.

A Fee-simple pure.

THE Habendum, as all other Parts of a Deed, for the most part shall be taken most strongly against the Grantor, and most in Advantage of the Grantee, yet so as to be construed as near as possible to the Intent of the Parties.

If Land be granted to one and his Heirs until J. S. pays 100l. and J. S. dies before he pays it; in this Case the Estate is become a pure Fee-simple. Plow. 557. Shep. Touch. 101.

If Lands be given or granted to a Man, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, this is a Fee-simple pure, absolute and perpetual, and is made by these Words, his Heirs; for it is a general Rule, that the Words, his Heirs only, make an Estate in Fee-simple in all Feoffments and Grants. Co. Lit. 8, 9.

But

But this Rule hath many Exceptions; for if a Feoffment of Land be made to J. S. & hæredibus, without the Word suis; this is a Fee-simple.

And yet if the Grant be to J. S. and J. D. & hæredibus, without this Word suis, contra; Life. for this is only an Estate for their Lives.

And if Lands be given to a Bishop, Parson, or the like, To have and to hold to him Fee-simple. and his Successors; this is a Fee-simple.

And if Lands be given to a Mayor and Commonalty, or other Corporation Aggregate generally, without the Word Successors, or any other Word; or if Lands be given to such a Corporation for their Lives; this is a Fee-simple.

But if Land be given to a Parson, or the like, Habendum to him, without saying how Life. long; or Habendum to him for Life, by this he has no more than an Estate for Life. Shep. Touch. 101. Vide Lit. §. 1. Co. Lit. 8, 9, 15. 27 H. 8. 5. Perk. §. 239, 240, 241.

39 H. 6. 38. Plow. 28. Bro. Estates 4. 11 H. 7. 12.

And if Lands be given to the King generally, without any other Words, this is a Fee-simple. Co. Lit. 9. 6 Co. 27.

So if one grants Deo & Ecclesiæ de D. it is said this is a Fee-simple in the Parson of D.

So also of a Grant Ecclesiæ de D.

So if a Grant had been to the Monks of such a House, it had been a Fee-simple in the House.

And in like Manner it is in other Cases; as if one recites that B. has enfeoffed him of Whiteacre, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; and then he saith further, that as fully as B. hath given Whiteacre to him and his Heirs, he doth grant the same to C. by this C. the Grantee hath the Fee-simple of this Acre.

And if one grant two Acres to A. and B. To have and to hold, the one to A. and his Heirs, and the other to B. in forma prædicta; by this B. has a Fee-simple in this other Acre, for an Estate in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, may be made by such Words of Reference. Shep. Touch. 101.

Also if a Rent be granted between Parceners, to make an Equality of Partition, and it be granted generally and without any Words of Heirs, yet this is a Fee-simple.

So where Lands are given in Frankalmoine. Shep. Touch. 101.

And so also it is in the Cases of a Release of Right, a Fine and a Recovery. Shep. Touch. 102.

If one gives or grants Lands to another, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs Males, or to him and his Heirs Females; in both these Cases there is a Fee-simple made; but it is otherwise when these Words are in a Will, for then it is but an Estate in Tail only. Lit. §. 31. 11 Co. 46.

If one grants Land to one, To have and to hold to him and his right Heirs; by this he has a Fee-simple. Shep. Touch. 102.

And so it shall be taken if it be by Fine.

So if one grants Land to J. S. for Life, the Remainder to the Heirs, or to the right Heirs of J. S. this is a Fee-simple.

So if one makes a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself for Life, and after his Death to the Use of his Heirs; this is a Fee-simple.

If one grants Land to J. S. To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of J. S. this is a Fee-simple, and all one with a Grant to J. S. and his Heirs. Shep. Touch. 102.

If one grants Land to another, To have and to hold to him for twenty Years, and that after the twenty Years the Grantee shall have it to him and his Heirs by 10 l. Rent, and makes Livery of Seisin; by this the Grantee shall have the Fee-simple. Shep. Touch. 102.

If one grants Land to the Wife of J. S. To have and to hold to her for Life, and after to J. S. in Tail, and after to the right Heirs of J. S. by this J. S. has a Fee-simple. Ibid.

And if one grants Land to A. for Life, the Remainder to B. for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of A. by this A. has a Fee-simple.

If Land be granted to a Man and his Wife, To have and to hold to them and the Heirs issuing of them; this is a Fee-simple, and not a Fee-tail. Bro. Estates 86.

If Land be granted to one and his Heirs, by the Premises of a Deed, To have and to hold to him for Life; by this he has a Fee-simple. Shep. Touch. 102.

If Land be given or granted to one, Habendum to him and his Heirs, so long as he pays 20 l. yearly to J. S. and his Heirs, or so long as such a Tree doth stand, or the like; this is a qualified.

Kind of Fee-simple, but it is limited and qualified, and determinable upon this Contingent. Shep. Touch. 101.

If by the Premises of a Deed Land be granted to one and the Heirs of his Body, To have Fee-simple and to hold to him and his Heirs; by this he has an Estate-tail and a Fee-simple expectant, ex. e. stant. and so vice versa. Shep. Touch. 102.

If

If by the Premises of a Deed the Grant be to him and his Heirs, To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body; by this also he has an Estate-tail and a Fee-simple expectant. Ibid.

No Limitation of the Party can make a Freehold commence in futuro. 5 Co. 55. a. b.

Tenant in Fee cannot grant his Estate, Habendum after his Death; for then he would have a particular Estate in himself against the Rules in Law. Cro. Jac. 376. pl. 2. Cro. Eliz. 254, 255. pl. 27.

Fee-simple.

If Land be given to the Son, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs of the Body of his Father; by this the Son has a Fee-simple. Shep. Touch. 103.

Fee-tail.

If Lands be given or granted to a Man, To have and to hold to him and to the, or to his, Heirs of his Body, or to the, or to his, Heirs Males of his Body, or to the, or to his, Heirs Females of his Body; by this the Grantee has an Estate-tail. Shep. Touch. 102.

If Lands be given to a Man, To have and to hold to him and the Heirs Males, or to him and the Heirs Females of his Body begotten; the Grantee has an Estate-tail. Shep. Touch. 102.

If Lands be given to a Man and his Wife, To have and to hold to them and the Heirs Males, or them and the Heirs Females of their two Bodies begotten; by this they both have an Estate-tail.

And if Lands be given to them and the Heirs Males, or Heirs Females of the Body of the Husband begotten on the Wife; by this he hath an Estate-tail, and his Wife an Estate for Life only.

And if Lands be given to A. To have and to hold to him and his Heirs on the Body of B. begotten; by this A. has an Estate-tail, and B. has nothing. Shep. Touch. 103.

So if Lands be given to a Man and his Wife, To have and to hold unto them and the Heirs be shall beget on her Body; by this they have an Estate-tail in them both.

If Lands be given to a Man and his Wife and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband; by this the Husband hath an Estate in general Tail, and the Wife but an Estate for Life.

If Lands be given to him, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs be shall beget on the Body of his Wife; by this he hath an Estate-Tail, and she no Estate at all.

If one give his Land to his Daughter or Cousin in Frank-marriage, by this they have each of them an Estate-tail without any Word of Heirs or Heirs of the Body, &c. Shep. Touch. 103.

If one gives Lands to B. and his Heirs, To have and to hold to B. and his Heirs, if B. have Heirs of his Body; and if he dies without Heirs of his Body, that it shall revert to the Donor; by this B. has an Estate-tail. Shep. Touch. 103.

So if one gives Lands to B. and his Heirs, if he have Issue of his Body; by this he has an Estate-tail. Ibid.

So if Lands be given to B. To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, provided that if he dies without Heir of his Body, that the Land shall revert.

So if Lands be given to A. & B. uxori ejus & hered' eorum & aliis hered' ipsius A. si diu' hered' de diu' A. & B. exeunt' obierunt sine hered' de se, &c. by this they have an Estate-tail.

And so in all such like Cases where after a Limitation of a Fee-simple these or such like Words are added, viz. That if he dies without Heirs of his Body, the Land shall revert; for in all these Cases the Habendum is construed to be a Limitation or Declaration what Heirs are meant before.

If Lands be given to A. and B. (a Man and Woman unmarried) To have and to hold to them and the Heirs of their two Bodies; by this each of them has an Estate-tail, and if they marry, their Heirs may inherit it. Shep. Touch. 103.

But if the Words be, To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of the Body of the Father engendred; by this it is an Estate-tail in a Deed, as it is in a Will. Shep. Touch. 103.

And if the Father be dead, the Law is so also; but the Son shall have by this only an Estate for Life, except he be Issue in Tail to his Father per formam doni.

So if there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Father dies, and Lands be given to the Son, To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of the Body of the Grandfather; this is an Estate-tail in the Son, but neither the Father nor the Grandfather has any Estate in these Cases.

If Lands be given to J. S. and the Heirs of the Body of his Wife (being dead) begotten; by this J. S. has an Estate-tail. Shep. Touch. 103.

If one grants Lands to J. S. To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body issuing, the Remainder to J. D. and his Heirs in forma prædicta; by this J. S. and J. D. after him have each of them an Estate-tail.

If one grants Land to A. to have and to hold to him for Life, the Remainder to the first Son of A. and the Heirs Male of the Body of that first Son; by this the first Son has an Estate in Tail, and A. his Father but an Estate for Life only.

But if Lands be granted to A. for Life, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of A. by this A. has an Estate-tail in him. Shep. Touch. 104.

And if Lands be given to a Man and his Wife, To have and to hold to them and one Heir of their Bodies lawfully begotten, and to one Heir of the Body of that Heir; by this there is an Estate-tail made, yet so as it shall last only during the Lives of those two Heirs. Shep. Touch. 104.

If one grants Lands to another, To have and to hold to him and to his Heirs of the Body of such a Woman lawfully begotten; by this he shall have an Estate-tail, for begotten shall be intended by the Donee on that Woman. Co. Lit. 26.

If there be Husband and Wife, and they have Issue a Son and a Daughter, and Lands are given to the Wife, To have and to hold to her and the Heirs of her late Husband on her Body begotten; by this the Wife has an Estate for Life, and the Son an Estate in Tail, and if he dies without Issue, it shall go to his Daughter per formam doni. Co. Lit. 26.

If Lands be granted to the Husband of A. and Wife of B. To have and to hold to them and the Heirs of their two Bodies; by this they have each of them an Estate in Tail in them, for there is a Possibility that one Husband and Wife may die, and then the other Husband and Wife may intermarry. Co. Lit. 20.

If there be Father and Son, and Lands are given to the Father, To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of the Body of his Son; by this the Son has an Estate-tail, but the Father but an Estate for Life. Shep. Touch. 104.

If Lands be given to the Mother for Life, the Remainder to her Son and the Heirs of the Body of the Father on her begotten, (the Father being dead) the Son has an Estate-tail. Lit. §. 352. Shep. Touch. 104.

If Lands be granted to J. S. To have and to hold to him and the Heirs he shall happen to have of his Wife; by this he has but an Estate-tail, and no Fee-simple; and his Wife has no Estate at all. 12 H. 4.

If Lands be granted to J. S. and the Heirs that the said J. S. shall lawfully beget of his first Wife, and he hath no Wife at the Time of the Grant; by this he has an Estate-tail. Co. Lit. 20.

If A. has Issue by B. his Wife C. a Son, and D. a Daughter, and A. dies, and Lands are granted to B. To have and to hold to her and to the Heirs of her late Husband on her Body begotten; in this Case and by this Deed C. has an Estate-tail, and the Woman has only an Estate for Life, and if C. dies without Issue, D. his Sister shall have the Land per formam doni. Co. Lit. 26.

But if one grants Lands to A. late Wife to J. S. to have and to hold to the said A. and the Heirs of J. S. on the Body of the said A. begotten; in this Case the Son and Heir shall take no Estate by the Grant, and the same Construction shall be upon the same Words in a Will. Ibid.

If Lands be granted to the Husband and Wife, To have and to hold to them and the Heirs of the Body of the Survivor of them; by this the Survivor shall have an Estate-tail after the Death of the other. Co. Lit. 26.

If Lands be granted to J. S. To have and to hold to him & hæredibus de Carne sua, or hæredibus de se, or hæredibus quos sibi contigerit; in all these Cases J. S. has an Estate-tail, and no more. Co. Lit. 20.

If Lands be granted to Husband and Wife, to have and to hold to him and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, the Remainder to the Husband and Wife and the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, this Remainder is void; and therefore by this the Husband has an Estate in Tail, and the Wife a joint Estate for Life with her Husband, and no more. Co. Lit. 28.

If Lands be granted to J. S. and the Heirs of the Body of Jane a Noke begotten; by this J. S. has an Estate-tail, and no more. Co. 140.

If Lands be granted to J. S. & hæredibus de corpore procreatis; by this the Heirs that shall be begotten afterwards shall take. Co. Lit. 20.

And if Lands be granted to J. S. & hæredibus de corpore procreandis; by this the Heirs of his Body before begotten shall take per formam doni, as well as those that shall be begotten afterwards. Co. Lit. 20.

If one grant to J. S. that if he and the Heirs of his Body be not yearly paid 40s. that he or they shall distrain in the Lands of the Grantor; by this the Grantee has an Estate in Tail in the Rent: As if he grants to J. S. that if he and his Heirs be not paid, &c. that he or they shall, &c. he has a Fee-simple in the Rent. Co. Lit. 146.

Estate for Life. If one gives or grants Land to another, To have and to hold to him, or to him and his Assigns, and say not how long nor for what Time, and the Grantor makes Livery of Seisin according to the Deed, by this the Grantee has an Estate for his own Life; but if no Livery of Seisin be made, no Estate at all but an Estate at Will doth pass by this Deed; and if he that grants the Land be but a Lessee for Years of the Land, and he makes no Livery of Seisin upon the Grant, by this his Term of Years, and that Estate which he has is granted. Shep. Touch. 105.

But if he makes Livery of Seisin upon the Grant, then an Estate for Life of the Grantee will pass; and it is a Forfeiture of the Estate of the Lessee for Years, of which he in Reversion may take present Advantage.

And if one grants to another Common in his Land, when he doth put in his own Beasts, or Estovers in his Manor when he cometh there, and say no more; by this it seems the Grantee hath an Estate for Life. Ibid.

If one grants Land to J. S. To have and to hold to him or his Heirs in the Disjunctive; this is but an Estate for Life, and no more. 5 Co. 112. Co. Lit. 8.

So if one grants Lands to J. S. To have and to hold to him and his Heir in the singular Number; by this J. S. has only an Estate for Life, and no Fee-simple. Ibid.

If one bargains and sells Land to another for Money, and limits no Time, and expresses no Estate; by this the Bargainee shall have only an Estate for Life: But it was otherwise before the Statute for Uses, for then it had been a Fee-simple. Co. 87, 130. Plow. 539.

If Lands be granted to J. S. for Life, and after to the next Heir Male of J. S. and the Heirs Male of the Body of such next Heir Male; by this J. S. has but an Estate for Life; but if it be to the next Heirs Male of J. S. it is an Intail. Co. 66.

If one grants Land to J. S. To have and to hold to him in Fee-simple, or in Fee-tail, without saying to him and his Heirs, or to him and his Heirs Males, or the like; this is but an Estate for Life, and no more. 20 H. 6. 33.

So if one grants Land to J. S. To have and to hold to him and his Seed, or to him and his Issues generally, without more Words; by this is made only an Estate for Life: But in the Construction of a Will the Land is otherwise in most of these Cases. Co. Lit. 8, 20.

If Lands be granted to two & hereditibus, without the Word suis; by this they have an Estate for their Lives, and no longer. 20 H. 8. 35.

If one grants Lands to J. S. To have and to hold to him and his Heirs for his own Life, or for the Life of J. D. by this J. S. has an Estate for Life, and no more. 5 Co. 112. Co. 140.

If one grants Lands to A. and B. Habendum sibi & suis, omitting all other Words, or To have and to hold to them and their Assigns; by this they have an Estate for Life only.

So if Lands be granted to any natural Person, To have and to hold to him and his Successors; by this he has only an Estate for Life. 4 Co. 29. Co. Lit. 1, 8.

If one grants his Lands to J. S. to pay his Debts, To have and to hold to him generally, without limiting any Estate; in this Case J. S. has an Estate for Life only. 8 Co. 96.

If Lands be granted to A. and B. To have and to hold to them for their Lives, to the Use of C. for his Life; by this C. hath an Estate for his Life, if A. and B. live so long. Dyer 186.

If a Tenant in Tail grants totum statum suum; by this the Grantee has an Estate for the Life of the Grantor, and no longer.

And if a Lessee for Life grants all his Estate, hereby his Estate for Life doth pass, for this is as much as he can lawfully grant. Shep. Touch. 105.

If a Man has a Son and a Daughter, and he dies, and Lands be granted to the Daughter and the Heirs Females of the Body of the Father; by this she has only an Estate for Life. Co. Lit. 24.

If one grants Land to another, To have and to hold to her whilst she shall live Sole, or during her Widowhood, or so long as she shall behave herself well, or so long as she shall dwell in such a House, or so long as she shall pay 10l. yearly, or so long as the Coverture between her and her Husband shall continue; or one grants Lands to a Man, To have and to hold unto him until he shall be promoted to a Benefice, or the like; in all these Cases if Livery of Seisin be made according to the Deed, or if the Grant be of such a Thing whereof no Livery is requisite, the Grantee has an Estate for his Life, and no more, and that determinable also. Co. Lit. 42, 234, 235.

If one grants Lands to J. S. to have and to hold to him for Life, and doth not say for whose Life; this regularly shall be taken for the Life of J. S. the Lessee, and not for the Life of the Lessor.

But if the Lessor himself has but an Estate for Life in the Lands granted, then the Lease shall be construed to be and to enure during that Life only by which the Lessor did hold, to prevent prevent a Forfeiture. And if he that makes the Lease be Tenant in Tail of the Land, this shall be taken to be a Lease for the Life of the Lessor.

And if a Tenant for Life of Land makes a Lease for Years of it, and then grants his Reversion by the Name of a Reversion to another, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; by this he hath only an Estate for the Life of the Grantor, and no more.

So if Tenant in Tail of Land grants it to one for Years, and after grants his Reversion to another, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; this shall be construed to be an Estate for the Life of the Tenant in Tail, and no longer; and the Attornment of the Tenants in these Cases will not alter the Cases.

And so it is in Case of a Release also; as if Tenant in Tail doth release to B. (being Lessee for Years of the Land) all his Right to the Land, this shall be taken to enure but for the Life of the Tenant in Tail, and no longer; as if a Man retains a Servant, and says not how long, this shall be taken for a Year, Constructio Legis non facit injuriam. Co. Lit. 42, 183. Plow. 161. F. N. B. 168.

And if a Man by his Deed grants a Rent of 10*l.* issuing out of all his Land, Quarterly at the usual Feasts; this is an Estate for the Life of the Grantee. Shep. Touch. 107.

If one grants Land to J. S. and J. D. To have and to hold to them during their Lives, omitting these Words, and the longest Liver of them; yet they shall hold it during the Life of the longest Liver of them.

And if Lands be granted to A. To have and to hold to him during the Lives of B. C. and D. without any more Words; by this A. hath an Estate during all their Lives and during the Life of the longest Liver of them. 5 Co. 9. 11 Co. 3.

And if Lands be granted to A. To have and to hold to him during his Life, and during the Lives of B. and C. by this he has a Lease for his own Life and the Lives of B. and C. and the longest Liver of them. Shep. Touch. 106.

But if a Lease be made to J. S. of Land, To have and to hold to him during the Time that A. and B. shall be Justices of the Peace, or during the Time that A. or B. shall be of the Inner Temple, or the like; in these Cases the Failure of one doth determine the Estate. 38 Eliz. B. R. Ros and Adwick.

And if a Lease be made to B. only, To have and to hold to him and C. for their Lives; by this B. hath an Estate for his own Life only, and no more, and C. hath nothing at all. 8 Eliz. B. R. Hobart and Wisemore.

When no Time is set down for the Beginning of an Estate, then it shall begin presently, Estate for Years. otherwise it shall begin at the Time expressed, if that be not against Law.

If a Lease for Years be made bearing Date the twenty-sixth Day of May, To have and to hold for twenty-one Years from the Date, or from the Day of the Date; in these Cases the Leases shall begin on the twenty-seventh Day of May.

But if the Words be, To have and to hold from henceforth, or from the making hereof; in these Cases the Lease shall begin on the Day in which it is delivered.

And if it be to begin a die confectiois, then it shall begin the next Day after the Delivery.

And if it be, To have and to hold for twenty-one Years, without mentioning when it shall begin, it shall begin from the Delivery, if there be no former Lease in Being, and if there be, then it shall begin from the Time of the Ending of that Lease.

If the Deed has a Date which is void or impossible, as the 30th of February or 40th of March, and the Term be limited to begin from the Date, then it shall begin from the Delivery.

So if a Man by his Deed recites a Lease which is not existing, or which is void, or misrecite a Lease that is in esse in a Point material, and then say, To have and to hold from the End of the former Lease; this Lease shall begin in Course of Time at the Time of the Delivery of the Deed. Co. Lit. 46. 5 Co. 1, 2, 5. Dyer 286, 307.

If one makes a Lease of Land to A. for twenty Years, and then grants it to B. To have and to hold to him from the End of the first Term, &c. in this Case this second Lease shall begin as soon as the first Lease by what Means soever shall end.

But if the Words of the second Lease be, To have and to hold to him from the End of the twenty Years; in this Case the second Lease shall not begin until the twenty Years be expired.

And if one makes a Lease of Whiteacre to A. for ten Years, and of Blackacre to B. for twenty Years, and then reciting both the Leases makes a Lease to C. to begin after the former Leases; this shall be taken respectively, and shall begin for Whiteacre after the End of the ten Years, and for Blackacre after the End of the twenty Years. Co. 154. Plow. 198.

And.

And if one makes a Lease to two for sixty Years, provided that if the Lessees shall die within the Term, that then presently after the Decease, or the last of them longest living, the Lessor shall re-enter; and one of them dies, and after the Lessor makes a Lease to another, Habendum, &c. Cum post five per mortem sursum redd' vel forisfacturam of the first surviving Lessees, acciderit vacare for forty Years; in this Case this second Lease shall begin after the Death of the Lessee surviving, Re-entry of the Lessor, or the Effluxion of Time of the first Lease, which of them shall first happen, and the Lessee at his Election cannot make it to begin at any other Time. 6 Co. 36.

If a Man makes a Lease for thirty Years, and four Years afterwards makes another Lease to another Man in these Words: Noveritis, &c. me A. de B. prædictis 30 Annis finitis dedisse & concessisse B. de C. &c. Habendum a die consecutionis præsentium termino prædicto finito usque finem 31 Annorum; by this the second Term shall begin at the End of the thirty Years. Dyer 261.

And if one makes a Lease to A. for twenty Years, and after makes a Lease to B. To have and to hold to him from the End of the first Term for twenty Years, to be accounted from the Date of the last Deed; in this Case the second Lease shall begin at the End of the first Lease, and these Words, to be accounted, shall be rejected. Pas. 7 Jac. C. B. Craddock's Case.

If one makes a Lease of Land to A. for ten Years, and after by Indenture grants it to B. To have and to hold to him from Michaelmas next for ten Years; and afterwards the first Lessee purchases the Reversion, by which his Term is drowned; in this Case the second Lease shall begin presently when Michaelmas is come. Dyer 112.

If there be two Jointenants, and one of them grants the Land to J. S. To have and to hold to him for twenty Years, if the Lessor and his Companion so long live; by this the Lease shall continue no longer than they both live together, and when either of them is dead, the Lease is determined. Shep. Touch. 110.

And if one grants his Land to J. S. to have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. for the Term of one hundred Years, if A. B. and C. live so long, and leave out these Words, or either of them; in this Case if either of them dies, the Lease is determined. Ibid. 5 Co. 9.

But if the Words be, To have and to hold for one hundred Years, if A. B. or C. omitting or either of them, shall live so long, contra. Ibid.

If a Lease be made of Land to the Husband and Wife, To have and to hold to them for twenty-one Years, if the Husband and Wife, or any Child between them, shall so long live; this is a good Lease, and shall continue for all their Lives and for the Life of the longest Liver of them, although the first Words be in the Copulative. Shep. Touch. 110.

If one possessed of Land for a Term of Years grants the same to another, To have and to hold to him, his Executors and Administrators, or to him and his Assigns, or to him, without any more Words; or if a Man that is possessed of a Term grants his Lease to another, and does not say for what Time; in these Cases the whole Term is granted although no Livery of Seisin be made.

And in the first Case if Livery of Seisin be made, then it seems there passes an Estate for the Life of the Grantee; and therefore this is a Forfeiture of the Estate of the Lessee for Years, whereof he in the Reversion may take Advantage presently. Shep. Touch. 110.

And if a Lessee for Years of Land grants a Rent out of the Land generally, without any Limitation, this shall be construed to enure for a Grant of the Rent so long as the Estate of the Grantor continues.

But if he grants a Rent by express Words for the Life of the Grantee, by this the Grantee shall have it for all the Term, if he lives so long. Ibid.

If one grants Lands to J. S. To have and to hold to him for Life, reserving the first seven Years a Rent; and if he will hold the Land over, that he shall pay a Rent in Money, and no Livery of Seisin is made; by this it seems to be a Lease for seven Years until the Condition be performed, and then it is a Lease for no longer Time; and so perhaps it will be if Livery of Seisin be made. Co. Lit. 218.

If one grants a Rent of 5 l. per Ann. unto J. S. to have and to hold to him, &c. until he shall receive 20 l. in this Case he shall have a Lease for four Years of this Rent. Co. Lit. 42. Plow. 273.

If one makes a Lease for Life, and says, that if the Lessee within one Year pays not 20 s. that he shall have but a Term for two Years; by this if he doth not pay the Money, he hath only a Lease for two Years although Livery of Seisin be made upon it. Co. Lit. 218.

If one makes a Lease to J. S. To have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. for ten Years, if J. D. should live so long, and J. D. is dead at the Time when the Lease is made; in this Case J. S. hath an absolute Lease for ten Years. 9 Co. 60, 63.

If one grants Lands to J. S. To have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. for three Years, and so from three Years to three Years during the Life of J. S. or from three Years to three Years during the Life of the Lessee; by this J. S. has a Lease for six Years, and no more.

And if one grants Lands to J. S. To hold for three Years, and after the End of those three Years, for three other Years during the Life of the Lessor; by this J. S. has a Lease for nine Years, and no more.

And yet if in these and such like Cases where a Lease is made from so many Years to so many for the Life of any Person, and Livery of Seisin is made upon this Deed secundum formam Chartæ, this perhaps may be an Estate for Life. Plow. 273. Co. Lit. 45. Dyer 24.

If Lands be granted, To have and to hold from our Lady-Day, pro termino unius anni, & sic de uno anno in unum annum quamdiu ambabus partibus placuerit; by this the Grantee hath a Lease for three Years only in certain, and afterwards a Lease at Will.

And if Lands be granted, To have and to hold from the Nativity of Christ next, pro termino unius anni, & si in fine dicti unius anni ambæ partes placerent, quod eadem præsens demissio foret renovata, tunc habend' præmissa to the Lessee, &c. ab & post dictum festum Nativitatis Domini usque terminum trium annorum extunc prox' sequen'; by this the Grantee has a Lease in certain but for one Year only, and if the Parties agree again, a Lease for three Years.

14 H. 8. 10. 6 Co. 35. 10 Co. 106.

If one makes a Lease to J. S. To have and to hold to him for Years, and say not how many Years; by this the Lessee hath a Lease for two Years, and no more. 6 Co. 35.

21 H. 7. 38.

If one grants his Land to J. S. To have and to hold to him until J. D. shall come to twenty-one Years of Age; in this Case if J. D. dies before that Time the Lease is ended. 3 Co. 19.

If a Man possessed of a Term of Years of Land grants the Land to another and his Heirs; this by Construction will amount to a good Grant of his Interest. Co. 44.

7 H. 4. 42.

If Lands be granted to J. S. To have and to hold, &c. until he shall receive 20l. out of the Profits of it; in this Case if Livery of Seisin be made, the Grantee hath an Estate determinable upon the Levying of the Money, and if no Livery be made, he hath no Estate at all but at Will. Co. Lit. 42. Plow. 273.

If Lands be granted to Husband and Wife and to J. S. To have and to hold to them and to their Heirs of the Husband and J. S. by this the Wife has only an Estate for Life in a Moiety with her Husband, and the Husband and J. S. have the Fee-simple in Joint-tenancy to them and their Heirs. Dyer 263.

Limitations of different Estates to different Persons.

If Lands be granted to two Brothers, or two Sisters, or to a Brother or Sister, or to a Father and Son, or any others, To have and to hold to them and the Heirs of their Bodies begotten; by this they have joint Estates for their Lives, so that the Survivor of them will have the Whole for his Life, and several Inheritances, i. e. Estates in general Tail by Moieties in common one with another.

And if Lands be granted to two Men and their Wives and the Heirs of their Bodies begotten; in this Case they have joint Estates for Life, and afterwards the one Husband and Wife shall have the one Moiety, and the other the other Moiety in common.

And if Lands be granted to a Man and two Women, To have and to hold to them and the Heirs of their Bodies; by this they have each of them an Estate-tail common with the other. Shep. Touch. 111, 112.

If Lands be granted to Husband and Wife, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs of their Bodies issuing, or in such like Manner; by this the Wife has an Estate-tail as well as the Husband.

But if it be granted to them, To have and to hold to them and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, or to the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Husband which he shall have by his Wife, or in such like Manner; by this the Wife has only an Estate for Life, and the whole Estate-tail is in the Husband.

So vice versa, if Lands be granted to Husband and Wife and the Heirs of the Wife upon her Body begotten by the Husband; by this he has an Estate for his Life only, and his Wife the whole Estate-tail.

And if Lands be granted to the Husband, To have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body on the Body of his Wife begotten, or to have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body begotten on the Wife he shall first marry, or to have and to hold to him and his Wife he shall first marry, and the Heirs of their Bodies begotten; in these Cases the Husbands have the whole Estates, and the Wives nothing at all.

But it seems to be otherwise when the Estate is limited by way of Use to a Man and his Wife that he shall afterwards marry; for by this it seems the Wife shall take also.

T t t

If

If Lands be granted to A. a married Man, and to S. a married Woman, and to the Heirs of their Bodies engendred; by this they have each of them an Estate-tail presently executed, and whilst the Wife of the Husband and the Husband of the Wife live, they shall hold for their Lives; and if they happen to die, and these to intermarry and have Issues, their Issues shall have it according to the Intail. Shep. Touch. 112.

If Lands be granted to A. and B. To have and to hold to A. for Life, the Remainder to B. in Fee; by this A. shall have the Whole for his Life, and B. the Fee-simple afterwards. Dyer 56, 126.

(E) Where the Habendum is repugnant and void; and where not, but shall control, divide or expound the Premises.

AS touching this Matter these Differences are to be taken between Things that are granted, and between the Estates.

When the Things that are granted are such as lie in Grant and take Effect by the Delivery of the Deed only without any Ceremony, or take Effect by the same Ceremony, and when not, but another Ceremony is required to the Perfection of the Grant and Estate.

And when there is an express Estate made by the Deed in the Premises thereof, and when but an implied Estate only; as for Example,

If one grants Land, Rent, Common, or any such like Thing, to one and his Heirs, by the Premises of the Deed, Habendum to him for Life, or Habendum to him and to his Assigns, without more Words; in this Case the Habendum is repugnant and void, and by this the Grantee shall have an Estate in Fee-simple if Livery of Seisin and Attornment, as the Case requires, be duly made, for otherwise no Estate at all but at Will will pass.

So if a Man grants a Rent, or such like Thing that lies in Grant, to one and his Heirs, To have and to hold to him for Years; this is a void Habendum, and the Grantee shall have the Fee-simple.

But if a Man grants Land to another and his Heirs, To have and to hold to him for a certain Number of Years; in this Case whether he makes Livery of Seisin or not, it is a good Habendum; and by this the Grantee shall have an Estate for so many Years, and no more.

So if one grants Land, Rent, Common, or such like Thing, to one in the Premises of the Deed, without Limitation of Estate, (which in Judgment of Law is an implied Estate for Life), To have and to hold to him for a certain Number of Years, or at Will; this Habendum is good, and shall stand with the Premises, and qualify it as the Habendum is. Shep. Touch. 112, 113.

And if one grants Land by the Premises of a Deed to one and his Heirs of his Body, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; this Habendum shall stand, and this shall be taken to be an Estate-tail and a Fee-simple expectant. Co. Lit. 21. a.

So vice versa, if Land be granted to one and his Heirs, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs of his Body; this shall be construed an Estate-tail and a Fee-simple expectant, and so both shall stand together. Co. Lit. 21. a.

If Lands be given to B. and his Heirs, To have and to hold to B. and his Heirs, and if he dies without Heirs of his Body, it shall revert to the Donor; it seems this is a Fee-tail only, and no Fee-simple expectant. Voluntas donatoris in charta doni sui manifeste expressa observanda est. Co. Lit. 21. a.

If a Lease for Years be made of Land, and then the Lessor by the Premises of the Deed grants the Land to another, To have and to hold the Reversion of the Land to him, &c. for Life; this Habendum shall stand.

So if by the Premises of the Deed the Reversion be granted, To have and to hold the Land itself; this is good, and both shall stand together; but nothing is granted in either Case but the Reversion. 10 Co. 107, 108.

If the next Advowson of a Church be granted to three, To have and to hold to them and either of them jointly and severally; this is joint, and the Habendum is void. Dyer 304. 5 Co. 19.

And yet if one grants Land to two by the Premises of the Deed, To have and to hold to one of them for Life, the Remainder to the other for Life; this is not repugnant, but shall stand together and make the Estates several and in Remainder one after another. 2 Co. 55.

So if a Lease be made to two, To have and to hold the one Moiety to one and the other Moiety to the other; by this they have several Estates. Expressum facit semper cessare tacitum. Co. Lit. 183. Dyer 106.

If a Man has a Lease for Years of Land, and he reciting this by the Premises of the Deed, grants all his Estate in the Land, To have and to hold the Land, or the Term after his Death, or for Part of the Time only; in this Case the Habendum is void, and the whole Estate passes immediately by the Premises. Dyer 272. Plow. 520.

If a Tenant for Life surrenders a Moiety of his Land, and the Lessor grants it all to a Stranger, To have and to hold the one Moiety for Life, and the other Moiety for forty Years after the Death of the Tenant for Life; this Habendum shall stand and enure according to the Grant. Dyer 256.

If a Man seised of Land in Fee makes a Lease for Life of it to one, and after grants the Reversion of it to another, To have and to hold the Reversion and the Tenements aforesaid, cum post mortem, forisfacti, &c. vacare acciderit; in this Case the Habendum and Premises may stand together. Plow. 7 Jac. C. B. Shep. Touch. 114.

Parol Agreements and Conveyances have the same Construction for the most part made upon them, as are made upon Deeds in Writing.

And therefore if a Man by Word of Mouth, without any Writing, grants all his Lands in the Dale to J. S. To have and to hold to him for Life, but doth not say for whose Life; this shall have the same Construction as such a Grant made in Writing has. Shep. Touch. 114.

As the Office of the Habendum is to limit the Estate, so the general Implication of the Estate which passes by Construction of Law, by the Premises, is always controlled and qualified by the Habendum. 2 Co. 55. a. b. Cro. Eliz. 254. Hob. 171. 2 Roll. Abr. 66.

And although the Habendum is void, and so in Effect no Habendum, yet no Estate of Freehold shall pass by Implication of Law against the express Limitation of the Party. 2 Co. 55. a. b. Hob. 171.

If in the Premises of a Feoffment to B. A. gives to him and his Heirs, Habendum to the Feoffee and his Heirs for twenty Years, or Life; this Habendum is void, and the Deed shall take Effect by the Premises. 2 Co. 24. a.

An Habendum contrary to the Premises is repugnant and void; as if a Man in the Premises gives Land to one and his Heirs, Habendum for Life, the Habendum is void. 2 Co. 23. b.

When no Estate is expressed in the Premises, but only an implied Estate for Life, and by the Habendum an express Estate is limited, this controls the implied Estate for Life; and if this is void and repugnant, all is void; but if there be an express Limitation in the Premises, and the Habendum is repugnant, the Habendum is void, and the Premises is good. Cro. Eliz. 254, 255. pl. 27. 2 Co. 55. a. 9 Co. 47.

But had it been where a Ceremony is requisite to the Perfection of the Estate limited in the Premises, and nothing is requisite to the Estate limited by the Habendum but only the Delivery of the Deed; in such Case though the Habendum be of less Estate than is mentioned in the Premises, the Habendum shall stand. 2 Rep. 24. a.

Where a Prebendary demises to T. S. and his Heirs, Habendum to him and his Heirs for three Lives; this is an Explanation of the Premises, that the Lessee and his Heirs shall have such an Estate as is mentioned in the Premises, which is but for three Lives, as in the Habendum. Jones 4. 2 Keb. 865.

If one Thing be granted in the Premises, Habendum una cum another, which is no Part of nor belonging to it; that mentioned in the Habendum will not pass. Hob. 161. Vide Moor, Case 1236.

And if the Habendum is not pursuant to the Premises, it is void; as a Grant of a Manor, Habendum a Rent, Parcel of the Manor. Plow. 151. b. 152. a.

Where a Man grants a Rent or Common, &c. by the Premises, to the Grantee and his Heirs, Habendum to the Grantee for Life or Years, the Habendum is repugnant and void.

SECT. IV.

Of the Tenendum;

(A) Tenendum, what.

THE Tenendum is a Clause in a Deed wherein the Tenure of the Land is created and limited. Vide (C) post.

A Tenure is created, either by Act of the Party or Act of Law.

And Services are either of Profit and no Fidelity, or of Fidelity and no Profit.

Some of them are also for the private Profit of the Lord.

And

And some of them were for the publick Defence of the Realm.

A Tenure may be reserved upon a Gift in Tail, or Feoffment of corporate Things, into which an Entry may be made.

But upon incorporate Things, as Courts, Rents, Ways, Piscaries, and the like, no Tenure may be reserved; nor may it be of Things of no Profit to the Donor, Feoffor or Commonwealth; nor may it be done to a Stranger.

Nor may the Tenant hold by two Tenures.

There is no Land that is not held by some Service Spiritual or Temporal. Shep. Common Aff. 391.

But now by Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. All Tenures are turned into free and common Socage, and all Tenures by Knight-service in Capite, and Socage in Capite, and the Fruits and Consequences thereof are taken away.

And all Tenures to be created by the King shall be in free Socage only, and not in Capite, saving Rents, Heriots and Suits of Court, and Services incident to common Socage, &c. and saving Tenures in Frankalmoigne, by Copy and Grand Serjeanty, other than incident to Knight-service.

No Man can hold one and the same Land immediately of two several Lords. Co. Lit. 152.

One Man cannot of the same be Lord and Tenant. Ibid.

If a Tenant in Fee conveys the Land to another, he shall hold the Land as the Feoffor held it from the Lord.

And if he makes a Feoffment of Part of his Land, he must hold that Part of the Lord as the other held, if it be to be divided.

But if they be not to be divided, as a Horse, and the like, the Lord shall have the Whole, as a Horse of every Tenant. Shep. Com. Aff. 392.

Where the Law makes a Tenure and Reservation, there the Heirs of the Feoffor, Donor or Lessor, shall have the Services as well as the Feoffor, Donor or Lessor himself, unless by the express Words of the Feoffor, &c. in the Deed it be otherwise limited. Park. §. 697.

(B) The Office of the Tenendum.

THE Office of a Tenendum in a Deed, is to limit and appoint the Tenure of the Land by which it is held, and how, and of whom it is to be held.

Before the Statute called Quia emptores terrarum, (18 E. 1.) the Tenendum was usually from the Feoffor and his Heirs, and not of the chief Lord of the Fee, whereby Lords lost their Escheats, Forfeitures, &c.

But since the said Statute the Tenendum, where the Fee-simple passes, must be of the chief Lord of the Fee, by the Customs and Services, and the Feoffor held.

Yet this Statute does not extend to a Gift in Tail; for the Donee shall hold of the Donor. Co. Lit. 6. a. 2 Inst. 66, 67, 500, 501, 502, 505.

(C) Where the Tenendum is placed, and by what Words it is expressed.

THE Tenendum most commonly and properly succeeds the Habendum, and was usually in these Words, Tenendum per servitium, &c.

But since the Statute of Quia emptores terrarum, when the Fee-simple doth pass the Tenure is always of the chief Lord, and is thus set forth, Tenendum de capitalibus dominis, &c. But this Clause at this Day is for the most part left out of Deeds, and altogether omitted. Shep. Com. Aff. 391.

The Tenendum seems now to be incorporated with the Habendum, for we say, To have and to hold, in which Clause the Estate is limited, &c. Vide the last Section.

S E C T. V.

Of the Reddendum and Clauses of Distress, Nomine pœnæ, and Re-entry.

(A) Reddendum, what, and how it differs from an Exception.

THE Reddendum is a Clause in a Deed whereby the Feoffor, Donor, Lessor, Grantor, &c. reserves some new Thing to himself out of that which he granted before; as Rent, Suit, Service, &c.

The Reddendum differs from an Exception, which is ever of Part of the Thing granted, and of a Thing in esse at the Time; but this is of a Thing newly created or reserved out of a Thing demised that was not in esse before; so that this always reserves that which was not before, or abridges the Tenure of that which was before.

(B) Where the Reddendum is necessary or not.

AN Estate in Fee, for Life or Years, may be good without any Reservation of Rent, except it be in Case of Leases made by Tenants in Tail of their intailed Land, Husbands of their Wives Land, and Churchmen of their Church Land. Shep. Prec. 98, 99.

(C) Of what the Reddendum must be.

THE Reddendum or Reservation must be of another Thing than what is granted, of a Rent or Profit issuing out of the Thing granted, and not any Part of the Thing itself granted; nor can it be out of any other Thing than the Thing granted, or some Part thereof at least. Shep. Prec. 99.

Antiently the Reservations were for the most part in Victuals, as Corn, Flesh, &c. but about the Reign of H. 1. the Reservation of Victuals was changed into Money. Wood, B. 2. c. 3.

If a Man grants Land, yielding and paying Money, or some such Thing yearly, this is a good Reservation; but if the Grantee covenants to pay such a Sum of Money, or to do such a Thing yearly, this is no good Reservation, but a Covenant to pay a Sum of Money in Grofs, and not as a Rent. Plow. 132.

If two Tenants in Common make a Lease of their Land, rendring 20s. Rent, this shall be but one 20s. and not two 20s.

So if the Lease be, rendring a Horse or a Hawk; by this they shall have but one Horse and one Hawk, and not two Horses or two Hawks, as it shall be in Cases where they do join in the Grant of such Things out of their Land. Plow. 271, 289. 10 Co. 106.

If one makes a Gift in Tail of two Acres of Land, the one at the Common Law and the other in Borough English, rendring an Ox to him and his Heirs; and the Donee having two Sons dies, and the eldest Son inherits the one Acre, and the youngest Son inherits the other; in this Case the Donor and his Heirs shall have but one Ox, &c. 10 Co. 106.

If one grants Land yielding for Rent Money, Corn, a Horse, Spurs, a Rose, or any such Thing; this is a good Reservation, but if the Reservation be of the Grass, or of the Vesture of the Land, or of a Common, or other Profit to be taken out of the Land, these Reservations are void. Co. Lit. 142.

If one grants a Manor, Messuage, Land, Meadow or Pasture, or the Vesture, or Herbage of Land, Meadow or Pasture, rendring a Rent, this is a good Reservation.

But if one grants Tithes, Rents, Commons, Advowsons, Offices, a Corody, Mulcture of a Mill, a Fair, Market, Privilege or Liberty, reserving a Rent, this Reservation is void.

And yet such a Reservation in the Case of the King also is good.

And in Case of a Subject also, if a Lease be made by Deed in Writing of any such Thing for a Term of Years, reserving a Rent, this may be good by way of Contract to produce an Action of Debt, though not as a Rent to be distrained for. Co. Lit. 47. 5 Co. 3. Perk. §. 626.

(D) Out of what a Reddendum must be.

THE Reddendum or Reservation must be out of Lands, Houses, or some such corporeal Thing, and cannot be made upon Fairs, Tithes, or any such incorporeal Thing, nor can one Rent be reserved out of another. Shep. Prec. 99.

A Rent cannot be reserved by a common Person out of any incorporeal Inheritance: But if a Lease be made by Deed reserving a Rent, it may be good by way of Contract to have an Action of Debt for it, as a Sum in Gross, though not as Rent: But such Rent shall not pass with the Grant of the Reversion, for that it is not incident to it. Co. Lit. 47. a. 142. a. Cro. Jac. 112. pl. 10. T. Raym. 194. Hard. 88.

(E) To whom a Reddendum may be made.

THE Reddendum must be made to him who makes the Deed; and if there be two or more Grantors, then to them all, or to one of them at least, for it cannot be made to one who is a Stranger to the Deed. Shep. Prec. 99.

If a Lease be made for Years, rendering a Rent to the Lessor or his Heirs in the Disjunctive, or rendering a Rent to the Lessor, without saying, and his Heirs, &c. or rendering a Rent during the said Term, and does not say to whom; or rendering 10*l.* to the Lessor and 5*l.* to his Heirs, all these Reservations are good.

But if a Lease be made, rendering Rent to the Heirs of the Lessor; this Reservation is void, because the Rent is not reserved to himself first. 5 Co. 111. 8 Co. 71. Co. Lit. 214.

And if the Reversion be, rendering so much Rent during the said Term, and doth not say to whom; in this Case it shall be construed to be to him that hath the Reversion, and accordingly it shall be paid, and shall continue during the Term.

But if A. be seised of Land in Fee, and makes a Lease for Years of it, rendering Rent to A. (without saying to his Heirs, &c.) during the said Term, this Rent shall continue only during the Life of A. and no longer.

And yet if A. be possessed of a Term only, and makes an Under-Lease or Assignment with such a Reservation, Quære. Shep. Touch. 115.

If two Jointenants by Deed Poll, or by Word, make a Lease for Life, reserving a Rent to one of them, this shall go to them both.

So if one of them be Tenant for Life, and the other in Fee, and they join in a Lease for Life or Gift in Tail, reserving a Rent, the Rent shall enure to them both.

But if Tenant for Life and he in Reversion join in a Lease for Life or Gift in Tail by Deed, reserving a Rent, the Rent shall enure to the Tenant for Life only during his Life, and after to him in Reversion. Co. Lit. 214.

If one be possessed of a Term of Years of Land, and grant it by Deed to J. S. for his Life, and after his Death to J. D. in this Case the whole Term is granted to J. S. and his Executors, Administrators and Assigns shall have it, and not J. D. But if a Term be so devised by Will, contra.

And if one gives or grants to another his Horse, or his Books, for Life, and that after his Death they shall remain to another, the Remainder is void, and the first shall have it for ever; for the Gift or Grant of such a Thing for an Hour, is a Gift of it for ever. 8 Co. 95. 10 Co. 47. Bro. Done 57. Fitz. Done 2.

(F) How and by what Deed a Reddendum must be made.

A Reservation may be by Fine as well as by Deed; or it may be in Case where the Lessor has a Reversion of the Land, or upon a Petition to make an Equality without any Deed at all.

But if it be upon an Exchange to make an Equality, it is not good except it be by Deed. Co. Lit. 225. 8 H. 7. 9. Bro. Fine 36. Reservation 4.

If two Jointenants join in the Grant of their Land by Deed indented, and the Rent is reserved to one of them, this is a good Reservation, and shall go to him alone.

But if the Lease be made by Word or by Deed Poll, the Rent shall go to them both. Co. Lit. 214, 143. Dyer 222.

And if a Man possessed of a Term join his Wife with him, and they both assign over their Term by Indenture, rendering a Rent to them two and the Survivor of them, and she does not seal the Deed; in this Case the Reservation as to the Wife is void.

And if the Reservation be of the Rent to a Stranger that is no Party to the Deed, and to him only, this Reservation is void.

And therefore if the Father and his Son and Heir Apparent by Indenture lease his Land for Years, to begin after the Father's Death, rendering Rent to the Son, it is void. Mic. 8 Car. Bland's Case. Hob. 274. 3 Co. Oats and Firth.

A Rent may be reserved upon an Indenture of Bargain and Sale inrolled, according to the Statute of Lands in Fee; for though an Use had only passed at the Common Law, yet now by the Statute of Uses, the Use and Possession pass together. Co. Lit. 144. Cro. Eliz. 595. pl. 39. 2 Roll. 448.

(G) Where

(G) Where the Reddendum is placed in the Deed, and by what Words it is expressed.

THE Reddendum most commonly and properly succeeds the Tenendum, or Limitation of Estates; but it is as good in Law if it be placed in any other Part of the Deed.

A Reddendum must be by apt Words, in this or the like Form:

Yielding and paying therefore yearly (if it be a Fee-simple, say) for ever hereafter, (if an Estate-tail, say) during the said Estate hereby granted and made, to the said C. D. (if he has the Fee-simple) and his Heirs and Assigns, (or if he has but a Lease for Years) his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, the yearly Rent of — of lawful British Money, at and upon the — Day of — and the — Day of — by even and equal Portions. For more Examples, see the second Part.

The Reddendum may be made by other Words, as reserving, rendring, paying, or others of the like Signification; but the Words of the above Example are most commonly used.

By apt Words, an apt Rent out of Manors and such like memorable Things, or divers Rents may be reserved upon one Grant; as if one grants the Manors of A. B. and C. rendring for A. 20s. B. 20s. and C. 20s. these are good Rents, and several.

So if one grants the Manors of A. B. and C. rendring 3l. viz. for A. 20s. for B. 20s. and for C. 20s. this is a good Reservation, but in this Case the Rent is intire.

Also one may reserve one Rent one Year and another Rent another Year, as 10s. one Year, and 20s. another Year; or one may reserve a Rent to be paid every second or third Year, and no Rent the other Years; or one may reserve one Kind of Rent one Year and another Kind of Rent another Year; and these Reservations are good. Dyer 308. 5 Co. 55. Co. Lit. 47, 164, 213.

If the Reservation be thus: Yielding and paying 20s. during the said Term, omitting the Word (yearly), this shall be taken to be not once only but yearly during the Term, and accordingly it must be paid.

And if a Lease be made for Years, rendring in every Middle of the Year quolibet medio anni 20l. this shall be paid during the Term. 27 H. 8. 19.

(H) How the Reservation shall be construed.

THIS is always taken most in Advantage of the Feoffee, Grantee, Lessee, &c. and against the Feoffor, Grantor, Lessor, &c. and yet so as the Rent be paid during the Time.

If the Reservation be only to the Feoffor, Grantor, &c. and the Deed do not say also, to his Heirs, Executors, &c. this Reservation shall continue only for the Life-time of the Grantor, and shall determine with his Death.

And so also it is where the Reservation is to the Feoffor or his Heirs in the Disjunctive; for in this Case the Rent shall continue only during the Life of the Grantor.

And yet if one makes a Lease for Years, rendring yearly during the said Term to the Lessor, or his Heirs or Executors; this is a good Reservation during all the Term, by Reason of these Words, during the Term.

So if the Feoffor or Lessor be seised in Fee, and makes a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life or Years, rendring Rent to the Feoffor or Lessor, or his Executors or Assigns; in this Case the Rent shall continue only for the Life of the Lessor.

But if the Reservation be to the Feoffor or Lessor, or his Heirs and Assigns, in the Copulative, or in the Disjunctive, to him or his Heirs, or to him and his Successors (if it be the Lease of a Corporation) during the Term, then all the Assignees of the Reversion shall enjoy it.

And if the Reservation be thus, Yielding and paying so much Rent (without any more Words) this shall be taken for all the Time of the Estate, and shall go to him in Reversion accordingly. Shep. Touch. 114, 115.

If one by Deed indented grants Lands to A. To have and to hold to him for Life, the Remainder to B. and the Heirs of his Body, and for Default of such Issue, to remain to D. in Tail, or for Life, yielding therefore yearly, &c. in this Case the Reservation shall extend to all the Estates. 10 Co. 107.

If a Lease be made the tenth Day of August, rendring Rent at our Lady-day and Michaelmas; in this Case although our Lady-day be first named, yet the first Payment shall be at Michaelmas next after the making of the Deed.

If the Reservation be at Michaelmas, or within twenty Days after; in this Case the twentieth Day shall be taken exclusive.

But

But if the Rent be to be paid at Michaelmas, or by the Space of twenty Days after; in this Case the twentieth Day shall be taken inclusive.

If a Lease be made in December from the Nativity of Christ next for one Year, with this Addition, Et si in fine dicti anni ambæ partes agreeant quod eadem dimissio foret renovata, tunc habend' & tenend' præmissa dicto J. S. (the Lessee) ab & post dictum festum tunc proxim' sequent' usque finem trium annorum, Reddendo inde annuatim durante dicto termino dict' W. S. &c. in this Case the Reservation shall relate to both the Terms, and the Rent shall be paid the first Year, although they do not agree to renew the Lease. Shep. Touch. 115.

If one makes a Lease of Land for Years, if the Lessee live so long, and after the Lessor by his Deed indented doth grant the Land to another, To have and to hold the Reversion to the Grantee for his Life, cum post mortem, &c. aut aliter acciderit vacare, Reddend' inde annuatim to the Grantor and his Heirs, cum reversione prædicta acciderit, 9s. 4d. per Ann. in this Case this Reservation of Rent shall not begin before the Reversion happen in Possession. 10 Co. 107, 108.

If Rent be reserved to be paid at two Terms, and it is not said by equal Portions, yet it shall be so taken, and it must be so paid. 13 H. 4. Avowry 240.

(I) Clause of Distress and Nomine pœnæ.

Nomine
pœnæ.

Sometimes a Cause of Distress is added in this Manner: And it is agreed between the said Parties to these Presents, That if it happen the said yearly Rent of — or any Part thereof, shall be behind and unpaid by the Space of twenty-one Days next after either of the said Feasts or Days of Payment, in which it ought to be paid as aforesaid, being lawfully demanded; that then and from thenceforth it shall and may be lawful to and for the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns, into the said demised Premises, and every Part thereof, to enter, and there to distrain for the said Rent so being behind and unpaid (And sometimes is added a Penalty for every Day the Rent is in Arrear, in this Manner:) As also for twelve Pence of lawful, &c. to be forfeited Nomine pœnæ for every Day wherein the said Rent so in Arrear shall be behind and unpaid after the said twenty-one Days ended, and the Distress and Distresses so then and there taken and found, to lead, drive and carry away, and the same to impound, detain and keep, until the said yearly Rent of — and the Arrears thereof, (and Sums to be forfeited Nomine pœnæ) shall be fully paid and satisfied.

This Clause sometimes may be, that the Grantor may distrain and sell the Goods to pay the Rent, and the like; of which see a Variety of Forms in the Second Part.

(K) Clause of Entry on Nonpayment, &c.

AND sometimes there is a Clause of Entry on Non-payment of Rent, &c. in this or the like Form: And if it shall happen the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns, shall at any Time hereafter make Default of Payment of the said yearly Rent of — on either of the said Days whereon the same ought to be paid as aforesaid, the same having been duly demanded, or the said C. D. his Executors, &c. shall break any Covenant or Grant contained in these Presents, which on the Part and Behalf of the said C. D. is to be performed, paid and kept, that then and so often it shall and may be lawful to and for the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns, to enter into all and singular the said Manors, Messuages and Premises, and the same to occupy and enjoy, detain and keep, until the said C. D. his Executors, &c. the said yearly Rents, with the Arrearages thereof, and every Part thereof, shall and will well and truly pay and content to the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns; and also until the said C. D. his Heirs, &c. shall have made a reasonable Recompence and Amends to the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns, of and for the Breach of any Covenant or Covenants so broken, and for any Damage by him or them sustained by reason of the same. See more Forms suitable to different Purposes in the Second Part.

Of the Condition.

(A) Condition what, and how it differs from a Limitation.

A Condition is a Restraint to an Act or Thing, rendring it uncertain. A Condition in a Deed or Will is a Clause restraining, staying or suspending some Act or Thing, whereby it is rendred incertain. Some

Some define it thus : It is Modus an Equality annexed by him that has the Estate, Interest or Right to the Land, &c. whereby an Estate, &c. may either be created, defeated or enlarged upon an incertain Event.

It differs from a Limitation, which is the Bounds or Compass of an Estate, or the Time how long an Estate shall continue.

(B) Kinds of Conditions.

THERE are divers Kinds of Conditions, some are in Deed or Express, i. e. when the Express Condition is expressed by the Party in legal Terms, and by express Words in Writing, or without Writing, annexed to the Estate; as if I enfeoff a Man of Land, rendring Rent at a Day, on Condition that if it be not paid it shall be lawful for me to re-enter.

And some are in Law or implied, i. e. when the Condition is tacitè created by the Law Implied, without any Words used by the Party.

The Conditions in Law or implied are either by Common Law or by Statute Law.

The first Sort are some of them founded on Skill, as where an Office is granted there is a Condition tacitè implied, that if the Grantee doth not execute it faithfully according to the Trust, the Grantor may put him out.

And some are without Skill, as where an Estate is made for Life or Years of Land, there is this Condition implied, that if the Lessee commits Waste, he shall forfeit the Place wasted; or if the Lessee makes a Feoffment of the Land, he shall forfeit his Estate, and the Lessor shall enter.

And where an Estate is made in Fee of Land, this Condition is implied that the Feoffee shall not alien it in Mortmain.

And these Conditions do sometimes give a Recovery and no Entry, as in the Case of Waste.

And sometimes they give an Entry and no Recovery, as in the Case of Alienation in Mortmain.

In the Case of Exchange also there is a Condition in Law.

Conditions are some of them precedent or executed, i. e. when the Condition must be fulfilled before the Estate can take Effect; as where an Agreement is made between me and J. S. that if he pays me 10*l.* at Michaelmas, he shall have such a Piece of Ground of mine for ten Years; or I make a Lease of Land to J. S. for ten Years, provided that if he pays me 10*l.* at Michaelmas he shall have the Land to him and his Heirs; in these Cases by the Performance of the Condition the Estate is acquired.

And some Conditions are subsequent and executory, i. e. when the Estate is executed, but Subsequent the Continuance thereof depends upon the Breach or Performance of the Condition; as where a Lease is made for Years, on Condition that the Lessee shall pay 10*l.* to the Lessor at Michaelmas, or else his Lease shall be void; in this Case by the Performance of the Condition the Estate is held and kept.

These Conditions also are some of them in the Affirmative, i. e. do consist of doing; as Affirmative, providing that the Lessee shall pay the Rent, or pay 10*l.* to the Lessor, &c.

And some are in the Negative, i. e. consist of not doing; as provided that the Lessee shall Negative. not alien, &c.

And some of them are in the Affirmative, which imply a Negative; as provided that if the Rent be unpaid, that the Lessor shall re-enter, which implieth a Negative, viz. not paid.

Conditions also are some of them collateral; i. e. when the Act to be done is a collateral Collateral Act, as *that the Party shall pay 10*l.* go to Rome, or the like.*

And some are inherent, i. e. such as are annexed to the Rent reserved out of the Land Inherent, whereof the Estate is made.

And some of them also are restrictive, and contain a Restraint; as that the Lessee shall not Restrictive. alien or do waste, or the like.

And some are compulsory; as *that the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor 10*l.* such a Day, or his* Compulsory. Lease shall be void.

And some of them are single, i. e. to do one Thing only; and some Copulative, i. e. to Single. do divers Things; and some Disjunctive, i. e. when one Thing of divers is required to be Copulative. done. Disjunctive.

And some Conditions make the Estate whereunto they are annexed voidable only by Entry Voidable. or Claim.

And some of them make the Estate void ipso facto without Entry or Claim. Void.

And sometimes they tend to destroy Estates, sometimes to make or to enlarge Estates, and To destroy, enlarge and sometimes neither to make nor destroy, but only to clog Estates; as where a Lease is made, clog Estates. rendring rendring Rent on a Day, on Condition if it be not paid, that the Lessor shall enter on the Land and keep it till the Rent be paid.

And by all these Ways Conditions may be lawfully made. Lit. §. 327. Co. Lit. 201. 8 Co. 43.

(C) The Nature of a Condition expressed, and of a Limitation.

THE Nature of an exprefs Condition annexed to an Estate in general is this; that it cannot be made by nor reserved to a Stranger, but it must be made by and reserved to him that makes the Estate.

And it cannot be granted over to another except it be to and with the Land or Thing unto which it is annexed and incident. And so it is not grantable in all Cases, for the Estates of both the Parties are so suspended by the Condition, that neither of them alone can well make any Estate or Charge of or upon the Land; for the Party that parts with the Estate, and has nothing but a Possibility to have the Thing again upon the Performance or Breach of the Condition, cannot grant or charge the Thing at all.

And if he that has the Estate grants or charges it, it will be subject to the Condition still; for the Condition always attends and waits upon the Estate or Thing whereunto it is annexed; so that although the same passes through the Hands of an hundred Men, yet is it subject to the Condition still, and notwithstanding some of them be persons privileged in divers Cases, as the King, Infants and Women Covert, yet they also are bound by the Condition.

And a Man that comes to the Thing by Wrong, as a Disseisor of Land whereof there is an Estate upon Condition in Being, shall hold the same subject to the Condition also.

And when the Condition is broken or performed, &c. the whole Estate shall be defeated.

So that if there be a Lease for Life made by Deed and not by Will, the Remainder over in Fee, on Condition that the Lessee for Life shall pay 10*l.* to the Lessor; if the Lessee pays not this 10*l.* the Estate in Remainder is avoided also. Et sic e converso, unless by special Limitation it be otherwise provided; as if A. grants by Indenture Land to B. for Life, the Remainder to C. in Fee, rendring Rent to A. and his Heirs; with Condition that if the Rent be behind, to re-renter and retain the Land during the Life of B. and no more; and A. enters in the Life-time of B. for Nonpayment, this does not destroy the Remainder. Shep. Touch. 120.

And if Tenant for Life and he in Remainder join in a Feoffment, on Condition that if, &c. that then the Tenant for Life shall re-enter; this is good without defeating the entire Estate, for regularly a Condition cannot avoid a Part of an Estate only, and leave another Part entire; neither can the Estate be void as to one Person and good as to another, (except it be in the Case of a Condition annexed to an Estate limited by way of Use, as in Frances's Case, 8 Co. 90.) Shep. Touch. 120, 121.

And yet if A. makes a Gift in Tail to B. the Remainder to B. in Fee, upon Condition not to alien, and B. aliens; this doth defeat the Estate-tail only, and not the Remainder.

Also the whole Estate of the Whole and not of some Part only shall be avoided, except by Agreement the Condition be especially restrained to some Part, and the Re-entry given in that Part only; as where a Feoffment is made of two Acres of Land, on Condition that if such a Thing happens, the Feoffor shall enter into one of them.

And further, when he that has Right re-enters by Force of such Condition, he shall avoid all Charges and Incumbrances put upon the Land after the Condition made; for he that enters into Lands by Force of such a Condition, must have it again in the same Plight as it was when he parted with it.

And a Condition for the most part will not determine the Estate without Entry or Claim.

So that howsoever a Limitation hath much Affinity and Agreement with a Condition, and therefore sometimes it is called a Condition in Law, both of them do determine an Estate in Being before, and a Limitation cannot make an Estate to be void as to one Person and good as to another; as if a Gift be made in Tail to one and his Heirs Male until he does such a Thing, and then his Estate to cease and go to another; yet herein they differ.

First, A stranger may take Advantage of an Estate determined by Limitation, but he cannot upon a Condition.

Secondly, A Limitation always determines the Estate without Entry or Claim, but a Condition does not. Shep. Touch. 121.

(D) What shall be said a Condition in Law, and when an Estate shall be subject to such a Condition.

TENANTS by the Curtesy, in Tail, after Possibility of Issue extinct, in Dower, for Life, for Years, by Statute or Elegit, Gardian, &c. do hold their Estates, subject to a Condition in Law; so that if any of them aliens his Land in Fee, or claims a greater Estate in a Court of Record than his own, he forfeits his Estate, and he in Remainder or Reversion may enter; and if such a Tenant does Waste, he in Reversion shall recover the Place wasted.

The Tenant in Fee-simple holds his Estate subject to a Condition in Law; so that if he aliens his Land in Mortmain he forfeits it, and the Lord may enter upon him.

So also he that takes Land in Exchange holds it under a Condition in Law; so that if he aliens his Land in Mortmain he forfeits it, and the Lord may enter upon him.

So also he that takes Land in Exchange holds it under a Condition in Law, viz. that if the Land be given in Exchange for that Land he recovered from him that has it, that he shall enter upon his own Land again.

Also every Officer that acts in the Administration of Justice, all Keepers of Parks, Stewards, Beadles, Bailiffs, and such like, hold their Offices under a Condition in Law; so that if they do not duly execute it, and do all that thereto appertains, they may forfeit them, and the Grantor may put them out. In quo quis delinquit in eo est de jure puniendus. Co. Lit. 233, 234. 8 Co. 44.

(E) Upon what Act a Condition may be created.

A Tenant cannot attorn to the Grant of a Seigniorship upon Condition subsequent, because it is but a Consent, no Interest passes from him; secus upon a Condition precedent. Co. Lit. 274, 300. b. Vide 15 E. 3. Aff. 95.

So Executors cannot agree upon Condition to a Legacy. 4 Co. 28. b.

But a Patron, in respect of his Interest, may assent upon Condition to charge the Glebe of the Parson. Co. Lit. 300. b.

A Licence to alien cannot be upon a Condition subsequent; secus as to a Condition precedent, because in such Case it is no Licence till the Condition performed. Popb. 106.

A Disseisor may release his Right to the Disseisor upon Condition. Co. Lit. 274. b. Kelw. 88. a. 89. a.

But a Condition cannot be released upon a Condition. Co. Lit. 274. b. 9 Co. 85. b.

An express Manumission of a Villein cannot be upon Condition, for once free and ever free. Co. Lit. 274. b.

Letters Patent of Denization of an Alien, may be upon Condition precedent or subsequent. Co. Lit. 274.

But a Naturalization by Parliament cannot be upon Condition, for it is against Absoluteness, Purity and Indelibility, of natural Allegiance. Co. Lit. 129.

A Parson cannot resign upon Condition, because it is a judicial Act, to which no Condition can be annexed, any more than an Ordinary can admit, or a Judgment be confessed upon Condition. Ow. 12.

(F) Where the Cause or Consideration of the Grant will make a Condition.

IF one grants an Annuity pro Acre Terræ, the Word pro shews the Cause of the Grant, and amounts to a Condition; for if the Acre be evicted by an elder Title, the Annuity shall cease. Co. Lit. 204. b.

So if an Annuity is granted pro decimis, &c. and the Grantee is unjustly disturbed of the Tithes, the Annuity ceases. Co. Lit. 204. a.

But if one makes a Feoffment, Lease for Life, &c. pro Consilio impenso, &c. or pro una Acre Terræ; though he denies Counsel, or the Acre be evicted, yet he shall not re-enter, for the Estate being executed, it shall not be avoided without legal Words of Condition. Co. Lit. 204. a.

(G)

(G) What may be made upon Condition, and to what Things Conditions may be annexed or not.

IT is a general Rule, that when a Man hath a Thing he may Condition with it as he will. Conditions in a Deed therefore may be annexed to Things inheritable to Freeholds, or to Chattels Real and Personal. Perk. §. 707.

As for Example; If a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life, be made of Lands or Tenements, or a Grant be of a Rent, Common, or the like, in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life; these Things may be done upon Condition.

So a Lease for Years of Land, or a Grant of Rent, &c. for Years, may be made upon Condition.

And a Lease may be made for five Years, on Condition that if the Lessee pay to the Lessor within the first two Years ten Marks, that then he shall have the Fee, otherwise but for five Years.

Also a Guardian in Chivalry may grant the Wardship of the Body and Land, or either of them, on Condition.

A Tenant by Statute Merchant, Staple or Elegit, may grant their Estates upon Condition.

The Lord may grant his Seigniorship to his Tenant on Condition.

The Tenant for Life may grant his Estate to his Lessor, or to him in Reversion upon Condition.

The King may make Letters Patent of Denization to an Alien, or a Charter of Pardon to a Man for his Life, upon Condition.

Also Releases and Confirmations may be made upon Condition.

And a Submission to an Award may be upon a Condition.

But an Institution to a Benefice, or an Induction, may not be on a Condition.

An Attornment, or an express Manumission of a Villain, cannot be upon a Condition subsequent, as it may be on a Condition precedent.

And some hold that a Condition cannot be released upon a Condition.

But the contrary is held by others clearly, and that there is no Difference between this and a Release of a Right. Ideo Quære.

An Award cannot be made on a Condition, as was held in Shirer's Case, 35 Eliz.

A Contract or Sale of a Chattel Personal, as an Ox, or the like, may be upon Condition; as if A. sells his Horse to B. that if A. do such an Act, then that B. shall pay 5*l.* at the Day agreed upon, otherwise but 4*l.*

So if I agree with a Physician, that if he cures such a Disease he shall have so much; and in this Case he cannot have the Money until he has done the Cure.

As where I promise a Man 10*l.* when he has built such a House; in this Case he cannot have the Money until the House be built.

Also Retaining of Servants, Delivery of Charters or Deeds, and divers other Things, may be done upon Condition.

And if an Executor assent to a Legacy upon a Condition, the Assent is good, but the Condition is void. Shep. Touch. 119.

A Feoffment of two Acres upon Condition, and for Breach that he may re-enter but in one is good. Roll. Abr. 412.

A Tenth may be granted by the Clergy to the King upon Condition. Ibid.

If a Copyholder surrenders to the Lord to make his Will, upon Condition that he shall pay him 10*l.* this is a good Condition. Roll. Abr. 413.

A Contract may be upon Condition. Ibid.

(H) How and by what Deed a Condition may be created and annexed.

CONDITIONS annexed to Estates are most frequently and safely made by Deed in Writing; yet it seems such Conditions may be made and annexed to any Estate of a Thing grantable without Deed without any Writing at all; however in some Cases it cannot be well pleaded nor used without a Deed, for it is a Rule, that if a Condition be pleaded in any Action to defeat a Freehold, the Deed wherein the Condition is contained must be shewed.

But of Chattels Real, as Leases for Years, and the like, or Grants of Chattels Personal, a Man may plead that such Leases and Grants were made upon Condition without shewing the Deed.

And

And in the first Case also of a Condition to avoid a Freehold, it may be given in Evidence to a Jury, and they may find the Matter at large as it is, and so the Party may have Advantage of the Condition without shewing any Deed of it.

Also the Pleading of a Feoffment in Fee, on Condition without Deed and Re-entry, is good if the Party confesses the Condition. Shep. Touch. 119, 120.

A Release of all one's Right may be upon Condition. 17 E. 3. 2. b. Co. Lit. 274. b. 30. b.

If a Copyholder surrenders to the Lord to make his Will, upon Condition to pay 15*l.* this is a good Condition. M. 2 Jac. C. B. Garden's Case.

A Lessee may surrender upon Condition. 14 Ed. 4. 6. 4 Co. 82. Br. Condition 156.

A Confirmation may be upon Condition. 5 Co. 81.

A Devise of Lands devisable, was good at the Common Law upon Condition. Roll.

Abr. 412.

A Devise of an Use at Common Law was good upon Condition. Ibid.

A Devise within the Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. may be upon Condition, because that Statute gives Liberty to Devise at Pleasure. Ibid.

A Man cannot release a Personal Thing, as an Obligation upon a Condition subsequent; but the Condition will be void, because a Personal Thing being once suspended is perpetually extinguished. Ibid. Vide Roll. Abr. 940.

But a Man may release a Personal Thing, as an Obligation, or such like, upon a Condition precedent; for there the Action is not suspended till the Condition performed. Roll.

Abr. 412.

A Condition written on the back of a Lease before the Execution, is good. Cro. Jac. 456 Sed vide 2 Roll. Abr. 22. pl. 1.

A Condition to perform a Matter of Fact, without Writing, is good. Roll. Abr. 413.

As in an Indenture, a Man may bind himself upon a Condition to perform all the Covenants between them made for the Permutation of a Benefice, of which there is no Writing. Ibid.

A Man may aver a Lease for Years to be upon Condition, and plead the Condition without shewing the Deed thereof, because it is but a Chattel. Ibid.

A Man may plead, that a Lease for Years of Land, or a Grant of a Ward, was made by Guardian in Chivalry upon Condition, &c. without shewing any Writing of the Condition, because it is but a Chattel Real. Lit. §. 365.

So it is of Chattels Personal and Personal Contracts. Lit. §. 365.

But a Man by Plea shall not defeat a Freehold by Force of a Condition without shewing a Deed. Lit. §. 365. Co. Lit. 225.

Otherwise if a Condition annexed to a Freehold be found by a Jury. Lit. §. 366. Co. Lit. 226. Kelw. 137. a.

If a Condition has false Latin in it, yet if any Sense may be intended in it by the Words within the Condition, it shall be good. 20 H. 6. 32.

If one grants a Rent for Life, a Condition cannot be annexed to it, unless it be by Deed. 33 Aff. 2. Br. Verdict 64. Fitz. Verdict 42.

If A. agrees with B. to make a Feoffment to him upon Condition, and after makes a Deed of Feoffment without any Condition, and afterwards makes Livery secundum formam Chartae without any Condition; this is absolute without any Condition; for the Livery is not made according to the Agreement but according to the Deed. Fitz. Affise 311.

But if A. agrees to enfeoff B. in Surety of the Payment of certain Money, and afterwards makes Livery to him and his Heirs generally, the Estate is held by some to be upon Condition, inasmuch as the Intent of the Parties was not changed, but continued at the Time of the Livery. Co. Lit. 222. b.

If a Man makes a Deed of Feoffment to another, and in the Deed there is no Condition; but when the Feoffor would make Livery of Seisin to him by Force of the Deed, he expressing the Estate, makes Livery of Seisin unto him upon Condition, the Feoffment is of like Force as if no such Deed had been made. Lit. §. 359. Co. Lit. 222. b.

A Condition cannot be reserved without Deed indented. Roll. Abr. 414.

If it be by Deed Poll, and the Feoffor, &c. gets it into his Custody, he may plead the Condition against the Feoffee, &c. Lit. §. 375. Co. Lit. 231.

A Corody granted for Life, secundum quod prius per J. H. & alios usitat' fuit; and avers the Use to have been, that every one who has it shall attend upon the Master four Times in the Year, otherwise shall forfeit it: This is a good Condition which refers to other Matters, though not shewed in certain that they were done. Bro. Condition 167.

If an Annuity be granted pro consilio & auxilio habendis, and does not mention in what Matter it shall be, yet it may be averred he was a Physician, or a Lawyer, and it was granted for his Counsel and Aid therein. Bro. Annuity 7. Fitz. Annuity 19.

So if the Grantee be learned in two Sciences, yet he may aver the Grant was for one in certain. Fitz. Annuity 19.

(I) To what Things a Condition shall extend.

IF a Lease for Years be made, rendring for the two first Years 10*l.* and after 30*l.* yearly, provided that if the Rent of 30*l.* or any Part thereof be behind, the Lessor may enter; it was said, that if the 10*l.* is behind the Lessor may enter, for the 10*l.* is Part of the Rent, for it is but one Rent. 4 Leon. 8.

If a Man who has certain Walks in a Forest of Inheritance, gives one Walk called B. to J. S. in Tail, and dies, and his Heir recites the said Grant and confirms it, and by the same Deed grants another Walk called S. in the same Forest to him and his Heirs, Provido that the said J. S. shall not cut any Trees in aliqua parte præmissorum in indentura prædictæ specificatorum; the Condition shall extend to the Walk called B. so that if he cuts any of the Trees in his Walk, the Grantor may enter for the Condition broke, into the Walk called S. for the Word Premisses comprehends as well that which is confirmed, as that which is granted. Roll. Abr. 422.

If A. be in Execution at the Suit of B. and B. upon good Consideration affirms to J. S. that he will not discharge A. without his Consent, and after A. and B. agree, that B. shall make a Release to him of the Execution, and deliver him; and that A. shall enter into an Obligation, with Condition to save B. harmless from all Suits, &c. that may arise upon the Release of the said A. being in Execution at the Ensealing thereof, at the Suit of the said B. in such a Sum, from all Persons which may any way trouble the said B. touching or concerning the said Release, that then, &c. and after all this is done accordingly, and J. S. brings an Action on the Case against B. upon his Promise, and recovers; A. ought to save him harmless, otherwise the Condition is broke; for this arises by Reason of the said Release, and so within the Words, though the Promise made to J. S. was the Cause of the Action of J. S. Ibid.

If a Man makes a Gift in Tail to A. the Remainder to A. and his Heirs, upon Condition that he shall not alien: The Condition is good as to restrain any Discontinuance of the Estate-tail, but as to the Fee-simple it is void and repugnant; and therefore some are of Opinion that this is a good Condition, and shall defeat the Alienation for the Estate-tail only, and leaves the Fee-simple in the Alienee. Co. Lit. 224. a.

By special Words the Condition may extend to the particular Estate, or to the Remainder only. Co. Lit. 230. b.

There are several Incidents to an Estate-tail, not to be restrained by Condition, the Incidents are,

First, To be dispunishable of Waste.

Secondly, That the Donee's Wife shall be endowed.

Thirdly, That the Husband after Issue shall be Tenant by Curtesy.

Fourthly, That the Tenant in Tail may suffer a Recovery.

And therefore a Gift in Tail, with Condition to restrain any of these Incidents, is void. Co. Lit. 224. a. 6 Co. 41. Co. 14. a. 85. a. 86. 9 Co. 128. b. 10 Co. 38. b. Jones 58. Cro. Jac. 697. 1 Vent. 322. Roll. Abr. 418.

(K) Incidents that a Condition to create an Estate ought to have.

THERE are four Incidents that a Condition to create an Estate ought to have.

First, It ought to have a particular Estate, as a Foundation whereupon the Increase of the greater Estate shall be built.

Secondly, That such particular Estate shall continue in the Lessee or Grantee until the Increase.

Thirdly, This must be at the Time when the Contingency happens, or else it shall never vest.

Fourthly, The particular Estate and the Increase must take Effect by the same Deed, or by several Deeds delivered at the same Time. 8 Co. 75. a.

(L) To what Persons a Condition may be reserved.

A Condition cannot be reserved but on the Part of the Feoffor, Donor or Lessor. Dy. 6. a. b. pl. 2. Lit. §. 347. Co. Lit. 214.

If Tenant for Life and the Reversioner join in a Feoffment, the Condition may be reserved to the Lessee only, and by his Re-entry he shall devert but his Estate. Roll. Abr. 407.

If

If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition that if the Heir of A. pays to B. £c. 20 s. then he and his Heirs may re-enter; this is a good Condition, of which the Heir of A. may take Advantage, and yet A. himself never can. Co. Lit. 214. b.

If a Man gives Lands to his eldest Son in Tail, the Remainder to his second Son in Tail, £c. upon Condition that if the eldest Son, or any of his Issue aliens, the Land shall remain to the second, £c. the Consequence of the Condition, that the Land should remain to another, is void, though upon such Alienation the Donor himself might enter. Co. Lit. 379. a.

(M) When a Person to whom a Condition is not certainly designed, the Law shall say who it shall be.

If a Man devises Land to A. upon Condition, the Remainder to B. in Tail, saving the Fee, and dies: The Condition here is, by Implication of the Law, reserved to the Heir; for by Intendment, he shall have the Condition who is prejudiced by the Devise, who is the Heir. Dyer 3. Roll. Abr. 407.

A Condition to make the Obligee a Lease for Life by such a Day, or pay 100 l. the Obligee died before the Day, his Executor shall have the 100 l. Salk. 170. p. 2.

(N) Of the Manner, Frame and Order of making a Condition.

Every good Condition is required an external Form, i. e. Words to declare an Intent in the Party to have the Estate conditional.

And an internal Form, i. e. such Matter as whereof a Condition may be made.

As to Things executed, the Condition must be made and annexed to the Estate at the time of the making of it, but as to Things executory, it may be afterwards made.

And if the Condition be made in another Deed, and not the same Deed wherein the Estate is made; if it be delivered at the same Time, it is as good as if it were contained in the same Deed.

And therefore if a Man makes a Feoffment, Lease, or the like, by one Deed absolute, and at the same Time makes another Deed of Defeasance or Condition, and delivers both together, this is a good Condition, and will make the Estate conditional.

But if the Defeasance be sealed and delivered before or after the Deed, contra.

And therefore if one makes an absolute Feoffment in Fee, and before or after the Sealing or Delivery of that Deed the Feoffor declares himself by Deed, or the Feoffor and Feoffee agree by Deed that the Estate made before, or to be made after, shall be conditional, yet this is not conditional.

And yet if an Annuity be granted absolutely by one Deed, and after the Grantee grants to the Grantor, that if the Grantor do such a Thing, the Annuity shall cease; in this Case the Annuity is conditional. Co. Lit. 146. Perk. §. 717. Co. 113. 2 Co. 7. Plow. 113.

A Condition may be annexed to an Estate by way of Use; as if a Feoffment be made to A. to the Use of B. and his Heirs, on Condition that B. shall pay to the Feoffor 20 l. such a Day; this is a good Condition. To what an-nexed.

So if one covenants to stand seised of Lands to the Use of B. and his Heirs, on Condition that if he pays him 10 l. the Use shall be void, or the like.

Also a Condition may be annexed to an Estate created by Will; as if one devises Land to J. S. for Life, provided that he pay 10 l. yearly to J. D. this is a good Condition. Co. 112. Dyer 126, 348.

A Rent or any such Thing may be granted on Condition that if such a Thing be or be not done, the Rent shall cease for a Time, and then revive again; and this Condition is good.

But in Case of Land it is otherwise, for that cannot be granted after this Manner.

Also a Condition to make an Estate void for a Part of the Time, is not good.

And therefore if a Feoffment be on Condition, that upon such a Contingent the Feoffor shall enter and have the Land for a Time, or the Estate shall be void for Part of the Time; or makes a Lease for ten Years, provided that upon such a Contingent it shall be void for five Years; these Conditions are not good.

And yet if a Feoffment be made of two Acres, provided that upon such a Contingent the Estate shall be void as to an Acre only, this is a good Condition. Co. 86. 8 Co. 17. 4 Co. 121. Dyer 6.

A Condition that a Stranger, or the Heir of the Feoffor, shall do an Act, is good, as if a Feoffment be made to J. S. on Condition that J. D. shall pay to the Feoffor at Easter next 10 l.

10*l.* or if a Feoffment be made on Condition, that if the Heir of the Feoffor pays 20*s.* to the Feoffee, that the Feoffor and his Heirs shall re-enter.

But a Condition to give a Stranger a Re-entry, is void.

And therefore if an Estate be made upon Condition, that upon such a Contingent a Stranger shall enter, or the Estate shall cease, and another shall have it; howsoever this may be so drawn as it may be a good Condition to give him, his Heirs, &c. who makes the Estate an Entry, yet it cannot be good to give the Estate or the Entry to the Stranger.

So if a Feoffment be made on Condition, that upon such a Contingent the Feoffor and a Stranger shall enter; this is not good to give an Entry to the Stranger, but it is good to give the Feoffor a Re-entry.

And yet by Will a Man may devise a Term after this Manner. Co. Lit. 214, 379. Doff. & Stud. 94, 100, 159. Co. 84. 8 Co. 95. Dyer 33.

If a Man enfeoffs another upon Condition that he and his Heirs shall render to a Stranger and his Heirs a yearly Rent of 20*s.* &c. and if he fails of Payment thereof, that the Feoffor shall re-enter; although this is a Reservation of Rent, it is merely void, and the Condition that calls it a Rent is merely mistaken; yet the Condition is good, & ut res valeat the Words shall be taken contrary to their proper Sense. Co. Lit. 213.

If I enfeoff J. S. of Land, on Condition that if J. D. gives to him 10*l.* or go to Rome before such a Day, &c. that then the Feoffee shall pay to me 10*l.* &c. this is a good Condition. Perk. §. 798.

If a Feoffment be made to one and his Heirs, on Condition that if the Feoffee pays to the Feoffor 10*l.* he shall have the Fee of Land, this is not a good Condition; but if he say further, and if he fails to pay, that the Feoffor shall re-enter, this is good. Co. Lit. 207.

If a Gift in Tail be made to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, and if he dies without Heirs of his Body, that then the Donor and his Heirs shall re-enter; this is a void Condition, for when the Issues fail, the Estate is at an End. Co. Lit. 224.

Conditions that are so penned as they are insensible and altogether incertain, are void.

And if one makes a Lease, on Condition that if the Rent be behind to restrain, and if there be not sufficient, on the Ground to enter into the Premises; this Condition is void for Insensibility, and the Estate is absolute, & sic de similibus. 6 Co. 41.

(O) At what Time a Condition may be created.

IF a Disfeisee releases to the Disfeisor all his Right, and at a Day after the Disfeisor by Indenture grants, that if he pays so much at a Day certain, the Release shall be void; this is a void Condition as to revive the Right of the Disfeisee, for Inheritances executed cannot be defeated by a subsequent Defeasance. Br. Conditions 115. Co. Lit. 236.

But a Release, Feoffment, &c. where the Estate is executed, it is not to be defeated by Condition or Defeasance, unless contained in the same Deed, or in another made at the same Time. Co. Lit. 236. b. 2 Sand. 48.

And such a Condition as before mentioned may be created at the same Time that the Release was made, though it be by another Deed. Br. Conditions 115. 2 Co. 74. a.

Rents, Annuities, Warranties, &c. (being Inheritances executory) may be defeated by a Defeasance made at the same Time, or at any Time after. Co. Lit. 237. a.

(P) Where placed in a Deed, and by what Words expressed and created.

A Deed without any Condition in it, is as good as a Deed with a Condition. And when it is in a Deed it has no proper Place assigned it, but it may be in any Part of the Deed, yet for the most part it is placed next after the Habendum, or next after the Reservation of the Rent.

It is also sometimes annexed to and depending upon Estates, and sometimes annexed to and depending upon Recognizances, Statutes, Obligations, Contracts, and other Things; Conditions are also contained in Acts of Parliament and Records.

The most apt Words wherewith to make a Condition in a Deed are, Provided always, So as, or Upon Condition; and yet other Words of like Sense and Signification may make a Condition, as, If it happen, &c. but then this must follow, That then this Estate, (Lease, Deed, or the like) shall be void, and it shall be lawful for the said A. B. &c. to re-enter, &c.

Conditions annexed to Estates are sometimes so placed and confounded amongst Covenants, sometimes so ambiguously drawn, and at all Times have in their Drawing so much Affinity with Limitations, that it is hard to discern and distinguish them.

Therefore.

Therefore for the most part Conditions have conditional Words in their Frontispiece, and begin therewith; and amongst these Words there are three Words that are most proper, which in and of their own Nature and Efficacy, without any Addition of other Words of Re-entry in the Conclusion of the Condition, make the Estate conditional, as Proviso, Ita quod and Sub conditione.

And therefore if A. grants Land to B. To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, Provided that, or So as, or Under this Condition, That B. pays to A. 10l. at Easter next; this is a good Condition, and the Estate is conditional without any more Words.

But there are other Words, as Si, Si contingat, and the like, as will make an Estate conditional also; but then they must have other Words joined to them, and added to them in the Close of the Condition; as That then the Grantor shall re-enter, or That then the Estate shall be void, or the like.

And therefore if A. grants Lands to B. To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, and if, or but if it happen the said B. does not pay to A. 10l. at Easter, without more Words, this is no good Condition; but if these or such like Words be added, that then it shall be lawful for A. to re-enter, then it will be a good Condition. 2 Co. 10. Co. Lit. 204. 27 H. 8. 16. Lit. §. 328, 329, 330, 331.

But these Words, Proviso, Ita quod, and Sub conditione, although they be the most proper Words to make Conditions, yet they do not always make the Estate by the Deed to be conditional, but sometimes serve for other Purposes; for the Word Proviso has divers Operations besides, for sometimes it serves for and works a Qualification or Limitation, and sometimes it serves to work and make a Covenant only.

Therefore observe, that its being inserted amongst the Covenants of a Deed, it only makes the Estate conditional when there are these Things in the Case.

First, When the Clause wherein it is has no Dependance upon any other Sentence in the Deed, nor participates with it, but stands originally by and of itself.

Secondly, When it is compulsory to the Feoffee, Donee, &c.

Thirdly, When it comes on the Part and by the Words of the Feoffor, Donor, Lessor, &c.

Fourthly, When it is applied to the Estate, and not to some other Matter; as if one grants a Manor with an Advowson appendant, and after the Habendum and Reservation of Rent amongst the Covenants there is this Clause inserted, thus, [Provided that the Grantee shall re-grant the Advowson for the Life of the Grantor] this is a good Condition.

And it may be also a Condition and a Covenant; as if the Words runs thus: Provided always and the Feoffee, &c. doth covenant, &c. that neither he nor his Heirs shall do such an Act; this is both a Condition and a Covenant.

But if the Clause have Dependance on another Clause of the Deed, or be the Words of the Feoffee, &c. to compel the Feoffor to do something, then it is not a Condition but a Covenant only; as if there be in the Deed a Covenant that the Lessee shall scour the Ditches, and then these Words follow, Provided that the Lessor shall carry away the Earth; or there is a Covenant that the Lessee shall repair the Houses, and then these Words follow, Provided that the Lessor do provide Timber.

So if this Clause be applied to some other Thing, and not to the Thing granted, then it is no Condition: as if a Lease of Land be made, rendring Rent at B. Provided that if such a Thing happens it shall be paid at C. this does not make the Estate conditional.

Or if a Lease is made for Years without Impeachment of Waste, Proviso quod non profuerit domus voluntarie; in this Case this does make the Privilege, yet it does not make the Estate conditional; or if a Lease is made for Years, rendring Rent, Provided that the Lessor shall not distrain for the Rent; this is a good Condition, but not annexed to the Estate. Co. Lit. 146. 2 Co. 70. Dyer 6, 152, 311, 222. Plow. 136. 5 H. 7. 7. Perk. §. 732.

So if in a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Land after the Habendum there are these Words, viz. Upon these Conditions following, viz. that if the Vender pays the Vendee 20s. at Easter, and enfeoffs him of a Meadow called S. before Whitsontide, that the Bargain shall be void; Provided nevertheless that the Bargainor shall hold the Land for twenty Years without the Let of the Bargainee; this Proviso makes a Condition. Dyer 318.

So if a Lease be made of a House, and amongst the Covenants these Words are inserted, Provided also that if the Lessor will dwell upon it, or keep it in his Hands, then the Lessee, his Executors and Assigns, doth covenant upon one Year's Warning to remove and give Place to the Lessor, this Lease notwithstanding; this is no Condition, but a Covenant only. 27 H. 8. 15. Bro. Condition 7.

If a Lease be made, Provided that if the Rent be behind, without any more Words, this is no good Condition. Muddy's Case, Pas. 14 Jac. B R.

Z z z

Neither

Neither does the Word Si always make a Condition, for sometimes it makes a Limitation; as when a Lease is made for Years, If J. S. shall live so long.

There are other Words also that in the King's Grants, in last Wills and Testaments, and other special Cases, do make Conditions; as Ea intentione, ad effectum propositum, intentionem, paying, and the like.

So that if one devises his Land to J. S. Ea intentione, &c. that he shall pay to W. S. 10 l. or paying, or so as he pays to W. S. 10 l. or to sell, &c. these are good Conditions.

But these Words regularly do not make a Condition when they are used in Deeds; and therefore if one makes a Feoffment in Fee, Ea intentione, ad effectum, &c. that the Feoffee shall do or not do such an Act; these Words do not make the Estate conditional, but it is absolute notwithstanding.

And yet perhaps these Words being conjoined with some others may make a Condition; as if Lands be granted Ea intentione quod si defecerit, &c. tunc quod reintrabit, or the like. Co. Lit. 204, 236. Doct. & Stud. 34, 122. Dyer 318, 138. Plow. 142. 7 H. 4. 22, 10 Co. 42.

Also Conditions are sometimes made specially in Estates and Leases for Years without any of these formal Words, when the apparent Intent of the Lessor is to make the Estate conditional, although the Words be not used as the Words of the Lessor, but as the Words of the Lessee, or indefinitely of neither.

And therefore it has been said, that if an Indenture be made between A. and B. thus: It is agreed and covenanted between the Parties aforesaid, that B. shall have the Land for ten Years, and that he shall not alien it; that this Estate is conditional, but it seems this is not Law.

But if this Clause be inserted amongst other Covenants, viz. If the Lessee hinders the Lessor, to fell, cut and carry away the Trees upon the Lands devised, that the Lessor may re-enter, and the Lease shall be void; this is a good Condition, and so it hath been adjudged in the Case of Haward and Fulchor, Hil. 3 Car. B. R.

And if a Lessee for Years covenants in his Lease, that if he, his Executors or Assigns, shall alien, that it shall be lawful for the Lessor to re-enter; it seems this is a good Condition, and not a Covenant only.

And if a Lease for Years be made, and this Clause is inserted in the Deed, It is agreed between the Parties, that if the Lessee does not pay 10 l. to the Lessor at Easter, that from thenceforth the Lease shall be void; this is a good Condition.

And if a Lease be made with this Clause inserted in the Deed, It is agreed that whosoever shall have the Estate or Interest, that he or they shall find Sureties within the Year for the Rent, otherwise the Estate shall cease; it seems this is a good Condition. Doct. & Stud. 94. Dyer 6, 91, 63, 92.

And if a Lease for Years be made with this Clause inserted, And that it shall not be lawful for the Lessee to alien without Licence of the Lessor, under Pain of Forfeiture; this is a good Condition. Dyer 65, 66.

And if a Lease for Years be made of a House with this Clause inserted in the Deed, And the Lessee shall continually dwell upon the same House, upon Pain of Forfeiture of the said Term; this is a good Condition. Dyer 79, 27. Co. Lit. 204.

And if in a Lease for Years the Lessee covenants to pay so much Rent, and then these Words are inserted, And if it shall happen the said yearly Rent, &c. then the Lessee covenants and grants, &c. that the Lease shall be void; this is a good Condition, and so it has been ever taken, as was said by Just. Dodridge, Hil. 3 Car. Plow. 132. And in all these Cases the Estate is conditional.

But in Cases of Feoffments in Fee, Gifts in Tail, and Leases for Life, it seems Words penned in this Manner will not make Conditions, but that in these Cases the precise and formal Words of a Condition are requisite.

And therefore if a Feoffment be made by Deed, and therein is inserted this Clause, That it is agreed, or That the Feoffee doth covenant, that if the Feoffor do such an Act that the Feoffor shall re-enter; this is no Condition, nor the Estate hereby made conditional. Co. Lit. 204. Doct. & Stud. 94. Dyer 65, 138. And yet see Perk. §. 744.

If one makes a Lease for Years, on Condition to pay Rent at four Feasts, and after there is a Clause in the Deed, And if the Rent shall be behind, &c. that he shall distrain; this Clause does not take away the Condition, but the same continues, and the Estate is conditional still. Dyer 348.

In the making of Estates the Cause is regarded, and in case of the Grants of Lands or Tenements Causa sometimes makes a Condition; as,

If a Woman gives Lands to a Man and his Heirs, Causa matrimonii prælocuti; in this Case if she either marries the Man, or the Man refuses to marry her, she shall have the Land again to her and her Heirs.

But on the other Side, if a Man gives Land to a Woman and to her Heirs, Causa matrimonii prælocuti; though he marry her, or the Woman refuses, he shall not have the Land again to him and his Heirs.

And in the Case of a Grant Executory, the Word pro may make a Condition; and therefore if a Man grants me an Annuity, pro una Acre Terræ, or pro Decimis, &c. or if he grants me an Annuity for a Way or a Gutter through my Ground, this is conditional; and if he be disturbed in the Way, Acre of Land, Tithes or Gutter, he may refuse to pay the Annuity.

So if an Annuity be granted to an Officer for the executing of his Office, or pro consilio impendendo; if the Grantee do not execute the Office, or give Counsel, &c. the Annuity shall cease.

But if one grants me Tithes or an Annuity, and I grant an Annuity for these Tithes, or grant to give Counsel for the Annuity; it seems the Grants that are in this Manner are not conditional, but absolute.

So if I pro consilio, &c. or pro una Acre Terræ, &c. make a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life of another Acre; these Estates are not conditional. Co. Lit. 204. 10 Co. 42. 9 Ed. 4. 19. 15 Ed. 4. 2. Dyer 6.

And if one devises Land to be sold by his Executors, and to be distributed for his Soul; by this the Estate or Power of the Executors is conditional.

So if one devises his Lands to find a Preacher or a Chaplain.

But otherwise it seems it is of Land so conveyed by Deed in a Man's Life-time.

And if a Feoffment be made of Land, Ad erudiendum filium; some have said this Estate is conditional. Dyer 7, 127. Plow. 141, 142.

The most apt and proper Words to make a Limitation of an Estate are, Quamdiu, Dummodo, Dum, Quousque, Si, and such like.

And therefore if A. grants Lands to B. To have and to hold to him and his Heirs until B. goes to Rome, or until he be promoted to a Benefice, or until B. pays to A. or A. pays to B. 20l. or so long as J. S. shall live; or if A. grants Lands to B. To have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. if J. S. and J. D. shall live so long; or if A. grants Lands to B. To have and to hold to him for the Life of B. so that B. pays to A. 20l. at Easter following; these are not conditional, but limited to Estates.

So if A. grants Lands to B. To have and to hold to him for so long as he shall keep himself a Widower; or dum sola fuit, or durante viduitate, if the Grantee be a Widow; these are good limited Estates, but these Words do not make the Estates to be conditional. Co. Lit. 234, 235. 10 Co. 42. Plow. 413. Lit. §. 90. Dyer 290.

If the Words in the Close or Conclusion of a Condition be thus, That the Land shall return to the Feoffor, &c. or that he shall take it again and turn it to his own Profit, or that the Land shall revert, or that the Feoffor shall recipere the Land; these are either of them good Words in a Condition to give a Re-entry, as good as the Word re-enter, and by these Words the Estate will be made conditional. Dyer 125. Plow. 159. Perk. §. 740.

Proviso is as proper a Word as any, but then it must not be dependant on another Sentence: It must be the Words of the Grantor, &c. and compulsory to enforce the Grantee to do some Act. 2 Co. 70. b.

Ad effectum, in Grants of the King, makes a Condition. Roll. Abr. 407.

If the King grants an Advowson in Fee, and further concessit, that the Grantee may amortize this for the Soul of the Progenitors of the King; this is but a Licence, and not a Condition. Ibid.

The Words Ad solvendum in the King's Grant makes a Condition. Ibid.

The Words Ea intentione in the King's Grant makes a Condition. 10 Co. 42. a.

But they do not make a Condition, but a Confidence and Trust, unless an express Re-entry be limited. Dyer 3, 4. Doct. & Stud. 122. Co. Lit. 204.

A Man made a Feoffment Ea intentione, that his Wife should have an Estate for Life, the Remainder to his youngest Son in Fee, and the Feoffee died without making such Estate; the Heir of the Feoffor could not enter because there was no Condition, but an Estate executed presently according to the Intent. 4 Leon. 4.

Ut inveniat, ad inveniendum seu perimplendum, &c. make not a Condition. Roll. Abr. 407.

If a Man leases Land by Indenture, wherein is this Clause: And it is covenanted between the Parties, or it is agreed between the Parties, that the Lessee shall not do such a Thing, upon Pain of Forfeiture of his Estate; this is a good Condition, for here the Words stand indifferently to be the Words of the Lessee or Lessor, and so shall be taken to be the Words of the

Words in

the Lessor. Cro. Eliz. 202. Leon. 245. Roll. Abr. 407, 408. Being by Indenture they are the Words of both Parties. Cro. Eliz. 202. Leon. 245, 246.

But if one leases for Years, and the Lessor covenants, That the Lessee shall have House-boot, Hay-boot and Plough-boot, without committing Waste, upon Pain of Forfeiture of the Lease; this is a Covenant on the Part of the Lessor, and therefore no Condition. Cro. Eliz. 604.

If one leases to a Woman for forty Years, upon Condition that Si illa tam diu viveret & custodiret seipsam a Sole Widow, and should inhabit upon the Premises; this is no Condition, for the Word Si makes the Intention uncertain, whether or no another Thing was intended, besides the Cesser of the Term or the Re-entry. Roll. Abr. 410.

None can imagine what the Conclusion should be, but it was agreed, That if the Lease had been for forty Years, Si tam diu sola viveret & inhabitaret upon the Premises, the Lease had determined by her Marriage or Death. Cro. El. 414. adjudged by three Judges against one; for every Si ought to be answered with a Tunc. Owen 107, 108. Goulf. 179. Moor 400. pl. 525.

But if the Word Si had been omitted in the first Case, it would have been a Condition; or if Sub conditione quod had been omitted, it would have been a Limitation. Goulf. 179.

If a Man leases Lands to another, Proviso si the Rent be in Arrear; this is not any Condition, because the Word si makes the Intention uncertain; for where the Proviso is hypothetical, it ought to be shewed what he would have. Roll. Abr. 410. Roll. Rep. 367. Moor 848. Cro. Jac. 390. 3 Bulst. 153.

If a Man leases Land to another, Proviso if the Rent be behind it shall be lawful for him to restrain; and not being sufficient the Ground to re-enter into the Premises, and the same to have again in his former Estate; this is not a good Condition, for the Words are not that he shall restrain the Goods upon the Tenement; nor is it known what is intended by the Word sufficient, scilicet, sufficient Reparation, Rent, &c. and the Words, the Ground to re-enter into the Premises, are without Sense. Roll. Abr. 410. Roll. Rep. 330, 367. Bulst. 153, 154.

In this Case Lord Coke held the Word restrain to be the same as distrain. Cro. Jac. 300. This was adjudged to be not a good Condition, because not said what shall be restrained, nor who shall re-enter. Moor 848. pl. 1151.

If a Man leases Land for Years by Indenture, and after a Covenant on the Part of the Lessor, this Clause is contained, viz. Provided always nevertheless, and it is covenanted and agreed by and between the said Parties, that the said Lessee, his Executors nor Administrators, shall alien the Premises, but to, &c. this is a Condition and Covenant at the Election of the Lessor. Roll. Abr. 410. 2 Co. 69. b.

If a Man leases Lands for Years rendring Rent, and the Lessee covenants to pay the Rent, and not to do Waste; and the Lessor binds himself in an Obligation, that the Lessee shall enjoy the Lands for the said Rent, and doing according to the Covenants of the said Indenture; these Words, for the Rent, make not a Condition, because he has other Remedy for the Rent, scilicet, upon the Indenture of Covenants. Roll. Abr. 410. Roll. Rep. 367.

The Lessor covenanted that the Lessee paying his Rent, should enjoy the Land; per two Judges against one, the Covenant is conditional. 4 Leon. 50. But in Sid. 280. is held the contrary, per Cur., and in 2 Mod. 34, 35. it is adjudged contra.

So if a Man leases for Years, excepting the Trees, and Liberty to fell and carry them away, reparando sepes & implendo foveas, the Repairing the Ditches, &c. is no Condition, but a Covenant upon which the Lessee has Remedy by Action. 2 Jones 206.

If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition that he shall render to C. and his Heirs a yearly Rent of 20s. and that if B. and his Heirs fail of Payment thereof, that then A. and his Heirs may enter; this is a good Condition, for though a Rent cannot be reserved to a Stranger, yet yearly Rent in this Case shall be intended of a yearly Sum of 20s. in Gross. Lit. §. 345. Co. Lit. 213. a.

If a Man grants a Walk in a Forest, provided the Grantee shall not cut down any Trees super præmissa; though the Soil is not granted præmissa, and has properly a Relation to the Thing itself, yet since in this Case it cannot have such Construction, it shall be intended of Trees growing within the Walks. Cro. Eliz. 781.

A. being seised in Fee of the Manor of B. and of divers Lands in C. then in the Possession of D. for several Years to come, makes a Feoffment thereof to E. to the Use of himself in Tail Male, Remainder to F. in Tail Male, &c. provided that F. or the Heirs Male of his Body in whomsoever of them the Inheritance in Tail of all the Premises shall happen to be, shall pay to the Daughter of A. 200l. according to the last Will of A. and A. makes a Letter of Attorney to J. S. to enter into the Manor of B. and the Lands in C. and in his Name to take Possession, and deliver it to E. whereupon Possession is given to E. of all but but what was in the Possession of D. and D. never attorns, so that the Lands in C. passed not; and after A. by Will bequeaths 200*l.* to his Daughter, and dies without Issue; yet F. is not bound by this Condition, because he has not all the Land according to the Purport of the Condition, which was that he that had all should pay, &c. and a Condition ought to be taken strictly. Poph. 102, 103.

If a Man makes a Feoffment of Lands in several Counties, upon Condition that the Feoffee shall re-ensfeoff him of all the Land within twenty Days after the Date; if Livery is made but of Part within the twenty Days, the Condition is not broke though all be not re-conveyed within twenty Days, according to the Letter of the Condition, which is intire. Hob. 24.

If a Man leases for Life, or makes a Feoffment upon Condition, that if the Lessee does <sup>Improper Words.</sup> such an Act the Estate shall be void; though the Estate cannot be void before Entry, yet this is a good Condition, and shall give an Entry to the Lessor by Implication. Roll. Abr. 408.

3 Co. 65. Lit. §. 723.

So it is if the Condition be, that the Estate shall cease. Roll. Abr. 408.

If a Man makes a Feoffment by Deed, upon Condition, that if the Feoffee does not such an Act, then the Feoffment, Charter and Livery, shall be void; this is a good Condition, though no Re-entry be reserved. Roll. Abr. 408.

So if the Condition be, that the Feoffment shall be void; this is a good Condition, and shall give a Re-entry without an express Reservation. 11 H. 7. 22. Roll. Abr. 408.

So if the Condition be, that the Deed of Feoffment, & seisin inde habita erit vacua & nullius vigoris; this is a good Condition, for this is all one as if he had said, That the Feoffment shall be void, for the Livery takes Effect by the Deed. Dubitatur, M. 37 & 38 Eliz. B. R. Goodall and Wiat; two against two Justices. Roll. Abr. 408. In 5 Co. 95. b. the same Case and same Point appears. Cro. Eliz. 384. S. C. and S. P. adjudged in Error. Goulf. 176, 177. S. C. Poph. 100. S. C. and S. P. doubted by Fenner and Popham.

If a Man leases for Life, or makes a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition that if the Feoffee or Lessee does such an Act, that then his Estate shall be void and cease, and the Land shall remain over to a Stranger; though it was intended that the Stranger should take Advantage of the Condition, and he cannot by Law, yet the Lessor or Feoffor may enter by Force of this Condition. Lit. §. 723.

If a Man makes a Feoffment by Deed, and the Feoffee grants by another Deed, made upon Condition, That if the Feoffor does such an Act, the first Deed shall be of no Force; this is a good Condition, and shall give a Re-entry, though none be reserved. 30 Aff. 11. 45 Aff. 10. Roll. Abr. 408. In Br. Condition 113. the S. C. and S. P. is admitted where Livery is made upon both Deeds.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years, and therein is this Clause, Et non licebit to the Lessee dare, vendere, vel concedere statum & terminum suum alicui personæ sine licentia of the Lessor, sub pena forisfacturæ termini præd'; this is a good Condition. Roll. Abr. 408.

So if there be such a Clause, And the Lessees shall continually dwell upon the House, upon Pain of Forfeiture of the said Term and Interest. Ibid.

If a Man makes a Feoffment rendring Rent, and if the Rent be behind, that it shall be lawful for him and his Heirs to retake the Land, and to make his Profit thereof; this is a good Condition, and shall give a Re-entry though it be not expressly limited. Ibid.

(Q) What shall be said a Condition precedent, and what subsequent.

IF I grant, that if you will go to such a Place about my Business, you shall have 10*l.* this is a Condition precedent. 3 H. 6. 7. b. Roll. Abr. 414.

If I retain a Man for 40*s.* to go with me to Rome; this is a Condition precedent, for the Duty commences by going to Rome. 3 H. 6. 33. b. Br. Count 5. Roll. Abr. 414.

So if a Man retains another to be his Counsel for two Years next ensuing, taking every Year 20*l.* this is a Condition precedent. 3 H. 6. 33. b. Br. Count 5. Bulst. 168. Poph. 161.

If by Charter-party G. and three others, covenant with P. and C. to let to Freight a certain Ship of which they are Owners, to the said P. pro usu & ex parte of one B. for a Voyage, modo & forma sequente, G. and the other three covenant and grant with B. that the Ship shall go from L. and take such Freight, and thence to T. and thence to Z. and thence to return to the T. and C. covenants with G. and the other three, that P. shall cause Lading to be put in the Ship at T. Z. &c. within so many Days, and covenants that the said P. shall pay to the said G. and the other three, pro tota transfretatione, 147*l.* at such a Day; G. and the other three may have an Action of Covenant against C. for Non-payment of the said 147*l.* without Averment of the Performance of the Covenants of their Parts; for this is not a Condition precedent, but Covenants distinct of the other Part. Roll. Abr. 414. Bulst. 167, 168. S. C. contra by three Judges upon a Writ of Error in B. R. but the Court not being full, the Reversal of the Judgment was not pronounced; but adjournatur.

If Articles of Agreement be made between A. on the Behalf of B. and C. by which A. covenants, that B. for the Consideration after in the Deed expressed, shall convey certain Lands to C. in Fee, and after C. covenants on his Part, pro considerationibus prædictis, to pay to B. 160*l.* &c. in this Case, though B. does not assure the Land to C. yet C. is bound to pay the Money, for the Assurance of the Land is not a Condition precedent; but these are distinct and mutual Covenants. Roll. Abr. 415. 2 Sand. 155, 166. Mod. 64. Sid. 464. 2 Keb. 674. 2 Mod. 33, 34.

If A. makes a Release to B. of an Obligation, in which B. is bound to him with a Proviso, that A. might have and enjoy 120*l.* due from J. S. to B. at Lady-day next ensuing; this is a Condition precedent, and not subsequent, because the 120*l.* was not due at the Time of the Release, but at a Day to come; and if it should be subsequent, the Condition would then be void, the Release being of a Personal Thing. Roll. Abr. 415.

If A. Tenant for Life, and R. in Reversion in Fee, covenant to levy a Fine, and that it shall be to the Use of A. and his Heirs, Si R. does not pay 10*s.* to A. the 10th of September after, to the Use of R. in Fee: In this Case the Word Si, &c. is a Condition subsequent, and not precedent; so that A. has an Estate in Fee till R. pays the 10*s.* because there is a Day limited for Payment of the 10*s.* and the subsequent Words explain the Intent to be a subsequent Condition, viz. And if he pays it then, it shall be to A. for Life, and after to the Use of R. in Fee; which shews the Intent to be, that A. shall have an Estate in Fee till the 10*s.* paid. Roll. Abr. 415.

A Copyholder in Borough English surrenders to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of his eldest Son and his Heirs, if he lives to the Age of twenty-one, provided and upon Condition, that if he dies before twenty-one, that it shall remain to the Surrendoror and his Heirs; though by the first Words it seems to be a Condition precedent, yet upon all the Words taken together it is not, but a Surrender to the Use of the eldest Son, to be defeated upon a Condition subsequent. 3 Lev. 132.

A. made a Lease by Indenture of a Messuage to B. in December 22 Car. for twelve Years, and covenanted with B. to repair it with all necessary Reparations before Midsummer following; and B. covenanted on his Part, Quod ab & post tale tempus quale A. repararet & emendaret præd' Messuagium, quod tunc prædictus B. sufficienter repararet prædictum Messuagium ad omnia tempora durante dicto termino; in an Action of Covenant by A. against B. for not repairing of the Messuage after Midsummer, according to the Covenant of B. and declares, that although he has performed all the Covenants on his Part to be performed, (without any particular Averment that he has repaired before Midsummer, according to the Covenant, with all necessary Reparations) yet the Defendant has not repaired it after the said Feast, &c. This is a good Declaration; for the Covenant of A. to repair it before Midsummer, is not a Condition precedent, but only the Time divided and mutual between A. and B. viz. That A. shall repair it before Midsummer, and B. after during the Term; for which each of them may have their Remedy by an Action against the other, for the ultimate Time limited for A. to repair is at Midsummer, and the Covenant of B. refers to the said extreme Time limited to A. and not to the Fact, viz. the Reparation, for the Words are post tale tempus, &c. Roll. Abr. 416, 417. Vide Style 140, 141.

Conditions precedent must be literally performed; and Equity will seldom give Relief in Cases of such Conditions, but it often does in Cases of Conditions subsequent, which not being favoured, because they go in Defeasance of Estates, this Court may relieve, if performed in the substantial Part, though some of the Circumstances are not pursued. 3 Chan. Ca. 130.

It is sufficient in Case of a Condition subsequent, that the Intent and Substance be performed. Vern. 83.

A Man by his Will gave an Annuity to his Granddaughter for Life, and afterwards by a Codicil to his Will declared, That if his Granddaughter should marry with the good Liking of his Trustees, then she shall have a Portion. But without their Consent she married a Man worth nothing; the Husband is not intitled to the Money, the Condition, viz. That if she shall marry with the good Liking, &c. being a Condition precedent to the Gift of the Portion. Will. 285.

A Man bequeaths to his Niece, an Infant, the Surplus of his Personal Estate, payable at twenty-one; and if she shall die before twenty-one, the Surplus to go over. The Bequest is a Condition precedent, and the Niece shall have the Interest paid her in the mean Time. 2 Will. 419.

A Man bequeaths the Residue of his Personal Estate to a Woman, provided she marries with the Consent of his two Executors; on the Death of one, the Condition being a subsequent one is become impossible, and she may marry without the Consent of the Survivor. 2 Will. 626.

In executory Contracts, if the Agreement be that one shall do an Act, and that for doing thereof the other shall pay, &c. the doing of the Act is a Condition precedent to the Payment, and the Party who is to pay shall not be compelled to part with his Money till the Thing be performed for which he is to pay. This is laid for a Rule by Holt C. J. Salk. 171. pl. 3. Vent. 177, 214.

If a Day be appointed for the Payment of Money, and the Day is to happen before the Thing can be performed, an Action may be brought for the Money before the Thing is done; for the Party relied upon his Remedy, and intended not to make the Performance a Condition precedent. Salk. 171. pl. 3. Vent. 177. Saund. 319.

Where a certain Day of Payment is appointed, and that Day is to happen subsequent to the Performance of the Thing to be done by the Contract, in such Case Performance is a Condition precedent, and must be averred in an Action for the Money. Salk. 171. pl. 3. So is Jon. 218. to be understood. Salk. 112. p. 1.

(R) Of Conditions Copulative and Disjunctive.

IF the Condition be in the Copulative, and it is not possible to be so performed, it shall be taken in the Disjunctive. Roll. Abr. 444. Owen 52. Leon. 74. Goulf. 71. Popb. 204, 205.

As if the Condition be, that he and his Executors shall do such a Thing: This is in the Disjunctive, because he cannot have an Executor in his Life-time. 21 Ed. 4. 44. b.

So if the Condition be, that he and his Assigns shall sell certain Goods: This is in the Disjunctive, because both cannot do it. 21 Ed. 4. 44. Roll. Abr. 444.

If a Lease be made to Husband and Wife for twenty-one Years, if the Husband and Wife, or any Child between them, so long lives, and the Wife dies without Issue, yet the Lease shall continue during the Life of the Husband; for the Disjunctive refers to the Whole, and disjoins not only the latter Part, as to the Child, but also to the Baron and Feme; so that the Sense is, if the Baron, Feme, or any Child, shall so long live. Co. Lit. 225. a. Moor 239. pl. 375. Owen 52, 53. 1 Leon. 74. Goulf. 71. And. 161, 162.

So if an Use be limited till A. shall come from beyond Sea, and attains to his full Age, or dies; if he comes from beyond Sea, or attains his full Age, the Use ceases. Co. Lit. 225. a.

(S) Of Conditions to enlarge Estates.

A Condition to enlarge or increase an Estate may be good; as if a Gift be made in Tail, or a Lease be made for Life or Years, on Condition that if such an Act be done or not done, the Lessee shall have the Land to him and his Heirs; as if one makes a Lease for Life to one, and if the Lessor dies without Heir of his Body, then he grants the Land to the Lessee and his Heirs for ever.

Or if Land be granted to a Man for five Years, on Condition that if the Grantee pays to the Grantor within the two first Years 10*l.* then that he shall have the Fee-simple, otherwise that he shall have the Land but for five Years, and Livery of Seisin be made according to the Deed; this is a good Condition, and by this upon the Performance of the Condition the Fee-simple will pass.

So if one grants Land for five Years, rendring Rent, and that if the Lessee will hold it over to him and his Heirs, that he shall pay 20*l.* Rent; this is a good Condition, and if he pays the Rent, he shall have the Fee-simple.

So if a Man makes a Lease for Years, and at the same Time for the Surety of the Term to the Lessee makes a Feoffment to him, upon Condition that if he be disturbed in his Term he shall have the Fee-simple of the Land, and delivers both these Deeds at one Time, and gives Livery of Seisin accordingly; this is a good Condition.

So if a Lease for Life be made, upon Condition that if the Lessor or his Heirs pays to B. or his Heirs 10*l.* at a certain Day, that then the Lessor may re-enter; and if he does not pay it at that Time, and the Lessee pays to the Lessor or his Heirs 10*l.* at a certain Day, after the former Day, that then the Lessee shall have the Lands to him and his Heirs for ever; this is a good Condition.

But in all Cases where these Kinds of Conditions are good, to make the increased Estate good there must be these Things in the Case:

First,

First, There must be a precedent particular Estate, as an Estate in Tail for Life or Years for a Foundation to erect the subsequent Estate upon, and that first Estate also must be certain and irrevocable, not upon Contingency or with Power of Revocation.

Secondly, The Privy must remain until the Time of the Performance of the Condition; for if the Donee or Lessee grants away the first Estate, the Condition cannot afterwards be performed to effect and produce the increasing Estate.

Thirdly, The subsequent Estate must vest Eo instante, when the Contingency upon which the Condition depends shall happen, or never.

Fourthly, The first and second Estate must take Effect by one and the same Deed, or else by two Deeds delivered at the same Time, for quæ incontinenti sunt inesse videntur.

Fifthly, The Condition upon which the Increase is, must be possible and lawful; for upon an impossible Condition it cannot, and upon an unlawful Condition it shall not increase. Shep. Touch. 128, 129.

If one makes a Lease for Life, provided that if the Lessee dies within sixty Years, that his Executors shall have the Land for so many of the sixty Years as shall be to come at the Time of his Death; this is no Condition to make the Estate to increase, but it may be a Covenant. Co. 155. Dyer 150.

And if a Lease for Years be made, on Condition that if the Lessor sells the Reversion of the same Land, the Lessee shall have the Fee of it; this is no good Condition to increase the Estate. Co. 84.

And a Possibility cannot increase upon a Possibility; as a Lease for Years to a Lease for Life by one Contingent, and the Lease for Life to a Fee-simple by another. 8 Co. 75.

And if a Lease be made to a Man and a Woman for their Lives, on Condition that which of them two shall first marry, that one shall have the Fee, and they intermarry; in this Case neither of them shall have the Fee for Incertainty. Co. Lit. 218.

(T) Of Conditions to abridge an Estate.

IF a Man makes a Lease for Life, and adds this Condition, That if the Lessee within one Year does not pay 20s. that he shall have but a Term of two Years, and if he does not pay the 20s. by this his Lease for Life is gone, and he has now but a Lease for two Years. Co. Lit. 318. 5 Ed. 3. 27.

(U) Of the Matter and Substance of a Condition.

IF a Lease be made, on Condition that if a Stranger dislike it, or be discontent with it, that the Lease shall be void; this is a good Condition. 1 Hen. 8. 13.

If a Lease be made, on Condition that if the Lessee be outlawed, the Lease shall be void; it seems this is a good Condition. Shep. Touch. 129.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that if the Feoffee commits Treason, that the Feoffor shall re-enter; in this Case the Condition is vain; for if the Feoffor enters, the Entry is not lawful, for the King is intitled, and his Title shall be preferred. Ibid.

No Condition or Limitation, be it by Act executed, Limitation of a Use, or by Devise or last Will, that contains in it Matter repugnant, and tending to the utter Subversion of the Estate, or Matter that is against Law, or Matter that is impossible to be done, is good.

And therefore in all such Cases if the Condition be subsequent the Estate is absolute, and the Condition void; and if the Condition be to go before the Estate, the Estate and Condition both are void. Co. 85. 6 Co. 43. 9 Co. 128.

Repugnant Conditions to restrain Alienation. If a Feoffment or other Conveyance be made of Land, or a Grant of Rent, &c. in Fee-simple by Deed or Will, upon Condition that the Feoffee or Grantee shall not alien to certain Persons, as to J. S. or to J. S. and W. S. this is a good Condition.

So if one makes a Feoffment in Fee of Land, on Condition that the Feoffee shall not alien it in Mortmain; this is a good Condition.

So if A. be seised in Fee of Blackacre, and B. enfeoffs A. of Whiteacre in Fee, on Condition that he shall not alien Blackacre; this is a good Condition.

But if the Condition be, that the Feoffee or Grantee shall not alien the Thing granted to any Person whatsoever, or that if he does alien to any Person, that he shall pay a Fine to the Feoffor; these Conditions are void in the Case of a common Person, as repugnant to the Estate; but in Case of the King, such Conditions are good.

And in the Cases of a common Person also the Alienation is good until it be avoided by the Feoffor.

And in Pas. 19 Jac. B. R. it was held by Just. Dodridge and Chamberlain, that if a Feoffment be on Condition, that if the Feoffee aliens he shall pay 10*l.* to the Feoffor; that this this is a good Condition: But Ch. Just. and Just. Haughton held the contrary, for then this shall be a Circumvention of the Law. Co. Lit. 223.

If a Gift had been made to an Abbot and his Successors, on Condition not to alien, this had been a good Condition. Dr. & Stud. 124.

If one makes a Feoffment of Land to an Infant, on Condition that he shall not alien to any Person; this is a good Condition during the Minority of the Infant, but not afterwards.

In like Manner as if one make a Feoffment to a Husband and Wife, on Condition that they shall not alien; this Condition to some Intent is good, that is, to restrain Alienation by Deed of Feoffment, and to some Intent repugnant and void; that is, to restrain Alienation by Fine, for that is lawful.

So if a Gift be made in Tail, on Condition that the Tenant in Tail may alien for the Profit of his Issues; this is a good Condition.

And so if Lands be given in Tail, upon Condition that the Tenant in Tail or his Heirs shall not alien in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, nor for the Term of any other's Life, but for their own Lives, this Condition is good.

But if Lands be given in Tail, on Condition that the Tenant in Tail or his Heirs in Tail shall not suffer a common Recovery, levy a Fine with Proclamations according to the Statutes of 4 H. 7. and 32 H. 8. to bar the Issues, or on Condition that he shall not make Copyhold Estates of Copyhold Lands, according to the Custom of the Place, or make Leases according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 28. these Conditions are repugnant, and therefore void.

And yet as to the last of these Cases, see the Opinion in Co. Lit. 223. to the contrary; and that a Condition to restrain the making of such Leases is good, for this Power is not incident to the Estate, but given to him collaterally by the Statute, and Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se introducto. But tota Curia in Mary Portington's Case is against him.

If a Man makes a Gift in Tail to A. the Remainder to him and his Heirs, on Condition that he shall not alien; this Condition as to the Estate-tail is good, and void as to the other; and therefore if there be an Alienation he shall defeat it only as to the Estate-tail. Shep. Touch. 130. Co. Lit. 224. 10 H. 7. 11. 13 H. 7. 23. 10 Co. 30. Perk. §. 739.

And if a Man makes a Gift in Tail, on Condition that the Donee or his Heirs shall not alien; this is a good Condition to some Intents, and void to other; and therefore if he makes a Feoffment in Fee, or any other Estate by which the Reservation is discontinued tortiously, the Donor shall enter, otherwise if he suffers a common Recovery.

And if a Gift in Tail be made, on Condition that the Tenant in Tail shall not make a Lease for his own Life; this is not a good Condition. 6 Co. 43. against Co. Lit. 223.

If one seised in Fee of Land makes a Lease of it for Years or Life, on Condition that the Lessee shall not alien the Land leased, or any Part thereof, during the Term, or on Condition that he shall not alien it, or any Part of it, during the Term, without Licence of the Lessor; these are good Conditions.

So if one be seised in Fee of a Manor, and he makes a Lease of Years of it to J. S. on Condition that he shall not make voluntary Estates by Copy; this is a good Condition, but in a Feoffment in Fee such a Condition is repugnant and void.

And if one be possessed of a Lease for Years, or of a House, or of any other Chattel Real or Personal, and he gives or sells all his Interest therein, upon Condition that the Donee or Vendee shall not alien the same; this Condition is void for Repugnancy, and the Gift or Sale is absolute. 6 Co. 43. Co. Lit. 223.

If one makes a Feoffment of Land in Fee, on Condition that the Feoffor shall retain the Land for twenty Years without Interruption; this is a good Condition, and not repugnant. 2 Co. 72. Dyer 318.

If I grant Land to another for Life, if it shall please me so long to suffer him; this Condition is repugnant and void. Dyer 94.

If a Feoffment be made of Land in Fee, on Condition that the Feoffee shall not enjoy the Land, or shall not take the Profits of the Land, or on Condition that the Heir of the Feoffee shall not inherit the Land, or on Condition that the Feoffee shall not do Waste, or on Condition that his Wife shall not be endowed; in all these and the like Cases the Condition is void as repugnant to the Estate. 10 Co. 39. Co. Lit. 206. Plow. 77, 133. 21 H. 7. 8. 8 H. 7. 10. Perk. §. 731.

If a Gift in Tail be made, on Condition that the Donee or his Issues shall not take the Profits of the Land, or on Condition that if the Donee dies, his Estate shall go to another, or on Condition that their Wives shall not be endowed, or on Condition that they shall not do Waste, or on Condition that Warranty and Assets, or a collateral Warranty, shall not bar the the Issues in Tail; all these Conditions are repugnant and void. 6 Co. 41. Co. 84. Co. Lit. 224.

If Lands be given or granted to two and their Heirs, on Condition that the Survivor shall have the Whole notwithstanding Partition, or on Condition that the Survivor shall not have the Whole although there be no Severance; these Conditions are repugnant and void. Co. 8.

If one makes a Lease for Life, on Condition that the Lessee shall not do Fealty; this Condition is not good.

If Lands be given to one and the Heirs Males of his Body, provided that if he dies without Heirs Females of his Body, that the Donor shall re-enter; this Condition is repugnant and void. Co. Lit. 204.

If one has Land in Possession or Reversion, and he grants Rent out of it, on Condition that the Grant shall not charge the Person of the Grantor; this is a good Condition, and not repugnant.

But if a Man grants a bare Annuity, or grants a Rent-charge out of another Man's Land with such Condition, or if one grants a Rent-charge on Condition that the Grantee shall not distrain nor charge the Person of the Grantor, or if one grants a Rent out of Land, on Condition that the Land shall not be charged with it; all these Conditions are repugnant and void.

So if two grant a Rent-charge out of Land, provided that it shall not extend to one of them; this Condition is repugnant and void. Shep. Touch. 131, 132. Co. Lit. 146. 10 H. 7. 8. 6 Co. 41. 5 H. 7. 7. 7 H. 6. 44. Perk. §. 732.

If a Man seised in Fee of Land makes a Lease for Years, rendering Rent, and after the Lessee makes a Lease to the Lessor of other Land, on Condition that he shall not distrain for his Rent in the former Lease made to this Lessee; this is a good Condition, and not repugnant.

If one makes a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life, with Warranty, on Condition that the Feoffee or Lessee shall not vouch to Warranty, nor recover in Value; or if the Lease be made without Impeachment of Waste, on Condition that if the Lessee commits Waste the Lessor shall re-enter; these are good Conditions, and not repugnant. Perk. §. 734. Dyer 47.

Conditions
against Law.

All Conditions annexed to Estates being compulsory, to compel a Man to do any Thing that is in its Nature good or indifferent, or being restrictive, to restrain or forbid the doing of any Thing which in its Nature is Malum in se, as to kill a Man, or the like, or Malum prohibitum, being a Thing forbidden by any Statute, or the like; all such Conditions are good, and may stand with the Estates.

But if the Matter of the Condition tends to provoke, or furthers the doing of some unlawful Act, or to restrain or forbid a Man the doing of his Duty; the Condition for the most part is void.

And therefore if Lands be given or granted to a Man, upon Condition that he shall kill a Man, or upon Condition that he shall burn his Neighbour's House, or upon Condition that he shall forswear himself, or upon Condition that he shall save and keep harmless the Grantor whatsoever he shall do, or that if he do these Things the Grant shall be void; these Conditions are void.

Or if Lands be given or granted to an Officer, upon Condition that he shall not duly execute his Office; this Condition is against Law, and void: Et sic de similibus. Co. Lit. 223; 224, 207. Perk. §. 722, 723.

So if a Gift be made in Tail, upon Condition that the Donee shall discontinue, or if one gives or grants Land, on Condition that the Grantee shall be a Forefeiter against the Statutes; these and such like Conditions are void. Perk. §. 727.

And hereupon it is, that Conditions annexed to Land, that the Profits thereof shall be employed to superstitious Uses, are void. Co. 24. 6 Co. 43.

And hence also it is that such Conditions which are against the Liberty of Law, as that a Man shall not marry, or the like, are void. Dyer 343. Co. Lit. 206.

And hence also such as are against the publick Good; and therefore if one grants his Land to J. S. on Condition that he (being a Husbandman) shall not sow his Arable Land; this Condition is void.

And in all these Cases if the Condition be subsequent to the Estate, the Condition only is void, and the Estate good and absolute; if the Condition be precedent, the Condition and Estate both are void; for an Estate can neither commence nor increase upon an unlawful Condition. 11 Co. 53. 7 Ed. 3. 65. Perk. §. 722, 725.

Conditions
impossible.

All Conditions annexed to Estates that contain in them Matter at the Time of making of them impossible to be done, are void, and therefore,

If

If one gives or grants Land, on Condition that a Man shall go to Rome in three Days; or on Condition that a Man shall enfeoff such a Corporation, when there is no such; or if one gives Lands in Tail, on Condition that the Estate shall cease, as if the Tenant in Tail be dead; or if one grants Lands, on Condition that a Man shall enfeoff his Wife; all these and such like Conditions are void.

And in these Cases also if the Condition be subsequent, the Condition is void only, and the Estate is absolute; and if the Condition be precedent, the Condition and the Estate both are void; for an Estate can neither commence nor increase upon an impossible Condition.

And if the Thing to be done by the Condition be possible at the Time of making of the Condition, and do afterwards by the Act of God become impossible, the Condition is become void, and the Estate absolute; as if a Feoffment be made, on Condition that if the Feoffee dies before the Day, or on Condition that if the Feoffee shall appear in such a Court before or at Easter, and he dies before the Time; in these Cases the Condition is gone, and the Estate is absolute. 6 Co. 41. Co. Lit. 207, 219, 206. Dyer 252. Perk. §. 935, 729. Plow. 272, 286. Co. 84.

And the same Law is for the most part of Limitations, if they be repugnant, impossible, Limitations, or against Law, as is before shewed to be done of Conditions. 6 Co. 41. Co. 14.

(V) Of Conditions relating to Assignees by Nomination.

IF a Condition be to lease certain Lands for three Lives to the Obligee, or his Assigns, and after the Obligee demands a Lease to be made to three Strangers for their Lives; he ought to make it to them accordingly, or otherwise the Condition is broke; for here by the Word Assigns, is intended Assigns by Nomination; for he cannot have other Assigns, inasmuch as the Estate is not assignable before he has it. Roll. Abr. 421. Roll. Rep. 373. 3 Bulf. 168. Bridgm. Rep. 39, 40.

If a Man be bound in 20*l.* upon Condition to pay 10*l.* to such Person as the Obligee shall name by his last Will, and after the Obligee names no Person by his Will; the Obligor is not bound to pay it to his Executors, because the Condition has Reference to his Nomination. Roll. Abr. 421. Hob. 9. Godb. 192. And per Coke, there is a Diversity where the Condition is to pay 10*l.* to the Assignee of the Obligee, and where to the Obligee or his Assigns; for in the last Case it vests as a Duty in the Obligee, and shall go to his Executors.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition that the Feoffee shall pay 20*l.* to the Feoffor, his Heirs or Assigns, at such a Day, and before the Day the Feoffor dies; the Feoffor may pay it either to the Heir, or to the Executors of the Feoffor, for they are his Assigns in Law to this Intent; for the Feoffor having a bare Condition in the Land, and no Estate, could have no Assigns in Deed. Co. Lit. 210. a.

But if a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition that if the Feoffor pays 20*l.* to the Feoffee, his Heirs or Assigns, before such a Day, &c. and before the Day the Feoffee dies; the Money cannot be paid to his Executors, because the Assignees of the Estate only were intended by the Condition; and where there may be Assignees in Deed, the Law will never seek out or appoint Assignees in Law. Co. Lit. 210. a. 5 Co. 96, 97.

If A. seised in Fee by Indenture inrolled, covenants with B. that if B. pays to A. his Heirs or Assigns, 400*l.* at a Day, that then A. and his Heirs will stand seised to the Use of B. and his Heirs; and A. devises to his Wife, during the Minority of his Son, and dies; the Money shall not be paid to his Wife, for she is not Assignee, the Reversion being in the Heirs of A. 5 Co. 97. Leon. 252.

But if A. had made a Lease for Life, the Remainder to another in Fee, the Lessee for Life had been an Assignee. 5 Co. 97.

And it was said, that if A. had conveyed over his whole Estate in Part, yet so long as A. had any Part remaining, the Tender ought to be made to him. 5 Co. 97. a.

(W) What Persons shall be bound by a Condition.

IF an Estate be made to a Feme Covert she shall be bound by the Condition, because this does not charge her Person, but the Land. Roll. Abr. 421. 45 E. 3. 28 H. 8. 13. 6. 5. Moor 92. pl. 229.

If an Estate be made to an Infant upon an express Condition, the Infant shall be bound to perform it. Roll. Abr. 421. 8 Co. 44. b.

So where an Estate is devised to an Infant, upon Condition he is bound to take Notice thereof, and perform the Condition. 2 Lev. 21, 22. Mod. 86, 87. Vent. 200, 201, &c.

So if an Estate be made to another in Fee, upon Condition his Heir after his Death, though he be within Age, shall be bound by the Condition. Roll. Abr. 421. Jones 390. Cro. Jac. 374. Roll. Rep. 136, 198. 3 Bulf. 58, 59.

If a Man devises Lands to H. his Son, and to the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder to T. and the Heirs Males of his Body, upon Condition that he or they, or any of them, shall not alien, discontinue, &c. this Condition shall extend only to restrain T. and the Heirs Males of his Body, and not H. and his Heirs. 5 Co. 68. Moor 727. pl. 1014.

If a Man leases Lands for Years, upon Condition that the Lessee, nor his Assigns, shall not alien the Term to any but to one of his Brothers, and after the Lessee aliens to one of his Brothers; this Assignee is not within the Condition, but he may alien to whom he pleases. Roll. Abr. 422. Dyer 152. a.

If a Man devises Part of his Lands to his eldest Son in Tail, and the rest of his Land to his younger Son in Fee, provided that neither of his Son should sell or lease before he comes to the Age of thirty Years; and that if either of the Sons should, &c. the other Son should have his Lands, &c. The Eldest before his Age of thirty leases, and the Younger enters upon him: He shall hold these Lands discharged of the Proviso, for that extends only to the immediate Estate expressly devised, and not to the new Estate arising upon the Limitation. 2 Leon. 38. Owen 8, 55. Moor 271. pl. 324. Godol. 366.

If a Man devises his Land to his Wife during the Minority of his Son, upon Condition that she shall do no Waste, and dies, and the Wife marries again, and dies, and after the Husband commits Waste; the Condition is not broke; adjudged, because a Condition to avoid an Estate shall be taken strictly. 2 Leon. 35, 48. Lat. 20.

And a Proviso that the Lessee shall not alien, extends not to his Executors. Moor 11. pl. 40. Dyer 65, 66. a.

If A. being seised in Fee of the Manor of B. and of divers Lands in C. then in Possession of D. for several Years to come, makes a Feoffment thereof to E. to the Use of himself in Tail Male, Remainder to F. in Tail Male, &c. provided that F. or the Heir Male of his Body, in whomsoever of them the Inheritance in Tail of all the Premises shall happen to be, shall pay to the Daughter of A. 200*l.* according to the last Will of A. and A. makes a Letter of Attorney to J. S. to enter into the Manor of B. and the Lands in C. and in his Name to take Possession, and deliver it to E. whereupon Possession is given to E. of all but what was in Possession of D. and D. never attorns, so that the Lands in C. passed not; and after A. by Will bequeaths 200*l.* to his Daughter, and dies without Issue; F. is not bound by this Condition, because he hath not all the Land according to the Purport of the Condition, which was, that he that had all should pay, &c. Poph. 102, 103.

A Person gives Maney to an Infant, upon a Condition to be performed; the Infant is bound by it as well as one at full Age, and may be a Trustee. 2 Vern. 561.

An Infant shall be bound by Conditions in Fact, and such Conditions as he can perform in Equity as well as in Law. Mod. 300. 2 Vern. 343. Co. Lit. 233. b.

Who shall be bound by a Condition as Assignees.

If A. leases to B. for Years, upon Condition that B. his Executors or Assigns, shall not alien; and B. makes his Wife Executrix, and dies, and the Wife takes a Husband, and he aliens; this is a Breach. Pasch. 28 H. 8. Dyer 6, 7. by Brown and Shelly, contra Baldwin; for the Land is tied with the Condition into whose Hands soever it comes. Leon. 3.

If a Lease for Years be made, upon Condition that the Lessee, his Executors or Assigns, shall not alien without the Assent of the Lessor, and the Lessee dies Intestate, his Administrator cannot assign without Licence, for he is an Assignee in Law. Cro. Eliz. 26. Leon. 3. Vide 1 And. 123, 124. Cro. Eliz. 657.

If a Man leases an House for eighty Years, upon Condition that the Lessee, his Executors and Assigns, shall maintain it in Repairs; and if, upon lawful Warning given by the Lessor, that the House is in Decay, it is not repaired, &c. within six Months, the Lessor, &c. may re-enter; and the Lessee leases it to A. for thirty Years, and A. leases it to B. for fifteen Years: If the House is out of Repair, Warning must be given to the first Lessee, and not to B. for he is no Assignee of the Term, but has only a petit Interest under the great Lease, and the Warning needs not be given at the House, but to the Person of the Lessee who has the grand Interest. Yelv. 36. Owen 114. The Notice to B. (being a Person not concerned) though upon the Land, is not sufficient. Cro. Jac. 9. Moor 680. pl. 932. Owen 114.

(X) Of a Condition to perform Covenants.

IF a Man leases a Manor by Indenture, except a certain Parcel of Land, and in the Indenture there are several Covenants to be performed on the Part of the Lessee; and after the Lessee for further Security binds himself in an Obligation to perform all the Covenants, Articles and and Agreements contained in a Pair of Indentures, and names the said Indentures, and after the Lessee enters into the Land excepted: Yet this is not any Breach of the Condition, for this Land excepted is not leased, and is so as if it had not been named, and therefore it cannot be intended an Agreement to be performed on the Part of the Lessee within the Intent of the Indenture. Roll. Abr. 431. Cro. Eliz. 657. Moor 553. pl. 747. 11 Co. 50.

But if the Exception was of a Thing dehors, as a Way, Common, or other Profit appre- hender, it is otherwise. Cro. Eliz. 637. Moor 553. pl. 747.

Note; Where a Lease is void, the Bond to perform the Covenants is also void. Sid. 309.

Lev. 45. T. Raym. 27.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years rendring Rent, payable at Michaelmas and at the An- nunciation, upon Condition that if he does not pay it upon the said Feasts, or within fourteen Days after, that it shall be lawful for him to re-enter; and the Lessee binds himself upon Condition to perform the Covenants and Agreements of this Lease; and after the Lessee does not pay the Rent at the Feasts, but after, and within the fourteen Days; yet the Condition is forfeited, for the Condition in the Lease is not Part of the Reservation. Roll. Abr. 431.

If A by Deed Poll reciting, that he was possessed of certain Lands for Years, by good and lawful Conveyance assigns the same to B. and in the Deed there are several Articles and Agreements on the Part of A. and A. enters into a Bond to B. with a Condition for the Performance of the Articles and Agreements in the Deed: If A. had not such Interest by a good and lawful Conveyance, the Obligation is forfeited. Leon. 122.

If A. by Indenture leases Lands to B. for Years, and covenants that B. shall enjoy the same without Interruption; but there is a Proviso in the Indenture, that if A. pays 10*l.* to B. on the 31st of March next, the Indenture and all therein contained shall be void; and A. enters into an Obligation with a Condition for the Performance of the Covenants in the Indenture; and the 20th of March next A. disturbs B. and after upon the said 31st of March pays the 10*l.* Yet an Action lies upon the Obligation, for by the Breach of the Covenants before the Condition was performed, the Obligation was forfeited, and it is not material that the Covenants became void before the Action brought. Cro. Eliz. 244. Vide 2 Brownl. 167.

And though the Obligee releases the Covenants after the Breach, it is not material. 3 Leon. 69. Hob. 168.

But if the Proviso had been, that upon Payment of the 10*l.* as well the Obligation as the Indenture should be void, perhaps it had been otherwise, for then the Bond would have been void before the Action brought. Cro. Eliz. 244.

If a Man leases for Years, by the Words Demise, Grant, &c. and in the Deed there are several Covenants on the Part of the Lessor, and he enters into a Bond conditioned for the Performance of all the Covenants, &c. in the said Deed: This extends as well to the Covenants in Law, as exprefs Covenants. 4 Co. 80. b.

If A. by Deed enfeoffs B. provided that if A. pays Money to B. on or before a certain Day, the Feoffment shall be void; and covenants to save harmless from Incumbrances and Arrears of Rent, and to make further Assurance, and after A. enters into an Obligation conditioned for the Performance of all Covenants, Payments, Articles and Agreements comprised in the Deed: If A. pays not the Money, yet the Bond is not forfeited; for there being no Covenant to pay the Money, it is a Proviso in Advantage of the Feoffor, that if he paid the Money he should have the Land again; so that it is at his Election to pay the Money or lose the Land, which is a sufficient Loss to him; and the Word Payment in the Bond has Reference to the Covenant to save harmless from Arrears of Rent. Cro. Jac. 281.

2 Mod. 36, 37.

But it is otherwise if the Condition of the Bond had been for the Performance of all the Covenants and Conditions in the Deed. 2 Lev. 116. adjudged. The like in Yelv. 206. the Proviso being, *that if A. paid for B. 40*l.* to C. &c.* for the Word Payment in the Obligation shall have Reference to such Payments only as by the Deed are compulsory, not such as are voluntary, for otherwise the Obligation and Condition would be repugnant and contrary to the Deed. Brownl. 113. Bulst. 156.

(Y) Of Condition to save harmless, &c.

IN an Action of Debt brought by A. against B. in which C. and D. are Bail for B. if the Plaintiff has Judgment against B. and the Bail, and after C. one of the Bail gives Security to A. for all the Money due to him; and in Consideration thereof A. promises C. that he may take Execution against D. the other Bail, and that he will not release him without the Assent of C. upon which C. procures D. to be taken in Execution, and after A. releases him out of Execution, and thereupon D. is bound to A. in an Obligation of which the Condition is to save A. harmless of all Actions and Damages which may arise upon the Release of D. out of Execution, then being in Execution at the Suit of A. from all Persons that may trouble him concerning the said Release, and after C. brings an Action against A. for the Breach of his Promise, and recovers his Damages: This is a Breach of the Condition, for the Condition is not to be intended by the Words of the Damages only which directly arise upon the Release, but to any Collateral Act dehors as to the said Promise. Hob. 269, 270. Case 353.

Where the Condition is, that the Defendant shall discharge, acquit or free the Plaintiff of or from such a Bond, or Rent or Action, or from any other Thing in particular ascertained in the Condition, there the Negative Plea, Non damnificatus, is not good, because the Defendant hath undertaken to do an Act in Discharge of the Plaintiff. Carth. 375.

But where the Condition is only to free, or discharge or indemnify the Plaintiff from any Damage, or Cost or Trouble which shall or may happen by Reason of such Bond, Rent or Action, or other particular Thing therein mentioned; in such Case the Negative Plea is sufficient, because it does not appear that any Damage happened to the Plaintiff; and if no Damage happened, then it is impossible that the Defendant should shew in the Affirmative the Manner how he had freed or discharged the Plaintiff; therefore it lies on the Part of the Plaintiff, by way of Reply, to shew wherein he was damnified. Carth. 374. 5 Mod. 244.

(Z) What Persons may perform a Condition.

IF A. and B. levy a Fine to the Use of A. in Fee, if B. does not pay 10*s.* at Michaelmas after; and that if he then pays the said 10*s.* that then it shall be to the Use of A. for Life, and after to B. in Fee, and after B. dies before Michaelmas; it seems the Heir of B. may pay the 10*s.* for this is not more Personal, being the Payment of Money, than in the Case of Lit. (Co. Lit. 205. b. 206. a.) upon a Mortgage. The Court was divided as to this Point, viz. Croke and Jones thought it was not Personal, but the Heir might perform it; but Brampston and Berkley econtra. Roll. Abr. 420. Jon. 390.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition to be void if the Feoffor pays a certain Sum of Money to the Feoffee, and the Feoffor dies before Payment, his Heir cannot pay it, because the Time of Payment is past; for the Condition being general, if the Feoffor pays, &c. it is as much as to say, if the Feoffor during his Life pays, &c. Lit. §. 337. Co. Lit. 208. a.

But when a Day of Payment is limited, and the Feoffor dies before the Day, his Heir may tender the Money, because the Time of Payment was not past by the Death of the Feoffor. Lit. §. 337. b. Co. Lit. 208. b. Poph. 10.

So may his Executors or Administrators, because they represent the Person of their Testator. Lit. §. 337. Co. Lit. 208. b. 209. a.

If A. mortgages his Lands to B. upon Condition that if A. and C. pays 20*s.* at a Day to B. that then he shall re-enter: A. dies before the Day, C. may pay the Money, &c. and yet the Letter of the Condition is not performed. Co. Lit. 219. b. So if C. dies before the Day, A. may pay it. Ibid.

But if A. had been living at the Day, and would not have paid the Money, but had refused to pay it, and C. had tendered it, B. might have refused it. C. Lit. 219. b.

If a Man devises his Land to his Daughter at her Age of eighteen Years, and that his Wife shall take the Profits to her own Use until his Daughter comes to eighteen, provided she shall keep and bring up his Daughter at School, &c. and dies; and the Wife marries again, and dies, the Interest in the Lands accrues to the Husband; for the Keeping and Education of the Child is not of such particular Privy, but it may be effectually performed by another. Hob. 285. Hut. 36. Brownl. 79. Godol. 350, 388.

If two are enfeoffed to re infeoff, if one refuses to re infeoff, the other cannot perform the Condition by a Feoffment of the Whole. Contra 49 Ed. 3. 16. b. Roll. Abr. 421.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a less Sum, if my Servant, by my Command, tenders it to the Obligee, this is sufficient. 2 H. 6. 3. b. Roll. Abr. 421.

So if a Stranger tenders for and by the Assent of an Infant above fourteen. Moor 222. pl. 137.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee by way of Mortgage, upon Condition to be void upon Payment of Money by the Feoffor at a Day; if a Stranger of his own Head tenders the Money, the Feoffee is not bound to receive it. Co. Lit. 206. a. b. Leon. 34. Owen 137.

But if the Feoffee accepts it, this is a good Satisfaction, and the Mortgagor or his Heirs agreeing thereto afterwards, may re-enter; but the Mortgagor may disagree thereto if he will. Co. Lit. 206. b. 207. a.

If

If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition that B. shall pay Money at a Day, and B. before the Day enfeoffs C. now C. has an Interest in the Condition, and may tender the Money at the Day for the Safeguard of his Estate. Lit. §. 336. Co. Lit. 207. b. 5 Co. 96.

And so also may B. being a Party and Privy to the Condition. Lit. §. 336. Co. Lit. 207. b.

If a Man mortgages Land upon Condition that if he or his Heirs repay 100 l. at such a Day, he shall re-enter; and dies leaving a Daughter, and his Wife ensient with a Son; if the Daughter pays the Money, and after the Son is born, yet she shall retain the Land for ever. Cro. Car. 61.

(AA) Of Conditions where something is to be done before the Performance or Breach of them.

If a Man leases Land for Life or Years, or, &c. reserving a Rent, and for Default of Payment a Re-entry; the Lessor ought to demand the Rent at the Day, otherwise the Condition shall not be broke by the Non-payment of the Rent. Roll. Abr. 459.

So if a Man leases Land, reserving a Rent, to be paid at a Place out of the Land, upon Condition of Non-payment to re-enter: Though the Rent be to be paid out of the Land, yet this is a Rent, and not an Annuity; and therefore the Lessor ought to demand it at the Day, otherwise he shall not enter for the Non-payment. 4 Co. 73. Cro. Eliz. 415, 535, 536.

If a Man reserves a Rent, and that if the Rent be in Arrear he shall forfeit so much by way of Nomine pænæ; the Nomine pænæ shall not be forfeited without Demand made. Hob. 82, 180, 113, 133. Brownl. 179.

If a Man grants a Rent-charge to another, and for Default of Payment to forfeit a Nomine pænæ; no Forfeiture shall be of the Nomine pænæ without a Demand at the Day. 7 Co. 28. b. Cro. Eliz. 383. Goulds. 129, 186. Moor 357. pl. 486.

If a Man leases Land for Life or Years, reserving a Rent, upon Condition that if the Lessee does not pay the Rent at the Day without any Demand made by the Lessor, that then it shall be lawful to the Lessor to re-enter: In this Case, by this special Agreement of the Parties, the Lessor may enter for Default of Payment of the Rent without any Demand. 5 Co. 40. b.

If a Man leases Land for Years, reserving a Rent, with Condition for Non-payment to be void: In this Case the Lessor ought to demand the Rent at the Day of Payment by the Condition, or otherwise the Lease is not void though it be not paid by the Lessee. Roll. Abr. 459. Sid. 7.

Where a Man leases to another, reserving a Rent, and the Lessee covenants to pay the Rent at the Days limited, he ought to pay it without any Demand, at his Peril, inasmuch as he hath bound himself to pay it. Roll. Abr. 459.

If a Man leases Land by Indenture for Years, reserving a Rent, payable at certain Days at London, and the Lessee in the same Indenture covenants to pay the said Rent at the Days and Place aforesaid; he ought to pay it, by Force of this Covenant, without any Demand of the Lessor, otherwise he has broke his Covenant. Roll. Abr. 459.

If a Man leases for Years, reserving a Rent, with a Clause of Re-entry; and upon the making the Lease the Lessor lends him 200 l. Stock, and the Lessee covenants to pay the Rent at the Days and Place; and after, by an other Covenant, covenants that if Default of Payment of the said Rent be made at any of the Days in which it ought to be paid, according to the Effect, Limitation and true Intent of these Presents, then the Lessee covenants to repay the said 200 l. Though there needs no Demand of the Rent to make the first Covenant to be broke by Non-payment, yet there ought to be a Demand to intitle him to the 200 l. for this last Covenant does not refer to the Covenant before, but to the Reservation: The Words are (according to the Limitation of the Indenture) which is the Reservation; and by these Presents is intended the Indenture, or the most notable Part thereof, which is the Reservation. Roll. Abr. 460.

If a Man leases Land by Indenture, reserving a Rent, and the Lessee binds himself by Obligation, upon Condition to perform all Covenants, Articles and Payments in the Indenture mentioned: In this Case there ought to be a Demand made by the Lessor, to make the Obligation to be forfeited. Roll. Abr. 460.

If a Man leases by Indenture certain Coal-Mines, reserving a Rent, and the Lessee binds himself in an Obligation, with Condition to observe, perform, pay and keep all Payments, Rents, Covenants, Grants and Agreements in the said Indenture mentioned: In this Case it is a good Assignment of a Breach of the Condition in an Action of Debt, upon the Obligation that the Lessee did not pay him the Rent at the Time of Payment thereof by the Reservation, without alledging that he demanded the Rent at the Day of Payment; for he is not bound to demand it, but the other ought to pay it without Demand. Roll. Abr. 460. Cro. Car. 76, 77. Hut. 90, 91.

If a Man makes a Lease, rendring Rent, and covenants by the Indenture of Lease to pay the Rent, being lawfully demanded, and enters into an Obligation to perform the Covenants; the Lessee is not bound to pay the Rent without a Demand. Roll. Abr. 460.

If A. leases Land to B. by Indenture for Years, reserving 20 l. Rent per Annum, payable at four Feasts by equal Portions; and after B. is bound in an Obligation to A. upon Condition that if he pays to A. for the Rent of the said Premises the yearly Rent of 20 l. for such Term, (scilicet the Term demised) at four Quarter-Days, according to the Tenor and Effect of one Lease thereof made, bearing Date with this Obligation, and made between the said Parties, according to the Tenor and Effect of the said Lease, by equal and even Portions, then the Obligation shall be void: The Lessee is not bound to pay the Rent by this Condition without any Demand of the Lessor, because it refers to the Indenture of Lease, and that it shall be paid as a Rent according to the Indenture. Roll. Abr. 460, 461. Cro. Car. 421.

If a Man makes a Grant of the Rent out of Land, and after devises, that the Grantee shall have the said Rent according to the Intent of the said Writing; and that if his Heir pays the said Rent according to his Will, then he shall have the Disposition of the said Land so long as he shall perform the Will; and if his Heir does not perform his Will, then that his Executors shall have the Disposition of the Land, to the Intent that his Will be performed; and if there be Default in the Heir that his Will be not performed, and Default in his Executor that his Will is not performed, then the Land shall be to J. S. In this Case the Grantee of the Rent ought to demand the Rent at the Days of Payment from the Heir, and from the Executor, when it comes to him, otherwise J. S. shall have nothing; for the Will refers to the Writing; and the Clause of the Executor is not that he shall pay the Rent, but if there be Default in him, &c. so that this is not to be paid as a Rent, and then it ought to be demanded. Roll. Abr. 461. Cro. Jac. 144, 145.

If a Man devises Land to another, upon Condition *that if he pays 4 l. yearly out of the Land to the Wife of the Devisor for her Life*, adding over and above, that his full Intent and Will was, that she should be yearly paid the said Rent accordingly: The Devisee ought to pay this Rent to his Wife, at his Peril, without any Demand of the Wife, otherwise the Condition is broke. Roll. Abr. 461. Lane 78.

But if a Man devises Lands to his Wife for Life, so long as she shall be effectually ready to demise it to his Heir at 50 l. paid yearly, when she shall not dwell on it herself; yet if she goes and lives at another Place, the Condition is not broke without a Tender and Refusal to lease. Moor 626. pl. 860.

If a Man leases Lands for Years, upon Condition that if the Lessee does not pay yearly 40 s. at the Feast of P. during the Term to D. it shall be lawful to the Lessor to re-enter: In this Case the Lessee ought to pay it, at his Peril, without any Demand, because this is not issuing out of any Land. Roll. Abr. 461. He must seek D. if in England. Lit. §. 345. Co. Lit. 213. b. Dal. 54, 55.

If A. conveys Lands to B. in Tail, upon Condition that B. and the Heirs of his Body shall pay to the Daughter of A. 200 l. or so much thereof as shall be unpaid at the Death of A. according to the Intent of the Will of A. and after A. by Will devises to his Daughter 200 l. viz. 100 l. to be paid that Day twelve Months next after his Death, and the other 100 l. that Day twelve Months next after, &c. and dies; B. is not bound to pay the 200 l. without Demand; for the Payment by the Indenture is referred to be according to the Will, and the 200 l. was devised as a Legacy, which ought to be paid upon Demand, and not at the Peril of the Executor, and therefore the Nature of the Payment is altered by the Will. Poph. 102.

By Notice. If a Man, in Consideration that J. S. will deliver a Horse to a Stranger, promises to pay J. S. 5 l. when he shall be thereto requested: J. S. needs not give Notice to him of the Delivery of the Horse, but he ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril; for he ought to pay it upon Request. Roll. Abr. 461.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10 l. to the Obligee at the Day of the Marriage of the Obligee; the Obligee is not bound to give Notice to the Obligor before his Marriage at what Day he will be married, but the Obligor ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril, inasmuch as he has taken upon him to pay it at the Day. Ibid. Roll. Rep. 433, 434. Cro. Car. 34. adjudged. Hutt. 80. 3 Bulst. 237. Dubitatur Cro. Jac. 404.

If a Man promises J. S. in Consideration that he will marry A. W. his Cousin, he will pay 10 l. to him at the Day of his Marriage: J. S. needs not give Notice to him who made the Promise, before he marries with A. W. at what Day he will marry her, but he ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril, inasmuch as he has taken upon himself to pay it at the Day, though though the Marriage is to be had by J. S. himself. Roll. Abr. 462, 468. Yelv. 168. Cro. Jac. 229, 405. 3 Bulst. 326. Lat. 97. Roll. Rep. 433, 434. adjudged. 3 Bulst. 236, 237. adjudged, and therein it is said, that there is a Difference where Money is to be paid, and where a collateral Thing is to be done upon the Marriage Day; but yet vide Cro. Jac. 102. Cro. Car. 35. Hut. 80. Yelv. 122, 168.

So a fortiori, if a Man promises to pay 10*l.* to J. S. at the Day of the Marriage of W. N. for there the Marriage is not to be had by him to whom the Promise is made. Roll. Abr. 462, 468. Roll. Rep. 433, 434. 3 Bulst. 236, 237.

If J. S. sues an Action against J. D. and J. N. comes to J. S. and promises him, that if he will surcease his Suit against J. D. that he himself will pay him all the Charges, &c. of the said Suit, when he, scilicet J. S. comes into Somersetshire: If J. S. surceases his Suit, and after comes into Somersetshire, J. N. is bound to perform his Promise, without any Notice given of the coming of J. S. into Somersetshire, because this was a Duty by his coming there. Roll. Abr. 462, 469. Roll. Rep. 314. Hob. 68. Brownl. 10. Sed vide Hob. 93. where the Opinion is contra.

If A. says to B. that if he will sell certain Cattle to C. for such Sum as shall be agreed between them, if C. does not pay him the Sum according to the Agreement, he himself will pay it; and B. sells the Cattle to C. for 20*l.* to be paid at a Day to come, and C. does not pay the 20*l.* at the Day, A. is bound to pay it at his Peril, without any Notice given to him by B. for how much he sells them, or at what Time, because he has taken upon himself to pay it at his Peril. Roll. Abr. 462.

If A. sells Lands to B. by the Name of twenty Acres, according to the Rate of 200*l.* for every Acre; and it is agreed between the Parties, that the Land shall be measured by J. S. before the first of January next ensuing; and A. covenants to repay according to that Rate for every Acre before the first of May after, if there be not twenty Acres upon the Measure: If J. S. measures it, and it is found there is not twenty Acres, A. ought to repay it before May at his Peril, without any Notice given how many Acres it wants of twenty, for he has taken upon himself to perform it at his Peril. Roll. Abr. 462, 469. Roll. Rep. 314.

So in this Case, if by the Agreement no certain Person had been appointed to measure it, but that it should be measured by one elected by one of the Parties, and by another elected by the other: If the Vendee elects J. S. and gives Notice thereof to the other, and of a certain Time to measure it, and J. S. does it at the Day, and none comes for the other to join with him, yet he ought to take Notice, at his Peril, how many Acres it wants of twenty, otherwise an Action of Covenant lies; for now, by the Matter subsequent, and the Default of the Vendor, it is as much as if J. S. had been appointed at the Beginning to have measured it. Roll. Abr. 462, 469. Roll. Rep. 314. In Point of Covenant, Notice is not so strictly to be given as it is upon an Obligation which is in Point of Forfeiture. Cro. Jac. 390, 391. & vide 472. Bulst. 12. Hut. 80.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that whereas the Obligor is Lessee for Years from the Oblige of certain Lands; if he renders up the Possession of the Land at the End of the Term of the Lessor, his Heirs or Assigns, upon Request, then the Obligation shall be void, &c. and after the Lessor assigns over his Reversion, and the Assignee at the End of the Term requests him to render up the Possession to him; he is bound to do it without any Notice given him that he is Assignee; for he ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril, inasmuch as he has bound himself to render it up to the Assignee. *Roll. If the Plaintiff in an Action upon the Case declares, that in Consideration that he would become bound to the Defendant by Obligation for the Payment of 11*l.* at a Day, the Defendant assumed to deliver an Horse to the Plaintiff; and the Plaintiff avers, that he offered to be bound to the Defendant, &c. and did not say the Obligation was sealed, and that he offered to deliver it so sealed, as he ought: This is not good, for he ought to do it of his Part. Hob. 24, 105, 69, 70.

If A. being a Bailiff of the Borough Court of Westminster, in Consideration of 10*l.* given to him by B. promises B. to arrest J. S. at the Suit of B. if he had brought to him any sufficient Warrant to do it; but says B. never brought him any Process out of the said Court to arrest him: This is a good Plea, because it belonged to B. to sue out the Process, for it will be Maintenance in A. to do it; and the Law (where the Words are general) will so marshal them, that he ought to do it for whom it is most proper. Roll. Abr. 466. For to have Advice of his Counsel, is only for the strengthening his Assurance; and, at his own Peril, he may require it without if he will. Cro. Eliz. 466. If the Party himself might advise, it would be no Plea to say, Quod consilium non dedit advisamentum. Cro. Eliz. 297, 298.

In an Action upon an Assumpsit, if the Plaintiff declares, that whereas he, at the Request of the Defendant, had delivered to the Defendant so much old Lay Metal, to be artificially made by the Defendant into Pewter Vessels, capiendo inde of the Plaintiff tantum quantum for his Labour he shall reasonably deserve: In consideratione inde the Defendant after, scilicet, the same Day, assumed to deliver to the said Plaintiff Lay Metal artificially made into Pewter, when he should be requested; and avers, that although the Defendant was requested to deliver the said old Lay Metal made into Pewter Vessels, yet he had not delivered it, &c. and the Defendant pleads Non assumpsit, and it is found for the Plaintiff. Though it is not averred, that he tendered to the Defendant so much as he deserved for the making thereof into Pewter Vessels, yet the Declaration is good, for this is not a precedent Condition, but the Words capiendo proinde, &c. is but to shew the Contract between them, upon which he may have an Action of Debt. Though the Defendant may retain the Goods till he be paid as much as he deserves, yet this shall come of his Part to shew how much he deserves, and that he was ready to deliver it upon Payment thereof; for this ought to come properly of his Part, inasmuch as it does not lie in the Conscience of the Plaintiff how much he deserves, without shewing thereof by the Defendant; and also it is at the Election of the Defendant, either to bring his Action for what he deserves, or retain the Goods till Payment, and therefore it ought to come of his Part; and here the Defendant does not rely upon it, but pleads Non assumpsit. Roll. Abr. 466.

If A. covenants with B. to surrender a Copyhold, which he has for Life, to the Use of B. who has the Reversion thereof upon Request made by B. to A. and after B. tenders to A. a Letter of Attorney in Writing, by which he gives Power to two Attornies to surrender for him, at the next Court of the Manor, to the Use of B. and this Course is warrantable by the Custom of the Manor: In this Case, upon this Tender and Request to seal, A. is not bound to seal the Letter of Attorney, nor to surrender in Court, or otherwise, for A. has taken upon him to surrender upon Request; so that it is at the Election of A. whether he will surrender in Court or by Letter of Attorney, or any other ways that he may; and this Election cannot be taken away by B. (All. 68, 69. Styl. 107.) and therefore when B. does not require him to surrender, but only to seal a Letter of Attorney; this is a void Request, and as no Request, (for it ought to be an express Request to make a Surrender, and not an implied one. Cro. Jac. 300.) and therefore A. is not bound to seal the Letter of Attorney, nor to surrender in Court, or otherwise, upon this Request. Roll. Abr. 466, 467. Cro. Car. 299, 300. Jon. 314, 315. God. 445.

If A. and B. undertake one to the other to perform the Award of J. who awards, that A. shall pay to B. 8*l.* 8*s.* or 3*l.* and all Costs that B. expensisset in & circa prosecutionem cujusdam placiti transgressionis inter ipsos A. & B. pendent, prout per notam attornati predicti B. appareret, ad libitum ipsius A. in this Case B. is not bound to tender a Note of his Attorney to A. of the Cost that he has expended in it, without Request made by A. to do it, because A. has Election to pay one or the other, scilicet, the 8*l.* which is certain, or the 3*l.* and Costs of Suit, which are uncertain; and B. does not know whether he will pay the one or the other, and therefore A. ought to do the first Act, scilicet, to pay the 8*l.* or request B. to give him a Note from his Attorney of the Cost, and if B. refuses to deliver it, A. is excused. And another Reason was given in this Case, viz. because B.'s Attorney ought by this Award to give the Note; and he is a Stranger, and therefore it needs not be shewn before Request made. Roll. Abr. 467. March 108.

If A. be bound in an Obligation to B. of which the Condition is, that A. shall pay to B. all such Money as by a true and justifiable Bill under the Hand of the Attorney of B. shall appear to be before disbursed by B. or his Attorney, or any of them, or by any of their Means or Appointment, upon such a Day, in such a certain Sum, between, &c. In an Action upon this Obligation, if B. assigns for a Breach, that 24*s.* by a true and justifiable Bill under the Hand of J. S. the Attorney of B. appeared before to be disbursed, which A. did not pay: This is a good Breach, without alledging that A. had Notice thereof, or that the Bill of the Attorney was shewn to him; and though it was expressly alledged by A. that no such Bill was tendered to him, by which it appeared what Sum was disbursed, because the Attorney was a Stranger, of which A. ought to take Notice at his Peril. Roll. Abr. 467. Vide March 108, 109.

If A. undertakes to B. that if B. will borrow 100*l.* of C. that if he will pay it to C. at such a Day, and upon such Conditions as shall be agreed between them; and B. borrows the Money, and agrees that it shall be repaid at a Day certain, and the Money is not paid, upon which C. sues B. and recovers it: Now though B. did not give Notice of the Agreement to A. before the Day, yet B. shall recover his Principal against A. but not his Damages, for the want of Notice shall not discharge C. of his Promise. Bulst. 12.

If A. upon a good Consideration promises B. to join with him in the Surrender of certain Copyhold Lands, B. must give Notice to A. when he is ready to join in a Surrender. All. 68.

If A. devises Lands to B. (who is not his Heir at Law) in Tail, provided B. shall not marry without the Assent of C. and if she marries without such Assent, then devises the Land to D. B. at her Peril must take Notice of this Condition, for she may as well take Notice of that as of her Estate, and no Body is bound to give her Notice. 2 Lev. 21, 22.

Otherwise where the Devise is to the Heir at Law upon such a Condition, for the Heir upon his general Title may enter without Notice of such Will or Condition. 2 Lev. 22.

So where a Man makes a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to his Heir in Tail, &c. upon Condition, and dies. 3 Mod. 28, 29, &c.

If a Man covenants to pay for the better Support and Maintenance of his Wife 200*l.* within two Years after he shall be required, to such Persons as she shall by Deed assign and appoint: She appoints the Payment thereof to A. and B. and dies before Notice to the Covenantor; and adjudged Notice needs not be given in her Life-time. Skin. 34.

If a Man, in Consideration that I will enter into an Obligation to J. S. for his Debt, promises to save me harmless from all such Obligations in which I shall enter to J. S. for his Debt not exceeding 500*l.* If I enter into an Obligation to J. S. under 500*l.* he ought to save me harmless at his Peril, without any Notice given to him that I have entered into an Obligation, because he has bound himself to it. Roll. Abr. 467, 468. Before Notice.

If the Condition be, that he shall pay so much as he shall be found in Arrear before such Auditor as the Obligee shall assign; when the Auditor is assigned, he ought to take Notice at his Peril how much he is found in Arrearages, and perform it. Roll. Abr. 468. Roll. Rep. 286.

So if the Condition be to stand to the Award of J. S. he ought to take Notice of the Award at his Peril, and perform it. Ibid.

An Award was made between A. and B. that A. within two Months should make a Lease, and upon the making thereof, B. should pay him 50*l.* A. is not bound to give B. Notice when he would make the Lease, though it may be objected that B. must always have 50*l.* about him. Vent. 93.

If the Condition of the Obligation be to pay the Damages that shall be recovered by J. S. against him, he ought to take Notice of the Sum recovered at his Peril, and pay it. Roll. Abr. 468. 18 Ed. 4. 18.

If a Man promises another to pay him so much at the Marriage of a Stranger, he ought to take Notice of the Marriage at his Peril, without Notice given. Roll. Abr. 462. pl. 4. 468. Roll. Rep. 434.

If A. be indicted in a Leet for an Incroachment upon the Highway, and after A. dies, and B. his Heir continues the Incroachment, and thereupon an Order is made in the Leet, that B. shall reform the Incroachment by a Day, upon the Pain of 40*s.* and for not reforming thereof, the Lord of the Leet brings an Action of Debt for the 40*s.* and declares thereupon as before: This is a good Declaration, without alledging that B. had Notice of the Order made, inasmuch as he is within the Jurisdiction of the Leet, he ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril. Roll. Abr. 468. Vide 2 Roll. Abr. 136. pl. 1.

(BB) Who are disabled to perform Conditions.

If a Man promises to perform an Award, which is, that he shall deliver up a certain Obligation to the other, in which the other is bound to him, without limiting any Time when it shall be performed: If he brings an Action of Debt upon the Obligation, and recovers, and after delivers up the Obligation, yet it is not any Performance of the Condition, but it is broke, because he ought to deliver it up as it was at the Time of the Award made, for the Recovery in the mean Time is a Deceit, and a Disability of itself by his own Act to perform it. Roll. Abr. 447. Sid. 48. T. Raym. 25. Keb. 103, 118.

If the Feoffee, upon Condition to reinfcoff the Feoffor, enfcoffs a Stranger, upon Condition to perform the Condition, yet the Condition is broke, because the Feoffee has disabled himself to do it. Roll. Abr. 447. 38 Aff. 7.

If there be Feoffee upon Condition to re infeoff, or to infeoff a Stranger, and after another recovers the Land against him by Default, yet till Execution sued the Condition is not broke, for before Execution he is not disabled; for perhaps he will never sue Execution, and if he sues Execution after he has made the Feoffment according to the Condition, the Feoffor may re-enter, for the Condition is broke. Roll. Abr. 447, 848. pl. 1. 2. 44 Aff. 26. 44 Ed. 3. 9. b.

Where a Feoffment is made, on Condition that the Feoffee shall give the Lands to the Feoffor and his Wife, and the Heirs of their Bodies, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor; if the Feoffor dies before the Gift made, he must make a Lease to the Wife for her Life, without Impeachment of Waste, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor, which is as near as can be to the Intent of the Condition. Lit. §. 352. Co. Lit. 219.

But where a Feoffment is made upon such Condition, and the Feoffee infeoffs another, and doth not perform the Condition, the Feoffor may enter, because the Feoffee has disabled himself to perform the Condition. Lit. §. 355.

If the Feoffee, upon Condition to re infeoff, &c. grants a Rent-charge out of the Land: This is a Forfeiture of the Condition, because he is disabled to make a Feoffment of the Land as it was at the first Feoffment; and if the Feoffor should accept the Re-feoffment, he should be subject to the Charge. Roll. Abr. 447.

If the Feoffee, upon Condition to re infeoff, &c. takes a Wife; by this he had disabled himself to perform the Condition, because the Land is subject to the Dower of his Wife, and remains not in the same Plight. Lit. §. 357. Co. Lit. 221.

So if he had made a Lease for Years, to commence in futuro. Co. Lit. 221. b.

But if Feoffee, upon Condition to re infeoff, is disseised, and after takes a Wife, binds himself in a Statute, &c. This is no Disability, for that during the Disseisin the Land is not charged with it; so that if the Wife dies, or the Conusee releases, &c. and after the Disseisee enters, he may perform the Condition. Co. Lit. 222. a. 2 Co. 59. b.

If a Stranger recovers by real Action against a Feoffee, upon Condition to re infeoff; this is no Disability of the Feoffee before Execution sued, for perhaps he will not sue to Execution. Roll. Abr. 448. 44 Ed. 3. 9. b. Secus where by Default upon a feigned Title. Co. Lit. 222. b.

But if he that recovers sues Execution, or enters upon the Feoffee, the Condition is broke, for he is disabled. Roll. Abr. 448. 44 Ed. 3. 9. b.

So if after such Recovery the Feoffee makes a Re-feoffment, and after he that recovers enters upon him, or sues Execution; now the Condition is broke, and the Feoffor may re-enter. Roll. Abr. 448.

If an Annuity be granted till he is promoted to a Benefice, if the Grantee takes a Wife, the Annuity is determined, because by the Marriage he is disabled, & Lex non cogit inutile, scilicet, to proffer it to him. Ibid.

(CC) To whom a Condition may be performed.

IF a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition that if he pays 100*l.* to the Heirs, Executors or Administrators of the Feoffee within a Year after his Death, that then it shall be lawful for him to re-enter; and after the Feoffee makes a Feoffment to J. S. and dies, and the Feoffor pays the Money to the Heir of the Feoffee: This is a good Performance of the Condition, for the Heir is within the expresse Words of the Condition. Roll. Abr. 421. Cro. Eliz. 384. Moor 708. pl. 989. Goulsf. 177, 178. Poph. 100.

So if the Condition be to pay to the Feoffee, his Executors or Assignees, and the Feoffee makes his Sons Executors, and dies, and Administration is committed during their Minority, it is the safest Way to pay the Money to the Executors, or one of them; for the Administrator is but as a Bailiff to them. 3 Leon. 103.

And in this Case, if the Money had been paid to the Assignee, it had been no Performance of the Condition, because the Assignee is not named. 5 Co. 97. Cro. Eliz. 384.

But if the Condition had been to pay it to the Feoffee, his Heirs or Assigns, it might have been paid to either. Co. Lit. 210. a.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, by way of Mortgage, upon Condition to be void upon Payment of the Money by the Feoffor at a Day: If the Feoffee dies before the Day, the Money shall be paid to the Executors, and not to the Heirs of the Feoffee, because it shall be intended the Estate was made by Reason of the Loan of the Money, or for some other Duty. Lit. §. 339. Co. Lit. 209. b.

But if the Condition be, that if the Feoffor pays, &c. to the Feoffee, or his Heirs; if he dies before the Day, the Payment ought to be made to his Heir, and not to his Executors, for Designatio unius est exclusio alterius. Lit. §. 339. Co. Lit. 210. a. Brownk. 66.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, to pay 10*l.* per Ann. after the Death of the Obligee, to the Executors of the Obligee, for the Use of his Children, and he dies without making any Executors, the Money shall be paid to his Administrators. Hell. 115, 116.

If A. pawns a Jewel to B. for 25*l.* but no certain Time is appointed for the Redemption thereof; and after, B. being sick, his Wife, in his Presence, and with his Assent, delivers it to C. and B. dies; the Money must be paid to the Executors of B. and not to C. because by the Delivery of the Feme, with the Assent of the Baron, there passed no Interest, but a Custody only. Cro. Jac. 244, 245.

It would be so, though it be delivered over upon a Condition. It is not like a Mortgage, for there he who has the Interest ought to have the Money. Yelv. 178.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10*l.* &c. it is a good Performance if he pays it to his Deputy. Roll. Abr. 421. 42 Ed. 3. 13. b.

A Bond conditioned for the Delivery of forty Pair of Shoes at H. within a Month to J. S. a common Carrier, for the Use of the Obligee, and J. S. did not come to H. within the Month, but the Obligor delivered them to his Porter: This is a good Performance, for the Delivery to the Man is a Delivery to the Master, within the Intent of the Condition. 2 Mod. 309.

If the Condition of an Obligation is to pay 20*l.* to the Obligee, and other the Parishioners of D. it may be paid to any two of them. Moor 68. pl. 183.

(DD) At what Time a Condition shall be performed where Time is limited.

IF A. covenants with B. to make a Surrender of Land, or to convey Land to B. upon Request, (or upon reasonable Request): If a Writing purporting a Surrender or Conveyance be tendered to him, with Request to seal it, A. ought to seal it presently, and shall not have any Time to advise by his Counsel, whether it be according to the Covenant. Roll. Abr. 441. Cro. Car. 299, 300. Jon. 314. Godb. 445.

If a Man covenants to make further Assurance at all Time and Times at the Charges of the Covenantee, and as Counsel advises that he shall levy a Fine; yet he is not bound to do it presently, but he shall have convenient Time to do it, though the Words be, that he shall do it at all Times, for the Words ought to have a reasonable Construction. Roll. Abr. 441.

If A. being a Copyholder for Life, covenants with B. to surrender to B. in Reversion the said Copyhold Tenement, super rationabilem requisitionem ei fiendam by B. and after B. tenders to A. a Writing purporting a Letter of Attorney of Surrender of the said Tenement to B. and A. requests, that before she seals it, she, by her Counsel, circa scriptum illud infra rationabile tempus tunc proximo sequens advisaretur, which B. refuses, and thereupon A. refuses to seal it. Admitting that A. was bound to seal the Letter of Attorney, and to surrender by such Letter of Attorney, then she has broke her Covenant, for she ought to take Conscience of the Law at her Peril, whether the Letter of Attorney was according to the Covenant, and she shall have no Time to be advised thereupon: But the reasonable Time mentioned in the Covenant, is intended reasonable Time in the making thereof, scilicet, she shall have Time to read it before she seals it, and therefore it ought to be sealed presently, without Time to advise upon Request, according to the Words of the Covenant. Roll. Abr. 441, 442. Cro. Car. 299, 300. Jon. 314. Godb. 445.

If a Latitat to arrest J. S. be returnable Monday next after the Morrow of the Holy Trinity, which this Year was the 10th of July, and the Sheriff arrests him the 10th of July, and takes an Obligation from him the same Day, with a Condition to appear before the Lord the King on Monday next after the Morrow of the Holy Trinity, to answer, &c. It seems he ought to appear the same Day, and not this Day twelve Months. Roll. Abr. 444.

If a Man in Lent enters into Bond, conditioned to pay a lesser Sum in quarta septimana quadragesimæ prox': This is not payable till Lent come twelve Months. Goulf. 137.

So if a Bond is entred into upon Michaelmas Day, conditioned to pay a lesser Sum upon the Feast of St. Michael prox' futur': It is not payable the same Day, but that Day twelve Months. Goulf. 137.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 8*l.* Anno Domini 1599. in and upon the 13th Day of October next after the Date hereof, at D. &c. Where the 13th of October next after the Date is a long Time before 1599. yet it shall be paid in 1599. and not before, for it appears the Intention was, that it should be paid in 1599. and this is first expressed; and therefore if the subsequent Words, upon the 13th of October next after the Date hereof, are contrary, they shall be void: But it seems they may be interpreted, that it shall be paid the 13th of October, which shall be Anno Domini 1599. next after the Date thereof, and so all may stand together, otherwise not. Roll. Abr. 444.

If A. be obliged to B. the first of May, upon Condition to pay him 10*l.* at the Feast of St. Michael, without saying more; it shall be intended the Feast of St. Michael next ensuing. Ibid.

The Words of a Condition may be performed and not the Intent; and the Intent may be performed and not the Words; and then for the most part a Condition is performed when the Intent and Meaning of it is observed.

When the Act is to be done between the Parties themselves.

1. To make an Estate.

And therefore if a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffee or his Heirs shall make an Estate to the Feoffor and his Wife in Tail before such a Day, and before the Day the Husband dies, and then he makes an Estate as near it as he may, viz. to the Wife for Life without Impeachment of Waste, and after to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 139. Lit. §. 352. 3 Co. 64. 8 Co. 90. 2 H. 4. 11.

2. To pay Money.

And if the Condition be that the Grantee shall make a Feoffment of Land, and he makes a Lease of the Land first, and then a Release to the Lessee and his Heirs; this is tantamount, and a good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 207.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffor or his Heir pay 10*l.* by a Day, the Feoffment to be void; and Feoffor before the Day commits Treason, and is executed, and so dieth without Heir, and after before the Day the Heir is restored, and he at the Day pays the Money; in this Case this is a good Performance notwithstanding there was once a Disability.

So that if heretofore one had made a Feoffment on Condition to re infeoff by a Day, and before the Day the Feoffee had entered into Religion, and then had been deraigned, and at the Day had made the Feoffment; this had been a good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 222. Perk. §. 802, 803.

By and to whom Money shall be paid upon a Condition.

If a Feoffment be made, upon Condition that if the Feoffee shall pay to the Feoffor 10*l.* such a Day, that then he shall have the Land to him and his Heirs, otherwise that the Feoffor shall re-enter; or if it be made on Condition that the Feoffee shall pay 10*l.* to the Feoffor such a Day; and before the Day the Feoffee sells the Land; in this Case the Seller or the Buyer either of them may tender the Money at the Day, and this will be a good Performance of the Condition, for he that has Interest in the Land on the one Side, or in the Condition as Party or Privy on the other Side, may tender and perform the Condition to save the Estate. Co. Lit. 208. 5 Co. 96.

If Lands be mortgaged (or which is all one) if a Feoffment be made of Lands, on Condition that if the Mortgagor or Feoffor pays 10*l.* to the Feoffee such a Day, that then the Estate shall be void, and before the Day the Mortgagor or Feoffor dies; in this Case the Heir or Executor of the Feoffor, the Ordinary, the Guardian in Chivalry or Socage of the Heir of the Feoffor, or any other by either of their Commandment precedent, or Assent subsequent, may pay this Money at the Day, and Payment or Tender of it by either of them at the Day, is a good Performance of the Condition. Lit. §. 534, 537. Co. Lit. 206. 15 H. 7. 2.

And so also it seems is the Law upon a Devise of Land to J. S. paying to J. D. 20*l.* if J. S. dies, his Heir or Executor may pay the 20*l.* and this is a good Performance of the Condition.

But in these Cases, if a Stranger of his own Head without any such Commandment or Agreement pay the 10*l.* it will be no good Performance of the Condition.

And yet perhaps if the Party that is to pay it be an Ideot, the Payment or Tender by any one in his Behalf shall be a good Performance of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 140. Lit. §. 337.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that if the Feoffor and J. S. pays 10*l.* such a Day, the Feoffment to be void, and the Feoffor dies before the Day, and J. S. alone pays it; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 207. Bro. Condition 109.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffor pays to the Feoffee or his Heirs 10*l.* such a Day, and before the Day the Feoffee grants the Land away to another; in this Case the Money may be paid to the Feoffee himself, or if he be dead to his Heirs; and this Payment is a good Performance of the Condition.

And if the Words of the Condition be (that if he pays to the Feoffee, his Heirs or Assigns, &c.) in this Case Payment to either of them is a good Performance of the Condition, so that if in this Case the Feoffee makes a Feoffment over, it is in the Election of the first Feoffor to pay the Money to the first or second Feoffee, and if the first Feoffee dies, to pay it to his Heir or the second Feoffee: But to an Executor or Administrator in this Case is not a good Performance.

And yet if the Words of the Condition be, that if he pays to the Feoffee (without the Words Heirs, Executors, &c.) 10*l.* such a Day; in this Case the Payment may be made to the the Executor or Administrator of the Feoffee after his Death, and such a Payment is a sufficient Performance of the Condition; and if the Words of the Condition be (that if the Feoffor pays to the Feoffee, his Heirs, Executors or Administrators, &c.) in this Case Payment to either of them is a good Performance of the Condition: But Payment to an Assignee in this Case is not good.

And if the Words be, that if he pays to the Feoffee and his Heirs, &c. in this Case Payment to his Executors or to his Assigns is not a good Performance of the Condition, so that in all these Cases it seems for the Person to whom Payment is to be made, the Words of the Condition are precisely to be pursued. Shep. Touch. 141. Co. Lit. 210. 5 Co. 96. 6 Co. 69. Lit. §. 339.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that if the Feoffor shall tender Twelve-pence to the Feoffee such a Day, the Feoffment to be void, and afterwards the Feoffee is disseised of the Land, and after the Feoffor tenders the Twelve-pence to the Feoffee at the Day; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 141.

If a Feoffment be made to two Men, on Condition that they shall reinfeoff the Feoffor, or make a Lease to him by a Day, and before the Day one of them dies, and the Survivor does reinfeoff, or make the Lease; this is a good Performance of the Condition. To reinfeoff.

And so the Law is if both the Feoffees be living, for by his own Acceptance he has dispensed with the Condition, and so cannot enter for the Breach of it. Dyer 69. 41 Ed. 3. 25.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffee shall enfeoff the Feoffor of the Manor of Dale by such a Time, and before the Time appointed the Feoffee grants a Rent-charge out of the Manor to Stranger, and then at the Time appointed makes a Feoffment of the Manor according to the Condition; in this Case this is a good Performance of the Condition.

But if in this Case the Feoffee before the Time appointed grants away to a Stranger twenty Acres, Parcel of the Manor, and then makes a Feoffment of the Manor according to the Condition; this is a good Performance of the Condition.

And if a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffees or Lessees in Trust of such Land shall grant an Annuity out of it, and some of them only do grant this Annuity; this is no good Performance of the Condition. Plow. 23. 3 H. 7. 4. 1 H. 6. 10.

(EE) At what Time a Condition is to be performed where no Time is limited.

WHEN the Act by the Condition of an Obligation to be done to the Obligee is of its own Nature transitory, (as Payment of Money, Delivery of Deeds, and the like) and no Time limited, it ought to be performed in convenient Time. 6 Co. 31. Co. Lit. 208. Presently within convenient Time.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a less Sum, and no Day of Payment limited, he ought to pay it presently, viz. within a convenient Time. *Cro. Eliz. 798. 20 Ed. 4. 1. b. 18. 44 Ed. 3. 9. But where the Condition of a Feoffment is for the Payment of Money by the Feoffor, without limiting any Time, he has Time during his Life. Co. Lit. 208. a. Secus where the Condition is to pay Money. 2 And. 73.

If the Condition be to make a Retraxit of a Suit, he ought to make it within a convenient Time. Roll. Abr. 436. 20 Ed. 4. 8. b.

If the Condition be to perform the Award of J. S. who awards the Obligor to pay 10*l.* without limiting any Time, he ought to pay it in convenient Time. Roll. Abr. 436. 22 Ed. 4. 25. Bro. Condition 182.

So if the Condition be to acknowledge Satisfaction in such Court, he ought to do it within a convenient Time. Co. Lit. 208. b. 6 Co. 30. b.

So if the Condition be to deliver to the Plaintiff an Obligation of 20*l.* in which the Plaintiff and B. stood bound to the Defendant: Though no Time be limited for doing thereof, yet he ought to do it in a convenient Time. 6 Co. 30. b.

If A. demises to B. and C. certain Tithes for ninety-nine Years, if A. so long lives, and after B. assigns over by Indenture his Moiety to D. and B. also delivers to D. an Obligation, in which D. then stood bound to B. in 400*l.* for the Payment of 200*l.* to B. at a Time then past: And thereupon, in Consideration that B. at the Instance and Request of D. would deliver to D. the Counterpart of the said Indenture of Assignment, sealed with the Seal of D. D. assumed, that if he would sell to any Person his Interest in the said Moiety so to him assigned by B. then D. would pay to B. 200*l.* in Satisfaction of the said Obligation; and that if he sold the said Interest in the said Moiety to him assigned for more than 200*l.* then he would pay to B. one Moiety of such Money as he should sell it for more than 200*l.*

and that if he did not sell the said Interest in the said Moiety so assigned, then he would re-deliver to B. the said Counterpart of the Indenture of Assignment and the said Obligation safe and not cancelled; and thereupon B. delivers to D. the said Counterpart and Obligation: This Promise being made 20 July 18 Car. and B. brought an Action thereupon, Hil. 20 Car. and averred in his Declaration, that D. had not sold his said Interest in the said Moiety, and yet had not re-delivered the said Counterpart and Obligation according to his Promise, licet ad hoc faciend' postea 20 Sept. 20 Car. at such Place, &c. he was requested: The Action lies upon the Declaration, for D. shall not have all his Life to sell it, but he ought to do it in a convenient Time; for otherwise he may stay till the old Age of A. upon whose Life the Estate is to determine, and then it will be but of small Value, which was not the Intent of the Parties; but the Intent was to sell it for the best Value, or to re-deliver the Counterpart and Obligation; for though he does not take upon him to sell it, but only to pay so much if he sells it, and if he does not sell, to re-deliver, &c. yet upon the whole Contract it appears that this amounted to a taking upon him to sell, or re-deliver, &c. which ought to be within a convenient Time, or otherwise it will be of no Effect to B. Roll. Abr. 436, 437. Style 11.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a certain Sum to a Stranger, without limiting any Time: This ought to be done in convenient Time. Roll. Abr. 437.

So where the Condition was in convenient Time, to assure the Land for the Maintenance of a School, and the Devisee did not do it in eight Years, it was adjudged a Breach. Co. 25.

If a Devise be made to another, upon Condition to pay his Debts; if he does not pay them within a convenient Time, the Condition is broke. Roll. Abr. 437. Contra 38 Ed. 3. 11. b.

If a Man devises Lands devisable to his Executor to sell, and to distribute the Money for the Payment of his Debts; he ought to sell it as soon after the Death of the Devisor as he can, otherwise the Condition is broke. Roll. Abr. 437. 38 Aff. 3. Bro. Condition 215. Entry Congeable 124. Fitz. 46.

For if after the Death of the Testator a Man tenders to him a certain Sum for the Lands, and he refuses it, because it is not to the Value of the Lands, and after retains the Lands in his Hands, to the Intent to sell it dearer to another, and in the mean Time takes the Profits to his own Use, and not for the Soul of the Testator, the Condition is broke. Roll. Abr. 437. 38 Aff. 3. Bro. Condition 215. Entry Congeable 124. Fitz. 46.

If a Feoffment be made, upon Condition that he shall sell it as soon as he can, and as profitable as he can, and the Money taken for the same Lands shall be distributed for his Soul: If the Feoffee continues the Possession a Year and Half, because he finds not a Chapman to buy it, and takes the Profits of the Land, but never claims any Estate but under the Condition aforesaid, and is always of good Will to sell the Lands if he could find a Chapman, the Condition is not broke; for there is no Default in him. Roll. Abr. 437. 26 Aff. 39. dubitatur.

If A. in Consideration of 50*l.* given to him by B. undertakes to procure the Wardship of the Body and Lands of C. to be granted by the King (to whom it belongs) to B. during the Minority of C. who was then of the Age of thirteen Years: He ought to procure it within a convenient Time, without any Request; because otherwise the Benefit of the Profits of the Land will be lost in the mean Time. Roll. Abr. 437.

Not before

If Land be granted to the King, upon Condition to grant to any Stranger, he is not bound to do it before Request. Roll. Abr. 437, 438.

Condition to make an Apprentice Free at the End of seven Years if it shall be desired; it is a good Plea that he was not requested after the Expiration of the seven Years. 2 Ld. Raym. 1095.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a certain Sum to a Stranger, without limiting any Time, it ought to be paid within a convenient Time, without any Request. Roll. Abr. 438.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a certain Sum to the Obligee, without limiting any Time, he is not bound to pay it before Request. Ibid.

If the Condition of a Feoffment be to enfeoff a Stranger upon Request, he is not bound to enfeoff him before Request. Roll. Abr. 438. 19 H. 6. 34. b. Fitz. Entry Congeable 2.

So it is if it be to enfeoff the Feoffor upon Request. Ibid.

So if the Condition of a Feoffment be, that he shall reinfeoff the Feoffor, he is not bound to do it before Request. Roll. Abr. 438. 38 Aff. 7. Br. Condition 217. Tender 33. 44 Ed. 3. 9.

So where the Condition extends to the Feoffee, or his Heirs, to reinfeoff the Feoffor, the Heir after the Death of the Feoffee is not bound to do it before Request. Roll. Abr. 438. 38 Aff. 7.

If W. in Consideration that T. will marry M. his Cousin, before the Return of W. from London to Norwich, assumes and promises after his Return from London to Norwich afore-said, to pay to T. 10*l.* and to find sufficient Security for the Payment of 40*l.* more at the Death of W. and after T. marries with M. and W. returns from London to Norwich, he ought to pay the 10*l.* and find the Security for the 40*l.* within a convenient Time after his Return, at his Peril; and there needs no Request to be made by T. for he has taken upon him to do it at his Peril. Roll. Abr. 438.

If A. in Consideration of twelve Pieces of Stuff of the Value of 40*l.* by B. delivered to A. undertakes to B. to deliver to B. so many Pipes of Sack, which A. then had lying in a certain Cellar in London, as should be of the Value of the said Stuff, to be chosen by the said B. B. must request A. to let him make his Election; for before such Election A. cannot deliver the Wine; and there is no Reason that A. should request B. to make his Election, as he ought to have done, if the Promise had been to deliver them to a Stranger. All. 25. adjudged, and that a Request at Norwich to deliver the Wines was good, both in Respect of the Place and Manner; for B. must request A. where he could meet with him, and thereupon A. ought to have appointed a reasonable Time when he would be ready to go with B. to the Cellar, that he might make his Election; and as to the Manner, it was as much as if he had requested A. to perform his Promise, which must be by shewing the Wine, to the Intent that B. might taste it, and make his Election, &c.

And if a Feoffment be made, on Condition that if the Feoffor pays 10*l.* to the Feoffee, that the Estate shall be void, and no Time is set for the Payment of this Money, and the Feoffor dies before any Payment or Tender made; in this Case his Heir cannot tender it, and so perform the Condition. Shep. Touch. 140.

If the Thing be to be done to a Stranger, and one that is no Party to the Condition, and it be done in any other Manner, and he accepts thereof; this is no Performance of the Condition. And so also if the Time of doing the Thing be past, as if one makes a Feoffment to me, on Condition that if he pays me 10*l.* such a Day, the Feoffment shall be void; and he does not pay me at the Day, but dies, and after by Agreement between his Heir and me he pays me the 10*l.* and I receive and accept of it, and thereupon I suffer him to enter and hold the Land: In this Case the Condition is not performed, but I may enter upon him and oust him notwithstanding. Perk. §. 392.

If a Feoffment be upon Condition to reinteoff the Feoffor and his Wife, he ought to do Upon Request. Roll. Abr. 439. But if not hastened by Request, he has Time during his quest. Life, because the Feoffor, who is privy to the Condition, is to take jointly with her. Co. Lit. 219. a. Heth. 56.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a certain Sum, without limiting any Time, it ought to be paid upon Request. Roll. Abr. 439.

If a Man devises Lands, upon Condition to pay his Debts; he ought to pay them upon Request, otherwise the Condition is broke. Ibid.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that whereas A. the Obligor has conveyed Lands to B. the Obligee; if A. the Obligor, and C. his Son, shall do all Acts and Devises for the better Assurance of these Lands to B. which shall be devised by B. or his Counsel, then the Obligation shall be void: And after B. devised and tendered a Release, to be sealed by A. and C. his Son; and A. presently sealed it, but C. because he was illiterate and could not read it, prays B. to deliver it to him, to shew to some learned in the Law, who might inform him whether it was according to the Condition; and if it was according to the Condition, he would seal it; which B. refused, upon which C. refused to seal it: This was a Breach of the Condition, because he did not require the Writing to be read to him; and he was bound to take Consuance of the Law, whether it was according to the Condition, and shall not have reasonable Time to shew the Writing to his Counsel learned in the Law, to be instructed by them. 2 Co. 3.

If A. covenants with B. to make such Conveyance of certain Lands to B. as by him shall be devised at the Costs and Charges of B. and after B. devises, and tenders a Writing, containing a Bargain and Sale to B. and A. requires Time to shew it to his Counsel, to be advised thereupon, and B. refuses it, upon which A. does not seal; he has broke his Covenant, for the Covenant was peremptory, scilicet, to be performed presently, at his Peril. *Roll. If the Condition be to pay when he comes to his House, it shall be paid when he comes there, and not before. Roll. Abr. 448. 20 Ed. 4. 18. Bro. Obligation 56.

If

Notice.

If A. promises B. in Consideration that he will marry C. his Daughter, that he will give in Marriage-Portion to B. with C. such Portion, and as good an Estate in Money, as he had given, or after should give, with any other: In an Action upon this Promise, if the Plaintiff avers that he married C. and that after A. gave 100*l.* in Money and Goods to D. another Daughter, in Consideration of the Marriage-Portion of D. This is a good Declaration, without any Averment that he gave Notice of the Marriage of him with C. to A. because he had taken this upon himself. Roll. Abr. 468.

If one promises another, in Consideration that he will marry his Daughter, to give him 20*l.* at the Day of his Marriage: He ought to take Notice of his Marriage at his Peril, without any Notice given thereof by the other. Roll. Abr. 462, 468.

So if no Time of Payment had been appointed in this Case. Ibid.

So if a Man, in Consideration of 6*d.* promises to give me 20*s.* at the Day of my Marriage: He ought to take Notice of my Marriage at his Peril, without Notice given by me, because he has undertaken to pay it at the Day. Roll. Abr. 468.

If a Man sells certain Ways of Barley to me, upon which I promise to pay him so much for every Wey as other Men give for a Wey: In this Case an Action does not lie without Notice before given for how much he sells a Wey to other Men. Ibid.

If I promise to another, for a Consideration, to give him 20*l.* when he comes into S. He needs not give me Notice when he goes there, because this is a Duty by the coming into S. Roll. Abr. 462, 469.

If a Man sells Lands by the Name of twenty Acres, and covenants to repay so much for every Acre under this Number, and that it shall be measured by such a Man before such a Day: If it is measured accordingly, the Covenantor ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril, without any Notice given by the other. Roll. Abr. 469.

But if the Covenant had been, that the Land should be measured by two Men, scilicet, one by the Assignment of each Party, before such a Day, and one assigns, and gives Notice to the Covenantor of the Time of the Measuring: If the other does not assign any for him, but he that is assigned measures it alone, the Covenantor ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril, for it is his Default that his Man was not there, and therefore it is as if the other had been only appointed to measure it. Roll. Abr. 462, 469. Roll. Rep. 314. Cro. Jac. 391.

Lives of the Parties.

If a Man makes a Feoffment, upon Condition to re infeoff him; if he does not re infeoff him during the Life of the Feoffor, the Condition is broke, if he had convenient Time to re infeoff him before his Death. Roll. Abr. 438. 18 Aff. 18. Co. Lit. 209. a. 2 Co. 79. b.

But though the Feoffor dies before any Re-feoffment, yet the Condition is not broke. Co. Lit. 219. a. Kelw. 137. 2 Co. 79. b.

Regularly if the Feoffee or Grantee be upon Condition to re infeoff or regrant any Estate to the Feoffor or Grantor, without limiting any Time, the Feoffee or Grantee has Time to do it during his Life, if he be not hastened by Request. 2 Co. 78. b. 79. Note, That if a Man covenants to grant an Estate to another, it must be done in convenient Time. 2 And. 73, 74.

But in the said Rule, if the Case be, that it appears by the Thing to be performed, or by any Accident, that the Feoffor cannot have all the Benefit intended him by the Condition, the Condition is broke without any Request, and during the Life of the Feoffee or Grantee. 2 Co. 79.

As if A. conveys a Manor to which an Advowson is appendant to J. S. in Fee, upon Condition that J. S. shall regrant the Advowson to A. for his Life, and if it happens not to be void in his Life, then one Turn to his Executors. Though in this Case J. S. has all his Life to regrant it, if he be not hastened by Request, and the Church becomes not void in the mean Time, yet if the Church becomes void during his Life, before any Request, the Condition is broke, because the Feoffor cannot have all the Effect which was intended him by the Regrant, which was to have all the Presentations during his Life. 2 Co. 78. b. 79. And. 17. Moor 105. pl. 249. Dyer 311. b. Co. Lit. 222. b.

If A. infeoffs B. the first of May, upon Condition that he shall grant to A. an Annuity or Rent during his Life, payable yearly at Michaelmas and the Annuntiation: In this Case the Feoffee has not Time to do it during his Life, but he ought to do it before the first of the said Feasts, or otherwise A. shall not have all the Advantage of the Rent intended him by the Condition. 2 Co. 79. Co. Lit. 208. b. Moor 472. Goulf. 117.

Where one is to grant a Reversion, he may do it any Time during his Life, if it so long continues a Reversion, if he be not hastened by Request. Lev. 44.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition to be void upon Payment of Money by the Feoffor: The Feoffor may pay it at any Time during his Life. Lit. §. 337. Co. Lit. 208. a. Secus if upon Condition that the Feoffee shall pay Money; for it is not reasonable reasonable the Feoffee should have the Benefit of the Land without Payment of the Money.

2 And. 73.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to do a local Act to the Oblige, to which the Concurrence of the Obligor and Oblige is necessary, as to make a Feoffment, &c. (no Time being limited) the Obligor has Time during his Life to perform it, if not hastened by Request. Co. Lit. 208. b. 6 Co. 30. b.

But though the Condition be local, yet if it may be performed for the Benefit of the Oblige in his Absence, as the Acknowledgment of Satisfaction upon Record, &c. it ought to be done in convenient Time. Co. Lit. 208. a. 6 Co. 30. b.

When by the Condition the Obligor, Feoffor, Feoffee or Stranger, are to do a sole Act or Labour, as to go to Rome, &c. they shall have Time during Life, and cannot be hastened by Request. Co. Lit. 208. b. 209. a.

The Lord Clifford held, &c. in Capite, and the King licensed him to alien to B. and C. so that they should give the same to my Lord Clifford, and the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder over, &c. and the Lord Clifford, according to the Licence, enfeoffed B. and C. and before any Re-conveyance the Lord Clifford died; and it was adjudged his Heir might enter; for if they should make the Estate to the Issue of the Lord Clifford, the King might seize for want of a Licence, and that in Default of the Feoffees. Co. Lit. 222. b.

If A. pawns a Jewel to B. for Money, but no certain Time is appointed for the Redemption thereof, and B. dies, it may be redeemed afterwards. Cro. Jac. 244. Sed dubitatur per Telv. and Croke.

Otherwise if A. dies before Redemption. Cro. Jac. 244. For the Condition is personal, and being generally pawned, it extends but to the Person of him who pawned it. Bulf. 29, 30. Noy 137.

If the Condition be to be performed to the Party himself only, who is to take Advantage of the Breach of the Condition, the Feoffee is not bound to do it before Request. Roll. Abr. 439. To the Obligor, Feoffor, &c.

If A. enfeoffs B. of Blackacre, upon Condition to be void if C. enfeoffs B. of Whiteacre: C. has Time during his Life to do it, if not hastened by Request. Co. Lit. 208. b. 6 Co. 31. a.

So in case of the Condition of an Obligation. Co. Lit. 208. b.

Feoffee, upon Condition to enfeoff a Stranger, ought to do it presently. Roll. Abr. To a Stranger. 430.

Secus where the Condition is, That a Stranger shall enfeoff the Feoffee. Co. Lit. 208. b.

Secus where to enfeoff the Feoffor and a Stranger jointly. Co. Lit. 219. b.

If the Condition be to enfeoff a Stranger in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor, he is not bound to do it before Request. Roll. Abr. 439. Co. Lit. 219. a. the same To a Stranger and Obligor, &c.
Point contra, because the Stranger, who is not privy to the Condition, ought to have the Profits presently.

If Land be granted to the King, upon Condition that he, his Heirs and Successors, shall give other Lands in Consideration thereof: The King is not bound to do it in his Life, but any of his Successors may; for the Word his extends to every of them. Roll. Abr. 439.

If the Condition be to make a Gift in Tail to the Feoffor, the Remainder to a Stranger in Fee: The Feoffee has Time during his Life to do it, because the Feoffor, who is Party and privy to the Condition, is to take the first Estate. Co. Lit. 219. b.

(FF) Of performing Conditions where a Place is limited.

If a Place of Payment be limited by a Condition, he is not bound to pay it in any other Place. Roll. Abr. 445. 17 Ed. 3. 16. 42. b. 17 Aff. 2. Bro. Condition 103.

And if the Place be limited by the Condition where it shall be performed, the other is not bound to receive it in another Place. Roll. Abr. 445, 446. 17 Ed. 3. 2. b. 3. 16. 17 Aff. 2.

As if a Release be upon Condition of Payment of 20*l.* to another at D. he is not bound to receive it out of D. upon a Tender to his Person. Roll. Abr. 446. 17 Ed. 3. 2. b. 15. b. Bro. Condition 103.

So if the Condition be to come to the Releasee at D. to help him with his Counsel; it is not performed if he tenders his Counsel at the Day at another Place. Roll. Abr. 446. 17 Ed. 3. 2. b.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10*l.* at a Day at S. he is not bound to pay it at any other Place. Roll. Abr. 444. 41 Ed. 3. 25. Bro. Condition 21.

Neither in such Case is the Obligee bound to receive it in any other Place upon a Tender. Roll. Abr. 444, 446, 456. 41 Ed. 3. 25. Bro. Condition 21. Fitz. Dette 121. 46 Ed. 3. 4. b. Bro. Defeasance 14. Fitz. Audita Querela 1.

IF the Condition be, that a Stranger shall shew certain Evidences of such an Annuity to the Counsel of the Obligee upon Request: When the Request is made, the Stranger ought to seek the Counsel where they are. Roll. Abr. 443. 19 Ed. 4. 1. b.

Conditions to
venants.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to perform Covenants, of which one is, that whereas he is a common Surgeon, and has taken J. S. to be his Apprentice; he covenants to instruct him in his Trade, and to keep him in his own proper House and Service: If he afterwards sends the Apprentice to the East-Indies in a Voyage, to exercise his Trade; this is a Forfeiture of the Obligation, because he cannot send him out of the Realm for the Danger thereof; for this is not keeping him in his own proper House and Service. Roll. Abr. 445, 427. Heb. 134.

But in this Case it was agreed per Curiam, that he may, without Forfeiture of the Condition, send him to any Place in England to cure a Patient. Ibid.

And if an Apprentice be bound to a Merchant, and the Master binds him with such Words as above, he may send him over the Sea; for this is his Trade, and incident to it. Ibid.

If an Annuity be granted, upon Condition to do Service to the Grantor, and to counsel him in Time of War and Peace; and after the King warns the People to go with him into Britany, upon which the Grantor goes there with the King, and warns the Grantee to go with him, &c. if he refuses, the Condition is broke, though it be out of the Realm, because the Word War, which cannot be properly within the Realm, implies as much. Roll. Abr. 445. Dubitatur 17 E. 3. 26.

But if the Condition had been to serve him and counsel him generally, he had not been bound to go with him out of the Realm, because of common Right a Man is not to travel out of the Realm. Roll. Abr. 445. 17 Ed. 3. 26.

If a Man mortgages Lands, upon Condition to enter upon Payment of 10*l.* he may tender it upon the Land, without seeking the Person of the Mortgagee, because this is to be paid in Recompence in lieu of the Land. 11 H. 4. 62. b. per Skreene. 19 H. 6. 50. b. per Fortescue. Lit. 78. Roll. Abr. 445. The Money being a Sum in Grofs, and collateral to the Title of the Land, the Feoffor must tender the Money to the Person of the Feoffee, if in England. Co. Lit. 210. b.

If a Man releases all his Right in the Land, upon Condition *that if he pays the other 10*l.* such a Day, the Release shall be void*; it shall be paid upon the Land, or to his Person. Roll. Abr. 445. 17 Ed. 3. 16.

In this Case the Payment should be made in what Place his Person could be found. Ibid.

If a Man makes a Feoffment, reserving a Rent, to a Stranger, and for Default of Payment, that it shall be lawful for the Feoffor to re-enter: This is not any Rent, because it cannot be reserved to a Stranger; and therefore the Feoffee ought to tender the Sum to the Person of the Stranger where he may be found, otherwise the Condition is broke. Lit. §. 80.

If the Condition of a Bond or Feoffment is to make a Feoffment, it is sufficient to tender it upon the Land, because the Estate must pass by Livery. Co. Lit. 210. b.

But if the Condition be to make an absolute Estate of Inheritance, it is otherwise, unless he first gives Notice that he will do it such a Time by Feoffment. All. 24, 25.

If the Condition of a Bond or Feoffment be to deliver twenty Quarters of Wheat, or twenty Loads of Timber, &c. the Obligor or Feoffor is not bound to carry the same about, and seek the Feoffee, &c. but before the Day he must go to the Feoffee, &c. and know where he will appoint to receive it, and there it must be delivered. Co. Lit. 210. b. 3 Leon. 260.

Where the Person to
Condition is to be performed must be

If a Condition be to pay a small Sum, and no Place is limited, he ought to seek the Obligee. 21 Ed. 4. 6. b. Roll. Abr. 443. Lit. §. 340. Co. Lit. 210.

If a Condition be to do a Thing upon Request, and the Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that the Defendant could not be found to make a Request to him, and therefore he made a Proclamation at the Church where he was born, and another Proclamation in several Markets in the same County, thereby giving Notice of his Request; yet this is not a Request, for it ought to be made to his Person. Roll. Abr. 443.

A Man leases Lands, rendring Rent, and the Lessee binds himself in 20*l.* to perform the Covenants: This does not alter the Place of Payment of the Rent, for it may be tendered upon the Land without seeking the Obligee. Roll. Abr. 443. 21 Ed. 4. 6. 20 Ed. 4. 13. b. Fitz. Dette 97.

But

But where the Condition is for the Performance of Homage, or other special corporal Service, to the Person of the Lord, the Tenant by the Law of Convenience ought to seek him in any Place in England. Co. Lit. 211. a.

If the Lessee binds himself to pay a greater Sum if he does not pay the Sum reserved at the Day, yet he is not bound to make Tender in another Place than upon the Land. Roll. Abr. 444. 21 Ed. 4. 6. b. Fitz. Dette 97.

If the Condition of an Obligation or Feoffment be to deliver twenty Quarters of Wheat, or twenty Loads of Timber, &c. to the Obligee or Feoffee, the Obligor or Feoffor is not bound to carry the same about, and seek the Feoffee; but the Obligor or Feoffor before the Day must go to the Obligee or Feoffee, and know where he will appoint to receive it, and there it must be delivered. Co. Lit. 210. b. 3 Leon. 260.

(HH) How a Condition shall be performed.

IF a Man leases an House and Land, upon Condition that the Lessee shall not parcel out As to the In-the Land, nor any Part thereof, from the House; and after the Lessee leases the House tent. and Part of the Land to A. and after leases the Residue of the Land to C. This is a Breach of the Condition; for by the Word parcelling, is intended Division or Separation of the Land from the House; and if the first Grant be not a Forfeiture, the second is. Roll. Abr. 427.
2 And. 42, 90. The first Grant was a Breach of the Condition, because every Division and Severance of the House and Land is within the Words and Intent of the Condition.
Moor 425.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee to B. of all his Lands, and after bargains and sells the same Lands to him for further Assurance; and after the Feoffor covenants with the Feoffee to make such further Assurance of all such Lands that he has bargained and sold to him, as the Counsel of the Feoffee shall devise, and binds him to perform the Covenants: And after the Counsel devises, that he shall suffer a common Recovery, he is bound to perform it; for though he covenanted to make an Assurance of all Lands that he had bargained and sold, and he has not bargained and sold any Land, for the Bargain and Sale was void, being made after the Feoffment, and so no Bargain omnino in strict Exposition of Law; yet it is a Bargain and Sale in Appellation, to which the Covenant shall have Reference. Roll. Abr. 427.
Cro. Eliz. 833. The Bargain and Sale of the same Lands must name them particularly, for secus if it was by general Words only. Cro. Eliz. 833.

If a Lessee of an House covenants not to lease the Shop, Yard, or other Thing belonging to the House, to one who sells Coals, nor that he himself will sell Coals there; and after he leases all the House to one who sells Coals, he has broke the Condition.

If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition that B. will make a Gift in Tail to A. and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, Remainder to the right Heir of the Feoffor, and A.
dies, B. ought to make an Estate for Life to the Wife, without Impeachment of Waste, Remainder to the Heirs of A. for the Estate shall be made as near the Intent of the Condition as it can be. Lit. §. 352. Co. Lit. 219. a. b.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall permit his Wife to make a Will, and to dispose in Legacies of any Sum not exceeding 500l. and that he will pay what she so appoints to be paid. This is a good Condition; for though the Feme Covert cannot in Strictness of Law make a Will of the Goods of her Husband, yet she may make such a Will or Disposition within the Intent of the Condition that the Obligor must perform. Cro.
Car. 219.

If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition that if A. within a Month after the Death of B. shall pay 100 Marks to the Heirs, Executors or Administrators of B. then the Feoffment shall be void; and
B. enfeoffs C. and dies; and after it is agreed between A. and the Heirs of B. that A. shall pay but 32l. of the 100 Marks; but that in Appearance, and for the better Performance of the Condition, the Whole shall be paid to the Heir, and after repaid to A. which is done accordingly: This is not a good Performance of the Condition, for the Estate shall not be develsted out of the Assignee, without any effectual and real Payment; but this Payment was guided by the precedent Agreement. 5 Co. 95. b. 96. a. Cro. Eliz. 383, 384. Moor

If A. is bound to B. in an Obligation, conditioned that A. shall deliver to B. before such Day an Obligation in which B. is bound to A. if A. sues B. upon the Obligation, and recovers, and after, before the Day, delivers it to B. This is no Performance of the Condition, for notwithstanding the Delivery of the Obligation, he may take Benefit of the Judgment, and so the Intent of the Condition is not performed. Cro. Eliz. 7.

by an elder Title. Per Curiam the Condition is not broke, because the Word suffer is passive, and all the rest is to be referred thereto; but if any Procurement or Occasion of Disturbance be by the Lessor, his Executors or Assigns, then he has forfeited his Obligation. Roll. Abr. 425.

If the Condition be performed in Substance, it is good, although it differs in Words; as where it is to deliver the Testament of the Testator, if he pleads that he has delivered Letters Testamentary, yet it is good. Roll. Abr. 426. 17 Ed. 4. 3.

So if the Condition is to deliver Letters patent, and he loses them, and delivers an Exemplification. Ibid.

So if a Condition be to make a Feoffment, a Lease for Years and Release is a good Performance. Quere. Roll. Abr. 426. 17 Ed. 4. 3. Co. Lit. 207. a. Bro. Condition 158.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall procure a Grant of the next Avoidance of the Archdeaconry of S. to be made to B. so that the Obligee, at such next Avoidance, may present, if he does procure the Grant of the next Avoidance to be made to him: But before the Church becomes void, the present Archdeacon is made a Bishop, so that it appertains to the King to present; the Condition is broke, by reason of these Words, so that the Obligee may present. 3 Leon. 151. 2 Roll. Abr. 396. pl. 2. 4 Leon. 61, 62. Goulf. 45.

If a Man leases for six Years, and covenants, that if he shall be disposed to lease the Land after the Expiration of the Term of six Years, that the Lessee shall have the Refusal; and within the six Years he leases to another: This is no Breach, because out of the Words of the Covenant. Godb. 335.

If the Condition be to grant the Reversion of Tenant for Life or Years, and he enters upon the Lessee, and makes a Feoffment, and the Lessee re-enters; the Condition is performed, for the Effect is performed. Roll. Abr. 426. 21 Ed. 4. 39. b.

If the Condition be to give Licence to the Obligee to carry Trees that he has bought of him, or other Things; if he gives him Licence, yet although a Stranger who has Right thereto disturbs him, the Condition is performed, for it extends but to the Person of the Obligor by the Words. Roll. Abr. 426. 18 Ed. 4. 20. b. Bro. Licence 13.

But otherwise it had been if the Words had been, that he should have Licence, &c. for this extends to all Strangers. Ibid.

A Condition ought to be performed in Substance; as if the Condition be to withdraw such a Suit, a Discontinuance thereof is not a Performance, because it differs in Substance; for a Retraxit is a Bar in another Action, and not a Discontinuance. 20 Ed. 4. 8. dub. Roll. Abr. 426.

Conditions precedent and subsequent.

Conditions precedent must be literally performed; and Equity will seldom give Relief in case of precedent Conditions, as it often does in Cases of Conditions subsequent; which not being favoured, because they go in Defeasance of Estates, this Court may relieve, if performed in the substantial Part, though some of the Circumstances are not pursued. 3 Chan. Caf. 130.

A. is to transfer Stock, and B. to pay for it: the Transfer is not a Condition precedent. Stra. 535.

It is sufficient if the Intent and Substance of these Conditions be performed. Vern. 83.

How where divers Things are to be performed in the Conjunctive or Disjunctive.

Where a Condition is in the Conjunctive, both Parts must be performed; otherwise where in the Disjunctive. Co. Lit. 225.

The Condition of an Obligation was, that if the Obligor before Michaelmas made a Lease to his Obligee for thirty-one Years if A. would assent, and if he would not assent for twenty-one Years, then the Obligation shall be void; and A. would not assent to a Lease for twenty-one Years, it ought to be made before Michaelmas. Roll. Abr. 446.

If the Condition be to enfeoff the Obligee of D. or S. the Obligor has Election. 18 Ed. 4. 17. b. 5 Co. 22.

So if a Devise be made upon a disjunctive Condition to be performed by the Devisee, he has his Election. Palm. 76.

So if the Condition be to enfeoff him of D. or S. upon Request, the Obligor has his Election. 18 Ed. 4. 17. b.

The same Law is if it be to pay 20*l.* or a Pint of Wine, upon Request. Ibid.

The same Law if it be to shew Evidences to the Obligee, or his Counsel, upon Request made by the Obligee. 18 Ed. 4. 17. 20. b. 19 Ed. 4. 1. Bro. Condition 161.

The same Law if it be to cut twenty Acres of Meadow or Corn upon Request. Dubitatur 18 Ed. 4. 20. b.

The same Law if it be to go with me or my Wife to Church, upon Request. 18 Ed. 4. 21.

The same Law if it be to go to York, or marry my Daughter, upon Request; for in all these Cases the Request is of no other Effect but to appoint a Time when the Obligee shall do the one or the other. 18 Ed. 4. 21. Roll. Abr. 446.

If I am obliged in 10 l. to pay 5 l. at the Feast of P. next, &c. or before, at the Request of the Obligee; the Obligor has given his Consent that the Obligee shall have his Election in this Case. Roll. Abr. 446.

But it is otherwise if the Words are retrosum; as if the Condition be to pay 5 l. before the Feast of P. at the Request of the Obligee, or at the Feast of P. there the Obligor has the Election. Ibid.

If an Obligation be conditioned to pay B. or his Heirs annually 12 l. at Midsummer and Christmas, or to pay him or his Heirs at any of the said Feasts 150 l. The Obligor has Election to pay the 12 l. or the 150 l. but he ought to continue the Payment of the 12 l. annually, until he pays the 150 l. though he may at any Time determine the Payment of the 12 l. by Payment of the 150 l. Cro. Jac. 594. 2 Roll. Rep. 215.

If an Obligation be conditioned to pay Money if a Ship puts to Sea, or the Goods or the Obligor returns safe, and the Obligor dies before his Return, yet the Money is payable; for all these Things being contingent and uncertain which of them will happen, the Law supplies the Words, which shall first happen, and prejudices the Election of the Obligor. Lev. 55.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that if the Obligor delivers certain Obligations to the Obligee before such a Day to be cancelled, or else if he seals a Deed of Release of all Actions which the Obligee shall cause to be made by the Advice of his Counsel, and shall deliver it to the Obligor to be sealed before the Day aforesaid, &c. in this Case both are in the Election of the Obligor; for if the Obligee does not deliver to him any Release to be sealed by him, he is not bound to deliver the Obligations, for both are only in his Power. Roll. Abr. 447. 3 Lev. 137, 138.

In this Case if the Obligee had delivered to him a Release to be sealed by him, then he ought to have had his Election, either to deliver the Obligations to be cancelled, or to seal the Release. Roll. Abr. 447. Cro. Eliz. 396, 539.

So if the Condition of an Obligation be to deliver to the Obligee such Obligations before such a Day, or to pay to him 10 l. if he requests it: If he does not Request the 10 l. the Obligor ought to deliver the Obligations, for he has no Election till Request made; but after Request made, he has Election which of them he will do. Roll. Abr. 447. Cro. Eliz. 539.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 30 l. or twenty Kine, within a Month after the Death of K. at the Election of the Obligee: He must, at his Peril, make his Election within the Time limited, for the Obligor is not bound to tender both. Leon. 69. Secus if at the then Choice of the Obligee, &c. for in such Case the Obligor must tender both. Leon. 68.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that if the Obligor within six Months after the Death of B. shall assure a Rent of 20 l. yearly to C. as the Counsel of C. shall advise, at the Costs and Charges of C. if C. requires the same; or if the Obligor shall not grant the Rent, if then he shall pay to C. 300 l. the Obligation shall be void; and B. dies, and C. tenders no Grant of the Rent within the Time, the Obligor is not bound to pay the 300 l. Mod. 265. 2 Mod. 200, 201.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall work out 40 l. at the usual Prices in Packing, when the Obligee shall have Occasion for himself or Friends to employ him therein, or otherwise shall pay 40 l. If the Obligee has not Occasion to make use of him in Packing, he must pay the 40 l. 2 Mod. 304.

If an Annuity be granted to a Lawyer, pro consilio impendendo, the Grantee is not bound to travel, nor do any Thing, but counsel where he may be found. 41 Ed. 3. 6. 8 H. 6. 24. Pro consilio impendendo.

And the Grantor ought to disclose his Case to the Grantee, otherwise he is excused of his Counsel. 41 Ed. 3. 6. b. Bro. Annuity 7. Roll. Abr. 434.

If the Grantee cannot counsel him, yet if he does as much as he can, he is excused. 41 Ed. 3. 6. b.

So if an Annuity be granted pro consilio & auxilio to a Physician, the Grantee is not bound to travel for him, but to give his Advice and Help where he may be found; also he ought to certify to him what Malady it is. Roll. Abr. 434. Q. For a sick Man cannot travel to the Physician.

So if an Annuity be granted to a Lawyer, pro consilio & servitio suo impendendo, he is not bound to go with him, nor to counsel him in any other Place than where he is found. 8 H. 6. 24. Roll. Abr. 434.

So he is not bound to go with him, though the other will bear his Charges. 8 H. 6. 24.

If an Annuity be granted pro consilio impenso & impendendo to a Counsellor, he is not bound by this to put his Hand to a Bill in camera stellata; for though he is bound to give his Advice, yet he is not bound to set his Name to every Bill, for that may be inconvenient to him. Roll. Abr. 434. Cro. Jac. 482, 483. Poph. 135, 136.

But when an Annuity is granted pro consilio impendendo, and the Grantee in the same Deed, binds himself by such Words, pro qua quidem concessione, that he will go with him to any Place within the County; there he ought to go with him, because he has specially bound himself so to do. 8 H. 6. 24. 32 Ed. 3. 30. Roll. Abr. 434, 435.

If the Grantee of such Annuity refuses to give his Counsel upon Demand, the Annuity is determined absolutely, not for one Payment only, but for ever. Roll. Abr. 434. Co. Lit. 204. a. Hob. 41, 42.

But if the Grantor dies, so that the Counsel is discharged by the Act of God, yet the Annuity continues. Plow. Com. 456. b.

If the Grantee of an Annuity, pro consilio impenso & impendendo, refuses after to give Counsel: This does not determine the Annuity, because this was granted as well for the Services past, as those to come. Roll. Abr. 435.

If a Dean and Chapter grants to another the Office of Chief Cook, with 5 l. for the Exercise thereof, provided that he exercises the Office in the great Kitchen of the Church; and after the Dean requires him to exercise it in his own Kitchen, and he refuses, yet the Annuity is not determined. Adjudged Hil. 37 Eliz. C. B. Roll. Abr. 435.

If an Annuity be granted till the Grantee be promoted and preferred to the Benefice of 30 l. per Ann. by the Grantor, and after the Grantor presents him, but the Grantee is found insufficient, the Annuity shall cease. Ibid.

If an Annuity be granted till the Grantee be promoted to a Benefice by the Grantor; if he proffers a Benefice to him which is litigious, yet the Annuity is determined, for perhaps he has a good Title thereto though it be litigious. 17 Ed. 3. 11. dubitatur. Roll. Abr. 435.

But if the Church be full of another at the Time of the Presentation, the Annuity is not determined though he accepts the Presentation, for the Presentation and Acceptance is void. 26 Ed. 3. 69. b.

If an Annuity of 20 l. per Ann. be granted till he be promoted to a Benefice, the Benefice ought to be of the Value of 100 Marks per Ann. 16 Ed. 2. 47. Roll. Abr. 435.

If an Annuity be granted to another till he be promoted to a competent Benefice; if the Grantor after tenders to him the Presentation to a Vicarage, which is worth 100 Marks per Ann. which he refuses, the Annuity is determined. 3 H. 6. 2. 31 Ed. 3. 28. Roll. Abr. 435.

The Benefice ought to be of as much yearly Value as the Annuity is, otherwise it is not terminated. 3 Ed. 3. 40.

The Value of the Benefice shall be reckoned according to the Demerit of the Party to be promoted. 31 Ed. 3. 28.

If an Annuity be granted till promoted, &c. by the Grantor or his Heirs, it is a good Performance of the Condition, that he was promoted by the Mother of the Grantor, at the Request of the Grantor, in Discharge of the Annuity. 33 Ed. 1. 51. Roll. Abr. 435.

If an Annuity be granted to an Infant till he be promoted to a Benefice: If the Grantor tenders him a Benefice, though he cannot take it for the Non-ability of his Person, yet the Annuity is determined. 3 Ed. 3. 40.

If the Grantor resigns a Prebend to the Grantee, and the Bishop, at the Request of the Grantor, tenders the Prebend to the Grantee: If he refuses it, the Annuity is determined. 16 Ed. 2. 47. Roll. Abr. 435.

If the Annuity be granted quousque de beneficio sibi providerit quod duxerit acceptand, the Grantee is not bound to accept any Benefice of any Value, but at his Pleasure, because of the said Words; and by his Refusal the Annuity shall not be determined. Temp. Ed. 1. Annuity 50. Roll. Abr. 436.

If an Annuity of 40 l. per Ann. be granted till promoted to a Benefice, a Vicarage of the Value of 5 l. per Ann. is not sufficient within this Condition. Roll. Abr. 436.

But it ought to be of the Value of ten Marks per Ann. at the least; and this is sufficient. Ibid.

If a Feoffment be made, upon a Condition that the Feoffee shall make a Lease of Land to the Feoffor for Life, the Remainder to J. S. in Fee, and the Feoffee makes a Lease to the Feoffor for Life, and after by another Deed grants the Reversion to J. S. this is a good Performance of the Condition. 44 Ed. 3. 22. To make a Lease.

If a Feoffment be made upon Condition that the Feoffee shall purchase Lands or Tenements to the Value of 20*l.* per Ann. and he purchases a Rent, Common, or such like Thing to that Value, this is a good Performance of the Condition. To purchase Lands.

But if in this Case the Feoffee and another purchase so much Land together jointly, this is no good Performance of the Condition.

So if the Feoffee alone purchases Lands to the Value of 20*l.* per Ann. and there is a Rent issuing out of it which must be deducted, this is no good Performance.

And yet in these Cases if the Stranger Jointenant releases to the Feoffee all his Right in the Land, or the Grantee of the Rent releases to him the Rent before the Time of the performing of the Condition, the Condition is well performed in both Cases. Tantum valet terra quantum vendi potest. Perk. §. 807, 808. 21 H. 6. 28. Dyer 15.

And if one makes a Feoffment in Fee, on Condition that if the Feoffee purchases Land to the Value of 20*s.* the Feoffment shall be void; and after the Feoffee disseises another Man of Land to that Value, it is said that by this the Condition is performed; sed quere; and that if he recovers so much Land in Value by an Action, this is no Performance of the Condition. Sed quere; for this seems to be a better Performance of the Condition than the former. Shep. Touch. 142. Perk. §. 812.

If Lands be granted on Condition to pay Money, and the Money is tendered according to the Condition, but either no Body is ready to receive it, or it is refused; this is a good Performance of the Condition. To pay Money. Tender.

And after a Man has once refused the Money so tendered to him according to the Condition, he has no Remedy in Law to recover it, except it be Money lent upon a Mortgage. Dyer 181. Lit. §. 334, 335, 338. Co. Lit. 209.

And if the Payment be made Part of it with counterfeit Coin, and the Party accepts it and puts it up; this is a good Payment, and consequently a good Performance of the Condition. Terms de Ley, Tit. Coin. Acceptance.

And if at the Day of Payment the Parties do account together, and he to whom the Money is to be paid being indebted to the other; that Debt by Agreement is allowed, and the Residue is paid and accepted; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 212. Fitz. Barre 343.

So if the Party that is to receive it accepts and takes new Security by Bond or Statute for the Money; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 212.

And so in most Cases, when by a Condition a Thing is to be done one way, and to be done to the Party to the Condition himself, and not to a Stranger, and he does accept it another way; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Volenti non fit injuria.

If the Mortgagor pays the Money according to the Condition, and after the Mortgagee delivers it to the Mortgagor as his own Money, the Condition is performed, and the Mortgage discharged notwithstanding. Shep. Touch. 143.

If a Feoffment be made to J. S. on Condition that if the Feoffor pays to the Executors or Administrators of J. S. 10*l.* the Feoffment shall be void; and J. S. dies, and the 10*l.* is paid to the Executors of J. S. according to the Condition, but it is covinously done, i. e. there is a private Agreement that the Feoffor shall have all, or Part of his Money again: This Payment in this Case is no good Performance of the Condition, but that Payment, that must be a Performance of a Condition in this Case to fetch Lands out of the Hands of an Heir, must be real, full and effectual. Co. Lit. 209. 5 Co. 96.

If a Lease be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall get the good Will of J. S. and the Lessor does come to J. S. first and ask his good Will, and he denies it him, and after when the Lessee does ask, if he does grant it him, in this Case the Condition is performed. To get the good Will of J. S.

So if the Condition be, that he shall get his good Will by such a Day, and at the first being desired he denies it, but afterwards and before the Day he grants it: And yet if no Day be set, and he desires his good Will, and J. S. denies it, and afterwards he gets his good Will; it seems this is no Performance of the Condition. 14 H. 8. 17.

If there be two Things in the Copulative to be done by the Condition, both must be done, otherwise the Condition will not be performed. Perk. §. 746.

If a Feoffment be made on Condition, that if the Feoffor and J. S. pays 10*l.* at Michaelmas the Feoffment shall be void, and before the Day the Feoffor dies, and J. S. pays the Money; this is a good Performance of the Condition, but if the Feoffor be living contra. Co. Lit. 219.

If

If a Feoffment be made on Condition to make an Estate to a Stranger by a Day, and before the Day he dies; in this Case if an Estate be made as near the Condition as may be, it is sufficient. Plow. 133. 3 Co. 64.

If a Feoffment be made to J. S. on Condition that he shall enfeoff J. D. and his Heirs, and J. S. tenders the Feoffment to J. D. and he refuses to take it; this is no Performance of the Condition in this Case.

But if it be to be done to the Feoffor himself contra.

And so also it is if the Condition be to make an Estate-tail, or any lesser Estate to a Stranger, and he tendered it, and the Stranger refuses it; this is no good Performance of the Condition.

And if a Feoffment be made on Condition to reinfeoff the Feoffor and his Wife in Tail, the Remainder to W. in Fee, and he tenders it to the Wife only, and not to him in Remainder; this is no good Performance of the Condition.

And the same Law for the most part is in Conditions of Obligations. Co. Lit. 209. 9 H. 6. 67. Perk. §. 8, 15, 816. 2 Ed. 4. 2. 19 H. 6. 67. Shep. Touch. 144.

To save harmless.

If a Condition be to save a Man harmless from J. S. if J. S. after says to him, that if he goes to his House he will beat him, by which Menace he dares not go to his House about his Business, the Obligation is forfeited. Roll. Abr. 432. 18 Ed. 4. 28.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to perform an Award, which is, that the Obligee shall acquiesce de qualibet materia contained in a Bill in Chancery that the Obligor has depending against him, and that the said Suit shall cease; and after the Obligor exhibits a new Bill in Chancery against the Obligee for the same Matter, and in the End of the Bill prays Process, but never takes out Process thereupon against him: This is not any such Molestation that it shall be a Forfeiture of the Condition, for he is not at any Damage thereby. Roll. Abr. 432. Cro. Jac. 340. Bulst. 93, 94. Roll. Rep. 7.

If the Condition be to discharge another against J. S. of an Obligation in which he is bound, he ought to discharge him of the Obligation by Release or otherwise, and it is not sufficient to save him harmless. 22 Ed. 4. 40. b. Roll. Abr. 432.

If the Condition be to discharge and save harmless the Sureties from the Penalty of an Obligation, if the Obligation be forfeited; yet this Condition as to the Sureties is not broke, for they may be discharged and saved harmless from the Penalty of the Obligation notwithstanding. Dy. 4, 5. Ma. 161, 44. (But it seems the Resolution there is contra.) Roll. Abr. 432.

Condition for further Assurance.

If a Man covenants to make such Assurance of the Manor of D. as the Counsel of the other shall devise; and the Counsel devises, that he shall be bound in a certain Obligation, that the other shall occupy the Manor peaceably, &c. he is not bound to perform it, for this is no Assurance within the Intent of the Covenant. Roll. Abr. 423. Cro. Eliz. 370.

If a Man be obliged to do such Act for the Assurance of the Manor of B. as the Counsel of the other shall devise; and the Counsel devises that he shall make an Obligation or Statute, that the other shall enjoy it; he ought to perform it, otherwise he has broke his Covenant. Roll. Abr. 423. Cro. Eliz. 371. Yelv. 45. and Brownl. 84. the like Point held contra.

If a Man covenants to make such Assurance as the Counsel of the Covenantee shall devise of an Annuity of 30 l. and of 200 l. in Money; and the Counsel devises, that he shall make an Obligation, in which he shall oblige himself, his Heirs, Executors and Administrators, to pay to the other the Annuity, and also the 200 l. at certain Days; he is not bound to perform it, for this Obligation is not any Assurance of the Annuity. Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 423. Cro. Eliz. 370.

If A. covenants to make such Assurance for the Payment of 100 l. to B. as his Counsel shall devise; and his Counsel devises that A. shall make an Obligation of 1000 l. for the Payment of 100 l. he ought to perform it. Roll. Abr. 423.

But if the Covenant in this Case had been to make such reasonable Assurance as the Counsel of the Covenantee should devise, it had been otherwise; for it is not reasonable to make an Obligation of 1000 l. for the Payment of 100 l. Roll. Abr. 423. Godb. 445.

If a Man undertakes to make a Surrender of a Copyhold upon Request, he is not bound to make it into the Hands of two customary Tenants, for that is but a particular Way of Surrender grounded upon a particular Custom. All. 68. Styl. 107.

So if a Man be bound to make such an Assurance as the Obligee shall devise, he is not bound to acknowledge a Fine by Dedimus, for that is but a special Way of taking the Conusance. All. 69.

Secus if there is a Proviso that he should not go above five Miles from his House, and his House is above five Miles from Westminster. All. 69.

If the Condition be to assure certain Lands to such Persons as the Obligee should name, and after he assures it to the Obligee himself; this is a good Performance of the Condition, though though it be not alledged that the Obligee named himself, for this Acceptance is a Nomination of himself. Roll. Abr. 424.

If the Condition be to make such Assurance in the Law of certain Land to the Obligee, as by the Counsel of the Obligee upon Request made shall be advised; and after J. S. was of Counsel with the Obligee, and gave his Advice to the Obligee, that the Obligor should make a certain Assurance; and the Obligee gave Notice to the Obligor of the said Advice, and required him to perform it: He ought to perform it, or otherwise the Condition is broke; for it is more convenient that the Counsellor should give the Advice to the Obligee than to the Obligor; for the Obligor does not know whether he be of his Counsel in this Matter, for he may be of his Counsel in one Thing and not in another. 5 Co. 19. Cro. Eliz. 9, 97, 298, 299. Moor 595. pl. 811.

But if the Condition had been to make such Assurance as his Counsel should devise, then his Counsel ought to have drawn and ingrossed it ready to be sealed. Moor 595, 596. pl. 811.

If the Condition be to make such Assurance, &c. to the Obligee as the Obligee shall devise, and after the Obligee devises an Indenture, &c. and tenders it to him, and he requires Time to shew it to his Counsel to be advised thereupon, which is denied to him; yet if he does not seal it presently, the Condition is broke, because the Condition is peremptory, scilicet, to be performed presently. Roll. Abr. 424.

If a Man undertakes to be obliged in an Obligation to J. S. and an Obligation is tendered, in which he, his Heirs and Executors are bound, he ought to seal it, because this is the common Course to make Obligations in such Manner, though the Heir or Executor was not named in the Promise. Roll. Abr. 424. Roll. Rep. 71.—Cro. Eliz. the like Point dubitatur.

If a Man be bound to make a Conveyance of certain Lands; if a Warranty or Covenant be put in the Deed, he is not bound to seal it. Roll. Abr. 424. Roll. Rep. 71.

So if he be bound to make a reasonable Assurance, though ordinary Covenants are only inserted. Coles and Kinder, Cro. Jac. 571, 572. 2 Roll. Rep. 191. But in the Case of Laffels and Chatterton in T. Raym. 190, 191. Sid. 467. Mod. 67. it was said by Twisden, that the Law was altered since this Case, as to Covenants, if reasonable and usual, but not as to a Covenant that he is seised of an absolute Estate in Fee, & similia; but the principal Case of Laffels and Chatterton was determined on another Point, which vide also 2 Keb. 685.

A bargained and sold Land to B. and B. covenanted, that if A. paid 100l. at a Day, that he would make such Assurance thereof back to A. as the Counsel of A. should advise; and A. paid the Money, and his Counsel advised, that B. should execute a Conveyance, in which the Receipt of the 100l. was acknowledged. Per Coke and Gaudy, B. must execute it; but Popham doubted, for B. was not bound to execute a Receipt only, nor by the same Reasons when joined with the Assurance. Owen 65.

If a Man undertakes to become bound with J. S. and J. D. to B. in a certain Sum, and B. tends an Obligation, in which they should be obliged jointly and severally: He is not bound to seal this, for by the Assumpsit a joint Obligation is intended. Roll. Abr. 424. 2 Bulst. 287. Roll. Rep. 71.

A Man undertakes to become bound with J. S. and J. D. to B. per bujusmodi scriptum, and payable at such a Time as two Strangers should agree between them; and the Strangers agreed, that the Obligation should be joint and several; yet he is not bound to seal it, for by the Promise a joint Obligation is intended, and the Word bujusmodi gives not Power to alter that which the Law made joint, but only refers to the Sum and Time. Roll. Abr. 424. The same Case is in Roll. Rep. 71. and at the End of the Case there is a Nota by the Reporter, That as it was not expressly agreed that it should be joint, but implied by Law only, perhaps the Words per bujusmodi scriptum, should relate whether joint or several, which is more agreeable with the Manner of the Obligation, (as bujusmodi imports) than the Sum or Time.

If a Man covenants for further Assurance to levy a Fine of all his Lands in D. and at the Time of the Covenant he is seised only of two Houses in D. and after two other Houses descend to him, and the Covenantee tenders him a Fine of four Houses to be levied by him; he is not bound to levy it; for this will comprehend the other two Houses, of which he is not bound to levy a Fine; and though the Use of these two Houses which are not within the Covenant shall be to the Conusor, ye he is not bound to levy a Fine of them, for perhaps he is Tenant in Tail of them, and this will dock the Intail. Adjudged between Wilson and Welch, M. 12 Jac. B. R. Roll. Abr. 424, 425. Roll. Rep. 103, 117. 2 Bulst. 317. But it appears by the two last mentioned Reports, that the Plaintiff declared that the Defendant sold four Houses, &c. and the Defendant pleaded that he sold but two, &c. so that the Plaintiff would extend the Covenant, and by Consequence the Fine, to more than was comprehended in the Covenant.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that if he makes a good and absolute Assurance in Fee to the Obligee of certain Copyhold Lands, then, &c. if he after surrenders it upon Condition of Payment of Money, and the Surrender is presented accordingly: This is not any Performance of the Condition, because the Assurance ought to be absolute without a Condition. Roll. Abr. 425.

So if a Covenant be with a Purchaser to make further Assurance; if he makes an Assurance upon Condition, this is not any Performance of the Covenant. Ibid.

If A. in Consideration that B. at the Request of A. would surrender a Copyhold Tenement, Parcel of the Manor of D. to A. in due Form of Law, according to the Custom of the Manor, to the Use of A. and his Heirs, assumes to B. to pay him 20*l.* in an Action upon the Case by B. against A. for the 20*l.* if he avers the Performance of the Consideration, that he after the Request of A. surrendered by a Straw to one J. S. a Customary Tenant of the said Manor, the said Tenement into the Hands of the Lord of the said Manor, according to the Custom of the said Manor, to the Use of the said A. and his Heirs, and yet the Defendant A. had not paid the 20*l.* this is not a good Performance of the Consideration which is a Condition precedent, for he is bound to make an effectual Surrender to the Use of A. and his Heirs at his own Costs; and he has made a Surrender here into the Hands of a Tenant of the Manor, which is a good Beginning of a Surrender; yet it is not a compleat Surrender till it is presented in Court, and he has taken upon him to make a perfect Surrender; and therefore he ought to procure the Tenant to present it at the Court according to the Custom, and to procure a Court to perfect it, which does not appear to be done. For if a Man be bound to make a Feoffment to me upon Request, if I request him to make a Deed of Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to B. to make Livery to me, and he does it accordingly, this is a good Beginning; yet if Livery is not made, this is a Forfeiture of the Condition. Roll. Abr. 425.

If a Man by Indenture bargains and sells his Lands to another in Fee, and covenants to make a good sufficient Estate thereof before Christmas next to the Vendee, and before Christmas the Vendor causes this Deed to be inrolled: Yet this is not a good Performance, for by the Intention of the Covenant some other Assurance was to be made. And. 27. Bendl. 36. pl. 32. 3 Leon. 1.

If A. covenants to make such Assurance of Lands to B. as the Counsel of B. shall devise; B. himself, though learned in Law, cannot devise the Assurance, but it ought to be devised by some of his Counsel; for if the Party himself might advise it, then it would be no Plea to say, Quod consilium non dedit advisamentum. 5 Co. 19. b. Cro. Eliz. 297, 298.

If A. covenants with B. to assure certain Lands to B. before a certain Day, at the Costs of B. A. must notify to B. what Manner of Conveyance he will make, viz. Fine, Feoffment, &c. and his Readiness to do it, that B. may know what Costs he is to tender. Cro. Eliz. 517. The Charges ought to precede the Assurance, though it ought first to be declared what Manner of Assurance shall be made. Ow. 157.

And where the Covenant is to make a particular Assurance, as a Feoffment, &c. A. must tender it. Cro. Eliz. 517. It is all one where the Covenant is general, and where particular. 5 Co. 22. b.

A Man 22 Jan. 38 Eliz. undertook to make such Assurance of all his Lands in Y. as S. should appoint, and S. the said 22 Jan. appointed that he should make a Bargain and Sale of all his Lands in Y. and the 14 Sep. 39 Eliz. a Bargain and Sale of all his Lands in Y. was tendered; and whether he was bound to execute it, was a Doubt, because he might have other Lands in Y. 14 Sep. 39 Eliz. which he had not. Adjournatur, Cro. Eliz. 660.

If A. covenants with B. to make such reasonable Assurance to B. in Fee of such Lands, reserving to A. and his Heirs 20*s.* Rent per Ann. as the Counsel of B. shall advise; and after B. tenders to A. a Deed Poll, by which A. enfeoffs B. of the Land in Fee, reserving the said Rent to A. in Fee: This is not such reasonable Assurance to bind A. to seal, for this is a Rent-seck, and the Deed appertains to the Feoffee, and then A. without the Deed cannot have any Remedy for the Rent. Roll. Abr. 423.

But if A. by Indenture grants and sells Lands without Livery or Inrolment to B. in Fee, reserving 20*s.* Rent to him and his Heirs, and covenants to pass any other reasonable Assurance, as the Counsel of B. shall advise; and after the Counsel advises a Feoffment by Deed Poll, reserving the said Rent in Fee: This is a good Assurance within the Covenant, so that A. is bound to seal it, for then the Reservation does not depend only upon the Deed Poll, but upon the Indenture, which directs the Use of the Feoffment, by which A. may recover the said Rent-seck without shewing the Feoffment; but the Parties were ordered to make a new Feoffment by Indenture rendring the Rent. But afterwards the Parties could not agree, and so this Judgment was given against the Plaintiff, scilicet, against their Opinion before, because the Deed tendered was a Deed Poll, which should be after after the Execution thereof in the Possession of the Plaintiff; and then the Defendant could not without the Deed have his Rent, not being able to prove the Feoffment. Roll. Abr. 423.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to make to the Obligee or his Assigns as good a Lease as Counsel could advise; and after the Obligee comes to the Obligor and appoints him to make a Lease to J. S. he ought to make it accordingly, though no Counsel advised it but the Obligee himself; for by the Words it is not necessary to have the Advice of Counsel, but only that the Lease should be as good as Counsel could advise. Per Coke contra Doderidge. Roll. Abr. 424. Roll. Rep. 373. 3 Bulst. 170. Bridg. 39, 40, &c.

If one be obliged to assure twenty Acres of Lands, the Acres shall be accounted according to the Estimation of the Country where the Land lies, and not according to the Measure limited by the Statute. Cro. Eliz. 665. Which was said by Popham to have been resolved by all the Justices. But there is a Diversity where the Acres lie in an open Field, and the Parcels are known by Metes and Bounds, and where they lie in a great Close, and the Number of the Statute Acres therein contained are certainly known. Poph. 55.

If A. covenants with B. to make such Assurance of all his Lands at the Costs of B. as B. or his Counsel shall advise; B. may require one Assurance for one Parcel, and another Assurance for another Parcel, for being to be made at the Costs of B. it is no Prejudice to A. Cro. Eliz. 681. Moor 570. pl. 780.

But if the Assurance is to be made at the Costs of the Covenantor; if an Assurance of Part only is required, he must make it, but then he is discharged from making any Assurance of the Residue. Cro. Eliz. 681. Moor 570. pl. 780.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor before Michaelmas shall make, &c. all and every reasonable Act and Thing for assuring the Manor of D. to J. S. and his Heirs; and the Obligee requests him generally to convey, the Obligor must make an Assurance; and if thereupon the Obligor makes a Feoffment, and if the Obligee after requests a Fine, the Obligee must acknowledge it, and so upon every Request he ought to make several Assurances. Yelv. 44. Moor 682.

But if it had been to be devised by the Obligee or his Counsel, he ought to have shewed he had devised and required such a particular Feoffment or Fine, &c. Brownl. 84.

If a Man covenants to make further Assurance, and to do any Act or Acts, &c. as shall be devised, &c. and a Note of a Fine is tendered, and he is required to acknowledge it before a Judge of Assise, he must acknowledge it though no Writ of Covenant is depending, for he has covenanted to do every Act, and this Note of a Fine is an Act, and whether it be well levied, or to no Purpose, is not material. Cro. Jac. 251. Bulst. 90. Because the Note is an Act preparatory to the Fine, and the Writ of Covenant may be sued out after; and so it is an Act for further Assurance though the Writ of Covenant is not depending. Moor 810. pl. 1096.

If a Man covenants to make a Jointure to his Wife, within one Year after his Marriage, of Lands in England of the yearly Value of 500 l. ultra reprizas, so as A. and B. Counsellors, should devise and advise; he must give Notice to A. and B. what Lands he is determined to settle, and of what Estate therein he is seised. Godb. 338.

But it was said by Ley Chief Justice, That if a Man is bound to make such Assurance of Land as J. S. shall advise, he is not bound to shew his Evidence, but the Obligee must seek it out at his Peril; and then J. S. may advise conditionally, if he has a Fee, such an Assurance; and if a Tail, such an Assurance; and if a Remainder over, then a Recovery. Ibid. But this is where the Land is certainly named, for he thought otherwise, where the Land is not certainly named. 2 Roll. Rep. 333.

But if the Covenant be to make a Jointure, &c. as the Counsel of the Covenantee shall devise, he must give Notice to the Covenantee what Lands he is determined to settle, and he must inform his Counsel. Godb. 338. 2 Roll. Rep. 335.

If a Man undertakes to seal two Instruments for the Assurance of a Reversion, according to two Draughts between them before agreed upon, he must execute them without any tender. Lev. 44.

If an Obligation be conditioned to seal and execute such a Release as shall satisfy the Counsel of the Obligee, the Obligor must tender a Release to the Counsel of the Obligee, to know whether it will satisfy him. 2 Lev. 95.

A. covenanted to make such Assurance to B. according to an Agreement made between them as Counsel should direct and advise; and whether this Covenant should not be taken according to the general Intendment, and that therefore the Counsel of B. should advise.

3 Mod. 191, 192, 2.

(11) What shall be said a Performance of a Condition, and what a Forfeiture.

IF the Condition of a Feoffment be to enfeoff J. S. if he enfeoffs J. S. and two others, this is no good Performance, but the Condition is broke. 21 Aff. 28. Bro. Condition 107.

If the Condition be, that whereas B. has bound himself Apprentice to the Obligor for seven Years: If the Obligor retains, keeps and employs the said Apprentice in his own House and Service, in the Art of Surgery, during the Term, the Obligation shall be void; and after the Obligor sends the Apprentice in a Voyage to the East Indies, in the Company of other expert Surgeons, the better to learn the said Art: This is a Breach of the Condition; though by the Condition he is not restrained from sending his Apprentice into other Places about his Cures, yet he ought always to be of his Household, going and returning, and in his Service, and not put over to any other; for the putting an Apprentice to another, is a great Trust for his Diet, Health and Safety: And generally a Man cannot compel his Apprentice to go out of the Realm, if it be not expressly agreed, or the Nature of the Apprenticeship imports it, as if he be bound Apprentice to a Merchant Adventurer, or Sailor. Roll. Abr. 427, 428.

If an Obligation be conditioned, that the Obligor shall repair, sustain and amend a Messuage during his Term, and leave it in sufficient Repairs at the End thereof: If the Timber of a Bakehouse, Part thereof, is so rotten that it cannot be repaired nor sustained, if the Obligor pulls it down, and builds it again, yet he cannot plead this in Discharge of his Obligation; for though the Condition may be impossible, yet the Obligation is good. Sav. 96, 97. 2 Leon. 189.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee of Lands in five Counties, upon Condition to re-assure: If the Re-assurance is made of the Lands in four Counties, but not in the fifth, the Condition is broke for the Lands in that County only. Moor. 823. pl. 1112.

King Henry the Eighth granted Lands to A. and his Heirs, provided that he and they Perpetuis futuris temporibus invenirent & sustinerent duos Capellanos in Ecclesia Parochiali de W. ad orandum pro anima H. 8. his Heirs and Successors, & ad celebranda divina servitia, & curam animarum Parochianorum; and A. conveyed the Lands to B. and his Heirs, who appointed two Chaplains, one of which was not resident, but neglected his Duty: This is a Breach, for the Estate was tied with the Condition, into whose Hands soever it came; and B. ought not only to have found Chaplains, but also to have taken Care that they had been such as would have done their Duty. Lit. Rep. 94, 105, 128, &c.

If a Man leases for Life, upon Condition that the Lessee shall not do any Waste; and after the Lessee suffers the House to fall for want of Covering and Reparation, which is not any Act of doing, but a Permission; yet the Condition is broke, for the Words are, any Waste; and such Waste is within the Statute of Gloucester, which speaks of doing of Waste: And it seems, that the Permission of the House to fall, may properly be said a doing of Waste, which is a Collateral Thing; which is but as much as if he had said, if he had disinherited him. Sed Q. Roll. Abr. 428. 2 Inst. 145. Ow. 92, 93.

If a Man leases Land, upon Condition that the Lessee shall not do Waste, and after a Stranger does Waste; yet this is not any Forfeiture, because a Condition shall be taken strictly. Roll. Abr. 428. Leon. 64. 4 Leon. 39.

So if the Condition of an Obligation be, that I shall not continue such an Action, and my Attorney, without my Privy, continues it: This is no Breach. Cro. Jac. 525. 2 Roll. Rep. 63.

If a Woman covenants not to do any Act to discontinue or countermand an Action, and after she marries, per quod, &c. this is a Breach. Goult. 59.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that he shall not be aiding and assisting to E. in any Action to be prosecuted against J. the Obligee; and after the Obligor joins in a Writ of Error with E. and another against L. upon a Judgment in Trespass against them three, which is apparently erroneous: This is not any Breach of the Condition, for this is not properly an Action, but a Suit to Discharge of tortious Judgment, in which they ought all to join. Roll. Abr. 429. Hob. 304. Hut. 40.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, reserving Rent, upon Condition that if the Rent be behind, and no Distress to be found upon the Premises, to re-enter: If the Rent be behind, and no Distress but a Cup-board in the House locked, so that the Feoffor cannot come at it; this is a Forfeiture, for when the Place is not open to the Distress, it is all one as if there had been no Distress there. Roll. Abr. 428.

A. made a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself and his Heirs, and 21 H. 8. devised the Use to B. his younger Son, and the Heirs Male of his Body, Remainder to C. his eldest Son in Fee, provided B. or any of his Issue, should not discontinue or alien, but only only to make a Jointure for a Wife; and B. after the Statute of 27 H. 8. leased for three Lives, pursuant to the said Statute, and after levied a Fine Sur consueance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations to the Use of himself and his Wife, and the Heirs Male of their two Bodies, the Remainder to himself in Tail Male, the Remainder to the right Heir of A. This was a Breach of the Condition, for he might have made an indefeasible Jointure by Fine Sur Grant & Render: But by this Fine the Tail created by the Devise is dock'd; and if he had Issue by a former Wife, they should not inherit. Leon. 298.—Adjudged, because other Uses are limited by the Fine than what were before, viz. the Fee is limited to the Heirs of A. whereas it was before limited to C. in Fee. Sav. 76, 77.

If a Man devises Lands in Tail, upon Condition that the Devisee shall not give or grant the Premises otherwise than by Lease for any Number of Years, determinable upon the Death of any three Persons to be named in the Leases, and he leases for 1000 Years, &c. This is no Breach, because it determines by his Death. Cro. Jac. 61, 62. Moor 772. pl. 1067.

If there be Lessee for Years, upon Condition not to devise it to any Body but only to his Sons or Daughters, and he devises it to a Stranger, and dies, and his Executor never consents to the Devise; yet this is a Forfeiture, because he has done all that was in his Power to pass it by the Will, and this puts it in the Power of an Executor to execute it. Roll. Abr. 428.

And so it is a Forfeiture if he devises to his Executors, and they accept the same only as Executors. 3 Leon. 67. 4 Leon. 5.

So if such Lessee devises the Term to his Executor for Payment of his Debts (as it seems it is to be intended to make the Devise void): Though this Devise is void, because the Law had vested it in him for the same Cause, yet inasmuch as he has done his Endeavour to pass it by the Devise, this is a Forfeiture. Roll. Abr. 428, 429.

If a Lessee for Years, upon Condition not to alien without the Assent of the Lessor, makes his Executor, and devises it to him, and the Executor enters generally, the Testator not being indebted to any Body: This is a Forfeiture of the Condition. Roll. Abr. 429. Cro. Eliz. 815, 816. 4 Co. 119. b.

If there be a Grantee of a Reversion, upon Condition not to grant it over to J. S. and he grants the Reversion to J. S. by his Deed: Though the Lessee never attorns, yet this is a Forfeiture, because he has done his Endeavour to grant it, and put it into the Power of a Stranger to perfect it. Roll. Abr. 429.

If Lessee for Years covenants not to assign it, by which it may come to J. S. and obliges himself to perform Covenants, and after he assigns it to J. D. this breaks the Condition, inasmuch as by this Means it may come to J. S. Ibid.

If A. grants the next Avoidance of a Church to B. and C. and A. becomes bound to C. in an Obligation that he shall enjoy the said Presentment without the Claim of A. and after B. grants his Interest to A. and the Church becoming void, A. offers to join with C. in the Presenting: This is a Breach, though A. had a puisne Title to it after the Obligation entered into. 4 Leon. 18.

(KK) By whom Collateral Things conducive to the Performance of Things limited shall be done.

WHEN a Man is bound to do a Thing, he ought to do all that which depends thereupon in the Performance of the Thing. 11 H. 4. 25. b. Roll. Abr. 422.

If the Condition be to levy a Fine to the Obligee, and it is not determined at whose Costs it shall be done, it shall be at the Costs of him that ought to levy the Fine, for this depends upon the other. Ibid.

So in Case of a Covenant. Styl. 280.

Upon such a Condition the Obligor ought to sue out a Writ of Covenant in the Name of the Obligee, and the Obligee is not bound to do it. 11 H. 4. 25. b. Roll. Abr. 422.

If the Condition be to levy a Fine upon Warning, a Warning by the Sheriff upon a Writ of Covenant is not sufficient (for perhaps he cannot know by this whether it be to levy a Fine or other Action); but it ought to be upon Warning by the Obligee himself. 11 H. 4. 18. Bro. Condition 39. Roll. Abr. 422.

(LL) In what Cases a Collateral Thing is in Satisfaction of a Condition.

IF a Man be bound in 20<sup>l.</sup> to do a Collateral Act, as a Feoffment, or to be bound in a Statute, or to render a true Account: There Money, or any other Thing given in Satisfaction, is no Performance of the Condition. 9 Co. 79. b. Roll. Abr. 455. But when the Condition is to pay Money, there any Collateral Thing will be a Satisfaction. 2 Co. 79. Co. Lit. 212. b. 3 Bulst. 149.

A Man bound in 200 Quarters of Malt, upon Condition to pay 20*l.* a Ring, or Horfe, or other collateral Thing, is a Satisfaction. 9 Co. 79.

So a Feoffment upon Condition to pay 20*l.* a collateral Thing is a Satisfaction. 9 Co. 79. Co. Lit. 212. b.

If a Bond or Feoffment is conditioned for the Payment of Money to a Stranger, he cannot accept a Horfe, or other Thing, in Satisfaction, because in this Case the Condition is to be strictly performed. Co. Lit. 212. b.

But if the Condition be, that a Stranger shall pay Money to the Feoffee or Obligee, the Feoffee or Obligee may receive an Horfe, &c. in Satisfaction. Ibid.

An Obligation was conditioned for the Payment of 7*l.* at the Birth of the first Child of the Obligee; and whether a Load of Lime might be accepted in Satisfaction before the Birth of the first Child, dubatur; but because it was pleaded to have been accepted in Satisfaction of the Bond, whereas it ought to have been pleaded in Satisfaction of the Sum mentioned in the Condition of the Bond, it was adjudged the Plea was naught. Cro. Jac. 254. Vide Yelv. 192. Bulst. 66, 67. Brownl. 109, 110.

A Man bound in twenty Quarters of Grain, conditioned to pay five Quarters; Money, or other collateral Thing, is not a Satisfaction, because of the original Contract.

But otherwise it is in a Contract without Deed. 9 Co. 79. b.

If the Condition be to pay a less Sum at a Day; if the Obligee agrees that he shall pay an Horfe or other Thing in Satisfaction, yet if he refuses it, the Obligor ought to pay the small Sum at the Day, otherwise he has forfeited the Obligation; for the Agreement by Parol without Acceptance, cannot alter the Agreement by Deed before. 19 Ed. 4. 1. b. 2. Bro. Condition 161.

So if the Condition be to erect an House of such a Length, &c. he cannot plead another Agreement in another Manner in Satisfaction thereof, unless it be by Deed. 19 Ed. 4. 2. b. Cro. Eliz. 193, 304.

So if the Condition be to pay a small Sum at D. at such a Day; an Agreement to pay at another Place (or at another Day) without Acceptance, is not a Discharge. 19 E. 4. 1. b.

So if a Thing be to be done by Implication of Law to the Person of any one, and the Obligee appoints him to do it at a Place in certain; yet if the Person be not there to accept it, it is not discharged, but the other ought to seek him. 19 E. 4. 1. b. Bro. Condition 161.

If a Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10*l.* at a Day to D. if the Obligee accepts it at another Place, it is a good Performance without Deed. 41 Ed. 3. 25. Bro. Condition 21, 31. Bro. Debt 43. 46 Ed. 3. 29. b. Roll. Abr. 456.

So if the Defeasance of a Statute be to pay to D. so much Rent. 46 Ed. 3. 4. Bro. Defeasance 14. Fitz. Audita Querela 1.

If a Condition be to pay a Rent to the Obligee; an Agreement to pay to his Bailiff, who refuses, is no Plea without Deed. Dubatur, 9 H. 6. 29. b.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10*l.* at a Day; if at the Day of Payment he enters into another Obligation to the same Obligee for the same Sum as the first was, and this with a Surety, which was more than was done in the other, yet this is not any Discharge of the first Obligation, because it is but a Thing in Action, and no present Satisfaction. Roll. Abr. 470. Hob. 94.

If a Man be bound in 20*l.* in a Statute, and he makes an Obligation to him for it, and he accepts it; this is not any Satisfaction, because the Statute is of greater Advantage than the Obligation. 12 H. 4. 23. b. Roll. Abr. 470.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 25*l.* at Michaelmas, and the Obligor leases Land to the Obligee, rendring 39*l.* Rent at the said Feast of St. Michael; and after before the said Day of Payment, concordatum & agreeatum fuit, that the said Obligee, being the Lessee, should retain 25*l.* of the said Rent, in Satisfaction of the said Obligation, and for the Residue of the Rent, that he should remain answerable to the Obligor; and after at the said Day, because of the said Agreement, the Obligor does not pay the 25*l.* this Obligation is forfeited, for this Agreement cannot be any Discharge of the Obligation, inasmuch as the Rent at the Time of Agreement made was not due. Roll. Abr. 470.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 10*l.* at a Day, which is not paid at the Day, but after the Day the Obligee accepts a Statute-Staple from the Obligor for the same Debt, in full Satisfaction of the Obligation; yet this is not any Satisfaction, for though the Statute be a Matter of Record, and higher than the Obligation, yet the Obligation remains in Force, and the Obligee has his Election to sue the one or the other. 16 Co. 44. b. Vide Cro. Jac. 579.

If a Condition be, that a Stranger shall enfeoff the Obligee of Land, which the Stranger renders, and he refuses to accept, but by his Command he enfeoffs another: This is a good Performance without Deed. 42 Ed. 3. 23. Bro. Condition 24.

If the Defeasance of a Statute be to pay 10*l.* Rent at a Day; it is a good Performance without Deed, that he paid Part for the Expences of one of the Conusees, and the Residue for the Reparations of the Houses, (which he himself was not bound to repair) by the Command of the Conusee. 46 Ed. 3. 33. b. Bro. Condition 32. Audita Querela 6.

If a Lease be made by Deed, rendering Rent, upon Condition: It is a good Performance, that by Accord the Rent should be recouped for the Table of the Lessor. 47 Ed. 3. 24. b. Bro. Condition 228. Covenant 13.

If I deliver Money to another without Deed to my Use, and make a Defeasance by Deed to pay a less Sum: If I accept Corn in Satisfaction without Deed, this is not any Discharge. Contra 18 Ed. 3. 39. b. Roll. Abr. 456.

If the Obligee accepts the Thing to be done after the Condition is broke; yet this is not a Discharge of the Obligation without Deed. 46 Ed. 3. 29. b. 47 Ed. 3. 14. Contra 18 Ed. 3. 58. b. Bulst. 39.

If the Condition be to stand to an Award to be made such a Day; if at the Day no Award is made, but the Arbitrators, by Assent of Parties, appoint another Day to do it, and make it at the Day, yet he is not bound to perform it. 43 Ed. 3. 9. Fitz. Barre 224.

If a Grantee of an Annuity, Pro consilio impendendo, promises the Grantor to come to a certain Place at a certain Day to give him Counsel: If he does not come at the Day there, yet the Condition is not broke, for he is not bound by the Condition to go there, and this cannot alter it. 21 Ed. 3. 7. b. Roll. Abr. 457.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 100 Marks at a Day, and at the Day the Obligor and Obligee account together at another Place, and because the Obligee owes to the Obligor 20*l.* by another Contract, the Obligee allows the 20*l.* in Payment of the 100 Marks: This is a good Satisfaction of the Condition, for this is all one as if the Obligor had paid the Obligee, and he had repaid him. This is a Payment by way of Retainer. Roll. Abr. 471. Co. Lit. 213.

If the Obligee and Obligor, before the Day of Payment of the Money to be paid by the Condition, agree together, that the Obligor shall do several particular Things, as, amongst other Things, to assign his Interest in the Form of the Customs of French Wines, and he pleads, that he did all in particular, shewing how, and it appears to the Court that he could not by Law assign his Interest in the said Customs, they being in Covenant only; though the Obligee had enjoyed them accordingly, yet this is not any Discharge of the Obligation, inasmuch as this is like an Accord; so that all ought to be performed, otherwise it is not good, because the Obligee has not any Remedy for that which is not performed. Roll. Abr. 471. Cro. Car. 193.

If an Obligation or Feoffment be conditioned for the Payment of Money at a certain Time and Place; a lesser Sum cannot be paid at the Time and Place in Satisfaction thereof, because it is apparent that a lesser Sum of Money cannot be a Satisfaction of a greater. Co. Lit. 212. b. 5 Co. 117. a. Moor 47, 677.

But if the Obligee or Feoffee accepts a lesser Sum before the Day, or at another Place; this is a good Satisfaction. Co. Lit. 212. a.

Or if the Obligee or Feoffee at the Day receives Part, and thereof makes an Acquittance in full Satisfaction of the Whole; this is sufficient, because the Deed amounts to an Acquittance of the Whole. Co. Lit. 212. b.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay 20*l.* at a Day, and a Stranger surrenders a Copyhold to the Use of the Obligee in Satisfaction of the 20*l.* which the Obligee accepts: This is a good Satisfaction and Discharge of the Obligation. Roll. Abr. 471. Cro. Eliz. 541.

(MM) What will excuse the Performance of a Condition.

1. Acts of God.

IF a Condition, which was possible at the making thereof, becomes impossible by the Act of God, the Obligation is discharged. Roll. Abr. 449, 451. Co. Lit. 206. a.

As if a Man has Liberty to perform a Condition till a certain Day; if it after becomes impossible by the Death of any Person before the Day, the Obligation is saved. Dubitatur, 14 Ed. 4. 3. Bro. Condition 155. Roll. Abr. 451.

If a Man be let to Mainprize, it is a good Plea at the Day when the Manucaptors ought to have the Body, &c. for the Manucaptors to say, that he who was let to Mainprize was dead before the Day, so that they could not have his Body at the Day. 21 Ed. 4. 70. b. Curia, contra 21 Ed. 3. 51. b. scilicet, that this cannot be averred by the Manucaptors; but it ought to come in by Return of the Sheriff, upon a Capias against him and the Manucaptors. Roll. Abr. 449, 451.

But it is clear by these Books, that his Death excuses the Manucaptors. Ibid. and Cro. Eliz. 199. 2 Leon. 101.

If A. agrees with B. to give him eight Marks to serve him three Years, and because he has not the Money ready, in Surety of Payment he enfeoffs him of Land in Fee, upon Condition to continue till the eight Marks are paid, &c. and after A. dies within three Weeks after this Agreement, yet his Death shall not excuse the Payment of the eight Marks; for the Heir cannot enter before Payment thereof, or raising thereof out of the Land. 21 Ed. 3. 11. b. 21 Aff. pl. 18. Fitz. Aff. 102. Bro. Condition 106. Bro. Affise 229. Roll. Abr. 449.

If A. recovers a Debt against B. in Banco, and B. brings a Writ of Error, and finds Manucaptors to prosecute with Effect, and after dies before the Return of the Writ: This Act of God will excuse the Manucaptors. Roll. Abr. 449, 450. Roll. Rep. 329.

If a Man becomes Bail for another in an Action, and after the Plaintiff recovers against the Principal, and the Capias against him is returned Non est inventus, and this is filed, and after the Principal dies before any Scire Facias sued against the Bail; yet this shall not excuse the Bail, inasmuch as he died after the Capias returned and filed, (yet it seems, that after this, and before the Return of the Scire facias, the Bail is excused de gratia, by bringing him in). Roll. Abr. 450.

But it had been otherwise if he had died before a Capias returned or filed. Ibid.

If a Man covenants to do a Thing certain before a certain Time: Though it becomes impossible by the Act of God, this shall not excuse him, inasmuch as he has bound himself precisely to do it. Ibid.

If a Man for a certain Consideration given by A. assumes to deliver to A. certain Goods in London: Though he after puts the Goods into a Boat to carry to London accordingly, and in going, the Boat is overturned by the Violence of the Tempest and Water, yet this shall not excuse him in an Action upon the Case upon this Promise. Ibid.

If a Man covenants to build an House before such a Day, and after the Plague is there before the Day, and continues there till after the Day: This shall excuse him from the Breach of the Covenant for the not doing thereof before the Day, for the Law will not compel a Man to venture his Life for it, but he may do it after. Roll. Abr. 450.

If the Condition consists of two Parts in the Disjunctive, in which the Party has an Election which of them to perform, and both possible at the Time of making the Condition, and one becomes impossible afterwards by the Act of God: This shall excuse the Performance of that and the other also, for otherwise his Election should be taken away by the Act of God. 5 Co. 22. The Condition being that if B. should alien his Wife's Lands, if then he purchased other Lands of as great Value to his Wife and her Heirs, or should leave her the Value by his Will, then the Bond should be void; and he aliened his Wife's Lands, and before any Purchase made, the Wife died, living B. Cro. Eliz. 398.

If a Condition consists of two Parts, of which one was not possible at the making of the Condition to be performed, he ought to perform the other. 21 Ed. 3. 30. 5 Co. 22. Cro. Eliz. 780.

As if the Condition be to enfeoff J. S. or his Heirs, when he comes to such a Place: He is bound to enfeoff J. S. when he comes, because the other is not possible, for he cannot have Heir during his Life, and so he had not any Election. Ibid.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to make an Assurance of certain Land to the Obligee and his Heirs, and after the Obligee dies, yet he ought to make the Assurance to his Heir, for this Copulative, and his Heirs, shall have the Signification of a Disjunctive. Roll. Abr. 450. Brownl. 72. Palm. 552, 553. Jon. 180.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to enfeoff two before such a Day, and one dies before the Day, yet he ought to enfeoff the other. Roll. Abr. 451. N. Bendl. 35.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that whereas a Marriage is intended between A. and B. if the said Marriage takes Effect, and if B. the Wife survives A. and does not receive 300*l.* of A. by his Will, or by the Custom of London, within three Months after the Death of A. that then if the Obligor pays to B. or her Executors 500*l.* within six Months after, the Obligation shall be void: And after the Marriage takes Effect, and B. survives A. and dies within three Months, without receiving any Thing of the said 300*l.* by the Will of A. or by the Custom of London; the Death of B. within the three Months shall not excuse the Obligor from paying the 500*l.* to the Executors of B. because it is not any disjunctive Condition, of which the Obligor has any Election to do the one or the other. But the Condition is, that if a Stranger pays so much within a Time, that he himself will pay another Sum; so that the Death of the Party who is to receive from the Stranger shall not excuse the Obligor. Roll. Abr. 451. S. C. Jon. 171. Palm. 513, 516. adjudged contra. And it was said, that there was no Difference when the Election is in a Stranger, or in the Obligor. If

If A. enters into a Bond to B. conditioned that C. shall perform an Award to be made between B. and C. and it is awarded that C. shall pay to B. 10*l.* at Michaelmas and 10*l.* at Lady-day, and C. pays the 10*l.* at Michaelmas, and dies before Lady-day; yet because the Sum awarded is a Duty, it is as if the Condition of a Bond had been for the Payment of the Money, and if not paid, the Bond is forfeited. 2 Leon. 155. Cro. Eliz. 10.

But if the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall enfeoff the Obligee at such a Day, and before the Day the Obligor dies, and the Land descends to his Heir, the Condition is become impossible by the Act of God, and the Performance thereof excused. 2 Leon. 155.

If the Condition be to enfeoff J. S. within a certain Time, if J. S. dies before the Time be passed, the Obligation is discharged. 8 H. 4. 14.

If two be enfeoffed to reinfeoff, and one dies, the Survivor ought to perform it, and may. 41 Ed. 3. 17. b. 2 Co. 79.

But if the Feoffee to reinfeoff dies before the Feoffment, the Condition is broke, for he is to perform it, and ought to do it during his Life. 2 Co. 79.

But if the Condition had been, that the Feoffee, or his Heirs, should reinfeoff, and he dies, his Heir may perform it. 2 Co. 79.

If A. binds himself Apprentice to B. for seven Years, and B. enters into a Bond to A. conditioned to pay A. his Executors or Assigns 10*l.* at the Time of the End or Determination of his Apprenticeship; and A. serves six Years, and then dies, the Money shall not be paid to his Executor. Brownl. 97.

2. Acts of the Parties.

If a Condition be to enfeoff the Obligee; though the Obligee disseises him of the Land, yet this does not excuse the Performance of the Condition, for he may re-enter and perform it notwithstanding. 2 Co. 59. 8 Co. 92. Acts of him who is to have the Advantage.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall enfeoff the Obligee of the Land before such a Day, and after before the Day the Obligee disseises the Obligor, and keeps it with Force till after the Day, so that the Obligor cannot enter: This will excuse the Performance of the Condition. 8 Co. 92. Co. Lit. 206.

If a Lease be made upon a Condition that the Lessee shall not permit or harbour any Whore within the House to him let, and that if he suffers such a Woman to stay there for six Weeks after Warning, &c. it shall be lawful for the Lessor to enter; and after the Lessee suffers such a Woman to be there, and Warning is given him by the Lessor: Although after the Lessor commands the Woman to stay there six Weeks, yet this shall not excuse the Performance of the Condition, because the Lessor did not do any Act; and notwithstanding the Command, the Lessee might have removed her. 35 H. 6. Barr 162. 8 Co. 91. b.

But in the said Case, if the Lessor ousts the Lessee, and with Force, and against the Will of the Lessee, puts in the Woman, and violently makes her stay there with Force, against the Will of the Lessee, for six Weeks: This shall excuse the Performance of the Condition. 35 H. 6. Barr 162. 8 Co. 92. a.

If a Bond be conditioned to procure a Marriage between the Obligee and B. before a certain Day, and before the Day the Obligee calls B. a Whore, and tells her, If he marries her, he will tie her to a Post; by Reason whereof the Obligor could not procure B. to marry him: This will excuse the Non-performance, but then it must be shewed in Pleading, that the Obligor did what he could to procure her to marry, &c. Cro. Eliz. 694.

If a Man be bound to build a House, &c. he is excused if the Obligee will not suffer him to build it; for he cannot come upon the Land without his Will. Roll. Abr. 453.

If a Condition be to repair an House; he is excused thereof, if a Stranger by the Command of the Obligee himself disturbs him, and will not suffer him to do it. Roll. Abr. 453.

If a Condition be to erect a Mill, and after he comes to the Obligee, and says all is ready for the Erecting thereof, and demands of him when he shall come with the Mill to erect it: If the Obligee says he will not have the Mill, and entirely discharges him of the Mill, this shall excuse him of the Performance. Roll. Abr. 453, 454.

If two are bound in a Statute, with a Defeasance that they two shall make such Assurance as shall be devised, &c. if an Assurance be tendered to one, and he refuses to seal it, the Condition is broke for both; for he need not request both at one Time. Roll. Abr. 454. Cro. Eliz. 655.

If A. is bound to B. that J. S. shall marry J. G. before such a Day, and before the Day B. marries her: He shall take no Advantage of the Condition, because by his Means it could not be performed. Co. Lit. 206. b.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Mortgage, upon Condition to be void upon Payment of Money by the Feoffor, &c. to the Feoffee at a Day: If at the Day the Feoffee is out of the Realm, the Feoffor is not bound to seek him, or to go out of the Realm to him; and therefore because the Feoffee is the Cause that the Feoffor cannot tender the Money, the Feoffor may enter into the Land as if duly tendered. Co. Lit. 210. b.

If A. leases to B. for Years, upon Condition that if B. pays Money to A. or his Heirs at a Day, that B. shall have the Fee; and before the Day, A. is attainted of Treason, and executed: Now though the Condition became impossible by the Act and Offence of A. yet B. shall not have a Fee, because a precedent Condition to increase an Estate must be performed, and if it becomes impossible, no Estate shall rise. Co. Lit. 218. a.

A. entered into a Bond to B. conditioned to save B. harmless from a Bond made to C. for Payment of 100*l.* at a Day and Place, and at the Day of Payment A. was going to the Place to pay it, and B. by Covin caused A. to be imprisoned till after Sun-set, to the Intent the 100*l.* should not be paid. This being pleaded to an Action of Debt upon the Bond, it was adjudged upon Demurrer that such a bare Surmise was no Bar. Cro. Eliz. 672.

If the King grants a Reversion in Tail, upon Condition that if the Grantee pays 20*s.* at the Receipt of the Exchequer, &c. the Grantee shall have a Fee: If afterwards the King, under his Great Seal, refuses to receive the Money, yet if the Grantee tenders it at the Receipt of the Exchequer, he shall gain a Fee; for the King by no Means can countermand or hinder the Increase of the Estate in such Case. 8 Co. 76. b. 2 Brownl. 252.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall pay 10*l.* to the Obligee, which is for the Rent of certain Land, and the Obligee enters upon the Land, and so suspends the Rent, yet this shall not excuse the Payment; for it is but a Recital that it was for Rent, and not material. Hob. 130. So if by Pleading it had been applied to the Lease, &c.

If the Condition be to do a Collateral Act, and not to pay Money, which is the Nature of the Principal; if the Obligee refuses it at the Day, this discharges the whole Obligation. Roll. Abr. 455. Co. Lit. 207. a.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor, being a Parson, should resign to the Obligee within a certain Time, for a certain Pension, as they should agree: The Obligee ought to agree for the Pension, and tender a Deed thereof to the Obligor before he is bound to resign. Roll. Abr. 458.

If an Annuity is granted till he is promoted to a Benefice by the Grantor: If the Grantee after accepts a Benefice from another, and after the Grantor proffers him a Presentation to his Benefice, and he refuses, the Annuity is determined. 17 Ed. 3. 11. Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 458.

Where a Rent is to be paid upon Condition at a certain Day, he cannot enter for the Condition broke before a Demand of the Rent. Co. Lit. 201. b.

And the Demand ought to be at the Day, and it is not sufficient after. Contra 20 H. 6. 30, 31. Roll. Abr. 458.

Where a Rent is reserved to be paid upon Condition at a certain Day, the Lessor ought to demand it at the Day, otherwise the Performance of the Condition is saved, although the Lessee was not there ready. Contra 4 H. 6. 9. Roll. Abr. 458.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay a Sum at a certain Day, the Obligor ought to tender it without any Demand. 20 H. 6. 30. 2 Ed. 4. 3. b. 8 Ed. 4. 1. Roll. Abr. 458.

If I am bound to be attendant upon you at all Times when you come to your Manor of D. I shall be bound to take Notice when you come to your Manor of D. at my Peril, without any Notice given by you. 8 Ed. 4. 1. b. Fitz. Arbitrament 15. Roll. Abr. 458.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to stand to the Award of J. S. &c. who awards a certain Thing to be done to another at a Day, he ought to perform it at his Peril, without any Notice given by any other. 8 Ed. 4. 1. Roll. Abr. 458.

A. made a Deed of Feoffment of Lands in several Counties, dated the 15th of October, 4 Mar. upon Condition the Feoffee should re infeoff him of the Lands within twenty Days after the Date of the Deed; and yet because A. made his Feoffment but of Part within the twenty Days, it was held the Condition was not broke, though all was not re-conveyed within the twenty Days, according to the Letter of the Condition, which is intire; for it was the Fault of A. that it was not conveyed, without which it could not be re-conveyed. Hob. 24.

Acts of the Obligee.

If the Condition be, that the Son of the Obligor shall serve the Obligee for seven Years: If he tenders his Son, and the Obligee refuses, it is no Forfeiture. Roll. Abr. 455.

Where the Condition is to deliver a Release to the Obligee, it is not enough to say, That it was written and Wax affixed to it, and that he was ready to seal and deliver it, but but that the Obligee refused to accept it; for he ought to have done all that he could, and he might have sealed it notwithstanding. 2 Roll. Rep. 238.

If A. is obliged to B. and the Condition is, that the Son of A. shall serve B. for seven Years: If B. takes him, and after within the Term commands him to be gone from him, the Obligation is not forfeited. 22 Ed. 4. 26. Roll. Abr. 455.

If the Condition of a Bond be, that the Obligee shall peaceably enjoy certain Copyhold Land without the Interruption of any, and after the Lord enters for a Forfeiture by Non-payment of the Rent according to the Custom, yet the Obligation is not forfeited, for this was the Neglect of the Obligee himself. Roll. Abr. 455.

If the Obligor pays Part of a small Sum contained in the Condition at the Day, without any Mention of the Rest, yet the whole Obligation is forfeited. Roll. Abr. 455.

If the Condition be, that he shall not disturb the Obligee in certain Land leased to him; yet if he surrenders to the Obligor, this is a good Discharge of the Obligation. Ibid.

If A. leases Lands to B. for seventeen Years, and after B. enters into an Obligation to A. conditioned to pay an annual Rent to C. for the Term of seventeen Years, if C. lives so long; and the said B. or his Assigns, or any claiming under him, shall or may so long enjoy the said Land, and B. after surrenders to A. yet he must continue the Payment of the Rent, because merely Collateral, and to be made to a Stranger. Poph. 39, 40. Cro. Eliz. 313. Owen 104. Moor 597. pl. 815.

But if the Condition had been, that C. during the Term should hold Part without the Interruption of B. or his Assigns; if after the Surrender A. had interrupted him, B. should not have forfeited his Bond, for that the Obligee should not take Advantage of his own Act. Poph. 40. Owen 104. Cro. Eliz. 313.

If A. in Consideration of 10*l.* given to him by B. assumes to pay 20*l.* when such a Ship, which was ready to go from D. to Hamburg beyond the Seas, should go from D. to Hamburg, and return to the same Place, scilicet, to D. aforesaid: He ought to pay the 20*l.* upon the Return of the Ship, without any Notice given by the Obligee, for he has taken upon himself to pay it at his Peril upon the Return of it. Roll. Abr. 463, 469.

If A. promises B. in Consideration that B. will permit A. and C. to enjoy a Tavern in Sturbridge Fair during the Fair, to pay to B. 10*l.* for the Use of the Tavern; and also that before the End of the Fair he will pay all such Money as B. shall disburse for Wine and Beer for the said A. and C. during the Fair aforesaid, to be expended in the said Tavern. In an Action upon this Promise, after the End of the Fair, if the Plaintiff does not aver, that he gave Notice before the End of the Fair how much he had disbursed for Wine and Beer for them to be there expended: This is not good, though he avers how much he disbursed for it; and a Demand thereof after the Fair is not sufficient; for A. could not know how much he had disbursed without Notice, and Notice thereof after the Fair is not sufficient, inasmuch as it is to be paid for by A. during the Fair. Roll. Abr. 469, 470. Styl. 172.

If A. and B. agree and promise to marry one with another, and after B. the Man promises A. in Consideration that she will disengage him of his said Promise, he will give her 1000*l.* In an Action by A. against B. for the 1000*l.* if A. avers, that she after the same Day Exoneravit ipsum (Anglice, did disengage) of his said Promise, and yet he has not paid the 1000*l.* this is a good Averment of the Performance of the Promise, without alleging any Notice given to B. of the Disengagement; for it shall be intended prima facie that this Disengagement was made to B. himself, and not in the Absence of B. for it shall be a full Disengagement made to the Person of B. so that he should have his Liberty to marry any other. Roll. Abr. 470. Styl. 295, 303, 304.

If A. promises B. a Woman, that if she will leave her Father's House, and come to his House, that he will marry her: In an Action by B. against A. upon this Promise, if she avers, that she has left the House of her Father, and come to the House of A. and there obtulit to marry him, and yet the said A. did not marry her; this is a good Averment that B. had Notice thereof, for by the obtulit to marry the Defendant, is intended that she obtulit herself to the Person of the Defendant himself, inasmuch as this is a personal Act to be done between them. Roll. Abr. 470. Styl. 263, 273.

If A. and B. levy a Fine to the Use of A. in Fee, if B. does not pay 10*s.* to A. at Michaelmas after, and if he does pay, then it shall be to the Use of A. for Life, and after to B. in Fee, and after B. dies before Michaelmas: The Heir of B. ought to take Notice of this Condition at his Peril; so that if he does not pay the 10*s.* at Michaelmas, A. shall have the Land absolutely in Fee, for A. is not bound to give him Notice, nor is any other appointed by the Law to give Notice in this Case, and therefore he ought to take Notice thereof at his Peril; for he is as privy in the Law to the Estate limited by the Fine and Indenture of Uses as the Ancestor himself, and the Ancestor had Power to give the Land absolutely, and divers Times in such Case it is not known who is Heir. Roll. Abr. 469.

If

Acts of both Obligor and Obligee.

Where want
will excuse.

Where Absence will excuse.

If a Thing be to be performed by a Condition, which cannot be performed without the Presence of the Obligee; there his Absence shall excuse the Performance. 12 H. 4. 23. b. Roll. Abr. 457.

If a Condition be to make a Feoffment to the Obligee; if the Obligee be not present at the Time, the Performance is excused. Ibid.

If a Rent be reserved to be paid at a certain Day, upon Condition: If the Lessee be ready at the Day, and none comes for the Lessor, this will excuse the Performance of the Condition (and here the Lessor ought to demand). Contra 4 H. 6. 9. Bro. Entry Congeable 39.

As if the Condition be to enter into a Statute to the Obligee: If the Obligee be absent at the Day, yet because it may be performed in his Absence, he ought to do it. 12 H. 4. 23. b. Otherwise econtra, 12 H. 4. 24. b. Roll. Abr. 457.

If a Condition be to take an Estate to himself for Life, Remainder to another, who is privy to the Condition, and is to have Benefit by the Obligation at a certain Day: Though he in Remainder be not there at the Day, yet it is forfeited if it is not taken accordingly; for this may be performed notwithstanding his Absence. 40 Ed. 3. 12. Roll. Abr. 457.

But in this Case if the Condition had been also, that he in the Remainder should be present at the Day; his Absence would excuse the Performance of the Condition, scilicet, of the taking of the Remainder, and of the Lessee to himself also. Contra 40 Ed. 3. 12. Roll. Abr. 458.

3. Acts of a Stranger.

A. and B. submit themselves to the Award of C. and A. enters into an Obligation to C. to stand to the Award, and so B. also, and C. awards A. to pay 10 s. to B. who tenders it, and B. refuses; the Obligor is excused, because B. is not a meer Stranger, but privy, and so is the Obligee. 22 Ed. 4. 25. b. Bro. Condition 182. Bro. Arbitrament 41. Roll. Abr. 452.

So if a Recognizance, Bond, &c. is made to A. to the Use of B. conditioned to pay Money, &c. to B. and B. refuses, &c. Cro. Eliz. 755. Cro. Jac. 14.

But if the Condition be, that the Son of the Obligor shall marry the Daughter of the Obligee; if the Daughter of the Obligee refuses the Son, yet the Condition is forfeited, for the Daughter is a meer Stranger, and the Obligor has taken upon him that his Son shall marry her. Bro. Condition 182. Perk. §. 756.

So if the Condition be to enfeoff a Stranger, who refuses, yet the Condition is forfeited. Roll. Abr. 452. This is where he is a meer Stranger. Co. Lit. 209. a. Hut. 48. Winch 30. But it is otherwise where it is made to the Obligee, or any other for his Benefit. Co. Lit. 209. a.

Secus where the Condition is, That a Stranger shall enfeoff a Stranger. Co. Lit. 209. a.

If there be a Feoffment upon Condition to enfeoff a Stranger; if the Stranger refuses, yet the Condition is broke, because the Intent was not that the Feoffee should retain it. Roll. Abr. 452. Co. Lit. 209. a. Leon. 266. 2 Leon. 222.

But otherwise it had been if the Condition was to make a Gift in Tail to a Stranger, and he refuses; for there the Intent was, that he should have the Reversion. Roll. Abr. 452. Co. Lit. 209. a. Leon. 266. 2 Leon. 222.

So if the Condition be, that he shall grant a Rent-charge to a Stranger, and he refuses, because intended the Feoffee should retain the Land. Co. Lit. 209. a.

Regularly, if the Condition be to be performed by a Stranger, and he refuses, the Obligation is forfeited, for the Obligor has taken upon him that the Stranger shall do it. Roll. Abr. 452.

As if the Condition be, that my Son shall serve Y. but if he will not my Obligation is forfeited. Roll. Abr. 453.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that whereas the Obligor and Obligee are jointly seised of the Office of the Court of Admiralty: If the Obligor shall permit the Obligee to use the said Office, and to take the Profits thereof only to his own Use during his Life, without Interruption made by the Obligor, then, &c. although after the Admiral dies, and the new Admiral grants the said Office to a Stranger (as he may by Law) and he interrupts and ousts the Obligee, yet if the Obligor after this interrupts the Obligee also, the Condition is broke. Ibid.

If A. is bound to B. to pay 10 l. to C. if A. tenders it to C. and he refuses, the Bond is forfeited. Co. Lit. 208. b.

Otherwise if bound to pay it to the Obligee, or his Assigns, and the Obligee appoints C. to receive it as his Assignee, and it is tendered to C. and refused by him. Dal. 38.

If

If A. disseises B. and after leases to C. for Years, and C. covenants, at the End of the Term, to leave and yield up the Tenements well repaired to A. and after B. enters, &c. C. is excused. Cro. Eliz. 656. Noy 75.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligee shall in Michaelmas Term next give unto the Obligor, &c. such Release as by the Judge of the Prerogative Court shall be thought meet: The Obligor ought to procure the Judge to devise and direct such Release; for the Judge is a Stranger to the Condition, and the Condition is for the Benefit of the Obligor, and he has taken upon him to perform it at his Peril. 5 Co. 23. b. Moor 645. pl. 892. Cro. Eliz. 864. Lit. Rep. 13, 14. Lev. 191. Sid. 313.

So if the Condition of an Obligation be, that a Stranger shall release all the Right which he has, or pretends to have, in a certain Manor, the Obligor must procure him to make a Release de facto, though he has no Right. Sand. 215, 216.

If A. leases his Land for forty Years, rendering Rent, and devises the Reversion to J. S. in Tail, &c. provided that B. and his Wife shall have the Rent to their own Use till J. S. comes of Age, upon Condition that B. and his Wife, within three Months after his Death, enter into a Bond to his Overseers for the Payment of 3*l.* per Ann. in such Penalty, and as his Overseers shall advise, and A. dies: B. and his Wife must give Notice of this to the Overseers, and at their Peril procure them to advise, &c. Winch 26, 69.

4. Acts of the Law.

If an Annuity be granted upon Condition that the Grantee shall be Attorney of the Grantor in all Pleas: If he afterwards be made Sheriff, yet this shall not excuse him from the Performance of the Condition, but he ought to be his Attorney, otherwise the Condition shall be broke. 5 Ed. 2. Annuity 44. Roll. Abr. 451. Acts of the Law.

If A. devises Land to B. and his Heirs, upon Condition that he, his Heirs and Assigns, with the Issues and Profits of the Land, shall pay yearly so much for certain charitable Uses, and dies, and after the Devisee dies, his Heir within Age, and in Ward to the King, the Payment shall be excused during the Time the King has him in Ward; for by the Intent of the Condition, the Payment ought to be made with the Issues and Profits, which are transferred by Act in Law to the King. Ibid. Hard. 10, 11, 16. 3 Bulst. 58, 59.

But it had been otherwise if the Money had not been limited to be paid out of the Profits of the Land. Cro. Jac. 374. Roll. Rep. 198, 199.

If a Recognizance be conditioned for the Appearance of B. at the next Assises held for the County of S. and before the next Assises B. sues a Certiorari out of the King's Bench, to remove the Recognizance, and at the next Assises delivers the Certiorari to the Judge; yet this does not excuse his Appearance, for though the Certiorari was the Command of the King, yet the Purchase thereof was the Act of B. and he could by no such Slight save his Recognizance. Yelv. 207.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, to deliver a certain Thing to the Obligee bought by him from the Obligor, it is not any Discharge that a Stranger recovered it from him after. Roll. Abr. 452.

If a Man be bound in a Recognizance in Court for the Appearance of another in a Scire Facias, he shall not avoid this Recognizance by a Saying, that he that ought to appear was imprisoned at the Day. Ibid.

But in such Case, at the Day of Appearance, if the Manucaptors come and shew it to the Court, and the Court of Curtesy do not record the Default, but send to the Gaoler to certify whether he be imprisoned, and for what; by this way he shall have Advantage of the Imprisonment to avoid the Recognizance. 22 Ed. 4. 27. Bro. Condition 182.

If there be a Constitution upon a Penalty in Parliament, that J. S. shall render himself in B. R. within a certain Time: If he renders himself to the King within the Time where he is imprisoned until the Time is past, he has forfeited the Penalty, because it was his Folly to render himself where he ought not. Bro. Parliament 11.

If there be a Constitution made in Parliament, upon a Penalty that J. S. render himself before the Justices in B. R. within a Quarter of a Year after Proclamation made: If Proclamation be made Termino Pasche, so that the Quarter of a Year is passed before Michaelmas Term, yet if he does not render himself within a Quarter, he shall forfeit the Penalty. Ibid.

(NN) What Things will dispense with a Condition.

IF a Condition be to recover certain Land against J. S. and thereof to enfeoff another, who is Party to the Obligation: If he to whom the Feoffment is to be made accepts the Feoffment of the Land before any Recovery had by the other, the Condition is performed, because Acts of him that will have the Advantage.

he has dispensed with the Condition. 39 Ed. 3. 3, 5, 6. b. But Quere, for perhaps he has disseised J. S. But it is there said, that it shall be intended that he himself was seised thereof. Roll. Abr. 453.

If a Lease for Years be made upon Condition not to alien without Licence, and after the Lessor licenses the Lessee to alien, and dies before any Alienation; yet the Lessee may alien; for the Death of the Lessor is not any Countermand, for this was executed on the Part of the Lessor as much as could be. Co. Lit. 52. b.

(OO) Who may dispense with a Condition.

A Stranger.

IF the Condition of an Obligation be to assure a Copyhold to A. and B. his Wife (who are Strangers to the Obligation) for the Life of C. and the Obligor, at the Request of A. surrenders it to the Use of A. &c. to the Use of such Person as he shall nominate: This is not any Performance of the Condition, for A. who is a Stranger, cannot dispense with the Condition, nor by his Agreement alter the Thing to be done; but he ought to take it as the Condition limited it. Roll. Abr. 457. Vide Co. Lit. 219. b.

(PP) In what Cases the Dispensation or Extinguishment of Part of a Condition shall be of the Whole.

IF a Man leases for Years, upon Condition that the Lessee or his Assigns shall not alien without Licence of the Lessor; and after the Lessor licenses the Lessee to alien to whom he pleases, who after aliens to J. S. the Condition is quite gone by this Licence; for by the Dispensation to the Lessee, the Condition is utterly discharged as to the Assigns. 4 Co. 119. Cro. Eliz. 815, 816. For a Condition is to be strictly taken; and by his Alienation with Licence the Condition is satisfied. Roll. Abr. 471.

If a Man leases Land, upon Condition that he shall not alien the Land, nor any Part thereof, without the Assent of the Lessor; and after he aliens Part with the Assent of the Lessor: He may after alien the Residue without his Assent, for all the Condition is gone by this, for it cannot be divided or apportioned. 4 Co. 119.

If a Man be bound to build an House, and the Obligor discharges one Post, he is discharged of the Whole. Roll. Abr. 471.

If a Man be bound to go with A. C. and D. and the Obligor discharges him from D. he is discharged by this from going with A. and C. though that which is discharged is for his Advantage, for the Condition is intire. Ibid.

So if the Obligation be to plough my Land in such a Town, and I discharge him of Parcel; this also discharges the Rest. Ibid.

If a Man has a Power of Revocation, and he by his own Act extinguishes his Power of Revocation in Part, as by levying a Fine of Part; yet the Power of Revocation remains for the Residue, because this is in Nature of a Limitation, and not of a Condition. Co. Lit. 215, 237. a. Hob. 313.

If A. leases Land to three, upon Condition that they, or any of them, shall not alien without Licence of the Lessor; and after one aliens with the Licence of the Lessor: This discharges all the Condition as to the other two also. Roll. Abr. 472. Noy 32. Cro. Eliz. 816.

If the Owner of a Ship covenants with B. that he will receive such Lading as he shall appoint at York by such a Day, and then to go with the first Wind to R. and there to unload and take in other Wares; and after B. discharges him from taking in Goods at Y. but that he shall receive his Lading at R. This Discharge of Parcel of the Covenant is not any Discharge of the Residue. Roll. Abr. 472.

If Lessee for Years has Execution by Elegit of a Moiety of the Rent and Reversion against the Lessor, where the Lease is upon Condition; this is a Suspension of all the Condition during the Time of the Extent; and though but a Moiety of the Rent is extended, yet the intire Condition is suspended. Moor 22. pl. 75.

The like if a Stranger has Execution by Elegit. Moor 91. pl. 225. 71. pl. 193. Dal. 72.

If a Man leases for Years, upon Condition that the Lessee, his Executors or Assigns, or any other who shall have the Term, shall not alien without Licence of the Lessor, but only to his Wife or Children, and the Lessee devises the Term to his Wife, and dies; the Wife cannot alien without Licence, for she is restrained by express Words as well as the Lessee. This Point was so adjudged between Thornhill and King, M. 41 & 42 Eliz. by three Judges, but Walmesley doubted, because the Words are, That the Lessee or his Assigns, &c. should not alien but to his Wife or Children; and the Wife is not within these Words, for she cannot alien to herself. Cro. Eliz. 757. The same Point is in Dyer 152. pl. 7. by three Judges against two, but in 4 Co. 120. b. the Opinion of the two Judges is cited as Law.

(QQ) What

(QQ) What will destroy a Condition, and what not.

BY a Grant of a Reversion of Part of the Land, upon a Lease for Years, upon which a Rent upon Condition is reserved, all the Condition is confounded, because it is Penal, and therefore cannot be divided, and he must destroy his own Grant if the Condition shall remain; also this Condition was reserved upon several Rents. 5 Co. 55. b. Co. Lit. 215. b. 4 Leon. 27.

If the King grants Part of the Reversion, his Patentee shall not take Advantage of the Condition, but the King by his Prerogative may, because it remains in him. 5 Co. 55. Co. Lit. 215.

If a Man leases for Life upon Condition, the Remainder over; the Condition is destroyed, for otherwise he destroys the Remainder which he has created. Roll. Abr. 472.

So if a Man devises for Life upon Condition, the Remainder to another; this destroys the Condition. 29 Aff. 17. 10 Co. 40. b. who in 41. b. cites 4 Ma. Per Cur. contra, 2 Ma. 127, 52. because it is made at the same Time.

If a Man leases for Years upon Condition, and after leases for Years by Indenture to another, to commence presently: This second Lease has not given away the Condition, for it is but by Estoppel between the Parties. Roll. Abr. 472.

If a Man leases for Years, upon a Condition to be performed on the Part of the Lessor, and before the Time of the Performance of the Condition he leases to a Stranger for Years by Indenture: The Condition is not suspended or destroyed, but may be performed notwithstanding, for it is an Estoppel only between the Lessor and second Lessee. Cro. El. 665. Owen 65.

But if a Man makes a Feoffment upon such Condition, and after levies a Fine to a Stranger, the Condition is gone. Cro. Eliz. 665.

If the Reversion of a Lease for Years be severed in any Part, the intire Condition reserved upon the Lease for Years shall not be destroyed, if the Severance be by Descent, Eviction, or Act of the Law; but it is otherwise if by the Act of the Party. Roll. Abr. 473.

If a Man makes a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, the Remainder to another, &c. with Power of Revocation, and after makes a Lease for Years, he cannot after revoke during the Lease. Ibid. But after the Lease expired he may revoke. Dubitatur, ibid.

Yet per Coke C. J. If one makes a Conveyance with Power to make Leases, and with Power to revoke, if he makes a Lease he may notwithstanding revoke for the Residue. Moor 788. pl. 1087.

But if the Lease be made for Life, it is doubted whether it only suspends the Power, as a Lease for Years would do, or extinguishes it as a Feoffment. Vent. 42.

If a Lease be made of two Acres, one of the Nature of Borough English, and the other at the Common Law, upon Condition, &c. and the Lessor, having Issue two Sons, dies; each of them shall enter for Breach of the Condition. Co. Lit. 215. a.

(RR) What shall be said a Condition impossible and void, and what not.

IF a Woman makes a Feoffment to a Man that is married to another, upon Condition that he shall marry her: This is a good Condition, for his Wife may die, and then he may marry her. 40 Aff. 3. adjudged by Admittance; but Quere. Roll. Abr. 419.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall assign to the Obligee a Commission of Bankrupts: This is an impossible Condition, and therefore void, and the Obligation single, for it is impossible to assign the Commission. Roll. Abr. 419.

If the Condition be, quod debet plucere cras: This is a good Condition; for though the Obligor is not certain thereof, yet if he will take this upon himself, and run the Hazard thereof, he may at his Peril, for this is not impossible of itself. 22 Ed. 4. 26. Roll. Abr. 420.

So, for the same Reason, if the Condition be, that the Pope shall be at Westminster Tomorrow; this is a good Condition. 22 Ed. 4. 26. Roll. Abr. 420.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor should go from the Church of St. Peter's in Westminster to the Church of St. Peter's in Rome within three Hours; this is impossible, and void. Co. Lit. 206. b.

If by the Condition a Thing is to be done within a Franchise; this is a good Condition, for it may be tried here. Contra 10 H. 6. 14.—Roll. Abr. 420.

If by the Condition a Thing is to be done beyond Sea; this is a good Condition, for it may be tried here. Contra 21 Ed. 4. 10. Quere. 4 H. 6. 23. b.

If the Condition be to save harmless the Obligee against a Stranger, from an Obligation in which the Obligee stood bound to the Obligor: This is a good Condition; for though by no Possibility the Stranger could have any Thing to do with it, yet if he saves him harmless against him it is within the Condition, for it may be that he has some Fear of Damage by him. Contra 21 Ed. 4. 53. b. but Quere. Bro. Condition 175.—Roll. Abr. 420.

(SS) The

IF the Condition of an Obligation or Feoffment be impossible at the making thereof, it is a void Condition; but the Obligation or Feoffment is not void but single, because the Condition is subsequent. 14 Ed. 4. 3. Co. Lit. 206.

But if the Condition precedent be impossible at the making thereof, then all is void, because nothing passes before the Condition is performed. Co. Lit. 206. b.

As if a Man leases for Life, upon Condition that if he goes from the Church of St. Peter's in Westminster to the Church of St. Peter's in Rome within three Hours, to have a Fee, which is impossible; yet because it is precedent, no Fee can accrue. Co. Lit. 206. b.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to sustain and maintain an House in sufficient Repairs, and so leave it at the End of the Term: If at the Time of the Entry into a Bond the Timber was so rotten that it was impossible to sustain and maintain it in Repairs, yet the Obligation is good, because tied by his own Act: But the Law never binds Men to Impossibilities. Sav. 96. 2 Leon. 189.

(TT) The Effect of a Condition which becomes impossible after the making thereof.

IF the Condition of a Feoffment, &c. be possible at the making thereof, and after becomes impossible by the Act of God, yet the Estate of the Feoffee shall remain. Co. Lit. 206. a.

As if the Condition of a Feoffment, &c. be, that the Feoffor, &c. shall appear in such a Court next Term, and the Feoffor dies before; the Estate of the Feoffee, &c. is absolute, because executed, and not to be redeemed back but by Matter subsequent. Co. Lit. 206. a.

But if the Condition of a Bond, Recognizance, &c. is possible at the making, but before it can be performed, becomes impossible by the Act of God, of the Law, or of the Oblige, &c. the Obligation is saved. Co. Lit. 206. a.

(UU) What Condition shall be said to be repugnant.

Intent of the Parties.

IF the Condition be, that if the Oblige shall pay to J. S. 10*l.* such a Day, then the Obligation, being 100*l.* shall be void, otherwise not: Though this was not the Intent of the Parties, yet the Condition is good; for if the Oblige does not pay the 10*l.* the Obligation is forfeited. 39 H. 6. 9. b. Roll. Abr. 419.

So if the Condition be, that if the Obligor does not pay to the Oblige such a Day 10*l.* then the Obligation, being 100*l.* shall be void: This is a good Condition; and the Obligor, in an Action upon the Obligation, may say, that he did not pay the 10*l.* and so avoid the Obligation: For though the Intent was not so, yet because the Words were so, he ought to adjudge according to the Words. 39 H. 6. 10. Bro. Condition 98. Bro. Obligation 42.— This Case was cited in 2 Mod. 285. when the Chief Justice doubted whether it was Law.

If a Lease for Years be made, upon Condition that if the Lessor grants over his Reversion, the Lessee shall have a Fee; if the Lessor grants his Reversion by Fine, the Lessee shall not have a Fee; for when the Fine transfers the Fee to the Conusee, it would be absurd, and against Reason, that the same Fine should work an Estate in the Lessee. Co. Lit. 378. b. Co. 84. b.

If an Obligation is conditioned for the Payment of 7*l.* by 2*s.* per Week, till 7*l.* is paid, and that if he fails of Payment of the 2*s.* at any of the Days on which it ought to be paid, that the Obligation shall be void, or else remain in Force: This Condition shall be taken distributively, Reddendo singula singulis, viz. That if he pays the 7*l.* the Obligation shall be void; but that if he fails in Payment of the 2*s.* at any of the Days, it shall be in full Force; for the Obligation shall not be taken to be of no Effect, if by any Means it may be made good. Adjudged upon a Demurrer to the Defendant's Plea, That he did not pay 2*s.* at one of the Days. Lev. 77. And in T. Raym. 68. same Case is adjudged, because the Condition is senseless, and therefore the Obligation is single. And in Sid 105. the Obligation was single, and the Condition repugnant and void; and contra the 39 H. 6. 10. which see in the last Paragraph but one.

A Gift in Tail, upon Condition that the Donee may alien for the Profit of the Issue, is a good Condition. 46 Ed. 3. 4. b. Co. Lit. 204. b.

A Condition upon a Feoffment in Fee, that his Daughters shall not inherit, is not good. Dav. 34. b.

If A. being seised in Fee of Land, leases it to B. for ninety-nine Years, if he so long lives, the Remainder to C. for ninety-nine Years, if he so long lives; and after A. demises it to C. and D. for ninety-nine Years, if three others, or any of them, so long live, to begin after the Determination of the first Estate, upon Condition that if C. and D. both die either before the Beginning of the Term, or before the End of the Term, that then it shall be lawful to the Lessor to re-enter: This is a good Condition, for this is not repugnant to the Estate, nor to the Limitation; but this is a collateral contingent Thing that shall give Cause of Re-entry. Roll. Abr. 418, 419.

If a Feoffment be made, upon Condition that the Feoffee shall not alien in Mortmain; this is a good Condition, because such Alienation is prohibited by Law, and regularly what is prohibited by Law (as the Alienation of an Infant, or of a Bishop without his Chapter) may be prohibited by Condition. Co. Lit. 223. b.

So if a Feoffment be made to Baron and Feme, upon Condition that they shall not alien: This is good to restrain any Alienation by Deed, because such Alienation is tortious and voidable; but to restrain their Alienation by Fine, it is repugnant and void. Co. Lit. 224. a.

Before the Statute of Quia emptores terrarum, a Man might have made a Feoffment, upon Condition that if the Feoffee or his Heirs should alien without Licence, they should pay a Fine, and this had been good. Co. Lit. 223. a. Leon. 298.

The Lord might have restrained the Alienation of his Tenant by Condition, because the Lord had a Possibility of Reverter. Co. Lit. 223. a.

So it is in the Case of the King at this Day, because he may reserve a Tenure to himself. Co. Lit. 223. a.

If A. has Issue two Sons B. and C. and covenants to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to B. in Tail, Remainder to C. in Tail, &c. provided that if B. &c. or any of the Heirs Males of his Body, shall alien, &c. the Uses to him limited shall cease only in Respect of him as if dead, &c. This Proviso is repugnant, impossible, and against Law; for the Estate of the Tenant in Tail does not cease by his Death, but by his Death without Issue. Co. 84. a. adjudged though B. had no Issue at the Time of the Breach of the Proviso.

If a Tenth be granted by the Clergy, Proviso that no Person that is indicted in the Court of the King shall pay any Fine; and if he does, he shall be discharged of the Tenth; this is a good Proviso. Roll. Abr. 419.

So if such Grant be made, Proviso the Collectors shall not account in the Exchequer before the Barons, but before special Auditors assigned by the King; this is a good Proviso. Ibid.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, provided that the Feoffor shall have the Profits; this Condition is void, because it is repugnant to the Grant. Ibid. & Co. Lit. 206. b.

So if there be a Lease to three during their Lives, provided that one shall not take the Profits during the Lives of the other two. 2 Leon. 132.

If a Man for himself and his Heirs warrants Lands to another and his Heirs against all Men; yet it is provided that the Warranty shall be void: This Proviso is altogether repugnant to the Grant; and therefore the Grant is good, and the Proviso void. Roll. Abr. 413.

So in the Case aforesaid, if the Proviso had been, that he to whom the Warranty was made, nor his Heirs, should not have in Value by Force of the Warranty, that the Proviso is not good; yet he may rebut, if the Proviso be good, and so the Warranty not wholly defeated. But it is not a good Proviso, because then the Words, against all Men, would be wholly defeated; for the other Words will give a Rebutter without them. Ibid.

If a Rent-charge be granted out of the Manor of D. (in which the Grantor has nothing) with a Proviso, that it shall not charge his Person: Though the Repugnancy does not appear in the Deed, yet the Proviso is void, else it would take away the whole Effect of the Grant. Co. Lit. 146. a.

So if a Grant of a Rent out of Land to which he has Title, without a Clause of Distress, provided that it shall not charge his Person: This is void and repugnant if he does not give Seisin upon the Grant. 6 Co. 58. b.

If a Man grants a Rent-charge out of Land, provided it shall not charge the Land; though the Grantee might notwithstanding charge his Person, yet the Proviso is repugnant, because the Land is expressly charged. Co. Lit. 146. a. Poph. 87.

If a Man grants a Rent-charge out of Land to another for Life, provided it shall not charge his Person, and the Grantee dies, his Executors may bring Debt for the Arrears, for they cannot distrain, because the Estate in the Rent is determined, and the Proviso cannot leave the Executors without Remedy. Co. Lit. 146. b.

Q. If this is not as it was at Common Law before the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 37. for by the said Statute the Executors of such Tenant for Life may distrain at this Day.

(VV) What Condition shall be said against Law, and what shall be void, and e contra.

IF the Condition of an Obligation in which A. is bound to B. is, that whereas A. in a short Time is to be presented, instituted and inducted to the Church of D. if A. after his Admission, Institution and Induction to it, at all Times, upon Request of B. his Heirs, Executors or Administrators, resigns the said Rectory and Church to the Ordinary or Guardian of the Spiritualities for the Time being, by which B. his Heirs or Assigns, Patrons of the said Church, may present de novo to the said Church, discharged of all Charges and Incumbrances made or suffered by A. This is a good Condition of itself without an Averment that it was for a simoniacal Purpose. Roll. Abr. 417. Cro. Jac. 248, 274.

A Condition to renounce an Administration, is good. 15 Ed. 4. 30. Bro. Condition 65.

A Condition to do a Thing which will be Maintenance, is void; as to save J. harmless from such an Appeal of Robbery that B. has against him: This is against Law. 18 Ed. 4. 28. Cart. 229, 230. All. 60.

The Condition of an Obligation was, That if the Obligee in an Action in the Name of C. recovers against R. at the Costs of the Obligee, C. should enfeoff him of the Land; and if he does not enfeoff him, then the Obligor shall be bound by the Obligation in 20l. This is a Condition against the Law, for it is Maintenance. 42 Ed. 3. 6. b. Quare, but after 23. the Condition is admitted good; for the Defendant had other Matter to help him. Roll. Abr. 417.

If a Tenth be granted by the Clergy to the King, on Proviso that no Parson that is indicted in the Court of the King shall pay any Fine; and if he does, that he shall be discharged of the Tenth: This is a good Proviso. 21 Ed. 4. 46. Roll. Abr. 418.

If a Lease for Life be made upon Condition, that if the Lessee marries without Licence, he shall re-enter: This is a good Condition. 43 Ed. 3. 6.

If the Condition of an Obligation be not to sell the Apparel of the Wife: This is good. Roll. Rep. 334.

So if a Man gives a Bond to a Stranger, conditioned for the Payment of 20l. yearly to his Wife: This is good. Roll. Rep. 334. Co. Lit. 206. b.

But if the Condition be to enfeoff his Wife, it is void, because against a Maxim in Law, and yet the Bond is good. Co. Lit. 206. b.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that if the Son of the Obligor, before a certain Time, do, as Apprentice, Servant or Master, or otherwise, use the Trade of an Haberdasher within the County of K. then if the Obligor do upon Request pay 20l. to the Obligee, the Bond

Bond shall be void: This Condition is against Law; for a Man ought not to be restrained from his Trade and Livelihood; and if he might be restrained for a certain Time and Place, he might be restrained for longer Time or more Places. Cro. Eliz. 872. Moor 115. pl. 259, 242. pl. 379. 2 Leon. 210. 3 Leon. 217. March 191, 192. In Owen 143. it was said by Anderson, that he might as well bind himself that he would not go to Church. — In 3 Lev. 241. the same Point is adjudged contra in B. R. but afterwards reversed upon a Writ of Error in Cam. Scac. by the unanimous Consent of all the Justices, because this being a penal Obligation to prevent the Exercise of a Trade, though in a particular Place only, it is void; otherwise if it had been on an Assumpsit, for a good Consideration not to use a Trade in a particular Place; because in such Cases all being to be recovered in Damages, it is in the Power of the Jury to assess the Damages, on weighing the Consideration of the Promise and the Mischief to the Party promising; but in this Case the whole Penalty is to be forfeited, be the Consideration what it will, and let the Offence be never so small; as in the Case of an Infant, a Bond or Bill for Necessaries is void, but an Assumpsit is good; and some Judges held, that a Covenant or Promise to pay a certain Sum if he uses his Trade is ill, because that is a Debt for which an Action of Debt will lie; but a Promise upon a good Consideration, as for transferring his Trade and Shop, that he shall not use the Trade in the Town where he ought to use it, they allowed to be good, because all is uncertain, and is to be ascertained by the Jury which tries the Cause, viz. of what Value the Consideration is, and what Damage the Use of the Trade is to the Party to whom the Promise is made.

If an Under-Sheriff covenants with the High-Sheriff to discharge and save him harmless from all Escapes of Prisoners arrested by the Under-Sheriff, or any by him appointed: This is a good Covenant; for since the High-Sheriff transfers his Authority, it is but reasonable he should take Security for the faithful Execution of it; and there is nothing intended against Law, but rather to prevent than connive at Escapes. Hob. 12, 13. Moor 856. pl. 1175. Godb. 212. Brownl. 65, 66.

If A. is imprisoned for Felony, and B. bound by Recognizance to prosecute, if B. after gives Bond to C. conditioned, that B. will not give Evidence against A. the Condition is against Law, and the Bond void. Adjudged, and the Court advised that C. should be prosecuted for taking such Bond. 2 Vent. 109.

Where the Condition of a Bond is to do any Thing that is not Malum in se, though against Law, the Condition is only void, and the Bond single. Comb. 246.

If the Condition of such an Obligation be, that he, after Institution and Induction into the said Church, shall at all Times after ordinarily be resident, and serving the Cure of the said Benefice without Absence by eighty Days in any one Year during the Time that he shall be Parson of the said Church: This is a good Condition, without any Averment taken to be for any simoniacal Purpose. Roll. Abr. 418.

If the Sheriff of a County makes B. his Under-Sheriff, and takes a Covenant from his Under-Sheriff, that he will not serve Executions above 20 l. without his special Warrant: This is a void Covenant, because it is against Law and Justice, inasmuch as when he is made Under-Sheriff, he is liable by the Law to execute all Purposes as well as the Sheriff is. Hob. 12, 18. Brownl. 65. 2 Brownl. 281, 282. Moor 856. pl. 1175. Godb. 212, 213.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall be always ready to give Evidence, and to testify the Truth, in any of the King's Courts, in all Things which shall be demanded of him, &c. and that he shall not hurt, endanger or molest the Obligee in his Lands or Goods, ratione alicujus rei: This is a good Condition, and not against Law; for as to the first Part, if he had not been obliged thereto, he had been compellable by Law; and by the last Part, it shall be intended that he shall not hurt, &c. tortiously, but not to restrain him from pursuing the Obligee for Felony, or other just Cause. Cro. Eliz. 705.

(WW) The Effect of a Condition against Law.

If the Condition be for doing a Thing that is Malum in se; this is void, and makes the Obligation void. Co. Lit. 206. b.

But if it be for doing a Thing that is against Law, because it is repugnant to the Estate, or against some Maxim or Rule in Law, it makes not the Obligation void. Ibid.

If A. being a Custom-house Officer by Patent, makes B. his Deputy, and covenants inter alia to surrender the old Patent, and procure a new one to B. and himself before a Day; and that if B. dies before A. that A. shall pay 300*l.* to the Executors of B. and gives Bond for the Performance thereof: Admitting these Covenants void, per 5 Ed. 6. cap. 16. the whole Bond is void, though some of the Covenants are not void or illegal. *Cro. (XX) What Act shall be a Breach of a Condition.

Breach of a Condition in Deed.

IF a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffee shall not enfeoff J. S. of the Land, and the Feoffee makes a Feoffment to J. S. and J. D. This is a Breach of the Condition.

Not to alien.

And so it is if the Feoffee makes a Feoffment to J. D. to the Intent that he shall alien to J. S. Quando aliquid prohibetur fieri directo, prohibetur & per obliquum.

And yet if the Feoffee in the Case before aliens to J. D. and afterwards he aliens to J. S. This is no Breach of the Condition.

And if the Condition be, that the Feoffee shall not enfeoff J. S. and he dies, and his Heir enfeoffs J. S. This is no Breach of the Condition. Co. Lit. 222. Dyer 45, 46.

If a Lease for Years be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall not assign or alien the Term or the Land during his Life without Licence of the Lessor, and the Lessee gives it by his Will without Licence: This is a Breach of the Condition and Forfeiture of the Estate; but if he makes an Executor of his Will only, this is no Breach.

And if the Condition be, that the Lessee shall not alien, and he dies, and his Executor aliens: This is no Breach of the Condition. Dyer 45, 65.

And if the Condition be, that the Lessee shall not alien but to his Children, and the Lessee by Will devises it to his Executors: This is a Breach of the Condition.

So if he devises that A. his Son shall have his Term after his Wife, and makes A. his Son his Executor: This is a Breach of the Condition.

But if he does not make A. his Executor, contra.

And in Cases of Devise, although the Executors do not assent, yet the Condition is broken; as where a Reversion is granted on Condition that the Grantee shall not alien it, and he does alien it, but no Attornment is to this Grant: Yet this is a Breach of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 144.

And if a Lease for Years be made, on Condition that the Lessee or his Assigns shall not alien, and the Lessee makes his Wife his Executrix, and she takes another Husband, and he aliens it: This is a Breach of the Condition, and a Forfeiture of the Estate.

But if a Lease be made on Condition that the Lessee shall not alien without the Licence of the Lessor, and after the Lessor dies, and the Lessee assigns, or the Lessee dies, and his Executors or Administrators assign: This is no Breach of the Condition in either of these Cases.

So if a Lease be made on Condition that the Lessee shall not alien the Term during his Life, and he makes an Executor, but does not devise it to him: This is no Breach of the Condition. Dyer 6.

And if a Lease be made on Condition that the Lessee, his Executors or Assigns, shall not alien the Term to any Persons without the Licence of the Lessor, but to the Wife or one of the Children of the Lessee, and the Lessee dies, and his Executors alien to one of the Children of the Lessee, and he aliens to a Stranger without Licence: This is no Breach of the Condition. Dyer 152. 4 Co. 120.

And if one makes a Lease of a House and Land, on Condition that the Lessee shall not parcel out the Land, or any Part of it from the House; and the Lessee grants all his Term in the House and Part of the Land, and keeps the Rest, and after leases that Part also: This is a Breach of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 145.

Not to suffer a Woman with Child in the House.

If a Lease be made of a House, on Condition that the Lessee shall not suffer any Woman great with Child to harbour or lodge in the House six Days after Notice given by the Lessor, and the Lessee suffers any such Person after Notice given, although the Lessor consents to it, yet the Condition is broken. 8 Co. 92.

But if the Lessor do nolens volens keep such a Woman there against the Mind of the Lessee, this is no Breach of the Condition. Ibid.

Not to do
Waste.

If a Lease be made, on Condition that if any Waste be done the Lessor shall re-enter; in this Case if the House falls by a Tempest, this is no Breach of the Condition, for this is no Waste: But if it be uncovered by a Tempest, and the Tenant has a convenient Time to repair it, and does not, but does suffer the Timber to perish for want of covering: This is a Breach of the Condition, and the Lessor may enter, and put out the Lessee. 12 II.

4. 5. Bro. Condition 40.

And if a Lease be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall not do Waste, and he suffers Waste to be made in the Decay of the Houses, &c. the Condition is broken. Sed quare. Dyer 281.

If a Lease be made, on Condition that if the Lessee be minded to sell his Estate the Lessor shall have the first Offer thereof, giving as much as another will give: In this Case if the Lessee does not give Notice when he is minded to sell it, he breaks the Condition; but if when he is minded to sell he tells the Lessor of his Purpose, and what he is offered for it, and the Lessor does either say he will not have it, or that he will not give so much for it, or does not accept it, but delays, &c. and then the Lessee sells it to another: This is no Breach of the Condition, neither is he bound to wait upon him in this Case. Dyer 13.

Not to sell without the Lessor's having the first offer.

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffee shall make a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, Lease for Life or Years of the Land to the Feoffor, or to a Stranger by a Day; and before the Day the Feoffee disables himself to do it, either by making some Estate of the same Thing to some other Person in Tail, for Life, Years, in present or future, or for one Year, or by taking a Wife whereby she may be intitled to Dower, or by suffering a Recovery of the Land, or by granting of any Rent, Common, or the like, or by entring into any Statute, &c. or by suffering any Judgment to be had against him, or by doing any other such like Act, whereby he cannot convey the Land according to the Condition in the same Plight, Quality and Freedom it was at the Time of Conveyance made: In either of these Cases the Condition is ipso facto broken. To make an Estate.

And although the Land be afterwards discharged, and the Party again enabled before the Day to perform the Condition, yet this will not save the Breach. And so also it is of a Limitation.

But when the Condition is to be performed of the Part of the Feoffor or Grantor, there Disability before the Time will not hurt, so as he be again enabled at the Time.

And so it is when the Condition is to be performed on the Part of the Feoffee, and there is no certain Day set for the Performance of the Thing, for although in this Case he be once disabled, yet if afterwards he be again enabled, and does it within the Time that the Law gives him to do it; in this Case the Condition is not broken.

And so also it is if the Feoffee be disseised, and during the Disseisin he does any such Act as before; in such Case before his Entry it is no Breach of the Condition, for till then the Charge does no bind the Land.

And so likewise it is when the Disability proceeds from another Cause, as where one makes a Feoffment, on Condition that the Feoffee shall reinfest before such a Day, and before the Day the Feoffor disseises the Feoffee and keeps him out till the Day be past; or one makes a Feoffment, on Condition that the Feoffee shall marry B. before such a Day, and before the Day the Feoffor himself marries her, so that the Feoffee cannot perform the Condition; in these Cases the Condition is not broken. Shep. Touch. 146. Co. Lit. 221, 222, 206. Lit. §. 355. 2 Co. 58. Perk. §. 802, 803.

If one makes an Estate of Lands (held in Capite) on Condition that he to whom it is made shall employ the Profits thereof to divers charitable Uses, and he dies, his Heir being within Age, by reason whereof the King has the Land during the Minority of the Heir, so that the Profits cannot be employed: This is no Breach of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 146, 147. To employ the Profits to charitable Uses.

If one makes a Feoffment of Land, on Condition to reinfest in convenient Time, and the Feoffee does not so, but makes a Lease to another: This is a double Breach of the Condition. And the same Law is of a Devise by Will in this Manner. Co. Porter's Case, 22, &c. To reinfest.

If a Feoffment be made, upon Condition that the Feoffee shall make some Estate to the Feoffor, or some other, by a Day, and the Feoffee before the Day says to him to whom the Estate is to be made, that he will never make the Estate, notwithstanding he does make the Estate before the Day according to the Condition; in this Case it is said the Condition is broken. Sed quare; for it seems if he really denies it before, and actually performs it at the Day; this is a good Performance of the Condition. To make an Estate.

As if a Lease be made of a House, on Condition that the Lessee shall not disturb the Lessor in the taking away of his Goods out of the House, and when the Party comes or sends to fetch them, the Lessee only forbids them: This is no Breach of the Condition; and it was agreed in this Case that Words without some Deeds, as shutting the Door against them, To suffer one to take his Goods.

them, forcible Resistance, or laying of Hands upon them, or the like, are no Breach of such Condition. Perk. §. 796. 8 Co. 90.

To suffer one to come into House. And if a Lease be made, on Condition, that the Lessor shall be four Times a Year in the House demised without being ousted by the Lessee, and the Lessee seeing him coming shuts the Doors or Windows against him: This has been thought to be no Breach of the Condition. 3 H. 4. 8.

To pay a yearly Sum. If a Lease be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall pay yearly to the Lessor during the Term 10*l.* in this Case if he fails of paying once, the Condition is broken and the Estate forfeited.

So if one makes Feoffment in Fee of Land, on Condition to pay 10*l.* yearly to J. S. if he fails once, the Condition is broken. Dyer 33.

Not to molest a Copyholder. If a Lease be made of a Manor in which are divers Copyholders, on Condition that the Lessee shall not molest, vex or put out any Copyholder paying his Duties and Services; in this Case if the Lessee enters upon and puts out any one Copyholder, this is a Breach of the Condition.

But if he enters vi & armis upon a Copyholder's Tenements, and there beat him only, or the like: This is no Breach of the Condition. Shep. Touch. 147.

To pay Rent. If there be a Condition to pay Rent, and the Lessee lets Part of the Land to other Under-Tenants, or lets all the Land to another for Part of the Time, and he undertakes the Rent still, and fails of Payment; in this Case the Condition is broken, and the Estate forfeited.

But if there be any Covin and Practice in the Case between the first Lessor and the Lessee, the Under-Tenants may perhaps have Relief in Equity. Crompt. Jur. 147.

If a Lease be made rendring Rent, on Condition that if the Rent be not paid within twenty Days the Lessor shall re-enter, and the Rent is not paid; in this Case the Condition is broken, but the Lessor cannot enter until he has made a legal Demand, and if he dies before he does it, his Heir shall never take Advantage of that Breach, but it is discharged for ever. Doll. & Stud. 35. 13 H. 4. 17.

Not to disturb. If one makes a Lease for Years of Lands, and then also makes a Feoffment in Fee of the Lands, on Condition that if the Lessee be disturbed in his Term that he shall have the Fee-simple, and he is disturbed by the Feoffor, or his Means; in this Case the Condition is broken, and the Lessee shall have the Fee-simple.

But if the Disturbance be by a Stranger, and not by the Feoffor, or by his Means or Consent; this is no Breach of the Condition. 8 Co. 90.

Not to be outlawed. If a Lease be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall be outlawed, and he is outlawed without Proclamation; it seems this is no Breach of the Condition, because the Outlawry is not good. Shep. Touch. 148.

If a Condition possible at the Time of Creation becomes afterwards impossible in Part by the Act of God, and the Party does not perform that which is possible, the Condition is broken. Lit. §. 352. 2 Co. 59.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years on Condition, and the Lessee does not know of it, and after the Lessor by Will gives the Land to the Lessee without Condition, and the Lessee does such an Act as is a Breach of the Condition; in this Case the Condition is not broken, for the Lessee must have Notice of the Condition before he can break it. 8 Co. 92.

To give Advice. If one grants an Annuity pro consilio impenso & impendendo, and the Grantor requires Advice, and the Grantee refuses or neglects to give it: This is a Breach of the Condition, and a Forfeiture of the Estate.

And if the Deed be, that he shall go to such a Place to give Counsel, and he requires him to go thither, and he refuses it; this is a Forfeiture of the Estate.

But if he refuses to go with him to another Place, or give Counsel to his Adversary, being not required to give Counsel to him: This is no Breach of the Condition, nor Forfeiture of his Annuity. 21 Ed. 3. 7. 8 H. 6. 24. Dyer 369.

And if one has heretofore devised his Land to be sold by his Executors, and to have been distributed for his Soul, and the Executors had not sold it in convenient Time, or had taken the Profits to their own Use: This had been a Breach of the Condition. Lit. §. 383.

When a Condition in Law shall be said to be broken or not. Every particular Estate has a Condition in Law annexed to it, and therefore if Tenant for Life, in Dower, by the Curtesy, or after Possibility of Issue extinct, Lessee for Years, Tenant by Statute Merchant, Elegit, or the like, makes any absolute or conditional Estate of the Lands they hold in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, and give Livery of Seisin thereupon, or levy a Fine sur consueance de droit, or suffer a Recovery of the Land, or the like: This is a Breach of the Condition in Law, and a Forfeiture of his Estate.

And if any such Tenant (except Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct) commits Waste in the Lands they do so hold: This is a Breach of the Condition in Law, and a Forfeiture of the Estate in so much as the Waste is committed.

But if an Infant or Feme Covert that has such an Estate shall make any such Estate, &c. This is no Breach of the Condition in Law.

And yet if such Person commits Waste: This is a Breach of the Condition in Law.

And so also if any such Person be an Officer, and do any Thing which is a Cause of Forfeiture in another: This will be a Forfeiture in him or her also. 2 Co. 15. 8 Co. 44. Co. Lit. 233.

If any Keeper of a Park without Warrant kills any Deer, fells or cuts any Wood, and converts it to his own Use, pulls down the Lodge, or any House within the Park used for Hay for the Deer, or the like: This is a Breach of the Condition in Law.

So also if a Keeper shall not look to the Game, but the Deer be killed by his Default, and Damage comes to the Lord: By this also the Condition is broken.

But the not attending upon such an Officer for two or three Days, if the Lord has no special Loss thereby, is no Cause of Forfeiture. Co. Lit. 233.

Officers that are for the Administration of Justice, or of Clerkship in any Court of Record, or concerning the King's Treasure, Revenue, Account, Alnage, Auditorship, &c. have also Conditions in Law annexed to them, and therefore if such Officers shall sell their Offices or misdemean themselves in their Offices: By this the Condition in Law may be broken, and they may forfeit them. Co. Lit. 234.

(YY) How a Condition shall be expounded.

WHEN a Condition is created in a Deed, the Law says, That it shall be taken favourably for him who is to perform it. 4 Leon. Case 161.

It is a general Rule, that such Conditions annexed to Estates as go in Defeasance, and tend to the Destruction of the Estate, being odious to the Law, are taken strictly, and shall not be extended beyond their Words, unless it be in some special Cases. 1. In respect of Persons.

And therefore if a Lease be made, on Condition that if such a Thing be not done, the Lessor (without the Words Heirs, Executors, &c.) shall re-enter and avoid it; in this Case regularly the Heir, Executor, &c. shall not take Advantage of this Condition.

So if one makes a Lease for Years of an House, on Condition that if the Lessor shall be minded to dwell in the House, and shall give Notice to the Lessee that he shall depart; in this Case, if the Lessor dies, his Heir, Executor, &c. shall not have the like Advantage and Power as the Lessor himself, for the Condition shall not be extended to them. Co. Lit. 219. 8 Co. 90. 27 H. 8. 14.

And hence it is, that if a Lease for Years be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall not alien without the Licence of the Lessor; in this Case the Restraint shall continue only during the Lives of the Lessor and the Lessee, and no longer. Dyer 66.

And yet this Rule has an Exception; for if a Man mortgages his Land to W. upon Condition that if the Mortgagor and J. S. pays 20s. such a Day to the Mortgagee, that then he shall re-enter, and the Mortgagor dies before the Day; in this Case J. S. may pay the Money, and perform the Condition. To pay Money.

But it is otherwise whilst the Mortgagor lives, for during his Life J. S. alone without him may not tender it, and if he does, this Tender is no Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 219.

And in case where a Condition tends to create an Estate, there it shall have the most favourable Exposition that may be; and therefore in that Case although the Words be not satisfied, yet if the Intent be satisfied, it sufficeth. To create an Estate.

And therefore if one makes a Feoffment in Fee, on Condition that the Feoffee shall make an Estate back again in Tail to the Feoffor and his Wife before such a Day, and before that Day the Feoffor dies; in this Case the Condition shall be performed as near to the Intent as may be; and therefore if the Condition be, that he shall make the Estate to them two, Habendum to them and the Heirs of their two Bodies engendred, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor, the Estate shall be made to the Wife for Life without Impeachment of Waste, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband begotten on the Wife.

And if A. enfeoffs B. on Condition that B. shall make an Estate in Frank-Marriage to C. with such a one, the Daughter of the Feoffor; in this Case although an Estate in Frank-Marriage may not be made, yet an Estate shall be made to them for their Lives. Et sic de similibus. Conditio beneficiæ quæ statum construit benigne secundum verborum intentionem est interpretanda, odiosa autem quæ statum destruit striete secundum verborum proprietatem est accipienda. Lit. §. 352. Co. Lit. 219. 8 Co. 60.

In all Cases where a Time is set for the Doing or Performance of the Matter contained in the Condition, be it to pay Money, make an Estate, or the like, it must be done at the Time agreed upon and set down in the Condition. 2. In respect of Time.

And

And in Cases where it is to be done before a certain Time, it must be done before that Time, or else the Condition is broke.

But in all Cases where no Time is set for the doing of the Thing contained in the Condition, be it to pay Money, make an Estate, or the like, if the Act to be done, be to be done to the Party that makes the Estate, or to be done to him and a Stranger, and be such a Thing as is for the Benefit of him that makes the Estate, and for his Benefit only, there regularly the Party that is to do the Thing shall have Time to do it during his Life, unless the Party, Feoffor, &c. that makes the first Estate, whereunto the Condition is annexed, hastens the doing thereof by Request; for if he request the doing thereof, and sets no Time, it must be done within a convenient Time after that Request; and if he requests and prefixes a Time convenient when he desires to have it done, it must be done at that Time; and in these Cases the Condition cannot be broken without a Request, so long as he to whom the Estate upon Condition is made be living.

To pay Money.

And therefore in this Case it is not like to a Condition made by Will, for if one devises his Land to J. S. so as he pays the 20*l.* to J. D. which the Testator owes him, and no Time is set for the Payment thereof; in this Case he must pay it as soon as it is demanded, or he forfeits the Land, and the Heir may enter.

To enfeoff.

But if the Thing to be done be to be done to a Stranger, and be for the Profit and Benefit of a Stranger only; as if a Feoffment be made on Condition that the Feoffee shall marry the Daughter of the Feoffor, or on Condition that the Feoffee shall enfeoff a Stranger, and no Time is set for the doing hereof; in these Cases the Feoffee shall not have Time during his Life to do it, but he must do it, in a reasonable Time, and without any Request at all, or else he breaks the Condition.

To grant an Advowson or a Rent.

And in some special Cases when the Act to be done is to be done to the Party himself, that Party shall not have Time to do it during his Life; as if one grants Land to J. S. on Condition that he shall grant an Advowson to the Grantor for his Life, or on Condition that he shall grant a Rent-charge to the Grantor during his Life, to be paid at Michaelmas and our Lady-day; in these Cases the Grant of the Advowson must be before the Advowson falls, and the Grant of the Rent must be before either of the Days of Payment comes, and that without Request, or else the Condition is broken. Co. Lit. 209, 208, 219. Lit. §. 353. 2 Co. 79. 6 Co. 31. Plow. 30. Perk. §. 155, 779, 794, 787, 793, 789, 788. 38 Ed. 3. 11. Dyer 311.

To pay Money.

And if the Condition be that if J. S. do such an Act, that then the Feoffee shall pay 10*l.* to the Feoffor, or else that the Feoffor shall re-renter, and no Time is set when the Feoffee must pay this 10*l.* in this Case the Payment must be as soon as the same Act is done, and that without any Request at all. Perk. §. 9, 798.

And in Case where the Feoffee, &c. or a Stranger be to do an Act, and he alone is to do it, and it does not concern the Feoffor, &c. as to go to Rome, or the like, there the Feoffor, &c. or Stranger, shall have Time during his Life to do the Thing, and it cannot be hastened by Request. Co. Lit. 209.

To pay Money, or do any Thing.

When a certain Time is set for the Payment of Money, or the doing of any other Thing in general, neither Agent nor Patient are bound to attend any other Time.

And if the Thing be to be done on a certain Day, but no Hour of the Day is set down wherein the same shall be done; in this Case they must attend such a Distance of Time before the Sun-set as may be convenient to do that Work in.

And if the Condition be to pay Money at a Place certain, at any Time during Life; in this Case the Money may not be tendred at any Time in the Place, in the Absence of him that should receive it; but he that is to pay it must give Notice to the other Party beforehand what Time he will tender it, that the other may be ready to receive it.

Or if at any Time the Parties happen to meet at the Place, a Payment or Tender then at that Place is sufficient.

And the same Law is for the most part in Conditions of Obligations. Lit. §. 342. Co. Lit. 213.

To make a Lease.

If Lands be granted, on Condition that the Grantee shall make a Lease for Life of other Land to the Grantor, the Remainder to a Stranger; in this Case the Feoffee shall have all the Time of his Life to do it, if he be not hastened by Request.

But if the Condition be to make a Gift in Tail to a Stranger, the Remainder to the Feoffor; in this Case it must be done in convenient Time without Request.

If the King license his Tenant to enfeoff A. and B. so as they give the Land again to the Feoffor and the Heirs Male of his Body, and he makes a Feoffment accordingly; in this Case it must be re-conveyed before the Death of the Feoffor, or else the Condition is broken. Co. Lit. 220, 222.

If

If A. enfeoffs B. of Blackacre, on Condition that if C. enfeoffs B. of Whiteacre, A. shall To enfeoff. re-enter; in this Case C. shall have Time to do this during his Life, if B. does not hasten it by Request. Co. Lit. 208.

If a Lessee grants his Estate to a Stranger, on Condition that the Grantee gets the good To get the Will of the Lessor, and no Time is set when he shall get his good Will: He shall have good Will of Time to get his good Will during the Term, and although he denies it at the first, yet if J. S. he grants it afterwards, that is sufficient. Perk. §. 795.

In Cases where a Place is set down for the doing of a Thing contained in the Condition, 3. In respect there it must always be done at that Place, (unless by some Agreement made between the of Place. Parties afterwards another Place be appointed) otherwise the Condition is not performed, and the Parties are not bound to attend in any other Place.

But in Cases where there is no Place set down for the doing of the Thing contained in the Condition, if the Thing to be done be a corporal Service, as to pay Money, or any such like Thing, the Party that is to do it must at his Peril seek out the Person to whom it is to be done, if he be infra regnum Angliæ; but if he be not within the Kingdom, he is not bound to seek him, and yet the Condition is not broken.

And if the Thing to be done be either local, i. e. such a Thing as must be done in or at a Place certain, as the making of a Feoffment of Land, Payment of Rent, or the like; the Thing must be done at that very Place, and a Tender of doing it in that Place is a sufficient Performance of the Condition; as for Example:

If a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffee shall pay to the Feoffor 20*l.* on To pay Money. Easter Day at Dale, and the Feoffee tenders the 20*l.* the same Day at Sale; and although the Feoffor be at Sale, and he tenders the 20*l.* to his Person there the same Day, yet it is no Performance of the Condition.

And if a Feoffment be made in Mortgage, on Condition for the Payment of Money at a Day, and no Place is set for the Payment thereof; in this Case the Mortgagor must seek the Mortgagee, and tender it to his Person at his Peril: And Tender of the Money upon the Land mortgaged, is not a sufficient Performance of the Condition.

And if a Feoffment be made, on Condition that the Feoffee shall enfeoff the Feoffor of To enfeoff. Whiteacre in Dale; in this Case the Feoffment or the Tender of it must be in Dale, and cannot be elsewhere, and a Tender of it there is sufficient to perform the Condition.

So if the Condition be, that the Feoffee shall in Easter Term next acknowledge Satisfaction upon a Judgment in the King's Bench; this must be done there, and cannot be done elsewhere. To acknowledge Satisfaction on a Judgment.

So if a Feoffment in Fee be made of Whiteacre, rendering Rent to the Feoffor and his Heirs, on Condition that if the Rent be not paid, the Feoffment to be void, and no Place is set for the Payment of it; in this Case the Feoffee is not bound to tender his Rent anywhere for the saving of the Condition, but upon the Land, and a Tender there is sufficient. To pay Rent.

And if a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, without any Reservation of Rent precedent in the Deed, on Condition that the Feoffee and his Heirs shall render a yearly Rent of 20*s.* a Year to the Feoffor and his Heirs, and if they fail, that the Feoffor shall re-enter; in this Case also the Payment or Tender must be upon the Land.

But if the Condition be, that he shall tender 20*s.* a Year to a Stranger and his Heirs, this is no Rent, nor in the Nature of a Rent, and therefore the Feoffee must tender it to the Person of the Stranger where he can find him at the Day, or else he breaks the Condition, and a Tender upon the Ground is not sufficient.

But in these Cases, if the Nature of the Thing to be done be such as will not admit of such a Carriage from Place to Place to seek out the Person of the Feoffor, &c. there, although the Thing to be done be corporal or transient, and not a local Thing, yet he that is to do it shall not be bound to seek out the Person of the other; as for Example:

If an Estate be made, on Condition that the Grantee shall deliver twenty Quarters of To deliver Wheat, or twenty Loads of Wood to the Grantor at such a Time, and no Place is set for Corn or Wood. the doing thereof; in this Case the Grantee is not bound to carry the same about to seek the Feoffor or Grantor, as he is bound to carry Money; but before the Day the Grantee is to know of the Grantor where he will appoint to receive it, and there it must be tendered.

And the like Law is for the most part in Conditions of Obligations.

It is best therefore in all these Cases that the Certainty of Time and Place be set down in A Caution. the Condition for the Performance of a Thing, and the more certain it is, the better it is for him who is to perform it. Co. Lit. 210, 211, 213. Lit. §. 343, 345. Bro. Condition 60.

If a Lease be made, on Condition that the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor all such Sums of 4. In respect Money as the Lessor shall lay out in such a Business; in this Case the Lessor must first tender of other Matters. to to the Lessee a Note of the Charges before the Lessee is bound to pay, and until this be done the Condition cannot be broken.

To pay Money.

And after a Note is given also, he shall have some reasonable Time to provide the Money. And if he tenders him a Note of more than in Truth he lays out, the Lessee, if he know it, may pay so much as is laid out, and he may refuse to pay any more.

To make an Estate.

If Lands be granted, upon Condition that A. shall make an Estate of Lands at the Charges of B. in this Case A. must do the first Act, viz. notify to B. what Assurance he will make before B. is bound to tender the Charges. 5 Co. 22.

If a Feoffment be made on Condition that the Feoffee shall give so much Household-Stuff to the Feoffor, or so much Money for it as it shall be rated at by two indifferent Persons to this Purpose to be chosen; in this Case the Election of the two Men must be by the Feoffee: But if the Words be by two Persons to be indifferently chosen, then the Election shall be by both Parties, for in the first Case the Word indifferent goes to the appraising, and not to the Persons.

To cleanse Ditches.

If a Feoffment be made of a Ground, on Condition that the Feoffee shall rake the Ditches; in this Case if the Feoffee does it once it is a sufficient Performance of the Condition.

To dwell in a House.

And yet if a Man grants a House for Life, on Condition that the Lessee shall dwell and be resident in the House during the said Term; in this Case it is not sufficient that he dwells in it once during the Term, but must do so all the Term, or else the Condition is broken. 27 H. 8. 1. Plow. 21.

Annuity.

If an Annuity be granted of ten Marks per Ann. to a Man, on Condition, or till he be promoted to a Benefice by the Grantor, and it is not said of what Value the Benefice shall be; in this Case it shall be taken for a Benefice of as great Value and of as good an Estate as the Annuity is, otherwise the Grantee may refuse it, and yet his Annuity shall continue. Perk. §. 804.

To give Goods.

If a Feoffment be made on Condition that the Feoffee shall give all his Goods Si quæ fuerint, or give all his Pikes in his Pond Si quæ fuerint; in this Case the Words shall be taken in the present Tense, for the Goods and Pikes that are at the Time of the Grant.

But if a Feoffment be made on Condition that the Feoffee shall give all his Goods in London, Si quæ fuerint, that did belong to J. S. in this Case the Words shall be taken in the præterperfect Tense. Perk. §. 742.

Not to disturb the Lessor in taking the Wood.

If one makes a Lease of the Manor of Dale, (wherein is a Wood called Dale Wood) excepting all the Woods and Underwoods growing in Dale Wood, and all the great Trees growing elsewhere, and this is upon Condition that if the Lessee shall disturb the Lessor, to cut and sell the Wood and Underwood excepted, the Lease to be void; in this Case the Condition shall extend only to the Wood and Underwood in Dale Wood, and not to the Trees elsewhere; but if the Words of the Condition be (shall disturb, &c. to cut, &c. the Wood and Underwood on the Premises) contra. Hil. 3 Car. Hayward and Fulcher's Case.

To pay Rent.

If one grants Land, rendring Rent at the Feasts of St. Michael and our Lady-day, or within a Month after, on Condition that if it be behind after the Feasts and Days limited by the Space of eight Weeks, that the Lease shall be void; in this Case the eight Weeks shall be accounted from the Month which is the twenty-eighth Day after the Feast. Dyer 142.

If the Condition be made in the Copulative, and consists of divers Parts, every Part must be observed, or the Condition will not be performed.

But when it is made in the Disjunctive, if any Part of it be observed, it is a sufficient Performance of the Condition.

And therefore if a Feoffment be made on Condition to reinfeoff and pay 20*l.* and the Feoffee reinfeoffs but does not pay the 20*l.* in this Case the Condition is broken.

But if the Condition be to reinfeoff or pay 20*l.* and the Feoffee does one of them, it is a good Performance of the Condition.

And when it is made in the Copulative and Disjunctive both, it shall be taken in the Disjunctive only; as if a Lease be made to A. and B. his Wife, on Condition that A. and B. or any Child between them, shall so long live; this shall be taken in this Sense, if the Husband, Wife or Child shall so long live, so that the Lease shall not be determined by the Death of the Husband or Wife alone.

If there be two Provisoes in two several Indentures of Conveyance of several Manors to A. and B. that if the Feoffor pays or tenders 20*s.* to A. and B. or the Heirs of A. that the Conveyance shall be void, and A. dies; in this Case a Tender to B. is not sufficient, and it must be made to the Heir of A. and it must be 20*s.* for every Proviso: But otherwise it is of a collateral Act. 12 H. 7. 10. Co. Lit. 225. Perk. §. 746. Dyer 337, 372.

If the Words of a Condition be thus, that upon such a Contingent the Party shall enter and retain the Land until the Thing be done, &c. in this Case and by these Words the Estate is not not determined, as it is by these Words, (that the Estate shall be void, or that the Grantor shall re-enter, or the like.)

And in these Words there is a Difference also to be observed, for if the Words be, that upon such a Contingent the Estate shall cease and be void, and it be a Lease for Years to which the Condition is annexed, the Estate is ipso facto void without Entry or Claim, and can never be affirmed afterwards.

But if the Words of the Close of the Condition be, that the Feoffor, Lessor, &c. shall re-enter, without any other Words, although it be in a Lease for Years, yet the Lease is not void until he has made an actual Entry.

But in both Cases, if the Estate to be voided be an Estate in Fee or for Life, it is only voidable by the Breach of the Condition, and must be made void by Entry or Claim, and until this be done the Grantor can make no new Estate of the Land.

But in the first Case before the Party shall retain the Land and take the Profits of it in the Nature of a Pledge until the Thing be done which was agreed upon in the Condition, and then the other Party shall have the Land again. Co. Lit. 203, 204. 3 Co. 64. 11 H. 7. 21. Dyer 6. 127.

(ZZ) Where a Court of Equity will relieve against the Breach of a Condition.

THE Court of Chancery relieves against some Breaches of Conditions, &c. but not against the Breach of a Condition precedent: It will relieve to prevent the divesting of an Estate, though not to give an Estate that never vested by reason of the Non-performance of a precedent Condition. Yet in all Cases where the Matter of a Condition lies in Compensation, be the Condition precedent or subsequent, there ought to be Relief in Equity. 2 Vern. 339. Vern. 223.

On a Question, whether Relief might be given for the Breach of a Condition on Non-payment at the Day, &c. there being no Damage but what might be made up by Payment after with Damages: It was decreed that Relief should be had. And said, that it is now a general Rule of Equity, that no Advantage shall be taken of a Penalty or Forfeiture, where a Compensation may be made. Chan. Ca. 144. Max. Eq. 44, 45, &c.

A. devised Lands to J. S. upon Condition to pay 20000*l.* to his Heir at Law, viz. 1000*l.* per Ann. for the first sixteen Years, and 2000*l.* per Ann. after till the Whole shall be paid, and the Heir entered for Non-payment of the 1000*l.* per Ann. J. S. shall be relieved upon Payment of the 1000*l.* together with Interest from the Time it became payable, without any Deduction for Taxes; the Court declaring, that wherever they can give Satisfaction or Compensation for the Breach of a Condition they can relieve. Salk. 156. 2 Vern. 594.

The Lady Anne Knowls had devised to her by the Earl of N. Newport House, and other Tenements in the County of M. to her and the Heirs of her Body begotten, upon Condition that she married with the Consent of his Wife and of certain Trustees; and if she married without their Consent, or died without Issue of her Body, then the Premises were given over to G. P. and to his Heirs for ever. The Lady Anne married without such Consent, but afterwards the Trustees assented thereto: And now a Bill was brought to be relieved against the Condition, and the Breach of it: It was held, that this was a conditional Limitation, and not relievable in Equity; nor shall the subsequent Assent supply the want of Consent precedent, for after the Marriage Consent signifies no more in this Case.

The Lord Keeper declared he was clear of Opinion, that Equity ought not to interpose in this Case; and was glad to see that a Parent could settle his Estate, that it might be out of the Power of a Court of Equity; and so dismissed the Bill. Chan. Ca. 138, 141, 143, 144. Mod. 300. 2 Chan. Rep. 26.

A Man makes a Mortgage at six per Cent. with Proviso to take five if paid within three Months after. If there is a great Arrear, the Court will not relieve. Secus if but a short Time. Wil. 652.

Lands were settled by a Man on Trustees to such Uses as he by Deed or Will should appoint; and by his Will he devised his Estate to his eldest Daughter, upon Condition that she within six Months after his Death paid certain Sums to her other Sisters; and if she failed, then he gave the Lands to his second Daughter on the like Condition, &c. The Plaintiff failed in Payment of the Money within the Time limited, and was relieved; and the Court of Chancery may enlarge the Time of Payment although the Premises are devised over; and even in the Case of a Condition precedent. 2 Vern. 222.

E. R. devised his real Estate to his Kinsman Sir R. R. paying 1000*l.* a-piece to his two Daughters and Heirs at Law: Sir R. R. makes Default in Payment, and the Daughters bring Ejectment, and recover the Lands; then the Plaintiff claiming under Sir R. R. brought his his Bill to be relieved, and obtained a Decree for that Purpose, paying what remained unpaid of the 2000*l.* with Interest and Costs. Against this Decree it was objected, that Sir R. R. claiming only as a voluntary Devisee, Equity ought not to assist him against the Breach of the Condition, whereby to establish a Disinheritance of the Heir; but that he ought at his Peril to have taken Care to have performed the same, or the Law should take Place. Sed non allocatur. 2 Vern. 366.

A. bequeathed 2000*l.* to his Daughter, but if she should marry one B. that then the Legacy should be void: The Daughter having married B. contrary to the Will, her Brother pays her 800*l.* and she releases the Legacy; but afterwards brings a Bill to set aside the Release, and have her Legacy made good to her. It was decreed by the Lord Chancellor against the Plaintiff, who said, that where a Legacy is given to a Woman, upon Condition that she marries with the Consent of J. S. if the Legacy be not limited over, it is only in terrorem, and though she marries without Consent, it does not avoid the Legacy: But here in this Case the Father had revoked the Legacy, and she was only prohibited to marry with one Man by Name. Vern. 19, 20.

A. bequeathed 300*l.* to B. her Daughter, but if she married under twenty-one without Consent of the Executors, or major Part of them, the Legacy should go to the Children of her Sister, the Wife of C. and made C. and two others Executors; B. being at the House of C. there marries his Son by a former Wife, with his Privy, being under twenty-one; B. and her Husband bring a Bill for the Legacy; C. in Favour of his other Children insists that the Legacy is forfeited. The other Executors confessed they had Notice of the Courtship, and did not contradict or disapprove of it; and the 300*l.* was decreed the Plaintiffs, there being at least a tacit Consent. 2 Vern. 580.

A. devised to his Daughter M. 100*l.* to be paid by his Executors upon her Day of Marriage, or Age of twenty-five, which should first happen, upon Condition that she should marry with the Consent of such and such Persons; and if she marry without their Consent, then to have 50*l.* only, and no more, and gave the Residue of his personal Estate to N. M. married without such Consent before twenty; and it was held by the Master of the Rolls, that this was more than a Clause in terrorem, and that the Devise of the Surplus of the personal Estate was a Devise over of the 50*l.* on M.'s Disobedience. Abr. Ca. Eq. 112.

A. devised to B. who was his Heir at Law, all his Lands, &c. except, &c. charged with a Sum of Money payable to his Daughter at her Age of twenty Years, or Marriage, and devised the excepted Lands in Trust to be sold for Payment of Debts; provided that if his Daughter should marry in the Life-time of her Mother, without her Consent first had in Writing, then 500*l.* Part of the said Sum charged should cease, and should be applied towards Payment of his Debts charged on the said excepted Lands, and appoints his Wife Guardian of his Daughter, and makes her Executrix, and dies. The Daughter attains her Age of twenty-one, and without the Consent of her Mother intermarries with the Plaintiff. Per Lord Keeper, This is a Portion to be raised out of Lands, and therefore to be considered as Land; and though it be to go towards Payment of Debts on Breach of the Condition, and there appear one hundred and twenty Creditors concerned, yet none that are in Danger of losing their Debts; and it is then to be considered as it stands upon the Condition itself, and therefore the Plaintiff must have the whole Portion, for the Testator has appointed two Periods of Time to intitle her, viz. Marriage, or the Age of twenty-one; and as she has attained that Age, it becomes a vested and settled Interest in her, not to be divested by the Marriage without the Consent of the Mother, for that Consent cannot in any Reason be carried farther than during her Minority. Abr. Ca. Eq. 112, 113.

Where there is a Condition that a Feme shall marry with the Consent of two Executors, and one without Reason is against the Match, the Court will dispense with his Consent. 2 Wil. 628.

If the Father devises Lands in Trust to permit his Daughter to receive the Rents until her Marriage or Death, and in Case she marries with the Consent of Trustees, then to convey the Premises to her and her Heirs; but if she died before Marriage, or married without such Consent, then to convey to other Persons. The Daughter afterwards marries with the Consent of her Father, who settles Part of the Lands on her and her Husband, and dies; this Settlement shall be no Revocation of the Will, as to the Devise of the other Lands to her; and by the Father's consenting in his Life-time, the Condition is dispensed with. 2 Vern. 720.

Lands were settled in Trust for raising Portions for Daughters, payable upon their Marriages, with the Consent of Trustees; but if they married without such Consent, then to remain over to another, &c. The Daughters were old, and never intended to marry, but to lay out their Portions in a Purchase of Annuities for their Lives; and it was held that they should have their Portions immediately, upon giving Security to indemnify against the Persons to whom the Portions were delivered over. Nel. Chan. Rep. 62.—And in 2 Vern.

2 Vern. 452. the same Point was decreed upon giving Security to refund, if the Condition should be broken, though no Mention made that the Daughters did not intend to marry.

A. by Will gave his Grandaughter 200*l.* on Condition that she should continue with his Executors till she should be twenty-one; but if she should be taken from them by her Father, (who was a Papist) or be married against the Consent of his Executors, then he gave her but 10*l.* The Daughter was placed by the Executors with a Clergyman, who, before she was twenty-one, with the Consent of one of the Executors, permitted her to make a Visit to her Father; and he took that Opportunity to marry her to a Papist, and she was decreed the Legacy at the Rolls; but upon a Re-hearing, the Lord Keeper held that she should have but the 10*l.* only: And he said, that in this Case there was no Difference between a Condition that she shall not marry without Consent, and that she shall not marry against Consent. 2 Vern. 572. Q. Whether there was any Limitation over? Vide the next Paragraph but two?

If by Lease 9000*l.* is secured for a Feme Sole, in Case she does not marry contrary to the Liking of A. and if she does, then for such Person as A. shall nominate; and for want of such Nomination for A. and she marries without the Consent of A. yet he cannot dispose of the Lease otherwise than for her Benefit. Chan. Ca. 58. This Case is cited in 2 Vern. 575. where it is said, that there may be a Difference between a Condition that she shall not marry without Consent, and where it is that she shall not marry against Consent.

If a Portion of 8000*l.* be given to a Woman, provided she does not marry without the Consent of A. and if she does she shall have but 100*l.* per Ann. Yet if she marries without his Consent she shall be relieved, for the Proviso is in terrorem only. Chan. Ca. 22. 2 Chan. Rep. 23. Vern. 20. Nel. Chan. Rep. 145. 2 Vern. 293.

But it was said, that if the Portion upon such Marriage had been limited over to another, it had been otherwise. Chan. Ca. 22. 2 Chan. Rep. 95. 2 Vern. 357.

By the Law of England, a Devise upon Condition not to marry at all, or not to marry a Person of such a Profession or Calling, is void, whether there be a Limitation over or not; but if it be upon Condition not to marry a Papist, or a certain Person by Name, it may be good. Vern. 20.

But by the Civil Law, a Gift or Devise upon Condition not to marry without Consent is void, though there be a Limitation over, for it is a Maxim there that Matrimonium debet esse liberum.

A. devised his Lands to Trustees for three Years, and if within the three Years there happened a Marriage between G. who was a distant Relation, and of the same Blood, and W. his Niece and Heir at Law, then to W. for Life, Remainder to her first Son, &c. in Tail Male by G. to be begotten: But if the Marriage should not take Effect within the three Years, or if the Marriage should be before the Years of Consent, and not ratified when of competent Age, then to F. in Tail, who was likewise a remote Relation of the Testator, but not of the same Blood. The Marriage between G. and W. did not take Effect within the three Years, though several Proposals were within the Time made by her Friends to his Guardians, but not accepted by them; and though she herself had pressed the Match as far as the Modesty of her Sex would permit. She afterwards married B. and by her Bill prayed the Benefit of the Devise, the Condition being answered by her as far as she was capable, having married a Person, as was alledged, equal in Circumstances, &c. to G. But by the Advice of Holt and Treby Chief Justices, her Bill was dismissed. Between Bertie and Lord Faulkland, 3 Chan. Ca. 129.—In Salk. 231. it is said, that the Decree in this Case was reversed in the House of Lords. And in 2 Vern. 333. it is said, that the Matter was ended by Compromise.

A. devised to each of his Daughters 20000*l.* payable at twenty-five, but if they or either of them should marry before sixteen, or if the Marriage should be without the Consent of their Mother and Trustees, then they should lose 10000*l.* of the Portion, which should go to his other Children; one of them married before the Age of sixteen, and though it was with the Consent of all the Parties, yet it was held, that both the Terms of the Condition ought to have been observed. Lord Salisbury's Case, 2 Vent. 365. But in 2 Vern. 223. it is said, that the Father treated with the Lord Salisbury about the Marriage, though he died before it was solemnized; and there the Decree is quite contrary: And Skin. Rep. 285. agrees with this last Resolution.

If the Father makes a voluntary Settlement on his eldest Son in Tail Male, Remainder to a second Son, &c. in which there is a Proviso, that if the eldest did not pay the second 600*l.* at his Age of twenty-one Years, that then the Estate of the eldest should in Law and Equity cease; and the Father afterwards marries a second Wife, and by Deed, taking Notice of the former Settlement, and that the Son had not paid the Money, conveys the same Lands to the Use of his Children by his last Wife; the eldest Son shall not be relieved, lieved, the Conveyance being partly voluntary, and the Condition special, that his Estate should cease in Law and Equity, and the Son's Bill dismissed accordingly; and the rather, because the Son had set up a Lease against his Father, which was obtained by Surprise; and the Deed in Law was defective, and amounted only to a Declaration of Trust. Vern. 156.

A Man being seised in Fee of Lands of the Value of 10000*l.* settles it so, that in Case his eldest Daughter, within six Months after his Death, should pay 6000*l.* to the Use of his other four Daughters, then the eldest to have the Land; but if she failed in Payment, then the second to have the like Privilege; the six Months past without Payment, and the eldest Daughter having assigned over her Interest to one to whom she was indebted, by which the Estate was to go out of the Family, contrary to the Intention of the Donor; the Court took Time to consider, whether they could retrieve in this Case or not. 2 Vern. 166. This seems to be the same Case as in 2 Vern. 222. which see before, but differently stated.

If A. conveys Lands to B. &c. and their Heirs, upon Trust that if C. the Son of A. within six Months after the Death of A. should secure to Trustees 500*l.* for the younger Children of C. then after such Security given, to convey to C. and his Heirs, and until the Time for giving such Security, in Trust for the eldest Son of C. and in Default of such Security, to convey to such eldest Son and his Heirs, if C. dies before any such Security given; yet this Condition precedent being only in Nature of a Penalty, the Intent of the Trust shall be regarded, which was to secure 500*l.* to the younger Children. Chan. Ca. 89. 2 Mod. 307.

A. devised his Estate to B. in Trust for the Use and Benefit of P. but declared his Will to be, that P. should have no Benefit of the Devise, unless P.'s Father should settle on P. two full Thirds of the Estate settled on the Father on his Marriage; and in Default thereof the Estate should go to B. The Father made no Settlement on P. but devised all his Estate to him for Life, but subject to the Payment of Debts. It was adjudged, that this Estate was executed in P. by the Statute of Uses, and consequently that this is a Condition subsequent, yet the Court declared, that though Conditions subsequent, which are to divest an Estate, need not be literally performed; yet even in such Case if the Party cannot be compensated in Damages, it would be against Conscience to relieve; and therefore the Master was ordered to examine the Value of the Estate devised, and the Amount of the Debts wherewith that Estate was charged, and to report to the Court, whether after Debts paid there would be two full Thirds of the Father's Estate which was settled on him in Marriage, left to P. and upon a Re-hearing would not vary the former Order; declaring that the Difference was, whether this Case lay in Compensation, or not; and if a Compensation was made, he would relieve against the Breach of the Condition; but in Case a sufficient Compensation was not made, the Court would then consider further of it. Vern. 79, 167.— In 2 Vern. 222 & 338 the same Case is cited as a Case wherein there was Relief.

If a Feme Covert, having Power by Will to devise Lands, devises them to Executors to pay 500*l.* out of them to her Son; provided that if the Father does not give a sufficient Release of certain Goods to her Executors, that then the Devise of the 500*l.* should be void, and go to the Executors; and after her Death a Release is tendred to the Father, and he refuses; yet upon making the Release afterwards, the Money shall be paid to the Son; for it was said to be the standing Rule of the Court, that a Forfeiture should not bind where a Thing may be done after, or a Compensation made for it, as where the Condition is to pay Money, &c. and though it is generally binding where there is a Devise over, yet here it being to go to the Executors, it is no more than the Law implies. 2 Vent. 352.

Of the Warranty.

(A) Warranty what, and Warrantor and Warrantee who.

A Warranty is a Covenant real annexed to Lands or Tenements whereby the Covenantor (whether he be Feoffor, Grantor, Lessor, &c.) and his Heirs are bound to warrant and secure the same to the Covenantee and his Heirs, and that they shall quietly hold and enjoy the same, and either upon Voucher, or by Judgment in a Writ of Warrantia Charta, to yield other Lands and Tenements to the Value of those that shall be evicted by a former Title. Co. Lit. 365. a.

And he who makes his Warranty is called the Warrantor, and he to whom it is made is called the Warrantee.

(B) Kinds

(B) Kinds of Warranties.

Warranties are either general, viz. by one and his Heirs to another and his Heirs; or General or particular, and restrained to a certain Person.

And there are two Kinds of Warrants annexed to Freeholds and Inheritances.

First, A Warranty in Deed, or an express Warranty, which is when a Fine or Feoffment In Deed, in Fee, or a Lease for Life is made by Deed, which has an express Clause of Warranty contained in it, as when a Conusor, Feoffor or Lessor, covenants to warrant the Land to the Conusee, Feoffee or Lessee.

Secondly, A Warranty in Law, or an implied Warranty, which is when it is not expressed In Law, by the Party, but tacite made and implied by the Law.

A Warranty in Deed is either lineal or collateral.

A lineal Warranty is a Covenant real annexed to the Land by him which either was Lineal Owner or might have inherited the Land, and from whom his Heir lineal or collateral might by Possibility have claimed the Land as Heir from him that made the Warranty.

A collateral Warranty is made by him that had no Right or Possibility of Right to the Collateral Land, and is collateral to the Title of the Land.

Also there is a Warranty which commences by Disseisin or Wrong.

Note, That all these Things here are to be applied to Warranties of Lands and concerning or Wrong, By Disseisin Freeholds and Inheritances, for there is a Warranty of Goods and Chattels in Contracts.

(C) What Words and Clauses in a Deed will make a Warranty.

THE Words Dedi & Concessi, or Dedi only in a Feoffment make a Warranty, when an Estate in Fee or Inheritance passes by the Deed.

But the Word Concessi only, or Demisi & Concessi, do not make such a Warranty.

And by Force of the Statutes of Bigamis, Chap. 6. Dedi is made an express Warranty during the Life of the Feoffor. Co. Lit. 383, 384. 4 Co. 81.

The Word Warrantizo, or Warrant, is the only apt and effectual Word to make an express Warranty, or a Warranty in Deed, and therefore this Word only is used in Fines.

And the Words Defendo, or Acquitto, although they are commonly used in Deeds, yet of themselves without the other will not make a Warranty. Lit. §. 733. 5 Co. 17, 18.

If a Man by Deed warrants Land to J. S. and his Heirs, and the Warrantor does not bind his Heirs to the Warrantee; or does not warrant to J. S. and his Heirs, but to J. S. only; or warrants to J. S. and his Assigns, and not to J. S. and his Heirs; or binds himself and his Heirs to warrant the Land, but does not say how long, nor against whom; these are good Warranties. Dyer 42. Co. Lit. 383.

The Warranty is usually put before the rest of the Covenants. See several Forms in the Second Part.

(D) What shall be said a good Warranty in Deed, or not; and how it shall bar and bind.

TO every good Warranty in Deed that must bar and bind, these Things are requisite:

First, That the Person that warrants, be a Person able; for if an Infant makes a Feoffment in Fee of Land, and thereby binds him and his Heirs to warrant the Land, in this Case although the Feoffment be only voidable, yet the Warranty is void.

Secondly, That the Warranty be made by Deed in Writing; for if a Man makes a Feoffment by Word, and by Word binds him and his Heirs to warrant the Land; this is not a good Warranty.

So if a Man gives Lands to another by his last Will, and thereby binds him and his Heirs to warrant it; this Warranty, although the Will be in Writing, is void. Co. Lit. 367, 386. Lit. §. 703.

Thirdly, That there be some Estate to which the Warranty is annexed that may support it; for if one covenants to warrant Land to another, and makes him no Estate, or makes him an Estate that is not good, and covenants to warrant the Thing granted; in these Cases the Warranty is void. 10 Co. 96. Co. Lit. 384.

Fourthly, That the Estate to which the Warranty is annexed, be such an Estate as is able to support it, and therefore that it be a Lease for Life at the least; for if one makes a Lease for Years of Land, and binds himself and his Heirs to warrant the Land; this is no good Warranty, neither will it have the Effect of a Warranty; but this may amount to Covenant, on which an Action of Covenant may be brought. Co. Lit. 378. 26 H. 8. 9.

Fifthly,

Fifthly, That the Warranty descends upon him that is Heir of the whole Blood by the Common Law to him that made the Warranty, and not upon an another; for if Tenant in Tail in Borough English discontinues the Tail, and has Issue two Sons, and the Uncle releases to the Discontinuee with Warranty, and dies; this is no good Warranty to bind the Son.

So if in this Case Tenant in Tail discontinues the Tail with Warranty, &c. having two Sons, and dies seised of other Lands in the same Borough in Fee-simple, to the Value of the Land in Tail; the younger Son is not barred by this Warranty. Co. Lit. 12. Lit. §. 735.

So if one gives his Land to the eldest Son, and the Heirs Male of his Body, the Remainder to the second Son, &c. and the eldest Son aliens with Warranty, having Issue a Daughter, and dies; this is not a good Warranty to bar the second Son. Lit. §. 161.

So if Tenant in Tail has Issue two Daughters by divers Venters, and dies, and they enter, and a Stranger disseises them, and one of them releases all her Right, and binds her and her Heirs to warrant it; in this Case the Warranty is not good to bar the Sister: But if they had been by one Venter, contra. Lit. §. 737.

So if two Brothers be by Demi-Venters, and the Eldest releases with Warranty to the Disseisor of the Uncle, and dies without Issue, and the Younger dies; this is no good Warranty to bar the younger Brother, for a Warranty must evermore descend upon him that is Heir at the Common Law to him that made it. Co. Lit. §. 387. Lit. §. 718.

Sixthly, That he that is Heir do continue to be so, and that neither the Descent of the Title nor the Warranty be interrupted, for if one binds him and his Heirs to Warranty, and after is attainted of Treason or Felony, and dies; this Warranty does not bind his Heir.

So if Tenant in Tail be disseised, and after releases to the Disseisor with Warranty, and after the Tenant in Tail is attainted of Felony, and has Issue, and dies; this Warranty will not bind the Issue. Lit. §. 745, 746.

Seventhly, That the Estate of Freehold that is to be barred be put to a Right before or at the Time of the Warranty made, and that he to whom the Warranty does descend have then but a Right to the Land; for a Warranty will not bar an Estate of Freehold or Inheritance in esse, in Possession, in Reversion or Remainder, that is not displaced and put to a Right before or at the Time of the Warranty made, though after at the Time of the Descent of the Warranty, the Estate of Freehold or Inheritance be displaced and devested.

And therefore if there be Father and Son, and the Son has a Rent-service, Suit to a Mill, Rent-charge, Rent-seck, Common of Pasture, or other Profit Appreder out of Land of the Father, and the Father makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and dies; this shall not bar the Son of the Rent, Common, &c.

And although the Son after the Feoffment with Warranty, and before the Death of the Father had been disseised, and so being out of Possession, the Warranty has descended upon him, yet this Warranty should not bind him.

So if my collateral Ancestor releases to my Tenant for Life with Warranty, and dies, and this Warranty descends upon me; this shall not bind my Reversion or Remainder.

But if in the Case before the Son be disseised of the Rent, &c. and affirms himself to be disseised by the bringing of an Assise, (for otherwise he shall not be said to be out of Possession of a Rent, or the like) and after the Father releases with Warranty, and dies; in this Case the collateral Warranty shall bar and bind the Son of his Rent, &c.

And if in the last Case my Tenant for Life be disseised, and my Ancestor releases to the Disseisor with Warranty, and dies; this is a good Warranty to bind and bar me. 10 Co. 96, 97. Co. Lit. 388.

Eighthly, That the Warranty does take Effect in the Life-time of the Ancestor, and that he be bound by it; for the Heir shall never be bound by an express Warranty, but where the Ancestor was bound by the same Warranty, and therefore a Warranty made by Will is void. Lit. §. 734.

Ninthly, That the Heir claim in the same Right that the Ancestor does; for if one be a Successor only in Case of Corporation, he shall not be bound by the Warranty of a natural Ancestor. Co. Lit. 370.

Tenthly, That the Heir that is to be barred by the Warranty be of full Age at the Time of the Fall of the Warranty; for if my Ancestor makes a Feoffment, or a Release with Warranty, and at this Time I am within Age, and after he dies, and the Warranty descends upon me within Age; this Warranty shall not bind me: But if I become of Age after the Warranty of my Ancestor, and before his Death, in this Case the Warranty may bar me.

And in the first Case it will bar me also whilst it is in Force; but I may by my Entry avoid it.

And the same Law is of a Woman Covert.

And yet if the Entry of an Infant or Woman Covert be not lawful when the Warranty descends; the Warranty shall bind them as well as any other, for such a Warranty cannot be avoided but by Entry and avoiding the Estate.

And where the Husband is within Age at the Time of the Descent of a Warranty to his Wife, and the Entry of the Wife is taken away, there the Warranty shall bind the Wife. Lit. §. 726. Co. 67, 140. Co. Lit. 380.

If Lands be given to A. for Life, and after to the next Heir Male of A. and the Heirs Male of the Body of that Heir Male, and A. having Issue B. makes a Feoffment of the Land with Warranty to J. S. this is a good Warranty, and a Bar to the Issue, for a Man may be barred of his Right by a Warranty which he could never avoid; as where Lessee for Life is disseised, and a Collateral Ancestor of the Lessor does release to the Disseisor with Warranty, and dies, and this does descend upon the Lessor; by this he is barred. Co. 66.

44 Ed. 3. 30. 44 Aff. pl. 35.

A Warranty made for Life or in Tail is good, and shall bind for so long Time; as if Tenant in Tail of Land lets it for Life, the Remainder to another in Fee, and a Collateral Ancestor confirms the Estate of the Tenant for Life, and dies, and the Tenant in Tail has Issue; this is a Bar of the Issue during the Life of the Tenant for Life; and in this Case upon a Voucher the Recovery in Value shall be put for Life only. Lit. §. 738. Co. Lit. 387.

If one makes a Gift in Tail, and grants to warrant the Land given according to the Gift; the Warranty is good no longer than the Estate lasts.

And no Warranty that a Donor can make in this Case can bar him of the Land, if the Donee dies without Issue, and the Estate determines. 10 Co. 96.

And where a Warranty bars, it is Entry, and extends to all the Land, and to all Persons upon whom it descends, and is a Bar of all the Right that every one of them has in the Land; so that if they have all Right jointly or severally, or one only has all the Right, and the Rest none, he that has the Right is barred.

And therefore, if Lands be given to A. and the Heirs of his Body, and for want of such Issue, to E. his Sister and the Heirs of her Body, and A. makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and dies without Issue, having two Sisters E. and S. this is a Bar to E. for the Whole, although the Warranty descends on her and another. 8 Co. 52. Co. Lit. 373.

If there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to his Son and Heir apparent in Tail, and the Father makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and dies; in this Case this is a good Warranty, and will not bar the Son, although it be made on Purpose to bar him.

But if by Agreement and Covin between him and A. and B. he makes a Lease to A. who makes a Feoffment in Fee to B. to whom the Father releases with Warranty, thinking by a Collateral Warranty to bar his Son; this is no Bar, for this Warranty began by Disseisin: And if in the first Case the Son enters in the Life-time of the Father upon the Land, he avoids the Warranty. 5 Co. 79.

If the Father be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to the next Heir Male of the Father, and to the Heirs Male of the Body of such next Heir Male, and the Father makes a Feoffment to J. S. with Warranty, and dies; it seems this is a good Warranty to bar the Heir; and in this Case the Heir cannot enter in the Life-time of his Father, for he cannot be Heir Male to his Father until his Father's Death. Co. 66.

If Tenant for Life makes a Feoffment with Warranty, or be disseised, and a Release with Warranty, and he in Reversion being Heir to the Tenant, and does not enter in his Life-time, but suffers the Lessee for Life to die, and thereby the Warranty to fall and descend upon him; in this Case the Warranty generally is a Bar without any Assets.

But if he that does so alien, &c. be Tenant by the Curtesy, this is no Bar to the Heir without Assets in Fee-simple from the Tenant by the Curtesy, and then it is a Bar for so much.

And if the Heir for want of such Assets at the Time does recover the Land from his Mother, and after Assets does descend from the Father; in this Case the Tenant shall recover the same Land of the Mother again.

And if she who so aliens, &c. to be Tenant for Life of Inheritance or Purchase of her deceased Husband, or given unto her by any of the Ancestors of her Husband, or by any other Person seised to the Use of her Husband, or of any of his Ancestors; in this Case her Alienation, Release or Confirmation with Warranty, shall not bind the Heir whether he has Assets or not.

But if a Man conveys Lands to the Use of himself, B. his Wife, and the Heirs of his Body, and they have Issue C. and the Father dies, and C. disseises his Mother, or gets a Feoffment from a Disseisor, and then suffers a Recovery with a single Voucher, and after the Wife releases to the Recoverer with Warranty; in this Case the Warranty is a Bar to the Issue, and not void by the Statute of 11 H. 7.—Co. Lit. 365, 366, 367. Co. 67. Stat. Glouc. c. 1. §. 6. Lit. §. 724, 725. Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. 3 Co. 58.

If the Husband that is seised of Lands in the Right of his Wife levies a Fine, or makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and the Wife dies, and then the Husband dies; this Warranty shall not bind the Heir of the Wife without Assets of other Land in Fee-simple from the Father, although he be not Tenant by the Curtesy, but it is before her Death that he makes the Estate and the Warranty.

But a Fine levied by the Husband and Wife, in this Case is a good Bar to the Heir. Co. Lit. 366, 381. Stat. Glouc. c. 6. Lit. §. 332.

If Tenant in Tail that is in of another Estate, i. e. either by Disseisin, or by the Feoffment of a Disseisor, suffers a common Recovery, and a collateral Ancestor of the Tenant in Tail releases with Warranty to the Recoverer, and after the Recoverer makes a Feoffment to Uses executed by the Statute of 27 H. 8. and after the collateral Ancestor dies; in this Case although the Estate of the Land be transferred in the Post before the Descent of the Warranty, yet it shall bind.

So if he to whom the Warranty is made suffers a common Recovery, and after the Ancestor dies.

But if Tenant in Dower enfeoffs a Villain with Warranty, and the Lord of the Villain enters into the Land before the Descent of the Warranty, and after the Woman dies; this Warranty shall not bind the Right of the Heir.

So if a collateral Warranty be made to a Bastard and his Heirs, and living the Ancestor, the Bastard dies without Issue, and the Lord by Escheat enters, and after the Ancestor dies; this Warranty does not bind. 3 Co. 62. 22 Aff. pl. 73. 29 Aff. pl. 34.

A collateral Warranty may descend upon an Issue in Tail before the Right descend, and yet be good, with this Difference, that the Right be in esse in some of the Ancestors of the Heir at the Time of the Descent of the Warranty; as,

If a Tenant in Tail discontinues the Tail in Fee, and the Discontinuee is disseised, and the Brother of the Tenant in Tail releases all his Right, &c. to the Disseisor with Warranty, and dies without Issue, and the Tenant in Tail has Issue, and dies; in this Case the Issue is barred: But it is otherwise where the Right is not in esse in the Heir, or any of his Ancestors at the Time of the Fall of the Warranty, as if there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and after the Feoffee purchases the Seignior, and after the Tenant ceases; in this Case the Lord shall have a Cessavit, for a Warranty never bars any Right that commences after the Warranty. Co. Lit. 388.

(E) What shall be a good Warranty in Law, and how it shall bar and bind.

A Warranty in Law may be good in its Creation, although it be made without Deed; for if a Man by his last Will and Testament devises Lands to another Man for Life, or in Tail, rendring Rent; to this Estate there is a Warranty in Law annexed. Co. Lit. 384, 386.

The Words Dedi & Concessi, or Dedi only in a Feoffment, make a good Warranty in Law. But the Word Concessi only in Fine or Feoffment, does not make a Warranty in Law.

And although there be an express Warranty in the Deed, yet this does not take away the implied Warranty of the Law.

And this Warranty in Law by Dedi & Concessi, or by Dedi only, is a general Warranty during the Life of the Feoffor. Co. Lit. 384. F. N. B. 134. 4 Co. 80.

Every Partition and Exchange implies in it, and has annexed to it a special Warranty in Law. Co. Lit. 102, 384.

Every Tenure by Homage Ancestrel, where a Tenant and his Ancestors have held Land of a Lord and his Ancestors Time out of Mind, by Homage, has a Warranty in Law annexed to it, by which the Lord is bound to warrant to the Tenant and his Heirs. 4 Co. 80.

If one makes a Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life of Land by Deed or without Deed, reserving a Rent, or of a Rent-service by Deed; in these Cases there is annexed an implied Warranty against the Donor or Lessor, his Heirs and Assigns. Co. Lit. 334.

When Dower is assigned to a Woman, there is a Warranty in Law included, which is that the Tenant in Dower being impleaded, shall vouch and recover in Value a third Part of the two Parts whereof she is dowable. Co. Lit. 384.

And this Warranty in Law is of the Nature of a lineal Warranty, and shall bind as a lineal Warranty only, for it never bars any collateral Title.

And

And hence it is, that this Warranty and Affets in some Cases is a good Bar; as if a Tenant in Tail exchanges for other Lands which are descended to the Issue, and he has accepted of them, or if not, that other Lands are descended to him.

But if Tenant in Tail of Lands makes a Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life, rendering Rent, and dies; this is no Bar.

And yet if other Affets in Fee-simple descend, this Warranty in Law and Affets is a good Bar. Co. Lit. 384.

(F) What shall be said a lineal Warranty, and how such Warranty will bar.

IF the Case be so that if no such Warranty had been made by the Father or other Ancestor, the Right of the Lands or Tenements so warranted had or might have descended or come from the same Ancestor, and that from and by him that made the same Warranty, such a Warranty is a lineal Warranty. Lit. §. 703, 711.

As if a Man be seised in Fee of Land, and makes a Feoffment of it to another, and binds him and his Heirs to warrant the Land, and has Issue, and dies, and the Warranty descends upon the Issue; this is a lineal Warranty, for if none such had been, the Right of the Land had descended to him as Heir to his Father, and he must have made his Descent by him.

And if there be a Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Grandfather be disseised, and the Father releases to the Disseisor being in Possession with Warranty, &c. and dies, and after the Grandfather dies; this is a lineal Warranty to the Son, and although in this Case the Warranty descends before the Right, yet it is a good Bar. Co. Lit. 371.

And if there be two Brothers, and the Father is disseised, and the eldest Brother releases with Warranty, and dies without Issue, and after the Father dies, and the Warranty descends to the younger Son; this is a lineal Warranty to him. Lit. §. 707.

And if Lands be given to A. for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs, and he makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and dies; this is but a lineal Warranty: And if there be two Parceners, and the Eldest enters into all the Land to her own Use, and then makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this as to her own Part is a lineal Warranty, but as to her Sister's Part it is a collateral Warranty. Co. 66, 67.

And in every Case where one demands an Estate-tail, if any Ancestor of the Issue in Tail, whether he had Possession of the Land or not, has made a Warranty, and if the Issue, that was to bring a Writ of Formedon, may or might have by Possibility, by some Matter that might have been done, conveyed to himself a Title by Force of the Gift by him that made the Warranty; this is a lineal Warranty.

As if a Man be seised of Land of an Estate-tail to him and the Heirs of his Body begotten, and makes a Feoffment of it, and binds him and his Heirs to warrant it, and has Issue, and dies; this Warranty descending upon the Issue is a lineal Warranty. 8 Co. 12. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Warranty.

And if Lands be given to one and the Heirs Male of his Body, and for want of such Issue to the Heirs Female of his Body, and the Donee makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and has Issue a Son and a Daughter, and dies; this Warranty is lineal to the Son, and if the Son dies without Issue Male, it is a lineal Warranty from the Father to the Daughter.

But if the Brother in his Life-time releases to the Discontinuee, &c. with Warranty, &c. and after dies without Issue; this is a collateral Warranty to the Daughter. Lit. §. 719.

If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife and the Heirs of their two Bodies engendered, and they have Issue, and the Husband discontinues, and dies, and after the Wife releases with Warranty, and dies; this is a lineal Warranty. Lit. §. 714.

And if Lands be given to a Man and Woman unmarried, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and they intermarry, and are disseised, and the Husband releases with Warranty, and dies, and after the Wife dies; this is a lineal Warranty to the Issue for all the Land. Co. Lit. 375.

And if Tenant in Tail has Issue three Sons, and discontinues, and the middle Brother releases with Warranty, and dies without Issue, and after the Father dies, and after the eldest Brother dies without Issue, so that the Warranty descends to the younger Brother; this is a lineal Warranty to him. Lit. §. 718.

And if a Father gives Land to his eldest Son and the Heirs Male of his Body, &c. the Remainder to the second Son, &c. if the eldest Son aliens in Fee with Warranty, &c. and has Issue Female, and dies without Issue Male; this is a lineal Warranty to the second. Ibid.

And in all these Cases of a lineal Warranty, if the Right of the Estate to be barred be the Right of an Estate in Fee-simple, it is a Bar without any Affets.

For

For the Rule is, that as to him that demands a Fee-simple by any of his Ancestors, he shall be barred and bound by a lineal Warranty that descends upon him, unless he be restrained by some Statute.

But it does not bind the Right of an Estate in Fee and Tail without Affets.

For in that Case the Rule is, that as to him that demandeth Fee-tail by Writ of Formedon in the Descender, he shall not be barred by a lineal Warranty, unless he has Affets by Descent in Fee-simple of other Land from the Ancestor that made the Warranty; and then it is a bar for so much only as descends to him, and no more. Lit. §. 711, 712. Doct. & Stud. 152. 7 Co. 153. 8 Co. 52.

And yet if the Issue in Tail aliens the Affets descended, and dies; the Issue of that Issue is not barred by this Warranty and Affets. Co. Lit. 393.

But if the Issue to whom the Warranty descends brings his Writ of Formedon, and is barred by Judgment by reason of the Warranty and Affets; in this Case although he aliens the Affets afterwards, yet the Estate-tail is barred for ever. Ibid.

(G) What shall be said a collateral Warranty, and how such a Warranty shall bar.

IF Tenant for Life aliens in Fee with Warranty, or be disseised and releases to the Disseisor with Warranty, and dies, and the Warranty descends on him in Reversion or Remainder; this is a collateral Warranty.

So if the Lessee for Life be disseised, and a collateral Ancestor of him in Reversion releases with Warranty, and dies, and the Warranty descends on him in Reversion; this is a collateral Warranty, for that is collateral which is collateral to the Title of the Land. 2 Co. 67. 21 H. 7. 10. Lit. §. 725.

And if a Man seised of Lands in Fee has Issue two Sons, and the Father dies, and the younger Son enters, and aliens the Land with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this is no collateral Warranty that is descended on the elder Brother. Lit. §. 707. Doct. & Stud. 152.

And if a Son be disseised of his own Land, and brings an Assise, and after the Father releases to the Disseisor with Warranty, and dies; this Warranty that descends to the Son is a collateral Warranty. 21 H. 7. 10.

And if a Father disseises his Son of the Land he has of his own Purchase, without any Intent to alien afterwards and to bar his Son, and after he makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and dies before the Entry of his Son, so that the Warranty descends; this is a collateral Warranty. Lit. §. 707.

If there be Father and two Sons, and the Father is disseised, and the younger Son releases Warranty to the Disseisor, and dies without Issue, and then the Father dies; in this Case the Warranty now descended is a collateral Warranty.

If a Lease be made for Life to the Father, the Remainder to his next Heir, and the Father is disseised, and releases with Warranty, and dies; this is a collateral Warranty to the Heir.

And if the Husband discontinues the Right of his Wife, and an Ancestor collateral to the Wife to whom she is Heir releases with Warranty, and dies, and after the Husband dies; this is a collateral Warranty, and a Bar to her. Co. Lit. 388.

And in every Case where a Man demands an Estate-tail by a Writ of Formedon, if an Ancestor of the Issue in Tail, which has or has not Possession, makes a Warranty, and the Issue that is Demandant cannot by any Possibility that may be done convey to him a Title by Force of the Gift, from and by him that made the Warranty; this is a collateral Warranty; as if Tenant in Tail discontinues the Tail, and dies, having Issue, and the Uncle of the Issue releases with Warranty to the Discontinuee, and dies without Issue, so that the Warranty descends on the Issue in Tail; this is a collateral Warranty.

So if such a Discontinuee makes a Feoffment in Fee, or be disseised, and the Uncle releases with Warranty to the Disseisor or Feoffee, and dies without Issue, and the Warranty descends on the Issue; this is a collateral Warranty. Lit. §. 709. Plow. 234. 10 Co. 96. Kelw. 78.

If a Tenant in Tail has three Sons, and discontinues the Tail in Fee, and the middle Brother releases to the Discontinuee with Warranty, and after the Tenant in Tail dies; this is a collateral Warranty to the elder Brother. Lit. §. 708.

If one has Issue three Sons, and gives Land to the eldest and the Heirs of his Body, and for want of such Issue, to the middle and the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder to the third and the Heirs of his Body, and the eldest discontinues the Tail in Fee with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this is collateral to the middle Son.

In the same Manner it is in Case where the middle Son has the same Land by Force of the same Remainder, because his elder Brother made no Discontinuance, but died without Issue of his Body, and after the middle Brother makes a Discontinuance with Warranty, &c. and dies without Issue; this is a collateral Warranty to the youngest Son.

And in this Case if any of the Sons be disseised, and the Father that made the Gift, &c. releases to the Disseisor all his Right with Warranty; this is a collateral Warranty to that Son upon whom the Warranty does descend. Lit. §. 716.

If Lands be given to A. and the Heirs of his Body, and for want of such Issue to E. his Sister and the Heirs of her Body, and A. makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and dies without Issue, having two Sisters E. and S. this is a collateral Warranty to E. 8 Co. 52. Lit. §. 713.

If Lands be given to a Man and the Heirs of his Body begotten, who takes a Wife and has Issue a Son by her, and the Husband discontinues the Tail in Fee, and dies, and after the Wife releases to the Discontinuee with Warranty, and dies, and the Warranty descends to the Son; this is collateral to him.

If Tenant in Tail discontinues the Tail in Fee, and the Discontinuee is disseised, and the Brother of the Tenant in Tail releases to the Disseisor with Warranty in Fee, and dies without Issue, and the Tenant in Tail has Issue, and dies; this is collateral as to the Issue.

If Tenant in Tail has Issue two Daughters, and dies, and the elder enters into all to her own Use, and therefore makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this Warranty as to the other Sister's Part is collateral, but not as to her own. Lit. §. 701.

If the Husband and Wife, Tenant in special Tail, have Issue a Daughter, and the Wife dies, and the Husband by a second Wife has Issue another Daughter; and discontinues in Fee, and dies, and a collateral Ancestor of the Daughter's releases to the Discontinuee with Warranty, and dies, and the Warranty descends upon both the Daughters; this is a collateral Warranty to them.

If Lands be given to one and the Heirs Male of his Body, and for want of such Issue to the Heirs Female of his Body, and the Father dies, and the Brother releases with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this is collateral to the Daughter. Co. Lit. 373.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder to another in Fee, and a collateral Ancestor confirms the Estate of Tenant for Life with Warranty, and dies, and after the Tenant in Tail dies having Issue; this is a good binding collateral Warranty during the Estate for Life. Lit. §. 738.

And in all these and such like Cases of a collateral Warranty, whether the Right be the Right of an Estate-tail, or the Right of an Estate in Fee-simple that is to be barred, it is a Bar without any Affets; for in this Case the Rule is, that a collateral Warranty is a Bar to him that demands Fee-simple, and also to him that demands Fee-tail, without any other Descent of Lands in Fee-simple, so that the Heir on whom the same Warranty is descended can never have the Land so warranted whilst the Warranty continues in Force, but is bound thereby, except it be in some special Cases restrained by Act of Parliament; as where the Husband alone during his Wife's Life, or after her Death, being Tenant by the Curtesy, makes a Fine by Fine or Deed of his Wife's Land which she has by Descent or Purchase, with Warranty; this will not bar her Heir without Affets of other Lands in Fee-simple descended from the same Ancestor that made the Warranty.

Or where a Wife after her Husband's Death shall alone, or with her succeeding Husband, alien, release, confirm or discontinue with Warranty, the Land she holdeth in Dower, or in Tail, of the Gift of her former Husband, or any of his Ancestors; this Warranty is voidable, and will not bind with Affets. Lit. §. 712, 738. Co. Lit. 374, 365. Stat. Glouc. c. 3. Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. 10 Co. 66.

Thus the Common Law is as to collateral Warranties; but by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. §. 21. All Warranties which shall be made after the first Day of Trinity Term 1705. by any Tenant for Life, of any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, the same descending or coming to any Person in Reversion or Remainder, shall be void and of no Effect; and likewise all collateral Warranties which shall be made after the said Trinity Term, of any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, by any Ancestor who has no Estate of Inheritance in Possession in the same, shall be void against his Heir.

(H) What shall be said a Warranty that begins by Disseisin, Abatement or Intrusion, and what is the Effect thereof.

IF the Son purchases Land, &c. and after lets it to his Father, or any other Ancestor, for Years, or at Will, and he by his Deed enfeoffs a Stranger, and that with Warranty, and after dies, whereby the Warranty descends upon the Heir; this Warranty commences by Disseisin.

So if Tenant by Elegit, Statute-Merchant, Guardian in Chivalry, or Socage, or because of Nurture, makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and this Warranty descends on his Heir; it does not commence by Disseisin.

So if one who has no Right at all enters into my Land, and makes a Feoffment to another with Warranty.

So if one Coparcener enters into the whole Land, and makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty; this Warranty as to the one Moiety begins by Disseisin.

So if Father and Son purchase Lands to them jointly, &c. and the Father aliens the Whole to another with Warranty, &c. and after the Father dies; this Warranty as to the one Moiety begins by Disseisin.

But if the Purchase be to them two and the Heirs of the Son, it is otherwise; for if the Son enters in the Life-time of the Father, the Warranty is avowed for all, but if he does not enter, then as to the Father's Moiety it is a collateral Warranty.

And if the Purchase be to the Father and Son and the Heirs of the Father, and the Father aliens with Warranty, &c. in this Case the Warranty is good for the Whole. Lit. §. 699, 700, 701, 702. Finch 82. Co. Lit. 367.

If the Father be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to his Son and Heir in Fee, and the Father by Covin and Consent, on Purpose to bar the Heir by a collateral Warranty, makes a Lease for Years, to the End that the Lessee should make a Feoffment in Fee, that the Father may release to the Feoffee with Warranty; and all this is done accordingly, and the Father dies, and the Warranty descends to the Son; in this Case the Warranty shall be said to begin by Disseisin.

But if the Father in this Case makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and dies; this is a good Warranty to bind the Son although it be done on Purpose to bar him.

So if one Brother makes a Gift in Tail to another, and the Uncle disseises the Donee, and enfeoffs another with Warranty, the Uncle dies, and the Warranty descends on the Donor, and then the Donee dies without Issue; this Warranty begins by Disseisin.

So if the Father and Son and a third Person be Jointenants in Fee, and the Father makes a Feoffment in Fee of the Whole with Warranty, and dies, and then the Son dies; in this Case, as to the Part of the third Person, and to the Part of the Son, the Warranty shall be said to begin by Disseisin.

But Releases at this Day by a Tenant for Life, to a Disseisor or any other without Covin, although it be to the Intent to bar him in Reversion, shall bar him; for Intent without Covin and Disseisin shall not avoid a Warranty.

Warranties which begin by Disseisin have these Qualities:

First, For the most part the Disseisin is done immediately to the Heir that is bound by the Warranty.

Secondly, The Warranty and Disseisin are simul and semel.

And yet if a Man disseise another with Intent to make a Feoffment with Warranty, although the Feoffment be made twenty Years after the Disseisin, yet it shall be said to be a Warranty that begins by Disseisin.

But in all these Cases of Warranties that begin by Disseisin, this is the Rule, that they are altogether void and without Force as to all others but to the Parties themselves that make them, and therefore they do not bar or bind any others at all of their Right that have any.

And the same Law is of a Warranty that begins by Abatement or Intrusion; that is, when an Abatement or Intrusion is made on Purpose to make a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty.

And so also it is where the Tenant dies without Heir, and an Ancestor of the Lord enters before the Entry of the Lord, and makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty; in this Case this shall not bind the Lord, because it begins by Wrong. 5 Co. 80. Co. Lit. 366, 367.

(I) To what Things a Warranty may be annexed and extended, and to what not, and how.

A Warranty in Deed may be annexed to Estates of Inheritance or Freehold, and that not only of corporeal Things which pass by Livery, as Houses, Lands, or the like, but also of incorporeal Things which lie in Grant, as Advowsons, Rents, Commons, Estovers, and the like, which issue out of Lands or Tenements, and that not only to Inheritances in esse, but also to such as are newly created; as a Man (some say) may grant a Rent, &c. de novo, out of the Land for Life, in Tail, or in Fee, with Warranty.

So a Warranty in Law may extend to a Rent newly created, and therefore if such a Rent be granted in Exchange for an Acre of Land; this Exchange and Warranty thereunto annexed is good.

But a Warranty may not be annexed to an Estate or Lease for Years, although it be a Lease of one thousand Years, nor to any other Chattel; and therefore in all Actions in which Lessee for Years may have, as Trespass, &c. a Warranty cannot be pleaded in Bar. Co. Lit. 366, 389.

A Warranty may be made upon any Kind of Conveyance, as upon Fines, Feoffments, Gifts, &c. also a Warranty may be made by and upon Releases and Confirmations made to the Tenant of the Land, although he that makes the Release or Confirmation has no Right to the Land, &c. and yet some say, that by a Release or Confirmation where there is no Estate created, or Transmutation of the Possession, a Warranty cannot be made to the Assignee.

But if A. be seised of Land in Fee, and B. releases to him, or confirms his Estate in Fee with Warranty to him, his Heirs and Assigns; in this Case the Warranty is good; and so it is in the Case last before, and both the Party himself and the Assignee may vouch. Co. Lit. 372, 385. Lit. §. 738, 745, 706.

(K) The Fruit and Effect of a Warranty in Deed, and what Use may be made of it.

THE Fruit and Effect of a Warranty in Deed is, that it always concludes and bars the Warrantor himself of the Land so warranted for ever; so that all his present and future Rights that he has or may have therein are hereby extinct.

And therefore if the Father be disseised, and the Son in his Life-time release all his Right to the Land to the Disseisor, and makes a Warranty of the Land in the Deed, and then the Father dies, and the Right of the Land descends to the Son; in this Case although the Release does not bar the Son, yet the Warranty bars him.

And for the most part also it concludes and bars the Heirs of him that made the Warranty, to whom the same Warranty descends, to demand the same Land against the Warranty, for if it be a lineal Warranty, it is a Bar of an Estate in Fee-simple without any Assets, i. e. without any other Land descended to him in Fee-simple from the same Ancestor that made the Warranty: And with Assets it is a Bar of an Estate in Tail.

And if it be a collateral Warranty, it is with or without Assets a Bar of an Estate in Fee-simple or Fee-tail, and all Possibility of Right thereunto; and yet so as it does not pass any Estate or Right, but only binds the Right so long as the Warranty is in Force, for if the Warranty be avoided, the Right may be revived. Co. Lit. 265, 372, 365, 384. 4 Co. 121. 10 Co. 97.

But neither the lineal or collateral Warranty can enlarge an Estate, and therefore if the Lessor by Deed releases to his Lessee for Life, and warrants the Land to him and his Heir; this does not make his Estate greater, neither will it bar Titles of Entry or Action in Cases of Mortmain, Consent to a Ravisher, Mortgage or Dower; and therefore if an Ancestor of the Lord has Title to enter upon an Alienation in Mortmain, and he releases and makes a Feoffment with Warranty; this Warranty will neither bar him nor his Heir.

So if a collateral Ancestor will make a Warranty which afterwards descends upon one that has Title of Entry upon a Condition broken; this will not bar his Entry, &c. neither will it bar any Right that shall commence after the Warranty made.

And the Warranty that commences by Disseisin does not bind or bar any Estate with or without Assets. Co. Lit. 389, &c.

And in Cases where the lineal or collateral Warranty is a Bar, there if the Party be impleaded by him or his Heirs that made the Warranty, the Party impleaded, who is Tenant of the Land, may plead and shew forth his Warranty against him, and demand

THE Fruit and Effect of a Warranty in Deed is, that it always concludes and bars the Warrantor himself of the Land so warranted for ever; so that all his present and future Rights that he has or may have therein are hereby extinct.

And if it be a collateral Warranty, it is with or without Affets a Bar of an Estate in Fee-simple or Fee-tail, and all Possibility of Right thereunto; and yet so as it does not pass any Estate or Right, but only binds the Right so long as the Warranty is in Force, for if the Warranty be avoided, the Right may be revived. *Co. And in Cases where the lineal or collateral Warranty is a Bar, there if the Party be impleaded by him or his Heirs that made the Warranty, the Party impleaded, who is Tenant of the Land, may plead and shew forth his Warranty against him, and demand

Judg-

- Rebutter, quid. Judgment whether lie contrary to his own Warranty shall be suffered or received to demand the Thing warranted; and this in Pleading is called a Rebutter.
- Voucher, quid. And if he be impleaded or sued by another for the Land, then he to whom the Warranty is made, or his Heirs, may vouch, i. e. call in the Warrantor or Heirs to warrant the Land.
- Interpleader. And this is an Interpleader in the Nature of an Action brought by the Warrantor against the Warrantee, wherein he that vouches (who is called the Voucher) is Demandant; and Voucher. he that is vouched (who is called the Vouchee) is made Tenant or Defendant to the Action, and the Voucher is as it were out of the Suit.
- Vouchee. And this second Tenant the Vouchee is called the Tenant by the Warranty.
- Tenant by Warranty. And hereupon a Writ issues to the Sheriff to summon the Vouchee to appear, called a
- Summons ad Warrantizandum. Summons ad Warrantizandum.
- Counterplea to the Voucher. And if the Vouchee appears, he must plead to the Voucher; and if he shews Cause why he should not warrant, that must be tried; and this shewing of Cause is called a Counterplea to the Voucher.
- Counterplea to the Warranty. But if he pleads in Avoidance of the Warranty, it is called a Counterplea to the Warranty: And if he cannot defend himself against the Warranty, the Stranger shall recover the Land demanded against the Voucher, and he shall recover as much other Land against the Vouchee of the Lands he has or had at the Time of the Voucher.
- Recovery. And this Recovery of other Land is called a Recovery in Value.
- In Value. And if the Vouchee at the Time of the Voucher and Recovery has no Lands descended to him to answer the Warrantee, but has afterwards Lands happening to him by Descent from that Ancestor, then he may have a Re-summmons, and recover the Land that afterwards happens.
- But if the Sheriff returns upon the Summons, that the Vouchee is summoned, and he makes Default, then he shall have a Magnum Cape ad valentiam, when if he makes Default again, the Judgment shall be given against the Voucher, and he shall recover over the Value against the Vouchee; and if the Vouchee appears, and then makes Default, the Voucher shall have a Parvum Cape ad valentiam, and then if he makes Default, Judgment shall be given as before.
- Sequatur sub suo periculo.* But if the Sheriff upon the Summons returns that he has nothing whereby he may be summoned, then the Vouchee may have a Writ called Sequatur sub suo periculo, whereupon shall issue an Alias and Pluries, and if the like Return be made, the Demandant shall have Judgment against the first Tenant, but he cannot recover in Value against the Vouchee.
- Deraignment dei Garrant.* And if the Vouchee had a Warranty from some other for the Land, he may deraign, i. e. maintain the Warranty over, and shall recover in Value over also against his Voucher in the same Manner as before. Co. Lit. 101, 265. 10 Co. 98, 99. Dyer 42.
- Warrantia Chartæ.* Or the Warrantee to whom the Warranty is made, or his Heirs, may at any Time before they be impleaded for the Land, if they will bring a Warrantia Chartæ upon the Warranty in the Deed against the Warrantor or his Heirs, and hereby all the Land the Heir of the Warrantor has by Descent from the Ancestor, who made the Warranty at the Time of this Writ brought, shall be bound and charged with the Warranty into whose Hands soever it goes afterwards; so if the Land warranted be after recovered from the Warrantee, he shall have so much Land over again of the other Land of the Heir of the Warrantor, or of the Warrantor himself, if he be living.
- And although the Warrantee or his Heirs recover in this Writ, yet upon Occasion he may afterwards vouch the Warrantor or his Heirs notwithstanding.
- And herein observe it is good Policy if a Man suspect any Thing to bring this Writ of Warrantia Chartæ betimes, because it binds all the Land of the Warrantor from the Time of the Writ brought, and not any of his other Lands he had before that Time that are now aliened. F. N. B. 134. Co. Lit. 102.
- No Fine nor Warranty shall bar any Estate in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, which is not devested and put to a Right; for he who has the Estate or Interest in him, cannot be put to his Action, Entry or Claim; for he has that already which Entry, Action or Claim can give him. 9 Co. 106. a. 10 Co. 95. b. 96. a. Sid. 459. 2 Inst. 517. Cro. Jac. 60. 5 Co. 124. Vent. 81.
- Nota*; Where the Entry is gone, and only a Right of Action left, there a Warranty shall bind; but it shall not bind where there is a Right of Entry.

(L) Who may take Advantage of a Warranty, and how and against whom it may be taken.

ALL those that are Parties to the Warranty, i. e. such as are named in the Deed regularly, shall take Advantage of the Warranty; as if one warrants Land to another, his Heirs and Assigns; in this Case both the Heirs and the Assigns may take Advantage of it, and they both may vouch or rebut, or have a Warrantia Chartæ, so as they come in Privy of Estate; for otherwise the Heir or Assigns cannot vouch, or have a Warrantia Chartæ, and yet he may rebut notwithstanding in divers Cases.

But those who are not named for the most part shall not take Advantage of the Warranty; and therefore if Land be warranted to J. S. and not to him and his Heirs, or to him and his Assigns, or to him, his Heirs and Assigns; in these Cases neither the Heir nor the Assignee may vouch or have a Warrantia Chartæ; and yet in some Cases where it is so, the Assignee or Tenant of the Land may rebut. Co. Lit. 365. 5 Co. 17.

The Warranty annexed to an Exchange or Partition by Dedi, and by Homage Ancestrel, always goes in Privy, and therefore an Assignee in these Cases can take no Advantage of it.

And yet in the Cases of Exchange and Dedi, an Assignee may rebut. But the Assignee of a Lessee for Life may take Advantage of the Warranty in Law annexed to his Estate. Co. Lit. 384.

If one grants to warrant Land to another, his Heirs and Assigns; in this Case the Heirs or Assigns, Heir of the Assignee, or Assignee of the Heirs of the Feoffee, or Assignees of Assignees in infinitum, shall take Advantage of the Warranty; and therefore, if one enfeoffs J. S. to have and to hold to him, his Heirs and Assigns, and warrants the Land to him, his Heirs and Assigns, and A. enfeoffs B. and his Heirs, and B. dies; in this Case the Heir of B. shall vouch as Assignee to A.

And if one enfeoffs A. and B. Habendum to them and their Heirs, and warrants the Land to them, their Heirs and Assigns, and A. dies, and B. survives, and dies, and his Heir enfeoffs C. in this Case C. shall take Advantage of this Warranty as Assignee.

If one enfeoffs A. with Warranty to him, his Heirs and Assigns, and A. enfeoffs B. and B. re infeoffs A. in this Case neither A. or his Assigns shall ever take any Advantage of this Warranty.

And yet if B. enfeoffs the Heir of A. he may take Advantage of the Warranty. 5 Co. 17. Co. Lit. 384, 385.

If one makes a Feoffment by Deed with Warranty to the Feoffee, his Heirs and Assigns, and the Feoffee makes a Feoffment over to another by Word without Deed; in this Case the second Feoffee shall have all the Advantage of this Warranty, for an Assignee by Word shall have the same Advantage that an Assignee by Deed shall have. Ibid.

If a Feoffment be made with Warranty to a Man and his Heirs and Assignees, and he makes a Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Donee makes a Feoffment in Fee; this Feoffee shall not vouch as Assignee, but he must vouch his Donor upon the Warranty in Law, and yet he may rebut. Ibid.

If Lands be given to two Brethren in Fee-simple, with Warranty to the Eldest and his Heirs, and the Eldest dies without Issue; in this Case, although the other Brother be his Heir, yet he shall have no Advantage at all by the Warranty, because he comes in above the Warranty. Ibid.

But generally all that claim under the Warranty shall take Advantage thereof by way of Rebutter, although they can take no other Advantage by it. Ibid.

If one makes a Feoffment to two, their Heirs and Assigns, and one of them makes a Feoffment in Fee; this Feoffee in this Case shall not take Advantage as Assignee. Ibid.

An Assignee of Part of the Land shall take Advantage of a Warranty; as,

If a Man makes a Feoffment of two Acres with Warranty to him, his Heirs and Assigns, and the Feoffee makes a Feoffment of one Acre of it to another; in this Case the second Feoffee shall take Advantage of the Warranty as Assignee. Co. Lit. 385.

And therefore herein there is a Difference between the whole Estate in Part, and Part of the Estate in the Whole or in any Part; for if a Man has a Warranty to him, his Heirs and Assigns, and he makes a Lease for Life, or Gift in Tail; in these Cases the Lessee or Donee shall not take Advantage of the Warranty as Assignee, but they may vouch the Lessor or Donor upon the Warranty in Law. Co. Lit. 385.

But if a Lease for Life be made, the Remainder in Fee; such a Lessee may vouch as Assignee upon the first Warranty. Co. Lit. 384.

If the Father has a Feoffment made to him and his Heirs with Warranty, and he makes a Feoffment to his Son and Heir with Warranty; in this Case the Son may take Advantage of the first Warranty after his Father's Death. Ibid.

If a Man enfeoffs a Woman with Warranty, and they intermarry and are impleaded, and upon the Default of the Husband the Wife is received; in this Case she may vouch her Husband, & sic e converso. If a Woman enfeoffs a Man with Warranty, and they intermarry and are impleaded; the Husband in this Case shall vouch himself and the Wife. Co. Lit. 390.

He that comes into the Land merely by Act of Law in the Post, as the Lord by Escheat, or the like, shall never take Advantage of a Warranty; and therefore if Tenant in Dower enfeoffs a Villain with Warranty, and the Lord of the Villain enters; or a Feoffment be to a Bastard with Warranty, and he dies without Issue, and the Lord enters by Escheat; the Lord shall never take Advantage of these Warranties.

But it is otherwise where a Man comes to the Land by Limitation of Use, or a common Recovery, which is by the Act of the Party; for if Tenant in Tail being in of another Estate, i. e. by Disseisin, or Feoffment of a Disseisor, suffers a common Recovery, and a collateral Ancestor of the Tenant in Tail releases with Warranty to the Recoveror, and after the Recoveror makes a Feoffment to Uses, which are executed by the Statute of 27 H. 8. and after the collateral Ancestor dies; in this Case the Tertenants may take Advantage of the Warranty by way of Rebutter, although the Estate be transferred in the Post.

So if he to whom the Warranty is made suffers a common Recovery, and after the Ancestor dies; the Recoveror may take Advantage of the Warranty by way of Rebutter, for any Man that has the Possession of Land, although he has no Deed to shew how he came by the Possession of it, or how he is Assignee, may rebut the Demandant, and so bar him, and defend his own Possession.

And therefore the Tenant by the Curtesy, Donee in Tail that is in another Estate, an Assignee by Force of a Warranty made to a Man and his Heirs, Feoffee of a Donee in Tail, may rebut and bar the Demandant by the Warranty. 26 H. 8. 3. 22 Aff. pl. 37. 29 Aff. 34. 3 Co. 62, 63.

If one enfeoffs another of an Acre of Ground with Warranty, and has Issue two Sons, and dies seised of another Acre of Land of the Nature of Borough English; in this Case, although the Warranty descends upon the eldest Son only, yet both the Sons may be vouched.

And so also it is of Heirs in Gavelkind, the Eldest shall be vouched as Heir to the Warranty, and the rest in respect to the Inheritance.

And in like Manner of the Heir at the Common Law, the Heir of the Part of the Mother shall be vouched, or the Heir at the Common Law may be vouched alone at the Election of the Tenant.

And in like Manner the Heir at Common Law shall be vouched with the Heir in Borough English.

And so also a Bastard shall be vouched with a Mulier.

And if a Man dies seised of certain Lands in Fee, having Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Venter, and a Son by another, and the eldest Son enters, and dies, and the Land descends to the Sister; in this Case the Warranty descends on the Son, and he may be vouched as Heir, and the Sister also may be vouched as Heir to the Land. Co. Lit. 376. 1 Ed. 3. 13. 5 H. 7. 2.

If two make a Feoffment with Warranty, and one of them dies, the Survivor shall not be charged alone with the Warranty, but the Heir of him that is dead shall be charged also.

And if two be bound to warrant Land, and both of them die, the Heirs of both of them ought to be vouched, and shall be equally charged.

And if the Heir be vouched in the Award of three several Persons, the one of them only shall not be charged, but they shall be charged equally. 3 Co. 14. Co. Lit. 386. 16 H. 7. 13. 48 Ed. 3. 5.

If a Woman an Heiress of the Disseisor enfeoffs me with Warranty, and after she is married to the Disseisee; in this Case I may take Advantage of this Warranty against the Disseisee, and rebut him upon it, if he sues me for the Land.

So if the Husband and Wife sues me for the Land of his Wife, and I have a Warranty of a collateral Ancestor of the Husband's descended to him; I may make Use of this to bar the Husband and Wife. Co. Lit. 365.

(M) When a Warranty shall be said to be defeated, determined or avoided, and how, or not.

A Warranty lineal or collateral may be defeated, determined or avoided in all or in Part; and this is sometimes by Matter in Law, and sometimes by Matter in Deed. Co. Lit.

<sup>392, 393.</sup> If the Estate to which the Warranty is annexed be gone, the Warranty annexed thereunto is gone also.

And therefore if an Estate-tail to which a Warranty is annexed be spent, the Warranty is determined.

And if a Man makes a Gift in Tail with Warranty, and after the Donee makes a Feoffment, and dies without Issue, the Warranty is gone.

So if Tenant in Tail discontinues the Tail, and the Discontinuee be disseised, or makes a Feoffment on Condition, and a collateral Ancestor of the Issue releases to the Disseisor or Feoffee, on Condition, with Warranty, and after the Discontinuee enters upon the Disseisor, or on the Feoffee, for the Condition broken; in these Cases the Warranty made by the collateral Ancestor is gone.

So if a Seignior be granted with Warranty, and the Tenancy escheat, so that the Seignior is extinct; hereby also the Warranty is defeated.

So if a collateral Ancestor heretofore had released with Warranty, and then had entred into Religion; this Warranty had bound, but if after he had been deraigned, the Warranty had been defeated. 10 Co. 96. Co. 2, 3, 62. Lit. §. 741. Co. Lit. 392.

If the Father makes a Feoffment to his Son and Heir apparent with Warranty, and dies, so that the Warranty descends upon the Son; hereby the Warranty is gone.

And yet if a Feoffment be made to a Man and his Heirs, and he dies, leaving Issue Daughters; in this Case the Warranty shall be divided, and is not determined. Co. Lit. 384. Bro. Garraty 27.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment to his Uncle, and after the Uncle makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, &c. to another, and after the Feoffee of the Uncle reinfcoffs again the Uncle, and after the Uncle enfeoffs a Stranger in Fee without Warranty, and dies without Issue, and the Tenant in Tail dies; hereby the Warranty made to the first Feoffee is defeated.

So if the Uncle makes the Warranty to the Feoffee, his Heirs and Assigns, and takes back an Estate in Fee, and after enfeoffs another.

But if one makes a Feoffment with Warranty to the Feoffee, his Heirs and Assigns, and the Feoffee reinfcoffs the Feoffor and his Wife, or the Feoffor and a Stranger; in these Cases the Warranty is not defeated, but continues still.

So if two make a Feoffment with Warranty to one, his Heirs and Assigns, and the Feoffee reinfcoffs one of the Feoffors; in this Case the Warranty is not gone.

And if in the first Case the Feoffee makes an Estate to his Uncle in Tail or for Life saving the Reversion, or a Release for Life, the Remainder over, &c. in this Case the Warranty is only suspended. Lit. §. 743, 744. Co. Lit. 390.

If one makes a Feoffment or Release with Warranty, and after is attainted of Treason or Felony; hereby the Warranty is gone; and although he afterwards obtains his Pardon, yet the Warranty is not revived. Co. Lit. 391.

If a Feoffment with Warranty be made to two or more, and they being Jointenants afterwards by Deed make Partition; by this the Warranty is determined.

So if there be two Jointenants, and one of them disseises the other, and he that is disseised recovers in an Assise, and has Judgment to hold in Severalty; hereby the Warranty is determined. 6 Co. 12.

So if A. and B. be Jointenants of Whiteacre for Life, and A. by Fine grants to B. totum & quicquid habet in tenementis; hereby the Warranty is gone.

But if a Partition be made by Judgment upon a Writ by Force of the Statute of 13 H. 8. this does not defeat the Warranty fallen to them, but it shall be divided between them, and they shall all of them take Advantage of it. Eustace and Shole's Case, adjudged H. 22 Jac. B. R.

If one enfeoffs three with Warranty to them and their Heirs, and one of them releases to one of the other two; hereby the Warranty is gone for that Part. But if one of them releases to the other two; in this Case the Warranty is not gone but continues, and they may vouch upon it. Co. Lit. 385.

If one enfeoffs two Men and their Heirs, and one of them makes a Feoffment in Fee; hereby the Warranty is not determined, but the other may take Advantage of it notwithstanding. Co. Lit. 385.

If the Party that has the Warranty, or the Estate to which the Warranty is annexed, releases to him that is bound to warrant all Warranties, or all Covenants real, or all Demands; by either of these Releases the Warranty is gone.

So also if in a Defeasance made between the Parties it be agreed the Warranty shall be void, by this Defeasance the Warranty may be void also.

Or if it be so agreed that the Warrantee or his Heirs, &c. shall not vouch, or have a Warrantia Charta; by this the Warranty is avoided in Part. Co. Lit. 392, 393. Lit. §. 748.

If Tenant in Tail enfeoffs his Uncle who enfeoffs another in Fee with Warranty, and the Feoffee releases the Warranty to his Uncle; thereby the Warranty is extinct.

But if a Gift in Tail be made with Warranty, in this Case a Release made by the Tenant in Tail of the Warranty will not extinguish it. Co. Lit. 291.

If the Parties, between whom the Warranty is, intermarry, hereby the Warranty is suspended during the Coverture in some Cases. Co. Lit. 390.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and disseises the Continuee, and dies seised; this suspends the Warranty. Co. Lit. 330.

If two make a Feoffment in Fee, and warrant the Land to the Feoffee and his Heirs, and the Feoffee releases the Warranty to one of the Feoffors; this does not determine the Warranty of the other as to the Moiety.

So if one enfeoffs two with Warranty, and one of them releases the Warranty; this does not extinguish the Warranty for the other Moiety, but it continues still. Co. Lit. 393.

A Warranty also may lose its Force by taking Benefit or making Use thereof; for after a Man has once taken Advantage thereof in some Cases, he can make no further Use of it. Ibid.

In a Præcipe the Tenant vouches, and at the Sequatur sub suo periculo the Tenant and the Vouchee make Default, whereupon the Demandant has Judgment against the Tenant; and afterwards the Demandant brings a Scire Facias against the Tenant to have Execution; in this Case the Tenant may have a Warrantia Charta. Ibid.

And if in that Case a Stranger had brought a Præcipe against the Tenant, the Warranty lost not its Force; but if the Tenant had Judgment to recover in Value against the Vouchee, he should never vouch again by Reason of that Warranty, because he had taken Advantage of the Warranty. Ibid.

And it is to be observed, that upon the Summoneas ad Warrantizandum if the Sheriff returns the Vouchee summoned, and he makes Default, the Tenant shall have a Capias ad valentiam; but if he returns that the Vouchee has nothing, then after the Sicut alias & pluries, a Sequatur sub suo periculo shall issue, and there if the Vouchee makes Default, the Tenant shall not have Judgment to recover in Value, for he was never summoned, and it appears of Record that he has nothing, but in the Capias ad valentiam it appears that he had Assets, and he had been summoned before. Ibid.

But in some special Cases there shall be two Recoveries in Value upon one Warranty; as,

If a Disseisor gives Lands to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of the Husband, the Husband aliens in Fee with Warranty, and dies, the Wife brings a Cui in vita, the Tenant vouches and recovers in Value, if after the Death of the Wife the Disseisor brings a Præcipe against the Alienee, he shall vouch and recover in Value again. Co. Lit. 393. a.

So it is where the Wife brings a Writ of Dower against the Alienee, he shall recover in Value again upon the same Warranty. Ibid.

And it is in the same Manner if a Man be seised of a Rent by a defeasible Title, and releases to the Tenant of the Land all his Right in the Land, and warrants the Land to him and his Heirs; if he be impleaded for the Rent, he shall vouch and recover in Value for the Rent, and if he impleaded for the Land, he shall vouch and recover in Value again for the Land. Ibid.

But in these and the like Cases, the Reason is in Respect of the several Estates recovered, but for one and the same Estate he shall never recover but once in Value; and though the Land recovered in Value be evicted, yet he shall never take Benefit of that Warranty after. Ibid.

And as Warranties may be defeated in the Whole, so they may be defeated as to Part of the Benefit that may be taken of the same; as,

He who has a Warranty may make a Defeasance not to take any Benefit by way of Voucher: In the like Manner that he shall take no Advantage by way of Warrantia Charta, or by way of Rebutter. Co. Lit. 393. a.

(N) How a Warranty shall be expounded.

ALL Warranties in general are favourably taken in Law, because they are Part of Mens Assurances.

Every Warranty in Law is taken for and has the Effect of a lineal Warranty.

The Warranty that is made by Dedi & Concessi, or Dedi only in a Feoffment, is and shall be taken for a general Warranty against all Persons to the Feoffee and his Heirs during the Life of the Feoffor only, although there be no Service reserved by the Deed, nor Heir named; but it shall not extend to the Assignee of the Feoffee.

And if there be any Service reserved on the Deed, then it shall extend against the Heir also. 4 Co. 81. 5 Co. 17.

A Warranty in Law that is made upon Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life, rendring Rent, is a special Warranty against the Donor and Lessor, his Heirs and Assigns; so that the Donee or Lessee may vouch the Grantor after the Grant of the Reversion, or the Grantee of the Reversion after the Attornment of the Tenant at his Election. 4 Co. 81. Co. Lit. 384.

A Warranty in Law that is made upon an Exchange, is special in divers Respects, for it extends reciprocally to and against the Heirs of both Parties, and it extends only to the same Land that is given in Exchange, and no other; and no Use can be made of it but by Voucher, for no Warrantia Chartæ lies upon it.

So also the Warranty that is made in Dower, is taken to extend only to the other two Parts of the Land. 4 Co. 121. Co. Lit. 384.

A Warranty in Law that is made upon the Tenure of Homage Ancestral, extends reciprocally to the Heirs, and against the Heirs of both Parties. Co. Lit. 384.

If a Feoffment be made of Land to three jointly, and the Feoffors warrant the Land to the Feoffees, and every of them; this Warranty shall be joint and not several.

But if the Estate be several, as if one grants Whiteacre to A. and Blackacre to B. and grants to warrant the Land to them, and either of them; in this Case the Warranty shall be several. 5 Co. 59.

If a Man of full Age and an Infant join in a Feoffment with Warranty; this shall be taken for a good Warranty as to the Whole for him that is of full Age, and void for the Infant, and not void in Part and good in Part. Co. Lit. 367.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, and binds his Heirs but not himself to Warranty; by this his Heirs shall not be bound, and it seems also that it will not bind the Warrantor himself. Co. Lit. 386.

But if a Man binds himself to warrant, and not his Heirs, by Feoffment; the Feoffor himself is bound to the Warranty, but not his Heirs; for it is a Maxim of Law, that the Heir shall never be bound to any express Warranty but where the Ancestor was bound by the same Warranty.

If one makes a Feoffment to B. and his Heirs, and thereby grants to warrant the Land, and does not say to B. and his Heirs; yet this Warranty shall be taken to extend to them.

But if the Feoffor grants to warrant the Land to B. and does not say to his Heirs, this shall not extend to his Heirs.

And if in this Case the Warranty be to B. and his Assigns, it shall not extend to his Heirs, neither shall the Assignees take Advantage of it after the Death of B. and if the Warranty be to B. and his Heirs, and not to his Assigns also, this shall not extend to his Assignees.

If one makes a Feoffment to A. Habendum to him and his Heirs, and binds himself and his Heirs to warrant the Land in forma prædicta; in this Case the Warranty shall extend to the Feoffee and his Heirs. Co. Lit. 47, 385. Dyer 42. Kelw. 108. 6 Co. 69.

If one grants to warrant Land to another and his Heirs, and does not say against what Persons; this shall be taken for a general Warranty against all Men. Co. 1.

If one makes an Estate and grants to warrant the Land, but does not say how long; this shall be taken for so long as the Estate to which the Warranty is annexed does last. Ibid.

If a Warranty be made against any special Persons, it shall extend to them and no further; and it shall extend in all Cases for and to all Titles and Entries upon Title, and it shall not in any such Cases extend to tortious and unlawful Entries. Dyer 328.

If a Man be seised of a Rent-seck issuing out of the Manor of Dale, and he takes a Wife, and the Husband releases to the Tertenant, and warrants Tenementa prædicta, and dies, this Warranty shall extend to the Rent as well as to the Land; and therefore if the Wife sues for her Thirds of the Rent, the Tertenant may vouch for the Heir.

And regularly the Warranty extends to all Things issuing out of the Land, viz. to warrant it in the same Manner and Plight as it was in the Hands of the Feoffor, and he shall vouch as of Lands discharged.

And therefore if a Grantee of a Rent grants it to the Tenant of the Land on Condition, and the Tenant makes a Feoffment of the Land with Warranty; in this Case the Warranty shall not extend to the Rent, although the Feoffment be made of the Land discharged of the Rent.

And if a Woman has a Rent-charge in Fee, and she intermarries with the Tenant of the Land, and a Stranger releases to the Tenant of the Land with Warranty; this Warranty shall not extend to bar an Action to be brought after the Death of the Wife for the Rent.

But if in this Case the Tenant makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty, and dies, the Feoffee in a Cui in vita brought by the Wife shall vouch as of Lands discharged at the Time of the Warranty made.

So if Tenant in Tail of a Rent-charge purchases the Land and makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and the Issue brings a Formedon of the Rent, the Tenant shall not vouch, &c. Co. Lit. 366, 388, 389.

S E C T. VIII.

Of the Covenants.

(A) Covenant what, Covenantor and Covenantee who.

Covenant.

A Covenant is the Agreement or Consent of two or more by Deed in Writing sealed and delivered, whereby either of the said Parties promises to the other that something is already done, or shall be done hereafter. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Covenant. Plow. 308.

Covenantor.
Covenantee.

He who makes a Covenant is called the Covenantor, and he to whom it is made is called the Covenantee.

A Covenant properly is a Specialty, but by Custom, Conventio ore tenus facta is binding in Bristol.

Custom of Bristol, Con-
ventio ore te-
nus facta, to be taken strictly.

The Plaintiff declared in Bristol of a Covenant made by Word by the Testator of the Defendant with the Plaintiff in Bristol, and declared also within the said City: There is a Custom that Conventio ore tenus facta shall bind the Covenantor as strongly as if it were made in Writing.

Per Cur', This Custom does not warrant this Action, for the Covenant binds the Covenantor by Custom, but does not extend to his Executors, but shall be taken strictly. Leon. 2.

Where a Covenant terminates in itself,
or to a present Act, no Covenant properly.

A Covenant to do a present Act is not properly a Covenant, as a Covenant to stand seised. T. Raym. 26. Sid. 48. It is no Action properly, but an Action on the Case.

When a Covenant is to pay Money, it is a single Bill; but if it be to pay Money upon the Delivery of any Thing, Accord is a good Plea. 1 Keb. 155. in Margine.

(B) How a Covenant differs from a Defeasance, Condition, Warranty, an Exception, &amp;c.

WHERE a Covenant terminates in itself, it is not properly a Covenant but a Defeasance. Plow. 138. a.

Defeasance and not a Covenant.

As a Covenant that the Demise shall be void, it shall determine the Lease; and it cannot enure to other Effect, for the Lessee cannot have an Action upon this Covenant, for such Action does not lie but where the Thing for which the Covenant is made is to be done in Time after. T. Raym. 26.

But in an Action of Covenant in Nature of a Defeasance of a Recognizance, that upon Payment the Recognizance shall be delivered up to be vacated and caused to be cancelled by the Defendant: This Covenant does not terminate in itself, but is for a collateral Act, and engages the Party to such Act, and not only that it should be void. Keb. 103, 118. Sid. 48.

Covenant
sance.

In Debt on a single Bill of 68 l. with Covenant to pay it when such Bills be stated and appear due for the Costs of the Defendant Testator, and produced to two Attornies, &c. indifferently to be chosen between them, &c. The Covenant being in the same Deed, it works as a Defeasance or Acquittance, and not as a distinct Deed, &c. Keb. 624.

Sometimes

Sometimes a Covenant is in Nature of a Condition precedent; as in 3 Leon. 219. where the Lord of a Manor covenanted to assure the Freehold to one of his Copyholders and to his Heirs, and the Copyholder, in Consideration of the same Covenant performed, promised to pay a certain Sum of Money: The Copyholder is not bound to pay the Money unless the Lord first performs his Covenant; otherwise if the Covenant on the Part of the Copyholder had been in Consideration of the Covenant to be performed. 2 Sand. 156.

Covenant in Nature of a Condition precedent.

A Feoffment by Dedi & Concessi in Action against the Feoffor does not warrant an Action of Covenant on Eviction of the Inheritance, but it must be deduced in the real Lien by Warranty; but in case of a Freehold only, it is a Ground for Covenant. Keb. 821. But in Yelv. 139. Hob. 3. If a Man makes a Deed by Feoffment with Warranty, and a Stranger extends a Recognizance of the Feoffor on the Lands of the Feoffee, an Action of Covenant lies.

Covenant and not Warranty, or Warranty and not Covenant.

Upon express real Covenants which extend to Freehold or Inheritance, as warrant and defend; a Man cannot have an Action unless he be ousted by one who has Title. Brownl. 165. And if a Man makes a Feoffment with Warranty, Non feoffavit is a good Plea; for if the Feoffment be avoided, the Warranty is also voided, for that depends upon the Feoffment. Ibid.

Difference between a Lease and an Inheritance as to Words of Warranty.

But if a Man makes a Lease for Years, and covenants that he will warrant and defend the Land to the Lessee; if the Lessee be ousted by one that has Title, or is without Title, he may have an Action of Covenant; for the Lessor has the Evidences, and ought to defend the Possession of his Lessee, and the Right also and Damages are only to be recovered: And this is the Difference between a Lease and Inheritance though the Words of the Covenant be all one.

If a Lease for Years be made by Indenture, provided always and it is agreed between the Parties, Quod licitum foret & esset to the Lessor and his Heirs, at any and every Time during the Term, to fell, cut down and sell all the Woods and Trees upon the Premises. Per Cur', It is not an Exception of the Trees, but only a Covenant, and so an Action of Waste lies by the Plaintiff. Cro. Eliz. 690.

Covenant and not an Exception.

If a Bond be conditioned for Performance of Articles, by which the Defendant grants and agrees with the Plaintiff, his Heirs and Assigns, Quod licitum foret illis at all Times to have and use a Way by and over the Close of the Defendant, in Consideration whereof the Plaintiff agrees to pay the Defendant 20s. 6d. per Ann. This is a Grant of a Way, and not a Covenant only for the Enjoyment. 3 Lev. 305.

Covenant and Grant alto.

If a Lease of a Farm be made, except the Wood, and the Lessor covenanted with the Lessee that he shall take all Manner of Underwood, provided always and the Lessee covenants he will not cut any Manner of Timber-Trees: This is no Condition, but an Explanation with what Wood he should meddle, though in Truth it is of another Thing than is comprized in the Covenant before; as if I am seised of the Manor of D. in D. and of Blackacre in D. and so seised, I covenant with J. S. that he shall enjoy the Manor for ten Years, provided the said J. S. covenants that he shall not enjoy Blackacre: This Covenant is not a Condition, but a Declaration deduced out of my Covenant to make a plain Declaration that it is not my Interest that Blackacre shall pass, be it Parcel or not of the said Manor. Peoph. 117, 119.

Not a Covenant nor a Condition, but a Declaration explanatory.

If A. lets Land to B. by Indenture, and the Words are, in Consideration of the Payment of the Rent hereafter mentioned, he leaseth, &c. and after in the same Indenture B. covenants for him and his Assigns, with A. and his Assigns, to pay 10l. at certain Feasts yearly, &c. This shall be a Rent and not a Sum in Gross; for upon the whole Indenture this shall be a Reservation and not a Covenant, for the Words [in Consideration of the Rent hereafter mentioned] make it clear. 2 Roll. Abr. 449.

Reservation and not a Covenant.

By Articles the Testator covenants and agrees with the Defendant that he shall have and enjoy such a House and Land for six Years, and in Consideratione premissorum the Defendant covenants and agrees to pay to the Testator, his Heirs, Executors and Assigns, the annual Rent of 90l. during the said six Years, at the Feast of the Annunciation and St. Michael; Defendant enters, Testator dies, Rent is in Arrear; if it be a Covenant it is due to the Executor, if it be a Reservation it follows the Reversion, and so goes to the Heir. But per Cur', This is merely a Rent, and not a Covenant, and the Words covenant and grant that he shall enjoy, amount to a Lease, and is not a Sum in Gross; and he covenants to pay to him and his Heirs. Cro. Car. 207. Owen 151. 2 Bulst. 281.

Rent and Reservation, and not a Covenant.

A. leases a Rectory, rendring 4l. per Ann. and by the same Indenture grants to the Lessee and his Assigns, Dare & Reddere yearly 3s. 4d. for Portage; the Rent reserved is 4l. and though 3s. 4d. is to be paid to the Lessee for Portage, yet this is not any Part of the principal Rent to be retained by way of Defalcation, and by way of Covenant the Lessee is to receive 3s. 4d. Yelv. 42.

Covenant and not a Rent.

T. S.

Lease not a Covenant.

T. S. being seised of Copyhold Lands for Life, executed a Deed to P. S. as a collateral Security to indemnify him for the Payment of 100*l.* by which Deed, after a Recital of the Counter-Bond given to P. and the Estate which T. S. had in the Lands, he covenanted, granted and agreed for himself, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, with the said P. that he, his Executors and Administrators, should hold these Lands from the Time of making the said Deed for seven Years, and so from the End of seven Years to seven Years, for and during the Term of forty-nine Years, if T. should so long live. The Court took this for a Lease, and so it is a Forfeiture, there being no Custom to warrant it. It is a Rule, that the Word Covenant will make a Lease though the Word Grant be omitted; nay, a Licence to hold Land for a Time, without either of these Words, will amount to a Lease, much more when the Words are, To have, hold and enjoy the Lands for a Term certain. Hob. 35. 2 Cro. 92, 398. Roll. Abr. 847. Cro. Car. 207.

And it is now settled, that an Action of Debt may be brought upon such a Covenant; but it was smartly argued on the other Side. If the construing of it to be a Lease will work a Wrong, then it is only a Covenant and an Agreement, and no Interest will vest; and therefore it shall not be intended a Lease in this Case of a Copyhold; for if it should, there would be a Wrong done to the Lessor and Lessee, for it would be a Forfeiture of the Estate in one, and a Defeating of the Security of the other; but no Judgment was given. 2 Mod. 80. 3 Keb. 638.

Rent and not a Sum in Gross.

In Articles of Agreement indented and sealed between A. and B. the Words were, It is covenanted and agreed that A. doth let such Land to B. for five Years from Michaelmas next, provided that the Lessee shall pay therefore at Michaelmas and Lady-day 100 l. by equal Portions; inasmuch as the first Words are a present Lease, the Proviso shall make a present Reservation of the Recovery, and not a Sum in Gross. 2 Roll. Abr. 449.

Where a Recital amounts to a Covenant.

Recital that it is agreed.

Covenant on Demise of a Coal-Mine, whereby it is recited, that before sealing of the Indenture it was agreed that the Plaintiff should have the third Part digged, &c. On a Demurrer to the Declaration it was excepted, that here is no Covenant to pay the third Part, but only a Recital of an Agreement to have it. But by Hale, Were it but a Recital that before the Indenture they were agreed, it is a Covenant; and so to say, Whereas it was agreed to pay 20 l. for now the Indenture itself confirms the Agreement and Intent precedent, though it be relative to the former Act in pais, when it is declared by Deed, it is now a Covenant by the Indenture. 3 Keb. 465.

A Covenant that doth not confist with the Recital that leads and occasions it
oblige.

D. covenanted by Articles, reciting that a Marriage was intended between the Defendant and one R. W. who had seven Sons; the Defendant covenanted in the said Articles, having recited that R. M. deceased, Father of the said seven Brothers, had by his Will bequeathed Cuilibet ipsor' præd' Joseph, Jacob, &c. (only leaving out Nathaniel) the Sum of 50*l.* a-piece; covenants with P. to pay to the said seven Sons, naming Nathaniel, præd' separales legationes vel sum' 50 l. and D. pleads further that he paid to the six Sons 50*l.* a-piece, and shews a Performance of the other Articles; P. demurs, because he shews not that he paid 50*l.* to Nathaniel, and he did expressly covenant to pay the said Nathaniel and the Rest the said several Legacies or Sums of 50*l.* Per Cur', In the Recital of the said Will nothing is mentioned to have been bequeathed to Nathaniel as well as the Rest; though he covenants to pay to Nathaniel as well as the Rest, yet it is Legationes summas præd', and there being no Legacy to Nathaniel, and that appearing by the Recital of the Will, his Covenant shall not oblige the Defendant to pay him any Thing. 2 Vent. 140.

Recital being
with the Rest of the Deed is material.

A. by his Deed Poll recited, that he was possessed of certain Lands for Years of a certain Term; by good and lawful Conveyance he assigned the same to J. S. with divers Covenants, Articles and Agreements in the said Deed contained, which are or ought to be performed on his Part; the Quære was, If the Recital be an Article or Agreement within the Meaning of the Condition of the Bond for Performance: Per Gaudy, It is an Agreement; every Thing contained in the Deed is an Agreement, and not only that which I am bound to perform. It was moved, that if the Recital be within these Words of the Condition, which are or ought to be performed on my Part; and some were of Opinion it is not within those Words, for that extends only in futurum, but this Recital is of a Thing past, or at least present. Per Clench, Recital of itself is nothing, but being joined and considered with the Rest of the Deed, it is material, as here; for against this Recital he cannot say that he hath not any Thing in the Term; and it was clearly resolved, that if the Party had not that Interest by a good and lawful Conveyance, the Obligation was forfeited. Leon. 122.

In Babington and Allen's Case, these Words, Paying the Rent, is no Condition precedent, but rather concomitant, and is the Consideration whereupon the Party is to do the Act, and is liable to Construction, as the subject Matter is the Word paying, and without Construction (unless as in the Case of Dyer 371. it be precedent) doth not import a Condition; dition; but clearly here it can be no Condition, being an usual Clause at the End of all Leafes. 2 Keb. 9, 23.

(C) What shall be said an Agreement, and what Agreement amounts to a Covenant.

If a Man lets a Manor by Indenture, except a certain Parcel of Land, and the Lessee enters into Bond to perform all the Covenants, Articles and Agreements contained in the Indenture, and after the Lessee enters into the Land excepted; yet this is not any Breach of the Condition, for the Land excepted is not leased, and is as if it had not been named, and therefore cannot be intended an Agreement to be performed on the Part of the Lessee within the Intent of the Indenture. Roll. Abr. 431.

On an Agreement made thus: It is agreed upon by Doctor J. P. and B. C. Esquire, that the said B. C. shall give to the said Doctor 500l. for such Land and House and the Brewing Utensils. In Witness whereof we do put our Hands and Seals, mutually given as Earnest in Performance of this s. s. the Money to be paid a Week after Midsummer 1668. It was adjudged per Cur', That the Earnest shall be intended as Part of the Sum, and the Action is well brought without Averment of the Conveyance of Land, for it shall be intended that both Parties had sealed the Specialty; and if the Plaintiff has not conveyed the Land to the Defendant, he has also an Action of Covenant against the Plaintiff upon the Agreement contained in the Deed, which amounts to a Covenant on the Plaintiff's Part to convey the Land; and so each Party has mutual Remedy against the other; otherwise if the Specialty had been the Words of the Defendant only, and not the Words of both Parties by way of Agreement, as here it is; and in the Conclusion it is said that both Parties have sealed it. Saund. 319. Lev. 274. T. Raym. 183. 2 Keb. 569.

A. by his Deed Poll recited, that whereas he was possessed of certain Lands for Years of a certain Term; by good and lawful Conveyance he assigned the same to J. S. with divers Covenants, Articles and Agreements in the said Deed contained, which are or ought to be performed on his Part. The Question was, If the Recital, that whereas he was, be an Article or Agreement within the Meaning of the Condition of the Obligation which was given to perform, &c. Per Gaudy, It is an Agreement; for in such Case I agree I am possessed of it; for every Thing contained in the Deed is an Agreement, and not only that which I am bound to perform; as if I recite by my Deed, that I am possessed of such an Interest in certain Lands, and assign it over by the same Deed, and thereby covenant to perform all Agreements in the Deed; if I be not possessed of such Interest, the Covenant is broken. Per Glencb, Recital of itself is nothing, but being joined and considered with the Rest of the Deed, it is material, as here; for against this Recital he cannot say he hath any Thing in the Term; and it was resolved, that if the Party had not that Interest by a good and lawful Conveyance, the Obligation was forfeited. Leon. 122.

A Condition to perform Covenants and Agreements; one was, that the Plaintiff had covenanted with the Defendant, that it should be lawful for the Defendant to cut down Wood for Fire-wood and Hedge-wood, without making Waste, or cutting more than necessary; the Plaintiff assigns a Breach in that Covenant (which is in Truth the Plaintiff's Covenant); the Exception was, that the Condition ought but to extend unto Covenants to be performed on the Part of the Lessee; sed non allocat'; it is the Agreement of the Lessee, though it is the Covenant of the Lessor. Leon. 324.

Agreement in Articles with Covenant on the Plaintiff's Side to settle a Jointure, and on the other Side to pay 6000l. and it is agreed in the Articles that a Fine was intended to be levied of such Lands, &c. for securing the Payment of the 6000l. this is a Covenant to levy a Fine. 2 Mod. 87.

Where a Man is Party to a Deed, his Agreement to pay amounts to a Covenant, though the formal Words of Covenant, Grant, &c. are wanting. 2 Mod. 269. For the Law has not appropriated any set Form of Words as absolutely necessary for the creating a Covenant. Chan. Ca. 294. Leon. 324. Roll. Abr. 518. Brownl. 23.

(D) The Kinds of Covenants relative to their Nature.

First, In Deed or in Law.

Covenants are either express or in Deed, that is, where the Covenant is expressed in the Deed; Covenants in Deed.

As, where A. by Deed covenants with B. to serve him for a Year, and B. covenants with A. to pay him 10l. for this Service.

4 X

Or

Law. Or they are implied or in Law, that is, when the Deed does not express it, but the Law doth make and supply it.

As when one makes a Lease for Years by the Words Demise or Grant, without any express Covenant for quiet Enjoyment; in this Case, the Law intends and makes such a Covenant on the Part of the Lessor, which is, That the Lessee shall quietly hold and enjoy the Thing demised against all Persons, at least having Title under the Lessor, and at least during the Lessor's Life, and (as some think) during the whole Term.

Action. And hereupon an Action of Covenant may be brought against him in the Reversion; so that if the Heir that is in by Descent puts out the Termor of his Father, the Termor may have this Action against him.

Where the Covenant is created by Law, the Covenantee cannot bring an Action of Covenant, if he be not ousted by one who has a Title; but it is otherwise in case of an express Covenant. 2 Brownl. 161, 162.

Secondly, Real or Personal.

Real. Covenants are also either Real or Personal.

A Covenant Real, is where a Man binds himself to perform a real Thing, as Lands or Tenements; as a Covenant to levy a Fine of Land, in which Case the Land itself is to be recovered; or when it runs in the Realty so with the Land, that he who has the one has or is subject to the other, and so a Warranty is called a real Covenant.

Personal. A Covenant Personal is when it runs in the Personality and not with the Land, but some Person in particular shall have Benefit by it, or be charged with it; as when a Man covenants to do any personal Thing, as as build or repair a House, serve him, &c. 5 Co. 10.

Note; For more relating to Covenants that run with Estates, vide post.

Thirdly, Inherent or Collateral, and to stand seised to Uses.

Inherent. Also Covenants are Inherent or Collateral.

An Inherent Covenant is conversant about the Land or Estate; as that the Thing demised shall be quietly enjoyed, shall be kept in Repair, shall not be aliened; or if it be to be sold, that the Lessor shall have the first Refusal; to pay Rent, not to cut down Timber-Trees, or do Waste, to fence the Copices when they are new cut, to make further Assurance, &c.

Collateral. A Collateral Covenant is conversant about some collateral Thing that does not at all, or not so immediately concern the Thing granted; as to pay a Sum of Money in Gross, to build a House in another Man's Ground, to make a Feoffment or Lease of other Land, to give other Security to perform the Covenants, or to pay the Rent, or that the Lessor shall distrain for the Rent in some other Land than that which is demised, or the like.

Seised to Uses. There is also a Covenant to stand seised of Land to Uses, which is of late Years become a Kind of Conveyance of Land.

Note. Note; These Distinctions are of very great Use, especially with Relation to Assignments.

Fourthly, Copulative or Disjunctive.

Assent.

Covenant, that the Defendant would not take Timber without the Assent or Assignment of the Lessor or his Assigns, in the Disjunctive; and in the Breach the Plaintiff charges the Defendant with cutting of Timber, without the Assent and Assignment of the Lessor or his Assigns; so he will compel the Defendant to prove more than he ought; for if he did it with their Assent only, or Assignment only, it had been sufficient; but if the Covenant had been in the Copulative, both had been necessary. Leon. 251.

Where mutual Disagreement ought to be alledged.

T. covenanted with T. his Son and A. S. (whom he intended to marry) to give them Meat and Drink in his House; and if any Discontent should happen between the Father and the Son, so that he and his Wife should disagree to dwell with the Father, then they should have six Beasts, Gates, &c. T. the Son died, A. disagrees to dwell with T. the Father, and married with one C. who with his said Wife brings an Action of Covenant against T. the Father: Per Cur', The Declaration is not good, and the Case is grounded upon the second Covenant, which consists upon a Contingency, which Contingency is, if there happen any Discord, &c. the Words are joint, and they ought all to disagree; true it is in some Cases a Conjunctive shall be taken for a Disjunctive; but this is according to the Matter and Circumstance of the Fact; but in this Case it shall not be taken disjunctively: Also it is alledged in the Declaration, that she disagreed; whereas a mutual Disagreement between all ought to be alledged; and Judgment was, Quer' nil cap'. But all agreed, the Wife might have boarded with T. the Father, but her new Husband could not. Popb. 204.

Declaration.

Declaration, that the Covenantor shall pay to the Covenantee, &c. at the Choice and Election of the Covenantee, within a Month after the Death of J. S. 30*l.* or twenty Kine. Defendant pleads, that the Plaintiff within the Month after the Death of J. S. did not make any Choice or Election. It is a good Plea, for the Covenantor is not bound to make a Tender of both, and the Election of the Plaintiff ought to precede the Tender of the Defendant. Leon. 69, 70. Moor 241.

Covenant to deliver such Obligation before such a Day, or to pay him 10*l.* if he requests it; if he does not request the 10*l.* the Covenantor ought to deliver the Obligation, for he had not Election till Request made, but after Request made; he had Election which of them he would do. Roll. Abr. 447.

Defendant covenants to deliver to the Plaintiff before such a Feast such a Ship and Tackle; or in Default thereof, to pay at the same Feast such a Sum as J. S. shall value them to be worth. Defendant pleads before such a Feast J. S. did not value them. On Demurrer it was adjudged for the Plaintiff; for though the Covenantor has Election to do one or the other, yet the Covenant being for his Benefit, he ought to provide the Value; the Value shall be assessed, otherwise he is to deliver the Goods themselves. Law of Covenants 65, 66.

Covenant to pay to A. or his Heirs annually 12*l.* at Michaelmas and Christmas, or to pay to him or his Heirs at any of the said Feasts 150*l.* The Covenantor has Election, yet he ought to pay the 12*l.* yearly, till he pays the 150*l.* and because he did not alledge Payment of the one or the other, it is a Breach. Law of Covenants 66.

The Condition of a Bond on Articles was, that if the Defendant paid the Money according to the Articles of the same Date, that then the Bond should be void; or otherwise it should and might be lawful for the Plaintiff to enter into the Land covenanted in the Articles, to be settled on the Plaintiff by the Defendant. Defendant pleaded that the Plaintiff did enter into the Land. Plaintiff demurred. This is a disjunctive Condition, and in the Defendant's Election to perform either Part. Judgment for the Plaintiff. 2 Keb. 103, 117.

In Debt on Bond for the Performance of Covenants, if Defendant pleads generally the Performance of the Covenants, and the Plaintiff demurs generally upon it, without shewing Cause of Demurrer, Judgment shall be given according to the Truth of the Case, for that Default of Pleading is but Matter of Form, and is aided by Stat. 27 Eliz. But if any of the Covenants be in the Disjunctive, so as it is in the Election of the Covenantor to do the one or the other, then it ought to be specially pleaded, and the Performance of it; for otherwise the Court cannot know what Part has been performed. Leon. 311.

On Bond, that if the Defendant should work out the 40*l.* which he owed, &c. at the usual Prices in Packing, when the Plaintiff should have Occasion for himself or his Friends to employ him therein, or otherwise should pay the 40*l.* that then, &c. Defendant pleads, that he was always ready to have wrought out the 40*l.* but that the Plaintiff did never employ him. It is an ill Plea, because the Defendant did not aver that the Plaintiff had any Occasion to make use of him, and for that it was at his Election to have Work or Money; and not having employed him, but brought his Action, that is a Request in Law, and so he has determined his Election to have the Money. Judgment for the Plaintiff. 2 Mod. 304.

In Debt on Bond for Performance of Covenants, upon the Demise of a Mill by the Plaintiff's Testator to the Defendant for thirteen Years, at the yearly Rent of 8*l.* The Defendant covenanted for himself, his Executors and Administrators, to leave Mill-Stones upon the said Mill at the End of the Term, as good as when he entred, or else to give Satisfaction in Money for as much as they shall be worse, according to the Discretion of the Parties that viewed the same at first: And Defendant further pleads, Quod ipse ad finem & expirationem termini prædicti reliquit duo saxa molaria in & super molendinum prædicti quodq; partes (Anglice, the Parties) quæ primo inspiciebant saxa molaria quæ fuerunt super molend' præd' tempore intrationis ipsius Johannis in molend' illud hucusque non agreeavere quantum duo saxa præd' per ipsum ad expirationem termini præd' ut præfertur relieta fuer' pejora quam præd' saxa molaria in & super molendinum præd' tempore intrationis ejusdem Johannis ad inde; and general Performance as to the other Covenants. Replicat', Demand of the Oyer of the Indenture, wherein inter alia the said Covenant is set forth, and say, Præcludi non, for that at the Time of the Entry of the Defendant upon the Mill, there were two Stones of the Value of 3*l.* and that at the End of the Term the Defendant did not leave so good Stones, nor give any Satisfaction in Money, Nec dedit aliquam satisfactionem in moneta alicui personæ cuicunque pro tant' quant' Lapides molar' per eundem (Def') in eodem molendino reliet' fuer' pejores quam præd' Lapides molares in eod' molendino existen' tempore præd' intrationis ipsius Defendantis. Et hoc parat', &c. Rejoinder prout the Bar. Demurrer. Plaintiff's Counsel insisted, That it was incumbent upon the Defendant to procure the Persons who had the View of the Stones at the Time of the Defendant's Entry upon the Mill, to have adjusted how much the Stones of the Mill, which were left at the End of the Term, were worse than those which were there at the Time of the Defendant's defendant's Entry of the Mill, and for Default thereof he has broken his Covenant; for he does not pretend by his Plea, that he has left Stones so good as the first were. The Disjunctive Covenant is in Advantage of the Covenantor, and therefore he ought to shew the one or the other is performed; and therefore he ought to have procured an Adjustment in the Case; as if a Man obliges himself to resign a Benefice, he ought to procure the Bishop to accept his Resignation. So if a Man be bound to pay 100*l.* or so much as J. S. shall appoint, if he will be excused the Payment of the 100*l.* he ought to procure J. S. to appoint a less Sum to be paid. To which Defendant's Counsel answered, That by the Covenant, he was to leave at the End of the Term as good Stones as were in the Mill at the Time of his Entrance, or to give Satisfaction in Money for so much as they were worse, according to the Discretion of the former Viewers of them; so that the Covenant is in the Disjunctive; and if one Part of a Disjunctive Covenant becomes impossible, the Covenantor is excused to perform the other Part; and this Case is like to Submission to Arbitrament: And for this the Defendant is not bound to procure the Viewers to make any Adjustment in the Case; and they not having made any, and the Disjunctive Covenant being for his Advantage, he was entirely excused. Per Cur', Conditions are for the Benefit of the Obligor, if possible; but if impossible, the Obligation is absolute. There is no Impossibility in this Case, if the Viewers cannot be procured to adjust the Damage, yet the Defendant might have left as good Stones at the End of the Term as were there at the Entrance of the Defendant, which is the other Part of the Covenant; and this Case is not like Submission to Arbitrament; for by it both Parties oblige themselves to stand to the Arbitrament of the Arbitrators, but none of them obliges himself to procure them to make an Award. But in this Case, the Disjunctive Condition being in Advantage of the Defendant, he ought to procure the first Viewers to make Adjudication of the Damages. Lutw. 691.

If one binds himself to pay 10*l.* or so much as J. S. shall appoint, if J. S. will not appoint any Sum to be paid, the Obligor shall pay the 10*l.* Ibid.

If one be bound to make a Lease to J. S. or pay him 100*l.* before Michaelmas, and J. S. dies before Michaelmas, the 100*l.* ought to be paid. Ibid.

A Man covenants, in Consideration of 100*l.* to make a Lease to J. S. for his Life before Michaelmas, or to repay the 100*l.* and J. S. dies before Michaelmas: Resolved that the 100*l.* should be repaid. Ibid.

Fifthly, Executed, Executory or Present.

Some Covenants are Executed, i. e. That a Thing is done already; and some are Executory, i. e. That a Thing shall be done hereafter; and these are good.

But if it be of a Thing present, as I covenant that my Horse is your's, it is void.

Sixthly, Affirmative or Negative.

If the Lessor covenants with the Lessee, that he shall have sufficient Hedge-boot by Assignment of the Bailiff of the Lessor; by this the Lessee is not restrained from that Liberty which the Law allows him, and therefore he may take without Assignment; but if the Words be Negative, that he shall not take without Assignment, or that he shall take by Assignment, and not otherwise, contra. Dyer 19.

P. brought an Action against D. on a Covenant that he shall go in such a Ship out of the River Thames to such a Place in Spain; the Words of the Covenant were, Quod decederet, procederet & non deviet. D. pleaded Performance generally; per Cur' The Plea is not good: And this Diversity is taken between a Negative Covenant, which is only in Affirmance of an Affirmative Covenant precedent, and a Negative Covenant which is additional to an Affirmative Covenant, as here; for in the first Case Performance generally is a good Plea, but in the last not; he ought to plead specially; and in this Case the Defendant might have departed, proceeded and gone to Africa, or to the West-Indies, if he had not been restrained by the Negative Covenant, & non deviet. Sid. 87.

A Negative Covenant, as that P. shall not use a Trade; in Consideratione inde, D. promises him 100*l.* per Ann. during Life: This does not amount to a Condition precedent, (but is mutual) for then P. shall never have the 100*l.* per Ann. during his Life; for it is not possible for P. to perform his Covenant in his Life, for at any Time during his Life he may break it; and a Negative Covenant is not said to be performed until it becomes impossible to break it, which Impossibility may not happen but by P.'s Death. 2 Saund. 155, 156, 157. Mod. 64. 2 Keb. 674.

On a Covenant that D. should not deliver up Possession to any Person but the Lessor, or such Persons as should lawfully recover; an Action of Debt on a Bond for the Performance was was brought, to which D. pleaded that he did not deliver up Possession but to such Persons as lawfully recovered it: Twisden said, He ought to have shewn that he delivered it to J. S. per lawful Title; but on the other Side it was said, the Bar is pursuant to the Count; and Twisden conceived that in Affirmative Covenants pleading Performance generally is sufficient, and so on Negative; for it is sufficient for the Defendant to plead an Excuse, and the Plaintiff must assign Breach to intitle himself. Windbam ad idem. Negative Covenants may enwrap many Particulars; as to say he did not cut down any Timber, unless to make Bars and Stiles. Judgment pro Defendant. Keb. 380, 413. Sed vide 2 Palm. 70.

Seventhly, Joint or Several.

If the Merchants in a Charterparty covenant with the Owners separatim, That one Merchant shall pay 3*l.* and another Merchant 3*l.* & sic de cæteris; but the Words are Conveniunt separatim, and in the End there is this Clause, Et ad performance omnium & singularum conventionum ex parte prædictorum Mercatorum perimplend' quilibet Mercatorum prædictorum separatim obligat præfat' seipsum Magistro & proprietariis in double the Freight: The Covenants are several by the Words Conveniunt separatim, and the last Part by which quilibet eor' obligat seipsum, &c. refers to the precedent Covenant, where they Conveniunt separatim; and so it is also several. Though the Covenants of the Masters and Owners were joint, yet the Covenants of the Merchants were several; therefore if any of the Seals of the Merchants be broke off, this only avoids the Deed unto him. 5 Co. 22. b.

In Covenant upon a Charterparty, between B. the Owner, and L. and M. Merchants Freighters of a Ship, by which B. put to Freight to them the Ship in a Voyage to G. at 48*l.* per Month; there were mutual Covenants between the Parties, Et quemlibet eorum modo sequent', &c.

Exception was taken to the Declaration, because the Action is brought against one of the Merchants only upon Breach of a Covenant, omitting the other; and the Covenant is between the Parties by mutual Covenant. And the Covenant by them, Et quemlibet, does not make it Disjunctive between each Party of each Part, but leaves it a joint Covenant of the one Part, and several of the other, as the Duty is, which ought to be paid by both the Defendants, each having equal Benefit, Et quemlibet eorum shall be referred to the Plaintiff only, who is the sole Party of this Part; the Covenantor was to pay Freight, which the Defendant had not paid. Per Cur', [non allocat'] the Covenant between them, Et quemlibet eorum, is joint and several of each Part. 2 Lev. 56.

In Covenant the Plaintiff declared, That the Defendant and J. S. convenerunt pro se & quolibet eorum, that they, or either of them, would lade such a Ship, and pay for the Freight, &c. The Defendant pleaded in Abatement, that the other Covenantor was in full Life not named, and prayed Judgment of the Writ. Holt, C. J. took a Diversity between the Words, A. and B. conveniunt & quilibet eorum convenit, and A. and B. conveniunt pro se & quolibet eorum; for in the first Case, quilibet eorum convenit expressly serves the Lien; but pro quolibet eorum seems to go to the Thing to be done, that is, that they both, or either of them, would do it; but the other Justices econtra; and the Judgment was, that the Defendant should answer over. Salk. 393.

If a Man covenants with ten, and each of them, to make the Sea-Banks in D. and does not do it, by which the Land of two of the ten is surrounded, those two may have an Action of Covenant without the others. Bro. Jointenants, pl. 72.

An Action of Covenant was brought by the Herald Painters, & pro quolibet & singulis eorum, that they should bring their Work to such a Place, and that there such Work shall be done, &c. and because one of the Covenantors did not bring his Work to the Place aforesaid, there to be worked, the others brought this Action; and the Action was adjudged to be well brought, for it is founded upon the Work not being brought to the Place appointed for it; and in this Part the Covenant is joint, and the Interest joint. Skin. 401.

In Indentures of Apprenticeship, the Father covenants to pay the Apprenticeship Money, the Son covenants to account for his Master's Goods, and in the Conclusion the Father and Son each bind themselves for the true Performance of all the Covenants and Agreements therein. Per Cur', The End of binding the Father was to answer Wrongs done by the Son; and he must answer for any; and the Covenant that each did bind himself, &c. must be so where the Son is bound to perform the Thing for which this Covenant was made; and this Clause is usually inserted, that the Covenants may be taken distributively, viz. That each of the Covenantors should perform his Part, and this makes the Covenant of the Son bind the Father, who covenanted for him as well as for himself. 6 Mod. 190.

In Covenant Plaintiff declared that by Indenture Tripartite, made between T. of the first Part, the Defendant of the second Part, and C. the Plaintiff's Testator, of the third Part,

(on Contract with the Lords Commissioners for buying all Prize Brandies which should be condemned by the Admiralty) and it was declared that all the Parties had an equal Interest in the Contract: Et superinde quilibet eorum respective pro se, Executoribus & Administratoribus suis, & pro ejus proprio actu sive actis, & pro tanto quant' ad ejus proprium officium (Anglice, Duty) attinebat, sed non pro actu sive officio alterius convenit & agreevit ad & cum altero & alteris eorum respectivum, & ejus & eorum respectivum Executoribus & Administratoribus, &c. per eandem Indent' modo & forma sequent', That 600l. Stock should be put into a Goldsmith's Hand. That all the Prize Brandies should be bought by them in Partnership upon their joint Account. That none of the Parties (during the Time of the Partnership) shall sell or trade in Brandy Wines, by himself only, or in Company with any other, but only upon the same joint Account. That the Monies received by any of the Parties shall be paid in to the Goldsmith. No Advantage of Successorship, and Account to be given to the Executors, &c. And then the Plaintiff assigned for Breach,

1. That the Defendant, during the Partnership without the Assent of T. and C. sold seventy Tons of Brandy which came to his Hands, Vertute contract' præd', to Persons not known to the Plaintiffs.

2. That the Defendant had merchandized and traded with 200 Tons of Brandy, Pro computo suo proprio & non pro juncto computo pertinen' ad Indentur' præd', contra formam & effectum Indentur' præd'.

3. That he had received several Sums of Money, and had not paid them in to the Goldsmith.

4. That he had not given Account to the Plaintiff's Executors, &c. upon Judgment by Default, Writ of Inquiry of Damages awarded, and Damages entirely assessed. 2.

Exceptions to the Declaration upon the second Breach, because he does not shew whether the said 200 Tons of Brandy were Prize Brandy, received upon the joint Account, or others; for the Defendant might trade with Brandy Wines upon his own Account; and this ought to be shewed in particular, for if they were Prize Brandies, then Part of it is comprized within the first Breach of selling 70 Tons; and so for this Incertainty, the Damages being intirely assessed, it is ill.

2. The Covenant is joint with the Plaintiff's Testator, and with the said T. who survived him; for though the Covenant is joint and several in the Words, yet the Interest and Cause of Action is only joint, for it is equal Damage to C. and T. if the Covenant be broken, and so they ought to have joined in the Action; and C. being dead, the Action survives to T. as in 5 Co. 18. b. Per Cur', The Declaration is ill for both Points. Saund. 154, 155.

If a Conveyance of a Rectory be to two, and the Grantor covenants with them, Et eorum altero, that he was Legitime seifitus of the Rectory; they must both join in an Action, because the Interest of the Covenantees is joint. Saund. 153. 5 Co. 18. b.

An Indenture Tripartite was made between three; A. was one of them, and he covenanted with them & quolibet eorum; and the Covenant was, That the Land which he had aliened to one of them was discharged of all Incumbrances; and he to whom the Alienation or Limitation of the Land was made, brought Covenant sole: Per Cur', It ought to be brought by both.

The Covenant was with F. G. and F. W. Et cum quolibet eorum: These Words do not make Covenants to be several; so is Beckwith's Case, 5 Co.

One covenants with four, that he was lawfully and sole seised of the Rectory of A. and two of the four bring an Action of Covenant; it does not lie, for the other Covenantees ought to have joined notwithstanding the Words, Et ad & cum quolibet eorum; and as to these Words, this Diversity was agreed in Slingsby's Case, 5 Co.

When it appears by the Covenant, that every of the Covenantees has, or is to have several Interests or Estates; these Words, Et cum quolibet eorum, make the Covenant several in respect of their several Interests.

As if a Man by Indenture demises to A. Blackacre, to B. Whiteacre, and to C. Greenacre, and covenants with them, Et quolibet eorum, that he is lawful Owner of all the said Acres; by the Words Et cum quolibet eorum, the Covenant is made several.

But if he demises the Acres to them jointly, then the Words, Et cum quolibet eorum are void, for a Man by his Covenant (unless in respect of several Interests) may not make this first joint, and then make it several by these or other Words.

And although divers Persons may bind themselves, Et quemlibet eorum, and so the Obligation shall be joint or several at the Election of the Obligee; yet a Man may not bind himself to three, and to every of them, to make it joint or several, at the Election of the several Persons for one and the same Cause, for the Court should be in doubt as to which of them to give Judgment. 5 Co. 18, 19. And to this Purpose and for the same Reason it is said in Windham's Case, 5 Co.

D. covenanted that he would not agree to take the Farm of the Excise for the County of York, without the Consent of P. and another. P. alone brought an Action of Covenant, and assigned assigned for Breach, that he did agree to take it without his Consent; and 1000*l.* Damages given by Verdict. Per Cur', Here is no joint Interest, but that each of the Covenanters might maintain an Action for his particular Damages. Vide 2 Mod. Rep. 82.

Covenant for three jointly and severally to pay; Breach assigned that Defendant did not pay. Per Doderidge, he ought to aver, nor any of the others. Cur' contra, The Difference is, if the Action had been brought against all, then the Non-payment shall be alledged in all; but when the Action is brought against one only, it is sufficient to say, that he did not pay; and if any of the others paid it, it shall be properly pleaded by the Defendant. Palm. 398. Latch 50.

If there be three of the one Part and two of the other Part in an Indenture, in which the two covenant jointly and severally to do a certain Thing; and the three covenant also jointly and severally with the two, after the Performance of the said Thing by the two, to pay to the said two a certain Sum for every Particular, &c. and after, these general Words follow, (viz.) Pro vera & reali performance omnium Articulorum & Agreementorum prædictorum alternatim utraque partium prædictarum obligavit se, Hæredes, Executores, Administratores & Assignatos suos in & subter pœnalitatem sexaginti librarum Sterlingorum. The Question was, Whether in an Action of Debt upon the last Clause for the 60*l.* the Action may be brought against one of the said three only? or, whether this be joint and several, as well as the Covenant? Adjudged that the Covenant was joint and not several, by three Judges, against the Opinion of Roll. 2 Roll. Abr. 149.

The Covenant is joint and several, in as much as the subject Matter is joint, viz. the Freight of the Ship, for and by them all; and the Words, for every of them, refer to the Words, severally covenant, and the first Word, viz. themselves, make it joint. Law of Covenants 200.

Eighthly, Mutual and Reciprocal.

In Trespass Quare clausum fregit & sepes prosternavit, brought by Lessee for Years, Defendants justified, for that M. seised of the Lands let them to Plaintiff, excepting the Trees, and Liberty to root them up, fell them and carry them away Cum averiis, reparando sepes & implendo foveas; and that M. afterwards granted the Trees and Liberty to A. and that he and the other Defendants, as his Servants, in Prostration, &c. used this Liberty (which is specially pleaded) and justify Quæ est eadem fractio. Plaintiff demurred, for that the Defendants have not alledged that they have filled up the Ditches, and amended the Fences according to the Agreement. Per Cur', This is not a Condition, which not being performed destroys the Agreement and avoids the Liberty; but it is a Covenant, for which the Lessee has Remedy by Action. Upon which the Chief Justice cited the following Case:

Sir G. B. covenanted with P. that he should quietly enjoy the Land demised, paying the Rent reserved; Defendant pleaded that the Plaintiff had not paid the Rent according to the Reservation. And upon a Demurrer it was adjudged, that the Word paying does not make the Covenant conditional, but that it was a reciprocal Covenant upon which the Party may bring an Action. T. Jones 205.

The Lord of a Manor covenanted to assure the Freehold to one of his Copyholders and to his Heirs; and the Copyholder, in Consideration of the same Covenant performed, promises to pay a certain Sum of Money; the Copyholder is not bound to pay the Money, unless the Lord first perform his Covenant. Aliter if the Covenant on the Part of the Copyholder had been in Consideration of the Covenant to be performed. 2 Saund. 156, 157.

If the Covenant on the one Part be Negative, and the Affirmative Covenant of the other Part be, in consideratione performance inde; although the Negative Part is broken, yet the Affirmative Covenant ought to be performed. Ibid.

If A. by Indenture in December 22 C. 2. leases to B. a Messuage for twelve Years, and covenants with B. to repair it with all necessary Reparation, before Midsummer following; and B. covenants on his Part, Quod ab & post tale tempus quale A. repararet & emendaret præd' messuag' quod tunc præd' B. sufficient' repararet præd' messuag' ad omnia tempora durante termino præd'. A. brought an Action of Covenant against B. for Non-reparation of the House after Midsummer; and declared, That although he had performed all the Covenants on on his Part to be performed (without any particular Averment) that he had repaired it before Midsummer, &c. yet the Defendant had not repaired after the said Feast: This is a good Declaration; for the Covenant of A. to repair it before Midsummer is not a Condition precedent, but only the Time divided and mutual between A. and B. viz. that A. shall repair it before Midsummer, and B. after, during the Term, for which each of them may have Remedy by Action against the other. Roll. Abr. 416. Style 140. This is a reciprocal Covenant, and though one does not perform his Part, it shall not excuse the other.

Plaintiff declared, that he was possessed of a Term for eighty Years, and it was agreed between him and the Defendant, that he should assign all his Interest therein to the Defendant, who proinde should pay 250*l.* and that he promised, that in Consideration that the Plaintiff at his Request had promised to perform all on his Part, that he would perform all on his Part; and then sets forth, That Defendant had paid a Guinea in Part of the said 250*l.* and that he (the Plaintiff) obtulit se to assign the Premises to the Defendant by Indenture, which was written and sealed, and would have delivered it to him, but he refused, and assigned the Breach in the Non-payment of the Money. Defendant demurred, for that the Assignment ought to precede the Payment, and that it was not a mutual Promise; it is, that the Plaintiff is to assign, and the Defendant proinde, which is as much as to say, pro assignatione (vide Dyer 16. b.) But per Cur. It is a mutual Promise, and the Plaintiff needs not aver the Performance; and it is as reasonable that the Plaintiff should have his Money before he makes the Assignment, as that the Defendant should have the Term assigned before he pays the Money. 2 Mod. 33.

W. was to raise 500 Soldiers, and bring them to such a Port, and C. was to find Shipping, for which he sued upon the Covenant, though the other had not raised the Soldiers; for that can only be alledged in Mitigation of Damages, and is no Excuse for the Defendant; and it was adjudged, that this was not a Condition precedent, but distinct and mutual Covenants, upon which several Actions might be brought. 2 Mod. 75. Style 186.

In a Charterparty the Master of the Ship covenanted to sail with the first fair Wind to B. and that the Mariners should attend with a Boat to relade the Ship, and then to return with the first fair Wind to L. and to unlade and deliver the Goods; and the Merchants covenanted to pay so much for Freight, and so much for Demurrage every Day. The Master brought an Action for the Freight and Demurrage, and declared he sailed such a Day with the first fair Wind, and upon all the other Points. And the Defendant as to the Freight pleaded, that the Ship did not return directly to L. but went to A. and T. and made divers Deviations, and by such Delays the Goods were spoiled; and as to Demurrage, that this was occasioned by the Negligence of the Mariners in not attending with their Boat to relade the Ship. Plaintiff demurred, and had Judgment, for the Covenants are mutual and reciprocal, and each may have his Action against the other, but may not plead the Breach of one in Bar of the other; and perhaps the Damage on the one Side and the other are not equal, ergo not pleadable in Bar the one of the other; but each by his Action shall recover against the other the Damage certain for him. 3 Lev. 41.—T. Jones 216.

In Covenant upon a Charterparty, the Plaintiff declares, that it was agreed that his Ship shall be ready and provided with a sufficient Crew, Tackle, &c. for a Voyage to N. in partibus transmarinis, upon the 12th of August, and there should lade with Merchandizes of the Defendant, and should bring them back to T. and that Defendant covenanted to pay 3*l.* 15*s.* for every Tun so brought, and assigns the Breach in Non-payment of 112*l.* 10*s.* for 30 Tuns. To which Defendant pleads, that the Ship was not ready, &c. on the 12th of August, by which he lost the Profit of his Merchandize. Plaintiff demurs. Per Cur. The Plea is not good, for these are reciprocal Covenants, & utraque pars has Remedy for Non-performance. Judgment for Plaintiff. T. Jones 216.

It is said, if one covenants to serve me a Year, and I covenant to pay him 10*l.* for it; although he does not serve me, I must pay him the 10*l.*

But if I covenant to pay him 10*l.* if he serves me a Year, contra; for there I am not bound to pay the Money, unless he serves me a Year.

So if one covenants to make new Pales, so as he may have the old, he is not bound to make the new Pales, unless he may have the old ones.

So if one covenants to pay Money for Service, Counsel, or the like; or covenants to marry one's Daughter, or make an Estate, and the Covenant is penned conditionally, so as one Thing is the Cause of another, and is not set down by mutual and reciprocal Covenants; in all these Cases if the Cause or Condition be not observed the Covenant shall not be performed. Law of Covenants 76, 77.

In Debt on Bond to perform Articles, Plaintiff covenanted to assign over his Trade to the Defendant, and that he should not take away any of his Customers, and in Consideration of the Performance thereof, Defendant covenants to pay Plaintiff 60*l.* per Ann. for Life, and pleads, that after the Agreement Plaintiff before any Thing done did work for J. S. a Customer.

Customer. Plaintiff demurs. Judgment for the Plaintiff. This is not a Condition precedent, but these are mutual Covenants, and the Plaintiff needs not wait for the Performance, for that might be as long as he lives; but as on Bonds of Arbitrament on Breach, either Party has Remedy. 2 Keb. 674. Mod. 64. Sid. 464. 2 Saund. 155.

In Covenant Plaintiff declares, that by Indenture between him and the Defendant, (reciting, that there were divers Controversies, &c. for Determination whereof) the said Parties bound themselves, in Consideration of 12 d. given to each other, to observe the Arbitration of, &c. to arbitrate, &c. de & super præmissis, and the Plaintiff and Defendant mutually covenanted to do several Matters. That the Arbitrator did thereupon make an Award, and the Defendant did covenant with Plaintiff, that in Consideration of Plaintiff's sealing and delivering (at Defendant's Request) one Part of a Lease for Years (to the Award annexed) for the Rent therein reserved, that the Defendant should pay so much Money for the Tithes: It was also awarded by the said Arbitrator, and the Defendant did covenant that he would be accountable to the Plaintiff for all such Arrears of Rent, Tithes, and Composition Money for Tithes, as should be arising and renewing upon the said Land, &c. according to such a Value per Ann. whereof the Defendant could not lawfully discharge himself. The Plaintiff avers, he has observed all the Covenants on his Part, &c. and assigns for Breach, that he has not accounted with him for all Arrears of Tithes and Composition Money, &c. and that he has requested him to come to account, and that he refused. Defendant pleads actio non, and confesses the Indenture; but says, in eadem Indentura ulterius agreeatum fuit & provisum, That the Plaintiff should allow and discount upon the Account all Sums of Money for Parsons Dinners at the Request of the Plaintiff, and such other Sums which he had directly laid out, and that such a Day paratus fuit & obtulit se, & adhuc paratus est, to account for all Arrears of Rent, if the Plaintiff would discount, &c. and the Plaintiff refused all such Sums of Money, &c. Plaintiff demurs. Per Cur', It is an absolute Covenant which charges him to be accountable, and not if the Plaintiff would allow Parsons Dinners; for it is impossible the Plaintiff can make such Allowance till the Defendant has accounted; they are mutual and distinct Covenants, and they have each a Remedy upon them, and the Provisum & Agreeatum est does not amount to a Condition, but is a Covenant. Judgment for Plaintiff. 2 Mod. 73.

There were mutual Promises and Agreements between P. and D. which P. set forth in his Declaration, and alledged generally, that D. Non performavit agreementum suum prædictum, without shewing a particular Breach. Verdict and Judgment for P. in C. B. Error was assigned, that the Breach was too general, which being Matter of Substance, the Right of the Action could not be tried, and therefore it is not within any of the Statutes of Jeofails. But Judgment was affirmed. Knight and Keach, Pasch. 3 W. & M. B. R.

In Debt upon a Deed Poll, concerning the Purchase of Land by the Defendant of the Plaintiff. Plaintiff declares, that by the said Deed it was agreed between him and the Defendant, that the Defendant should pay to the Plaintiff so much Money upon such a Day for the Land, which he has not done. Defendant demurs upon the Declaration, for that the Plaintiff does not aver that the Defendant enjoyed the Land; and where there is not a mutual Remedy, the Deed not being indented, there ought to be such Averment. This seems a Covenant by itself. Judgment for the Plaintiff. But the Defendant brought a Writ of Error. T. Raym. 183. Q. for,

In Debt on an Obligation for 70 l. in these Words, Memorandum, that (such a Day) it is agreed between (the Plaintiff) and (Defendant), that the (Defendant) the first of October next, pay (the Plaintiff) 70 l. for (such a House); in Witness whereof we have hereunto mutually set our Hands and Seals. Defendant demurred, for that the Declaration was ill, it not having averred that the Plaintiff had conveyed the House to the Defendant, and that for is a Condition precedent, and if it be not, the Defendant has no Remedy for the House; for though both sealed, yet it is not an Indenture of two Parts, nor like the Case in Cro. Car. Hoe and Taylor, where the Words, It is agreed between the Parties, Lessee to repair, Lessor to find great Timber, were agreed to be a mutual Covenant. To which it was answered, it ought to be intended that the House was conveyed before, for it is not to pay 70 l. for the Conveyance of the House, but for the House itself; and the Court held it a mutual Covenant; and if the House was not conveyed before, as it may be intended it was, the Defendant may have an Action of Covenant for the House, for it is to be intended, that the Plaintiff sealed to the Defendant another Part by the Words, have mutually set their Hands and Seals. Judgment for Plaintiff. Defendant brought a Writ of Error. Judgment affirmed. Lev. 274.

Upon mutual Promises, Performance needs not be averred, and an ill Averment of that which needs not be averred, does not hurt. Lev. 293. 2 Keb. 542.

Declaration upon mutual Promises of Agreement, by which Plaintiff agrees to release to Defendant his Equity of Redemption in two Closes; in Consideration of which Defendant undertakes to pay Plaintiff 7*l.* The making the Release is a Condition precedent to the Payment of the Money. Thorp and Thorp, Law of Covenants 84.

The Books vary much, where in an Action of Covenant Averment of Performance needs be alledged, and where Promise may be pleaded against Promise, and where each must bring his Action; and therefore the Point is well settled in the said Case. Ibid.

The Case of Nicholas and Rainbred was agreed in Hob. 88. to be good Law; there, in Consideration that N. promised to deliver to Defendant a Cow, the Defendant promised to deliver to him 50*s.* Adjudged, Plaintiff needs not aver the Delivery of the Cow, because there was Promise for Promise.

It is generally true, that where there are mutual Promises the Plaintiff needs not alledge Performance on his Part, but then it depends upon the Words of the Agreement, whether it shall be so or not; and certainly an Agreement may be made, so that one shall not be bound to part with his Money until he had a Consideration for it.

There is no Reason that one shall be compelled to pay Money for the Performance of an Act before the Act be done; but here observe the Differences,

1. If a Day certain be appointed for Payment of Money, and this Day happens before the Act can be performed for which the Money is to be paid; there although the Words are, that one shall pay so much for the Performance of such an Act by the other, yet the Party may have an Action for the Money after the Day appointed for the Payment of it, and before the Act to be done; as Sir Ralph Poole's Case, cited 7 Rep. in Ughtred's Case: One covenants to serve the other in the Wars of France with three Esquires, and the other covenants for this to pay forty-two Marks; an Action lies before the Service performed.

So 1 Vent. 147. One promises that in Consideration the other will permit him to enjoy such Land for seven Years, that he will pay him 20*l.* pro quolibet anno, an Action lies after every Year; and for the same Reason (in Saund. 319.) where it was agreed that C. should give P. 500*l.* for all his Land, the Money to be paid a Week after Midsummer, It was adjudged that an Action lies for the Money before the Land is conveyed.

2. If a certain Day be appointed by Agreement, yet if the Day happens after the Consideration is to be performed, there ought to be an Averment that the Service is to be performed. Dyer 76.

If a Contract be made between two, that for a Hawk of the one to be delivered on such a Day, the other shall have his Horse at Christmas; if the Hawk be not delivered at the Day, the other shall not have an Action for the Horse. Vide Roll. Jones 403.

A Testator covenanted in a Deed of Feoffment, 1. That notwithstanding any Thing by him done to the contrary, he was seised in Fee-simple or Fee-tail, without any Condition or Limitation to determine it. 2. That he had Power and Authority to sell. 3. That the Lands were free from Incumbrances. 4. And that the Feoffee shall peaceably enjoy against all Persons claiming under him, his Father and Grandfather. Notwithstanding any Thing by him done to the contrary.

The Plaintiff declared, That the Testator had not Power to sell the Land.

The Defendant pleaded, That the Testator, notwithstanding any Thing done by him, had Power to sell the Land.

Plaintiff demurred. And thereupon it was held by three Justices against North, That though the Covenants are distinct, yet the first two are synonyma, and of the same Nature; for if he is seised in Fee, he has Power to sell; and it may not be intended, that when by his first Covenant he covenanted against his own Act, that immediately by another Covenant of the same Effect he should covenant against all the World; and the two subsequent Covenants are particular and limited, and therefore the middle Covenants shall not be more indefinite and general. But North held this absolute, and not limited, by Things made by him in the first Covenant, or by him, his Father or Grandfather, as in Cro. Eliz. 106. a Covenant that notwithstanding any Thing done by him, he was seised in Fee; and that no Reversion was in the Crown, and it was of the yearly Value of 300l. each one is distinct and absolute. 3 Lev. 46.

7. and P. enfeoff Q. of Lands, and they covenant That J. is seised of a good indefeasible Estate in Fee-simple in this Land, and that he or P. had a good Authority to sell, and that there is not any Reversion in the Crown by any Act done by J. or P. or either of them. The Question was, Whether the Words, By any Act, refers to all before, or to this last Part only; the two first Covenants being in the Affirmative, and the last in the Negative: Per Cur', They are several Covenants. Lit. Rep. 62, 65, 80, 185, 203. Sid. 328.

The Bargainor and his Son, for themselves and their Heirs, did covenant and grant to and with the Bargainee, &c. that they the said Bargainor and his Son, according to the true Meaning of the said Indenture, were seised of a good Estate in Fee-simple, and that the said Bargainor and his Son, or one of them, have a good Authority to sell, according to the true Intent of the said Indenture; and that there was no Reversion in the King by any Act or Acts, Thing or Things, done by him or them. Hob. held, That they are all one Covenant, and that the Words, By any Act or Acts done by them, relate to the other two precedent Sentences; for if these Words had begun the Sentence, it had been clear, and why not so now? Hutton and Winch held, they were three several Covenants. Hob. agreed they were several Covenants in Point of Fact, but not in Point of Obligation, there being not several Words of binding. Adjudged to be several Covenants, and one independant on the other. 2 Roll. Abr. 250.

In Debt on a Bond for the Performance of Covenants, Defendant pleaded Performance; Marriage: the Covenants were, That T. B. Son of W. B. should marry A. M.'s Daughter: And in Consideration of this Marriage M. covenants to pay 300l. W. B. covenants to assure such Lands to the said T. B. and A. for her Jointure, and there were other Covenants for quiet Enjoyment, &c. Et (inter alia) M. covenants that he will procure the said T. B. to be presented, admitted, instituted and inducted into such a Benefice, upon the next Avoidance of the said Church, which he did not perform. Defendant demurred upon this Assignment of the Breach, because the Covenant is against Law, being a simoniacal Agreement: But per Cur', If it had appeared to have been, that in Consideration of the said Marriage, &c. he would procure him to be presented, &c. it had been a simoniacal Contract, and had avoided the Obligation; but this Covenant depends not on the former Covenants, but is a distinct Covenant by itself, and without a special Averment, or shewing, that it was a simo-simoniacal Contract, it shall not be so intended. But it may be a Covenant upon a good Consideration. Cro. Car. 425, 426.

But that, &c. The Assignor of a Lease for Years covenanted that he had not made any former Grant, or any Thing by which the Lease may in any Manner be frustrate, but that the Assignee and his Executors, by virtue of this Grant and Assignment, may quietly enjoy the Premises during the Term, without the Disturbance of him or of any Person: The Words, but that, &c. depend upon the former Words, and are not new Matter or Sentence; and therefore the Entry of a Stranger by Eigne Title had not broken the Covenant. Dyer 240. pl. 43.

So if the Wife of the Lessor had recovered in Dower.

In Covenant that a Lease assigned to the Plaintiff was a sure and indefeasible Lease, and that Plaintiff should quietly enjoy without the Let, Trouble or Interruption by him; on Performance pleaded, Plaintiff assigns a Breach by the Entry of a Stranger, to which the Defendant rejoined, it was by Disseisin; the Question was, Whether this be one entire Covenant, nor not. Per Cur', The latter Words cannot qualify the former, they not being Sense joined together; as, on Covenant that the Land is of a certain Value, and that the Covenantee shall enjoy it notwithstanding any Act done by him; this can never be applied to the former Part of the Value. So here the Demise was made before the Assignment, and the Assignor had nothing to do with it, therefore the Saying that the Plaintiff should enjoy it without the Let of the Defendant does not affect the former Part: So was Dr. Caldecott's Case, who purchased Bishops Land of the Lord Salisbury, with just such a Covenant, and he had Relief in Chancery thereupon, because the Intent was only to make good his own Assignment, not the original Title. But per Cur', Had the Words been, to enjoy notwithstanding any Act, that should have gone to the Whole. 2 Keb. 76, 201, 213. Saund. 58. Sid. 328.

Several Covenants or Assumpsits are always in Consideration one of another, yet being distinct, one is no Bar of another. 3 Keb. 352.

Reparation. If a Lessee covenants that he will from Time to Time during the Term, after three Months Warning, sufficiently repair, and at the End of the Term leave it sufficiently repaired to the Lessor: The last Clause is distinct by itself, he must leave it sufficiently repaired without Notice. 2 Keb. 505, 543, 569. Sid. 429. Saund. 321.

A Covenant with two Conjunctim & Divisim, is joint or several, according as the Case is. Moor 849. pl. 1154.

A Covenant in an Indenture Tripartite between three, & quilibet eorum, if one is damnified, they must both join. 2 Leon. Case 60.

A Covenant with three jointly and severally that they should pay, &c. and one of the three was sued, and a Breach assigned that he has not paid: And it was demurred to, because he had not said, Nor any of the other had not paid. Per Cur', If the Action had been brought against all, the Non-payment of all must be alledged; but when brought but against one, then it is sufficient to say, That he has not paid, and if either of them has paid, the Party sued ought to plead it.

So if two are jointly and severally bound in a Bond; in an Action against one, it is sufficient to say, that he has not paid it. Latch 50.

In a Charterparty the Covenants are several and not joint. 5 Co. 22. b.

Tenthly, General or particular; and where the particular or express Covenant qualifies the general, or not.

If A. covenants that he has lawful Right to grant, &c. and that B. shall enjoy notwithstanding any Claim under A. These are two several Covenants, and the first is general, not qualified by the second; one Covenant goes to the Title, and the other to the Possession. Mod. 101.

A Grantor covenanted that he had good Right. Plaintiff says he had no good Right. Defendant says, that the Covenant was ulterius, that the Son should enjoy it, notwithstanding any Act done by the Father, and that he did no Act. The latter Covenant restrains the former; it is pleaded to be in the same Indenture, all the Parts whereof shall be taken together, (vide 4 Co. 81.) and the particular shall qualify the general; that Covenant being that the Covenantor tantum modo warrantizaret. And they need not set forth the Indenture, for it is confessed by the Demurrer, and the Plaintiff desired Leave to discontinue. Keb. 234. Lev. 57.

If A. (in a Conveyance of Land) covenants that he is seised of a good and indefeasible Estate in Fee, and that he had good Power to convey it to B. according to the Indenture, notwithstanding any Act done by him: This last Clause and Covenant does not restrain the first Clause of the Covenant, viz. That he had a good and indefeasible Estate in Fee, notwithstanding any Act done by him; but this is absolute and general. And the general Use of a Conveyance is to make it so, and the one Covenant independant on the other. 2 Roll. Abr. 250.

Covenant

Covenant to enjoy absque legali molestatione of the Defendant. Rainsford conceived a general Entry no Breach, (for that shall be intended tortious) and the general Covenant is restrained by special Covenant against any lawful Let. 2 Keb. 717, 723.

An express Covenant controuls an implied one, but he may use either of them at his Pleasure.

A special Warranty controuls a general, and the Reason is, no Man will take an express special Warranty, when the Intent is that he shall have a general Warranty. Winch 93, 94.

D. by Indenture granted a Fee-Farm Rent to P. which he had purchased of the King's Lands, and covenanted that he was seised in Fee, and had good Right to sell. The Breach assigned, that he had not good Right. D. pleaded, that ulterius agreeat' fuit in eadem Indentura, that the Covenants in the Indenture shall not extend to Acts further than to Acts done by the Vendor and his Heirs. P. demurred. Per Cur', Though this is a remote Agreement at the End of the Deed, and far distant from the other Covenant, yet it has qualified the first Covenant, and restrains it to Acts done by the Covenantor himself only. Lev. 57. Keb. 234.

J. and V. were Jointenants of a Mill by a Lease for Years. V. assigns all his Interest in the Mill to another, without J.'s Assent or Privity, and dies. J. afterwards (reciting the said Lease, and that all came to him by Survivorship) granted the said Mill, and all his Estate, Title and Interest to P. and covenants that he shall peaceably enjoy it notwithstanding any Act done by him, and gave a Bond for the Performance of Covenants; upon which P. brought an Action of Debt. J. pleaded, that the Plaintiff had enjoyed it notwithstanding any Act done by him. P. replied, that V. Jointenant with J. assigned his Estate to J. D. who entered and expelled him. Defendant demurred; and it was adjudged against the Defendant, for the Grant was never good; for he had no Power to grant one Moiety, and yet he had expressly granted the Mill to P. And the Condition of the Obligation being to perform all Grants, the Grant being defective at the first as to a Moiety, which is the Substance of the Agreement of all the Parties; this is not qualified by the Covenant ensuing. And it is not like Nokes's Case, 4 Rep. for there the Grant was good for the Whole, and becomes ill by Eviction afterwards, and therefore in that Case the Covenant ensuing qualified the general Covenant. Yelv. 175. Cro. Jac. 233. Lit. Rep. 206. Bulst. 3, 4. 2 Brownl. 212.

D. let a House to P. by the Words Demise and Grant, which Words import a Covenant in Law; and the Lessor covenanted that the Lessee should enjoy the House during the Term, without Eviction by the Lessor, or any claiming under him, (which express Covenant was narrower than the other) and gave a Bond for the Performance of the Covenants. The Plaintiff granted his Term over to a Stranger, and assigned for Breach, that one S. entered upon the Assignee, and recovered in Ejectment, and Debt was brought upon the Bond. Per Cur', By this Covenant in Law the Assignee shall have a Writ of Covenant, and for the Breach of the Covenant in Law the Obligation was forfeited; but because the Plaintiff did not shew that S. had a Covenant-Title, (for otherwise the Covenant in Law was not broken) Judgment against the Plaintiff; and the express Covenant qualifies the Generality of the Covenant in Law, and it shall not extend further than the express Covenant. Nokes's Case, 3 Co. 63. a.

Eleventhly, Oligatory or Declaratory.

Covenants Obligatory, as to enjoy, free from Incumbrances, shall never be construed to raise an Use, because they have another Effect. Sid. 27.

Covenants Declaratory serve to limit and direct Uses. Ibid.

(E) What Words will create or amount to an express Covenant, or not.

THERE is no need of the Word Covenant to make a Covenant, but any Thing under the Hand and Seal of the Parties, which imports an Agreement, will amount to a Covenant. Roll. Abr. 518.

A made a Bill of Debt against B. for the Payment of 20*l.* at four Days, and in the End of the Deed covenanted and granted with B. his Executors and Administrators, that if he made Default in any of the said Payments, that then he will pay the Residue that then shall be unpaid; and afterwards A. fails in the first Payment, and before the second Day B. brought Action of Debt for the whole 20*l.* It was moved, if B. will sue A. before the last Day, it ought to be by way of Covenant, and not by Debt. But per Cur', The Action lies; for if one covenants to pay me 100*l.* at such a Day, an Action of Debt lies; a fortiori when the Words of the Deed are covenant and grant; for the Word Covenant sometimes sounds in Covenant, sometimes in Contract, secundum subjectam materiam. Leon. 208.

what Words.
Oblige.
Teneri & fir-
miter.

An Action of Covenant was brought upon these Words, (viz.) I oblige myself to pay so much Money at such a Day, and so much at such a Day. Per Cur', Action of Covenant lies, especially if both Days are not passed; but the Chief Baron Bridgman doubted how the Law would have been if the Words were Teneri & firmiter obligari, for that those Words sound in Debt and not Covenant. And per Cur', The Words Quod teneat conventionem & de conventionem facta, are all one. Hardr. 178.

Where the Word Covenant will make a Lease.

It is a general Rule that the Word Covenant makes a Lease though the Word Grant be omitted, much more when the Words are To hold, enjoy, &c. 2 Mod. Rep. 80.

But if one covenants to grant, and suffer one to enjoy such Lands; this will not amount to a Condition, for the Intent of the Parties is only to make it a Covenant.

In Covenant on a Feoffment and Grant of Bishops Lands, Breach was assigned that the Defendant had no good Title. On Demurrer the Court conceived that this will not make any express Covenant, but Dedi will, and so will Reservando. 3 Keb. 549.

Demise and Grant.

Covenant does not lie against Executors of Tenants in Tail upon these Words Demise and Grant. And. 12.

Upon the Words Demise and Grant, without any other Words which comprehend Warranty in them, an Action of Covenant lies; and a Lease by Estoppel is a good Lease to ground the Action upon Eviction, and to traverse that he was not possessed by virtue of a Lease, is no Plea against the Lease by Indenture, which is an Estoppel, without shewing a particular Cause. Cro Jac. 73.

If the Lord grants to his Tenant that he will not distrain him in such a Part of his Land for his Rent; this shall be taken to be a good Covenant by this Word Grant. Perk. §. 69.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years, and warrants it to the Lessee, his Heirs and Assigns, though this be not a Warranty, yet it is a good Covenant in Law. Bro. Covenant 38.

Venditit, Af-
signavit,
Translulit.

Though the Words Venditit, Assignavit and Translulit do not amount to a Covenant against an Eigne Title, yet against the Covenantor it will amount to a Covenant. 3 Keb. 304.

Covenant maintained on the Words Demisit et Assignavit. 2 Raym. 1419.

If a Lease for Years made to A. determinable upon the Lives of B. C. and D. B. dies, A. assigns to E. and E. reciting the Death of B. and the Assignment to him, assigns the Term to F. and covenants with him that he himself is lawfully possessed of all the Premises of a good and sufficient Estate for the Residue of the said Term, if the said C. D. or either of them, shall happen so long to live; and they the said C. and D. are yet in full Life, though the Words are not, and that the said C. and D. are yet in full Life; yet this is implied by the Words, and is as a several Covenant, or otherwise the last Part would be void and of no Effect. The Breach was, that C. was dead at the Time of the Assignment. 2 Roll. Abr. 249. pl. 2.

Yielding and paying.

The Words yielding and paying make an express Covenant, and not a Covenant in Law only; as if a Man lets Land for Years, reserving a Rent, Action of Covenant lies for Non-payment of Rent; for Reddendo the Rent is an Agreement for the Payment of the Rent, which will make a Covenant. Vent. 10. Roll. Abr. 519. pl. 10.

These Words in a Lease for Years, that the Lessee shall repair, make a Covenant.

Words of Agreement make a Covenant.

So in the Case of Indentures of Apprenticeship there are not the formal Words of a Covenant, but only an Agreement that the Master shall do this and the Apprentice shall do that; these are Covenants, but in all these Cases there is something of an Undertaking. Roll. Abr. 519.

The Lessee shall repair.

These Words in a Deed of Lease, and the Lessee shall repair the Mills (being the Thing leased) as often as Need shall require, and shall leave them sufficiently repaired at the End of the Term, make a Covenant; for it is the clear Agreement of the Parties, and otherwise the Words, shall leave, &c. will not have any Effect, and because of the last Words it cannot be a Condition, and being by Indenture it is the Word of both Parties. Poph. 136. Cro. Jac. 399. Roll. Abr. 518.

If Lessee for Years covenant to repair, &c. provided always and it is agreed that the Lessor shall find great Timber; this makes a Covenant on the Part of the Lessor to find great Timber by the Word agreed, and shall not be a Qualification of the Covenant of the Lessee.

But if the Lessee covenants to repair, provided always that the Lessor shall find great Timber, without the Word agreed; this Proviso shall not be any Covenant on the Part of the Lessor, but shall only be a Qualification of the Covenant of the Lessee. Roll. Abr. 518.

In the Indenture of Apprenticeship that the Apprentice shall be loyal, & secreta sua velaret, these Words imply a Covenant. Moor 135.

Words in the future Tense.

If a Deed be made to another in these Words, viz. I have a Writing in my Custody in which W. stands bound to B. in 100l. and I will be ready to produce it; this is a Covenant, for this is a present engaging to do it. Roll. Abr. 519.

The

The Testator was indebted to the Plaintiff by Bond, which he did thereby covenant to pay when such a Bill of Costs should be stated by two Attornies, indifferently to be chosen between them; and sets forth in his Declaration, that he named one Attorney, and desired the Defendant's Executor to name another, which he refused, and so brings Action of Covenant; this is a Covenant and not a Solvend; and if it should not be a Covenant but an intire Bond, then it would be in the Power of the Obligor whether ever it shall be payable, and the Plaintiff having named an Attorney, ought to recover. 2 Mod. 266.

I am content to give to W. 10l. at Michaelmas and 10l. at Lady-Day; an Action of Covenant lies upon it as well as Debt. 3 Leon. 119.

If A. makes a Deed to B. in these Words, I have in my Custody one Writing obligatory, in which Writing obligatory one W. now standeth bound to the said B. for the Payment of 400l. such a Day, being the proper Money of B. and I will be ready at all Times, when I shall be required, to deliver the same Writing obligatory to the said B. If B. after demands the Obligation of the said A. and he refuses to deliver it, B. may have an Action of Covenant upon this Deed by Force of these Words, And I will be ready at all Times, when I shall be required, to re-deliver the same. 11 Car. B. R.

If there are Articles of Agreement between A. and B. by which it is agreed (upon a Marriage intended between A. and C.) that all the Stock of C. shall remain in the Hands of B. until A. shall make a certain Jointure to C. ipso B. annuatim solvendo to A. interesse pro inde secundum ratam 8l. per Cent. &c. and if B. does not pay the said Interest, an Action of Covenant lies against him upon these Words, for that every Agreement by Deed is a Covenant, and otherwise A. shall not have any Remedy for the Money. 8 Car. B. R. Crofs and Northey, Roll. Abr. 518. pl. 6.

So where a Man acknowledges himself to be accountable to another for all Money by him charged upon A. to be paid to B. Lev. 47.

If a Man conveys Lands to another in Fee with Warranty, and after the Land is evicted by Eigne Title for certain Years, the Grantee of the Land may have an Action of Covenant upon the said Words against the Grantor upon this Eviction, although the Warranty be annexed to the Freehold, for the said Words make a Covenant if a Chattel be evicted, and a Warranty, if a Freehold be demanded. Roll. Rep. 25. Vide Hob. 3. Telv. 139.

An Action of Covenant was brought on the Words Concessi & Feoffavi in a Conveyance of an Inheritance, and Breach assigned in Entry on the Plaintiff: Defendant demurred, and the Question was, Whether Concessi makes a Warranty or Covenant in Case of Inheritance as it doth on a Term. The Court inclined it would not. 3 Keb. 188.

(F) What Words amount to a Covenant and not to a Condition, or to a Condition and not to a Covenant.

IN Trespass Defendant justified, for that M. seised of Lands let them to the Plaintiff, except the Trees, and Liberty of eradicating & asport' cum averiis reparand' sepes & implend' foveas; and M. granted the Trees and the Liberty to A. and he and the other Defendants, as his Servants, use this Liberty, which is specially pleaded, Quæ est ead' fractio. Plaintiff demurred, and for Cause shewed, that the Defendants have not alledged that they have filled the Ditches and amended the Hedges, according to the Agreement. Pollexfen for the Plaintiff shewed, That this is a Condition, and not being performed destroys the Agreement, and avoids the Liberty. But per Cur', This is not a Condition but a Covenant, for which the Lessee has Remedy by Action.

It was objected, That the Power and Liberty was annexed to the Reversion, which is not granted to A. sed non alloc'; for the Liberty is annexed to the Trees and incident to them, and assignable with them. T. Jones 205.

One made a Lease for Years, Lessor covenants that the Lessee should have House-boot, Hay-boot and Plough-boot, without committing any Waste, upon pain of Forfeiture of the Lease; the Covenant is no more than what the Law appoints, and therefore vain; and it is a Covenant on the Part of the Lessor, and so cannot be a Condition. Cro. Eliz. 604.

A. made a Lease of Lands to B. for ten Years, rendring Rent, and B. covenanted to repair; afterwards A. by his Will devised that B. should have the Lands for thirty Years after the ten Years under the like Covenants as are comprized in the Lease; this makes them to be Conditions in the second Lease what were Covenants in the first, for they cannot be Covenants for want of a Deed; and if they should not be Conditions, the Heir of the Lessor were without Remedy if they are not performed. Godb. 98, 99. 2 Leon. pl. 40. Owen 54.

Lessee

Where a Covenant is a Condition to Defeat the Estate.

Lessee covenanted in an Indenture of Lease, that he would not alien nor assign his Term to any other but his Wife for Life, and the Residue of his Term to his Children, or one of his youngest Brothers, upon Pain of forfeiting his Lease; the Lessee assigned it to his Brother, having a Wife: This Covenant is a Condition to defeat the Estate, for being by Indenture they are the Words of both Parties and are sufficient to determine the Lease. Cro. Jac. 398. 2 Bulst. 290.

Paying, performing.

A Lessee brought Covenant, and declared, That the Lessor covenanted with him, that he paying the Rent, and performing the Covenants on his Part to be performed, shall quietly enjoy; the Breach assigned was a Disturbance by the Lessor; Lessor pleaded the Plaintiff did enjoy quietly till such a Time, but then he cut Wood down, which was contrary to his Covenant, and then he entered: The Question was, Whether the Defendant's Covenant were conditional or not; for if it amounted to a Condition, then the Lessor's Entry is lawful; but if it be a Covenant, he ought to bring his Action. Per Cur', The Covenant is not conditional, for the Words paying and performing signify no more than that he shall enjoy under the Rents and Covenants.

Where the Word paying amounts to a Condition, and where not.

Indeed the Word paying may in some Cases amount to a Condition; but that is where without such Construction the Party can have no Remedy. 2 Mod. 35. Vaughan 32. Sid. 266, 280.

A Lessor covenanted that the Lessee paying his Rent shall enjoy the Land demised during the whole Term; the Lessee did not pay the Rent, and was afterwards ejected by a Title Paramount. By two Judges against one the Covenant is conditional, and the Lessee shall not have Advantage of it, if he did not perform the Condition, which is created by the Word paying. 4 Leon. 50.

One covenants that the Plaintiff shall quietly enjoy the Land demised, paying the Rent reserved; and it was pleaded, that Plaintiff had not paid the Rent according to the Reservation. On Demurrer it was adjudged, that the Word paying does not make the Covenant conditional, but it is a reciprocal Covenant, for which the Party may have his Action. T. Jones 206.

What Words amount to a Condition and not to a Covenant.

A Man lets Land by Indenture, and in it is such a Clause, and it is covenanted (or agreed) between the said Parties, that the Lessee shall not do such a Thing, upon Pain of forfeiting his Estate. It is a Condition, for the Words being indifferent whether of the Lessee or Lessor, they shall be taken for the Words of the Lessor. Roll. 407, 408.

P. covenanted with D. to assign over his Trade to him, and that he should not endeavour to take away any of his Customers, and in Consideration of the Performance of this Covenant, D. covenanted to pay P. 60*l.* per Ann. during his Life; these Words in Consideratione Performanceis make it a Condition precedent, which must be averred. Per Cur', præter Twisden, who said, How long must he stay till he be intitled to his Annuity? As long as he lives, for this Covenant may be broken at any Time. Maledicta expositio. Mod. 64. 2 Saund. 155. 2 Keb. 674.

In Lord Cromwell's Case the Words covenanted, provided and agreed, give an Advantage of a Condition or a Covenant.

B. R. let Lands to the Defendant; Plaintiff replies that the said Lease was upon Condition, (viz.) the Lessee by the Indenture of the said Lease did covenant that he would not put out nor disturb any of the Tenants inhabiting within the said Manor out of their Tenements doing their Duties, according to the Custom of the said Manor; and shewed, that the Defendant had put out one A. G. a Tenant, &c. and that B. R. had re-entered for the Condition broken: Per Cur', It is a Condition though the Words sound in Covenant, and be the Words of the Lessee; yet the Lease being made by Indenture, the same is the Deed of both, and every Word in it is spoken by both Parties; and though he may have Action of Covenant, yet he cannot thereby overthrow the Lease, as by Entry for Condition broken; and yet by the Words it seems, that the Meaning of the Indenture was, that by the Breach of this Covenant the Estate should be defeated.

A Condition though the Words sound in Covenant.

Covenant not to disturb any Tenant of the Manor out of their Tenements doing their Duties.

So in 24 Eliz. Hill and Lockham; by Indenture the Lessee covenanted to grind all his Corn at the Lessor's Mill, and in the End of the Indenture the Lessee covenanted to perform all Covenants, sub pœna forisfacturæ. And by the Opinion of the whole Court the same was a Condition; but in the principal Case the Breach was not well assigned. It is said he had put out a Woman unam tenentem, &c. and perhaps she was but a Tenant at Will, and the Covenants refer only to Copyholders, and perhaps she had disseised one of the Tenants, and then the putting her out was no Breach; it is said, she had done her Duty; that might be once; he ought to have said she had done her Duty always, and the Exceptions were incurable. Leon. 245.

The Parson of D. covenanted with one of his Parishioners that he should pay no Tithes; for which the Parishioner covenanted to pay to the Parson an annual Sum of Money; and afterwards the Tithe not being paid, the Parson sued him in the Court Christian; and the other prayed a Prohibition. Per Cur', It is a bare Covenant, and no Interest of the Tithes past, and the Party who sued for Tithes has no Remedy but by Action of Covenant. Poph. 140.

If Articles are made by Indenture between A. and B. by which A. covenants to pay 100*l.* to B. at a Day, and B. covenants, upon Receipt of the 100*l.* to give an Acquittance for it, and to enter into Bond to A. conditioned to save A. harmless from all Claims to certain Lands in his Possession: If A. tenders the 100*l.* at the Day to B. it is no Breach of B.'s Covenant if he refuses to receive it, and to make an Acquittance, &c. for perhaps it was the Intention of the Parties, that it should be in the Election of B. to receive the Money and make Acquittance, &c. or let it alone. Style 81. Adjudged Nisi; sed Quære.

A Proviso coupled with other Words of Covenant and Grant shall not create a Condition, Where a Proviso shall not make a Condition. but be of the same Nature as other Words of Grant; as Proviso semper, and the said A. B. covenants and grants to and with, &c. that the said E. of H. and L. M. may dig for Oar.

If A. makes a Lease to B. for Life, with a Proviso that if the Lessee dies within the Term of forty Years, that then the Executors of the Lessee shall have it for so many of the Years which shall amount to the Number of forty Years, to be accounted from the Date of the Indenture of Lease; this Proviso shall not make a Lease, but only a Covenant. Dyer 150. Co. 155.

On Marriage agreed on between the Defendant and one Mary J. 1500*l.* was to be paid by Articles at several Days to the Plaintiff, and he to convey several Lands and an Office to the Defendant, *Proviso that the Defendant out of the first three Years Profits should pay 500*l.* to the Plaintiff:* Plaintiff brings Debt on this Proviso, averring Profits above the Value received, and that the Marriage took Effect. Defendant demurs, because this Proviso is in Nature of a Defeasance or Condition. Per Cur', This Proviso can never have any Effect as a Condition; Moyle was to surrender to bring the other in, but could not re-enjoy it on Breach of Condition: there are no Words that refer or direct to any Proviso to be in the future Grant; nor would the Matter bear it, being an Office of Justice, and therefore it could not be reduced on Breach of the Condition; it must be construed by Agreement of the Parties to be a Covenant. Keb. 842, 860, 892. This Proviso is not by way of Defeasance, but Agreement. Lev. 155. Per tot' Cur', It amounts but to a Covenant by Articles.

It is covenanted and agreed between the Parties, that J. H. doth let the said Lands for and during five Years, to begin, &c. Provided always (that the said Defendant) shall pay to Plaintiff yearly at such Feast Days, by equal Portions, &c. during the Term; and the said Parties agree that the Lease shall be made pursuant. Per Cur', 1. This is an immediate Lease because of the Words be doth let. 2. This Proviso is a good Reservation of the Rent, it being by Articles whereunto either of them were Parties. Per Popham, It is a Reservation and a Condition also; Proviso joined with the Words of Covenant make it a Condition and a Covenant also. Cro. Eliz. 486. Moor 459. Noy 57.

If a Man by Indenture lets Lands for Years, Provided always, and it is covenanted and agreed between the said Parties, that the Lessee should not alien; and it was adjudged that it was a Condition by Force of the Proviso, and a Covenant by Force of the other Words. Co. Lit. 203. b.

A Grant was made by the Earl of P. of the Lieutenantcy or Deputyship of the West Part of the Forest of Selwood, to Sir M. B. and the Heirs Male of his Body; Provided always, and the said Sir M. covenanted and granted, &c. with the said Earl, his, &c. that it shall be lawful for the said Earl, his Heirs and Assigns, to have all the Pre-eminence and Commandment of the said Game and Hunting there, as if the Grant had not been made; Provided also, and the said Sir M. covenanted for, &c. to and with the said Earl, his, &c. that the said Sir M. and the Heirs Male of his Body would preserve the Game, as it had been used, and that they should not cut any Wood, &c. Sir H. B. Son of Sir M. cut down four Timber-Trees: Now the Quære was, whether this is a Condition, and so gives Entry to the Earl on a Covenant, or not? Per Cur', The first Proviso is not a Condition but a Covenant, either because by this he is not to do more than he may do by his superior Custody, in which Case he ought to do it by his own Authority; or if it be taken, that he may kill the Game at Pleasure, it is void, because against his Office. The second Proviso is but a bare Covenant, it shall be intirely the Words of the Grantee himself as the Covenant is, and without the Words of the Grantor a Condition cannot be; and therefore suppose it had been on the other Part; Provided always, and the Grantor covenants that the Grantee shall have the Re- fuse of the Browfe, &c. this is a meer Covenant. Poph. 116. Vide Moor 706. Cro. Eliz. 384, 560. where this Case is differently reported.

Provided always, and it is covenanted, granted and agreed, between the Parties, that if the Lessee sells or aliens the Term, that the Lessor shall have the Preferment; this a good Condition because of the Words of the Lessor as well as the Lessee. Poph. 117.

P. made a Lease for Years to H. of a Farm, except the Wood, and covenanted with the Lessee, that he should take all Manner of Underwood; Provided always, and the Lessee covenants, that he will not cut any Manner of Timber-Trees; this was adjudged no Condition. Poph. 117.

If by Articles of Agreement made by Indenture between A. and B. A. agrees that B. shall have a House in a Street of London for certain Years; Provided and upon Condition that B. shall receive and pay the Rents of the other Houses in the same Street of A. mentioned in a Schedule; and it is further agreed that B. for his Labour in collecting the said Rent shall have the Overplus of the Rents beyond such a Sum; this is not any Covenant on the Part of B. to bind him to receive and pay the Rents mentioned in the Schedule, but the Proviso will make the Estate of B. void in the House (this being a Lease, and will not make a Covenant.) Cro. Car. 128. yet see Lev. 47.

If there be Articles of Agreement made by Indenture between A. and B. in which A. agrees, that B. shall have a House in a Street in London for certain Years; provided and upon Condition that B. shall receive and pay the Rents of the other Houses of A. in the same Street mentioned in a Schedule annexed to the Indenture; and it is further agreed that B. for his Labour in the Collection of the said Rents, shall have the Overplus of the Rents over and above such a certain Sum: This is not any Covenant on the Part of B. to bind him to pay and receive the Rents mentioned in the Schedule; but the Proviso and Condition only will make the Estate of B. void in the House (this being a Lease) and will not make a Covenant. Roll. Abr. 518.

Recoverors to a Use before the Statute 27 H. 8. made a Lease for ninety-nine Years by Indenture at 10*l.* Rent; Lessee by the same Indenture covenanted that he would pay the Rent to Cestuy que Use, his Heirs and Assigns; proviso semper, if the said Cestuy que Use did not make his Heir Male his Assignee, that then he should pay the Rent to the Recoverors, their Heirs and Assigns. Afterwards Cestuy que Use died, and did not make his Heir Male his Assignee; Lessee did not pay the Rent to the Recoverors: The Question was if this Estate was forfeited, and if this Proviso makes his Estate conditional. Per Cur', It is no Condition that went to the Estate, but only abridged the Covenant. Cro. Eliz. 73. 2 Leon. 128.

(G) What Words of Covenant or Agreement amount to a Grant, Lease, &c. and what to a Covenant only.

Covenant to permit one to enjoy, &c. is a Covenant and no Lease. If a Man covenants to permit and suffer another to have, hold, and enjoy certain Lands a die dat', for Life; this is a Covenant and no Lease, and the Law will not expect any Li-very; and for this he shall be no Tenant at Will. Roll. Abr. 859.

Where Covenant shall amount to a Grant. Where there is a Covenant to pay Rent an Action lies, though the Lessee has no Enjoyment by the Default of the Lessor. 2 Strange 763. 2 Ld. Raym. 147.

Covenant in some Cases shall amount to a Grant; as where one covenants, Quod licitum foret for the Lessee to take necessary Fire-Boot and House-boot, to be expended, and for Reparation of the Premises. Cro. Jac. 291.

Covenant and grant that one shall enjoy the Lands, &c. amounts to a Lease. The Words Covenant and Grant, that he shall enjoy the Lands for six Years, amounts to a Lease, and shall bind the Heirs.

And the Words of the Covenant and Grant of the Lessee, that he shall pay such a Rent yearly, amount to a Reservation. Cro. Jac. 207.

Mortgage and not a Lease. G. H. being seised of Land in Fee, covenanted with M. W. to convey it by Fine or other Assurance to M. W. and his Heirs, before, &c. which should be to the Use of him and his Heirs, with a Proviso that if he paid to M. W. 100*l.* at the End of thirteen Years, that then he might re-renter, and that all Assurances should be to the Conisor; and covenanted and granted for him and his Heirs, with the said M. W. and his Heirs, that he and his Heirs should enjoy the said Land until the End of the said thirteen Years, and after for ever, if the said 100*l.* was unpaid; and M. W. covenanted to pay yearly two Capons, and that he would not commit any Waste. Per Cur', This is not a Lease; for the Intent of the Parties, was that it should be a Mortgage, which is but a Covenant that he shall enjoy during the Time of the Mortgage; and not a Lease. And the Covenant for quiet Enjoyment shews as much. Cro. Jac. 172.

If one covenants and grants with another, that he shall have and hold his Lands for so many Years, it is a good and absolute Lease; but if he covenants and grants that he shall enjoy his Lands for ten Years, it is not a Lease, because it sounds only in Covenant. Cro. Jac. 172.

If A. covenants with B. that C. shall have his Land for so many Years, rendring such a Rent, here is not any Lease, and therefore no Rent.

But if A. had covenanted with C. himself, it had been otherwise, because between the said Parties. Leon. 136, 118, 119.

An Agreement or Covenant made between J. S. and J. N. that J. D. shall have such Lands for Years; this being made between Strangers cannot amount to a Lease.

So if J. S. covenants with J. D. that his Executors shall have such Land for twenty-one Years, this cannot amount to a Lease, for they are in this Degree as Strangers. Cro. Eliz. 173. Leon. 136.

In an Indenture of Articles the Plaintiff covenants, that E. Brother of the Defendant, should enjoy such Lands until the Feast of Saint Michael next following, rendring such a Rent at the End of the said Term, and that E. should pay such Rent. The Defendant pleaded, that his said Brother paid to the Plaintiff before the said Feast of Saint Michael, in full Satisfaction of the said Rent, 3s. The Plea is good, and upon the Matter the Covenant is well performed; for there is not any Rent in this Case, for here is not any Lease; for if A. covenants with B. that C. shall have his Land for so many Years, rendring such a Rent, here is not any Lease, and so no Rent; otherwise if A. had covenanted with C. himself. Leon. 136.

Where J. S. covenants & concessit to J. N. that he shall have twenty Acres of Land for twenty-one Years; it is a good Lease, for this Word Concessit is as good as Dimisit. Leon. 118, 119.

By Articles between H. and W. it is covenanted and agreed between the Parties, that the said H. doth let the said Lands for and during five Years, to begin at Michalmas next ensuing, provided that the said Defendant shall pay to the Plaintiff annually during the Term, at the Feasts of St. Michael and the Annunciation, 120l. by equal Portions: And the said Parties do covenant, that a Lease shall be made and sealed, according to the Effect of these Articles, before, &c. the Feast of All Saints. Per Cur., 1. It is an immediate Lease, because of the Words, it is agreed that he doth let, being in the present Tense, and that which followed is in Reference to further Assurance, and the rather for that it is to be made after the Beginning of the Term; so he ought to have the Term presently at Michaelmas. 2. This Proviso is a good Reservation of the Rent. Cro. Eliz. 486. Moor 459.

The Word Agreement being only in the Stile, and not in the Article itself, a Covenant and Promise alone will not amount to a Lease of a Freehold. Per Tyrrell, The Reason of Hob. 3. was because the Word Convenit was joined with Agreavit, and a Covenant to enjoy has been held no Lease. 2 Keb. 268.

(H) How a Covenant in Law may be created, and the Operation and Consequents upon it.

IF a Man leases for Years, and ousts the Termor, he shall have Covenant against him though there be no expresse Covenant in the Deed. Roll. Abr. 519.

But it is held to be otherwise where a Stranger ousts him; for when Covenant is brought upon the Word Demisi, the Plaintiff shall not recover Damages, but the Term itself, which he cannot against a Stranger. 2 Leon. 104. Cro. Eliz. 214.

Yet Quere; for the Books don't seem to admit of this Diversity where the Ouster by the Stranger is with Title.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years of Land, by the Words Concessi or Demisi, they import a Covenant; and if the Lessee or his Assignee are evicted, they may bring an Action thereupon. 5 Co. 17. a. 18. a.

Covenant maintained on the Word Demisit. 2 Ld. Raym. 1419.

But D. let to P. a House in London by the Words Demise, Grant, &c. and the Lessor covenants that the Lessee shall enjoy the House during the Term without Eviction by the Lessor, or any claiming under him; and the Lessor was obliged to perform all Covenants, Grants and Articles in the Indenture. P. grants his Term over to a Stranger: In Debt, upon this Obligation, D. pleads Performance of all Covenants; P. assigns a Breach, that one Savery entered upon the Assignee, and made a Lease for seven Years to one D. if he should so long live, who brings Ejectment against the Assignee, and recovered. D. demurs in Law: The Court was against P. and resolved,

1. That

Assignee shall have a Writ of Covenant on the Words Demise and Grant.

Pleading Entry by a Stranger he must shew he had Eigne Title.

Particular Covenant subsequent qualifies the general Force of this Word [Demise.]

Demisi.

Demise, Grant.

Dedi, Concessi & ad firmam tradidi.

Eviſion of a Freehold.

Vendit, assignavit & transulit.

1. That by this Covenant in Law upon the Words Demise and Grant, the Assignee shall have a Writ of Covenant. Dyer 257.

2. That by this Breach of Covenant the Obligation in Law was forfeited; for he was bound to perform all Covenants, Grants, &c. which extends as well to Covenants in Law as to Covenants in Fact.

3. Although that the Recovery was by Verdict, yet P. ought to have shewed that Savery had elder Title, for otherwise the Covenant in Law was not broken; and because he did not shew it, for this Cause they resolved against P.

4. The said express Covenant qualifies the Generality of the Covenant in Law, and restrains it by the mutual Consent of both Parties, that this shall not extend further than the express Covenant.

And it is but Reason that the particular Covenant subsequent should qualify the general Force of the Word Demisi; for otherwise the particular Covenant should be in vain, if the Force of the Word Demisi should stand. 4 Co. 80.

Note; when a Covenant is created by Law, the Covenantee cannot have Covenant if he be not ousted by one who has Title; but upon express Covenant it lies though a Stranger enters without Title. 2 Brownl. 161, 162.

Now, although upon express Covenant to pay Rent, Covenant lies against the Lessee for Rent after Assignment; yet it seems such Action does not lie against a Lessee upon a Covenant in Law [as yielding and paying] after the Assignment. Sid. 447.

If A. and B. are joint Lessees of a Mill, and B. assigns to C. and dies, and after A. reciting the Jointenancy and Death of B. and that all survived to A. grants the said Mill to D. and covenants that D. shall enjoy it for an Act done by A. &c. If C. enters, &c. D. may have Covenant against A. for as to a Moiety the Grant was void, and A. had no Power to grant what before was granted by B. Yelv. 175.

And if the special Covenant should qualify the general, the Grantee should not have any Remedy for the Half at all. 2 Brownl. 214.

The Word Demisi imports a Covenant. The Plaintiff declared, that at the Time of the Lease made the Lessor was not seised of the Land, but a Stranger, and so the Covenant in Law broken; but he did not lay any actual Entry by Force of his Lease, nor any Ejection of the Stranger, nor any claiming under him; and so no Expulsion. Per Cur. The Action did well lie, for the Breach of Covenant was, that the Lessor had taken upon him to Demise that which he could not, and Demisi imports a Power of Letting, as Dedi does of giving; and it is not reasonable to force the Lessee to enter upon the Land, and so to commit a Trespass. Hob. 12.

And so by the Word Demisi an Action of Covenant lies, though he never enters.

But Covenant was brought upon the Word Demisi, for not repairing a Pump, where the Use of the Pump is let.

It is said in Sid. 430. Sand. 321. and Vent. 26, 44. that regularly no Covenant lies upon the Word Demisi, unless in Case of Eviction of the Lessee, and actual Ouster or Expulsion by the Lessor, or a Stranger, as Noke's Case is; and so it was adjudged in the Exchequer-Chamber, that Covenant lies not. And though the Soil itself was excepted where the Pump stood, yet the Lessee may enter and repair the Pump.

Tenant for Life, Remainder in Fee to another; the Tenant for Life by the Words Demise or Grant made a Lease for Years, and died, and after he in Remainder entered, and ousted the Lessee for Years; in this Case upon this Covenant in Law he cannot charge the Executors or Administrators of the Lessor, but upon an express Covenant for quiet enjoying he may. Dyer 257. pl. 13. Cro. Car. 157. Leon. 179.

R. lets the Manor of D. to H. for twenty-one Years, and after by the Words Dedi & Concessi & ad firmam tradidi, lets the same Manor to the Plaintiff for Life, who enters and is ousted by H. and so be brought Covenant: If the intire Estate for Life be evicted under the Title of the Lessor, Lessee shall not have Covenant, for by this he shall recover but Damages, which are Personal, and are not a Recompence for the Loss of a Freehold; aliter for the Loss of Possession for a Time, and so it being but a Term evicted, the Lessee shall have Covenant upon those Words in Law. The Words in the Lease will enure to a double Warranty, Dedi to a Freehold, and Demisi to an Eviction for Years. Hob. 3. Yelv. 139. Roll. Rep. 25. Noy 131.

The Words assign, set over and transfer, vendit, assignavit & transulit, do not amount to a Covenant against an Eigne Title, yet against the Covenantor himself it will amount to a Covenant against all claiming by, from or under me; and if I enter, Covenant lies against me upon the Wrong: So upon the Reservation of Rent to a Stranger, Debt lies not by the Stranger, he may have an Action of Covenant for Non-payment, and so may the Lessor. 3 Keb. 304. 2 Ld. Raym. 1419.

A Grant

A Grant of an Authority to act, &c. absque impetitione, denegatione, restrictione, &c. amounts to a Covenant. Leon. 277.

If a Man lets the Land of J. S. by Deed to J. D. J. S. being in Possession at the Time of the Lease, and Lessee enters upon J. S. who re-enters, yet J. D. shall not have an Action of Covenant upon this, because the Covenant in Law ought to be fixed upon an Estate; but here was not any Estate, for this was a void Lease, and the Lessee a Disseisor by his Entry. Roll. Abr. 520.

And by Fenner, If a Man let Lands for Years, and a Stranger enters before the Lessee enters, he shall not have an Action of Covenant upon this Ouster, because he was never Lessee in Privy to have this Action. But it is said in Style and Herring's Case, If a Man lets to me my own Land, whereof I am seised in Fee, or otherwise by Indenture, if I am ousted by another that had Right, I shall have a Writ of Covenant.

If a Man leases certain Goods for Years by Indenture which are evicted within the Term, yet he shall not have a Writ of Covenant, for the Law does not create any Covenant upon such personal Things. Roll. Abr. 519. Sed Qu.

So if a Man leases certain Goods to J. D. which are the Goods of another, and in his Possession; if he cannot enjoy them, yet he shall not have any Covenant against the Lessor, because he was never a Lessee. Dubitatur, Roll. Abr. 520.

A Covenant in Law shall not be extended to make a Man do more than he can. F. and his Wife seised of Land in the Right of the Wife for Term of her Life, and they join in a Lease by the Words Demise and Grant; F. dies, his Wife enters and avoids the Lease, the Lessee is put out of Possession by Ejectment, and brings Covenant against the Executors of F. upon the Words Demise and Grant; and on Demurrer Judgment pro Defendant: The Words were, Demise, Grant and to Farm let for Years, if the Wife should so long live. Brownl. 22.

If one by Deed grants a Water-course, and after stops it, an Action of Covenant lies against him. Sand. 322.

If a Man leases to me by Indenture the Land of J. S. of which J. S. is seised at the Time, upon which I enter, and he re-enters, I shall have a Writ of Covenant upon this Indenture, though I was not in the Land by the Lease, but by Estoppel; for the Lessor is estopped to say, that I was not in his Lease. Roll. Abr. 520.

So for the Cause aforesaid, if a Man leases to me my own Land, of which I am seised in Fee, or otherways by Indenture: If I am ousted by another that has Right, I shall have a Writ of Covenant. Ibid.

When a Man leases to me the Land of J. S. of which J. S. is seised at the Time, I shall have a Writ of Covenant before Entry upon J. S. and re-enter by him; for I need not allege an Eviction, for this is a Covenant in Law, which is broke when he is not seised of the Land at the Time of the Demise, for the Word Demise imports a Power of Letting; and it is not reasonable to enforce the Lessee to enter into the Land, and so to commit a Trespass. Hob. 18.

If a Man leases Lands for Years, and a Stranger enters before the Lessee enters, he shall not have an Action of Covenant upon this Ouster, because he was never a Lessee in Privy to have the Action. Ibid.

If there be several Lessors, and one wrongfully enters on the Lessee, without the Assent of the others; the Covenant in Law shall not be taken to be joint, so as to charge the other Lessors with this personal Wrong of their Companion; and therefore the Action may be brought against him alone. Carib. 97.—Show. 79. Comb. 163. Salk. 137.

(i) By whom Covenants may be made.

AN Attorney covenants on the Behalf of another, that the Covenantee quiete & pacifice should enjoy such Lands, &c. Per Cur', These Articles amount to a Lease though made by a Stranger, for he acted on the Behalf of the Owner of the Land, and it shall be taken that he had his Authority to demise. 2 Vent. 62.

When an Attorney makes a Lease as Attorney, by virtue of a Warrant to him for that Purpose made, he must not make the Lease in his own Name, but the Name of the Person authorizing him so to do. 9 Co. 76. b. Roll. Abr. 330, 501. Cro. Eliz. 115. Moor 71. Godb. 389. 2 Ld. Raym. 1419. Stra. 705. And there must be a particular Memorandum of the Matter indorsed on the Deed.

(K) With whom Covenants may be made.

No Covenant or Grant to be made with any who is not Party to the Deed in Indentures; aliter in a Deed Poll.

AN Indenture of Charterparty was made between A. and others, Owners of the Ship called E. whereof B. is Master, of the one Part, and C. of the other Part, in which Indenture A. covenanted with C. and B. and C. covenanted with A. and B. and bound himself for Performance of Covenants in 600*l.* and the Conclusion of the Indenture was thus, In Witness whereof the Parties abovesaid have put their Hands and Seals; the said B. to the said Indenture put his Hand and Seal, and delivered it: In this Case B. is not any Party to the Indenture, so that B. may not release any Action brought upon it, for this is an Indenture reciprocal between Parties of the one Part, and Parties of the other Part; in which Case no Obligation, Covenant or Grant, may be made with any who is not Party to the Deed; but where the Deed is not reciprocal, but is without the Words Between, &c. as Omnibus Christi fidelibus, &c. there a Covenant, Grant or Obligation, may be made to divers several Persons. 2 Roll. Abr. 22.

If an Indenture of Charterparty be made between A. and B. Owners of a Ship, of the one Part, and C. and D. Merchants, of the other Part; and there are several Covenants of the one Part, and on the other; and A. only seals the Indenture of the one Part, and C. and D. on the other Part; but in all the Indenture it is not mentioned, that A. and B. covenant with C. and D. and C. and D. covenant with A. and B. In this Case A. and B. may join in Action against C. and D. on this Indenture for Breach of Covenant, though B. never sealed the Deed, for he is Party to the Deed, and C. and D. had sealed the other Part to B. as well as to A. upon which the Action is brought. 2 Roll. Abr. 22.

Where a Deed is indented, and is not between Parties, a Covenant may be in it with a Stranger, as if it was a Deed Poll; or in the first Person; as, Know ye that I A. B. &c. aliter if it is between Parties. 3 Lev. 139, 140.

S. by Articles of Agreement let and set a House to B. for a yearly Rent payable Quarterly; and in the same Deed it was recited, Whereas B. has agreed and taken the House aforesaid, paying the Rent Quarterly, &c. and that the said Rent may be satisfied, Be it known that I K. do covenant for myself, &c. on the Behalf of B. that B. shall pay the Rent and perform the other Covenants, reciting them particularly, which Deed was sealed by B. and K. In Covenant on this Deed, K. after Oyer, demurred generally; and it was adjudged that the Action did lie; for one who is no Party to a Deed may covenant with another who is, and thereby oblige himself by his sealing the Deed. Carth. 76.—Show. 58.

(L) The Use and Operation of a Covenant.

The Use and Operation of a Covenant.

A Writ or Action of Covenant quid.

Use.

Lease.

Contract.

THE most frequent Use of a Covenant is to bind a Man to do something in futuro, and therefore it is for the most part executory; and if the Covenantor do not perform it, the Covenantee may have thereupon for his Relief an Action or Writ of Covenant against the Covenantor so often as there is any Breach of the Covenant.

And this Writ of Covenant is therefore defined to be a Writ lying where a Man is bound by a Covenant in a Deed, and hath broken it. And in this Case commonly the Party damnified shall recover Damages only for the Breach: And if he have a Judgment in an Action brought for one Breach, and after the Covenantor breaks the Covenant again; in this Case he may bring a new Action, and so for every Breach.

But a Covenant sometimes also makes a Transmutation of a Property and Possession of Things, as in Case of a Covenant to stand seised of Lands to Uses.

And in Case where one covenants that another shall have a Piece of Land for five Years; this is a good Lease for five Years.

And in Case where one covenants with another, that if he pays him 10*l.* such a Day, he shall have all his Cattle in Dale, or his Lease for Years which he has of the Manor of Dale; in this Case if he pays the Money at the Time he shall have the Property of the Goods and of the Lease for Years. It is said therefore that in some Cases upon the Writ of Covenant, the Party shall recover the Land itself out of which he has been ejected. Shep. Touch. 161.

(M) What shall be said a good Covenant in Deed, upon which an Action of Covenant may be had, and what not.

1. In Respect of the Manner of making it.

A COVENANT, as before observed (D), may be in the Affirmative, or in the Negative; and it may be executed, i. e. that a Thing is done already, or executory, i. e. that a Thing shall be done hereafter; and these are all good; but if it be of a Thing present, as if I covenant that my Horse is your's, this is void. Plow. 330. 27 H. 8. 16.

And these Covenants being made by a Deed Poll, are as good and effectual as when they are made by a Deed indented, so as the Party has the Deed to shew; for otherwise a common Person cannot have an Action of Covenant; for it does not lie upon a verbal Agreement; neither can it be grounded without a Writing, except it be by a special Custom, as in London. F. N. B. 145. G. 3 Co. 63.

And there needs not in this Case formal and orderly Words, as covenant, promise, and the like, to make a Covenant on which to ground an Action of Covenant; for a Covenant may be had by any other Words, and upon any Part of an Agreement in Writing, in what Words soever it be set down for any Thing to be or not to be done; the Party to or with whom the Promise or Agreement is made may have the Action upon the Breach of the Agreement.

And therefore if these Words be inserted in a Deed amongst other Covenants, That the Lessee shall repair, provided always that the Lessor shall allow Timber; or the Lessee shall scour Ditches, provided always that the Lessor do carry the Earth; these are good Covenants on both Sides. 2 Co. Cromwell's Case. Dyer 57, 150. 27 H. 7. 37. 40 Ed. 3. 5.

And if a Lease be made of Houses by Patent to J. S. for twenty-one Years, and therein is inserted this Clause, And that the said J. S. and his Assigns shall repair the Houses when they shall be decayed; this is a good Covenant.

And so also it is where these or the like Words be inserted amongst other Covenants, And the Lessee shall pay 10s. a Year Rent, or that the Lessee shall not alien: These shall be said to be Covenants, unless it be in any such Cases where there is some other Means to enforce the doing of the Thing; as if in Case of the Rent there be a Clause of Distress, Re-entry or Nomine pænæ. Bret v. Cumberland, 14 Jac. B. R.

And in all Cases regularly where the Words that begin the Sentence are conditional, and have the Effect of a Condition, and do give another Remedy, there they shall not be construed to make a Covenant, as in the Cases of Condition before.

And yet if Words of Condition and Words of Covenant be coupled together in the same Sentence, as provided always, and it is covenanted, or the like; in such Cases the Words may be construed to make a Covenant and a Condition both. Bro. Covenant 21, 26. 2 Co. Cromwell's Case. Dyer 57, 150.

If a Man takes a Lease for Life by Indenture, and therein are inserted these Words, It is provided that if the Lessee dies within sixty Years, that then his Executors and Assigns shall have the Land until the sixty Years be ended, to be accounted from the Date of the Indenture; though this is not a good Lease, yet it is a good Covenant. Dyer 150. Co. 155.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years, and warrants it to the Lessee, his Heirs and Assigns Lease. during the Term, or he that has Right to the Land confirms the Estate of the Lessee for Years with Warranty; this is not a Warranty, nor in the Nature of a Warranty, yet it shall be construed a good Covenant in Law for the quiet enjoying of the Thing. Bro. Covenant 38. Descent 50. 21 H. 7. 32.

If the Lord grants to his Tenant, that he will not distrain him in such a Part of his Land for his Rent; this shall be taken to be a good Covenant, by the Word Grant. Perk. § 69.

2. In Respect of the Matter or Substance of it.

A Covenant to do any Thing that for the Substance and Matter of it is lawful; or not to do any Thing that for the Matter of it is unlawful, is good; as,

If the Grantor covenants, that he is seised or possessed of a good Estate of and in the Thing which he grants, and has Power to grant it; that the Grantee shall quietly enjoy it; that it is and shall be free from Incumbrances; that he will make further Assurance, if need be; that if the Grantee be evicted, he shall pay no Rent; that the Grantee shall pay a Rent; that he shall discharge all Dues, and save and keep harmless the Grantor; that he shall not alien the Thing granted, or if he do, that the Grantor shall have the first Refusal thereof; that he shall not do Waste; that he shall have House-boot and Hay-boot; that the Grantor or Grantee shall repair the old housing, or build new; that he shall pay and discharge all Rents and Payments issuing out of the Land; that he shall not fell Trees; if he does, that he shall pay to the Grantor so much in Money for every Tree; that if he fells any Underwood he shall fence it; that he shall make an Estate of Land; that he shall be quit of any Suit, Service or Payment; that he shall give sufficient Security to J. S. for 100*l.* which he owes him; and all these and the like Covenants are good.

And generally where a Condition for the Matter of it is good, a Covenant comprehending the same is good also.

Against Law. But if the Matter required to be, or not to be done by the Covenant, be for the Substance thereof unlawful, then is the Covenant void, and does not bind.

And therefore if one covenants to kill or rob a Man, or the like, this Covenant is void.

So if one covenants that he will maintain another in his Suits, or that he will appear in Inquests, or that he will break the Peace, or that he will forestall Corn, or the like; these Covenants are void.

So if one be Tenant in Fee-simple of Land, and he covenants that he will not alien it, this Covenant is void. So if a Man be a Tradesman, and he covenants that he will not use or exercise his Trade; this Restraint, if it be absolute and continual, is void; but if it be sub modo only, as that he shall not use his Trade at one Time, or in one City or Town only, this Covenant may be good.

So if a Man be by Covenant restrained to sow the Land which hath been used to be sowed, and this be either absolutely, or sub modo, i. e. that if he sows it he shall pay so much an Acre for it; these Covenants have been held to be void. Sed quare how the Law is now; for it seems the Statute of 39 Eliz. c. 9. is discontinued. Q.

If A. owes Money to B. and B. owes Money to C. and B. makes a Letter of Attorney to C. to sue A. at his own Charge, and B. covenants with C. that he will not release the Debt to A. in this Case although this be Maintenance in C. to sue at his own Charge, yet this is a good Covenant, and not against Law.

So also if a Dean and Chapter, or the like, covenant to renew a Lease contrary to the Meaning of the Statute of 18 Eliz. c. 11. this is a good Covenant.

Impossible. And if the Thing covenanted to be done be in the Nature of it impossible, the Covenant is void; as if a Man covenant to go to Rome in three Days, or the like, the Covenant is void.

So if a Man covenants to make a Feoffment to his Wife, this Covenant is void.

But if a Man covenant to make a good Estate of Land to her in Fee-simple, or otherwise, or to find her Maintenance, or to give her so much by the Year; these are good Covenants.

And generally where the Matter being in a Condition which makes the Condition void, because it is against Law; there it being in a Covenant will make the Covenant void.

If a Lessor covenants with his Lessee, that he shall and may have House-boot, Hay-boot, Plough-boot, &c. by the Assignment of the Bailiff of the Lessor; this is a good Covenant; and yet it does not restrain the Power that the Lessee has by the Law to take these Things without Assignment: But if the Lessee covenants that he will not cut any Timber or Fuel without the Leave, or without the Assignment of the Lessor; this is a good Covenant, and restrains him; for in this and such like Cases the Rule is, Modus & conventio vincunt legem. Dyer 19, 115. Shep. Touch. 163, 164.

If an Obligee covenants with the Obligor, that he will not sue him upon the Obligation, until Easter following; this is a good Covenant, but no Release or Suspension of the Debt. Deaux v. Jefferies, M. 36 & 37 Eliz. C. B. 21 H. 7. 23.

If there be Lord and Tenant of three Acres of Land, Whiteacre, and two others, and the Lord grants to the Tenant by Deed, that he will not distrain in Whiteacre for his Rent or Services; this is a good Covenant, but does not determine the Seignior. Perk. §. 69.

If one Man grants a Mill within his Manor, and covenants for him and his Heirs that there shall be no other Mill set up within the Manor; this is a good Covenant. Fitz. Covenant. 5.

If one makes a Lease wherein are divers Covenants to be performed on the Part of the Lessee, and after the Lessee covenants, that if any of the Covenants be broken, the Lessor shall enter upon the Land demised, and hold it till the Lessee make him Amends for the Damage done by the Breach of the Covenant; this is a good Covenant, and that the Lessor may take Advantage thereof accordingly. Fitz. Covenant 3.

If a Man seised of Land in Fee covenants to stand seised of it to Uses, and no Estate arises by the Covenant; yet this may be good by way of Covenant, and give Remedy to the Covenantee in an Action of Covenant; but with this Difference, if the Covenant be future; as where one covenants with another, that in Consideration of a Marriage his Lands shall shall descend, remain or revert to his Son and Heir apparent, and to the Heirs of his Body on the Body of his Wife; in this Case the Covenantee may have a Writ of Covenant upon the Covenant; for if a Covenant be present, as that a Man and his Heirs shall from henceforth stand and be seised to such and such Uses, and the Uses will not arise by the Law; in this Case no Action of Covenant will lie upon this Covenant; for this Action will never lie upon any Covenant, but upon such a Covenant as is either to do a Thing hereafter, or that a Thing is or has heretofore been done, and not when it is for a Thing present; as when A. covenants with B. that his black Horse shall be for ever after the Horse of B. that is no good Covenant to give the Horse to B. or to give him an Action of Covenant for him, but A. may keep him still notwithstanding. Plow. 307, 308. 21 H. 7. 18. 27 H. 8. 16.

If one mortgages upon Condition to re-enter upon Payment of an Hundred Pounds at a Day, and the Mortgagee covenants that he will not take the Profits of the Land until Default of Payment; this is a good Covenant, and the Mortgagee therefore may not meddle with the Profits until the Day of Payment come.

(N) What shall be said a good Covenant in Law, upon which an Action of Covenant may be had, and what not.

If one makes a Lease for Years of Land by the Words Demise or Grant, and there is not contained in the Lease any express Covenant for the quiet enjoying of the Land; in this Case the Law doth supply a Covenant for the quiet enjoying of it against the Lessor, and all that come in under him by Title during the Term; and upon this the Lessee, his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, may have an Action of Covenant, if he be disturbed; but where there is an express Covenant in the Deed for the quiet enjoying of the Land, there the Law will not make this implied Covenant. Expressum facit cessare tacitum.

And therefore this is not like the Case, where a Man makes a Lease for Life, by the Warranty; Words of Dedi & Concessi, or makes a Lease for Life by other Words, reserving Rent, (in which Cases the Law creates a Warranty against all Men during the Life of the Lessor); for if in these Cases there be an express Warranty in the Deed, yet this does not take away nor qualify the implied Warranty; but the Lessee may make use of which of them he will, if he be ousted or evicted by one that has an elder Title. 4 Co. 80. 5 Co. 17.

(O) Who shall or may have Advantage of a Covenant in Deed or Law, and bring a Writ of Covenant upon the Breach of it, or not.

ANY one who is Party to the Deed to whom a Covenant is made may take Advantage of it, but not a Stranger; for if A. covenants with B. to do an Act to C. who is no Party to the Deed, and he does it not, B. and not C. must sue him upon this Breach; but see the Statute post.

There are some Covenants, of which none shall have Advantage but the Party or his Heirs. 42 Ed. 3. 4. Roll. Abr. 520. The Party or his Heir.

Such as are knit to the Estate; secus of Covenants in Grofs. Palm. 558.

If a Breach be made in the Time of the Covenantee, the Action shall be brought by his Executor; Executor though the Covenant was with him, his Heirs and Assigns only. Vent. 175, 176. 2 Lev. 26. 2 Keb. 831.

Covenants of Inheritance shall descend to the Heir. And. 55. Palm. 558. Heir.

As if an Abbot covenants, and has used Time out of Mind to sing in the Manor of B. for him and his Servants, his Heirs shall have Advantage of this Covenant, if B. does not alien. Roll. Abr. 520.

If an Abbot and Covent covenant to sing for the Covenantee and his Heirs in such a Chapel, his Heirs at all Times shall have a Writ of Covenant for the not doing thereof. 5 Co. 18. Roll. Abr. 520.

If a Man leases for Years, and the Lessee covenants with the Lessor, his Executors and Administrators, to repair, and leave it in good Repair at the End of the Term, and the Lessor dies, &c. his Heir may have an Action upon this Covenant; for this is a Covenant that runs with the Land, and shall go to the Heir though he is not named; and it appears that he was intended to continue after the Death of the Lessor, inasmuch as his Executors, &c. are named. 2 Lev. 92.

If a Feoffment be made in Fee, and the Feoffor covenants to warrant the Land, or otherwise, to the Feoffee and his Heirs; in this Case the Heir of the Feoffee shall take Advantage; as if A. covenants with B. and his Heirs to enfeoff B. and his Heirs of Land, and B. dies before it be done, in this Case his Heirs shall take Advantage thereof.

And if A. B. and C. have Lands in Coparcenary; and they purchase other Lands in Fee, and they covenant each to other, his Heirs and Assigns, to make such Conveyance to the Heir of him that shall first die of a third Part, as he shall Devise; in this Case the Heir, not the Executor, shall take Advantage of the Covenant. Dyer 338.

Executors and Administrators.

Executors and Administrators shall take Advantage of inherent Covenants although they be not named; and therefore,

If A. covenants to do a Thing to B. and does not name his Executors or Administrators, and if it be not done, the Executors or Administrators of B. may have an Action of Covenant for not doing of it; as if one covenants with J. S. to pay him Money at Michaelmas, and does not say to his Executors, &c. and he dies before the Time; in this Case his Executor or Administrator shall take Advantage of the Covenant, and may recover the Money. 5 Co. 17. F. N. B. 145. H. Dyer 112, 271.

Grantees, Lessees.

Grantees of Reversions shall have the like Advantage against Farmers (by Action only) for any Covenant or Agreement contained in their Lease, as the Lessors, their Heirs or Successors, might.

And so also shall Lessees against Grantees of Reversions (Recoveries in Value excepted) by the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 34. And herein a Difference is taken between Covenants that are inherent, and Covenants that are collateral; for the Covenants whereof Grantees by this Statute shall take Advantage, are inherent Covenants, i. e. such Covenants as concern the Thing granted, and tend to the Supportation of it; as where a Lessee for Life or Years covenants with his Lessor and his Heirs to keep the Houses demised in good Reparations, or the like, and after the Lessor grants away the Reversion of all or Part of the Houses to J. S. in this Case J. S. shall take Advantage for any Breach of the Covenant in his Time the Reversion was granted.

But if the Lessee covenants with his Lessor and his Heirs to pay him a Sum of Money, or make him a Feoffment, or the like, and then the Lessor doth grant the Reversion to J. S. in this Case J. S. shall take Advantage of the Covenant. Vide 5 Co. 18.

Assignee.

If a Man leases Land to another by Indenture, this Covenant in Law, created by the Word Demise, shall go to the Assignee of the Term, and he shall have Advantage of it. Roll. Abr. 521.

If one by Indenture leases an House for forty Years, and the Lessee covenants with the Lessor, that he will sufficiently repair the House during the Term, and the Lessor may enter every Year to see if the Repairs are done, and if upon View of the Lessor it was repaired according to the Agreement, that then the Lessee shall hold the House for forty Years after the first Term ended, and the Lessee grants to another Totum Interesse, Terminum & Terminos quæ tunc habuit in Tenementis, and after the first Term ends, the Assignee shall not take Benefit of this Agreement. Adjudged in Skern's Case, Trin. 3 Eliz. (Moor 27 pl. 88.) three Judges against Cathyn, who held, That the Possibility was inherent to the Land and Term, but the three Judges held the contrary, and that the Words would not carry the Possibility to the Assignee; so that there was a Separation between the Term and the Possibility, and by Consequence the Possibility (vide Moor 159. pl. 300.) was determined, for that it could not stand in Gross: And by all the Judges, That the Want of the Word Assigns upon the Creation of the Covenant was immaterial; for if the Possibility was inherent, it would pass however.

If Lessee for Years covenants to leave the Houses in good Repair at the End of the Term, and the Lessor grants his Reversion to another: Though this Covenant is not to be performed during the Term, yet for a Breach thereof the Grantee of the Reversion may bring an Action, and there cannot be a more apt Covenant to run with the Land. And the Covenant was instantly broken upon the Determination of the Term. Cro. Eliz. 599, 600, 617. —Goult. 175, 176.

So where the Lessor covenants to make a new Lease at the End of the Term, and the Lessor grants over his Reversion, &c. Moor 150. And. 82, 83.

If A. leases Lands to B. for 200 Years, and A. by the same Deed covenants for himself, his Heirs and Assigns, with B. his Executors and Assigns, that if B. is disturbed for Respite of Homage, or inforced to pay any Charge of Issues lost, that he shall withhold so much of his Rent as he shall be inforced to pay; and A. grants his Reversion to C. and B. assigns the Term to D. D. may take Benefit of this Covenant against C. for it runs with the Land, and in an Action for the Rent, D. may plead it in Bar. Cro. Car. 137.

A. made a Lease for Years of Lands in Ireland, and the Lessee covenanted to pay the Rent in London. A. assigned his Reversion, and the Assignee brought Covenant in London for the Rent. The Defendant pleaded to the Jurisdiction, that the Lands lay in Ireland; and on Demurrer the Plea held good; for this is a local Covenant, and adheres to the Land. The Lessor could not have maintained this Action here, and the Assignee has it in the same Plight the Lessor had it. Salk. 80. pl. 1. 3 Mod. 136. Show. 191. Carth. 182.

If A. by Deed enfeoffs B. of certain Lands, reserving Rent, Fealty and Suit of Court, and by the same Deed grants, that if the Feoffee shall be distrained; vexed or charged for other Rents or Services, then he may enter and distrain for his Amends in other Lands: This is annexed to the Estate of the Land, and shall go with it to every Assignee. Moor 185. pl. 331.

If A. leases an House to B. for Years, who covenants to repair, and that A. his Heirs and Assigns, may at all Times enter, and see in what Plight the same is; and if upon such View any Default shall be found in the not repairing, and thereof Warning shall be given to B. his Executors, &c. then within four Months after such Warning such Default shall be amended; and after the House, in Default of B. becomes ruinous, and A. grants the Reversion to C. who, upon View of the House, gives Warning to B. of the Default, &c. If it is not repaired, C. may have an Action against B. as Assignee of A. though the House became ruinous before C. was intitled to the Reversion; for the Action is not founded upon the ruinous Estate of the House, but for not repairing within the Time appointed by the Covenant. Leon. 62. Moor 242. pl. 380.

But an Assignee shall not have an Action upon a Breach of Covenant before his Time. Cro. Eliz. 863. 3 Leon. 51. 2 Vent. 278.

Yet he may upon a Breach after his Time, though his Estate is determined. Roll. Rep. 80. Owen 152. 2 Bull. 281.

A Prior covenants with B. to sing in a Chapel in his Manor of D. for him and his Servants, (in Fee, as it seems to be intended) the Assignee of the Manor shall have Covenant for a Default, 43 Ed. 3. 3. b. 5 Co. 17. b. because it is annexed to the Manor. 2 H. 4. 6. b.

But if the Covenant be to sing in the Chapel of a Stranger, the Assignee shall not have Covenant. 2 H. 4. 6. 5 Co. 18. Co. Lit. 385. a.

Upon Equality of Partition, if one Coparcener covenants to acquit the other and her Heir of Suit, the Assignee of the Land shall have Benefit of this Covenant. 42 Ed. 3. 3. b. 5 Co. 18. Co. Lit. 384. b. 385. a.

If A. seised of Lands in Fee, conveys it by Deed indented to B. and covenants with B. his Heirs and Assigns, to make any other Assurance, upon Request, for the better Settlement of the Land, &c. and after B. conveys it to C. who conveys it to D. and after D. requires A. to make another Assurance according to the Covenant, and he refuses, D. shall have an Action of Covenant in this Case against A. by the Common Law, as Assignee to B. Roll. Abr. 521.

Regularly every Assignee of the Land or Thing demised shall take Advantage of inherent Assignees; as if a Covenant be, to have Estovers to burn in the House demised, or to have Timber to repair, or if the Covenant be, that the Lessor or Lessee shall repair, or the like.

And therefore of these Assignees in Deed and in Law, Assignees of Assignees in infinitum shall take Advantage, and Assignees of Executors or Administrators, Tenants by Statute or Elegit, or after a Sale upon a Fieri Facias, a Husband in the Right of his Wife; any one of these and any other that shall come lawfully to a Term unto which such a Covenant is incident, although he be not named yet he may take Advantage of it. 5 Co. 17.

If a Lease for Years be made to J. S. by the Words Demise or Grant, and the Lessee assigns this over to J. D. in this Case J. D. may take Advantage of the Covenant in Law, and bring an Action against the Lessor, if he be disturbed. 4 Co. 80. Dyer 257. Fitz. Covenant 30.

If a Lease for Years be made of Land, and the Lessor covenants with the Lessee and his Assigns to do or not to do something; in this Case an Assignee by Word, or an Assignee by Deed, may take Advantage of this Covenant. 3 Co. 63. F. N. B. 145.

If two Coparceners make Partition of Land, and one of them covenants with the other Alienee,] to acquit her and her Heirs of a Suit that issued out of the Land, and the Covenantee aliens her Part to a Stranger; in this Case the Alienee shall have the same Advantage for Acquittal of the Land as the Covenantee had.

So if A. be seised of the Manor of B. whereof a Chapel is Parcel, and a Prior, with the Consent of his Covent, had covenanted with A. and his Heirs, Lords of the Manor, to celebrate Divine Service in the Chapel; and after A. had sold the Manor; in this Case the Vendee or Assignee of the Manor should have had the same Advantage of the Covenant the Vendor had. But if the Lord had sold the Chapel, the Assignee of the Chapel should not have Advantage of the Covenant. And if the Covenant be to say Divine Service in the Chapel of a Stranger; in this Case the Assignee of the Manor in which the Chapel is shall take Advantage of the Covenant. Co. Lit. 385. 5 Co. 23, 18.

If a Lease be made of Land to a Husband and Wife for Years, and the Lessor enters upon the Land and puts them both out, or the one of them after the Death of the other; Husband and Wife. in in this Case both of them whilst they both live, and the Survivor after the Death of one of them, may have this Action of Covenant upon the Covenant in Law.

So if a Wardship be granted to a Woman by Deed, and she takes a Husband, and dies, the Husband shall have Advantage of this Covenant in Law made by the Word Grant, if he be disturbed. So if one by the Words Demise or Grant leases Land to a Woman Sole for Years, who takes a Husband, and dies; in this Case if the Husband be disturbed he shall take Advantage of this Covenant in Law. 5 Co. 17. By Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 34. after reciting, That whereas divers had leased Manors, &c. or other Hereditaments, for Life (a) or Lives, or Years, by Writing, containing certain Conditions, Covenants and Agreements, as well on the Part of the Lessees and Grantees, their Executors and Assigns, as on the Part of the Lessors and Grantors, their Heirs and Successors; and whereas by the Common Law, no Stranger to any Condition or Covenant could take Advantage thereof, by Reason whereof all Grantees of Reversions, and all Grantees and Patentees of the King of Abbey Lands, could have no Entry or Action for any Breach, &c. it is enacted, That all Persons, Bodies Politick, their Heirs, Successors and Assigns, which have or shall have any Grant of our said Lord (b) the King, of any Lordship, &c. Rents, Tithes, Portions, or other Hereditaments, or any Reversion thereof, which belonged to the Monasteries, &c. or which belonged to any other Person, &c. and also all other Persons, being (c) Grantees or (d) Assignees (e) to or by our said Lord the King, or to or by any other Person or Persons, and the Heirs, Executors, Successors and Assigns of every of them, (f) shall and may have (g) like Advantage, by Entry, for Non-payment of Rent, or for doing Waste or (h) other Forfeiture; and the same Remedy by (i) Action only for not performing other Conditions, Covenants and Agreements contained in the said Leases, against the Lessees and Grantees, their Executors, Administrators and Assigns, as the (k) Lessors and Grantors, their Heirs or Successors, ought, should or might have had at any Time or Times, &c.

And by the same Act it is enacted, That all Farmers, Lessees and Grantees of Lordships, &c. Rents, Tithes, Portions or other Hereditaments, for Years, Life or Lives, their Executors, Administrators and (l) Assigns, shall and may have like Action and Remedy against all Persons, Bodies Politick, their Heirs, Successors and Assigns, which by Grant of the King, or other Persons, shall have the Reversion of the same Lordships, &c. so letten, or any Part thereof, for any Condition, Covenant or Agreement contained in their Leases, as the Lessees, or any of them, might and should have had against the Lessors and Grantors, their Heirs and Successors; Recovery in Value, by reason of any Warranty in Deed or Law only excepted.

(h) Viz. By Force of a Condition incident to the Reversion, as Rent; or for the Benefit of the Estate, as for doing Waste, not keeping Houses in Repair, &c. and not for the Payment of any Sum in Grofs, Delivery of Corn, &c. so as other Forfeiture shall be taken for other Forfeitures, like to these Examples, viz. Payment of Rent, and not doing Waste, which are for the Benefit of the Reversion. Co. Lit. 215. b. & vide 5 Co. 18. Moor 159, 243. pl. 382, 876. pl. 1228. Owen 41. And. 82, 83. T. Raym. 250. Sand. 159. So if the Proviso be to enter for Non-payment of a Rent or grofs Sum by way of Fine, the Grantee of the Reversion shall not take Advantage of it, for the Condition cannot be apportioned. Styl. 316.

(i) The Privity of Action is transferred, and it may be brought in the County where the Covenant was made, though the Lands lie in another. Sand. 237. Sid. 401. Lev. 259. Vent. 10. & vide 3 Mod. 338.

(k) Therefore if the Conusee of the Reversion, before Attornment, bargains and sells to another, to whom the Lessee attorns, the Bargainee may, &c. though his Bargainor could not. 5 Co. 113. a. — A. devises to B. for Years, rendering Rent, upon Condition to re-enter for Non-payment, and after devises the Reversion in Fee to another, and dies; the Devisee may take Advantage of the Condition, though there was never any Reversion, &c. in the Devisor. 2 Leon. 33.

(l) But if Lessee for thirty Years leases to another for ten Years, he is no Assignee within the Statute, for he is not Tenant to the first Lessor. Moor 93. pl. 230.

(P) Who shall be bound and charged by a Covenant, and against whom a Writ of Covenant lies, and where, or not.

Regularly all those who seal and deliver the Deed, and are named and bound by the Parties. express Words of the Covenant, whether the Covenant be collateral or inherent, are bound by the Covenant contained in the Deed; and therefore if Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns be named in the Covenant, for the most part they are bound by the Covenant; and in Cases of inherent Covenants also, where a Man covenants for himself only, and does not name his Executors and Administrators, or either of them, they are bound and may be charged by the Covenant notwithstanding. Heirs, Executors, Administrators, Assigns.

And in some Cases the Law is so also for collateral Covenants, and in most Cases of inherent Covenants that tend to the Support of the Thing granted; (in respect of which it is presumed the Lessor took the Lessee for the Land) such as have the Land, although they be neither Executors nor Administrators, or either of them, but Assignees, &c. they shall be charged by the Covenant though they be not named, for these Covenants are said to run with the Land. 5 Co. 16, 17, 18. Assignees.

If a Man covenants for him and his Heirs to do any Thing whatsoever; hereby his Heirs are bound.

But otherwise, except the Heirs be bound by the Deed by express Name, an Heir shall scarcely be bound or charged in any Case by a Deed.

And therefore it is, that if the Lessee for Years be ousted by any other but the Heir himself, no Action of Covenant will lie against the Heir, unless there be an express Covenant wherein and whereby the Lessor and his Heirs are bound; but if he be ousted by the Heir himself, it seems an Action of Covenant will lie against him; and yet if he be ousted by an elder Title from the Lessor, contra; for in this Case the Heir shall not be charged. 5 Co. 17. Bro. Covenant 38. 32 H. 6. 32. Dyer 257. Fitz. Covenant 31.

In every Case where the Testator is bound by a Covenant the Executor shall be bound by it, if it be not determined by his Death, viz. where it was to be performed by the Person of the Testator, the Executor cannot perform it. Cro. Eliz. 553. Dyer 14. pl. 69. 48 Ed. 3. 2. & vide 2 Mod. 268. Executor;

If A. be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to B. in Fee, and A. by Indenture demises, &c. to C. for fifteen Years, and after A. dies, and B. enters upon C. yet C. shall have no Action of Covenant against the Executors of A. for the Covenant was but during the Term, which determined by the Death of the Tenant for Life. And. 12. adjudged. And in Dyer 257. the same Point is adjudged by three Judges against one, who differed from the others, because the Lease was by Indenture, which is a Matter of Conclusion; but if it had been by Deed Poll, he agreed with the Rest. Quære diversitatem. And in Brownl. 22. the same Point is adjudged.

So if Tenant in Tail demises and dies without Issue. And. 12. Leon. 179. Cro. Eliz. 157. & vide Lit. Rep. 334.

So if the Lessee had granted, bargained and sold all his Estate to another, admitting that by these Words a Warranty was implied, yet it determines with the Estate. Cro. Eliz. 157.

If a Man covenants that A. shall serve B. as an Apprentice for seven Years, and dies; if A. departs within the Term, a Writ of Covenant lies against the Executor of the Covenantor without naming. Roll. Abr. 519.

Executors,
Administrators.

If a Man covenants for himself only to pay Money, build a House, or quiet enjoying, or the like, and he does not say in the Covenant, his Executors, Administrators, &c. yet hereby his Executors and Administrators are bound and shall be charged.

And yet if a Lessee for Years covenants for himself to repair the Houses demised, omitting other Words; he is bound to repair only during his Life, and the Executors or Administrators are not bound.

So if a Lessor covenants for himself only, to discharge the Lessee of all Quit-Rents out of the Land; this Covenant is only Personal, and shall bind the Covenantor only during his Life.

But if in these Cases the Words during the Term be added in the Covenant, as if a Lessee covenants for himself to repair the Houses during the Term; in these Cases the Executors and Administrators also will be charged after his Death. 10 H. 7. 10. Dy. 19, 14. Bro. Covenant 50. Dy. 114.

If a Lessee be ousted by one that has Title, an Action of Covenant will lie for this Ouster against the Executor or Administrator, upon the Covenant in Law, if he were put out in the Life-time of the Lessor, and not otherwise; for if Tenant for Life by the Words Demise or Grant makes a Lease for Years, and dies, and after he in the Remainder enters and puts out the Lessee for Years; in this Case he cannot upon this Covenant in Law charge the Executors or Administrators of the Lessor; but upon express Covenant for quiet enjoying he may. Dy. 257.

Assignees or Grantees.

In some Cases an Assignee shall be charged though he be not named, and in some Cases he shall not be charged though he be named, and in some Cases he shall be charged when he is named; as when the Covenant extends to a Thing in esse, Parcel of the Demise, there the Thing to be done is appurtenant & quodammodo annexed to the Thing, and shall bind the Assignee though he be not expressly named; as a Covenant to repair, &c. But if the Covenant be annexed to a Thing not in esse before, but de novo to be erected on the Thing, as to set up a new House, or the like; in this Case it will not bind the Assignees unless they be named in the Covenant.

And if the Covenant be to do a Thing merely collateral; in that Case it will not bind the Assignees although they be named expressly.

Also when a Contract is Personal only, and a Man binds himself and his Assigns; his Assigns shall not be bound hereby: As if one demises Sheep or other Stock of Cattle, or any other personal Goods for any Time; and the Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns, at the End of the Term, to deliver them in as good Plight as they were at the Time of the Demise, or such a Price for them, and the Lessee assigns them; in this Case the Covenant will not bind the Assignee, but the Executors and Administrators of the first Lessee are bound hereby.

Executors.

So if one demises a House and Land with a Stock, or Sum of Money for Years, rendring Rent, and the Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to deliver the Money at the End of the Term; in this Case an Assignee shall not be bound by this Covenant, as the Executors and Administrators of the Lessee shall. 5 Co. 16.

Assignees.

If a Lessee covenants to repair the Houses demised, or to discharge the Lessor De omnibus oneribus circa terram, or the like; in these Cases and such like, although Assignees be not named in the Covenant, yet Assignees and Assigns of Assigns in infinitum, and all others that shall come to the Land by the Act of Law, or by the Act of the Parties, shall be bound and charged by the Covenant. 5 Co. 17. Dyer 27. Bro. Descent 50.

If a Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to build a new House upon the Land demised within seven Years, and the Lessee assigns it over; in this Case the Assignee is chargeable.

But if a Man covenants for him and his Assigns to make a Feoffment, Obligation, or the like; in this Case the Assignee shall not be charged although he be named.

And if the Lessee covenants for himself, or for himself, his Executors and Administrators only, to build a new House upon the Land demised, and the Lessee assigns over the Land; in this Case the Assignee is not bound by this Covenant. 5 Co. 17.

If a Lease be made rendring Rent, and if it be in Arrear, that the Lessee, his Executors and Assigns, shall forfeit 3s. 4d. Nomine pænæ, and the Lessee assigns the Term; in this Case the Assignee shall be charged with the Nomine pænæ. Tbin v. Cholmley, 36 Eliz. C. B.

If a Man leases for Years, and the Lessee covenants in this Manner: Proviso semper <sup>Assignee with-</sup> <sup>but naming.</sup> J. the Lessee does covenant that he will repair, maintain and sustain the Houses upon the Premises, Ad omnia tempora necessaria, during all the said Term, and after the Lessee assigns over the Term: The Assignee shall be bound by this Covenant to repair the Houses during the Life of the first Lessee, though the Assignee be not named, because the Covenant runs with the Land, being made for the Maintenance of a Thing in esse at the Time of the Lease made. Roll. Abr. 521. Cro. Eliz. 457, 552, 553. Moor 399. 5 Co. 24.

When a Covenant extends to a Thing in esse, Parcel of the Demise, it is quasi annexed to the Thing demised, and runs with the Land, and shall bind the Assignee, though not expressly named. 5 Co. 16. b. & vide Godb. 270.

But the Assignee shall not be charged in a Writ of Covenant for any Breach after the Death of the first Lessee, inasmuch as it is Personal to the Lessee himself. Ibid.

If A. leases for Years to B. and B. for himself, his Executors and Administrators, covenants with A. to build a Wall upon Part of the Land demised, and after B. assigns: The Assignee is not bound by this Covenant; for the Law will not annex the Covenant to a Thing not in esse. 5 Co. 15.

But if B. had covenanted for him and his Assigns to build the Wall, &c. this would have bound the Assignee, because it is to be done upon the Land, and the Assignee is to have the Benefit thereof. Ibid.

And if a Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to build in such a Time, and after the Time expired he assigns, it shall not bind the Assignee, because broke before the Assignment; aliter if broke after. Salk. 199. pl. 6.

But though the Covenant be for him and his Assigns, yet if the Thing to be done be merely collateral, and no way concerns the Thing demised, the Covenant shall not bind the Assignee; as if it be to build an House upon other Land of the Lessor, or to pay a collateral Sum. 5 Co. 15. Cro. Jac. 439.

But if a Man demises Sheep, or other personal Things, for a certain Time, and the Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns, at the End of the Term, to deliver such Sheep, &c. or the Price of them, and the Lessee assigns them over; the Assignee shall not be bound by the Covenant, for it is but a personal Contract; and there is not such Privity as between Lessor and Lessee of Land and his Assigns. 5 Co. 16. b. 17. a.

So if a Man leases Land for Years, with a Stock of Cattle, and the Lessee for him and his Assigns covenants to deliver the Stock at the End of the Term. 5 Co. 17. a.

If Lessee for Years, for himself, his Executors and Administrators, covenants with his Lessor to leave fifteen Acres every Year for Pasture, absque Cultura, and after the Lessee assigns: The Assignee, though not named, must perform the Covenant, because it is for the Benefit of the Estate, according to the Nature of the Soil; but a collateral Covenant, as to build de novo, &c. shall not bind him unless named. Cro. Jac. 125.

If A. demises to B. several Parcels of Land, and the Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to repair, &c. and after the Lessee assigns to D. all his Estate, in Parcel of the Land demised; and after D. does not repair that to him assigned: The Lessor may have an Action of Covenant against the Assignee. Roll. Abr. 522. Because this Covenant is divisible, and follows the Land with which the Defendant is chargeable by the Common or Statute Law. Cro. Car. 221, 222. Jones 245.

So if the Lessor had granted the Reversion of Part to one and of other Part to another, they might have brought an Action of Covenant. Lev. 109. Sid. 157. T. Raym. 80.

Against Assignee of Lessee for Years, who was Administrator, and held good. Salk. 309.

If a Man leases for Years, and the Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to pay the Rent so long as he and they shall have the Possession of the Thing let; and the Lessee assigns, the Term expires, and the Assignee continues the Possession afterwards: An Action of Covenant will lie against him for Rent behind after the Expiration of the Term; for though he is not an Assignee strictly according to the Rules of Law, yet he shall be accounted such an Assignee as is to perform the Covenants. Styl. 407.

If a Man leases for Years, rendering Rent, and the Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to repair the House during the Term, and after the Lessee assigns over the Term, and the Lessor accepts the Rent from the Assignee, and after the Covenant is broke: Notwithstanding the Acceptance of the Rent from the Assignee, yet an Action of Covenant lies against the first Lessee, for the Lessee has covenanted expressly for him and his Assigns; and this personal Covenant cannot be transferred by the Acceptance of Rent. Roll. Abr. 522.

If a Lessee covenants that he and his Assigns will repair the House demised, and the Lessee grants over his Term, and the Assignee does not repair it: An Action of Covenant lies either against the Assignee at Common Law, because this Covenant runs with the Land, or it lies against the Lessee, at the Election of the Lessor. Ibid. & Jones 223.

He

He may charge both, but Execution shall be only against one of them; for if he takes both in Execution, he who is last taken may have an Audita Querela. Cro. Jac. 523.

If A. leases to B. rendring Rent, and B. covenants to pay it, and after B. assigns to C. and A. grants the Reversion to D. and D. after accepts Rent from C. yet for Non-payment at another Day, D. may have an Action against B. it being upon an expresse Covenant. 3 Lev. 233.

Election.

And in all the Cases before where a Covenant is broken, an Action of Covenant may be brought. But herein Note, that howsoever Assignees are chargeable upon a Covenant, yet the Lessee himself is not hereby discharged; but the Lessor or Grantee of the Reversion hath Election to charge which of them he will.

And therefore if a Lessee covenant for him and his Assigns to repair, and the Lessee assigns, in this Case the Lessor may have his Action of Covenant against either of them.

And if a Lessee covenants for him, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, to repair the Houses devised, and he in Reversion grants away his Reversion, and the Lessee assigns his Estate: In this Case although the Grantee of the Reversion has accepted the Rent of the Assignee of the Term, yet he may still have an Action of Covenant against the Executor of the Lessee upon this Covenant.

So if a Patentee covenants for him and his Assigns to repair, and he assigns, the King may have his Action against either of them. Bret v. Cumberland, H. 16 Jac. B. R.

If A. and B. covenant for themselves jointly, without more Words; the Covenant is joint, and one of them cannot be charged without the other; but if they covenant for themselves severally, the Covenant is several, and they may be sued apart; and if they covenant jointly and severally, then the Covenant is joint and several, and they may be sued either way at the Election of the Covenantee. 5 Co. 23.

Husband and Wife.

If a Feoffment or Lease be made to two, or to a Man and his Wife, and there are divers Covenants in the Deed to be performed on the Part of the Feoffees or Lessees, and one of them does not seal; or the Wife does, or does not seal during the Coverture, and he, or she that does not seal, notwithstanding accepts of the Estate, and occupies the Lands conveyed or demised: In these Cases, as touching all inherent Covenants, as for Payment of Rent, and the Accessories thereof, as Clauses of Distress, of Re-entry, of Nomine pænæ, Reparations, and the like, they are bound by these Covenants as much as if they do seal the Deed.

Grantees.

So if a Lease be made to A. for Years or Life, the Remainder to J. S. in Fee, and there is a Rent reserved; or there be divers Covenants on the Part of the Grantees, and J. S. never seals the Deed or Counterpart; yet if in this Case he accepts the Estate after the Death of A. he must pay the Rent, and perform all the Covenants that are inherent.

Patentees.

So also if there be Covenants in the King's Patent to be performed on the Part of the Patentee; as if there be this Clause in the Patent, And that J. S. (the Patentee) shall repair the House when it is decayed; the Patentee is bound by this Covenant, and all such like Covenants. But Quære of collateral Covenants in the first Cases, for therein it seems the Feoffee or Lessee is not bound.

And yet it is said, that if an Indenture be made between A. of the one Part, and B. and C. of the other Part, and therein there is a Lease made by A. to B. and C. on certain Conditions, and B. and C. are bound to A. by the Indenture in 20<sup>l.</sup> to perform the Conditions, and B. only seals the Deed, and not C. yet in this Case if C. accepts of the Estate, he is bound by the Covenants; and one of them cannot be sued without the other whilst they are both living. Qui sentit commodum sentire debet & onus. Et transit terra cum onere. Co. Lit. 231. Dy. 13. Bro. Covenant. 6. Det. 80. & Bret and Cumberland's Case, Pal. 14 Jac. B. R.

How and in what Cases an Infant shall be bound by his Covenant, or not.

Infant shall not be bound by his Covenant, unless for Necessaries; or by Covenants in Indenture of Apprenticeship.

Now Infant shall be bound by his Contract for Necessaries, viz. Diet, Apparel, Learning and necessary Physick; therefore it was adjudged in Dole and Copping's Case, the Covenant of an Infant to pay Money for the curing him of the Falling-sickness, is good.

In 2 Roll. Rep. 271. If Infant have Houses, it is necessary for him to have them in repair, and yet Contract to repair does not bind him; no Contract binds him but what concerns his own Person.

If Infant promises another, that if he will find him Meat and Drink, and pay for his Learning, that he will pay him 7<sup>l.</sup> per Ann. an Action lies on this Promise; and although it is not mentioned what Learning it is, yet it shall be intended that that is fit for him, until it be shewed to the contrary of the other Part. Roll. Abr. 729.

Learning, though it be not necessary de esse, yet it is so de bene esse; & omne quod est utile est aliquando necessarium. Co. Lit. 172. Palm. 528.

But

But a Contract for Dancing is not binding.

It was a Question in Whittingham and Hill's Case, Whether an Infant's buying of Necessaries to maintain his Trade were binding, or not? Error of Judgment was brought in Sbrensbury in Assumpsit, to pay such a Sum for Wares sold. Defendant pleads he was within Age at the Time of the Wares being sold. Plaintiff protestando, that he was not within Age, Pro placito saith he bought them pro necessario victu & apparatu, & ad sustentiam familie sue. Defendant rejoins, that he kept a Mercer's Shop at Salop, and bought those Wares to sell again, and traverses that he bought them pro necessario victu & apparatu. Plaintiff demurs, for whom it was adjudged. Error was assigned in Point of Law, that such Buying shall not bind an Infant: And per Cur', His buying to maintain his Trade, though he gets his Livelihood by it, shall not bind him. Cro. Jac. 494.

But if an Infant is House-keeper, and buys Necessaries for his Household, it shall bind him. 3 Keb. 387.

It was said by Coke, arguendo in Stone and Withypool's Case, Leon. 113. in Debt against Infant on Contract for Necessaries, the Plaintiff ought to declare specially, so as the whole Certainty may appear; upon which the Court must judge if the Expences were necessary or convenient, or not, and also upon the Reasonableness of the Price. But in Russel and Lucy's Case, Keb. 382. and Lev. 86. the Particulars are needless to be set forth. It must be averred in the Declaration, that the Clothes were for his own Wearing, and that they were convenient and necessary.

An Infant and another of full Age covenant one against the other; the Covenant of the Person who is of full Age shall bind him. Sid. 446.

In Covenant to instruct an Apprentice, or cause him to be instructed in the Trade of a Sadler, and to find him Meat, Drink and Lodging during the Term. The Plaintiff shewed the Testator's Death, and that such a Day he was turned out of Doors by the Defendant, & si conventionem fregit in hoc, (viz.) in not instructing him, &c. Defendant demurs, because it is a personal Covenant, and discharged by Death, and cannot be assigned: But all the Court inclined, had it been only to instruct, it had been discharged, but being complex to instruct and find Meat, it is not; and if it were, yet the Breach is sufficiently assigned, if either Part be true, as here in turning him out. Judgment pro Quer'. Keb. 820.

(Q) What shall be accounted real Covenants that run with the Land, or shall affect the Assets only.

A Covenant to repair the Copyhold Estate runs with the Land assigned by Common Law; and Assignees of the Reversion of Copyhold Lands shall be within the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 34. Vide 3 Lev. 326.

See before Letter (D), for Covenants real and personal.

A Bill in Exchequer was brought to subject the Defendant's Lands to the Payment of a Fee-Farm Rent; for that the Duke of N. who had in his Hands both the Plaintiff's and Defendant's Lands, subject (inter alia) to the Payment of this Rent, had granted the Plaintiff's Lands unto one under whom the Plaintiff claims, and covenanted that these Lands should be discharged of the Rent; upon which Covenant the Plaintiff sought Relief, and would have it to be as a real Covenant running with the Land, and charge the other Land with the whole Rent: But per Cur' It is no more than an ordinary and personal Covenant, which must charge the Heir only in respect of Assets, and not otherwise. And the Bill was dismissed. Hard. 87.

Where by the Grant or Devise of the Reversion the Rent reserved upon a Lease for Years is well transferred to the Grantee, the Law also transfers the Covenant of the Lessee to him for the Payment of it, as incident to the Rent. 2 Sand. 371.

Upon a real Covenant there is but Remedy four Ways: 1. By Rebutter. 2. By Voucher. 3. By Warrantia Chartae. 4. By Aid-Prier. Feoffee with Warranty makes a Lease, Lessee may not vouch; so he that comes in the Post shall not vouch; aliter in Covenants personal. Roll. Rep. 26, 81. 5 Rep. Spencer's Case.

Covenant for quiet Enjoyment. The Assignee shall have Action of Covenant without shewing the Deed of the first Assignment; for it is a Covenant that runs with the Estate. Cro. Eliz. 436. And the Executors of the Husband, who is Assignee in Law, shall have the Benefit of such a Covenant.

If I covenant with J. S. and his Heirs to make a Conveyance to one and his Heirs, his Heirs may not have Covenant, because it is a Sum in Gros; but otherwise when such a Covenant is in another Conveyance, and goes with the Estate. As if I covenant with A.

and his Heirs to convey Land to him and his Heirs; there the Feoffment shall be to the Heir, for the Heir shall have the Covenant. Palm. 558.

Declaration, That the Defendant enfeoffed his Testator in certain Lands, and that he covenanted for him and his Heirs, that he was seised of a good Estate in Fee, and he alledges the Breach. Per Cur', The Covenant being made with the Heir, the Executor shall not have the Action, for the Covenant is annexed to the Land. Winch 19.

Tenant per Statute Merchant, Staple, Elegit of a Term, and he to whom a Lease for Years is sold by Force of any Execution, shall have Action of Covenant in such Case as a Thing annexed to the Land, although they come to it by Act in Law. 5 Co. 17. as,

If a Man grants to a Lessee, that he shall have so much Estovers as shall serve to repair his House, or shall burn within his House, and the like, during the Term: This is appurtenant to the Land, and shall run with it as a Thing appurtenant, in whose Hands soever it shall come. Ibid.

Lessee of two Houses in London covenants for him and his Assigns to repair the Houses, Lessee assigns one of the Houses and Parcel of the Land to J. S. and the first Lessor, for not repairing the House assigned to J. S. brings Action of Covenant against J. S. the Action lies; for this Covenant runs with the Land. W. Jones 245.

A Covenant which runs with the Land lies against an Assignee though not named; and so against an Executor, except it is personal. Cro. Eliz. 553. pl. 3. Lev. 109. Roll. Abr. 521. *Cro. A Lessor made a Lease of an House, except two Rooms and a free Passage to them; the Lessee assigned the Term, and the Lessor brought Covenant against the Assignee for disturbing him in his Passage to those Rooms: Adjudged that the Action lies; for the Covenant goes with the Tenement. Salk. 196. Carth. 232. Show. 388. Vide Moor 553. *Cro. A Covenant with the Lessor, his Executors and Administrators, to repair; this is a Covenant which runs with the Land, and the Heir, though not named, shall have it. 2 Lev. 92. Skin. 305. S. C. Lucas 158.

Where a Covenant is to a Man, his Heirs and Assigns, yet the Executors, though not named, who are the Representatives of the Testator, may bring the Action. 2 Lev. 26. Vent. 175.

(R) Where Covenants are placed in a Deed, and in what Form written.

Covenants may be placed in any Part of the Deed, but the most proper Place is after the Condition or after the Warranty (where there is one) which is a Covenant real.

The following Form will serve for the Beginning of Covenants in most Cases.

And the said A. B. doth for himself, his Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, hereby covenant, &c.

But where there are more Covenantors than one it is best to say,

And the said A. B. C. do for themselves, and each of them for himself, his Heirs, Executors and Administrators, covenant, &c.

And when a Covenant is made to more than one, say,

— to and with the said C. D. E. F. and G. H. and to and with either of them, and either of their Heirs, &c.

And yet this will not divide the Action in all Cases.

There is no set Form appointed in Law for Covenants, but the Words covenant and promise are the Words by which Covenants are usually made in Form; but any other Words declaring any Thing to be agreed between the Parties, may make a Covenant; but it is best to keep to usual Forms, of which see a great Variety in the Second Part.

Covenants for the Matter of them must contain Things lawful and possible to be done; for if the Thing to be done be unlawful or impossible, the Covenant is not good nor binding.

Some Covenants properly belong to Fee-simple and Fee-tail Estates, and some belong to Estates for Lives and Years, &c.

Most of the Covenants that are applied to a Fee-simple Deed may be made to serve in a Lease for Years; but then in all Places of the Deed where he to whom the Deed is made, does covenant that he, his Heirs and Assigns, shall do any Thing; and where it is said he, his Heirs and Assigns, it must be said he, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns.

And

And so on the other Side the Covenant that is suited to a Lease for Years, may be put in a Fee-simple Deed; but then where in the Lease it is said of him to whom the Deed is made, he, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, it must be, he, his Heirs and Assigns.

And if one who makes a Lease for Life or Years of Land has the Fee-simple of the Land in him, then the Covenant in this Part, as to him, is the like in a Lease for Years by Deed as it is in a Fee-simple Deed.

(S) What Covenants are void at Law.

First, For being against Law.

PLAINTIFF declared, That the Defendant covenanted for the true Imprisonment of J. S. who escaped, and thereupon the Plaintiff was sued, and forced to pay the Debt. Defendant pleaded the Statute of H. 6. and that the Covenant was for Ease and Favour of J. S. Plaintiff replied, the said Covenant was entered into for better Security, absque hoc, that it was for Ease and Favour. Defendant demurred, and Judgment pro Defendant, because there was a Covenant to pay Chamber-Rent, &c. which in itself is for Ease and Favour. T. Raym. 222.

Agreement, that D. before Easter Term next following, at the Request of P. would surrender up to P. his Letters Patent of the Stewardship of B. to the Intent that he might renew the Letters Patent in his own Name. The Stewardship of a Court-Leet is within the Statute 5 Ed. 6. c. 16. of buying of Offices. Brownl. 71.

C. the Testator had the Office of Surveyor of Customs by Letters Patent to him and his Deputies; and by Indenture between him and S. for 600*l.* paid, and 100*l.* per Ann. to be paid during the Life of C. makes Deputation of the said Office to S. and covenants with S. that if C. dies before him, then his Executors shall pay to him 300*l.* and C. was bound to S. for the Performance. Per Cur', The Bond was void, as against the Statute 5 & 6 Ed. 6. of buying of Offices.

No Lease shall be made of any Benefice or Ecclesiastical Promotion, or any Part thereof; and not being impropriated, shall endure any longer than whilst the Lessor shall be ordinarily resident, and serving the Cure of such Benefice without Absence above eighty Days in any one Year; and all Bonds and Covenants for suffering any such Parson to enjoy any such Benefice with Cure shall be void, Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20. 14 Eliz. c. 12. either by Parson or Curate; and so by the Statute 13 Eliz. of Leases made by Parsons, that upon Non-residence for eighty Days the Lease shall be void. This Statute voids Bonds and Covenants for Non-residence.

Covenants upon usurious Contracts are also void, and Bonds of Covenants upon such Contracts.

Debt on Bond to perform Covenants in an Indenture, which was to pay Rent. Defendant pleads the Statute 32 H. 8. which makes Leases to alien Artificers void. Sid. 357.

Generally where the Matter being in a Condition will make the Condition void, because it is against Law; there it being in a Covenant will make the Covenant void.

And yet a Man may restrain himself where the Law does not restrain him; as a Tenant covenants that he will not cut any Fuel without the Assignment of the Lessor, &c. for in such Cases Modus & conventio vincunt Legem.

If a Man seised of Lands in Fee, covenants to stand seised of it to such Uses as no Estate will arise by the Covenant; yet it may be good by way of Covenant, and give Remedy to the Covenantee in an Action of Covenant; but with this Difference, if the Covenant be future, as where one Man covenants with another, that in Consideration of a Marriage his Lands shall descend, remain or revert to his Son and Heir apparent, and to the Heirs of his Body on the Body of his Wife; in this Case the Covenantee may have a Writ of Covenant; for if the Covenantee be present, as that a Man and his Heirs shall from henceforth stand and be seised to such and such Uses, and the Uses will not arise; by Law in this Case no Action of Covenant will lie for the Covenantee but where it is covenanted that a Thing shall be done hereafter, or has been done heretofore, and not for a Thing present; as when A. covenants with B. that his black Horse shall be for ever the Horse of B. this is no good Covenant, and although he keeps the Horse, still B. can have no Remedy. Plow. 307, 308. 27 H. 8. 16. Finch Ley 49.

The Sheriff made B. Under-Sheriff, and the Under-Sheriff covenanted that he shall not serve Executions above 20*l.* without his special Warrant: This is a void Covenant, for that it is against Law and Justice; for the Under-Sheriff is liable to execute all Process as well as the Sheriff. Hob. Norton and Simms.

A Covenant that a Man shall not levy a Fine within 4 H. 7. or that he shall not suffer a common Recovery, is void. 10 Co. 386. b.

If one covenants that he will maintain another in his Suits, or that he will appear in Inquest, or that he will forestall Corn, &c. these are against Law, and void.

If a Man be a Tradesman, and he covenants that he will not use or exercise his Trade: This Restraint if it be absolute and continual is void; but if it be sub modo only, as that he shall not use his Trade for some Time, or in such a Town only, this is good.

If A. owes Money to B. and B. owes Money to C. and B. makes a Letter of Attorney to C. to sue A. at his own Charge, and B. covenants with C. that he will not release the Debt to A. though in this Case it be Maintenance in C. to sue at his own Charge, yet the Covenant is not against Law.

In Debt upon Bond for Performance of Covenants: Plaintiff assigns a Breach. Defendant demurs. It was an usurious Covenant, and against Law; and a Breach cannot be assigned in omitting the doing of that which is unlawful to be done. Cro. Jac. 378.

If in a Deed some Covenants are against Law, and some good: Those which are against Law are void, ab initio, and the Rest shall stand. 11 Co. 27.

A Covenant to perform a void Grant is void. So also is a Bond to perform it. T. Raym. 27. Lev. 45.

Let a Lease be good or void, yet when there is an Eviction Covenant lies. 5 Co. 17. a. & vide 2 Roll. Rep. 399.

Where a Covenant is only Malum prohibitum (as not to import prohibited Goods) there it is a good Covenant, and an Action lies upon the Breach of it; but where it is do a Thing which is Malum in se (as to kill a Man) there it is a void Covenant, and no Action lies upon it. Hill. 35 & 36 Car. 2. and Co. Lit. 206.

Where there are Covenants for Non-feasance, and Covenants for Feasance, the Defendant must plead to the one that he has not done, and to the other that he has performed generally; but if the Covenant for Non-feasance is a void Covenant, he may plead Performance generally. Moor 859. pl. 1175. Godb. 212. Hob. 12, 13.

A Covenant to enter a void Lease is a void Covenant, but where the Lease is but voidable, it is not. Moor 875. pl. 1223.

Upon an Eviction of Lessee for Years, all Rents, Bonds and Covenants depending upon the Interest are gone. Yelv. 19, 123. Sid. 309. Style 357.

Where an Estate is created in which is implied a Covenant in Law, there if the Estate is void, the Covenant also is void; but where there is an express Covenant in a Deed, there it is otherwise, although the Lease is void or voidable; as if the Covenant is, that the Lessee shall enjoy during the Term; there if the Lessor resigns his Benefice, the Covenant is good although the Term is gone. Owen 136. Brownl. 21. Moor 877. & vide 2 Brownl. 134, 136, 158.

A Man gave, granted and confirmed Lands to his Son after his Decease; this Deed had been void if Livery had been made. Vide Cro. Eliz. 344, 345. Hob. 170. Co. Lit. 48. Moor 687. Popb. 47, 48. 2 Roll. Abr. 7.

Because there was no Execution of the Deed to pass an Estate out of which the Use may arise.

And it could not enure as a Covenant to stand seised, because the Deed was void in the Frame of it. 2 Vent. 319.

Secondly, For being impossible to be performed.

Covenant to assign to the Covenantee a Commission of Bankruptcy, void. So a Bond. Street and Daniell; for it is impossible to assign the Commission.

Covenant to go from St. Peter's Church in Westminster to the Church of St. Peter's in Rome in three Hours; it is impossible. Co. Lit. 206. b.

If a Man covenants to do a certain Thing before a certain Time; although it becomes impossible by the Act of God, yet this shall not excuse him, inasmuch as he had bound himself precisely to do it. Roll. Abr. 450. 2.

If a Man covenants to leave a Wood in as good Plight as he finds it: If the Trees are thrown down by Tempest, by this the Covenant is not broken; for now it is become impossible by the Act of God, and in this Case the Covenantor is not bound to supply it.

If one covenants to sustain Houses or Sea-Banks, or covenants to leave them in as good Case as he finds them: If the Houses are burnt, or thrown down by Tempest, or the Sea-Banks overthrown by a sudden Flood, the Covenant is not broken by this Accident only; but if the Covenantor does not repair, and make up these Things in convenient Time, the Covenant will be broken. Perk. §. 738. Plowd. 227. 5 Co. 15.

(T) What

(T) What shall excuse the Performance of a Covenant, or not.

First, The Act of God.

IF a Man covenants to do a certain Thing before a certain Time, though it becomes impossible by the Act of God; yet this shall not excuse him, forasmuch as he precisely bound himself to do it. Roll. Abr. 450.

If a Man covenants to deliver Goods at L. and the Boat is overturned by Tempest; yet this shall not excuse him. Tompson and Miles, Trin. 32 Eliz. B. R. Q.

If a Man covenants to build a House before such a Day, and afterwards the Plague is there before the Day, this shall excuse him from the Breach of the Covenant for not making it before the Day; for the Law will not compel him to venture his Life, but he ought to do it after. Roll. Abr. 450.

Secondly, The Acts of the Parties.

If Lessee for Years covenants to convey the Water which stands upon the Land before such a Day, and after the Lessor enters before the Day, and continues there till the Day past; yet this shall not excuse the Performance of the Covenant, because it is collateral to the Land. Hil. 37 Eliz. B. R. Roll. Abr. 453.

If a Man covenants with me to collect my Rents in such a Town, and I interrupt him, this shall excuse the Covenant. H. 37 Eliz. B. R.

Plaintiff declared, That the Defendant covenanted to deliver to him 1500 Measures of Saltpetre before such a Day, and that he had not done it. The Defendant demands Oyer of the Deed, in which the Covenant was as before: Provided that if any Mischief shall happen by Fire or Water to disable him, he shall not be excused; and pleads he was disabled by Fire: Issue, and Verdict pro Quer'. Moved in Arrest of Judgment, that there was a Variance in the Deed, on which he declared; and this produced in Court, for one is absolute, the other conditional: But Judgment was given pro Quer'; for he needs not declare on more of the Deed than the Covenant, and it is on the Part of the Defendant to shew the Proviso, which goes by way of Defeasance of Covenants. Lev. 88.

If the Thing to be performed by the Covenant may not be performed without the Presence of the Covenantee, there his Absence shall excuse the Performance. Roll. Abr. 457. As if the Covenant be to make a Feoffment to the Obligee.

If a Man be bound to B. that J. S. shall marry J. E. before such a Day, and before the Day B. marries her himself: Hereby the Covenant is discharged. Co. Lit. 206.

Piracy is no Excuse of Breach of Covenant. Brownl. 21.

If Lessee for Years of a House covenants to repair, and to leave it in as good Plight as he found it, and after certain Sparks of Fire come out of the Chimney of the Lessor into this House near adjoining, by which the Lessee's House is burnt down; this shall excuse the Performance of the Covenant, so that he is not bound to re-edify it, because it came by the Act of the Lessor himself. Roll. Abr. 454.

Covenant to enfeoff the Covenantee before such a Day; and after and before the Day the Covenantee disseises the Covenantor, and keeps it with Force and Arms till after the Day, so that the Covenantor cannot enter; this shall excuse the Performance. 8 Co. 92.

If Lessee for Years covenants to relinquish Part of the Land at the End of the Term, fallowed and fit for Wheat; Proviso the Lessee upon such Warning may surrender and depart at any Feast of Michaelmas, at any Time within the Term, performing the Covenants; if he after Warning surrenders, and does not leave the Land fallowed, he has forfeited his Covenant, for the Acceptance of this Surrender does not dispense with the Covenant, inasmuch as by the Covenant he is to accept it. Roll Abr. 455.

A Covenant not to assign without the Lessor's Consent, is not discharged by the Lessor's Entry into Part of the Land, Style 265. it being a collateral Covenant. Collateral Covenant.

A Condition recited, That the Defendant served the Plaintiff as a Brewer's Clerk, and that if he performed such Covenants, &c. Defendant pleads, Performavit omnia. Plaintiff replies, That one of the Covenants was to give the Plaintiff a true Account of all such Monies as the Defendant should receive, when requested; and alledgeth that 30*l.* came to his Hands, and he requested, and Defendant refused. Defendant rejoins, confessing the Receipt, saith, that before the Request made by the Plaintiff, he laid it up in the Plaintiff's Warehouse, and that certain Malefactors (to the Defendant unknown) stole it away; Et hoc prædict', &c. Plaintiff demurs generally: Excuse that he was robbed.

1. Because it is a Departure, it is rather an Excuse than Account.

2. He ought to have averred his Plea, but concluded to the Country; for the Plaintiff in his Replication alledgeth 30<sup>l</sup>. the Defendant gave no Account, and the Defendant in his Rejoinder sets forth, he did give Account. There was an Issue; but both were over-ruled:

Departure. 1. It is no Departure, but a Fortification of the Bar; for shewing that he was robbed, is giving an Account.

Conclusion of a Plea. 2. The Conclusion is proper, because the Defendant alledgeth new Matter, and therefore ought to give the Plaintiff Liberty to come in with a Surrejoinder, and answer to it; for he does not say he gave an Account, but sets forth the special Matter how. Vent. 121.

In Covenant concerning a Charterparty for the Freight of a Ship, Defendant pleaded, That the Ship was laden with French Goods, prohibited by Law to be imported. Upon Demurrer, Judgment was given pro Quer. For per tot' Cur. If the Thing to be done was lawful at the Time when the Defendant did enter into the Covenant, though it was afterwards prohibited by Act of Parliament, yet the Covenant is binding. Durus sermo. 3 Mod. 39.

If the Deed itself wherein the Covenants are, or the Estate on which the Covenants, as accessory to the Principal, do depend, is gone and determined, there regularly the Covenants are gone also; and therefore if a Lease for Life or Years be surrendered, whereby the Estate is gone, or a Deed becomes void by Rasure, or the like, and there be Covenants in the Deed, hereby the Covenants are gone also; but this Surrender does not discharge the Breach. Dyer 28. 5 Co. 23. 40 Ed. 3. 27. Bro. Surrender 47. Covenants 42.

An Action of Covenant was brought upon an expresse Covenant in a voidable Lease; and the Question was, If the Covenant be good, the Lease being void? Adjudged that the Action lies well, although the Lease be void. Brownl. 21.

If a Lessee covenants for him and his Assigns to build an House upon the Land demised within seven Years, and the Lessee assigns it over; in this Case the Assignee is chargeable. 5 Co. 17.

But if a Man covenants for him and his Assigns to make a Feoffment, Obligation, or the like; in this Case the Assignee shall not be charged although he be named.

A Lessee covenanted that he would repair the House with convenient, tenantable and necessary Reparations. Lessor brought Covenant, and alledged a Breach for not repairing for want of Tiles and dawbing with Mortar; and did not shew that it was not tenantable. The Opinion of the Court was, that he ought to have shewed it; for the House may want small Reparations, as a Tile or two, and a little Mortar, and yet have convenient, tenantable and necessary Reparations. March 17.

If I covenant that a Man shall enjoy such Land until or to the 15th of April, the 15th Day shall be taken exclusive.

Thirdly, Act of a Stranger.

If a Man covenants that his Son shall marry the Covenantee's Daughter: If the Daughter refuses, yet the Covenant is broken; for the Daughter is a Stranger, and he has taken it upon him that his Son shall marry her. Perk. §. 756.

If in a Lease for Years N. covenants to repair, &c. and to yield up at the End of the Term: But during that one B. enters by elder Title, the Lessee by that is discharged of the Covenant to yield up all; if the Land be gone, the Covenant is discharged. Noy 75.

Fourthly, Act of Law.

There is a Diversity where the Law creates a Duty or Charge, and the Party is disabled to perform it without any Default in him, and has no Remedy over, there the Law will excuse him; as in Case of Waste, where the House is destroyed by a Tempest: But when the Party by his own Contract or Covenant creates a Duty or Charge upon himself, aliter; as if Lessee is bound to repair, though it be burnt down by Lightning, he must do it. Allen 27.

(U) What is a good Performance of a Covenant, or not.

First, With Respect to the Substance of the Covenant.

IF the Covenant be performed in Substance and Intent, it is good tho' it differ in Words; as when one covenants to deliver the Testament of the Testator, if he pleads he has delivered Literas Testamentarias, it is good. 7 Ed. 4. 3.

If a Covenant be to give Licence to the Covenantee to carry Trees or any other Thing which he had bought of him; yet if a Stranger who has Right disturbs him, the Covenant is performed; for this extends but to the Person of the Covenantor. 18 Ed. 4. 20. b.

Aliter if the Covenant had been, that he shall have Licence; for this extends to all Strangers. Ibid.

If a Covenant be to withdraw a Suit, a Discontinuance is no Performance, and it differs in Substance; for a Retraxit is a Bar in another Action, a Discontinuance not. 2 Ed. 4. 8.

A Lessor covenants with the Lessee for Years, that it shall be lawful for the Lessee peaceably to enjoy the Land; and afterwards the Lessor enters tortiously upon the Lessee, and ousts him: This is a Breach, for the Intent was, that he should enjoy it without the Interruption of the Lessor. Roll. Abr. 427.

If a Lessee of a House covenants not to lease the Shop, Yard, and other Things pertaining to the House, to one who sold Coals there, and after he lets all the House to one who sold Coals; he has broken the Covenant, for the Intent ought to be performed. Ibid.

If the Condition or Covenant be to assure certain Lands to such a Person as the Obligee or Covenantee shall name, and after he assures this to the Obligee himself; it is a good Performance, though it be not alledged that the Obligee named himself, for this Acceptance is a Nomination of himself. Roll. Abr. 424.

A Man by Deed indented bargained and sold Lands to another in Fee, and covenanted by the same Deed to make him a good and sufficient Estate in the said Lands before Christmas next; and afterwards, before Christmas, the Bargainor acknowledged the Deed, and the same is inrolled. Per tot' Cur', By that Act the Covenant is not performed, for he ought to have levied a Fine, or to have made a Feoffment, &c. 3 Leon. 1.

A Covenant to convey Land must not only be an absolute but an effectual Conveyance.

If a Man be bound to surrender a Copyhold to the Use of A. and his Heirs on Consideration of Money; if he surrenders into the Tenant's Hands, he must get it presented, for it must be an effectual Surrender; as,

If a Man be bound to make a Feoffment to me upon Request; if I request him to make a Deed of Feoffment with Letter of Attorney to B. to make Livery to me, and he does so, this is a good Inception; yet if Livery be not made, it is a Forfeiture. Roll. Abr. 425.

A Man covenants that T. H. Son and Heir apparent of J. H. shall marry E. L. before the said T. H. and E. L. shall attain their several Ages of fourteen Years, if E. L. would consent thereunto. Afterwards T. H. married E. L. T. H. being then thirteen Years old, and E. L. nine Years, and no more. Afterwards T. H. came to fourteen Years, and disagreed to the said Marriage. All this was pleaded in Bar as a Performance of the Covenant, and good. The Covenantor is bound that T. H. shall marry E. L. which was executed, but he is not bound to the Continuance of it, that ought to be left to the Law.

If I be bound to you, that J. S. (who in Truth is but an Infant) shall levy a Fine before such a Day, which is done accordingly, and afterwards the same is reversed by Error, yet the Condition is performed. Leon. 52.

A Merchant covenants that if a Master of a Ship will bring his Freight to such a Port, he will pay him so much, and Part of the Goods were taken by Pirates, and the rest he unladed; he ought not to pay the Money, because the Agreement was not performed. Brownl. 21.

Performance in a Plea is intended of actual Performance. Vide 2 Lev. 67.

Agreement to surrender a Copyhold to such a Use: If a Surrender into the Hands of two Copyholders, according to the Custom, be sufficient Performance. Lev. 293.

C. C. made a Jointure to Mary his Wife, and died without Issue, and the Land descended to T. C. his Brother and Heir, who grants an Annuity or Rent-charge of 200l. per Ann. to Trustees, in Trust for Mary, and this to be in Discharge of the Jointure, Habendum to them, their Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, for the said Mary for Life, with a Clause of Distress, and a Covenant to pay the 200l. per Ann. to the Trustees for the Use of Mary; and the Breach assigned was, that the Defendant had not paid it to them to the Use of Mary. Per Cur', 1. This Rent-charge is executed by the Statute of Uses by express Words, and though the Power of distraining is limited to the Trustees by the Deed, yet the Statute transfers the Power to Mary, and she may distrain also, and the Covenant lies in this Case. 2. The Assignment of the Breach according to the Words of the Covenant is good: And if any Thing be done which amounts to a Performance, they may plead it on the other Side; as the Defendant may plead the Money was paid to Mary, which is a Performance in Substance, but it shall not be intended without being pleaded. 2 Mod. 138. Mod. 223.

If A. covenants with B. before Easter next to assure his House to him and K. his Wife during the Life of J. S. and A. surrenders his House to the Use of B. and such as K. shall shall name, at the Request of B. in this Case the Covenant is broken, for this is no Performance of it.

If Lessee covenants to pay his Rent to the Lessor, and he pays it before the Day, the same is not any Performance of the Covenant; contrary of a Sum in Gross. Leon. 136.

The Plaintiff covenants to go with his Ship, with the first fair Wind, a Voyage to Caley. And the Defendant covenants, that if he so do, to pay him at his return so much for Freight. The Plaintiff alledged he had been there, and was returned, and the Defendant had not paid him. The Defendant pleaded a Plea, and traversed, absque hoc, that the Plaintiff sailed with the first fair Wind. Per Cur', It is an ill Traverse; for the Substance of the Covenant is to perform the Voyage, and the first fair Wind is no material Part of it. Hard. 69.

Secondly, With respect to the Time and Place of performing a Covenant.

If the Covenant be to pay Money without limiting any Time, he is not bound to pay before Request. Roll. Abr. 438. 2.

A Covenant for Payment of Money, and no Time is limited: It is to be paid presently, that is within convenient Time. So in other Covenants to do transitory Acts, as Delivery of Charters, &c. aliter of local Acts. 6 Co. 30. Co. Lit. 208. Cro. Eliz. 798. Poph. 108.

Where a Covenant is to make a Retraxit of Suit, he ought to do it in convenient Time. So if it be to acknowledge Satisfaction in such a Court. Roll. Abr. 436.

A Covenant to make further Assurance at all Time and Times, and the Covenantee advises he shall levy a Fine, he shall have convenient Time to do it; for the Words, at all Times, shall have a reasonable Construction. Roll. Abr. 441.

Where by the Covenant a Thing is to be performed upon Demand, yet he shall have reasonable Time to perform it after the Demand. 15 Ed. 4. 30.

Where the Act to be done is of its own Nature local, as to make a Feoffment, &c. there the Covenantor, no Time being limited, has Time during his Life to perform it, if the Covenantee does not hasten the same by Request; for this is collateral, and not like to Payment of Money. Cro. Eliz. 798.

Yet when the Covenantor may do that that is local in the Absence of the Covenantee, as to acknowledge Satisfaction in the Court of B. R. there he must do it in convenient Time. Co. Lit. 208. a. 6 Rep. 30. b.

Plaintiff declared, that the Defendant by his Deed bearing Date, &c. did covenant that he would do every Act and Acts at his best Endeavour to prove the Will of J. S. or otherwise that he would procure Letters of Administration, by which he might convey such a Term lawfully to the Plaintiff, which he had not done, Licet sapius requisitus. Defendant pleads, that he came to Dr. Drury, in the Court of the Arches, and there offered to prove the Will of J. S. but because the Wife of J. S. would not swear that it was the Will of her Husband, they could not be received to prove it. Plaintiff demurs.

Per Cur', Though there be no Time limited by the Covenant when the Thing should be done by the Defendant, yet he has not Time during his Life, but he ought to do it upon Request within convenient Time.

But in some Cases a Man shall have Time during his Life, as where no Benefit shall be to any of the Parties; e. g. if it were to go to Rome.

And as to the Request, he ought to have shewed it specially, with the Place and Time, for it is for the Benefit of the Covenantee; for without Request the Action doth not lie, and the Bar shall not help the insufficient Declaration.

Per Gawdy, The bringing the Action is a Request.

Per Clench, A Writ of Debt is a Præcipe, for which there Licet sapius requisitus is sufficient, but a Writ of Covenant is not so. Leon. pl. 124, 125.

If the Covenant be to do a Thing upon Request, the Plaintiff must make Request to the Person, and not by Proclamation giving Notice of the Request. Roll. Abr. 443.

But a Condition to do such Acts, &c. for the better Assurance, &c. to B. that shall be devised by B. or his Counsel, &c. B. devises a Release. A. not being lettered, desires to shew it to Counsel before he seals it: He shall not be allowed reasonable Time to shew it, he having taken it upon him to do it. 2 Rep. Mansel's Case. Roll. Abr. 440.

Thirdly, With respect to Notice, as where it is necessary (or not) for the Performance of a Covenant.

If a Man covenants with J. S. that if he will marry A. W. his Cousin, to pay to him 10l. at the Day of his Marriage; J. S. needs not give Notice at what Day he will be married, but he ought to take Notice of it at his Peril, inasmuch as he hath taken upon him to pay it at the Day, though the Marriage is to be made by J. S. himself. Beresford and Goodrouse, 14 Jac. Quere.

If A. sells Land to B. by the Name of twenty Acres, according to the Rate of 20*l.* for every Acre; and it is agreed between the Parties, that the Land shall be measured by J. S. before the first Day of January next ensuing, and A. covenants to repay according to that Rate for every Acre before the first Day of May after: If there are not twenty Acres upon the Measure, and it is found there are not twenty Acres, A. ought to pay this before May at his Peril, without any Notice given how many Acres there want of twenty, for he had taken upon him to perform it at his Peril. Roll. Rep. 314. Cro. Jac. 390.

If a Man leases a Mill for Years, and the Lessee covenants to repair the Mill, and the Lessor covenants to find him great Timber for it; the Lessee ought to give Notice to the Lessor how much will suffice for the Reparation, and not to demand Timber for Reparation in general, or otherwise the Lessor is not bound to deliver any. Holder and Taylor, 12 Jac. C. B.

A. covenants to pay B. all such Money as by a true and justifiable Bill under the Hand of the Attorney of B. shall appear to be before disbursed by B. or his Attorney. In Action if B. assigns for a Breach, that 24*s.* by a true and justifiable Bill under the Hand of J. S. Attorney of B. appears to be disbursed, which A. has not paid: This is a good Breach, without alledging A. had Notice of it, or that the Bill of Attorney was shewed to him, for that the Attorney was a Stranger, of which A. ought to take Notice at his Peril. Derwell and Wilmott.

If I be bound to you to make you such an Assurance as J. S. shall devise, I am bound at my Peril to procure Notice; but if I be bounden to you to make such Assurance as Counsel shall devise, there Notice ought to be given to me. Leon. 104.

The Defendant covenants to pay the Plaintiff and other Mariners their Wages; and the Plaintiff avers that 5*l.* was due for a Month after his Departure in the Ship such a Day from B. but avers no Notice given to the Defendant of his Return, or going out, nor what was due; for which Cause the Defendant demurs. And per Cur', The Defendant has bound himself, and must take Notice of it, as well as if it were to do a Thing in his own Conscience. Keb. 681.

T. Lessee of the Bishop of Rocheſter for Years, covenants to find necessary Provision for the Steward, the Bishop, his Servant and Horse, at all Times that he held Courts there. Per Dodderidge, He shall take Notice, and there needs no personal Notice, for general Notice, as a Proclamation at Court, is given to him. Palm. 532.

In Covenant the Plaintiff declares upon a Writing of the Defendant's Testator, acknowledging himself to be accountable to the Plaintiff for whatever Money the Plaintiff should charge upon J. S. payable to Sir T. V. Per Cur', It lies well, being against Executors, and so had it been against the Party himself; no Notice is given by the Plaintiff to J. S. who upon such Bills was to pay to Sir T. V. and it is not necessary. Keb. 155. Lev. 47.

In Point of Covenant, Notice is not to be so strictly given as upon an Obligation, which is in Point of Forfeiture. Cro. Jac. 390.

Fourthly, With respect to Cases, where a Demand, Request or Tender, is necessary (or not) for the Performance of a Covenant.

If A. covenants with B. upon reasonable Request to him made by B. to surrender certain Land and all his Interest in it to B. and also to permit B. to take the Profits of the Land; in this Case the Request does not go to the taking the Profits, but only to the Surrender; so that he is bound to suffer him to take the Profits without Request, although there is but one Word that goes to the Whole. 2 Roll. Abr. 248, 249.

Whereas B. by other Indenture had assigned to C. a Messuage, &c. Now this Indenture witnesseth, that B. covenants that he or his Brother would deliver to C. or, in his Absence, to E. at his Shop, a Tarrier of the Premises, and of the Verity of this, ad optimam eorum peritiam, upon Request made to them by C. would take their Oath before a Master of the Chancery, and also would deliver to one W. safely to be kept, to the Use of the said B. and C. the original Demise, whereof he then had a Copy, &c. Though in this Case they are not bound to make Oath without Request, yet they are to deliver the original Demise sans Request, for the Request refers not to this, but the first, as appears by putting the Request amongst the Covenants, and not in the Beginning or End. 2 Roll. Abr. 250.

The Condition was, to make Assurances of certain Lands to the Obligee before the 10th of March 17 Eliz. and if it happens that the Obligee refuses to accept the Assurance, and shall make Request to have 100*l.* in Satisfaction for it; then if upon such Request, within five Months after, he pays the 100*l.* that then, &c. and at the Day refused the Assurance; and afterwards 27 Eliz. he makes Request to have the 100*l.* The Question was upon Demurrer, Whether this Request was sufficient for the Time? Per Cur', A Request at any Time during his Life was good, and he is not restrained to make it at or before the Day the Assurance was to be made. Judgment pro Quer'. Cro. Eliz. 136.

Covenant to make a good and lawful Estate, as by the Counsel learned of the Plaintiff, upon Request made, shall be advised; and Plaintiff alledged M. T. was of his Counsel learned, and gave his Advice to the Plaintiff, that the Defendant should make such Assurance, &c. and that the Plaintiff gave Notice to the Defendant of the said Advice, and requested him to perform it, and the Defendant denied.

It is most proper the Counsellor shall give his Counsel to him with whom he is of Counsel, and he to notify it to him that makes the Estate; and if the Counsellor gives Advice to him that is to make the Estate, he may be ignorant whether he be of his Counsel or not. 5 Co. 19. b.

In Consideration the Plaintiff had promised to pay the Defendant 700*l.* for the Reversion of a Manor, the Defendant covenanted to seal the Instrument for the Assurance of it, with Warranty, &c. according to the Draughts between them before agreed; and though the Defendant tendered to him the first of March the Instrument written, secundum tractationis præd', and the third of March requested him to seal them, yet he had not sealed them, nor conveyed the Reversion of the Manor; after Verdict pro Quer' moved in Arrest of Judgment:

1. That he ought to shew the Instruments to the Court, that they might judge of them; to which it was answered and resolved the Instruments were agreed before, and therefore he need not shew them to the Court.

2. He does not shew that he tendered him Wax, Pen, Ink, &c. as he ought; to which it was answered and resolved, there need no Tender, for the Defendant had taken upon him to do it.

3. The Request is not well made, being at another Time, not when the Tender was; but it was resolved the Tender after the Request was the better, for so he had Time to read them and consider them.

And by Windham Justice, Where Conveyances are before agreed and to be sealed according to this Agreement, so that there is not any need of Counsel, the Defendant is to do it at his Peril; and where one is to grant a Reversion, he had Time to do it at any Time during his Life, if it so long continues a Reversion, if he be not hastened by Request. Here is a Request, and the Conveyances being agreed, no Tender need to be; but if one be to seal a Conveyance generally, there the Counsel of the Purchaser is intended to draw them, and then the Purchaser ought to tender them. Lev. 44. Keb. 122.

The Plaintiff declares, that the Defendant had covenanted to pay him so much Money as he should expend for repairing and victualling a Ship for him; and avers that he had spent 300*l.* in repairing and victualling it, and that he gave the Defendant Notice of it such a Day, and for Non-payment brings the Action. Defendant protestando, that the Plaintiff had not laid out 300*l.* in Manner and Form as he had declared, demurs to the Declaration;

1. Because he has not averred a special Breach of Covenant; but this has been often overruled. 2. There is no Request alledged to pay the Money, and without Request he is not bound to pay it. Per Cur', The Plaintiff's Action is not an Action of Debt where a Demand is necessary, but an Action of Covenant where it is not necessary to alledge a Demand. Style 31.

(V) When a Covenant is broken or not.

IF one be seised of Land in Fee, or possessed of a Term of Years, and he aliens it, and supposing he has a good Estate, he covenants that he is lawfully seised or possessed; or that he has a good Estate, or that he is able to make such Alienation, &c. and in Truth he has not, but some other has an Estate in it before; in this Case the Covenant is broken as soon as it is made. Dyer 303. 9 Co. 60.

That the Covenantor is seised of a good Estate, &c.

For quiet enjoying.

And if I bargain and sell Land by Deed indented to B. and before the Deed is inrolled I grant the same Land to C. and covenant that I am seised of a good Estate of it in Fee, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this Case the Covenant is broken. Sir Perall Brocas's Case.

If A. lets Land to B. and covenants that he shall quietly enjoy it without the Let of any Person whatsoever, and A. himself, or any other Person that has any Title to the Land by or under him; as if he makes a Lease of it, or grants a Rent out of it to another, or any any other Person that has any Title to the Land; although it be not by or under A. as if A. were a Disseisor, and the Disseisee enters or disturbs F. in all these Cases the Covenant is broken.

And so also is the Law deemed to be by some, in Case of Covenant in Deed for quiet enjoying, where a Stranger or one that hath no Title to the Land doth enter or disturb B.

But otherwise it is in Case of Covenant in Law for quiet enjoying; for in this Case if a Stranger that has no Title to the Land enters or disturbs the Lessee, this is no Breach of the Covenants in Law; and in all Cases where any Person has Title, the Covenant is not broken until some Entry or other actual Disturbance be made by him upon his Title. M. 8 Jac. Lam's Case. Dy. 328. F. N. B. 145. 26 H. 8. 3. H. 39 Eliz. B. R. Corne's Case. Fitz. Covenant 26. Bro. Covenant 40.

If a Man makes a Lease of Land, and after makes a Feoffment of the same Land, and the Feoffee disturbs the Lessee; it has been said, that this is a Breach of Covenant for quiet enjoying. Sed Quere. Bro. Covenant 6.

If a Man purchases Land to him and his Wife and his Heirs in Fee, and then makes a Lease for Years of it to J. S. and covenants for him, his Executors and Assigns, that the Lessee, his Executors and Assigns, shall quietly hold and enjoy the Premises, without the Let of the Lessor, his Heirs or Assigns, or any other Person by or through his or their Means, Title or Procurement; and after the Lessor dies, and his Wife enters and disturbs; in this Case and by this Means the Covenant is broken. H. 20 Jac. B. R. Butler v. Swinerton.

And so it is also if A. purchases the Land of B. To have and to hold to A. for Life, the Remainder to C. the Son of A. in Tail, and after A. makes a Lease of this Land to D. for Years, and covenants for the quiet enjoying, as in the last Case, and then he dies, and then C. doth oust the Lessee; this was held to be no Breach of the Covenant. Swan's Case, M. 7 & 8 Eliz.

So likewise if A. be seised of Whiteacre in Fee, and takes to Wife B. and then makes a Lease of it to C. with such a Covenant as before for the quiet enjoying, and then A. dies, and after B. recovers Dower; by this the Covenant is broken; and yet if the Mother of A. recovers Dower, and ousts the Lessee, contra.

So also if a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease with such a Covenant, and his Issue disturbs the Lessee; this is no Breach of the Covenant.

And yet if the Lessor be the Cause of the Gift in Tail, or procure the Disturbance; this may be a Breach of the Covenant.

And so also it is where a Man is seised of Land in Fee, and he makes a Lease with such a Covenant, and afterwards dies, and then his Heir is in Ward by Reason of a Tenure, and thereby the Lessee is disturbed; this is no Breach of the Covenant. Dy. 42. 26 H. 8. 3. Fitz. Covenant 6, 26.

If one covenants that the Wife he is about to marry shall quietly enjoy all her Goods, and that the Covenantee shall take them into his Possession, and the Husband only takes the Goods and keeps them in his Possession; this is no Breach of the Covenant. Paſ. 6 Car. B. R. Crowle's Case.

If a Covenant be for the quiet enjoying against all Persons but the King and his Successors, and the Patentee of the King disturbs; this is a Breach of the Covenant. H. 38 Eliz. Woodroffe v. Greenwood.

If two make a Lease, and covenant that the Lessee shall enjoy the Land without the Let of them, or any other, and one of them alone disturbs the Lessee; this is a Breach of the Covenant. M. 2 Car. B. R. Sanders's Case.

If a Lessee grants and assigns all the Land contained in his Lease to A. and covenants with him that he has not done any Act or Thing by which the Grant or Assignment might be impaired, but that the Assignee, his Executors, &c. may enjoy it against all Persons; and before this Time the Wife of the Lessor had recovered and had Execution of a third Part of this Land for her Dower; this is no Breach of the Covenant, for the Words, but that, &c. do refer to the former, and are not absolute. Dyer 240.

If A. grants the Bailiwick of W. to B. for Life, and B. assigns it to C. for three Years, and after C. covenants that he will not do, or suffer to be done, any Act during the said three Years by which the Grant made to B. may be forfeited, but that after the three Years ended he may enjoy it in as ample Manner as C. did or might have done, without any Act by C. and after the three Years ended C. executes a Process there, and thereby incroaches upon the Office; this is no Breach of the Covenant. 13 Jac. C. B. Rich. v. Row.

If A. grants Land to B. and his Heirs, rendring 10*l.* Rent, and B. sells the Land to C. and his Heirs, and covenants with C. that from such a Day he shall enjoy it, discharged of all Incumbrances, and before that Day a common Recovery is had against C. in which which A. is vouched, and this is to the Use of C. and his Heirs, supposing hereby the Rent had been gone, which is not so; in this Case the Covenant is broken, for this Rent is an Incumbrance. H. 20 Jac. C. B. Greenway's and Tuckfald's Case.

If a Lease be made of Land for Years, and the Lessee devises it to his Wife durante viduitate, and after to his Son, and he in Reversion sells the Fee to the Woman during the Widowhood, and covenants that the Land is discharged of all former Sales, Rights, Titles, Charges; in this Case the Covenant is broken at the first by Reason of the Possibility of the Son. 10 Co. 52.

To free from Charges and Incumbrances.

If A. grants Whiteacre to B. and covenants that B. shall enjoy it against all Incumbrances, and C. disturbs him in the taking of a Common there, and this is a Common which is against common Right, and which he has by Prescription; this is a Breach of the Covenant; but if it be of a Common that is of common Right, contra. 9 Eliz. C. B.

To make Estates and Assurances.

If A. covenants with B. before Easter to make him a good sure Estate of Land discharged of all former Bargains, Leases and Incumbrances whatsoever, (Leases or Grants for Life or Years; reserving the antient Rent during the Term only excepted) and A. after this and before the Estate made makes a Grant of all or Part of the Land, reserving the old Rent; this is no Breach of the Covenant. Dyer 139.

If one makes a Lease to J. S. for Years, and covenants with him that upon the Surrender of that Lease he will make him a new Lease, and the Lessor before J. S. can make any Surrender sells away the Reversion, or makes a Lease to another of the Land, and so disables himself; this ipso facto is a Breach of the Covenant without any Surrender made by the Lessee, which in this Case is not lawful. For Lex neminem cogit ad vana & inutilia peragenda.

So if one be seised of Land in Fee, and covenants to make a Feoffment of it to J. S. by a Day, upon Request, and the Covenantor before the Day makes a Feoffment of it to another, and then dies before any Request made to him; in this Case the Covenant is broken. 5 Co. 21.

If A. covenants with B. to make such Assurance as B. or as the Counsel learned in the Law of B. shall devise, and B. tender such an Assurance to A. to seal, and A. refuses or delays to seal it; this is a Breach of the Covenant. Dyer 338. 2 Co. 3.

If A. covenants with B. C. D. and E. to make them a Feoffment such a Day, and they come to the Land at the Time to take it, and A. does not make the Feoffment; by this the Covenant is broken.

And so also if B. and C. only, or one of them, comes to the Land, for it may be made to any of them in the Name of the Rest; but if none of them come, although the Feoffor never comes there, the Covenant is not broken. Bro. Covenant 3.

If A. covenants with B. before Easter next to assure his House to him and K. his Wife during the Life of J. S. and A. surrenders his House to the Use of B. and such as K. shall name, at the Request of B. in this Case the Covenant is broken; for this is no Performance of it. B. R.

To pay Money and give a Bond.

If A. having Licence by Patent to buy Spanish Wool, &c. by Indenture grants the Licence to B. for eight Years, and in Consideration thereof B. covenants to pay him 100*l.* yearly at Lady-Day and Michaelmas, and that every Year at Lady-Day, or within twenty Days after, he will make a new Bond for Payment of the Money; provided that if B. does not yearly make the Bond, or fails in Payment of the Money, that then and from thenceforth the Indenture, and every Clause, &c. therein contained, shall be void; and B. fails of making the Obligation at the first Day, yet A. may have an Action upon the Covenant; for it was said, the Intent of the Parties was only, that it should be void as to have any Benefit of Covenants broken in futuro; but as to Covenants broken before, it was never their Intent but that the Party should have Advantage of them. Adjudged, although it was objected that the Breach of the Covenants made the Indenture void; and being both at a Time, there was no Priority. Cro. Eliz. 77, 78.

To build a
House.

If A. covenants with B. to build a House by a Day, and B. forbids him, and thereupon he forbears to do it, and does it not; in this Case the Covenant is broken, for this will not excuse him; but if he by an actual Impediment hinders him, or be the Cause why the Thing is not done, then the not doing of it is no Breach of Covenant.

To cleanse a Ditch.

And therefore if a Lessee covenants to cleanse one of the Ditches in the Land demised, and the Lessor enters upon the Land itself and keeps out the Lessee, and he does not cleanse the Ditch by the Time; by this the Covenant is broken: But if in this Case the Lessor by Force keeps the Lessee out of the Ditch or Place itself, contra. 18 Ed. 4. 8. Kelw. 34. T. 36 Eliz. B. R. Carrell v. Read.

To repair.

If one covenants to repair, sustain and amend a House, and the House is burnt by the Negligence of the Covenantor, and not repaired again; this is a Breach of this Covenant.

And if the Lessee covenants for him and his Executors to repair at his own Costs, (the principal Timber not hurt or in decay for lack of Reparations, or otherwise, in Default of the Lessee or his Executors only excepted) and he dies, and afterwards the House is burnt in Default of the Executors; in this Case the Covenant is broken, and the Executors may be charged. Dyer 324.

If one covenants to leave a Wood in the same Plight he found it, and he cuts down Trees; in this Case the Covenant is broken presently; for it is now become impossible to be performed by his own Act: But if in this Case some of the Trees be blown down with the Wind, or the like, by this the Covenant is not broken; for it is now become impossible to be done by the Act of God, and in this Case the Covenantor is not bound to supply it.

And so likewise of a Covenant to repair Houses; or if one covenants to sustain Houses or Sea-Banks, or covenants to leave them in as good Case as one finds them, and the Houses be burnt or thrown down by Tempest, or the like, or the Banks be overthrown by a sudden Flood, or the like Accident; in this Case the Covenant is not broken by this Accident only; but if the Covenantor do not repair and make up these Things again in Time convenient, the Covenant will be broken.

And if Houses be let to me for Years, and I covenant to leave them in as good Plight as I find them, and I throw down the Houses; this is no Breach of the Covenant; for I may rectify them, and therefore no Action will lie upon this Covenant until the End of the Term. Fitz. Covenant 29. 5 Co. 15. F. N. B. 145. Co. 98. Perk. §. 738. Dyer 33. Plow. 29. 40 Ed. 3. 5.

If one covenants to repair a House before a Day, and it happens the Plague is in the House before and until the Day, and thereby it is not done; in this Case the Covenant is not broken; for this will excuse, but then it must be done in convenient Time afterwards, for otherwise the Covenant will be broken. H. 8 fac.

If a Lessee covenants to do all the Reparations of a House demised at his own Costs and Charges, and he cuts Trees upon some of the Ground demised to amend the House; this is a Breach of his Covenant. Dyer 198.

If one covenants to pay Money at five several Days, and he fails of Payment the first Day; by this the Covenant is broken. Co. Lit. 292. To pay Money.

If one takes Land sowed, or a Stock of Cattle in Lease for Years, and the Lessee covenants to leave it in as good Plight as he takes it; in this Case he must leave it sowed again; and if any of the Cattle die, he must make up the Number, otherwise he breaks his Covenant. 40 Ed. 3. 5. To leave a Stock, &c.

If a Corporation covenants not to take Toll, and their common Officer appointed for that purpose takes it; this is a Breach of the Covenant. 43 Ed. 3. 17. Not to take Toll.

If A. and B. be Jointenants of a Shop, and A. covenants with B. that he and his Assigns shall have free Ingress and Egress in and out of the Shop, and A. appoints C. his Servant to enter as a Servant to him, and to occupy in common with A. and this Servant expels the Servant of B. this is a Breach of the Covenant. H. 16 fac. B. R. Siliard v. Loe. To have Liberty to go in and out of a Shop.

If A. covenants with B. that B. shall come four Times into the House of A. without being ousted by A. and A. when he sees B. coming shuts the Doors and Windows, and does not suffer B. to come in; by this the Covenant is broken. 3 H. 4. 8. To come into a House.

If A. covenants with B. to marry the Daughter of B. to make a Feoffment, or do any other Act to C. (who is a Stranger to the Covenant) and A. doth tender it, and offer to do as much as doth lie in his Power, but the Stranger doth refuse it, and thereby it is not done; yet this doth not excuse, but the Covenant is broken; but if the Covenant be to do any such Act to the Covenantee himself, and the Covenantor tenders it, and the Covenantee refuses it; by this the Covenant is performed. 33 H. 6. 16. Bro. Covenant 3. Fitz. Barre 62. To marry another, make a Feoffment, &c.

The Dean and Chapter of Norwich, 8 Eliz. leased to B. for ninety-nine Years, and after, in 42 Eliz. they leased to C. for three Lives, and covenanted to save him harmless against B. if he is disturbed by B. he may have an Action of Covenant against the Dean and Chapter, though the Lessor is Owner, &c. and the Covenant was broke immediately upon sealing the Lease to C. Owen 136. To save harmless.

(W) What will extinguish, suspend or discharge a Covenant.

WHERE the Deed itself wherein the Covenants are contained, or the Estate on which the Covenants, as accessory to the Principal, do depend, is gone and determined; there regularly the Covenants are also gone; and therefore if a Lease for Life or Years be surrendered, whereby the Estate is gone, or a Deed becomes void by Rasure, or the like, and there be Covenants contained in the Deed; by these Means the Covenants are gone also. Dyer 20. 5 Co. 23.

But this Surrender does not discharge the Breach of Covenant which was before the Surrender. For if a Parson leases his Glebe for Years, and after resigns, whereby the Lease for Years becomes void; in this Case the Covenants of the Lease, as to the Time before the Resignation, shall be said to be in Force still. 40 Ed. 3. 27. Bro. Surrender 47. Covenant 42. Hil. 4 Jac. B. R. Moile v. Austin.

Where there is an express Covenant in Deed for quiet enjoying, the implied Covenant is gone. Expressum facit cessare tacitum. 2 Co. 80.

By a Release of all Covenants from the Covenantor, the Covenant is discharged, so as the Release be by Deed, for a Covenant by Deed cannot be discharged by Word; and therefore if A. by Deed covenants with B. to build a House by a Day, and B. wishes him to let it alone; there is no Discharge of the Covenant. Ibid.

If the Owner of a Ship covenants with B. that he will receive such Loading that he shall appoint at Y. by such a Day, and then to go with the first fair Wind to R. and there unload and take in other Wares; and after B. discharges him of the taking in the Goods at Y. but that he shall receive his Loading at R. this Discharge of Parcel of the Covenant is not any Discharge of the Residue; for these are several. Roll. Abr. 472.

By Rasure, Breaking of the Seal, by Rasure of the Date after the Delivery, &c. Covenants may be avoided.

Where the Covenants are several, if the Seal of one of the Covenantors be broken off, yet this shall not avoid the Deed but as to him only; aliter where the Covenants are joint; there by the breaking one of the Seals of the Covenantors, all the Covenants are defeated. 5 Co. 22.

If the Estate be created, and a Covenant in Law annexed to it, if the Estate ceases the Covenant shall cease; if express Covenant be annexed, aliter. Vide 2 Brownl. 162, 163.

The Mayor and Citizens of London covenanted to find eight Men to grind every Day in Bridewell Mill, which they let to the Defendant; and agreed that if they failed therein, the Defendant should retain so much of the Rent out of his Rent: The Defendant pulled down the Corn Mill, and made it an Horse Mill, and would now defalk so much out of his Rent as he ought to be allowed for the eight Men. Per Cur', By the Alteration of the Mill in this Manner, the Lessors are discharged of their Covenant. Cro. Jac. 182.

Lessee covenants to repair; Lessor grants the Reversion to another: Grantee of the Reversion shall not recover Damages but from the Time of the Grant, and not for any Time before: And by Manwood, by the Recovery of the Damages the Lessee shall be excused for ever after, for making of Reparations; so as if he suffer the Houses, for want of Reparations, to decay, no Action shall be brought thereupon after for the same, but that the Covenant is extinct. 3 Leon. 51.

Covenant brought against the Assignee of Lessee for Years, whereas he made a Lease for Years, reserving Rent, &c. Lessee covenanted to build a House upon the Land within the first ten Years that he assigned over his Term. He brought the Action against the Assignee. Assignee pleads, that the Lessor entered, and had Part of the Possession for Part of the ninth Year. It is not good: That B. did enter it is too general, and shall be taken strictly against him that pleads it; and it may be that he entered by Wrong; and so it may be that he entered by Right, as for Non-payment of Rent, as the Truth was; and if he entered lawfully, then it is no Suspension or Extinguishment of the Covenant; and if the Covenant was suspended, it was only for the Time the Lessor had Possession, and the Party has not answered the Time before or after; and cited a Case, M. 28 & 29 Eliz. in B. C. Lessee for five Years covenanted to build a Mill within the Term, and because he had not done it, Lessor brought an Action of Covenant. Defendant pleads, that within the last three Years the Lessor held him out, &c. so as he could not bring it. Per Cur', He ought to say, that the Lessor with Force held him out, otherwise it would be no Plea; and in the principal Case, he ought to have shewed that he would not suffer him to build. Godb. 69, 74. Moor 402.

It is resolved in Brett and Cumberland's Case, that no Act of the Lessee shall discharge himself or his Executors of a special Covenant to pay Rent, of which the Assignee of the Reversion shall have Advantage. Stat. 32 H. 8. T. Jones 144.

Lessee covenants to repair the Banks, which by sudden Floods are broken down, under Penalty of 10*l.* Lessee is excused of the Penalty, but he must repair in convenient Time. Dyer 32.

S. and T. covenanted jointly and severally with two severally, and afterwards one of the Covenantors marries with one of the Covenantees: Per Maller, the Covenant is gone. March 103.

Covenant by two, artificially to build a House: The one makes Default, and the Issue is found for the other; the first shall be discharged. Sid. 76.

Where

Where a Covenant is become impossible to be done by the Act of God; as where one covenants to serve another seven Years, and he dies before the seven Years are expired; by this the Covenant is discharged. Co. 98. Plow. 286.

If one covenants to leave a Wood in the same Plight he finds it, and he cuts down the Trees, the Covenant is broken presently, for it is now become impossible by his own Act; but if the Trees are blown down with the Wind, the Covenant is not broken; for now it is become impossible by the Act of God, and the Covenantor is not bound to supply it.

If a Man covenants with Tenant for Life of an House to find a Chaplain to sing, &c. in the House every Saturday during the Life of the Covenantee; if the Covenantee surrenders to the Lessor the House, and retakes an Estate for Years, yet the Covenant remains. Roll. Abr. 522.

The same Law if he had granted the House over, and he had not retaken an Estate. 6 H. 4. 3. (Quere this; for after the Grant, how is it lawful for the Chaplain to come into the House without a Trespass?) Ibid.

If A. grants a Rent-charge to B. for the Life of C. Habendum to B. his Heirs and Assigns, to the Use of C. and A. covenants to pay it ad usum C. if the Rent is behind, B. may have an Action of Covenant against A. for though the Rent-charge is executed by the Statute, and the Power of distraining, as incident thereto, transferred to C. yet the Covenant being collateral, is not transferred nor discharged, but remains with B. Mod. 223.

If A. covenants with B. to build an House by a Day, and B. forbids him, and thereupon he forbears to do it; the Covenant is not broken, and this will not excuse him: But if he by an actual Impediment hinders him, or be the Cause why the Thing is not done, then the not doing it is no Breach of Covenant; and therefore if a Lessee covenants to cleanse one of the Ditches in the Lands demised, and the Lessor enters upon the Land itself, and keeps out the Lessee, and he does not cleanse the Ditch by the Time, the Covenant is broken: But if the Lessee by Force keeps the Lessor out of the Ditch or Place itself, contra. Trin. 36 Eliz. B. R. Carrel and Read.

If the Lessor accepts the Rent of the Lessee or his Assignee after a Covenant is broken; this does not discharge the Breach of the Covenant, but the Lessor may sue for it notwithstanding. Adjudged in Batchelor's Case, Pas. 6 Car. B. R.

A Covenant is not a Duty nor Cause of Action till it be broken; and therefore it is not discharged by a Release of all Actions; and when it is broken the Action is not merely founded on the Specialty, as if it were a Duty, but favours of Trespass; and therefore an Accord is a good Plea to it, and it lies in Damages. Allen 38, 39.

(X) How a Covenant shall be taken and expounded.

A Covenant in particular (being one Part of a Deed) is subject to the general Rules of Exposition of all Parts of Deeds in general; as,

1. To be always taken most strongly against the Covenantor, and most in Advantage of the Covenantee, lest the Covenantor by the obscure Wording of his Covenant should find Means to evade and elude it.

2. To be taken according to the Intent of the Parties.

3. Ut res magis valeat, &c.

4. When no Time is limited for the doing of the Thing, it shall be done in reasonable Time, and the like. Plow. 287. Lit. Rep. 207. Moor 458. 8 Co. 83.

Although in an Indenture the Words are the Words of the Feoffor only, yet if the Feoffee puts his Seal to one Part of it, it is the Deed of both. Co. Lit. 230. b. Lucas 47, 48.

The Word either may be taken Conjunctive or Disjunctive, and has often Reference to more than two. 2 Sid. 107.

A particular Covenant in Fact restrains a general Covenant in Law. Saund. 59, 60.

An express Covenant qualifies the Generality of the Covenant in Law, and restrains it by the mutual Consent of both Parties; so that it shall not extend further than the express Covenant. 4 Co. 80. b. Cro. Eliz. 674. Yelv. 175.

The Words yielding and paying were adjudged to be an express Covenant, whereupon an Action lies against an Executor. Style 406, 431. 2 Brownl. 215. Sid. 266, 401. Mod. 92. Vent. 10. 2 Jones 102. 3 Lev. 155.

Restraining Words at the Commencement or End of a Sentence govern all. Sid. 328.

A general Covenant may be restrained by a particular express Covenant, but not by an implied Covenant. Lit. Rep. 64, 67.

And

And where there are two particular Covenants, the one may restrain the other. Lit. Rep. 64.

If the Words of the Restraint are at the Beginning of the Sentence, or in the Middle, they shall always be expounded according to the Generality of the Words, Intent of the Parties, and Scope of the Deed. Lit. Rep. 68.

See more concerning Words antea (F), (G).

Where Covenants are coupled with an intire Sentence, the latter may explain the former; aliter if the Sentences are several. Lit. Rep. 63.

When the Exception is last put in the Covenant, it refers to all the Premisses. Lit. Rep. 63. 9 Rep. 53.

A Man covenants that he is seised of a good, perfect and indefeasible Estate in Fee-simple, and that he hath good Right and lawful Authority to sell, and there is not any Reversion or Remainder in the Crown for any Act done by the Defendant. The Plaintiff assigns a Breach, that he was not seised of a good Estate in Fee; whether these Words, by an Act done by him, at the End of the Covenant shall refer to all before, or only to this last Part. Lit. Rep. 62, 63, to 69 & 203. Adjudged by all the Judges for the Plaintiff, and that the Covenant upon which the Breach was assigned was an absolute Covenant of itself. *Lit. Rep. 203, &c. See Cro. Where a Covenant is to permit a Man to enjoy without Molestation, the Word Molestation shall not extend to personal Torts, as to beating or assaulting of him; but to an Entry upon him, and a Disturbance in his Possession. Cro. Eliz. 421. pl. 16.

Joint and several.

In Cases where the Covenantees have or are to have several Interests or Estates, there when the Covenant is made to and with the Covenantees, & cum quolibet eorum, aut altero eorum; these Words make the Covenant several; as,

If one by Indenture demises Blackacre to A. and Whiteacre to B. and Greenacre to C. and covenants with them and either of them, or covenants with them and every of them, that he is lawful Owner of all these Acres; in this Case the Covenant is several.

But if he demises to them the three Acres together, and covenants in this Manner; the Covenant is joint and not several.

And if A. and B. covenant jointly and severally; the Covenant may be joint or several, and the Covenantors may be sued either the one way or the other, at the Election of the Covenantee. 5 Co. 19. Dy. 338. Bro. Covenant 49.

To convey Lands of the Value of, &c.

If A. covenants with B. that whereas a Marriage is intended to be solemnized between A. and C. the Daughter of B. at or before the 14th Day of August next, and whereas the said B. has paid to the said A. 1000*l.* for Portion, &c. the said A. in Consideration thereof covenants with B. that within one Year of the Day of the Marriage he will assure Lands of the Value of 400*l.* per Ann. in this Case although the Marriage be not before that Day, yet the Covenant must be performed. George v. Lane, T. 21 Jac. B. R.

That the Lessee shall make Estates.

If one makes a Lease for Years of a Manor, and covenants that the Lessee shall make Estates for Life or Years, and they shall be good; this Covenant shall not be taken to enable the Lessee to make his Estates for a longer Time than his Estate will bear. Per Bridgman J.

That Lessor shall have the first Refusal.

If the Lessee covenants with the Lessor, that if the Lessee be minded to sell his Estate, the Lessor shall have the first Refusal; in this Case when the Lessee is minded to sell, he needs do no more but acquaint the Lessor with this Purpose, and know his Mind, and if he does not answer him presently, he may sell it to whom he will.

And if the Covenant be, that the Lessor shall give as much as another will, the Lessee must tell him what another offers him, and ask him whether he will give so much; and if he refuses or does not accept it presently, the Lessee may sell to whom he will. Dyer 13.

To do one Thing for another.

If one covenants to serve me a Year, and I covenant to pay him 10*l.* for it; in this Case, although he does not serve me, yet I must pay him 10*l.* But if I covenant to pay him 10*l.* if he serve me a Year, contra; for in this Case I am not bound to pay him the Money unless he serves me a Year.

So if one covenants to make new Pales so as he may have the old; he is not bound to make the new Pales unless he may have the old Pales.

So if one covenants to pay Money for Service, Counsel, or the like, or covenants to marry one's Daughter, or make an Estate, and the Covenant is penned conditionally, and so as one Thing is the Cause of another, and it is not set down by mutual and reciprocal Covenants; in all these Cases if the Cause or Condition be not observed, the Covenant shall not be performed. Co. Lit. 204. Dyer 371.

That the Lessee shall have the Fee.

If one makes a Lease for ten Years, and covenants that if the Lessee pays him 10*l.* within ten Years, that he shall have the Fee-simple, and the Lessee surrenders his Estate within the Time;

Time; in this Case if the Lessee pays the Money, the Lessor is bound to make the Fee-simple to him.

But if the Words of the Covenant be, that if he pays him 10l. within the Term, he shall have the Fee, and the Lessee surrenders his Term, and then pays the 10l. in this Case the Lessor is not bound to make the Fee-simple, for it was not paid within the Term. Co. 144.

If one covenants to do a Thing to J. S. or his Assigns, or to J. S. and his Assigns by a Assigns. Day, and before the Day J. S. dies; in this Case it must be done to his Assigns, if he before the Day names any Assignee; and if he does not, it must be done to his Executor or Administrator, which is an Assignee in Law. 27 H. 8. 2.

If one makes a Lease of Land to another, and covenants that he shall quietly enjoy it For quiet enjoyment without the Let of any Person whatsoever, or without the Let of any Person whatsoever claiming by or under the Lessor; in both these Cases the Covenant shall be taken to extend to such Persons as have Title, or claim some Estate under the Lessor; for if in the first Case any Person that has no Title, and in the second Case any Person that shall claim under another, and has Title, or that shall claim under the Lessor, claims or enters, or otherwise disturbs the Lessee; this is held to be no Breach of the Covenant. Sed Quere of the first Case, for herein some conceive a Difference between a Covenant in Deed and a Covenant in Law; and that a Covenant in Law is extended only to Ejections by Title, but the Covenant in Deed shall be extended further.

And therefore if A. makes a Lease for Years to B. and covenants that B. shall quietly enjoy it during the Term without the Interruption of any Person or Persons; if a Stranger in this Case that has no Right interrupts B. he may have an Action of Covenant: As when such a Promise is by Word, an Action of the Case will lie upon it. F. N. B. 145. I. Dyer 328. 26 H. 8. 3. 4 Co. 80.

And if the Lessor covenants with his Lessee, that he has not done any Act to prejudice the Lease, but that the Lessee shall enjoy it against all Persons; in this Case the Words, against all Persons, shall refer to the first, and be limited and restrained to any Acts done by him, and no Breach shall be allowed but in such an Act.

The Covenant in Law upon the Words Demise or Grant, also for the quiet enjoying of the Thing demised, is general against all Persons that have Title during the Term, and extends to the Heir after the Death of the Lessor, as against himself only; and shall charge the Executors or Administrators for any Disturbance in the Life of the Covenantor, but not for any Disturbance afterwards; he that sues therefore upon this Covenant, must shew that he was molested or evicted by one that has an elder Title. Jervis v. Peade, M. 40 & 41 Eliz. B. R. 5 Co. 17. 22 H. 6. 52. 4 Co. 80. Dyer 257.

If one covenants to enter into Bond for the quiet enjoying of Land, and does not say what Bond; in this Case it shall be taken to be a Bond of so much as the Land to be enjoyed is worth. 5 Co. 78.

A Warranty in a Lease for Years shall be taken for a Covenant for quiet enjoying. Fitz. Covenant 21.

If one covenants with another to acquit him of all Charges issuing out of the Land, and after by Parliament the tenth Part of the Value, not of the Issues of all Lands, are given to the King; the Covenant shall not extend to this. To be free from Incumbrances and Charges.

But if the Parliament had given the tenth Part exitum terræ; the Covenant would have extended to this as well as to Rents, Commons, and such like Things, wherewith the Land is charged. 7 Ed. 4. 6. Bra. Grant 164.

If A. covenants with B. to make such Assurance, or such further Assurance of Land as the Counsel learned in the Law of B. shall advise; in this Case although B. be learned in the Law himself, yet he may not devise this Assurance, but some other learned in the Law must advise; otherwise A. is not bound to make it. 5 Co. 19.

And if A. covenants with B. to make such Assurance of Land by a Day as B. or his Heirs shall devise; in this Case B. or his Heirs must first devise the Assurance before A. is bound to do any Thing. To make Assurances of the Land.

And therefore if one sells Land for Money, and the Vendee covenants to make back to the Vendor, and his Heirs such Assurance of the Land as the Counsel of the Vendor shall devise within one Year, provided that if the Vendee makes Default in the Assurance, then if he does not pay 20l. to the Vendor, that then the Vendee shall stand seised to the Use of him and his Heirs, and the Vendor renders no Assurance, and the 20l. is not paid; in this Case the Land is in the Vendee freed from the Covenant.

And therefore in these and such like Cases, where a Man is to make such Assurance as A. or his Heirs, or their Counsel, shall devise; A. or his Heirs must take Care that in Time they have an Assurance reasonably drawn and ready to be sealed, and to tender it to him that is to seal it, for until then there can be no Breach of Covenant.

But if A. be bound to make a Feoffment, Lease, or other Assurance of Land to B. by a Day; in this Case B. needs not demand or tender the Assurance; for A. at his Peril must do it, or otherwise he doth break his Covenant: And yet if in this Case B. gets the Assurance drawn, and tenders it to A. A. is bound to seal it, or otherwise he breaks his Covenant, 5 Co. 19, 20. Dyer 361. and Steed v. Spike, T. 20 Jac. B. R.

And if A. is bound to make such Assurance to B. by a Day, at the Costs of B. in this Case A. must do the first Act, viz. notify to B. what Manner of Assurance he will make, that he may know what Money to tender; and when the Money is tendred, A. must see that he makes the Assurance accordingly at his Peril, and if he fails in either of these, the Covenant is broken. 5 Co. 20, 22.

If A. be bound to make such Assurance to B. as by the Counsel learned of B. upon Request made shall be devised; in this Case it is sufficient if the Advice be given to B. and that he makes it known to A. and it is not needful it be given to A. immediately. 5 Co. 20.

And if A. covenants with B. to make such Assurance to B. as J.S. shall devise, and J.S. devises a reasonable Deed of Bargain and Sale, and he tenders it to A. to seal; in this Case A. is bound to seal it presently, and he shall not have Time to advise with his Counsel upon the Deed; but if he be illiterate and cannot read the Deed, he may refuse and delay to seal it until he can get somebody to read it, which he must do as soon as he can. 2 Co. 3. Dyer 338. And if one be bound by Covenant to make an Assurance upon Request, the Covenantee must request and tender an Assurance also, and he must tender such a one also as reasonable, otherwise the Covenant will not be broken by the Refusal or Neglect to do it: As,

If one be bound to make a Feoffment to A. upon Request; in this Case A. must get a naked Deed of Feoffment drawn without Warranty or Covenants, and tender it.

And if the Covenant be to make such a Lease as the former; in this Case the second Lease must not differ from the former; and if it do, the Party is not bound to seal it. Shep. Touch. 168.

If one covenants to levy a Fine at the next Assises for thirteen Years extunc; this shall be taken from the Time of the Fine levied, and not from the Time of the Covenant. Hil. 7 Jac. C. B.

If one bargains and sells Land to me by Deed indented, and before the Inrolment of the Deed I covenant with J.S. to convey all the Land whereof I am seised, and to do this before such a Day, and before the Day the Deed is inrolled; in this Case my Covenant shall not extend to this Land conveyed to me by this Bargain and Sale. Sir Jo. Brett's Case.

If A. covenants with B. that in Consideration of a Marriage between the Son of A. and Sister of B. that he, at the Costs of his Son, and by his sufficient Deed, will before Easter Day assure Land to his Son, and B. covenants that if A. performs this, then he will make him a general Release; in this Case although A. be ready, and the Son does not tender the Assurance, and the Conveyance is not made, B. is not bound to make any Release. Dyer 371.

Covenant for farther Assurance does not oblige to release the Equity of Redemption. Ld. Raym. 36.

To repair the Houses. If one covenants to keep and leave a House in the same or as good Plight as it was at the Time of making the Lease; in this Case the ordinary and natural Decay of it is no Breach of the Covenant; but the Covenantor is hereby bound to do his best to keep it in the same Plight, and therefore to keep it covered, &c. Fitz. Covenant 4.

For having House boot, &c. If the Words of a Covenant be that the Lessee shall have Thorns by the Assignment of the Lessor, and necessary Fuel also; there must be an Assignment of the Fuel as well as of the Thorns. Dyer 19.

If the Lessor covenants with his Lessee, that he shall have sufficient Hedge-boot by Assignment of the Bailiff of the Lessor; in this Case the Lessee is not restrained from that Liberty that the Law gives him, and therefore he might take without Assignment: But if the Words be Negative, that he shall not take without Assignment, or that he shall take by Assignment, and no otherwise, contra. Dyer 19, 20.

Custom in Bristol. Declaration on a Covenant made by Word by Defendant's Testator with the Plaintiff in Bristol, and that there is a Custom in Bristol, that Covenants coram facta shall bind the Covenantor as strongly as if it was made in Writing. Plr. Cur. This Custom does not warrant this Action, for the Covenant binds the Covenantor by Custom, but does not extend to his Executors, but shall be taken strictly. Ldch. 2.

WHERE it appears that a Covenant is contrary to the Intent of the Party, and by other Covenants it is contradicted, the Covenantor shall be relieved against it in Equity. Finch Rep. 90.

On a Covenant or Agreement for the Purchase of Lands, the Vendor stands as a Trustee for the Purchaser till the Conveyance is executed. 3 Chan. Rep. 5.

And where a bad Title was sold, with Covenant for farther Assurance, and afterwards the Vendor purchased a good Title, and was decreed to confirm, &c. See 2 Chan. Ca. 212.

A Power to release Lands raised by a Covenant to stand seised where an Estate was settled on the Covenantor for Life, Remainder to his eldest Son, with Power to himself to lease Part of the Lands, &c. though not good at Law, was decreed good in Equity; it appearing that the Conveyance was intended to be by Livery, which the Father was advised would be as well by Covenant, and on other Circumstances. Chan. Ca. 161.

A. in Consideration of Marriage settles Lands upon himself for Life, Remainder to his intended Wife for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of his Body on his Wife to be begotten, Remainder to his own right Heirs; and in the Settlement there is a Covenant with the Trustees from the intended Husband for himself and his Heirs, that he will not discontinue, dock or suffer a Recovery to bar the Limitations in the Settlement, but that the Issue of the Marriage shall enjoy and hold the Premises, pursuant to the said Limitations: The Marriage takes Effect, and they have Issue a Daughter, who marries the Plaintiff, and to whom her Father, who made the Settlement and Covenant, gave a considerable Portion. The Father afterwards suffered a Recovery to the Use of himself and his Heirs, and then devised the Lands in Trust for his said Daughter for Life, Remainder to her first, &c. Son in Tail Male; and if the Daughter survived the Husband, to the Daughter in Fee; but if the Daughter should die first, then the Remainder over, and died. Husband and Wife brought a Bill for a specifick Performance of the Covenant; and it was held, That A. being Tenant in Tail, and as such having a Power to suffer a Recovery, the Lands devised should not be affected, though the Covenant was good to bind the Assets; and such Covenant being at first accepted, Equity ought not to vary or alter it. Will. 104, 461.

If a Lessee for Years covenants not to alien without Licence of the Lessor, under Penalty of forfeiting the Lease, and he afterwards aliens without Licence, Equity will not relieve him. Mod. Ca. in Eq. 110.

On a Covenant in Consideration of Marriage to settle Lands of 350 l. per Ann. on the Husband and Wife and the Issue Male of the Marriage, Remainder to the Brothers of the Husband; a Court of Equity will compel an Execution of this Covenant, and not put the Party to an Action of Covenant in the Name of the Trustee. 2 Will. 594.

A. covenanted for himself and his Heirs to surrender a Copyhold Estate to such Uses, and died before it was done; but on a Bill by the Heir for a specifick Execution of the Covenant, it was decreed accordingly. Mod. Ca. in Eq. 106.

Now I come to treat of the particular Kinds of Covenants relative to their Uses, which are either such as are commonly annexed,

1. To all Kinds of Estates. Or,
2. To Estates for Lives or Years, and not to Estates in Fee-simple. Or,
3. Which may or may not be in Deeds of Conveyances of Land, or may be in Articles of Covenant only.

(Z) Of Covenants commonly annexed to all Kinds of Estates.

First, That the Covenantor is lawfully seised (or possessed) of the Premises.

IN Covenant that the Bargainor was seised in Fee at the Time of the Bargain and Sale, without Condition or Limitation, the Breach assigned by the Plaintiff was, that he was not seised in Fee; he is not bound to shew in whom the Estate was, to which the Bargainor is only privy; as in 9 Co. 61. And the Replication could have been only, that he was seised in Fee, and not absque hoc, that any Stranger was seised; it is a good Covenant that he is seised in Fee, and the Words, without Condition or Limitation, is super Addition. Keb. 58.

A. covenants

A. covenants that he is seised of a good Estate in Fee; the Plaintiff takes Issue by Replication, that he was not seised of a good Estate in Fee; Defendant rejoins, he was seised of as good an Estate as J. W. who granted it to him, had; which is nothing to the Purpose, because that he was seised of a good Estate, according to such an Indenture, refers to the Estate passed by the Indenture itself, and not to him that made it; which the Court agreed. Judgment pro Quer. Keb. 95. The same Case is reported thus, in Lev. 40. In Covenant Plaintiff declares that the Defendant bargained and sold to him certain Lands, (which he had purchased of W. and other Trustees in the late Times, for the Sale of Delinquents Estates) and covenants that he was seised of a good Estate in Fee, according to the Indenture made to him by W. &c. and assigns for Breach, that he was not seised of a good Estate in Fee. The Defendant pleads that he was seised of so good an Estate as W. &c. conveyed to him. Plaintiff demurs, and Judgment was given for him, for the Covenant is absolute that he is seised of a good Estate in Fee, and the Reference to the Conveyance by W. serves only to denote the Limitation and Quality of the Estate, not the Defeasibleness or Undefeasibleness of the Titles. Lev. 40.

A Lessor covenanted that he was then seised in Fee of an indefeasible Estate. The Plaintiff in his Declaration in facto dicit, that at the Time of making the Indenture he was not lawfully seised in Fee, and so he had not performed the said Covenant. Defendant pleads, Non est factum. The Breach is well assigned though he does not shew that any other was seised, because the Covenant is general, and so the Breach may be assigned as generally, especially as this Case is, where the Defendant has made the Declaration good by pleading Non est factum: So he allows the Breach, if it had been his Deed. Cro. Jac. 369.

B. covenants that he was seised of Blackacre in Fee-simple, whereas in Truth it was Copyhold Land in Fee. Per Cur. The Covenant is not broken: Quare, because the Reporter adds, the Jury shall give Damages according to the Rate which the Country values Fee-simple Lands more than Copyhold. Noy 142.

Covenant that the Defendant was lawfully seised, is intended as to the Title; and a Covenant for quiet enjoying is as to the Possession. 3 Keb. 755.

A Man covenants that he is seised of a good, perfect and indefeasible Estate in Fee-simple, and that he hath good Right and lawful Authority to sell, and that there is not any Reversion or Remainder in the Crown for any Act done by the Defendant: The Plaintiff assigns a Breach, that he was not seised of a good Estate in Fee-simple; whether these Words, by any Act done by him, at the End of the Covenant, shall refer to all before, or only to this last Part? Vide the Resolution, Lit. Rep. 62 to 69 & 203. Adjudged that it is an absolute Covenant, and shall not refer to all before; and that the Action well lay, 203, & vide Cro. Car. 106, 107. pl. 8.

A. conveys a Messuage with the Appurtenances to B. and his Heirs, and also grants to him Liberty of Ingress to a Well, &c. to draw Water, &c. and A. covenants with B. that he was seised of the Premises: It is no good Breach that A. was not seised in Fee of the Well, for that the Covenant that he was seised in Fee of the Messuage and Premises does not extend to the Well. Lut. 608.

A Man covenanted for him and his Heirs, that he was seised of a good Estate in Fee; the Executor of the Feoffee shall not have an Action of Covenant, but the Heir, for it is annexed to the Land. Winch 19.

In Covenant by a Lessee of Tenant in Tail, not warranted by the Statute, (on Assignment to the Plaintiff) That he was possessed of the Indenture, and that it was unavowed and unavoidable; Tenant in Tail dies; the Breach assigned was, that the Issue entered. On Demurrer thereon, the Court inclined this was no Breach, unless it had been, that it should continue so during the Term, or that the Assignee should enjoy it during the Term, for the Lease is only voidable on the Contingent of the Death of Tenant in Tail. 3 Keb. 816.

Secondly, That the Premises are of such a yearly Value.

A. covenants that at the Time of the Date of the said Indenture he was seised of a lawful Estate in Fee-simple, notwithstanding any Act done by him or his Ancestors; and that the Land was then of the Value of 200l. per Ann. and that the Plaintiff and his Heirs shall enjoy the same, according to the said Limitations, discharged and saved harmless from all Incumbrances made by him or them. The Question was, whether this Covenant, for the yearly Value depends on the first Part of the Covenant, that notwithstanding any Act done by him, &c. or whether it was an absolute and distinct Covenant. And it was held to be an absolute and distinct Covenant without any Dependence upon the first Part of the Covenant. Cro. Car. 106, 107. pl. 8. See Lit. Rep. 62 to 69, & 203.

A Cove-

A Covenant that the Lands conveyed are of the yearly Value of 100*l.* and shall so continue notwithstanding any Act done or to be done by him: In an Action upon this Covenant, the Breach assigned was, that the Lands were not of the yearly Value of 100*l.* Adjudged that the Words notwithstanding any Act, &c. extend as well to the Time of the Covenant as to the future Time; and though they were not then (i. e. at the Time of bringing the Action) of that Value, the Covenant was not broken, unless some Act was done by him which was the Cause thereof. Cro. Eliz. 43, 44. pl. 4. See Lit. Rep. 80, 81.

Thirdly, That the Grantor, &c. has a Right to sell, &c.

In a Covenant that a Grantor is seised in Fee, and has good Right to sell, the Words are synonymous. 3 Lev. 46. And if he has no Right, an Action may be brought for a Breach of Covenant. 2 Bulst. 12. T. Jones 195.

A Man was bound to perform all Covenants which were to be performed in such an Indenture, and there was a Covenant that he was rightful Owner at the Time of the Covenant, and was not; yet because of the Covenant being which are to be performed, it was adjudged that the Condition of the Bond was not broken, for that it goes only to Covenants to be performed in futuro. Lit. Rep. 205. 3 Leon. Case 290.

I now have Heirs and Assigns by these Presents, by the Will aforesaid do own full Power, good Right and lawful Authority to sell; this is good, and the Words [Heirs and Assigns] are insensible and Surplusage; he ought to be Owner of a Power as well as Owner of the Land. Roll. Rep. 84.

The Plaintiff declared, that B. by his Indenture, dated, &c. demised to J. S. divers Lands and Tenements in S. for the Term of six Years, if R. R. Son of N. R. should so long live; and covenanted by the same Indenture with S. that the said B. then had full Power and Authority to demise the Premises according to the Form and Effect of the same Indenture. S. for Breach of the said Covenant averred that B. at the Time of the making the said Indenture, had not full Power and lawful Authority to demise the Premises according to the Form and Effect of the said Indenture, Et sic præd' B. conventionem suam præd' cum eodem J. in hac parte non tenuit sed illam penitus infregit. B. pleads Concord, &c. S. denies the Concord, and it was found for him. B. brought a Writ of Error in the Exchequer-Chamber, and assigns two Errors for the Insufficiency of the Declaration; First, That the Plaintiff had not averred that the said R. R. was living at the Time of the Commencement of the Lease, nor at the Time of the Action brought; Sed non allocatur; for the Covenant refers to the Time of the Lease made, and then, be R. R. alive or dead, the Action lies; for if he be dead before the Lease, then the Lease is absolute; and if he dies after the Lease, and before Action brought, yet the Action lies, and Consideration thereof shall be had in Damages. Secondly, That S. in his Declaration had not shewed what Person had Estate, Right, Title or Interest in the Lands demised at the Time of the making the Indenture; by which it may appear to the Court that B. had not full Power, &c. But per Cur', The Assignment of the Breach is good, for he had pursued the Words of the Covenant Negative, and it lies more properly in the Notice of the Lessor what Estate he had in the Land, than the Lessee, who is a Stranger to it; and therefore the Defendant ought to shew what Estate he had in the Land at the Time of the Demise made; by which it may appear to the Court that he had full Power and lawful Authority, &c. 9 Co. 60. b. Cro. Jac. 304. Otherwise in Debt upon an Obligation with Condition to perform Covenants. Cro. Car. 176.

Fourthly, For peaceable Enjoyment.

All Covenants between the Lessor and the Lessee are Covenants in Law, or express. By Covenant in Law the Lessee is to enjoy his Lease against the lawful Entry, Eviction or Interruption of any Man, but not against tortious Entries, Evictions or Interruptions; and the Reason of the Law is clear and solid, because against tortious Acts the Lessee has proper Remedy again the Wrong-doers; and for the same Reason, if the Lessee be by express Covenant to enjoy the Term (or to enjoy it against all Men, which is the same) he shall not have Action of Covenant against the Lessor, unless he be legally ousted or evicted; for if he is ousted tortiously by any Stranger, he has legal Remedy; but if the Lessor expressly covenants that the Lessee shall enjoy his Term without the Entry or Interruption, be it lawful or tortious, there the Lessor shall be charged by Action of Covenant for the tortious Entry of a Stranger, because no other Meaning can be given of the Covenant. Vaugh. 118.

Upon an Eviction of Lessee for Years, all Rents, Bonds and Covenants depending thereupon are gone. Felv. 23. So where the principal Thing to be performed is void. Sid. 309. Felv. 19. Style 357.

There is a Diversity where the Covenant for quiet Enjoyment is general, and where special; for where the Covenant is for quiet Enjoyment against A. B. the Covenantor ought to defend against the Entry of A. B. without the Disturbance of any Person there; if there is any Entry upon the Plaintiff, he must shew that the Party who entered had a Title. Owen 100.

Per Twifden, I never met with a Case where Covenant would lie but upon an actual Ouster, either by a Stranger, by Eigne Title, or by the Lessor himself. Vent. 45.

Covenant that the Lessee shall enjoy, binds not against a wrongful Ejector, unless it is particular against A. who wrongfully ejects, or else expressly against all Strangers. Hob. 35.

The Law shall never judge that I covenant against the wrongful Acts of Strangers, except my Covenant is express to that Purpose, for the Law defends every Man against Wrong. Hob. 35.

In Debt on Obligation for Performance of Covenants; the Breach assigned was, that the Defendant, Lessor, covenanted that it should be lawful for the Plaintiff, being Lessee, quietly to enjoy the Land, and that the Lessor himself ousted him; this illegal Ouster was a Breach of the Covenant. Cró. Eliz. 544.

Covenant that Lessee shall have and enjoy; Breach, that J. S. brought Trespass and recovered; it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, because it does appear that he that recovered had Title. Serjeant Levinz: Here is an express Covenant that he shall enjoy, and he is disturbed in his Possession, though upon no Title. Dyer 328. a. Vaughan 120. Hob. 35. 2 Vent. 46.

Lessee for twenty-one Years, rendring Rent, with a Condition to re-enter, &c. Lessee leases Parcel to the Plaintiff for a less Term and under a less Rent, with this special Covenant, That the Plaintiff should enjoy without Impeachment of him or any other, occasioned by his Impediment, Interruption, Means, Procurement or Consent. Defendant did not pay the Rent, therefore his Lessor entered into the Whole, and avoided the Plaintiff's Term. Per Cur, It is a Breach. Bull. 182.

An Action was brought against the Heir of E. A. the Condition was, Whereas the said E. A. such a Day has granted and given to the Plaintiff the Presentation to the Church of D. if therefore the said E. A. from Time to Time shall make good the said Grant from all Incumbrances made or to be made by him and his Heirs, that then, &c. The Grantor died, the Church became void, the Heir of the Grantor presented; this tortious Presentation is no Breach; but this extends only to lawful Disturbance by the Heir; for it appears by the Pleading that the Heir had no Right to present, his Father having granted it before. Per Hobart, The Words shall be construed as if they had been, that he shall enjoy the same from any Act or Acts made by him or his Heirs; and in this Case there ought to be a lawful Eviction to make a Breach of the Condition; but otherwise if the Condition had been, that he should peaceably enjoy from any Act or Acts made by him or his Heirs; for in this Case a tortious Disturbance would have been a Breach of the Condition. Winch 25.

The Condition of a Bond was, that the Lessor should suffer his Lessee for Years to enjoy, &c. and that without the Trouble of him, or any other Person; a Stranger enters by Eigne Title: The Condition is not broken, for this Word, suffer, is Passive, and all the Rest is to be referred to it; but if any Procurement or Occasion of Disturbance be by the Lessor, his Executors or Assigns, then he forfeits the Obligation. 2 Ed. 4. 2. b. Roll. Abr. 425.

Debt to perform Covenants in a Lease; one was for quiet Enjoyment against all claiming Title. The Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that a Stranger entered, but saith not Habens Titulum: Per Hale, Habens Titulum at that Time would have done. Dyer's Case is, Another entered claiming an Interest, but that is not enough, for he may claim under the Lessee himself. If the Covenant had been to save him harmless against all lawful and unlawful Titles, yet it must appear that he that entered did not claim under the Lessee himself. Mod. 101. 3 Keb. 246. Hob. 34. Moor 861.

The Plaintiff by Deed indented leased to the Defendant a Farm called D. except one Close by Name. Lessee (Defendant) was bound in a Bond to perform all the Covenants and Agreements in the said Indenture, and pleaded he had performed all the Covenants. The Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that the Defendant entered into the Close excepted. Defendant demurred. The Obligation was not forfeited by that Disturbance, for the Land excepted was not named. This Exception was not such an Agreement as was within the Intent of the Condition; it is an Agreement that the Land excepted should not pass by the Demise, but no Agreement that he shall occupy; but in some Cases, an Exception is an Agreement that shall charge the Lessee; but this is when he agrees on his Part that the Lessor shall have a Thing dehors, which he had not before; as except a Way or Common, or any other Profit Apprender, that is an Agreement of the Lessee that he shall have the Profit; Profit; and if he be bound to perform all Covenants and Agreements, if he disturbs him in this he shall forfeit his Bond. Cro. Eliz. 657. Moor 553. Roll. Abr. 43. Vide Plow. 67.

A Covenant was, That the Lessee and his Assigns shall enjoy without Interruption of F. E. and all others claiming under the said F. The Breach assigned was, that he was ousted by J. S. who claimed under the Title of F. E. and shewed not how he claimed under his Interest, nor by what Conveyances: It is not good, and for that Reason reversed by all the Judges in the Exchequer Chamber. Cro. Eliz. 823.

The Defendant covenanted to save the Plaintiff harmless concerning the Possession of such an House; and Breach is, that such a one had evicted him, and the Defendant had not saved him harmless. Verdict pro Quer. It was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that it is not shewed that he was evicted by Title; and all Covenants extend only against legal Titles and Evictions. Per Cur. This Agreement is only quoad the Possession, not quoad the Title. Judgment pro Quer. 2 Lev. 194. 3 Keb. 744.

Two made a Lease for Years by Indenture, and covenanted that the Lessee should not be disturbed, nor by any Incumbrance made by them: One of the Lessors made a Lease to a Stranger, who disturbed; it is a Breach of the Condition of the Bond for Performance of the Covenants, for the Word them shall not be taken jointly. Latch 161. Poph. 200. Noy 86.

A Covenant that the Lessee shall enjoy against the Lessor, and all claiming under him. The Defendant exhibited a Bill, whereby the Lessor appeared to be in Trust; and adjudged this was no Breach. 2 Keb. 288. Brownl. 23. Moor 859. But this Case was denied to be Law. T. Raym. 371.

To enjoy without lawful Impediment of J. S. The Breach is, that J. S. having Right, entered: It is a sufficient Breach. 2 Keb. 878. Per Hale, Having Right implies it is a lawful Eviction. 2 Lev. 37. and Ventr. 184.

Covenant that whereas D. had let to the Plaintiff the Parsonage of B. that he would save him harmless concerning it against M. B. and he alledged M. B. entered upon him and put him out, and did not say that the Entry of M. B. was lawful. Per Cur. When the Covenant is to save him harmless against a Person certain, he ought to defend him against the Entry of that Person, be it by Right or Wrong; aliter if against all Persons, for there it shall be taken for a lawful Entry or Eviction. Had it been to have warranted against him, it must have been a lawful Title, so that in this Case to save harmless is more than to warrant. Cro. Eliz. 213. Leon. 324.
